rifrangea agl'occhi dello [illegible] Creatore. Creando Iddio come stanno le leggi della Natura [illegible] o consumar tutte in un medesimo tempo alla maggior gloria dell'Uomo: piuttosto in questo [illegible] aveva Iddio mostrato che la sua volontà è l'unica legge che la natura conosce e che la natura non ha altri vincoli nè altre forze [illegible] che a Dio piace. Sugli Alberi sempre verdi e fecondi vedevansi insieme il nuovo, ed il vecchio frutto; ed il Cedro [illegible] il [illegible], ed altre [illegible] senza numero [illegible] le loro gomme odorose, e i balsami, e gli aromi [illegible] e [illegible] che di [illegible] fragranza riempivano ogni parte. Un fiume reale scorreva [illegible] e con dolce murmure nel mezzo di quel giardino che dividendo [illegible] in mille ruscelletti le sue acque [illegible] l'erbe, e i fiori che [illegible] tutta la superficie di quel soggiorno.

Il giovane [illegible] come il sole, volgendo i occhi or al Cielo or alle [illegible] campagne or al [illegible] spettacolo della sua reggia [illegible] di [illegible] e di un dolce incanto. Costituito da Dio [illegible] della terra trovava una fedele e [illegible] attenzione nella natura [illegible] suoi bisogni e [illegible] con prodiga munificenza d'alimenti non era costretto Adamo a [illegible] delle [illegible] e con lunga e [illegible] fatica [illegible]. In ogni parte ed in ogni momento si trovava la mensa [illegible] imbandita di tutte frutta di uno squisito, e del sapore più delicato, e [illegible] che immaginar si possa. Tutti gli Alberi piegavano [illegible] a gara i suoi [illegible] perchè l'Uomo si degnasse di aggradire i [illegible]; che gli offrivano. Gli animali tutti; [illegible] le [illegible] le fiere più selvagge, e altre [illegible] non [illegible], che gli agnelletti innocenti come lor Signore [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] scherzando [illegible] avanti di lui [illegible] alle [illegible] [illegible], ed adulanti [illegible] i [illegible] [illegible] melodiche [illegible] con grande [illegible] di acque limpidissime [illegible] d'un [illegible] e [illegible] e mille altre [illegible] delizie offriva ad ogni passo la natura allora giovanetta [illegible] Signore, e [illegible] di quella costante saldezza, ed uguaglianza, di cui godea. Noi al presente portiamo intorno questa struttura, che quasi non ci accorgiamo appartenerci se non quando ci duole, e ci addolora. Noi non possiamo comandargli, che in pochissime cose non possiamo dire al sangue, che non s'accenda, al cuor, che non palpiti, agli umori che non ribollano o non s'inacidiscano, a questa nostra mortale scorza, che non si sgualci, e non invecchi. Ella non ci ode, non ci cura, non ci ubbidisce. Alla volontà del grande Adamo tutto era soggetto, ed ubbidiente. Se un'accidente fortuito recato avesse qualche leggere alterazione nel libero scorrere e d'intorno del sangue nelle vene le fosse andato indurando, e rendendo meno leggiere e molli, se gli orli de' vasi più incapillati incallando si fossero e rendendo ancor essi di apportare giacchezze e lenori e la curva e dolente vecchiezza, Adamo potea a suo voglia disperdere tutti gli effetti, e gli attentati del cieco meccanismo, e ricondurre la bellezza giovanile, di cui avrebbe potuto godere per molti secoli. Ora in oltre, il cibarsi de' frutti preziosi dell'Albero della vita che con mirabil forza penetrando nell'essenza più consistenti, e ne' più piccoli vasi, e rinvigorendo i solidi disgiungendo ogni principio di corruzione, ed troppa durezza e infondevano nelle membra una forza sempre nuova con segreto dolce vigore che il valevano di lei perpetuamente sopra renderle immortali.

[illegible] la [illegible] e più grande del [illegible] in cui [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] la [illegible] bellezza del [illegible] ben dinotava il [illegible] delle Creature la robustezza l'agilità la sveltezza del [illegible] e la [illegible] de' suoi sensi non [illegible] più perfetta [illegible] grace, e [illegible], niuna [illegible] niun [illegible] o dolore [illegible] [illegible] impero sopra il suo [illegible] la natura [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible]

In questo modo il Padre di tutti gli Uomini ancorchè il suo Corpo naturalmente tendesse a dissolversi col tempo, pure non avrebbe mai l'orrido calice della morte turbato l'innocenza del suo cuore. Quindi tranquillo, e sicuro di una vita senza fine e di una sanità senza turbazione, contento, e giocondo, passava i suoi giorni e' tempi e lieti in quell'albergo di tutte le delizie le più innocenti occupandosi nell'abbellire, ed ordinare i suoi giardini gustando così della dolce semplicità e di tutti i piaceri dell'agricoltura, senza provare alcuno de' dolori, che ora l'accompagnano.

Il timore ed il dolore que' due crudeli tiranni che rendono al presente così infelice la nostra vita non erano in Adamo la cui giocondità turbar non potevano, né i beni veduti bene, perchè sarebbe privo del dolore che vi cagiona, o l'infermità, o la fame, la miseria, o la tristezza, o l'altrui perfidia, o una passione feroce che molte e barbare il cuore. Quando tace il dolore non manca di comparire frequentemente il timore, che fa molto bene le veci del primo. Il timore de' mali basta a rendersi miserabili, e mettersi nelle più grandi angustie a perder eternamente. Noi pieni di miserie nell'anima, d'infermità nel corpo circondati da molti Uomini cattivi, da elementi nemici, e disubbidienti in una terra di esiglio che tra ordine di ridursi ad ogni sorta [illegible] tribol, e [illegible] noi dobbiamo vivere in un continuo timore. ogni istante può esser l'ultimo, ogni cibo può essere fatale l'uomo può tradirci, gli animali ribellarsi rivoltarsi o [illegible] ogni cosa può [illegible], ogni ingiuria dell'aria ogni [illegible] di rovina. Ma Adamo dice S. Agostino (lib. 14 de civitate Dei cap. 10) [illegible] potea dolersi, o di che temere? Egli era circondato da ogni sorte di beni ed ogni male era bandito dalla sua reggia, nè potea sforzare le sbarre, ed i cancelli, che lo tenevano lontano. Niente gli mancava di ciò che una buona volontà può desiderare o acquistare; ricchezze nella pura ubbidienza de' Bruti, servitù [illegible] in tutti gli Elementi, robustezza immortale nel suo corpo, tranquillità placidissima, e serena nel suo cuore. innocenza, dolcezza [illegible] ogni amabilità e candore, ed aiuto nella sua [illegible] [illegible] ovunque.

Quale Uomo non si sente tocco all'aspetto di uno stato così felice? Quì sembra ad un cuor carnale che niuna maggior consolazione si possa aggiungere alla gran massa di tanti beni. pure tutto questo non è, che la minima parte di quei gran [illegible] che Dio versò in seno della sua [illegible] non è che una leggera ombra di quella santa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] felicità di Adamo [illegible] [illegible] infinitamente più eccellenti e grandi sebben meno esposti agli occhi dell'Uomo.

Ottenne questo primo Uomo arricchimento dalla bontà del suo Creatore [illegible] del dono dell'integrità, [illegible] la carne, e le membra [illegible] [illegible] perfettamente soggette, ed ubbidienti [illegible] [illegible] lo spirito a Dio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a grandezza di questo dono [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] può far una riflessione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] n.° 59] [illegible] [illegible] ed [illegible] [illegible] dalla ribellione e [illegible] delle passioni e le conseguenze della perdita dell'integrità originale.

Questi deplorabili [illegible] che tiranneggiano [illegible] la carne e [illegible] [illegible], e che rendono l'uomo tanto infelice, e lo cruciano e lo [illegible] [illegible] non avean luogo in Adamo. [illegible] [illegible] dal [illegible] [illegible] del suo [illegible] [illegible] in lui un [illegible], [illegible], e [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] involontaria, che potesse stenderlo ad uscir fuori della retta strada. Gli affetti, i movimenti, e l'inclinazioni del suo animo erano composte e ordinatissime. Un giusto sentimento della propria grandezza gli faceva considerare tutte le cose come infinitamente inferiori a se, nelle quali per conseguenza non poteva trovare nè la sua felicità, nè il suo fine. Il suo animo diritto non aveva nessuna tendenza verso i piaceri de' sensi per attaccarvisi, e goderne con trasporto e con avidità. Il suo cuore placido, come un fiore in calma non pativa alcuna scossa da quei desiderii sollecitanti, e violenti, che come un turbine, o un colpo di folgore vengono privandosi avanti di ogni riflessione e volontà! La virtù niente costava al suo cuore fatto per la virtù, sostenuto dalla grazia di Dio e collocato in quell'ordine, di cui conosceva profondamente le bellezze, ne gustava la dolcezza e infinita quindi saggio, e stesso senza fatica non provava alcuna difficoltà nell'adempire i suoi doveri di una creatura ragionevole. Le sue inclinazioni pieghevoli, e [illegible] lasciavansi da lui reggere, e volgere con un filo, anzi con un cenno [illegible] l'essere. Tutto era pace, ordine, tranquillità, quiete, dolcezza nel suo [illegible] animo. Oh beata integrità! oh stato felice!

Ma quanto ricca era pur la mente di Adamo quanto splendide e chiare le sue cognizioni, quanto immense e fine le sue viste. Quel buon Dio, che gli aveva destinato il mondo per abitazione e data la terra in proprietà, e dominio gli ebbe [illegible] altresì un'esatta cognizione. Seppe Adamo fin dal primo istante tutto ciò, che con lungo studio e magistero si può apprendere al presente. Gli uomini [illegible], che sanno altro, perchè con ostinata applicazione sono arrivati a conoscere alcune proprietà di essi, e alcune verità della nostra terra debbon deporre l'orgoglio [illegible], che non è grande se si paragona alla enorme ignoranza de' loro pari, e ad infiniti travagli, che loro costa quanto di vero piccola cosa si conosca ancora? Chi è che sappia perchè una foglia cada, perchè batta il cuore, come comanda una [illegible]? Le scienze più sottili e laboriose, ancorchè tanto avanzate al presente non sono ancora bambine, se si riguarda ciò, che loro manca, e ciò, che loro si può aggiungere nel lungo avvenire. Si raccolga dunque tutto ciò che di utile e di grande imparano gli uomini con molti stenti e non arrivano a chiudere, se non [illegible] nell'età dei [illegible] di abbandonar ogni cosa tutto ciò e più ancora [illegible] Adamo fin da' primi suoi giorni senza alcuna fatica [illegible] un magnifico [illegible] Creatore delle scienze d'ingegno, di sapere, e di comprensione.

ma la scienza di Adamo più nobile, e più perfetta era quella della virtù, e de' costumi. Quanto chiaro, e grande era in lui la cognizione di Dio, dalle cui mani erano uscite state impastate le sue membra, e dal cui divin fiato prodotta la sua anima. Al presente l'ignoranza quasi invincibile e [illegible], e benda gli occhi, e non ci lascia veder conseguentemente la bella faccia della verità e della virtù. La ragione è decaduta da' suoi privilegj; non cammina più, che come stordita, e vacillante; lo spirito di vertigine si è sparso sopra i suoi consigli. La mente di Adamo era circondata dalla luce più bella. Contemplava la verità, e la bellezza della virtù a faccia scoperta non sotto veli, ed enigmi. Nè alcun affetto torbido, e nuvoloso poteva offuscarsi lo splendore, con cui la verità si presentava a' suoi occhi.

Compiendo Dio finalmente l'opera più bella delle sue mani, e ch'era lo splendore, l'ornamento, la gloria del Mondo appena creato versò nel cuore d'Adamo un torrente di grazia, e di santità. Chi può mai intendere l'infinito valore di questo dono, il più ammirabile e il più grande senza alcun paragone di tutti gli altri. Cogli altri doni Adamo era stato fatto il Re della Terra, il Principe di tutte le Creature viventi, il più nobile di tutti gli esseri, il più saggio, il più tranquillo, il più grande di tutti gli Uomini, che sono venuti dopo di lui. Ma col dono della santificazione, e della grazia divina egli divenne il Figlio di Dio, l'amico del suo Creatore, l'erede de' suoi tesori divini. La sua anima più risplendente del sole, più vaga dell'aurora, più brillante di qualunque gemma era il centro delle compiacenze del Dio de' Cieli. Vi è difficoltà ad intendere l'infinita tenerezza con cui Dio trattava Adamo. Ammantando Dio in certo modo i raggi della sua maestà e grandezza si abbassava a conversar con Adamo famigliarmente, e da amico quasi passeggiando nel suo giardino ad onorarlo de' suoi colloquii amorosi. Quel Dio grande, che riempie i Cieli, avanti a cui la terra, il sole, le stelle, e tutto l'Universo non (a) è, che un guscio d'uovo, e l'Uomo un moscerino invisibile perchè non possa distaccar i suoi occhi da questa creatura! Adamo vicendevolmente non amava, che il suo buon Padre, non trovava vera dolcezza, che riposandosi nelle di lui braccia, e trattenendosi con lui in colloquii di preghiera e di ringraziamento aspettando quel felice istante, in cui dal terrestre Paradiso [illegible] tento tutto mente in anima e in corpo illeso, e sano e [illegible] in cielo, e al [illegible] di Dio per godere de' di lui baci ed amplessi eternamente. Oh Adamo felice! oh Dio amoroso! Quanto siete grande, e magnifico nelle vostre opere? Quanto infinito nella vostra bontà, e ne' vostri doni? Che cosa è l'Uomo, che voi avete arricchito con tanta profusione? Che avete esaltato a tanta dignità? Che riguardate come la pupilla de' vostri occhi, e l'oggetto delle compiacenze del [illegible] amabil cuore.

(a) Gli astronomi moderni misurano, che la distanza della stella fissa più vicina alla terra sia più di [illegible] millioni di millioni di leghe / ossia che ogni stella sia lontana dalla Terra cinquecento mille volte di più che la Terra dal Sole, la quale ne è lontana per trenta quattro millioni di leghe / [illegible] questa immensa [illegible], che l'umana mente non può concepire ed in cui si perde. [illegible] aggiungono ancora la minima parte della [illegible] dell'[illegible]. Lambert Lett. Cosmologiche Bonnet, edizione ultima ed altri

---

[illegible] sive [illegible]

[illegible] in [illegible]

[illegible] crimen [illegible] perpetrarant hunc [illegible] [illegible] nativa integritate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quib. [illegible], et [illegible] sunt e regia illa voluptatis [illegible], et [illegible] laborib. [illegible] terra [illegible] et [illegible] ejecti. Miserandi [illegible] illi [illegible] ante [illegible] et [illegible] ambulabant in [illegible] omnib. dominarant, et ipsius Dei familiarib. colloquiis [illegible] gaudebant nunc ejecti a facie [illegible] ignominia et opprobrio pleni, lacrymis [illegible] dolore, meditatq. confecti [illegible] [illegible] ab illustri loco illo per [illegible] ad [illegible] erat ut ad deserta loca [illegible] ingratae terrae [illegible] laborib. non reddat nisi tribulos, et spinas [illegible] [illegible] exposita ad mendicitatem redacti et ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] morte [illegible] [illegible] post [illegible] [illegible].

Sed clarius intelligemus quanti, quamque atroces fuerint [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] primos [illegible] Adami filios [illegible] constitutionem [illegible] [illegible] ille bonus, et magnificentissimus, qui thesauros divitiarum immensos effuderat in

Creatorem innocentem, justissimo, iudicio hanc sensibilem, et ingratam cum tota progenie sua ejiciatur, maneret et viventis doloribus exercuit. misericordia tamen suae non oblitus media reliquit; Christum credendi, et in hac vita refugium, in altera beatitudine; Christum merendi. sed qui Christum ignorant .... ponendi contemplant; illi in tristitiam, tum in furorem et desperationem, et frenesim agunt, bacchantur furiosi, terrasque, coelum, naturam, et coelum intuentes, et carmen... Inter sunt ex nostris Philosophis duces, quos tamen ceterum erudit ... Plinius; cujus haec sunt verba ... historiae, clara quidem voce sed non minori indignatione, irae, et blasphemia. „ante omnia, inquit, unum animantium cunctorum externa velamenta quaerere cogit, ceteris varie tegumenta tribuit natura. testas, cortices, coria, spinas villos setas pilos. plumas pennas, squamas vellera. truncos etiam, arboresque cortice interdum gemino, a frigoribus et calore tutata est. Hoc tantum nudum, et in nuda humo natali die abjicit ad vagitus statim, et ploratus, nullumque tot animalium aliud ad lacrymas. et has protinus vitae principio. Ab hoc lucis rudimento, quae ne feras quidem inter nos genitas vincula excipiunt, et omnium membrorum nexus.
Itaque feliciter natus, iacet manibus, pedibusque devinctis, flens, animal ceteris imperaturum, et a suppliciis vitam auspicatur unam tantum ob culpam quia natum est. Heu dementiam ab his initiis existimantium ad superbiam se genitos! Prima roboris spes, primumque temporis munus quadrupedi similem facit. Quando homini incessus? quando vox?
quando firmum cibis os? quamdiu palpitans vertex summae inter cuncta animalia imbecillitatis indicium! jam morbi totque medicinae contra mala excogitatae, et hae quoque subinde novitatibus victae. Cetera sentire naturam suam, alia pernicitatem usurpare, alia praepetes volatus alia nare. Hominem scire nihil sine doctrina, non fari, non ingredi, non vesci, breviterque non aliud naturae sponte quam flere. Itaque multi extitere qui non nasci optimum censerent aut quam ocissime aboleri. Uni animantium luctus datus est .... uni ambitio, uni avaritia, uni immensa vivendi cupido, uni superstitio, uni sepulturae cura, atque etiam post se de futuro. Nulli vita fragilior, nulli rerum omnium libido major, nulli pavor confusior, nulli rabies acrior. Denique cetera animantia in suo genere probe degunt, congregari que videmus et stare contra dissimilia (leonum feritas inter se non dimicat serpentium morsus non petit serpentes, ne maris quidem belluae ac pisces nisi in diversa genera saeviunt. At Hercule homini plurima ex homine sunt mala." Haec Plinius qui ceterum cautissimus in contemplanda natura fuit.

Ut miserandum hom[inum] calamitatum spectaculum habeamus, aspice in [illegible] magnificas illas [illegible], quæ tantâ [illegible]
[illegible] et elegantiâ fronte habeant, intus vero tantos dolores et luctus contineant. Tale [illegible] [illegible]. Quod spectaculum non [illegible] horribilis aspectus! Centeni jaceant in lectis, in [illegible] sparsis, crinib. pallidi [illegible] cernunt mortales, [illegible] gemit alter exanimatus, et languet, alter ululat et [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] cernit ambulas, hunc [illegible] deserunt, illum capitis vertigo, et [illegible] cerebri, [illegible] dolor in insaniam agit. Miseras hasce creaturas quod crudeliter dilacerant et devorant omnes [illegible]!
[illegible], [illegible], catarrhi, [illegible] et [illegible] ulcera et cancri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hydrops, [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], atrophia, et [illegible].
[illegible] vexant jacentesque [illegible] aggrediuntur, et lacerant, et [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] horribilis miseriæ, [illegible] profunda [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] voces et stridores traxerat lacrymis! Quis [illegible] [illegible] sine intimo cordis cruciatu? Ubi est illa magna hum[ani] [illegible] majestas, et inimitabilis venustas [illegible] et [illegible] majestas imperii, et dominationis index [illegible]; et [illegible]
[illegible] possunt respirare, et quam [illegible] aliquo onerati [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible]. [illegible] aliquot [illegible] interne oppressionis, [illegible] oculi [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] circumferunt [illegible] et immobile, [illegible] dehiscit et rugosa, [illegible] colore [illegible], et a [illegible].
Sed forte quis [illegible] magnam [illegible] haud infirmitatibus tot medicorum agmina [illegible] et tot immensas [illegible] pharmaceuticas officinas. [illegible] dubio [illegible] habent [illegible] grandem, sed [illegible] quod debilem vim quod [illegible] obtinent [illegible] contra invictos [illegible]
[illegible]. [illegible] infinitas herbulas, [illegible] innumeros [illegible] liquores et [illegible] [illegible] ex terra ex [illegible] ex fluminib. ex utroque orbe adductas [illegible] congregarunt ex metallis, [illegible], [illegible], ex ipsis [illegible] eduxerunt. Botanicos omnes et chimicos [illegible]
[illegible] ex elementis omnib. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] abradere particulas, [illegible] [illegible] convolvere in [illegible] characteres [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible].
[illegible] pharmaca, [illegible] [illegible] non intelligunt [illegible] immensas hasce, [illegible]
[illegible] remedia [illegible] demonstratione. Si millena et diversissima remedia adsunt [illegible]
[illegible] millena [illegible] genera et eo debilior, fragiliorque est hominum valetudo, quo magis indiget externis [illegible]
[illegible], quib. [illegible] et [illegible] adeo [illegible], et [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] sit ad sanitatem [illegible] medicamenta [illegible].
Graves Hippocratis discipuli [illegible] columina [illegible] onerarent [illegible], ut [illegible]
[illegible] curatione describerent [illegible] immani est [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] libris si index hum[ani] infirmitatum [illegible] complexus est et [illegible]
[illegible] sine tremore, et [illegible] eos [illegible] ne [illegible]
[illegible] infirm[itate]? [illegible] homo [illegible] et [illegible]? [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] scientia [illegible] medicorum [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], ita breve [illegible]
[illegible] sufficiant ad intelligendas [illegible] dealbata! Et [illegible] et [illegible]!
[illegible] hæreant in [illegible] totum [illegible]
[illegible] in ea [illegible] fragilitas et infirmitas [illegible] in fundo [illegible]
[illegible] sit, [illegible] partes [illegible] morte [illegible]
[illegible] producunt, sed [illegible] ea quæ intelligunt, [illegible]

[illegible], et utilitati [illegible]. At nihil minus dulce inter [illegible] tamen magis necessaria, sed magis obscura [illegible] arcana. Densa nocte cooperatis [illegible] a qui arti [illegible] vacant, [illegible] incedunt [illegible] in tenebris ambulantes, aut oculis capti. Vocati ab aegroto Doctores inter se dissentiunt, [illegible] circa curationem; clamant denique inter eos [illegible], infirmus exspirat. Stupendum illud videri, [illegible] infinita diffecta cadavera, post innumerabiles [illegible] anatomicas [illegible] corporis humani intelligentia, nisi in [illegible] crassioribus, et in organizatione [illegible]. Quis [illegible] [illegible] organa [illegible], et [illegible] structuram vel minimum intellexit? Quis fibras cordis, quis [illegible], quis [illegible] membranula [illegible] textura, [illegible] accurate comprehendit? In hoc [illegible] novo, et [illegible] magis [illegible] sunt Provinciae et terrae incognitae quam in integro Orbe terraqueo. [illegible] Botanicae [illegible] necessaria [illegible] dies. [illegible] magis [illegible] [illegible] plane certa, et non ambigua [illegible]. [illegible] quia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] immortalitatis naturae, [illegible] et non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Sed [illegible] curatio, et labores, [illegible] [illegible] obtinent exitum, quam dari [illegible] volebat. [illegible] curatio a [illegible] [illegible] liquidantur, [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible] et [illegible]. Medici [illegible] aegroto [illegible] [illegible] et crudeles, ut non [illegible] indigeant infirmi ad eas [illegible], quam [illegible] ad mortem [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] vero [illegible]. Depromunt [illegible] et horrenda [illegible] instrumenta cultros, serras, scalpella, terebras, uncos, cuspides, torcularia [illegible], aliaque infinita ad excarnificandum machinas. Vetatur infirmus [illegible], [illegible], et ipsorum [illegible]. [illegible] vero intrepide secant venas, musculos lacerant, corpus excoriant [illegible] in ipsa viscera terribiles [illegible] manus, et gladios injiciunt, [illegible] abjecti ossis [illegible], [illegible], etiam [illegible] [illegible] infirmum [illegible] et excoriatum [illegible], [illegible]. Quam [illegible]! quam infelix, et [illegible] [illegible] gravior [illegible].

Sed ab infirmorum [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] sublatos [illegible] videbimus. Regionem hic devitet, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] faciat. Quot [illegible] [illegible]? Quot [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]? [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in domestica societate [illegible]? [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible]? Quot herbulas, quas placide et innocenter [illegible] [illegible] flores et fructus quasi ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nobis? Quotiens tellus [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]. Italia [illegible] nostris diebus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]? Quot montes [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fundamenta montium et [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]? Ab aquis vero quam [illegible]! [illegible] flumina et torrentes [illegible] [illegible] intumescunt, et rapidi [illegible] agros, [illegible] sylvas, et [illegible], et rusticas Agricolarum domos, et ipsos pastores? Quis vero omnes injurias enumeraret? Nunc crudeli frigore eos pungit, et lacerat, nunc calore nimio eos prope adurit, vel humiditate, et levitate relaxat fibras omnes, et repentinis alterationibus equabilem constitutionem corporis et [illegible] humorum corrumpit et destruit. Deploravi quam horrendum sepe spectaculum, presertim noctis umbras habemus, dum sole abducto inter tenebras, de nubes horrendum emittebant flammas, vel edito fragore tonitrus in domos, et in abdito [illegible] [illegible] jaciant fulgura! Quam sepe pruine, grandines, ventique evertentes agros omnes depopulantur, colonorumque labores et fructus rapiunt! Terra ipsa, quam sepe rebellis, et ingrata cornutas dealgat segetes, crudeli sterilitate! Quoties illa insecta non devorant ejus opes! Agricolarum vero, hic est major pars, altissimique generis hominum quam dura sors! Si ad eam prospicimus, miseras familias videmus ad ferreos labores ventendis terre damnatas, quas sol estivus perpetuo torret, [illegible] omnes animorum vestitu nudat, ut eos sol oriens et occidens perpetuo sudantes videat. Si fructus ipsos, tandem vere servat durilabores, divites ex Urbe quesitum adveniunt, qui hec omnia diligenter ipsis detrahunt, et [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] relinquunt mercede.

Sed ad sedem voluptatis, et opulentie, ad magnam felicium hominum domum, ad urbem accedamus. Nihil unde venustius tot edibus preclaris, tot fontibus, foris, columnis, templis, atriis, [illegible] simulacris, pictisque tabulis que pendent undequaque. Hic collecta patent que uterque Orbis producunt, que [illegible], que littora Orientalia, [illegible] regiones universe; que fecunditas divitiis [illegible] que industria hominum [illegible] in loco ad commoditatem, ad luxum, ad delicias, ad splendorem unquam reperiunt. Oh felicem terram! Oh [illegible], oh [illegible] domicilium! Ita clamant loquentes illi, qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] se [illegible] [illegible] inconsiderate. At qui latentem veritatem volunt detegere, quam profunde gemunt ex atroci spectaculo [illegible] miseriarum [illegible] in [illegible] sinu Urbs concludunt.

Merasque civium pars omnia bona sua secum portat duas videlicet manus, et grandiuscula labore [illegible], [illegible] expositas per vias [illegible] ambulant, sed eas vel attingere prohibentur. Sola contemplatio plerisque debet sufficere nisi forte infirmum aliquid, et abjectum quod [illegible] volent [illegible] comparare. Magno pretio ipsis ad habitandum datur [illegible]-divites [illegible] [illegible] domus, ubi inter sordes, et in [illegible] [illegible] omnes [illegible] vivunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conspectu perpetuo exclusi, vix tantum [illegible] [illegible], ut lapsum corpus [illegible] valeant extendere.

Sed [illegible] hoc est in urbe flagellum [illegible]. Fortunam videt habitatores omnes, [illegible] splendida, [illegible] divitias dejicientem larga manu. [illegible] [illegible] intentis oculis, et ardenti corde [illegible] [illegible] sua dona se mutuo [illegible], ubi vim faciunt, obtentamque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vicissim. Modo raptores, modo direpti se mutuo fugiunt, vel insequuntur donec utrique a [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] amicos obliviscuntur, [illegible] sanguinis [illegible] audacque manus nulla contineri [illegible]. Virtutes, justitia humanitas voces, et jura non audiuntur, [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] cupido. [illegible] obtenta [illegible] nullis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dies fatigat, [illegible] et exhaurit.

Ceterarum [illegible] incommoda vitare [illegible] hoc, aut saltem [illegible]. Procelle, [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] signa dant, et [illegible] veluti [illegible] [illegible] fulgura [illegible] [illegible] ejaculant non micant, non tonant, [illegible], et in cineres redigunt. [illegible] latet sepe sub amicitie [illegible].

infante pot. post Bestiarum, electorumque in quo vivitur, debet ubicumque perfidia hominis timere, in domo, in lecto, in ~~[illegible]~~ cibis in ipso recto somno, a cibo timeri.

Sed quis valet recensere infinitas illas calamitates, quib. homines purgantur ob ceterarum nequitiam? Quoniam in Urbe ob viam spectaculo, ob magnificentiam ~~delitiarum~~ divitiarum, ob divitias delitiis quæ proponuntur, corda hominum desideria crescunt in immensum, cupiditates irritantur et exardescunt, infinitisque in rebus omnib. indigentiam se putat homo quib. alius homo abundat. Hinc innumerabilium utiorum series irrumpit, quib. deo aspectus simplicitas caret, civitas interitus et perit. Nullo loco magis, quam inter Urbis angustias fervent tumultus, invidiæ, discordiæ, fraudes, iracundiæ, rapacitas, perfidia, ambitio, ~~gratulatio~~, luxuria, dissimulatio, hypocrisis, falsa testimonia, calumniæ, circumventiones, maledicta, proditiones cujuscumque generis. Quod animi ergo civis plerique eâ debent, quib. perpetuo vigilandum, et perpetuo cavendum a monstris adeo immanib., et implacabilib., at quorum morsus ægre vitare non possunt? Nonne adeo graves, et molestiæ sunt mortaleis curæ, quib. in Urbe opprimuntur homines, ut beatæ ipsi vitam felicem praeparent tantum, statim homines transferunt ad colles, ad agros, ad prata virentia, ut excursis cupiditatib. suis, alienumque tollant, molestiis pace, ac securitate digna frui videantur homo ad fontem sedens, arguto calamo aerem demulcens?

Fugitivos oculos in eam conjiciamus, quæ infinitam agmen claudit mortalium viventium, jam detectis mortem, horribilemque mortem. Quam truculentus est ejus aspectus, quam horridus ejus vultus, quam olacriter ad nos respicit! Hoc facis inter corpus incipit quando accenditur, et hoc incipit ab incunabulis. In hac terra sumus veluti in aperto belli campo: milleni homines quotidie ante nos cadunt, illi etiam, qui lateri nostro proxime adhæserant, tum a dextris, tum a sinistris ante oculos nostros paulatim expirant. Nos ipsi quavis hora cogimur conjecta in nos tela vitare et cavere. Interdum etiam ab illis lædimur, et sauciamur. Quavis ætate, et in quovis robore timere debemus, ne extrema jam adsit hora. Quando membra quieti committimus, noctisque jacentes niger noctis horror continet, certi eâ non possumus an e somno simus emersuri, novamque lucem salutaturi, et ~~[illegible]~~ nascentem solam aspicimus, dubitare debemus, an simus eam visuri. Tandem canities vestiri ~~[illegible]~~ Annorum tandem, longæque magis ærumnarum pondere oppressus decidit homo in lectum, ut infirmitates in hac hora funebri versandæ nostris omnes, ut in hominem inermem, et debilem vim faciant, eumque implacabiliter dilanient, et torqueant. Quas omnes, amice, animas, voluptates, resque ipsas amittere debere homo intelligit. Videt suos equos, et canes superesse, et vivere, sibi vero omnem dentiam prohiberi a labore, studia, sibi hominum amplius non remanent. Praesentia, praeterita, futura ~~[illegible]~~ accumulata inter ejus mente vivunt. Corporis dissolutio, et interitus eum replet terrore. Sed omnia, quæ superest futurus status, et imminens actionum omnium judicium, in mortali, et frigido sudore, atque tunc subrepit. Luxus, tristitia exegitant ejus corde. ~~[illegible]~~ Languent membra corporis, et connata detractant officia. Sequuntur pallentia imminuitur, acies oculorum extinguitur, languidum caput hebes inde defluit, atrox mortis jam undique sentitur, livida apparent labia, et defluentia, mortalique pallore horrescit facies, et fœda mortis imago vultum occupat.

Vere terribilis mors est, et contra naturam, nam docente Scriptura, Sap. Deus mortem non fecit, sed invidia Diaboli mors introivit in mundum, neque mirum, aut horrorem habet natura quib. ejus v... sentiundat aut natus, dileg, quib. ejus tempus et ~~[illegible]~~ Abeunt quidem, et videntur homines ftone, qui sæpissime inter militares tumultus et inter atrocissimos cruciatus, et tormentorum tempore exacti, et effeminatio luxuriis corpus, et in infirmitate morte et [illegible] [illegible] erant, neq inter horas sponte dies, projiciunt aeq. intrepide, et oculos ter profundunt. At ii ipsi quos firmatos [illegible] ratio, [illegible] ante [illegible] vivunt [illegible], [illegible] admirati [illegible], et extollunt, ii ipsi ferunt ̃terrore et [illegible] quidem in campo [illegible] [illegible], intrant frenetice. [illegible] vita Deus et illud [illegible] [illegible]; si ipsi si Extra tumultum, [illegible] laudi et tamq [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in proprio cubiculo mortem inter lacteas recumbentes [illegible] [illegible] quasi [illegible] [illegible] et palpitant.

[illegible]

Alexander [illegible], qui [illegible] mortem in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible], quando la[illegible] moriendum fuit, quasi puer, aut muliercula mortem timuit, et expavit. [illegible], qui fortitudinem [illegible] [illegible] cogitatis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mortem [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], et sine [illegible] [illegible] ad ridiculum [illegible] [illegible]. Ipse Bayle [illegible] incredulum [illegible] ad caducitatem extremam [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]...

A Christo solo, vera fortitudo, [illegible] in lectulo doloris et infirmitatis [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] exigit, mortis aspectus vel delectat, vel fit tollerabilis. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] docto [illegible] vel indocto quantoquunque [illegible], et puellæ, quæ sine [illegible] militari [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], sed sola [illegible], et Christi [illegible] roborata [illegible] a morte [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fortiter [illegible], cum hilaritate cum gaudio? Solus Christus habet [illegible] et balsama quæ cordi nostro infundit quæq. sagittas mortis [illegible], ejusq. amaritudinem [illegible], vel extinguunt prorsus. [illegible] Paulus mortis a Christo devictæ [illegible] [illegible] ad Cor. 2 15 ait: absorpta est mors in victoria. Ubi est mors victoria tua? Ubi est mors stimulus tuus?... Deo autem gratias, qui dedit nobis victoriam per Dominum nostrum J.C.

[illegible] ergo, et [illegible] [illegible] virtutem contra mortem [illegible] [illegible] concedamus [illegible], et ostentationem in Stoicis cognoscamus, et [illegible] in apparenti fortitudine [illegible] mortem [illegible], [illegible], et [illegible] est. [illegible] ut etiam sub [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] desperationem, vel stupiditatem [illegible] in [illegible], in [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] deploramus [illegible] solo sincere et [illegible] Christi [illegible] [illegible] videmus, [illegible] mors [illegible] fronte, et [illegible] [illegible] videlicet, et sine [illegible], [illegible] in nullo videmus Heroem, aut [illegible] [illegible] in Christo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quamvis [illegible] et [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] contemplamur [illegible] debemus omnino ejus excellentiæ et dignitatis, [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Rex est Universi [illegible] [illegible] tributum ferre [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] a nobis [illegible], nostrosq. labores in ipsum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; nos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], nostri sunt [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conditatem [illegible] [illegible], flumina [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nostris denique [illegible] in [illegible]

naturæ quasi alteram novam efficere tentamus. Quanta vestigia dominationis nostræ supra omnem terræ superficiem passim videmus. Hinc soles nequeunt [illegible] invitæque ferme anne immensa navium corpora mobiles [illegible] ventis nostris propellere, et trahere coguntur? (V. in scripto Phil. Copia p. 6 [illegible])

Quid vero? Non satis [illegible] in cœlum usque penetravit? Cœlorum spatia jam descripta sunt; planetæque ab lance apparenti motus eorum, [illegible] gradientes definiti. Solis et obscurationes in talibus tempus et momento [illegible] jam deducimus, longe instabiles motus et periculosam irregularitatem jam dominium. Contumax [illegible] jam torruerat Astronomi frena.

Juvat nobis dignitatem nostram intelligere, et recolere identidem; sed non minus necessarium est respondere infirmitatis nativæ sordes contemplari: Magna pudoris, et confusionis argumenta suppeditat natura undequaque. Reges quidem sumus Universi, sed reges exauctorati, et rejecti. Sibi [illegible] domus indigent, [illegible] impeditat. Oportet enim nos bene terræ [illegible] manibus nostris [illegible] sibi construere. Imperant simul et serviunt rebus omnibus. [illegible] fermentatione et [illegible] fructibus utuntur [illegible] et imperii lineamenta (ut supra [illegible]) sola corporis qualitates attendantur, conditio brutorum corporibus a nostra [illegible] videri potest quod hominibus largiter exultant, et [illegible], quin servant quidquid, aut cogunt [illegible] ipsi nasque nova, [illegible] et strata [illegible] terrarum. Nec tenere, aut [illegible] [illegible] indigent, ut [illegible] [illegible] bona, et thesauri in [illegible] reservari non [illegible], aut [illegible]. Viridium [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Difficiles nostræ voluptates non invident nobis; nullis fere desideriis torquentur, nec avaritia, aut ambitione, aut livore torquentur. [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], tædium, molestiæ, desperatio, [illegible] [illegible] indolentiam et [illegible] non turbat, aut [illegible]. [illegible] sunt [illegible] [illegible] alacritate et dexteritates [illegible] magis, quo magis sylvestria. A malis, quæ præsentia non attingunt, nec funesto futurorum malorum cogitatione [illegible], [illegible] non [illegible], nec [illegible] ejus [illegible] sentiunt, nisi in [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et tunc etiam sine anxietate in [illegible] [illegible] quasi in somnum insipitum et quietum.

Hæc eo fine erat adnotata, ut Homo intelligat se non in hoc terrestri domicilio, in terrenis bonis, et in voluptatibus [illegible] quærere debere felicitatem sibi congruentem et dignam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], immensaque vastitate cordis. [illegible] in desperationem agi debet videns se tantum sollicitudine [illegible], terrenas delicias, et bona non esse tamen obtinere felicitatem majorem felicitate [illegible] vel [illegible] quæ hoc ipso feliciores erant, si quidem ejus [illegible] [illegible] evadere. Providentissime, et misericorditer Deus terrenas calamitate, et [illegible] [illegible] malorum, et graves [illegible] [illegible] nobis ne desides, et [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et æternitatis obliti, ne [illegible] [illegible] creaturis, fugacibusque vitæ [illegible], carnaque [illegible] contenti simus obliti Creatoris, in quo solo est æternus [illegible] beatitudinis, tamen hoc dignus, et hoc satiare solus valens.

Hominum animo si contemplantur quantas divitias, sed quae invenerunt, in vesica statim videbimus. Hoc ho- etiam uno animantia cetera longissime ... ille in scriptis philosophicis ... anxie veritatem hominis assequentis semper vel illorum? Physicorum ... et successivi ... et interioris systemati ... bacillitatem, et incertitudinem satis ampla probant rerum ... qui non verba, sed res intelligere, naturaeque necessarias cognitiones ingredi cuperent, pertinaci studio fateantur hominis mentem esse tenuissimam. Magnus Galileus invidebat sorti ignorantium, qui sibi dulciter persuaderent se omnia scire, dum ipse acerrima cogitatione intelligebat se nihil scire. Id in quacumque scientia auctores et ... tractationes profiteantur. Sed saltem homo ea, quae magis gravia sunt, quae magis utilia, et necessaria diluide, et perspicue inveniret. Sed nullibi tanta obscuritas, tantaque infirmitas mentis, quantum in iis quae spectant ad summum hominis bonum, ad mores, ad felicitatem, quae tandem unice necessaria sunt. Quot sedi errores, et innumerabiles in rebus admiserit! Nisi Deus ipse speciali magisterio et revelatione orem tulisset, omne notio foedata et contecta obscuritate videremus.

Audi cui miser est Homo quo ad veritatis cognitionem quanto miserior est quo ad bonum, et felicitatis assecutionem? Res ad bonum currunt omnes ... (p. 43) inquiunt, et obducunt. Sed an natandum hanc felicitatem, cujus ardore homo convenit invenit, et possidet? Qui in natura illam quaerunt caeteroria inveniunt, unde sunt illa, vilicha Augustini: Vera, et secura in litore, in ventre et inter- qui dura sunt omnia. Hinc hos etiam diebus mortali taedio languescunt, neque ... possunt. Imaginationem torquent, ut aliquid inveniant proficiendi, et urgendi horas, ... et quoniam temporis ... non satis ... existimant magno ... tallendi tempori idonea. Conquerimur quandoque de brevitate vitae, diuturnitatem quae tolleramus ... concentrare oculo, non possumus, rationis exercitium mortaliter nos fatigat. Hinc moralia, studia et ... in omni ... evitant, in omnes ... a cognitione fugiunt veluti a tyranno.

... collector logicae theologicorum. Le necessità della natura sottraho all'uomo una gran parte di tempo non fiere resta del molto poco, di cui egli ... disporre ... questo ... Perchè l'uomo non si annoja di tutto, e non cerca questa moltitudine di occupazioni, senon perchè ha l'idea della felicità, che ha perduto, la quale non trovando in se, cerca inutilmente nelle cose esteriori senza potersi giammai acquietare. Perchè la felicità nostra non è nè in noi, nè nelle cose esteriori, ma solamente in Dio.

Reverendus capax est cor hominis ut integra terra integre. Universum explere nequeat immensam capacitatem cordis humani! Notissima sunt illa nobilia Augustini verba: fecisti nos Domine ad te, et inquietum est cor nostrum donec requiescat in te. Celebres illi Orbis Domitores (Conquistatori) qui Provincias innumeras, regnaque immensa adepti sunt ... et omne reptans quid tam immensa amplitudine Orbis terrarum congesta in cor saturare illud potuerunt? Nihil minus. Alexander ... post expugnatam Darium, et castissima ... regna in vita = statem redactam aviditate, et fame devoratus, et semper ardet, et inops videtur sibi quia mundum orbem integrum possederat, et sanguine repleverat et universum genus humanum gladio jugulaverat. Cumque audisset innumerabiles mundos posse existere, hos etiam necessarios sibi putavit ad explendam famem, ploravitque.

Heu inanes, et imbelles lacrymas hominis furentis, vel potius tigridis ferocissimae, et emeritae! [illegible] [illegible] quod mundum totum bello mundique unus subjectus sibi esset. Stultissime putabat Planetas, et Astra omnia in ditionem redacta explendam famem et inquietem cordis mei. Minime novimus. Creatura omnium in[illegible] cor, quod magnitudine superat immensa spatia, et corpora Coeli, et terrae.
Homo unus Salomon felix esse potuit inter mortales ex natura boni, si namque omnia ad felici-tatem suppeterent. Ad Ipsum florentissimi regni evectus, quin duros experiatur belli labores, unquam manus detersit et indelebili macula humani sanguinis. Nullus ex finitimis audet maximam pacem ejus turbare. Tributa offerunt certatim merces, et divitias, omnisque generis commoditates. Ad personam ejus reges exteri ipsum vehementer diligunt, humiles ejus sapientiam mirantur, et tribuunt ad pedes abjecti. Unus Salomon inter reges omnes magnus fuit; non solum externis ornamentis, militum, equorum, provinciarum quae Heronibus, et Magnatis non defue-runt, sed regia, et stupendis dotibus animi, sapientia, et mentis castitate, qua omnes homines superavit. Dei amicitia, et colloquio quo frui obtinuit, adnotatis illo privilegio Paternita-tis Messiae, quo poterat exclamare: ex meo sanguine orietur Deus Homo quem Angeli adorabunt, quem coeli, et terrae Dominum omnes creaturae recognoscent. Hic fortunatissimus et beatus inter Mortales paulisper oculos a Deo declinans, avidissime congerit, et summa facilitate delicias omnes quas natura, praeter ambitio, opulentia possunt ministrare. Nihil negat animi af-fectibus, nihil negavit sibi; nihil novum ei deest ex iis, quae inter Creaturas possunt inveni-ri. Et tamen effusus in lacrymas fatetur se invenisse inter delicias esse infelicissimum, et miserrimum. Audienda sunt ejus verba in Ecclesiaste. Locutus sum in corde meo dicens: ec-ce magnus effectus sum, et praecessi omnes sapientia, qui fuerunt ante me (Vide!) ...... cumque me convertissem ad universa opera, quae fecerant manus meae, et ad labores in quibus frustra sudaveram, vidi in omnibus vanitatem, et afflictionem animi, et nihil permanere sub sole. Ho-rum inspectis profunde intelligitur veritas magni Epiphonematis, a quo Ecclesiastes librum in-cipit: Vanitas vanitatum, et omnia vanitas; et illud cons. taeduit me vitae meae. Vidi cuncta quae fiunt sub sole, et ecce universa vanitas, et afflictio spiritus... cuncti dies ejus doloris, et aerumnis pleni sunt, nec per noctem mente requiescit. Secundissimis Salomon fortunatissimus omnium Mortalium, et sapientissimus, et deliciis omnimodis affluens, in quo solo fuerat congerere visae suae opes, et omnia bona sua taedio, aerumnis; quamvis conficiebatur et afflictione spiritus necessario comitatam habuit, ideo non offeret animus quantacunque...

... electis et ...

latere honores, scientiæ, dignitates, delicias, aurum, amicitias, uxoresque blandientes, et inventa tentare conspirant elaboratissima, et adhuc nec felicitatem satis sinceram et stabilem et a magnis animi vanis, mortalibusque tædiis numerosis exemptam posse in terra invenire, creatisque bonis. Verum, volunt gaudere debent homines etiam aurati, aureoque sceptro fulgentes sub jugo miseriarum, nisi ad medicum omnium infirmitatum, Jesum Christum, pro refocillatione confugiant. Egregie Augustinus: Vera et sana insolatio, ut supra.

Magna ... miseriarum in corde est, quamdiu cordi mollitate, Christum non amant. Honores, potestates, et pax, et felicitates sunt cordis humani. Miserias quis nobis dixit, et profunditatem corruptionis ejus de visu perpendendo investigare? Pelagus est sine fundo, mare est immensum, cujus littora nemo explorare, et invenire potuit altitudinem. Clamat S. S. Pravum est cor hominis et inscrutabile, quis cognoscet illud?

Corruptionis humanæ evidens demonstratio in perpetua illa voluntatis et affectuum contradictione reprehenditur. Nos veritatem amamus, affectamusque, sed aliena quædam, et secreta ... illa legem ... inter atroces convulsiones, et tormenta; Exponere vero sit tremenda mala, quæ in nobis producit damnabilis illa concupiscentiæ ignis, qui in nostro corde latet a die nativitatis. Concupiscentia deordinatio est animi, et deordinata in bona terrena, cujuscumque generis, divitias, honores, voluptates etc. Ardet semper hæc flamma in corde hominis perpetuo, cælestemque flammam charitatis erga Deum, et proximum vel extinguit, vel extinguere novis tentat.

Et uti veteres idololatræ Hebræi, Ægyptii, Græci, Romani res omnes vilissimas et nefandas pro diis habere, et adorare soliti erant, latrones, bestias, usque et fetidas, etc. solum Deum unicum, et verum nolebant, respuebantque; ita cor hominis corruptum omnia amat, Deo excepto, qui unice amorem meretur. Amat aurum, ordines, domos, animalia, fruges, laudes, curiositates, et ineptias; sed fontem bonorum omnium Deum, bonum unicum et indispensabile hominis non amat naturali inclinatione. Alios etiam homines ordinate non diligit, sed plerumque contemnit et odit crudeliter. Nihil homini amabilius homine esse deberet. Homo visibilis est imago Dei, ejus pictura, et similitudo, et opus Christi sanguine redempti sunt omnes, et ad cælestem patriam vocantur, et invitant. Ut una simul cum Christo recumbant in regno æterno ad mensam suam; omnes homines ... stant ... nati ... et ... ab iisdem patribus, et nobis bene multi progeniti sunt ut vere proprie sint fratres eodem sanguine progeneriti, et una sit humana familia super faciem terræ, et tamen cum tanta sit fraterni amoris notitia, cum ... sint infinita a Christo ... contra infractores, homines tamen corrupti ... fraternitatis obliti, Deique imaginem, et similitudinem ... pro nihilo se ipsos non diligunt, imo fraternitatis obliti, Deique imaginem et similitudinem cælestemque originem, et finem in humana natura contemnentes, infamia, et ignorantia ... attendentes, liteque ... afficiunt. Honorem Dei in hominibus non agnoscunt, solum quæ circumstant hominibus sperant, ut ... Gregorius M. quia mentem fascinat concupiscentia. Homo ad se omnia dirigit, vult esse centrum rerum omnium, neque super alium minimum et ... ceteros extollere nititur; se magnum putat cum potentiam nocendi acquisivit, in gladio, in robore, in brachio, in magnis ...

perspicere possit decrescere, aut resterrescere. Quid vides quid abjectius, et ignominiosius hac potentiae jactatione, et nocendi? Non leo, aut lupus tantum, sed scorpio, vipera, formica in aurib., hirudo in vene, ubi homini possunt dolorem et cruciatum inferre. Fruatur ergo hac foedissima, et turpi ostentatione, et usu est relinquendus, et decoris qui non convenit nisi belluis, et damnatis. Homini non decet nisi amor, tenendo beneficentia, commiseratio, candor, dulcedo, mansuetudo, obsequium erga fratres suos. Sed nisi flammas restinguant concupiscentiae, quae hominem elatum reddunt et furiosum, quomodo dulcia haec munera adimplebit, et contra humanitatem desinet? Integer [illegible] aspectus spectaculum est horribile humanae crudelitatis.

Nullus esset finis, si omnia recensere vellem et calamitates, quas funestus ignis concupiscentiae, quo humanum genus inflammatur, producit. Satis est animadvertere omnem superbiam, furorem, et invidiam, ambitionem, omnem delitiarum cupiditatem valde deordinatam, et [illegible] concupiscentiae exortam, quae hominem reddit miserum, et crudelem, in vitae [illegible] morte, et nisi ei manu [illegible] [illegible] agit, et in aeternam damnationem. Pro complemento gaudeo me votis afferre propemodum [illegible] tabulam ab excellenti speculatore cordis humani elaboratam, ab Aug.no videlicet lib. 22. de Civitate Dei, cap. 22. Ex quo loco intelliges in immensum ab Aug. energia nos abesse. At [illegible] ex tradendi ac [illegible] theologicam circa gratiam, et et [illegible] ab eo didicisse. Capitulum ejus [illegible]

Aug. de magnitudine miseriarum et malorum, quibus humanum genus ob primum peccatum obnoxium est.

„Quod ad primam originem pertinet, omnem mortalium progeniem ... [illegible] ... ipse etiam, quia iustus est, poena sit."

Sed praeter mortiferas poenas, sine quibus dici non est, quid majora valeat, quam ut aliquid [illegible] [illegible] quot, et quantis poenis agitatur genus humanum, [illegible] ad malitiam, nequitiam, iniquitatem [illegible] conditione pertineat, miseriamque communem, quis ullo sermone dixerit, quis ulla cogitatione comprehenderit? Quantus est metus, quanta calamitas ab orbitatibus, atque luctu, a damnis, et damnationibus, a deceptionibus, et mendaciis hominum, et suspicionibus falsis, ab omnibus violentis facinoribus, et sceleribus alienis? Quandoquidem ab eis et depraedatio, et captivitas, et vincula, et carcer, et exilia, et cruciatus, et amputatio membrorum, et privatio sensuum, et alia multa horrenda saepe contingunt. Quid de innumeris casibus, qui forinsecus corpori formidantur? aestibus, et frigoribus, et tempestatibus, imbribus, alluvione, coruscatione, tonitruo, grandine, fulmine, motibus hiatibusque terrarum, oppressionibus ruinarum, ab offensione, et pavore vel etiam malitia iumentorum, a tot venenis fructuum, aquarum, aurarum, bestiarum, et ferarum, vel tantummodo molestis vel etiam mortiferis morsibus, a rabie, quae contingit ex rabido cane, ut etiam [illegible], et amica suo domino bestia nonnunquam vehementius et amarius quam leones, draconesque timeatur, faciatque hominem quem forte morderet contagione pestifera ita rabidum, ut a parentibus, conjuge, filiis pejus omni bestia formidetur. Quae mala patiuntur navigantes, quae terrena itinera conficientes? Quis ambulat ubicumque non subjacens inopinatis casibus, de foro quidam rediens domum sanis pedibus pedem fregit, cecidit, et ex illo vulnere finivit hanc vitam. Quid videtur sedente securius? De sella in qua sedebat cecidit Heli sacerdos, et mortuus est. Agricolae, immo vero omnes homines quot, et quanta a caelo, et terra vel a perniciosis animalib. casus metuunt agrorum fructib.? Solent tamen de frumentis tandem collectis et a condit. e. securi. Sed quibusd. pro ruinas movente ostiam frumentorum fluvius impositos fugientes [illegible] nis de horrei ejecit, et abstulit. Contra [illegible] callidos Daemonum incursus [illegible] innocentia [illegible] fidit? [illegible] siquidem ne qui, fiderent etiam parvulos baptizatos, quib. certe nihil e innocentius aliquando ex vexant, ut in eis maxime Deo sinente ista monstretur hujus vitae flenda calamitas, et alterius desideranda felicitas.

Jam vero de ipso corpore tot existunt morborum genera, ut nec medicorum libris cuncta comprehensa sint. In quorum plurib. et paene omnib. ipsa adjumenta, et medicamenta tormenta sunt, ut homines a poenali exitio, poenali eruantur auxilio. Nonne ad hoc perduxit sitientes homines ardor immanis, ut urinam quoq. hum. biberent? Nonne ad hoc fames, ut a carnib. hominum abstinere non possent, nec invenientes homines mortuos, sed propter hoc a se occisos, nec quoslib. alienos, verum etiam filios matres incredibili crudelitate, quam rabida esuries faciebat, absumerent? Ipse extremus somnus, qui proprie quietis nomen accepit, quis verbis explicet quam saepe somniorum visis inquietus, et quod magnis, licet falsis, tamen veris tenoribus, quos ita exhibet et quodammodo exprimit, ut a veris non discernere sequatur, animam miseram, sensusque perturbet? Qua falsitate visorum etiam vigilantes in quibusd. morbis et venenis miserabiliter agitantur, quamvis multimoda varietate fallaciae homines etiam sanos, maligni daemones nonnunquam decipiunt talib. visis.

Ab hujus tam miserae quasi quibusd. inferis vitae non liberat nisi gratia Salvatoris Christi Dei ac Domini nostri. Hoc enim nomen est ipse Jesus, interpretatur quippe Salvator, maxime ne post hanc miseriorem et sempiternam excipiat non vita sed mors. [illegible] in ista [illegible] sunt. (Hic [illegible] continuatur.)

Genus hum. sibi relictum in deplorando jacuit, et jacet ignorantia et caecitate circa veritates utriusq. nobiliores Religionis, honestatis (.

Prob. Vulgo dicitur, et vere sanitatis praestantiam ii vilescere, qui nunquam aegrotarunt, at in diuturnitatibus agrorum valetudini stupendum bonum. Ut ergo nos intelligamus quam dignitas et mirabilis sit lux Evangelii, quam nos ex Christi beneficio perpetuo fruimur, convertenda mens nostra ad tempora et loca, in quib. fulgidissima Christi lux non resplenduit, aut non resplendet. [illegible] pulcherrimis libris de Civ. Dei, opere immenso videlicet, et omnium Aug. eruditissimo [illegible] Doctor, cujus exemplum in itinere necessarium nobis, et [illegible] putamus. Consulamus igitur experientiam ut intelligamus immensitatem nostrae ignorantiae generis humani, a qua Christi [illegible] [illegible] vit, et quidem ut multa [illegible] [illegible] praetendamus audiamus Bossuetum, qui in Oratione [illegible] [illegible] storia universale ita egregie hum. generis caecitatem depingit: [illegible] [illegible] illuminate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] . . . (l)

. . . il gran Dio Creatore del Mondo non aveva [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cui in Camaldenses.

Ergo [illegible] [illegible] eloquentissime attingit Bossuetus, optime [illegible], ut Theologus [illegible] [illegible] intenti [illegible] diligentius. Itaq. nihil horribilius [illegible], absurdius [illegible] universum Religione, et omnium veterum nationum. Colitur quoniam nomen est sive celebre apud Chaldaeos docebant unum [illegible] tripar-tem, undique una parte piscem e mari Erythraeo identidem adrepsisse hunc eloquiisse, artes, litteras, scientias, leges, Geometriam, agriculturam et cetera, quae homines rudes, et feras a mansuefacere, pugnat, et expolire, ut Berosus [illegible] Chaldaeorum scriptor narrat apud Syncellum. Scribit idem Berosus homines primitivos fuisse [illegible], bicipi-tes Hippocentauros, semihomines, semicapras. Addit Deum quendam Homoroca nomine fuisse universi Dominum, eamque in duas partes divisam a Belo, qui exinde caelum et terram [illegible] ... Belus ... capud [illegible], inter alios homines [illegible] ipsos, et ex effluente sanguine cum terra mixto hominem condidit et anima[illegible] Deo [illegible], eosque humana forma [illegible]. Haec aliaque ex fragmentis Berosi, Abideni, Apollonii To[illegible] Abrahami; satis ostendunt quam fuerint absurda, et [illegible] fatuitatis esset, decantata hujus [illegible] Chal-

daeorum e quorum regione mutare jussit Deus ut Abraham exiret, ne ipse, ejusque [illegible] ad idololatriam tra-[illegible] opiniones haberetur.
Phaenices post Chaldaeos antiquitate, et superstitione [illegible] Sanchoniaton Beriti sacerdos, cujus [illegible] tem laudat Porphirius ante bellum Trojanum scripserat de Religione Syrica. Magnum ejus fragmentum exhibet Eusebius cujus authenticitatem defendunt Vormiat, Cumberland, et Goguetus. Docet in eo Sanchoniaton ma-teriam ab aeterno fuisse, et ex ejus fermentatione et [illegible] ... fuisse animalia, [illegible] astra, et reliqua corpora. Phaenicium ergo systema hoc in parte ad Atheismum ducebat, quoniam nullas partes Deo [illegible], in formatione universi. Ubique Sanchoniaton idololatriam promovet, et adeo absurdas, ridiculasque fabulas de amoribus Deorum, injuriis, [illegible] ore effudit, ut exinde omnes Graecorum et Latino-rum Mythologia [illegible] habuisse aliquibus videatur.
Egyptiorum nomen famosum est in Scripturis et apud graecos quoque antiquissimum. Thaut, sive Thot, [illegible] Hermes apud Graecos, Mercurius apud Latinos [illegible] Sanchoniatoni descripsisse videtur, antiquissimam
Egyptiorum scriptor Mundum pariter efformatum ex fermentatione communis materiae tradit, ut testatur Diodorus Siculus. Deinde proinde excludit a creatione Mundi, et ad Atheismum ducit. Hinc Porphirius in Epistola ad Anebonem sacerdotem Egypti scribit [illegible], et [illegible] causam Deorum Egyptiorum, lo-[illegible] hujus Mundi conditorem esse. Et Diogenes Laertius ex Hecataeo et Manethone docet apud Egyp-[illegible] materiam esse primum principium rerum et solem lunamque primos Deos sub [illegible], et indi-[illegible] veneratos. Itemque omnis Theologia Egyptiorum non est nisi idololatria omnium [illegible]
Diodorus Siculus in rebus Egyptii [illegible] Deos [illegible] Egyptiorum recenset Solem, Saturnum, Rheam, Jovem, Junonem, Vestam, Vulcanum, Mercurium, et Matrimonia inter Deos mares, et feminas, communesque filios Deos.
Gymnosophistae [illegible] Brachmanes Indique sacerdotes apud Antiquos celeberrimi, quos Pythagoras consuluit, aliique antiquitatis [illegible] teste Chircherio triginta millionis Deorum sub Brahma, Vischnu, et Butren. Credit Brahma mundos e singulis [illegible] corporis sui, mundum unum ex oculis, alterum ex crure, ex digitis.
[illegible] Theogonia nihilo melior, et quoniam satis nota, ab ea exponenda [illegible]. In Ho-mero [illegible] Homero caeterisque Graecorum vetustatis invenimus [illegible] mares, et conjuges et [illegible] Deos; invenimus Deos infernos, Deos terrestres, Deos aquaticos; Deos [illegible] Deos [illegible] iracundos adulteros [illegible], omnibusque [illegible], adeo ut Cicero doleat [illegible] vel vitia [illegible] hum. [illegible] ad Deos.

[illegible] theogonia et ipsa rotae; [illegible] editates [illegible], ira et ceterorum gentium, quas [illegible] olim [illegible] mat, numq[ue] verbis tantis superstitionib., impiisq. idololatriæ ritib. redundavit [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habemus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Non [illegible] fuisse non solum ignorantissimos, sed [illegible] tuos detestabiles, et [illegible], immensa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Si ergo inter antiquas nationes illæ, quæ scientiis, litteratura, [illegible], artib. erant expolitæ non solum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] erant adeo [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dicemus de reliquis nationib. [illegible] [illegible] oberrata, et fere sylvestri conditione barbarica vixere?

Nostris dieb. nationes oes Evangelica luce carentes stupiditate veterum [illegible]. Ex parte [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. hac [illegible] expoliri [illegible] [illegible] conversæ in nationes oes, orgerentes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] brutalitati et [illegible], [illegible] que Evangelica carent luce vel commercio Chr.[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Barbari [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Evangelica [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Peculiaria aliqua circa Chinenses, et Orientale

[illegible] Chinenses laudatos assidue a Philos. qui [illegible] veritati bellum indixerunt, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conati sunt [illegible] mendaciis. Falsis historiis decent. [illegible] [illegible] circa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] æquati. Congregatio [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible] in Voltaire, [illegible], aliisq. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] testes omni exceptione majores, [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] diebus describere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] Religione, et mores a [illegible] annis quamplurimis [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] La Religione de' Talapoini non è che una setta dell'antichissima Religione Indiana, de' Bramini. Questa antica Religione indiana [illegible] tuttavia in tutte l'[illegible] e nella [illegible] isola di Ceilan [illegible] dij. Ma la setta de' Talapoini, ovvero de' Bonzi, giacché tra questi, e quelli non ne [illegible] altra differenza che quella dell'abito, oltre ad una parte dell'isola di Ceilan occupa tutta l'[illegible] India di là dal Gange, e [illegible] del golfo di [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] parte delle [illegible], tutta la Cina e [illegible] isole del Giappone. La setta [illegible] benché purgata dalle laidezze de' Bramini ne conserva però i fondamenti, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], e la trasmigrazione [illegible] [illegible] di riti secondo i paesi; i più favolosi de' quali trovansi fra i Tibetani, il gran Lama, o supremo sacerdote de' quali fu adorato da gran parte dell'impero Cinese, allorché [illegible] il gran [illegible], [illegible] indipendenti. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] e [illegible] di [illegible] indipendenti. [illegible] credono che nella statua del loro Dio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Dio è [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] un numero infinito di

Questo Dio fu già una volta, e adesso non esiste più, poiché vi è già stato un numero infinito di [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] un'infinità di altri, [illegible] tutti [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] il grande [illegible] e la somma felicità [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Questo fatale [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tutti debbon desiderare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in tutte [illegible] [illegible] del Gange [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] ed io [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] immemorabile [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dal fondo de' [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] come alcuni filosofi nostri, i quali [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] stati Deisti. Io ho avuto occasion di trattare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] prigionieri di questa [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Bonzi. Quanto al Cielo, che adorano i Cinesi, egli è propriamente il cielo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] testezza de' Missionari [illegible] del Cielo. [illegible] non hanno alcuna idea. Sono i Cristiani Cinesi, che [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] alto [illegible] ed è stata [illegible]

[illegible] e vergognandosi del [illegible] progetto, che [illegible] alla fine [illegible] a questo sentimento per giustificarsi. Ma i Chinesi Pagani [illegible] nel fatal concorso de' nostri beni o mali [illegible] [illegible] in ogni tempo [illegible] dell'Astrologia giudiziaria [illegible], che l'influenza degli Astri è la causa universale degli avvenimenti.

Quanto è [illegible] la ragione umana, [illegible] questo orgogliosa ragione, se [illegible] tanto ~~[illegible]~~ maggiore [illegible] de' [illegible] Cristiani [illegible] attribuiscono l'alta idea, che si lusingano di avere della Divinità, non [illegible] e senza il [illegible] degli Apostoli [illegible] ancora [illegible], e [illegible], e fluttuerebbero nel caos d'Epicuro, o di Lucrezio.

Si ad Orientis nostri excurrere liceret [illegible] ratione [illegible] idolatriam et [illegible] [illegible] adoratam [illegible] Parcas, sive Nornas, [illegible] Lappones, et Boreales [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] sine sortilegio et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et ex revelationibus [illegible] [illegible] in imagine [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Virginians [illegible] adoravit, [illegible] Mexicanos [illegible] Deorum [illegible] [illegible] tota America Dii minores [illegible], objecta Religionis. [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] integrum [illegible] ab [illegible] extremum [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] et [illegible] Evangelii non resplendet.

[illegible] quam [illegible] Idolatriae [illegible] apud [illegible] nationes [illegible] et [illegible] adorato [illegible] cultus [illegible] adoratio [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Oceani [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] et [illegible] Apollini [illegible] [illegible] Baccus [illegible] integer [illegible]

Aug. de Civ. Dei.

[illegible] Astra, et Elementa inter Deos relata sunt, [illegible] [illegible] Solem, Lunam, et Dii [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Lactantius.

[illegible] et [illegible] hominem Deos fecit [illegible] amor, et [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ celebrata in [illegible] Venerem adulterium in [illegible] latrocinia et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deus [illegible] et [illegible]

Bruta [illegible] in Deorum collegia translata sunt a stupidis [illegible] Aegyptiis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Bovem [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Diodorus [illegible] Bellona [illegible] [illegible] Dii, qui a [illegible] [illegible] et Deus, qui [illegible] [illegible] bella [illegible] inter Aegyptios [illegible] stupenda [illegible] [illegible] magni illi Aegyptii, qui [illegible] in artibus, scientiis [illegible] et in [illegible] insignes erant, [illegible] [illegible] igitur [illegible] geometria et [illegible] [illegible]

Sepe una videt et excubuerant diligentiam tolerant etiam ipsy adorationem, nec Religionis apud [illegible] fu [illegible] primis [illegible] apud [illegible] nationes [illegible] hoste [illegible], et [illegible] amat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] et in Italia et in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] teste [illegible] [illegible] captos [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sanguine litabant, [illegible] [illegible], teste Strabone; itaque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et Africani, teste Athanasio, et Tertulliano. Graeci apud [illegible] [illegible] jugulabant in [illegible] [illegible]. Patrocli [illegible] apud [illegible] Virgilium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Achillis apud Virgilium:

Sanguine placastis ventos, et virgine caesa

Sanguine quaerendi reditus, animaque litandum.

Angelica

[illegible] ipse receperat loca, in quibus hostias immolabant, nominatim Cyprum, Rhodum, Athenas, [illegible] [illegible] plura Aegyptii, Cananaei, [illegible], Arabes, Syri, Carthaginenses, [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], Graeci [illegible] [illegible] Hispani, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 15 [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] quarum superstitionum [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] antiquos simile, describit [illegible] in libro de [illegible] [illegible].

Qui vero audeat describere [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quae instituta erant apud [illegible] et Rom. [illegible] in [illegible] Deorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et genus, quae non [illegible] ebrietate, licentia [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Aegyptii [illegible] teste [illegible] celebrabant tanta [illegible], ut referri nequeat.

Inter istius temporis [illegible] collocari [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Cicero [illegible] [illegible], docet Augurum [illegible] apud nationes [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] celeberrimam [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nationes [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], tripudio et a gallinarum [illegible], vel a [illegible] [illegible], vel a tonitru et fulmine, et certo Deorum [illegible] [illegible] futurorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] superstitionibus, et [illegible] Romani [illegible] [illegible], aut [illegible], [illegible] futurorum [illegible]. [illegible] vero dicam de [illegible] [illegible] de fumigationibus de [illegible], arcanis, et signis, caeterisque sortilegiis nationum etiam cultiorum?

[illegible] de Diis, deque Religione senserunt veteres a [illegible] concludere debemus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] enim intelligit [illegible] Deo ignorari debere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in tractatu de Deo ostendimus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deos [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] universae.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Voltaeri [illegible] [illegible] veteres [illegible]

ab idololatriae macula liberare conantur.

[illegible] I. [illegible] per hoc antiquo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idololatriae. [illegible] Omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deos [illegible] adorabant in [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] in Pallade [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Constat etiam ex [illegible] Aegyptiis [illegible] animalia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cultu relativo et symbolico. [illegible] Lucanus tradit sacerdote Aegyptio [illegible] interrogato respondisse se in animalibus Deos venerari, quorum erant symbola.

[illegible] Deum, qui [illegible] et [illegible] negant, audeat [illegible] asserere [illegible] aut esse [illegible] fuisse. At [illegible] ex [illegible], Poetarum ac Historicorum et [illegible] gentium tum ex [illegible], ex sententiis, ex principiis omnibus rationibus veterum eas fuisse [illegible] Idololatras. [illegible] in terris [illegible] statuisque Deorum, [illegible] Deos [illegible] et [illegible], vulgares vero, et generatim [illegible] statuas esse ipsos Deos. Hinc ex veteribus [illegible] asserere statuam non esse Deos [illegible] fuerunt et [illegible] Stilpo ob [illegible] quod dixerat [illegible] statuam a Phidia sculptam non esse [illegible] et [illegible] e [illegible] Deam [illegible] esse Deum [illegible] Dea [illegible], nihilominus in [illegible] fuit a magistratibus Atheniensium Areopagitis.

[illegible] cantiorum et [illegible] Lucifer [illegible] rete [illegible] S. [illegible] jovem, Junonem, et Deos Deasque esse [illegible] Cicero in Verrem [illegible] Verrem statuam Deorum [illegible] nullo Deos [illegible] esse, ad [illegible] [illegible] statuas [illegible] Deo [illegible]

Pausanias docet Dianae [illegible] statuam, apud quam barbari [illegible] usque ad sanguinem, et [illegible] usque ad mortem, [illegible] sanguine [illegible] et consuetudine [illegible] Barbaro.

[illegible] docet Deos habitare in Statuis [illegible] quasi in loco sancto. [illegible] quo quaere docet idola esse [illegible] et [illegible] substantia Deorum. [illegible] Pagani [illegible] statuas non esse Deos, sed post [illegible] Deos [illegible] ad [illegible] et ex Arnobio, Origene, aliisque patet.

Quandoque Gentiles statuas ligabant ne Dii fugerent, ita [illegible] ab Alexandro [illegible] [illegible] erat [illegible] Romani Carthaginem [illegible] evocabant Deos [illegible] tutelares, [illegible] hac evocatione [illegible] statuas [illegible] [illegible] Deorum [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] statuas. [illegible] Deos [illegible] Alexandri [illegible] et [illegible] terra Deos fugientibus, [illegible] Deorum in [illegible] se [illegible] Pagani [illegible] Deos [illegible] fugientes [illegible] dit [illegible]:

Excessere omnes, adytis arisque relictis
Di quibus imperium hoc steterat. [illegible]

[illegible] ex [illegible] Vulcani [illegible] Alexandri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Deum [illegible]:

[illegible] esse Deum [illegible] ego [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] esse [illegible] Deos [illegible] in statuas [illegible] Deos [illegible]

Ad. 2um [illegible] ex [illegible] Pagano [illegible] fuisse [illegible] Deorum [illegible]

Nam in universae naturae loca atque et terra omnemque [illegible] ut Deos adoraverunt. Haec velle[illegible] et haec ita sunt totidem attributa Dei unius. [illegible] solum in Pantheum Stoicorum [illegible], aeternum [illegible] per totidem fictionum et idololatria [illegible] et [illegible] digito [illegible] Praeterea tales Deos [illegible] esse, et [illegible], [illegible] habebat tamen patrem et uxorem [illegible] Deo qui inter se ob [illegible] sibi [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] inter attributa eiusdem Dei [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] ex conjugio, vel adulterio nati. Haec [illegible] [illegible] Sed quid multa persequor in re notissima? Post multa quidem [illegible] Platonici tandem [illegible] unum esse Deum diversis nominibus appellatum, et [illegible] [illegible] tanta lux ab Apostolis [illegible] [illegible] fuerat [illegible] [illegible] evidentes [illegible] [illegible] sententiae [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] ante Christum [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] generis humani ante Christum [illegible] [illegible] Platonicorum [illegible] errores [illegible] [illegible], Et [illegible]

Gentium populus [illegible] Deos venerabatur cultu absoluto et summo ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in Aegypto cum adoraverunt [illegible] [illegible] in terra. ~~[illegible]~~ caeterum [illegible] sacerdotes Aegypti [illegible] [illegible] adorabant credebant [illegible] [illegible] Deorum et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] unius veri [illegible], et idololatria

[illegible] ergo [illegible] in Aegypto [illegible] nationibus [illegible]

[illegible] idololatria cultum [illegible] statuis et animalibus et [illegible], referebant ad [illegible] [illegible] vel ad terra et elementa vel ob [illegible] deificatos, vel ad [illegible] [illegible] unum ante [illegible] Deum. [illegible] ergo [illegible] idololatria et [illegible]

[illegible] Religio nationum vetustissimarum non fuit idololatria [illegible] [illegible] generis humani [illegible]

[illegible] sine idololatria et polytheismum [illegible] [illegible] generis humani [illegible]

Nam [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idololatria et [illegible] ante diluvium, nec [illegible] generatione [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] anni ante Abrahamum [illegible] idololatria et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] tamen [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] traditionem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Unde nullo labore [illegible] ingenio [illegible] erat ad cognoscendum [illegible] [illegible] aeterna sufficeret instructio.

Sed nihilominus [illegible] longe lateque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et idololatria [illegible] [illegible] traditionem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et elementa naturae [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

hæc natio ex ignorantia altera, fictionibus Poetarum [illegible] [illegible] fabularum [illegible] [illegible] in Religionem irrepserunt et Mythologiam conflaverunt Paganorum [illegible] addita adoratio [illegible] [illegible] Dæmonum [illegible] [illegible], et tandem simulacrorum et locorum [illegible] in plurimis regionibus [illegible] ita [illegible] infectum et obtenebratum genus humanum et in tantum [illegible] abyssum ignorantiæ dejectum et [illegible] annorum millia in hac stupiditate [illegible] et [illegible] fulgidissima [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] unitatem Dei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contra Pa-
ganos ad Dei unitatem probandam utebatur, [illegible] [illegible] Tertullianus post [illegible] notat, Paganos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] repente non [illegible] [illegible] Deo [illegible] [illegible] sed [illegible]
[illegible] concludit. Oh testimonium animæ naturaliter christianæ! Magnum illud [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] erat dogma unitatis Dei ut patet ex [illegible] et ex libro [illegible]
ex [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] agnovisse unitatem Dei [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] Paganorum [illegible] [illegible] unitate [illegible] [illegible]. At hæc idea [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tenebris [illegible], et multis obscura et [illegible] obliterata fuerunt. [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] Deos [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negotium
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non esse loquendum hæc natura [illegible] docet, ipse Plato
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Cicero [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] adeo [illegible] et [illegible] veram cognitionem Dei [illegible] fuerunt omnes [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et idololatriam [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]. [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], unde ait [illegible] ingenio [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nisi eos [illegible] [illegible] opinionibus consuetudo ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] [illegible] et Deos [illegible] esse [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habenda et colendos ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Paganorum [illegible] legere [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Platonis [illegible], et cæterorum in libro de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Divinitatis [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] cognovissent Deum non sicut Deum [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et evanuerunt in cogitationibus suis et obscuratum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] enim se esse sapientes, stulti facti sunt, et mutaverunt gloriam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
6 [illegible] imaginis corruptibilis hominis et volucrum et quadrupedum et serpentium

[illegible] [illegible], et Apologistæ [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] colliguntur magna diligentia, ut Paganos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], eosque convincant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] probat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et idololatria fœdatos, non [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habuerunt [illegible]
in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et Pagano [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et idololatriæ, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] eos agnovisse [illegible]

[illegible] non Clemens Alexan[illegible]

supremum sed oportet ostendere eos simul non adorasse astra et animas mortuorum [illegible] vel simulacra et Deos [illegible] separatim id est impossibile in omni historia, atque libri et tota res indicat [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] per mortuos [illegible] decantati a Thal[illegible] res [illegible] extra dubium. [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Analogia [illegible] negant [illegible] Deos [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] Dei [illegible] [illegible] ille qui [illegible] [illegible] diffusiones [illegible] [illegible] sacrificari? [illegible] [illegible] et Apostata [illegible] unitati Dei, [illegible] Deorum [illegible] [illegible] Chr[illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] condemnat quod nollent adorare Deos minores; sive [illegible] genio.

Vulgus et Thal[illegible] agnoverunt ~~[illegible] genios~~ [illegible] supremum sed [illegible] adorandum [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] aut adorati [illegible] vulgi [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] notat [illegible] Deos [illegible] [illegible] ergo [illegible] falso et minores bonorum malorumque [illegible] creatores Deum interea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sollicitudine et negotio [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible], uti Pagani.

[illegible] non [illegible] non esse [illegible]. [illegible] Pagani [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idololatriæ tamen aliquam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habere poterant unde in grandi [illegible] [illegible] invocabant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] quod in tam [illegible] periculo [illegible] [illegible]. At [illegible] Deum [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] et a [illegible] Diis omnino diversum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sacrificio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et simulacra Deorum [illegible] notat [illegible] in [illegible] a nullo gentilium [illegible] [illegible], vel invocari [illegible] Deo.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potuit, et [illegible] in Thal[illegible] et in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] unum Deum, [illegible] in idololatriam et [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] impossibile est [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] de eorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idololatriæ et [illegible] deditum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ergo de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] [illegible] non difficulter intelligit [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] traderet [illegible] [illegible] Monarchæ [illegible], Persæ, aliique orientales [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tradebant ministris gubernanda [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Orientale [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facere [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Religio [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adorant, et [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] intelligit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] et ignorantia ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] luce [illegible] non raro [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

hæc nata ex ignaro abusu, fictionis Poetarum [illegible]

[illegible] in [illegible]

[illegible] Doctrinam [illegible] repræsentanti [illegible] Dæmonum [illegible] quo [illegible] et potestatem

[illegible] et directo a [illegible] [illegible] alio dubio Dæmone [illegible] [illegible] Deum

hoc [illegible] [illegible] sola [illegible] et infausta [illegible] Diabolus [illegible] ut [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] ad aures insonaret [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible] providentia [illegible] nullum ab [illegible]

[illegible] decidere sine ejus expressa voluntate, et, ut [illegible] licentia in [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] non [illegible], ignorantiæ [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] Deo [illegible]

[illegible] vaxi [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], vel [illegible] Bonarum [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] Barnabas [illegible] in Ægypto et a [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] impostura et in[illegible] [illegible] superstitiones, et [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Religio Christiana non [illegible] intelligere

originem idololatriæ.

[illegible] nobilissima [illegible] radices idololatriæ et [illegible] sola [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Deo [illegible]

[illegible], et [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] cap. 13. [illegible]

[illegible] scientia Dei, et de [illegible] intelligere [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] artifex [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] aut [illegible] aut Lunam [illegible] Deos [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] et argentum [illegible] inventionem aut [illegible] antiquum Artifex lignarius

[illegible] multo eloquentior [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] de religione antiquorum

[illegible] in [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] Deum et [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Deos aureos et argenteos Deos ferreos, et ligneos, Deos [illegible], et [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] et non [illegible], aures habent et non audiunt, [illegible]

[illegible] et Danielem et [illegible] Divinæ Scripturæ ut [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] auctor [illegible] cap. 14 [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] colere [illegible] et [illegible] sacra et sacrificia. [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] consuetudine [illegible] custodita est

[illegible] in mysteriis Cereris Eleusinæ [illegible] Dei [illegible]

[illegible] Deorum [illegible] de Civ. Dei lib. 10. ex Varrone ostendit [illegible] mysteriis

[illegible] fabula [illegible] in [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illustres. Similiter [illegible]

[illegible] hoc Dogma clare traditum et sine [illegible] quia Clemens Alexandrinus [illegible] [illegible] non facit in Stromatis, in quibus [illegible] integram [illegible] [illegible] sed [illegible] et [illegible] studet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] idololatriam, et [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] adorationem, quam [illegible] contra [illegible] lib. 8 cap. 6, et 2 [illegible] [illegible] in partibus [illegible], sive [illegible] Deo. in eo ipso libro

Dicite [illegible] [illegible], et non [illegible] Dii

[illegible] ergo Pagani [illegible] [illegible] adoratione Deum, et statuam, unde [illegible] veri Idololatrae et Polythei [illegible] adversus [illegible] ad tollendam [illegible] idololatriae, et Polytheism [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Hebraei Deum adorabant [illegible] vel Astaroth et [illegible] adhuc cognoscebant [illegible], et verum Deum Abraham [illegible] colebant et tamen erant veri [illegible] Idololatrae, et Polythei, quia verum Deum unicum [illegible], et adorabant [illegible], et [illegible] igitur etiam [illegible] Pagani, et nationes universae?

[illegible] 4. Hoc nomen idololatrae in Homero et Herodoto, [illegible] non invenies [illegible] Romani, et [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Deorum [illegible] statuas non [illegible] [illegible] et tamen [illegible] statuae [illegible] [illegible] tamen [illegible] nulla Divinitate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] statuas [illegible] coluerint. [illegible] docent statuas non [illegible] effigies Deorum [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Judi, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ergo [illegible] Homero [illegible], Herodoto [illegible] vox, idololatriae [illegible] veteres [illegible] Statuas [illegible] Deos vel Deorum [illegible] non [illegible] simulacra et idola se idololatras [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ventus [illegible] aut [illegible].

[illegible] in [illegible] adorant [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] etiam [illegible] [illegible] idola [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deo [illegible] [illegible] Pagani [illegible]

o [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] et invocationes audire. [illegible] etiam [illegible] simul in Olympo habitare, et simul in templis et in statuis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], effugierunt Dii Trojani

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Diana [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] statuae [illegible] [illegible] Pagani [illegible] in Olympo et simul in statuis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible].

At quia magna differentia potestatis et majestatis vacebant [illegible] inter Deos majores et Deos minores et multo adhuc majore inter hosce [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] erecto et Deificato et inter imperatores relato inter Deos ex adulatione vel ex timore, vel ex [illegible], vel ex consuetudine. Hinc [illegible] [illegible] una Deificationem [illegible] [illegible] (videtur) ob [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habebat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: Sensim ac paulatim Deus fieri. Ex quo ergo Divinitate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Statuas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] (Deorum) [illegible] [illegible] et nominatis [illegible] non [illegible] credit se [illegible] idola, quos pro veri colebant. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] argumenta [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible]

[illegible] S. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sententia [illegible] quando [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], at po-pulares errores impetere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] nulli [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quando docebat Deos [illegible] non esse, vel non [illegible] [illegible] crimina [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Aristophanes in theatro Atheniensi [illegible] et [illegible] Deos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] haec causa erat ambitioni [illegible], corruptioni [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Quid ergo prodest [illegible]? Sed Voltairius qui 80 annos in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hoc ipso loco [illegible] [illegible]:

Ne [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] (intigatus) [illegible] [illegible] | Et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]
Veritas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] | [illegible] delubra Deum [illegible] [illegible]
(vester)

18 In [illegible] et in Poetis [illegible] [illegible] contradictiones. Affirmant negant dubitant, irrident, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Proteos apprehendere et [illegible] valeat. Non [illegible] [illegible] Virgilii Horatii [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Porfirii Juliani [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a vulgari idololatria quae docebat Statuas esse veros Deos, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a Jove [illegible]

Candida pistori ponitur ara Jovi.

[illegible] [illegible] fornacem Deum [illegible], qd. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] coloni, Et Fornacali [illegible] [illegible] Dea
Facta Dea est Fornax [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] autem [illegible] Deum Terminum honorantes.

Nox ubi transierit solito celebratur honore
Separat indicio qui Deus arva suo.

[illegible] [illegible] Deum Terminum [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] lapideum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deum. Quid nova cum fierent Capitolia? nempe Deorum
Cuncta Jovi cessit turba locumque dedit
Terminus ut veteres memorant conventus in aede Restitit et magno cum Jove templa tenet.

[illegible] [illegible] Deos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ergo non potest a generali [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] unitate Dei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]

rum erant qui mores depravatae nationis sinat detegere et contemnere. At quum ergo oia labore, et reflexionem, et morum probitatem exigunt, quod hoc nolunt, proinde factum ē, ut oēs nationes laberentur in Polytheismum et idololatriam, praesertim cum usque fuerent commodabilissimae, vitiorum [illegible] indulgentissimae et oia crimina permittebant hominibus. Hinc veteres Hebraei adeo proni in idololatriam, utcumque agnoscerent unum verum Deum [illegible] in [illegible] oculis [illegible] oblectamenta, [illegible] sitate facile [illegible], et [illegible]. Facile enim [illegible] qd. placet. [illegible] licet. Hinc [illegible] illud; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illius [illegible]: se vi [illegible] de' nostri interessi, noi dubiteressimo degli Elementi di Euclide.

Ipsi [illegible] judaei, et Chi. dicendi essent idololatrae, si valerent [illegible] judaei colebant Arcam Dni, quae, Dn. [illegible] Dei; et in ea habitare Deum docet nullibi Scriptura. Chri. vero imagines, et statuas Sanctorum colunt [illegible] [illegible] virtute Divina, et speciatim aliquas celebriores, ut [illegible] [illegible].

R. [illegible] [illegible] e tanta ut [illegible] Gentiles, absolvant ab idololatria sed Chri. eā vere idololatras convicta [illegible] condemnent [illegible] vel a veteribus judaeis [illegible], vel a Chri. Doctrinae elementis [illegible]. idololatricum cultum exhibitum fuisse reb. [illegible], [illegible] Dei [illegible] imaginibus [illegible] Dei [illegible] [illegible] per fuit illa vanitas, quam [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] sess. 25. Imagines Christi, Deiparae Virginis et aliorum Sanctorum retinendas [illegible] debitum honorem et venerationem impertiendam non qd. credatur inesse in iis aliqua divinitas, vel virtus, propter quam colendae sint, vel qd. ab eis sit aliquid petendum, vel qd. fiducia in imaginibus sit figenda, [illegible] olim fiebat a [illegible] qui in idolis spem suam collocabant. sed quoniam honos, qui eis exhibetur refertur ad Prototypa quae [illegible] repraesentant. [illegible] hanc veritatem agnoscunt Chri., et agnoscebant veteres Hebraei [illegible]. Arca et in templo non [illegible] Deum corporaliter habitare aut residentiam facere qd. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] modo [illegible] figurativo et simbolico. [illegible] cultus arcae erant relationes ad [illegible] et [illegible], et sine [illegible], [illegible] magna utilitate; [illegible] enim ob utilitatem [illegible] [illegible] determinatio, in qua [illegible] publica adoratio Dei cultusque externus [illegible]. [illegible] arcae veneratio erat utilis [illegible] [illegible] in Deserto, et ante fundatum templum. Hinc post captivitatem Babilonicam, [illegible] arca [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nihil sibi deesse ad [illegible] Religionis cultum judicarunt [illegible] judaei.

Figuratae autem [illegible] voce, [illegible] Deus [illegible] sedere [illegible] arcam recte intelligebant Hebraei ob [illegible] instructionem Patrum [illegible] Prophetarum oracula. et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae Deum invisibilem, immensum, nec loco, aut arca aut Templo circumscriptum [illegible] praedicant [illegible] [illegible]. Populares [illegible] si qui [illegible] aut [illegible] in vera idol[illegible] nihil [illegible] [illegible] et immensitate [illegible] corruptioni et ignorantiae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] statim [illegible] reddit idololatras, ut experimento constanti [illegible] compertum ē, et quandoque in indiis [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] distant [illegible], aut Chri. a [illegible] Paganorum. Idola Paganorum non exhibebant [illegible] imaginaria [illegible] Daemones, vel objecta [illegible], ut Bacchum, [illegible], [illegible] contrario Chri. statuae exhibent [illegible], [illegible] nullas indecentes, nulla delicta commiserunt, sed oia sanctitatem, et virtutem [illegible].

Animadversio.

[illegible] inditi idolatriae Pythagoras et Polytheismus rationem ad systema [illegible] conati sunt et ordinate disponere, et explicare. Vossius, Pretties, Huetius, Banier, Jablonski, Bergier, Guerdet [illegible] ... Perseo, [illegible] laudamus sed [illegible] per et contrastata [illegible] et [illegible] proposuit posse, quod systema cum regolarità [illegible] in mezzo contre [illegible] gentilium. [illegible] tiranni apparent [illegible] ... vedere tutte le cure, [illegible] gli letterati fe rischiarare la [illegible] della [illegible] ... et necessariam putamus [illegible]

Propositio.

Vetustissimi [illegible] fuerunt et sunt [illegible] idololatriæ deditissimi.

Post humanam naturam [illegible] fonte, et origine [illegible] et [illegible] agnitionem, et timorem Dei, sine quo statim cor [illegible] se ipsi naturae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contradicere et [illegible] Legem, et [illegible] et gratiæ Christi [illegible] dote'[illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] ex verdem [illegible] diligenter qui [illegible] fuerint nationes [illegible] celebriores, quae in idololatriam aut falsa Religione [illegible].

Ab Ægyptiis incipiamus, ad quos [illegible] omnium [illegible] Ægyptii, [illegible] in fedissima ignorantia honestatis, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ignorare le[illegible] et [illegible] probitatis [illegible] superstitiones nefandas [illegible] idololatriam et impru[illegible]dentiam. [illegible] spectacula in festis [illegible] Ægypto [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ... et [illegible] Diodorus, et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Ægyptiorum ex [illegible] et [illegible] Hospitalitate et amore erga [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Diodoro. Conju[illegible] inter patre et [illegible] erant [illegible] Quanto ai costumi e [illegible] degli Egiziani [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] l'indecenza e la dissolutezza, e nelle loro [illegible] feste e cerimonie appartenenti alla Religione, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mette in chiaro il suo carattere [illegible] francamente che la morale degli Egiziani [illegible] [illegible] contro le prime regole della rettitudine e della probità [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Egiziani erano [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

In [illegible] omnibus qui [illegible] laudant Ægyptiorum [illegible], [illegible] geometria, astronomia, agricoltura, robur bellicum, prudentia [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] sed in [illegible] fuisse [illegible]

Nulla [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] probitatis ignorantissima [illegible] de natis [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] confessione [illegible] plures [illegible] intelligit, et fatentur [illegible] [illegible] impietate fraudulentia, et ignorantia [illegible] corruptelis [illegible]

Si vero è sermo de nationib. civilib. et cultiorib. semper aliquid dicendum est. Tyrii et Carthaginienses fraudib., dolis, avaritia, et perfidia celebres non minus, quam ingenio, et commercio. Pastores Arabes, Chaldaei, Assyrii Babylonii magiis, sortilegiis, magia, superbia, luxu ebrietate et voluptatib. corrupti, ut testes Scripturae profani scribunt Auctores. Veterum Persarum mores sine horrore memorari non possunt, et in [illegible] Rollinus [illegible] leges conculcabant, connubia inter matres, et filios, pueri in igne adorato comburti, horribiles infamiq. juxta legib. Babylonii in honorem Deae [illegible] quos de Egyptiis, et Lydiis tradunt veteres Historici, et Scriptores.

Haec ostenta foeditatis et brutalitatis apud eas nationes, quae tamen artium et scientiarum [illegible] magistrae, et nutrices fuerunt, satis demonstrant quod execranda [illegible] vigu- erint apud eas nationes (de celebriorib. agemus in objectionibus) Utcumq. ergo inveniantur in veterib. historiis exempla frugalitatis, humanitatis, temperantiae, benignitatis patientiae, magnanimitatis, qd. libenter fatemur; tamen quia haec socialium virtutum officia laudanda conjuncta erant cum superstitione et idololatria, cum infamia [illegible] violatione [illegible] quae [illegible] tide [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] rariunt ante oculos. De [illegible] concludimus nationes antiquas idololatriae deditas foedissimis [illegible] tribe maculatas.

De nationib. recentiorib. Idololatricis [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] diaboli [illegible] [illegible] Diaboli [illegible] sanguine hum. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] in historia generali [illegible] Lafitto, aliisq. plurib. apud quos de sect. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

quocumq. tempore foedissimi mores fuerunt?

[illegible]

[illegible] Achillem, Diomedem [illegible]

[illegible] nescit usq. ad delirium. Quis at auditi nomen Herculis Diomedis Ulyssis, [illegible] excusat, et [illegible]

[illegible] et nomen non putet se videre, et audire?

[illegible] quidem nomen [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] et virtutis. Graeci [illegible] anno [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Victores in [illegible] [illegible] urbes ut Troiam et Thebas [illegible]

[illegible] et mulieres [illegible] jugulabant [illegible] continet [illegible]

[illegible] non erat indecorum apud Graecos [illegible] Menelaus [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] et Agamemnon [illegible] ... lacerant [illegible]. Quinque Graecorum, ut [illegible]
[illegible] in tabernis [illegible] ... Fornicatio nihil dedecoris habebat [illegible] Graecos. Ulysses ... [illegible]
[illegible] ... Graeci, ut ex Iliade 1.° et alibi apud Homerum. Postea sapientissimus Legislator Minos ... et [illegible] Graecorum lege sanxit [illegible] ad [illegible]
[illegible]

Quod [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ ~~[illegible]~~ Punici Itanici Nemei Graecorum in [illegible] vel [illegible]
[illegible] erat ut ex Lucano patet, et ex Virgilii lib. [illegible] feroces cedis [illegible] efficere debebant
Graeci [illegible] et barbara spectacula tanta solemnitate exornata [illegible]
[illegible] caeterorum Graecorum? Quod [illegible] Graeci [illegible] contaminati [illegible] Graecorum [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] ... ut hi impudentissimi [illegible] debeat. Sed audiendus [illegible] de [illegible] heroicis Graecorum, qui [illegible] caeterorum [illegible] investigavit.

Ne' secoli eroici corrispondeva ne' Greci la ferocia de' loro costumi alla [illegible] del loro animo; poiché non ave-vano né morale, né [illegible], che li regolassero. Il diritto del più forte era quasi la sola legge in essi riconosciuta.
[illegible] senza [illegible] e senza legislazione erano costretti ad andar sempre armati. Non troverai in que' tempi
[illegible] né [illegible] [illegible] tutto le sue [illegible] e una [illegible] [illegible] del [illegible]
[illegible] lettere erano [illegible] e [illegible] più belle [illegible] da [illegible] [illegible], la [illegible] [illegible] la [illegible], la maggior parte, in una parola delle virtù morali non avevano neppure il nome nell'antico linguaggio de' greci [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] che fecero [illegible]
[illegible] ... [illegible]
omicidi, violenze, e misfatti inauditi. Consideriamo [illegible] quei famosi Re, i [illegible], gli [illegible] gl' [illegible] gli Oresti, le [illegible], le Fedre, e le Clitennestre. Quasi tutti i Principi, che andarono [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] e la re[illegible] ad ogni [illegible] ... la storia di Pelope, e de' suoi discendenti altro non è, che un tessuto di misfatti, e di orrori. I secoli eroici in somma sono i tempi più fecondi d'incesti, e di [illegible] [illegible] che tutti gli altri de' quali parli la Storia. Sarebbe a mio credere inutile [illegible] ... [illegible]
[illegible] ... [illegible], ed immaginarsi gli [illegible], [illegible] ... [illegible]
[illegible] ... [illegible]
[illegible] ... [illegible]
da quella funesta ignoranza, la quale è inevitabilmente accompagnata da' vizi ed eccessi più [illegible].

Ismo. 12. Sparta [illegible] virtutis, nomenque Spartanorum [illegible] Poetis, et Historicis omnibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in recensendis, vel laudandis [illegible].

[illegible] Spartani [illegible] austeritate morum laudantur, sed [illegible] et ridicula [illegible] gislator Spartanis [illegible] artes, mercaturam, agriculturam prohibuit, [illegible] voluit in [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible], ut [illegible]
[illegible] Spartani feroces et crudeles [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible]

[illegible] exercebant. Et captivos [illegible] prodigiosa crudelitate tractabant [illegible] sunt, [illegible] apud nos [illegible] et [illegible] stil[illegible] [illegible] quos pulchriores, validioresque videbant, ceterosque crudelissime interficiebant. Una die ad [illegible] millia jugularunt ad oblectamentum, [illegible], quasi venationis loco exercebant [illegible] trucidandis [illegible] agro et [illegible]. Xenophonte teste adeo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] occiderent quam [illegible] [illegible] esse [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] ditione uti liceret [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] erat ad dexteritate [illegible] [illegible] in festo Dianae [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] usque ad sanguinem, [illegible] usque ad mortem ante oculos [illegible] [illegible] crudelitas [illegible] fortitudinis, abjecto omni sensu humanitatis, [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] natus [illegible] [illegible] fore videbatur in cloacam [illegible] [illegible] dejiciebatur. [illegible] deret [illegible] nobis humanior [illegible] Tyrannos sine ulla verecundia [illegible]? [illegible] certe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ne vel levissima nebula [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] dissolutissimi [illegible] ad imaginem [illegible], infames

[illegible]. [illegible] Philangerius [illegible] [illegible] legib. etiam non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] e. Ceterum [illegible] [illegible] ab omnib. ut [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ordinate [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] robore

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Philangerius in suo recentissimo opere [illegible], [illegible] grande [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et errore [illegible]. Non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] et in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sibi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] all'antica, ed all'ultima moda [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] certe [illegible] educationi [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] 4. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], nec [illegible] [illegible] honesti et [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] fuisse [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et Tigres inhumanas erga [illegible] [illegible] ha le [illegible] di [illegible] così celebrata [illegible] educazione non vi era fuori un sol [illegible]: [illegible] nel campo, nel foro, nella concione era un tiranno all'aspetto dell'Ilota; era a un tempo stesso un prodigio nella Città, e un mostro nella natura[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] longe [illegible] pejores. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] fuisse frugalitatem, patientiam laborum, contemptum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum omnib. [illegible] virtutib. fuerunt Spartani [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] Philangerius, [illegible] [illegible] Spartanam, ait majora crimina impedivisse [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] turpia spectacula condemnarunt, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Graecorum abominatione et in [illegible] et in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] obtent perdidit [illegible] remedia? Et [illegible] audet se propter legislatorem [illegible] [illegible] tenendam ad commentatorem [illegible]? [illegible] dementiam [illegible] cerebri inveniendam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] vero [illegible] dies [illegible] [illegible] non probat sapientiam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] patet ex dictis. [illegible] et [illegible] a infinita multitudine [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et honeste [illegible] [illegible]? [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] longe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] proferent? [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] legislatores [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] alte Atheniensib. [illegible] et intacta virtutis [illegible] debet [illegible]. Non enim erant crudeles et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] magnanimi, generosi [illegible] belli, et in artib. [illegible]

Atheniensibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Spartanos [illegible] crudeliores [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] graeci historici. [illegible] quod multa probant [illegible] Atheniensium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] magnificentia, [illegible] Athenis [illegible]. [illegible] a Solone Athenis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Atheniensium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] comoedias Aristophanis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. In theatro [illegible] ducebat [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] vectigalia ad theatrum [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] et Demosthenes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] subditas civitates [illegible] imperium [illegible]. [illegible] erant Athenienses [illegible] optime [illegible] [illegible], quae morte, vel ostracismo plectebant, ut [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] Athenis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] nihil adeo [illegible]. [illegible] in conjuges ducebant, ut [illegible] fecit apud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], tutto [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alla [illegible] del [illegible] declamatore [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] esposti alle [illegible] ed all'ingiustizia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Atene [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alla Patria, e molte volte coll'ostracismo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Dovea esser quello, nel quale la [illegible] de' Cittadini [illegible] benemeriti era [illegible] ed odiosa [illegible] storia di tutti gli altri [illegible] della Grecia non fa vedere tanti esempi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ingratitudine verso benefattori dello stato quanti ne [illegible] la sola Città di Atene.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Athenis [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] ob illustrib. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ante Ostracismi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potentiam [illegible], ne tyrannidem [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Athenae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible]

Ingrata es, inquit, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]

Sed [illegible] observatio [illegible] falsa, et [illegible]. [illegible] enim Ostracismum [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], aut honoris [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adeo [illegible] ingrata [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] constat de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] de Amicitia [illegible] [illegible] Lelius [illegible] habet verba: Themistocles cum imperator bello [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] terq. invidiæ in publica utilitate opati, patriæ injuriam non tulit quam ferre debuit. Ex quo recte infe-runt ... contra Patriam ... ita ut alter ... Ex quo recte infequi merita et nullum fere inter Elogia quæ virtutibus veterum tribuuntur ... et ... Scriptores ...

... et ... pietatis erga Patriam ... et mores exponunt ...
... et ... Cicero ... omnibus antiquior vel superior proditores et desertores ...
... et omnibus fraudulentiæ et ambitionis fuisse testatur omnis historia.

Si ergo duces Athenienses ostracismo decreti omnes contemnunt in Athenas, ... ut se ... et ...
... tentat ... Athenienses et ... et ...
habere ... ob ... et constantem ingratitudinem Athenienses ... insignes ... vel morte, vel carcere, vel multa, vel exilio plures ... tanto ... sine impatientia tolerare, et ignominia
... etiam voluisse ... absentes.

... nobis ... et ... Ostracismi ... laudes, seu excusationes edidisse, ... uno ... argumento monstrare ... Athenienses ... Duces,
... faciebant ... ad conservationem ... vel ... si non erat necessarium, ... se ...
Athenienses ... et ... ingratitudinis ... ab ore ... detergere non ... causa ... exilio ... et honore in ... Patriæ ... et ... debebant. Si ergo ... erat necessarium ... et ... erat ... Athenienses ... contra ... et ... non poterat. ... longe ...
Athenienses stat ... sine ... et ingratissimo Ostracismo. ...
... debebant ... abeant ... patriæ ... et ...
... habere debebat ... bona ... Si ergo ... et manifestum ... Atheniensium.

... Nemo audet ... Romanorum ... et ...
... erat ... Romanorum ... tantum ... et ...
... et ... Bibliotheca ... sua ...

Cf. Romanos ... perpetuo recordatos ... ab ... patricida et ... ab ... suis Sertorio.
... ut ... esset ... et ... Sertorius ...
... hujusmodi ... tam ... virtutibus ... sunt
... inter Patres, et Plebem dissensiones, ... in ... sed
... tumultus ... spectatissimo, ... Decemvirorum, audacia ... Plebis
... licentia et ... contra ...
populo ... fœderum et ... violata fide, ...
obtruncandisq. ... et alia hujusmodi ... quæ ... omnia, quæ vocantur ... Reip.

Hinc ... et ... qui habebant tam bona, et inde
... debebant non ob delicta sed ob ... vel ... tormenta ... crudelitatem in ... Tacitus.
et cogit, ...
... honorandum

Hinc Seneca, in annos, ait, superbissimi, crudelissimi, et contradictorissimi omnes, nec tam hominib. sed tanq. jumentis abutimur.

Sed vera Rom.[no] virtutes audiendas e' Philargenius Paregin sta fuisse retenere. "Roma, ingnat t. 2 cap. 6., egualmente incapace di soffrir le catene del dispotismo, che di goder de' vantaggi di una libertà tranquilla. Roma, che appena discacciati i Tarquinii si diede in preda alle civili discordie, che l'opposizione eterna de' due partiti inconciliabili de' Grandi e del Popolo esponeva del continuo a tutti i pericoli dell'Anarchia: Roma dovea necessariamente combattere per non perire. Dovea cercar la guerra al di fuori per conservar la pace dentro alle sue mura. I suoi savii legislatori conobbero questa verità e su tutto questo piano innalzarono la loro legislazione."

Romani igit. felicib. et dulci. seculi erant tanquam feroces canes inclusi quos solvere oportuit, et in armenta immittere, ne se mutuo discerperent. Erat ergo [illegible] virtutes Romanae nostri [illegible]. Ingenii qui, ne domi [illegible] rationatis, aut tumultus Rom.[a] virtute [illegible] exercent, [illegible] et in [illegible] redigunt, in summa quidem frugalitate [illegible], et bellico labore quoniam in [illegible] agricolatori illa [illegible], aequa dulcis, et urus, aut alter [illegible] [illegible] igitur quid erat Romanus hic Populus [illegible], illa prodigia virtutes ab ipsis in [illegible] Graeci Persiae illiq. secul. quae dicuntur [illegible]. Ob aurea amai fece, et stercore [illegible].

Quid horribilius, quam lex in debitores quae vigebat quondam apud Graecos et Germanos sed praeprimis apud Romanos locum obtinuit, qua debitorem non solum carcere catena [illegible] torturis urgere [illegible], sed in frusta laniabant et dividebant [illegible]?

Ne illa truculenta Lex XII tabularum sanguine scripta quae [illegible] et [illegible] exerciat: tertiis nundinis partes secanto; si plus minusve secuerint sine fraude esto. Et a tanta ignominia Romanorum [illegible] liberarent, frustra Binkershoek ad augendi legum sensum [illegible] dolose [illegible] legi tribuunt. Illa clamore erat certa testes Pagani [illegible] Quintilianus lib. 3. cap. 6; Aulus Gellius lib. 20. Cap. 1. Et Romano [illegible] Tertullianus Apologetici cap. 4. Hinc Philargenius Romanorum [illegible] laudat [illegible] fateri legem.

[illegible] Rom.[i] [illegible] de vita de morte [illegible] [illegible] ex Illustrib. Matronis [illegible] [illegible] Romano Patres [illegible] infantes suos, vel sub dio [illegible] [illegible] Consulendus Noodt de partus expositione et nece apud veteres. [illegible] apud alias veteres nationes, viget adhuc apud Chinenses, qui filios suos [illegible] quando onere meliores tenuis. Romanorum hunc morem et jus mortis in filios [illegible] quod horrent [illegible] Imperatores Christiani Theodosius et Justinianus.

inciter Romanorum mores pingit dux Britannorum ducem ita loquentem exhibet: Romani raptores orbis, postquam cuncta vastantib. defuere terrae, et mare scrutantur, si locuples hostis est, avari, si pauper, ambitiosi. quos non Oriens, non Occidens satiaverit. soli omnium opes, atq. inopiam pari affectu concupiscunt. Auferre trucidare rapere falsis nominib. imperium appellant, atq. ubi solitudinem faciunt, pacem vocant. Liberos cuiq. et propinquos suos natura carissimos esse voluit. hi per delectus alibi servituri auferuntur; bona fortunasq. in tributum egerunt. Corpora ipsa, ac manus silvis ac paludib. emuniendis verbera inter, ac contumelias conterunt. Neq. Britannici ducis [illegible] verba a vero aberrant. Satis non fuit Romanis urbem ditare spoliis Galliarum, Hispaniae, Africae, Aegypti, Graeciae, et Asiae, in ipsas urbes si [illegible] [illegible] diripiendas [illegible] Carthago, Numantia, Corinthus funditus excisae. Regna integra ferro, et igne vastata, vel a rapacitate Commissariorum desolata fuere. I Romani, inquit Montesquieu, hanno conquistato tutto per distruggere tutto.

In bellis vero gerendis professus ipse populus Rom. numq. justitiam consuluit, sed utilitatem, rapacitatem, avaritiam, ambitionem. Samnitib. contra jurata foedera ob Furcas Caudinas abolendas atrocissimum et ignominiosum exterminium intulerunt. Juxta Florum primum bellum Punicum injustum fuit, [illegible] magis injustum Numantinum, nec non Creticum, et Parthicum aliaq. infinita. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dedicatam [illegible] Romanorum exiber [illegible] fidem [illegible] cum laudat, vel [illegible] Romae facta non magis, quod [illegible] [illegible] dum [illegible] consuluerunt [illegible]. [illegible] illud atrox inauditum apud ipsos [illegible] incredibile Matronarum [illegible] [illegible] adeo [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible], non [illegible] tribuendi [illegible]. Generatim omnes historici Romani [illegible], [illegible] quia nec agnoverunt [illegible] leges audiri non [illegible] [illegible] omni quod [illegible] [illegible] loqui. Hinc [illegible] [illegible] ratiocinari, si ex solis fere Graecorum, Romanorumq. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] immania [illegible] delicta Romanorum, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] infinitis [illegible] [illegible] nationum, si a [illegible] [illegible] innocentis dictatam haberemus historiam?

Athenis vix potuerunt durare aliq. [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Rom.[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ducendi in Triumphum [illegible] creatos. Reges, Reginas, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], eosq. [illegible] [illegible] completo triumpho! Captivos reges, relinquere [illegible] [illegible] Rom.! [illegible] in insula Tiberina ut fame et morbis consumerentur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut ex Dione, et Suetonio, patet una die 400 captivi, licet [illegible] [illegible] ad mortem damnati sunt quia eorum Duces ab uno eorum fuerant interfecti (Tacitus l. 4;

in tota urbe in honestate captivam immanissimam quam habebant eorum dii. Cato Major (teste Plutarcho) magnus ille Reip. Rom. censor et splendidissimum iuvenem, infamissimi meretricum ho[minem] exercuit. Rhetoricandi erat impudentiae, et infamiae ludorum Floralium ab ortu hujus generis.

Sed gladiatorii ludi Paganos, horum infernales mores demonstrant. Studio hum. sanguinis, trucidari homines inspectant adeo aviditate, et voluptate [illegible] ceteras ut [illegible] nollet careret officio. Prudentius pingit concursantes Rom. ad [illegible]

Dextram in gladiatores, populus conclamat
Sed [illegible], clamant, pugnant de loco.

Ad placandos Deos hac cruenta spectacula celebrantur, imo ad suffragia defunctorum. Anno urbis 5 a Brutis [illegible] primum inventum [illegible] a Val. Max. [illegible] legabat pro [illegible] gladiatoriis ludis. Festos dies hum. sanguine [illegible]. Caesar in aedilitate sua 640 gladiatores dedit. Trajanus hoc ludo 100 dieb. servavit, et gladiatorum decem millia dedit hum.[illegible] et optimus hic Imperator. Quandoque cum leonib. et bestiis pugnare gladiatores cogebantur. Cicero ipse crudelitatem Rom. [illegible] ostendit, inquiens: gladiatores miseri latrones, si omni modo vitam impetrare cupiunt, [illegible] contemptu ejus [illegible]. O monstra Hircana! O ferrea pectora! [illegible] non possunt nisi lacerato corpore, [illegible] effundas [illegible]. Sed audiendus Seneca Ep. 7 ludo hoc describens: "nunc omissis nugis, mera homicidia sunt... Mane leonib. et ursis homines, meridie spectatorib. suis objiciuntur... Quare tam timide incurrit in ferrum? Quare parum audacter occidit? Quare parum [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] pectore. [illegible] agunt [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] intermissum est spectaculum? interim jugulantur homines ne nihil agatur." [illegible] hic spectacula 20 aut 30 millia hom. quolibet mense in Europa absumpsisse in[illegible] [illegible] Lipsius.

[illegible] convivia [illegible] et hum. sanguine [illegible] in Campanorum, et [illegible] exemplum [illegible]. At [illegible] Rom. crudelitate superarunt [illegible]. Nam in istorum conviviis solenne fuit in triclinio [illegible] gladiatorum [illegible] Sil. Ital. lib. 11:

Quin etiam exhilarare viris convivia caede
Mos olim, et miscere epulis spectacula dira
Certantum ferro, saepe et super ipsa cadentum
Pocula respersis non parco sanguine mensis.

Campanorum morem assumserunt Romani, teste Damasceno Nicolao, qui ad coenam [illegible]

neatis bina, aut terna paria gladiatorum immittebat, dumq. trucidarent se mutuo plausum manib. dabant. Oh Cannibales. Oh Anthropophagi! quib. nihil ē dulce, nisi hum. sanguine conditum, nihil pulcrum, nisi hum. sanguine linitum, et rubeat. Hunc morem dum frequens ad ex: tremum imperii tempora tradunt Capitolinus, et Lampridius qui Imperatores hinc conviviis deliciis delectatos scribunt.

At Rom.ᵐ ex hisce spectaculis invitata feritas, et diabolica veritas apparet crudelitas sufficit animadvertere ipsas foeminas gladiatrices vices ad cultum, et sanguinem venisse, teste Tacito, Dione, Atereo. Eleganter Statius Amazonicam hanc, et tartaream feritatem sanguinis canit:

Hos inter fremitus, novosq. luxus
Stat sexus rudis, insciusq. ferri
Et pugnas capit improbus viriles (Statius)
Credas ad Tanaim, ferumq. ~~Tanaim~~ Phasim ~~Thermodontiacas~~ Thermodontiacas calere turmas.

Hosce horrores cordi Rom. gratissimos, et indispensabiles non sustulit, nisi Religio Chri: stiana. Primus gladiatorios ludos vetuit Constantinus post annos 600 diluvii sanguinei. Iterum subrepentes funditus eradicavit Honorius Imp.ᵒʳ Christianus. Telemachi Monachi san: guine a Rom.ⁱ populo occisi quia gladiatores dirimere, et avertere conabatur benedictionem hanc gen. hu. impetravit. Monachi perpetuo officium, et conditio fuit hominib. benefacere, et ab hominib. mala et injurias obtinere; ut semper integram, et splendidissimam a solo Deo coronam acquirant charitatis, humanitatis, beneficentiae, quam soli Monachi perpetuo exercue: runt, Philosophi laudarunt semper tantummodo.

Iact.ᵗ Ludi gladiatorii non tantam continebant feritatem, quanta dictum. In primis non pugnabant nisi rei damnati ad mortem. "Eo adsunt (inquit Plinius in Panegyrico) ut ad pulchra vulnera contemptumq. mortis accenderentur, cum in servorum etiam, noxiorumq. corporib. amor laudis et cupido victoriae cerneretur." Et Cic. tuscul. 2da. "Crudele gladiatorum spectaculum et inhuma: num nonnullis videri solet et haud scio an ita sit, ut nunc fit. ~~Atrorum~~ Cum vero sontes ferro de: pugnabant, auribus fortasse multa, oculis quidem nulla poterat esse fortior contra dolorem et mortem disciplina." Haec avertebant etiam in supremo periculo testante Cicerone declamationem.

R. Etiam si soli damnati adhibiti fuissent in ludis gladiatoriis, fuissent tamen ludi adhuc re: prorsus execrabiles, et diabolici. Quid magis contra naturam, quam reos cogere ad mutuum furorem, pla: gas, ictus, occisionem? Quid magis horribile, quam in effusione hum. sanguinis delicias populo quaerere.

Lanistatores, et aedes ludos cocere? stridorem? jucunditatis, et inveni hoc incitationes habere? Eradicare a corde humano terrorem sanguinis, et stragis, et omnem compassionem, quae pretiosissimum est naturae balsamum contra naturalem ejus ferociam, et duritiem cordis? Quid magis detestabile, quam constituere arte homicidas omnes spectantes cum voluptate et desiderio, cumque naturae crudelitatem acuere, irritare, et hominem in tigrem convertere?

Sed falsissimum est solos reos fuisse gladiatores: citata Plinii, et Cic. verba jam id probant. Servi, et captivi homicida crudelitate ad horrendum diabolicum ludum deputabantur. Tunc erant Lanistae, mercatores gladiatorum, apud quos jurabant capiti obterari, uri, ferroque necari. Quid plura? crescente tum spectaculorum ferocia Romanorum, et siti sanguinis inexplebili accensa, liberi ipsi, et ingenui sponte, vel mercede et a Caesaribus tempore ipsi equites ipsi et senatores gladiatoriam exercuerunt. Unde Imperatorum legib. necessario dementiam coerceri opus fuit.

Ad illud, impiissimum est et detestabile facinus fortitudinis dicendum quaerere in occisione naturae in violatione omnis juris, et honestatis, in efferatione cordis humani. Stulti sunt crudeles et impii Plinius, et Cic. et corda ferrea habuisse probantur, quod Paulus Apost. de Philis notat, dum laudant fructus truculenti hujusque artis gladiatoriae. Quid responderent magni Paganorum Moralistae qui libro de officiis [illegible] dicenti Algerino optimam esse piraticam, quia ex ea Algerii Beijs et Populus hauriunt magna commoda, et tranquillitatem domesticam, discunt frugalitatem, patientiam, bellicum robur, contemptum mortis, doloris, pulchra vulnera, amorem victoriae? Ob haec omnia certe, piraticam approbant, et jubent Arcontes Algerini, qui juxta Plinii, et Cic. principia sapientissimi essent judicandi. Animadvertite diligenter hoc loco quam perfidi sint homines [illegible] insipientes Paganorum. Plinius ille junior, qui non nisi suavitatem spirat, et mel dulcissimum emittit in suis Epistolis; Cicero, qui in [illegible] [illegible] superavit [illegible] refundo tranquille, et systematice [illegible]. Quod vere Christus dixit: Omnes, quotquot venerunt fures sunt et latrones.

[illegible] illi pauci qui oculos avertebant erant minus efferati quam caeteri qui oculis [illegible] [illegible]tabant, et jubebant saepissime trucidationem cadentium. Ipsaeque Virgines Vestales quas [illegible] et [illegible] esse oportebat immanissime jubebant confici vulneratos. Unde Prudentius:

> Et quoties victor ferrum jugulo inserit illa
> Delicias ait esse suas, pectusque jacentis
> Rumpi Virgo modesta jubet. [Prudentius]

Sed illi ipsi cultum avertentes, et semimisericordes homines fuisse truces et [illegible] tot ex quorum spectacula [illegible] refundo currebant.

[illegible] quis dicat Populum Rom. et caeteras nationes ex sola voluptate, et curiositate concursus ripa ad ludos gladiatorios, non feritate ãi; quo pacto etiã Ch.ni quorũ latroni loquuntur ob ruindit, vel ob inquinat concurrunt turmatim.

Respondendũ cum Augustino lib. 6. confess. cap. 7. et 8. curiositatem, et voluptatem Circensium meritissime appellare insaniam, pestem sordes, vellera furiis crudeles, et funestas cruentam, et immanissimam voluptatem. Habetis igitur quid de natura hujus flagitiosissimæ vo-luptatis, et curiositatis Circensis natura delectatis. Imitamentum ferociæ ex viris Circensib.
confirmat Augustinus experimento Alypii sui, qui invitus ab amicis ad Circum perductus, sedens clausis oculis, clamore totius populi repente ad vulnus proddam excitato oculos aperuit, et defixit in plagas gladiatorum: ut autem vidit illum sanguinem, immanitatem simul ebibit, et non se avertit, sed fixit aspectum, et hauriebat furias, et delectabatur scelere certaminis, et cruenta voluptate inebriabatur. Spectavit, clamavit, exarsit, abstulit inde secum insaniam.

Ad Alterum. Adeo mitis, et hum.a ẽ Christiana Religio, ut nequaquam aliquid agnoscat contra perfectam lenitatem in spectatorib. capitalis supplicii. Hinc vetitum Ecclesiasticis.. 2do in aliquo supplicio apud Christianos non sequitur in reos, sed promptissima morte extinguuntur 3. Non non-re, aut ludi loco ad populum exhilarandum proveniunt, ut Circenses, sed ad justitiam, exempli, terroremque injiciendi, ut a criminib. populus arceatur. 4. Vulgus non hilaritatem ex eorum morte percipit, sed generatim luctu, et commiseratione plena sunt omnium corda. 5. Sancto. Si solum Reip. et justitia liberum esset rem, id oẽs cuperent. Hinc ai Principis clementia Reo ducto vita donatur, Urbs plena lætitia. Hoc sufficit ad humanitatem Christianorum ostendendam. At in ludis gladiatoriis oĩa erant contraria scelesta, dira, efferata. Fundi humanum sanguinem etc. ut sup.

Opp. 5.to pro Romanis. Revocare, et objicere nobis posset quis exempla virtutum, quæ passim legimus in Historiis. Ex. gr. paupertatem Cincinnati, continentiam Scipionis, justitiam Cato-nis Uticensis, et alia hujusmodi infinita.

R. Ad exempla virtutum prolata et ad oĩa quæ proferri possunt dicendum ẽ non non agere hoc loco de morib. peculiarium personarum, sed de morib. generalib. nationum. Ex quo extiẽ paupertatem et laborem, amavit Cincinnatus, justitiam Aristides, et Phocion, vel Epictetus, et M. Aurelius, æquitatem Cato Uticensis? non sequitur Græcum, aut Romanum populum fuisse aut continentem aut justum aut paupertatis tenacem. Peccaret contra primam Logicæ regulam qui a particularib. concluderet ad universalia, omnesque historias contra se reclamantes inveniret.

Praeterea ad probos et honestos homines aliquos nobis proponendos non sufficit proferre unum, aut alterum actum virtutis generaliter exercitum, si constat virtutes primarias, et abstractive generaliter, constanter et ex systemate fuisse violatas, ut clare constat ex supradictis. Quid refert si Atheniensis Populus una vice repudiandum Themistoclis utilissimum consilium, quia improbum, judicaverint, dum perpetuis moribus, ac legibus suis corrupti se criminibus oblectabant. Quid ad me si Romani veteres fortes erant in bello, et patientes laborum, et temperantes si interea erant rapaces, sanguinarii, crudeles, iniquissimi? Virtutes aliquae, vel virtutum imitamenta conjungi possunt cum enormibus vitiis. Quartarum exemplum sufficit. Philargyrius [illegible].

Laudat ille, inter privatos homines, quorum magnas laudant virtutes, Aristidem, Phocionem; nego fuisse vera integritate praeditos. Instar omnium sit Cato Uticensis, Cato ille e caelo demissus, qui ut prodigium virtutis habetur, et a Vellejo, et Seneca Diis similis, vel etiam laudatis [illegible]. Sanctissimus hic Cato noctes insumebat in ebrietate. Quid ab infatigabili compotatore verae virtutis habeas! Ira ejus lenta, sed implacabilis; blasphemabat providentiam in fuga Pompeii ab Italia; superbia, et incredibili elatione tumebat, adeo ut Provinciis diceret: Non semper Catones habebitis. Iracundia furiosissimus fuit, et servo benemerenti, qui gladium abstulerat pugnum adeo intolerabile impegit, ut tumefacta, et inflammata sibi ~~fuerit~~ perierit manus ex percussione adeo, ut recte notet Fontanellius: bizzarra dolce; ecco in sogno, che quanto ben volta una morte filosofica. Ejus vitam non habemus, nisi scriptam a laudatoribus dubiae fidei. Si Caesaris Anticatones haberemus indicia virtutum individuitionem [illegible] forte addere possemus. Quamquam narrata sufficiunt ad sanctitatem expungendam Catonis, et caeterorum Ethnicorum, quos laudat Antiquitas, quos Cato omni laude superavit.

Caeterum non solum facta individua quae attendimus vera sed; ipsi Scriptores Paganae Romanae antiquitatis laudatores ostendunt corruptos fuisse Reipublicae Romanae mores ab ipsa origine Reipublicae. Jam in senescente Rep. nullum est dubium historicis omnibus Romanis consentientibus fuisse flagitiosissimam. Cicero suo tempore nullum hominem potentum Romae citabat, sed jura omnia subversa avaritiam, rapinas, scelera universam integram Remp. omnesque ordines submersisse fatetur, Consulum, Praetorum, equitum, Senatus. Ad originem ergo Reip. cum Augustino ascendamus, qui lib. 2 de civ. Dei cap. 18. haec refert Sallustii verba: Injuriae validiorum, et ob eas discessio plebis a Patribus, aliaeque dissensiones domi fuere jam inde a principio... Tarquinio, servili imperio Patres plebem exercere, de vita atque tergo regio more consulere, agro pellere, et caeteris expertibus soli in imperio agere, quibus saevitiis, et maxime foenore oppressa plebs cum assiduis bellis tributum simul, et militiam toleraret, armata montem sacrum, atque

Aventinum incedit, tumq. Tribunos Plebis, et alia sibi jura paravit. Discordiarum, et certaminum
utrinq. finis fuit secundum bellum Punicum,, Ea igitur quid erat teste Augustino, et Sallustio Rom. Resp.ca + ab ipso exordio saeculo. Senatores, et Divites ambitiosi, feroces, et crudeles, omnis humilis Populus oppri= mentes (invenimus Aterippum unum quolibet die pro centenario repetisse apud Veteres). Pauperum de= bitorum flagellis excoriabant tergo nisi mentre dixiderant ex 12 Tabulis. Impetus tyranni: vi= Rom. Senatus, tumultus, et seditiones perpetuas efferascere facit in omnibus, ut non miror Mon= tesquieum Caesaris rebellionem vel excusare, vel approbare ob aeternam quamq. tempore Senatus in= justitiam, inhumanitatem, et perfidiam.

Si anni sancti Reip. "et omnes aequale tum dixa (quod recte exclamat Augustinus cit. loco) Si
* illa tempora talia inveniuntur, quib. pulcherrima, atq. optima fuisse praedicatur Rom. Resp. quid jam de sequenti aetate dicendum, aut cogitandum arbitramur; cum ex Sallustio ex pulcherrima, et optima, pessima, ac flagitiosissima facta e post Carthaginis excidium? quae tempora Sallustius de= scribens ait: ex quo tempore majorum mores non paulatim, ut antea, sed torrentis modo prae= cipitati: adeo juventus luxu, atq. avaritia corrupta est, ut merito dicatur genitos ee qui neq. ip= si habere possent res familiares, neq. alios pati,, Haec ex Sall. Augus. qui, ut patet evidenter, ma= le traducitur tanq. laudator virtutum Romanarum cum contra in civ. Dei doceat et falsas fuisse vir= tutes Romanorum et nullum verissimam abundasse inter illos. Concludere possumus cum Rollino lau= datore caeteroquin immodico antiquorum:,, Noi vediamo co' fatti dove è andata a finire quella moderazion de' Romani tanto cantata da' lor Panegiristi. Nemici della libertà di tutti i Popoli, pieni di disprezzo per i Re, e per il trono, considerando tutto l'Universo come lor man= do hanno intrapreso con una ambizione insaziabile la conquista del Mondo intero hanno invaso sen= za distinzione tutte le Provincie, e tutti i Regni. Si placet haec audiantur verba Rugerii Mi= ente potè smorzare la cupidiggia di questi Tiranni insaziabili. Bisognò distruggere le Città intere, mettere i Regni a fuoco, e a sangue, abbandonare i Popoli alla tirannia, ed alla violenza de' Proconsoli. I furori di Mario, e di Silla, le guerre civili di Cesare, e di Pom= peo, le proscrizioni del Triumvirato sono uno degno oggetto la storia di tante ruine  Si vede Roma ella stessa in fine contro se stessa la spada colla quale aveva scannate tante Na= zioni, bagnarsi nel proprio sangue, vendicar l'Universo de' mali, ch'Ella fatti gli aveva.

 Opp. 6.° pro Rom.is Sacra Scriptura testimonium reddit virtutib. Rom. Nam 66, Machab. cap.
8 Scriptum è: audivit Judas famam eis amicitias .... et possederunt, neq. (elevi inter eos.
R. Wernet interpretes Divinae, Cornelius a Lapide, aliique, veramulti hic non loqui Sacram Script. in persona propria, sed recensere ea tantum, quae de virib. et fortitudine Romanorum audierant Romanorum. Sequit enim. Ut audivit Judas, et audierunt reglia. Id unum ergo testatur Script. hic et.

tum Judam, et Machabeos, hæc elogia audivisse, nullo tamen modo asserit Scriptura hæc elogia esse vera, quæ proinde possunt esse falsa, quamvis vere audita fuerint a Judæis. Hæc responsio, in qua insistendum docet Carolus a S. Vito sufficit, ut virtutib. Rom. Scripturæ præjudicium detrahatur.

Sed notandum est rursum in elogio ~~Judæorum~~ Romanorum Machabaico non laudari nisi virtutes bellicas et politicas, patientiam in laborib. ferendis, amplissimum dominium in Reges, quæ omnia nobilitentur domus Romanis. Sed hæc omnib. etiam sceleratissimis convenire possunt. Quæ ~~[illegible]~~ sequentia nihil ostendunt aliud, nisi Romanos faciles fuisse in fœdere ineundo cum iis, qui ipsorum amicitiam quærebant, imo quandoq. amicis suis bene fecisse, ut Eumeni Regi, quæ pariter non probant bonos mores unius nationis. Fœdera enim inibant non ob virtutem, sed ob utilitatem, quam utiq. magnam Romani reportabant ex fœdere cum variis ~~nationib.~~ populis inito. Cæterum quis ignorat Romanos fœdera facilius iniisse, quam servasse? Post fœdus Machabaicum annon umquam Judæos protexerunt, vel ullum legatum miserunt ad hostes Judæorum compescendos? Minime minime. Imo paulo post Romani Pompejus, Crassus, Gabinius, aliiq. Judæos fœde oppresserunt. Quod vero dicit Scriptura non fuisse invidiam, et zelum inter Romanos omnesq. unum obedire, nobis quidem libet loqui de castris, et exercitib. Romanorum, in quib. militaris disciplina adhuc florebat, et unius ducis imperio omnia regebantur. Sed iterum dico non continere nisi militares virtutes, quæ etiam in Turcarum castris possunt inveniri. Quod si etiam de Urbe loqueretur Scriptura intelligendum esset de concordia publica et externa quia nimirum adhuc non emerserant inter Romanos publicæ factiones, et bella civilia ferocia, et cruenta, quæ tamen paulo post inter Gracchos, Mario, Sulla, Cæsare, Bruto, Antonio &c. perdiderunt. At domesticas, et privatas dissensiones, et intestinum bellum sine sanguine fuisse ab origine Reip. ostendit Augustinus ex Sallustio, ut supra.

Sed rursum ad Scripturas provocamus audiamus, tandem Apostolum Pauli, qui non politicas tantum virtutes recenset, ut Auctor Mach., sed descendit ad mores proprios, et privatos Græcorum, Romanorum, et aliorum. En picturam verissimam ab ipso Deo delineatam sed terribilem, quæ inhorrescere possunt capilli capitis, ut horum: „Revelatur enim ira Dei de cœlo ... sine affectione absq. fœdere sine misericordia.“ Audeant post hæc Philo laudare nobilissimos Romanos &c. Breuitatis gratia mittimus quæ Joanne in Apoc. scribit.

Cap. Ult. pro Romanis Augustinus laudat virtutes Romanorum. Nam in Ep. 138 ad Marcellinum inquit: „Romanos custodivisse quandam sui generis honestatem quæ possit terrenæ civitati augendæ sufficere. Deum autem ostendisse exemplo tam magni imperii quantum valeat virtutes civiles et politicæ etiam sine vera Religione. In libris etiam de Civ. Dei laudat Romanorum virtutes. Gentes vero inquit: gentes quæ legem non habent naturaliter quæ legis sunt faciunt.

R. Amplitudo imperii non probat virtutem veram. Alioquin Assyrii, Persæ, &c. ... qui imperium Romanorum majus obtinuerunt, honestissimi censendi essent. Aug. autem nullibi agno

-sit veras virtutes in Rom.[is], sed tantum docet Rom.[os] habuisse virtutes civiles, politicas, et militares, utiles temporali regimini et terrenae civitati. Ait enim illos amasse, custodisse (sunt ...) in oĳs.(Docet Rom.[os] abstinuisse a multis sceleribus ob immensum amorem laudis, propter quam, ut ait l. 5. c. 12. (...) Dei, vivere voluerunt, et pro hac mori non dubitaverunt; ceteras cupiditates hujus unius ingenti cupiditate presserunt. Citat illud Virgilianum:

" Vincet amor patriae, laudumque immensa cupido ".

Unde addit cap. 17: cupiditates vicerunt pro hum.[a] gloria et ad tamq. mercedem talium virtutum accipere meruerunt. Notat tamen Cap. 19: inter omnes constitit nemine sine vera pietate, id e. veri Dei cultu, veram posse habere virtutem, nec eam veram ee. quando gloriae servit hum.[ae] Ex Aug.[no] ergo Romani, qui gloriam hum.[am] tamq. maxim. actionum metam habebant, caruerunt omnino veris virtutib. Hinc l. 4 contra Julianum ait: Fabricii, Reguli, Fabii, Scipiones, Camilli, ceteriq. tales exhibuerunt terrenae, [?]tiae Babylonicam dilectionem, e virtute civili non vera, sed verisimili Daemonib. vel hum.[ae] gloriae servierunt. Unde Juliano dicenti praeditos duces Rom.[os] fuisse vera probitate praeditos respondet Augustinus horrore plenus: Ah voce impudentia majore praeditae!

Prosperitates autem temporales et amplitudinem imperii obtinere meruerunt a Deo, uti Nabuccodonosor, et Pharao, et Darius, et Alexander Macedo, quia scilicet Deus, juxta Aug.[um] flagitiosis hominib. iratus concedit ea, quae cupiunt vel ad salutem electorum vel ob alia occulta judicia. SS.[i] Patres unanimiter amplitudinem imperii Rom.[i] datam agnoscunt non ob eorum innocentiam et merita, sed ad amplificationem Ecclesiae, et rapidam Evangelii propagationem. Hinc una voce docent quod S. Leo his verbis tradit: " Dispositio namq. divinitus operi maxime congruebat, ut multa regna uno confoederarentur imperio, et cito pervios haberet populos praedicatio generalis, quos unius teneret regimen civitatis. "

Ad 2. Citatis verbis nihil aliud docet, quam nonnullos gentiles etiam sine lege Mosaica cognovisse, et habitu fecisse quandoq. aliqua opera, praecepta a lege. At nullo modo dicit eos semper, vel omnia servasse praecepta naturae; immo oppositum praedicat, cum eos ut gentiles exhibet repletos iniquitate, ut supra.

Opp. 7.[mo] pro Natur. ... Roussseau: Schitarum mores laudat; a Justino ... Germanorum a Tacito, Sylvestrium Americanorum a Montagnio, aliis.

R. Scriptores Pagani sunt pessimi judices Virtutum, quas maxima ex parte ne de nomine quidem agnoverunt. Sufficit animadvertere Horatium magnum Poetam, et Philosophum reponere Homerum notis ut perfectum Sapientiae, virtutis doctorem, cum sit omnium corruptissimus, et corruptionis magister. Nihil ergo a veterib. Paganis legenda encomia tributa moribus, virtutibusq. ~~paganis~~ nationum veterum nihil probant praeter quam a caecis magistris laudatos caecos. Haec animadversio millies repeti deberet.

Si fortitudinem in bello, frugalitatem et parsimoniam unumq., aut alteram humanitatis, aut aliqui vitae officium deprehendunt in nationib. Historici veteres statim eas ut sanctas praedicant, quamvis innumeris vitiis fuerint onustae.

Caeterum nullius etiam sunt ponderis ex regulis criticae elogia quae Scythis tribuit Justinus [illegible] aliique Scriptores a Strabone citati Scythas exhibent ut prorsus efferatos, qui captos hostes mactari sacrificabant, vel excaecabant qui Rege defuncto strangulabant eo ejus ministros. In Ponto [illegible] conedebant, humana Dianae Tauricae sacrificia fama erat apud Scythas ipsos. At ut Massagetae senes victimae erant Deorum, Agathyrsiani rapto vivebant. Sed sufficit in [illegible] his Ovidii carmina apud Scythas planctus audire, ut harum nationum feritas cognoscatur.

Germanorum mores a Pomponio Mela et atrociter depinguntur. Crudeles erant, fortitudinem dabant, crudis vivebant carnib., jus omne in gladio concludebant. Hunc virtus vera esse potuit in ferreis hominib. hisce? Pufendorius narrat [illegible] quos Germanos Lipsius interpretatus inter canum dum humanarum inquiam, e sedib. esse dejectatos. Virtutes, quas in Germanis laudat Tacitus componi possunt cum enormib. hisce vitiis, quae corruptissimam naturam indicant.

Si Pagani passim sunt judices circa virtutem, pejores adhuc sunt Phil. recentes, qui illi apertum bellum indixerunt, generatim fraudib. dolis mendaciis, impudentia. [illegible] ex [illegible] sufficere ad demonstrandum [illegible] vel [illegible] sunt [illegible] vel [illegible] faciunt. Quae Montagnius [illegible] et Rousseau [illegible] scribunt laconia de Sylve- [illegible], inquit, esse posse non negamus aliquos [illegible] fortitudinis [illegible] humanitatis laude [illegible] infinita sunt [illegible], injusta, violenta, ut ex omnib. constat Americae scriptorib. [illegible] ignorat in genere [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] virtutis [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] pro [illegible] virtutum [illegible] in iis laudandis.

[illegible] Britannis [illegible] Anglorum [illegible] Chinenses [illegible] Chinenses [illegible] [illegible] dividunt. [illegible] principia detectanda [illegible] circa fatalitatem, et materialismum.

[illegible] Christiani sunt corruptissimi, [illegible]

[illegible] systematica [illegible] et ex lege [illegible] [illegible] integra habet

principem, nullisq[ue] aliis legib. coguntur ad crimina [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nulla e corruptio systematica, [illegible] et [illegible], aut [illegible] et [illegible].
[illegible] intellecto dici [illegible] debere ee [illegible] infinitum [illegible] corruptione systematica [illegible] ubi e
[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], tamen non intelligit, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] floret lex plena [illegible] honestate et virtute [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] exhibet, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
aggere, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] virtus[que] [illegible] [illegible] correspondenti [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Christianorum [illegible] sunt [illegible] sanctiss. et castiss.a [illegible] in [illegible] corruptione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ob [illegible]
[illegible] ad corruptionem systematicam, ob defectum [illegible] [illegible], legib. [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] dedecore
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] laude et [illegible]? [illegible] hoc principium [illegible] audet negare [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]. Ipsa experientia ostendit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], virtutem profundius agnoscere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et in latibulis [illegible] Magna apparet corruptio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
videmus oculis nostris [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] delent. [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible]
[illegible] Chr[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facinorib. non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] integra [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et innocentia [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] et ab [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
evidenter concludi potest [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] et nobilis[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] nationem Christ.[illegible] corruptionem, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible] corruptione [illegible] nationem [illegible] [illegible] luce Evangelica caruerunt, et carent.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Egyptiorum et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], et [illegible]. [illegible] ergo [illegible], aut corruptioni [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] Egyptii [illegible]
eorum magisterio indigent Prophetae! [illegible] [illegible] audebit negare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] de quo loquuntur [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] descendunt ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Egyptiorum [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Egyptiorum [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] prohibet. [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
Astronomia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ includebant [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] excelluisse fatentur, in cognitione vero Religionis, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Egypti [illegible], et corruptissimi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] ~~sufficit~~ audire eloquentem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nationes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] belli, [illegible] artib. et [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] declarat. [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] scientiam [illegible] [illegible] virtutem [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] profuit [illegible] [illegible] Egyptiorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a solo Deo [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]

Fabulae sunt quae de Regno Saturnio de aetate aurea [illegible] loquuntur apud Poetas, Scriptoresque veteres, [illegible] quae hoc in re [illegible] hominibus natent. Hoc aetate innocentiae non remota [illegible] a [illegible] Regnorum, e [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] super faciem terrae, sed hoc tempore fuisse homines agrestes, ferocissimos, corruptissimos, [illegible] [illegible] carentes [illegible] tradunt Plato, Hoberus Diodorus Athenaeus Strabo [illegible] Aristoteles [illegible] Plato in [illegible] apud [illegible], ostenduntque [illegible] documenta qui ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et a brutali vita ad socialem [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sunt Saturni et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible], agebant, urbesque [illegible]. [illegible], Rex Aegyptiorum a [illegible] [illegible] occiditur. Saturnus [illegible] [illegible] Jupiter Saturno. [illegible] et ferocitatem temporum describit Virgilius lib. 8

Haec nemora indigenae Fauni Nymphaeque tenebant
Gensque virum truncis et duro robore ~~[illegible]~~
Queis neque mos neque cultus erat, nec jungere tauros, Aut componere opes norant, aut parcere parto,
Sed rami atque asper victu venatus alebat.

Si vero veteres [illegible] factum sit ut fere [illegible] conveniant in [illegible] veteris [illegible] innocentiae [illegible] opinionem ex antiqua traditione [illegible] [illegible] fuisse inter Gentes. [illegible] [illegible], quod Adam primus [illegible] conditus fuerat a Deo in statu innocentiae [illegible] et felicitatis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] traditionali quae tamen decursu temporis corrumpitur, ut [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] erant [illegible] [illegible] et sine luxu, ut sunt [illegible] Sylvestres Americani [illegible] [illegible] sufficit ad [illegible]. [illegible] simplicitas non e virtute ad [illegible] veterum [illegible] [illegible] Sylvestrium sed necessitate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] cibo [illegible] sylvas [illegible] [illegible]. Caeterum habuerunt Antiqui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. In [illegible] Reges vetustissimi, [illegible] [illegible] antiqui [illegible] auro, gemmis, [illegible] magnificentia [illegible] erant insignes. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non erant exempta sed [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] impudentissimae meretrici [illegible] in [illegible] a veteribus et [illegible] [illegible] ostendunt corruptionem [illegible] antiquorum. Matronae Romanae apud Horatium [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] in Corpore exornando, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et singulari [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mulieres [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quo [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] Antiquari nihil aliud habent, pro exemplo [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum omnibus [illegible], ut exemplo [illegible] Tartarum ~~[illegible]~~, et sylvestrium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pro veris virtutibus veterum quos omnibus [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] docet et [illegible] omnis historia

De veterum ~~[illegible]~~ hospitalitate collata cum hospitalitate Christianorum.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] errorum [illegible] corruptiones [illegible] [illegible] laudabiles quod artes, et Physicam laudatis [illegible] Graecorum, et [illegible] hospitalitas que, nunc dicit interiisse apud Christianos. Illius perspexi Christianorum calumniatores nullam omittunt oc-casionem carpendi virtutes Christ., et mores Christianorum, et laudandi mores infidelium. Id a temporib. Augustini Eusebius, et Pagani facere consueverant, quos Aug. sollicite confutabat. Insistentes ergo Aug. principiis indicare [illegible] hospitalitatem Christianorum, perforeus longe eam extendimus, quod omnium rationum [illegible] [illegible] omnis temporis.

[illegible] igitur hospitalitas [illegible] incredibili laudatur [illegible] hospes fui, et collegistis me. Apostoli [illegible] hospitales invicem sine murmuratione, et alia id genus persuadet apud Joann. caeterosque Apostolos. Hospitalitatis laudes repetunt PP. omnes et speciatim Augustinus, qui docet Christum ipsum hospitio excipi [illegible]. Ab orte condito usque nunquam tanta hospitalitas [illegible] ad prodigium floruit inter omnes Christianos Apostolorum tempore. [illegible] bona [illegible], et pecuniis co-
[illegible]. Collectas habent pecuniarum in universo imperio Rom. [illegible], et pecuniis [illegible] ad [illegible] hospitalitate, vel aliorum difficultate oppressis, Christiano viatori [illegible] exhibita contes-seratione hospitalitatis, et hospitiis [illegible] patebat domus quaelibet Christiani in quolibet angulo terrarum. Hinc [illegible] Christianorum [illegible] quendam peregrinum se Christianum confessum multaque [illegible] pecunias
[illegible] a Christianis famulatum, et opem obtinuisse. [illegible], et [illegible] appulisset ad Egypti [illegible] observavit [illegible] affluentes cum muneribus, alimentis, omnique [illegible], et cohorte [illegible]
[illegible] officia exhibentes. [illegible] intelligit eam Christ. [illegible] Christianorum Rel. amplecteretur. Quid [illegible] habeat exempla hospitalitatis Christianorum Egypti, ubi antea [illegible] nomen erat execrabile.
Graeci, et Rom. [illegible] ergo [illegible] epistolae [illegible] [illegible] infirmi, et [illegible] prosperabantur [illegible], ut se [illegible].
Christi hospitalitate [illegible], et [illegible] primi introduxerunt in urbem, et ipsum nomen hospi-[illegible] significare coeperunt. Aderant apud Christianos hospitalia pro lactentibus, [illegible] hospitalia, seu nosocomia pro infirmis, hospitalia, seu xenodochia pro advenis, et viatoribus, hospitalia pro [illegible] [illegible], hospitalia pro senibus, [illegible] gerontocomia, hospitalia pro pauperibus [illegible]
In magnis urbib. [illegible] et [illegible] erant [illegible] Celebre ante [illegible] omnes et vetustissimum [illegible]
[illegible] hospitale [illegible]. [illegible] in iis [illegible]. [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]. Cyprianus [illegible] Paulinus Nolanus, [illegible] Augustinus [illegible] Sancti [illegible] et [illegible] ad [illegible] pauperes, ad [illegible] captivos, [illegible] fecerunt, et fieri jubent.
[illegible] millionum [illegible] a [illegible], [illegible] et al.
[illegible] Christi quovis loco quovis tempore ad alendos aegros, infirmos, pauperes, captivos, peregri-
nos. [illegible] sincerum [illegible] humanitate, et misericordiam [illegible]
[illegible] Philos. et Apostatae [illegible], dolorem [illegible] Salutis [illegible] hospitalitatem [illegible] in pauperes hospitia [illegible] et [illegible] sed [illegible]
[illegible] sine misericordia et sine affectione, ut [illegible] misericordia [illegible] perfectam Philosophorum ad nostra usque tempora.
Hospitalitas antiquorum Christianorum perduxit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] loco [illegible]. Hospitalitas [illegible]

Ch[illegible] viduli[illegible] vel augusti [illegible] scripsit [illegible] Eccl[illegible] Rom[illegible] sub Cornelio Papa persecutione [illegible] efer- vescente [illegible] pergentos pauperes alebat, et centum [illegible] viduas. Sub [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] inverso [illegible] naturae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut loquunt [illegible] Senatores, et Principes Christi [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] beneficentiae ostendunt.

Pammachius [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], Acilii [illegible] [illegible] medicina et [illegible] hospitalitate [illegible], [illegible] hospitis [illegible], Pammachius, licet ex Camilli familia Romani [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] celebrant [illegible] [illegible] edendo gladiatores, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in Basilica, in vestibulis, in atrio S. Petri. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et pecunias singulis donat. Pauperes ad mensam [illegible] [illegible] invenerant, ut [illegible] [illegible] hospitale ad recipiendos [illegible] ex universo orbe terrarum [illegible] peregrinos, et [illegible] [illegible] famam [illegible] apud [illegible] Egypti, et toto diviso orbe Britannos. Non solum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hic Romanos [illegible], sed [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] peregrinis inserviebat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pauperum [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible].

Paulini Senatoris [illegible] liberalitas Aug[illegible] [illegible] et Hieronymum in admirationem rapuit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cupiditate flagrabant, [illegible] [illegible] Jesu Christi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] toto mundo [illegible]. Non solum [illegible] [illegible] in pauperes, [illegible] [illegible] vendidit [illegible], [illegible] peregrinis, et hospitib. [illegible] ad [illegible] confluentib. horrea sua aperuit. [illegible] captivos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dissolvit. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible], in qua [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] uxor [illegible] mendico [illegible]: Uxor, licet [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] abscondit et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fermento [illegible] [illegible] qui ad uxorem fide Christiana [illegible], inquit, [illegible] pauperi et [illegible]. Gregorius [illegible] addit se [illegible] [illegible] Paulinum, ut [illegible] [illegible] redimeret.

[illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conjux [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] bona et agros suos [illegible] et in [illegible] Italia et in Sicilia [illegible] Britannia Gallia Aquitania et in Africa [illegible] vendunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et ad Hospitalia [illegible] Occidentis. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in Egypto [illegible] et [illegible], in [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a solis ortu [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Christiani [illegible], ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] beneficentiam, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] terrae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] in terra sive in mari. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] beneficentia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Christia[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] adorat. [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Pontificum, et [illegible] [illegible] pietatis hospitiis [illegible] orbis terrarum, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] possint [illegible], et [illegible]. Hospitalia [illegible] pro [illegible] hospitia [illegible], et [illegible] pro infirmis, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] parientib. pro [illegible] [illegible], pro [illegible], [illegible] pro [illegible] hospitia pro Clericis pro [illegible] pro infantib. [illegible] pro [illegible], [illegible] pro [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], ut [illegible] toto [illegible]

se [illegible] nulla [illegible] aut [illegible] hospital. [illegible] in solo SS.mae Trinitatis hospitio 8000 peregrinorum [illegible] in [illegible] anno jubilei et [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] recensere [illegible] societates [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible], ad distribuendas vestes [illegible] lectulos et alia [illegible] infinita.

Hoc igitur loco opportunum est animadvertere quantum dedecori, et [illegible] [illegible] Roma [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] virtutes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible]. [illegible] Paulus qui in [illegible] Rom. [illegible] adeo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aeternam, et nobilissimam fecit Chr. Rom. [illegible]. [illegible] ago Deo meo per Jesum Chr. quia fides vestra annuntiatur in Universo Mundo. Desidero videre vos [illegible] simul consolari in vobis per eam, quae invicem est, fidem vestram atque meam. Paulus Apostolus ob excellentem Romanorum Chr. fidem et [illegible] Deo gratias agit, et celebrem esse in orbe terrarum fatetur. [illegible] Paulus ardenter [illegible] Rom. in fide fervidos videre et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] virtute, et consolatione Dei videmus [illegible] Rom. fidem et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Chr. [illegible] [illegible] veritate fidei, virtutibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Romanorum Pontifices Petri successores et Apostolatus [illegible] fide [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] terrae [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], regant [illegible] Chri gregem in terris constitutum.

Sed [illegible] hospitalia [illegible] Chr. [illegible] integram [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] viduis, [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] Charitas [illegible] habet [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible]. [illegible] abhinc annos [illegible] [illegible] Algeri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] extruxit. Paullo ante eadem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] hospitio [illegible] [illegible] affecto, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qua fere [illegible] et Charitatis [illegible] [illegible] dederunt. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] litteras [illegible] dederunt in grati animi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] Charitatis [illegible] prodigia [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 1745 ad S. Laurentium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] inscriptionem.

Col nome di Dio [illegible], [illegible] al [illegible] amico, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible] il sentire la carità, che avete [illegible] in queste [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], tanto a [illegible] Cristiani schiavi [illegible] [illegible] come anche a tutti [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] medicinali; anzi voi stesso somministrarete i soccorsi necessarii, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] flagello [illegible], [illegible] tutti vengono a lodarmi la pietà del [illegible] buon cuore, e la carità la quale [illegible] [illegible] grata la vostra Persona. Dio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] con tutto l'affetto [illegible]

Io [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] non sunt prodigia Charitatis et hospitalitatis vel [illegible] de [illegible] Ord. [illegible] Archiepi. [illegible], qui ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], vel Thomae a Villanova, vel Caroli Borromaei qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] erogato in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] vel [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], et hospitio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alendo, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lecto, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hospitii [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 850 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hospitio [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

substantes, mores, cogitationes, vitam denique quod inter labores profudit ad egenos, et amicos juvandos?

[illegible] solutione nequeunt continere prodiga Charitatis Ch[ae] [illegible] regula [illegible], semperque esto [illegible] vendamus [illegible] beneficentiae Regum aut Militum [illegible] nova [illegible] extendunt in pauperes sed omittere [illegible] Joachimum Castelli [illegible] in [illegible] defunctum [illegible] doctrina, pietate, zelo, humanitate [illegible] comparandus adeo effusus erat in [illegible] [illegible] ut annos 30 in Episcop[ali] domo, et [illegible] quotannis [illegible] debet integra impenderet in egenos. Ea [illegible] charitate et hospit[alitate] Ch[ristian]ae quae [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible]. Ea [illegible] effectus, quo [illegible] et gratia [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] utilitate[m] [illegible] hum[ani]tatis Phil[osophi]ae et Grammaticae jactationem.

Dices [illegible] magna, et sancta erant apud Paganos [illegible] Hospitalitatis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] documenta. Hospitalitatem laudat [illegible], Theophrastus [illegible] [illegible] praeter Hospitalitatis. Hinc [illegible] Jovi Hospitali de quo [illegible] [illegible]

Jupiter, Hospitibus nam te dare jura loquuntur, Hunc laetum Tyriisque diem, Trojaque profectis
Esse velis, nostrosque hujus meminisse minores.

Adeo magnum tribuebant [illegible] hospitalitati ut a Diis [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] crederent, [illegible] hospitii. Hinc [illegible] [illegible] quem apud [illegible] patrem [illegible]

Per Patris hospitium, et mensas, quas advena adisti
Te precor, Alcide, coeptis ingentibus adsis.

[illegible] fateor [illegible] Virgilium [illegible] Poetas et Philo[sophos] laudasse hospitalitatem [illegible] [illegible] Deos [illegible] [illegible] Castorem, Pollucem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sed [illegible] Hospit[alitatem] non [illegible] [illegible] nisi ex [illegible], [illegible] generatim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] quae [illegible] et [illegible] non [illegible] sed [illegible] et [illegible] naturam. Primo hospitalitas [illegible] ex necessitate. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] erant apud antiquissimos et [illegible] erant [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Odysseam et Homerum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Germanos. [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] apud nos. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nullus [illegible] [illegible] hospites [illegible] necessarie erant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Hospitales erant antiqui ex utilitate, et [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hospitalem [illegible] remuneratum effectus avaritiae [illegible] Quippe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] debebant, vel poterant [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] erant Veteres ex curiositate, et voluptate [illegible] in magna essent Veteres ignorantia [illegible], regionum et Populorum ab hospitibus [illegible] [illegible] inquirebant. Hinc [illegible] [illegible] integros [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] apud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et nationes longo sermone describere [illegible] Groenlandus aut Otaheita, aut Patagonus appareret inter nos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] haberentur incognitarum illarum regionum [illegible] veteres carentes Tabulis, et communicatione quolibet [illegible] hospes erat Otaheita, aut Patagonus. [illegible] ergo [illegible] [illegible], aut [illegible] apparet in iis [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] laudabili [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] hospit[alitatem]. [illegible] [illegible] hospitales erant, sed [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

hosp.tis comparatæ ad Chr.nam prorsus evanescit.

Robinio exaggeranti hosp.tem gentium, et plenitudinem ejus intendam apud eos dicam uno verbo: in tota historia orientalium, aut Græcorum aut Latinorum invenisti ne, vir erudite, unam tantum exemplum hosp.tis, quod possit comparari hosp.ti illæ sancti in dies exercentis ... quo [illegible] et tempus congruum, et Xenium; sive lautitias, [illegible] postea dixisset? [illegible] ... hosp.tis fragmenta adeo laudas, et immensam seriem hosp.tis Chr.næ recentium, quæ prodigiorum quidam sed tamen creberrima exhibent monumenta? Si solas, Robine, Samuniardus [illegible], Græcas [illegible], et omnium [illegible] ... in quorum antiquitatis laudatores illud quadrat ... che non [illegible] ... vedere e ... estenderli ... [illegible] ... Greca, o Romana.

Dices [illegible] Non parvo [illegible] erat ad hospites excipiendos [illegible] post liberalem exceptionem hospites [illegible] excipiunt Ulyssem [illegible] ... sive [illegible] Ita legerunt qui hospitio excipiunt apud Homerum, et Æneam apud Virgilium ... Regina ... donaria ... a divitib. et [illegible] erogabant in viros illustres, et magnos. Ipsa exempla Hospitalitatis antiquæ respiciunt plerumque illustres, et magnos viros. Sed hæc hosp.tas, quamquam laudabilis, est admodum imperfecta, et initialis, et longior longe inanitas apud Christianos [illegible] temporum. Vera et magna hosp.tas est quæ exercetur in miseris, in infirmis, in pauperes, in contemptis. Hosp.tas paganorum non noverat generatim, nisi forte [illegible] Hosp.tas Chr.na in infirmis [illegible] honorat [illegible], et imaginem Dei latentem in quolibet homine, et major est blanda, et tenera, et miseros respicit [illegible] ... ergo hosp.tas non est ... Chr.na ... immensa.

Maceat hic locus [illegible] Aug.ni hosp.tem memorare qui certe non erat absolutum dives [illegible], et [illegible] ... sed honorisl. et infirmi [illegible] ... ex ligno, terra, aut [illegible], argenteam tantam cochlearib. ... [illegible] remotas exercent imaginem, etiam ... quod [illegible] ... Dei servum excludere. Hospites non more Hæretico fatigabat longas exquirendo narrationes ... [illegible] ... [illegible] instructione aliqua, in [illegible] ... abstineret a murmuratione [illegible] ... esse sit:

„Quisquis amat dictis absentum rodere vitam, Hanc mensam indignam noverit esse sibi."

Dona sua omnia ... distribuit ... et [illegible] ... in [illegible] tempore [illegible] ... et hosp.te mirabili ... [illegible].

... ut [illegible] ... benignitate et hosp.te ... Dices 3. invenimus leges hospitales apud [illegible], apud Ægyptios ... Apud [illegible] ... Apud Germanos teste [illegible] ... hospiti ... apud Judæos apud Græcos ... [illegible] ... conservatam.

[illegible] ad Hospites excipiendos, et hosp.tis tesseram [illegible] ... tamen facile [illegible] ... hosp.te [illegible] ... Indos, Athenienses [illegible] ... Chinas, Ægyptios, Persas, Græcos [illegible] ... contra excludentes hosp.tis ... Habemus [illegible] ... hospitalem [illegible] ... Habemus Germanos [illegible] ... Sed hæc [illegible] ... quæ sine [illegible], et sine [illegible] ... exercendæ hosp.tis ... hosp.tis ... comparatæ cum Chr.na quæ nostra quæstio est, penitus evanescit in hac collatione. Habemus nos [illegible] ... Paulo Apostolo docente, fuisse sine affectione et sine misericordia, unde Bernardus [illegible] ... amantissimus [illegible] ... et [illegible] ... Bernardus serm. 12 de [illegible] ait: [illegible] ... gentium ... [illegible] ... qd. sine affectione fuissent.

At [illegible] hospitales fuisse in Graecia temporib. heroicis, aut [illegible] priorib. [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible]
[illegible] ad liberalitatem concedit; sed [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] exempta fuisse [illegible], [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] magna charitate [illegible] illis [illegible] negamus. [illegible] Chr. [illegible] [illegible] factum [illegible] [illegible] nomine [illegible] illustres commendarat et utilitatem [illegible] hospitii ex [illegible] et digni-tate, quae ex ea [illegible]. Ob hanc causam facilius inveniemus jure hospitii [illegible], ut [illegible] Regia [illegible], [illegible] cum Regib. [illegible]. Nec [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] hospitii tesseras, ad [illegible] transisse, et fuisse [illegible]. Sed haec omnia et iterum dicam, non [illegible] [illegible] argumenta sed commune et [illegible], [illegible] nomen [illegible]
[illegible]. Etiam in pauperes Hospitalitas exercebatur. Nam Homerus expresse docet, pauperes a Jove mitti. Hoc demonstrat [illegible] Pagani, exercendam hospitalitatem in Pauperes.

[illegible] hospitalitatem Chr[illegible] probaremus ex definitionib. tantummodo Aplor., incredibile videretur. [illegible] ergo [illegible] a [illegible]
[illegible] non debemus nos, [illegible] hospitalitas Paganorum ex [illegible] Homeri, aut ex sententia alicujus [illegible], qui [illegible], nullam unquam habuerit auctoritatem apud Populum, aut [illegible] [illegible] eos [illegible] Populus jure contem-serit, ut dolet [illegible] rationis cognitum, tunc [illegible] hospitalitatem in Pauperes at [illegible] non [illegible]
[illegible] Paganos, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] constet fuisse crudelissimos erga pauperes [illegible]
[illegible] debitores [illegible] non negato [illegible] etiam in Pauperes hospitales fuisse antiquos, unde [illegible]
Ulysses [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Homero [illegible] omnia [illegible], [illegible] hospitii Paganorum erga Pauperes meliores [illegible] [illegible] Homerus [illegible] Homerum, [illegible] Hospitalitatem in pauperes, quia [illegible] pro [illegible] [illegible] pauperes a Jove mitti docet. [illegible] enim [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], unde hospitio et [illegible] laudat hospitalitatem quia [illegible]

[illegible] hospitalitatem [illegible] Chr[illegible] [illegible], [illegible] in domo sua hospites [illegible]?

[illegible] mutata [illegible] apud Chr[illegible] hospitales, ut ita dicam formulae, et [illegible], et [illegible] hospitii [illegible] adhuc apud nos in [illegible] major, quam apud Paganos. [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] quas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] incommodis, et omnia commoda; [illegible] nulla [illegible], nulla [illegible] nullus [illegible] [illegible] innumerabiles, et non [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] hospitii nec [illegible], nec [illegible]. [illegible] vero vera [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible], invenimus etiam [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible], [illegible]. [illegible] ergo [illegible]
[illegible] mutata [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] statum et [illegible] hospitii [illegible]. et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] argumenti [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] misericordia, [illegible] erga pauperes, et [illegible] apud Ch[illegible] in [illegible] major [illegible] adhuc nostris [illegible] quam apud [illegible], et gentiles. [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] etiam [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], [illegible] locum, ubi nec [illegible], nec [illegible], nec [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible], etiam [illegible] floret apud Chr[illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et domus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] exercere, et [illegible] [illegible], [illegible]
[illegible]. In [illegible] [illegible] ubi [illegible] colonia Rom[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] testes [illegible] in locis [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et a [illegible]: apud nos [illegible].

Sed ad obtinendam [illegible] omittere non [illegible] exemplum [illegible] et nobilissimum hospitii [illegible]
[illegible] Catholicorum, quae hodie floret et viget [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] Montis [illegible], qui in Europa, Asia, Africa [illegible] longe altissimi [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Benedictus [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] Populo Catholico

… non constanti, sacro, inviolabili perpetuo … [illegible] senes … ivabiles … hospitio et [illegible] a quibus …
… ad aliquot dies … pro … tenues cives. … hospiti officia … et senex …
… atq ita integritate abundabant, singulisq civis, in quibus … accepti, atq nutriti … vestite,
… orbitas [illegible] … et ad … hospitium redderet et necessario ad … in respectu …
… et rara sivante officia hospiti … in [illegible] Egypti, quo … fluvius …
… gula, … Astrea in terris versata? … non … Deorum … ratione … [illegible]
… audiemus … qui … in villa, et … celebrant, effusi …
… defuncti … Quanta … nobis … Philippi … magno …
… et sobre … sacrosancti … et … hospiti officia non … plane, nisi quod Cath … Christi …
… remotissimo ab … luxu, … pestilenti … magistero

Vidit hoc … in … [illegible] … et … quia …
Anno … agricola … arena, et … Agricola …
… et … posset, … familia sua. Integer … [illegible] … et
… sine ulla mercede … colligunt, et apportant … ad pristinam …
… integritatem, … ne … flumini pateat excursus …
… veteris, et publica officia … hospi[talitatis] Christi gratia … extare … in … plebecula …
… hominib. in populo integro Catholicorum.

Urgebis … hospitalissimum, … detractis … pe-
… vestes … cibo … hospitium … ?
… laudo … liberalitati Cimonis et … quem … et …
… Pasca. Sed erat liberalitas … et … aut ex … eroga … tantum, ut … deliciae, et … generi. C … Christ …
… reddi … erogarunt, et … ad … Ita Carolus
… Alex. … Paulinus, … hospitalitas …
… quicquid dicat, … in … Cimonis … liberalitas Athenis. In …
… e [illegible], ab … et … dignitatem et honore. …
… magna recipere, … fortasse, … suffragia, et non raro … inspectus …
… ab … et … a … ob …
… aptasse … liberalitas … et …
… gratitudinem … certe … Bonae …
… collata …
… ? Et … Cimonis …
… et … aetate … erogarunt.

… De Philippi recentiori hum[anitate] … similes.

Propositio.

Christi lex … stabilivit et … beneficentiae.
… recentes … et … instituerunt fundamenta et … humanitatis.
… Philippi nostri … et …
… et … Evangelicam legem … amore … et beneficentiam …
… indigere … et hum[anitate] … Philippi nostri …
… et … dulcius. … erga …
… a … et … [illegible]

dentia Philosophorum nullo loco magis apparet quam hac in re. Ais perpetuo bastoni, et qui non solum vera, et vel sive h[illegible] humanitatem habuerunt, neque solum valuit ea ratione ita [illegible] funditus evertere, sed hunc quod Christi lex supra primam rationem et inconcussam ad aeternitatem erexit.

Quod ut ostendamus observamus legem omnem esse non posse perfectam, nisi et perfecta officia iubeat et perfectam velit adnexam auctoritatem, ipse cum congruis in violatores. Si vero etiam congrua nostra ad observandam legem valde impellentia, et congrua, rigida exhibeat, simul haec lege perfectior esse, etc. Porro Christi lex mutuum amorem inter homines iubet, tali est in gradu supremo, et inexplicabili. Est ergo Christi lex de amore mutuo lex suprema et nobilis excellentiae. E contrario leges Philosophorum circa hunc [illegible] nec officia perfecta dictata nec congruam sanctionem nec motiva, nec exemplar ullum habent congruum. Sunt ergo leges hum[anae] Philosophorum leges ridiculae, despiciendae, et legis talis cognitiones.

Primo igitur amor mutuus charitati et amoris mutui officia perfecta iubet lex Christi. Axioma illud Christianum: quod tibi fieri non vis, alteri ne feceris: [illegible] a Christianis tanquam admirabile inculcant nisi quod: Quod tibi non vis, perfectissimum est; fuit tamen veteris Philosophis fere incognitum, aut certe non satis notum, et ab aliquibus recentiorum Philosophorum commentarius [illegible] non intelligitur, ut a Hobbes, cum uno axiomate Christiano omnino [illegible] vel [illegible] [illegible] et amor, pax, tranquillitas, et pax servatur. Altero autem axiomate Christiano [illegible] incognito, ad Decalogi lege [illegible], a Christo autem amplissime explicato: diliges proximum amor mutuus et beneficentia, clementia et [illegible] praedicatur. Christus autem nec ipsis internis cogitationibus legem quamquid [illegible] Hinc illud: Nolite judicare et non judicabimini, in quo enim iudicio iudicaveritis, iudicabimini. Quis unquam Philosophorum intellexit, etiam cogitationes intimas regendas esse, ne internam et invisibilem iniuriam proximo faceremus?

Atque [illegible] recensere quanta officia complectitur Christianorum Christiana Caritas misericordia, sicut et Pater vester misericors est. Nullus est honor misericordiae in [illegible] ut nullum habeat limitem nisi Dei Patris misericordiam exemplar. Quis unquam Philosophorum hoc intellexit et docuit! Vomunt omnes quanta Christus [illegible] in [illegible], amorem inimicorum beneficentiam in omnibus, in injuriis [illegible] proximorum, et in [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ipsa [illegible] et appareat quam vera [illegible] et admirabilis sit Christi lex quam [illegible] [illegible] ridiculi sunt [illegible] Philosophorum sufficit comparare quae de charitate Paulus docet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] libro Ciceronis de Officiis, aut Crebillonis [illegible], aut [illegible] Aurelii, aut Platonis, Aristotelis, [illegible] Montesquieu, ceterorumque Philosophorum.

En breve [illegible] lectionis [illegible] Charitas inquit Paulus, patiens est; jubet Christus discipulis suis, ut patienter ferant injurias [illegible] indignatione. Charitas benigna est, aliis semper se accommodat [illegible] excusat, nec [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible] amore, et dulcedine erga omnes, clemens est. Charitas non aemulatur. Quia enim [illegible] Christiana [illegible] respicit ut caros fratres, aliorum bona ut sua considerat, [illegible] non est invida. Charitas non agit perperam, non inflatur, quia non temere nec imprudenter agit Dei lumine afflata, nec est [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible], aut inconstans, aut timida, quia hoc [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] imaginem Dei. [illegible] non est ambitiosa, non quaerit quae sua sunt, non irritatur, non cogitat malum. Quia Charitas [illegible] amat vel [illegible] quod [illegible] fratribus [illegible], [illegible], aut indignum quod fratris salutem afferat, cum [illegible] Dei et [illegible] bonum ante [illegible], non ardet [illegible], [illegible], non irritatur quia plena [illegible] omni [illegible] in fratre, facile [illegible] et [illegible] nec [illegible] judicium [illegible], et alo[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] locum [illegible]. Charitas non gaudet super iniquitate, congaudet autem veritati, quia [illegible] et dolore et [illegible] [illegible] mala, quae [illegible], [illegible] autem et [illegible] [illegible] bona in [illegible] videt. Charitas omnia suffert, omnia credit, omnia sperat, omnia sustinet, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] Christo [illegible] quia [illegible], et cor simplex, et [illegible] facile bo[illegible] [illegible] credit et libenter et [illegible] a Deo misericordia fratrum salutem sperat, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a fratribus, quos amat; sed pro illis labores omnes [illegible] sustinet.

[illegible] Apostolo delineata vera [illegible] Christi [illegible] quam nos [illegible] nihil majus [illegible] est. Si [illegible]

[illegible] erant, [illegible] Aristoteles, Platonis leges, [illegible] Pythagorae, [illegible] libros [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible] ex una, aut altera [illegible]

[illegible] inter [illegible] ex hac sola actione [illegible] ergo [illegible] extollere [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible], et [illegible] quoad officia benevolentiae et [illegible] quae

[illegible] nullo excepto aut oblito [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] apparebit [illegible] et infinita [illegible]

[illegible], et [illegible] non [illegible] corroborare ullo [illegible]

[illegible] (De his in objectionibus [illegible] ante [illegible] ad [illegible] firmasse [illegible]

[illegible] ad executionem

1° [illegible] Christus se e [illegible] descendisse, et e [illegible], et [illegible], et [illegible] concordia [illegible]

[illegible] et charitatem inter homines viveret, et homines essent unum inter se, sicut [illegible] in [illegible]

[illegible] ad [illegible], quod Deus fecit [illegible], et consequenter nostrum [illegible]

[illegible] in [illegible] rebus [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] diligendum [illegible], et [illegible] dignatus e Deus [illegible] non [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible], et omne intelligit [illegible]

[illegible] ut [illegible] omnib. [illegible] sit!

2° Docet Christus [illegible] non [illegible] nisi unum Corpus [illegible] membra adeo [illegible] et [illegible], ut [illegible] quilibet [illegible] alterius [illegible]. Hinc Paulus I ad Cor. 12: In uno spiritu omnes

[illegible] baptizati sumus, sive Judaei sive Gentiles, [illegible] Rom. 12. Sicut enim in uno [illegible] singuli autem alter [illegible] membra.

3. Non solum unum Corpus efficimur, sed efficimus illud Corpus cujus Caput e Christus efficimur [illegible]

[illegible] Christi; hinc Paulus ad Ephesios 4 docet, nos [illegible] debere in Christo [illegible] Corporis Caput [illegible]

[illegible] conservat, et diffundit [illegible] et [illegible]

et [illegible] et [illegible] unicuique membro. [illegible] in charitate [illegible]

[illegible] 5. [illegible] Corpori ejus, et de [illegible] ad [illegible]. 12. [illegible] Corpus [illegible] et membra

de membro. [illegible] non [illegible] charitatem erga alios, [illegible] non esse [illegible]

[illegible] Corporis Christi [illegible]

4. [illegible] unitatem [illegible] Christus e primogenitus in multis fratribus, [illegible]

[illegible] nisi una magna familia cujus Christus [illegible] et primogenitus [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] angularis, et fundamentum Templi Dei, cujus [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible]. Unus [illegible], et unum ovile sub pastore Christo [illegible] Dei, [illegible]

[illegible] habemus in [illegible] et [illegible] Christi [illegible] et [illegible]

[illegible] in [illegible] inter [illegible] amplexus [illegible]

[illegible] exarescere, et [illegible], omnemque tollere [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Phil. et [illegible] Alexandrin.

[illegible] omnes [illegible] consanguineos. In [illegible]

Macedonum [illegible] et [illegible] Christi [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible] Christus divina sua potestate et auctoritate, et veritatem [illegible] dixit.

de S. Christus ad Chr. [illegible] dedit [illegible] amorem mutuum [illegible] praeceptum [illegible] cha[illegible], novum speciale, et Christi [illegible] legis [illegible] et [illegible] ille: mandatum novum do vobis [illegible] praeceptum meum, ut diligatis invicem ante omnia mutuam in vobis metipsis charitatem continuam habentes [illegible] operit multitudinem peccatorum. qui non diligit fratrem suum quem videt, Deum, quem non videt quomodo potest diligere? qui non diligit manet in morte. omnis qui non diligit fratrem suum [illegible] qui [illegible] non [illegible], sed [illegible]
[illegible] ministras [illegible] odeunt. Hinc in [illegible] Do[illegible] irritaverit [illegible] contemnere et examinare debet:
[illegible] in contrario magister [illegible] diligentibus [illegible] Christi officia [illegible] [illegible] gratiosum [illegible] misericordiam [illegible] et osculis et amplexibus, [illegible] promittit [illegible]
[illegible] conditionibus [illegible]?

[illegible] non habet [illegible] extinxere [illegible] quae in [illegible] praecepta, et in[illegible] legis [illegible] et amore [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] dignitatem [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] debent [illegible] Dei in se [illegible] divinae [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] tenere et detinere [illegible] Docet [illegible] anno 1600 [illegible] fratres, et [illegible] consanguinitas [illegible] fratres et [illegible] contumelias [illegible] injuriosi [illegible]
[illegible] in amore conflictandos? [illegible] fraternitatem [illegible] origine [illegible] sanguinis in omnibus fratribus. Caritatem igitur [illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] contrario nihil [illegible] systemate [illegible]. [illegible] officia Christi magna [illegible] explicant [illegible] contra violatores [illegible] intellectu [illegible] convertant [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Ut [illegible] in [illegible] electionis [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] Christi Divinitate [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] Divini laboris [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] exempla [illegible]
[illegible] flammas [illegible]
[illegible] incendio liberando [illegible] perpetua et infinita [illegible] Christi, pro
[illegible]

[illegible] Ordines Reg[illegible] [illegible] Congregationes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sanctis [illegible] [illegible] proximorum saluti et be[illegible]
[illegible] se toto consecrant. Monachis debet Europa non deperditos veteribus libros [illegible] nationum [illegible] [illegible] cultum linguae, atque conservationem scientias, et artes, quae in ea florent. Nisi Barbarorum et ignoran-tiae tempore Monaci, et clerici studiis, et laboribus suis Religionem et [illegible] servassent et diffudissent, atque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], nos hoc saeculo [illegible] [illegible] stupidiores essemus, ut ex [illegible] constat historia, et fateatur [illegible] Philosophi, ut [illegible]. In praesens Religiosi instruunt [illegible], [illegible] pauperes, [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aeternae felicitatis [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] pacem, et animi tranquillitatem [illegible] [illegible]. Abjecta [illegible] tugurio [illegible] [illegible] ingrediuntur, [illegible] ferentes alimenta, et stipem. Alii orphanos colligunt; alii [illegible] in scholis docent.
[illegible] [illegible] infirma, alii captivos redimunt, alii infirmis, etiam contagiosis se vinculo alligant in[illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] ne [illegible] [illegible] unde vulgus fecit viles, et [illegible] factus praedicat. [illegible]
[illegible] quod nos majora exercet una hebdomada officia [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] subsidii, beneficiorum, [illegible]
[illegible] erga indigentes [illegible] infirmos, [illegible] [illegible] quam [illegible] omnis [illegible] Philosophi [illegible].
Quibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et stupenda vidit in Christi[illegible] adhuc [illegible] exempla benignitatis, et misericordiae. Nos quidem vidimus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible], ut [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] sibi [illegible] [illegible] Rege [illegible] qui [illegible] virtutum splendore illustrat [illegible] meruerint, ut [illegible] saltem [illegible] sibi [illegible]. Vidimus [illegible] [illegible] Card. [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] largas [illegible] effundere [illegible] magnam [illegible] pauperibus. [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] manibus, eorum [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ministrasse [illegible], [illegible] ex plebe, aut ipso animus ad ministrandum deficiat. Vidimus Mediolani Cajetanam Agnesi, [illegible] [illegible] studia abjecisse, et [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] domum hospitio [illegible] [illegible] et assiduo famulatu [illegible] ministrasse. [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], erat in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible], ut [illegible] ex Europa [illegible] [illegible], alloquendi cupido, [illegible], et [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nunc [illegible] omnibus abjectis se in hospitali [illegible] recondidit, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Novimus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] improbo labore vix comparato te[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] erogant in pauperiores stupenda [illegible], quam in videa [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Divites: amen dico vobis quoniam [illegible] [illegible] pauper, [illegible] [illegible].
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habent, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible], [illegible] beneficentiae [illegible] et [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] in [illegible], in agris, in [illegible] quibuscumque. Catholicorum [illegible] quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Quando autem [illegible] sunt in Philosophis? [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]? Catholicus igitur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Angelorum [illegible] Christo [illegible] Christi [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible]: benedictio, et claritas, et [illegible], et gratiarum actio, honor, virtus, et fortitudo Deo nostro in saecula saeculorum. Amen.
[illegible] officia [illegible] perfecte [illegible], [illegible] aliquid [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], Nihil nemini injuriam [illegible] faciendam et ceteris [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], quae ea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] suggerit.
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et indefinita [illegible] sufficiunt ad [illegible], ille qui [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] parte, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] perfectus Geometra. [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] encomia [illegible] Philosophi [illegible] [illegible] officium [illegible], et [illegible], nemini [illegible] injuriam, sed amorem exhibendum.
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] officia amoris mutui, et [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible]

de S. [illegible] ... Plato ejiciendos e Rep. et ex ipsis agris pauperes jubet in lib. de Legib., et de [illegible] Resp. optimam homicidium velut [illegible] habet, filios degeneres expositione, vel fame, vel abortu necari jubet [illegible] tradit Magnus Arist. in Politici, imo infantes [illegible], vel debiles, vel redundantes interficiendos [illegible].
[illegible] [illegible] colligere infinita praecepta antiquorum hominum Philosoph. Hoc unum animadverto Stoicos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] compassionem sive commiserationem inter vitia reponentes, quibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] Seneca, Epictetus, hujusmodi [illegible] docent, [illegible] Virgilius laudans [illegible] hoc [illegible], inquit:

neque ille
indoluit miserans inopem, aut invidit habenti.

[illegible] certe [illegible] [illegible] non merito suo, sed merito legislatoris [illegible] qua [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] agnoscunt evidentissime [illegible] [illegible] obscuram [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] Ch.[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ipsa [illegible], aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], qui eam obscure, et inconstanter agnoverunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quae bona docet circa [illegible] [illegible] a luce [illegible], quae addit [illegible] [illegible] et nefanda eorumque [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible].

Ceterum in [illegible] luce [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] circa officia [illegible] quae jactat. In primis Philos. internos [illegible] cogitationib. [illegible] necumque docent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], judiciis, secretisque [illegible] [illegible], et odii motib., circa quos [illegible] Ch.[illegible] Hoc vitium, quod virtutes Philos. reddit hy-pocritas [illegible] objiciebant Pagani. Minutius Felix [illegible], Athenagoras, Nazianzenus, ceterique PP. [illegible] [illegible] contumeliam damnat. [illegible] at nulla profert praecepta circa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contra [illegible], ut [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] adeo tonat Relig. Ch.[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et ex [illegible] [illegible] docet. [illegible] Aug.[illegible] [illegible] licet, [illegible] quos detrahentes audiret, [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Inter [illegible] [illegible] Paulus [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] fuerint etiam [illegible], et detractores. [illegible] Philos. laudant [illegible] inflatos, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] animo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Ch.[illegible] [illegible] beatos vocat [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] eos, qui non habent inflatum spiritum, ut loquitur Aug.[illegible] [illegible] infallibile [illegible] spiritum inflatum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] indignationem, injurias. [illegible] Recentes Philos. delicias laudant, et [illegible] [illegible], theatra, [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]. At cor deliciis [illegible] statim obduresceret, nullumque laborem [illegible], aut incommodum ferre [illegible] nec ferendum esse intelligit. Ch.[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Imo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intelligibile [illegible] Philos. [illegible] et nos [illegible] [illegible] Joann. [illegible] [illegible] animas [illegible]. Sed [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lectione [illegible] circa Ch.[illegible] [illegible] praeceptis omnib. [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] Philos. [illegible] officiis hum.[illegible] infinitis.

Adeo autem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut nunc [illegible], corrupta [illegible] [illegible] hum. [illegible] [illegible], ut homicidia hum. Platonis et Arist.[illegible] suggesserit [illegible] [illegible] infantes, debiles, [illegible], et suggesserit Stoicis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut suggesserit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intima cordis [illegible] [illegible] suggerunt [illegible] et vindictam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] minus [illegible] in [illegible] etiam Philos. [illegible]?

[illegible] [illegible] Ch.[illegible] non mat [illegible], et [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] determinata et [illegible]. In [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] statim [illegible] agnoscere [illegible]. Summa claritate intelligimus, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] statim intelligi [illegible], et singula, quae facienda [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], quo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Ch.[illegible] non indeterminate, et confuse, ut [illegible] [illegible] Philos. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] sentimentis et intelligentiis. Ceterum in codice Civili jus sive officia civium sunt expressa, et singillatim definita; at in codice Philios nec singillatim sunt expressa, nec omnino possunt exprimi, sed Philii ea non intelligunt.

Opp. 2. Philia nostra, et sanctionem congruam potenter exercentis, [illegible]. Et pro amor in [illegible] est [illegible], juxta [illegible] sincere amat [illegible] [illegible] ergo [illegible], [illegible] benevolentiam, quid aliud quaerimus?

R. Nonne Philiam repraesentare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] habent ventos adversos sed [illegible], sed instanti dismeguntur; sive potius [illegible] constructa super arenam, ut [illegible] loquar: et descendit pluvia, et venerunt flumina, et flaverunt venti, et irruerunt in domum illam, et cecidit et fuit ruina illius magna. Nimirum in hoc corrupto statu in [illegible] inclinationes bonae et inclinationes in [illegible], et quidem valentes, ut [illegible]. Quando ergo sanctionem, et notitia congrua ad legem [illegible] stabiliendam [illegible], profecto de [illegible], ut [illegible] possint ad [illegible] inclinationes malas, [illegible] reddat [illegible] executionem. Sed [illegible] nullam habet sanctionem, aut notitiam [illegible]. Nam quod attinet ad primam notionem [illegible] duobus verbis [illegible] egregie ad [illegible] 1. 2. q. 27. art. 3. [illegible]: „similitudo est causa amoris... magis autem [illegible] aliquid, quod [illegible] in substantia, [illegible] in similitudine alicujus formae et ideo si [illegible] impediatur, [illegible] in consecutione boni quod amat, efficitur ei odiosus... in quantum est impeditivum boni proprii, et propter hoc figuli corrixantur ad invicem, quia [illegible] impediunt in proprio lucro.” Egregie, [illegible]. Similitudo ergo amoris causa esse non potest, nisi quando [illegible] non se impediunt in consecutione boni. [illegible] duo homines in insula deserta, victu, et vestitu abundante, ex similitudine notitia congrua dilectionis, invenient [illegible]; at homines in societatibus [illegible] bona, divitias, honores, delicias pro numero hominum cupientium sunt exigua, [illegible] [illegible] ad bona, e multis comprimunt, retardant, impediunt, [illegible] nullam [illegible] habet [illegible] [illegible] ad amorem pariendum, sed odium producit, [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible], comprimunt. Ridiculi [illegible] sunt, Philii, qui fundamentum [illegible] adhibent [illegible] aedificii. [illegible] quandoque in [illegible], [illegible] corruptae, [illegible] longe [illegible] in odium, et [illegible]. [illegible] Philii [illegible] quemlibet hoc studere, [illegible] bona [illegible], et proinde adversari debere [illegible] in quibus est eadem cupiditas, unde injuriae, et oppressiones oriri debent.

Opp. 3. Officia [illegible] hominibus cor replent dulcedine, et beatum faciunt, [illegible] replent [illegible] inter [illegible] [illegible], qui hoc faciunt [illegible]. [illegible] hominem, qui viatori in flumen [illegible] [illegible], qua [illegible] liberare [illegible] [illegible] cordis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] restituerit, tota vita [illegible] intra [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] Philii [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] beneficentiae.

R. [illegible] quidem intimam, et magnam [illegible] [illegible] in exercendis quibusdam officiis [illegible], sed [illegible] [illegible] in sublevando [illegible], vel [illegible] ex [illegible] consolationem in corde. Atque [illegible] officia, et debita Christiano permulta officia habent adnexam [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] amare homines vel [illegible] et ingratos [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ferre et [illegible], quando non deest [illegible] vindictae, [illegible] tolerare, et in [illegible] potius, quam [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] sibi honores, dignitates et [illegible] et [illegible] sunt non dulces et [illegible] corrupto in praesenti statu. [illegible] sunt ergo debita et officia Christiana [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible].

[illegible] conscientiae [illegible], in Deo et [illegible] Christo ejusque [illegible] [illegible], quod [illegible], Philii nec congrue [illegible], est [illegible] quia in [illegible] conscientiae clamores, et pro delictis [illegible] [illegible] non respondent [illegible]. Praeterea si attendimus [illegible] Philii [illegible] conscientiae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Philios [illegible] [illegible] et diabolum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quelle che hanno [illegible] [illegible] conscientiae [illegible] [illegible]

vita Chr.; at quæ consect clamore non attenditis in hoc proferti. Quæ vel labore, et damno sui ipsius otium [illegible] præstantur, a solo Chr.º intelliguntur, et sunt certe magna et multa. Philo [illegible] intelligunt, ante non enunciata [illegible]

Ipp. 4 Hoc designes in unios di figh., et imdat ab omnib. hoc dunes conversantur, probro habetur, et dum simo Istorabilmo a privatorum domo et commetudine rejicit, quid ede dix invenimi [illegible]

i. a primi hoc / ~~Ducet responso~~ [illegible] non nunca deinat. /

Ipp. Mr. Chr.no mores dui sunt, apparet, inhumani non minus, quod æternam nationum bella, discordiæ, domestica seditione fervent inter ipsos, et ipse ob ipsam Chr.tii legem.

R. Lex Ev.ca agrestes homines, et efferatos composuit. Lex Ev.ca Circenses sustulit, in quib. 100 hominum millia, apud urbatos, quotannis in Europa, [illegible] Ev.ca inhumanissima, una in sena delevit. Lex Ev.ca diminuit tota via et contentiones, et luxuriosissima superstitiones, quib. omnes nationes et speciatim Romani maxime et inquie erant deditæ. Allo strillo, ed al comando imperioso d'un corno ubbidiva tutta la Lazio, e la potenza e maestà Romana, i rispettava il Senato, vedeva gli altari, fostano aspetti; Consoli, Pretori, Generali Romani e tutti gli antiche maggi di sapere, e di prudenza, si ritiravano impauriti, i sacerdoti [illegible] vano i tempii, ed i più intimi, e dolci colloquii coi loro Dei e gli stessi guerrieri, e i primi [illegible] i, Vicere Dittatori, e Marescialli di Cavalleria erano costretti di rinunciare alle lor cariche [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] haberent, imperium, omnis faciente fabius hoc dictaturam, Flaminius Magisterio Equitum se abdicavit. Lex Ev.ca [illegible] hinc vitæ [illegible] sublata facultate patrib. occidendi infantes et [illegible] occidendi servos. Lex Ev.ca sustulit immane in vitæ, et necis licentia in uxores, quæ erat apud Romanos teste livio, Gallis [illegible] apud Gallos teste [illegible] apud Germanos, teste Tacito apud Germanos, teste Tacito apud [illegible] teste [illegible] ex [illegible] ferocissimas nationes [illegible] Ibicanos, [illegible] Scithas, Datos, Getas, Francos, Africanos aliosque infinitos mansuefecit, et [illegible] [illegible] Pelagius, [illegible] Lusitanos, [illegible] et legalitib. equali; lex Ev.ca domuit; et [illegible] reddidit Gallos, Danos, Britannos, Belgas, Normannos, Longobardos, Hunnos, [illegible] Germanos, omnesque Boreales ut universum testatur historia. Plato, [illegible], Montesquieu nec ullum quidem ut villulam reddere humaniorem potuere et in [illegible] Religio gentes efferatissimas, et immanes reddidit mites sine ullo [illegible] in ori, [illegible] terræ superficie. Hic corona Dei confringuntur, ejusque immensa potestas [illegible] in [illegible]. Plato Atheniensi sapientia ~~[illegible]~~ fama florebat, quia homines non reformavit. Vit non videt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationem ead. [illegible] laborare; illique potuisse Societatem reformare.

Mutato nomine, de te

Fabula narratur.

[illegible] Ev. agrestes homines nunquam non mutavit sed in mansuetos et [illegible] composuit [illegible] et ferocissimos [illegible]

[illegible] inter [illegible] sunt ut [illegible] bella contentione [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] impetu [illegible] [illegible] transgrediuntur perituri non [illegible] nec [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quæ [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] vitia in hoc rationali sunt et superbia, avaritia, invidia, et proditiones, quæ in brutis non sunt. [illegible] ratio nobilissima, et immensi hoi [illegible] contemnenda aut detestanda? lex [illegible] [illegible] habet natura [illegible] ad bonum, si se non sit [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] bona [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] homines requirit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quicquam!

[illegible] quæ [illegible] hoc [illegible] [illegible] felicitatem non posse, neque [illegible] sociale sine [illegible] officiis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non posse [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] societatis quando [illegible] bona [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] / [illegible] / [illegible] [illegible] sociabilitatis principium [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]

nunq. cogitat, eloq. utat injurias sociorum, contra quas sine tegmine instat. Hi sociabilitatem suam vegetant virtutes externas quas simulatas et languidas sunt, et stentes tamen essend, ut vocat experientia constanti.

Confirmemus hic sua verba [illegible] Abbatis unius sane celebris. Ita loquitur [illegible] in [illegible] lib. 3 [illegible] dal dire quelli, che vogliono stabilire la virtù sopra la ragion sola; e qual solida base, io sento dire loro? La virtù, dicono è l'amor dell'ordine. Ma questo amore può forse egli, e deve vincerla sopra contro l'amor del mio bene? Mi si dia una ragion chiara, e sufficiente da preferirlo. In fondo il lor mezzo, principio è un puro giuoco di voci perchè io dico ancora uscendo che il vizio, è un'amor dell'ordine preso in un senso differente. Vi è qualche ordine morale dappertutto dove trovasi sentimento e intelligenza. La differenza è, che il buon sottoposto a se stesso rapporto al tutto e l'uom cattivo il tutto ordina, e riferisce a se.... Se non v'è Dio il solo malvaggio ragiona bene: il giusto è un'insensato. Che tutti gli altri uomini concorrano a' miei vantaggi a spese dei loro: che tutto si riferisca a me solo: che tutto il genere umano muoia, se fa bisogno nella pena, e nella inedia per risparmiarmi un momento di dolore e di fame: questo è il linguaggio interiore d'ogni incredulo, che ragiona. Sì, io lo sosterrò finchè vivo: chiunque ha detto nel suo cuore: non vi ha Dio, e parla in altro modo, non è che un bugiardo, e un insensato.»

Traduzione del Discorso dell'Em.mo Gerdil sulla necessità della Religione.

Mortale, che vi sollevate contro la Religione, arrestatevi un momento, e domandate a voi stesso ove pretendiate di andare scotendone il giogo salutare ch'ella v'impone. Il cortigiano filosofo Cinea, che avea accompagnato Pirro in Italia esponeva un giorno in presenza di Fabricio i dommi di una setta, che negava la Providenza, e facea consistere il sommo bene nel piacere. Il saggio Romano sentì al primo colpo d'occhio le conseguenze di una Dottrina così nuova per lui, e pregò gli Dei d'ispirare sempre tai pensieri ai nemici di Roma.

Questa Dottrina si sparge nella Grecia, e vi si sparge con essa lo spirito d'irreligione. Questo Polibio quell'uomo, che ha meglio di tutti indicato degli avvenimenti passati, e meglio preveduti i futuri attribuisce la sfrenata depravazion de' costumi, che infettò la sua patria e la totale estinzione delle virtù, che fu seguita da una pronta decadenza, ed il suo giogo avvilimento, a cui ella gemè da molti anni.

Il contagio penetra in Roma. Ascoltiamo su questo, oggetto Mr. di Montesquieu (Consid. sur les causes de la gr. Ch. X), io credo, egli dice, che la setta di Epicuro, che s'introdusse in Roma al fine della Rep. contribuì molto a guastare lo spirito, e l'amor de' Romani.» L'Autore del Dizionario filosofico (art. Athée) dice: che gli Romani erano persuasi che la Divinità non potea frammischiarsi negli affari degli Uomini, e che in fondo essi non ammetteano alcuna Divinità; essi erano convinti che l'anima non fosse una sostanza, ma una facoltà, che nasce, e perisce col Corpo, per conseguenza non aveano alcun giogo, fuorchè quello della Morale, e dell'onore. (Noi vedremo fra poco ciò che fosse questo giogo sopra gli Atei) I Senatori, e i Cavalieri Romani erano veri Atei, perchè gli Dei non esistevano per Uomini, che niente temevano e niente speravano da essi. Il Senato Romano era dunque un'unione di Atei del tempo di Cesare e di Cicerone.

Si aggiunge, "che il Senato di Roma era quasi tutto composto di Atei di teoria, e di Pratica, cioè, che non credevano nè alla Providenza nè alla vita futura; questo Senato era un'assemblea di Filosofi, di voluttuosi, e d'ambiziosi tutti pericolosissimi, e che perderebbero la Repubblica ciò, che fanno i Filosofi Atei, che non credono alla Providenza nè alla vita futura e che non hanno altro giudice, che la Morte, e l'onore.

Niente v'ha di più contestato dal testimonio di Scrittori contemporanei, che la sfrenata corruzione, che seguì questa setta per tutto dove ella si sparse, e che andiamo [illegible] per dir così dominante nel tempo, in cui dodici Pescatori della Giudea adempivano l'ordine manifesto, che avevano ricevuto dal loro Maestro di muovere l'Universo, e di tirar tutti i Popoli della Terra all'ubbidienza del Vangelo.

Mortale, che vi fregiate d'aver scosso il giogo della Religione, degnatevi fermarvi anche voi per un momento, per gettare un colpo d'occhio sopra la pittura altrettanto vera, che ributtante, che uno de' più profondi del [illegible] vi ha lasciata ne' suoi scritti, de' mali spaventosi, che lo spirito d'irreligione produsse in questo tempo, e dell'obbrobrio, di cui coprì l'umanità. Io ho procurato di riunire le [illegible] nellate nel compendio, ch'io vi presento. Le perfezioni invisibili di Dio, la sua Potenza, e la sua Divinità si son manifestate fin dall'origine del Mondo per l'opera della Creazione. Gli Uomini non han potuto non riconoscere il testimonio sfavillante, che le Creature fanno al Creatore senza rendersi inescusabili. Battuto l'Orgoglio [illegible] infatuati dell'idea di una falsa scienza si sono sforzati di combattere questo testimonio. Non è loro affatto mancato il conoscimento di Dio; ma ingannandosi in vani ragionamenti, si sono attaccati a combattere, e a rigettare la nozione della sua Providenza benefattrice; han voluto sottrarsi da ogni omaggio verso di lui, e ricolmati di doni della sua liberalità, han creduto di non essergli obbligati per cotesto alcuno. In questa maniera, aspirando ad un'alta sapienza, son caduti nell'errore il più insensato. Quali ne sono stati i frutti di questa insensata sapienza! Dove gli hanno condotti questi sciocchi Savj, ai quali si sono abbandonati dopo d'essersi ricusato di ogni legame con la Divinità?

Eglino si sono abbandonati a eccessi mostruosi di libertinaggio, e ad un raffinamento di voluttà, che disonora il genere umano. Se ne trovan le prove in Petronio, [illegible], Seneca, e Giovenale. Questi eccessi erano divenuti così comuni, che vi si abbandonava senza ritegno e senza rossore; non vi furono, se non i Goti, ed i [illegible] le lettere [illegible], che se fossero pervenuti prendo [illegible] nelle Provincie dell'Impero Romano, [illegible] questo bordello universale si sarebbe veduta fatica a ritrovare un Filosofo, tra [illegible] stessi Epicurei, che abbian intrapreso a far seriamente l'apologia della spensieratezza. La Setta de' Cirenaici stabilendo il sommo bene nel piacere conduceva l'uomo per un inclinazione pericolosissima fino all'orlo del precipizio (voglio dire di questo sfrenato libertinaggio) ma non ve lo precipitava. Questa Dottrina, che è perfezionata a' nostri giorni; che è arrivata a giustificare la licenza de' costumi; sì è preteso reprimere o distruggere la taccia impressa al libertinaggio, decorandolo del nuovo nome di corruzion Religiosa, che ~~non~~ offendendo, secondo l'Autore, unicamente la Religione, e in nessuna maniera i doveri civili fa conoscere abbastanza agli iniziati ciò, che ne debban pensare.

2 Concentrati in loro stessi per l'attrattiva e 'l godimento del piacer sensibile, che gli affetta, ne giungon ben presto a non amarsi, che in se medesimi, perdono insensibilmente questi dolci sentimenti di affezione, di benevolenza e di pietà, che uniscon l'uomo al suo simile, e gli fan dividere con lui i suoi piaceri, e le sue pene. Non pensano, che a goder della vita, e poco importa loro degli altri. Tali furon quelli, di cui parla l'Appostolo, uomini inumani, senza affezione, senza fedeltà, senza compassione. Tali son anche al giorno d'oggi gli effetti della falsa filosofia, se noi crediamo ad uno Scrittore (Disc. de l'inégal. p. 73) che è stato al caso di conoscerla, egli la rimproverava di ripiegar l'uomo unicamente sopra se stesso, e d'isolarlo. A questo egli dice nel suo cuore alla vista d'un uomo, che soffre: perisci, se vuoi, che io sono in salvo. Si può impunemente scannare il suo simile sotto la sua finestra, basta chiudere la mano sulle sue orecchie, e che si faccia un po' di coraggio per impedire ~~che~~ che la natura si rivolti in lui d'identificarsi con quel miserabile, che si assassina.

3 Costoro, che non ~~stimano~~ stimando, che se medesimi ~~divengon~~ divengon superbi, ed orgogliosi; invidiano chi è sopra di loro; disprezzano chi loro è al di sotto. Tale dev'essere necessariamente chiunque tutto riferisce a se stesso.

4 I vizi d'orgoglio, e di sdegno si fanno una gloria di ~~stropicciare~~ calpestare i doveri del ben, fare verso compagni o creature sociali, per mezzo dei quali si rende ad altri testimonianza, che si stimano, e che si hanno in considerazione. Uomini così sollevati dallo spirito comune lasciano alle anime volgari questa servil soggezione troppo indegna di loro.

5 Non amando, che se stessi, non conoscendo altra regola, che il piacere, e l'interesse, non avendo alcun freno di Religione divengono avari, maligni, traditori, ingannatori e mentitori, seminatori di falsi rapporti, ingegnosi a trovar nuove maniere di far il male. Privi d'ogni sentimento di riconoscenza, d'amor, di rispetto, d'ubbidienza verso i lor Genitori, non riguardandoli che come vecchi incomodi, e credendo non esser loro debitori di cosa nessuna. Tale è lo spirito d'irreligione in tutti i tempi. Quando si crede di non aver doveri verso Dio non è facile l'immaginarsi, e d'abbiano delle Persone, che sieno come suoi Luogotenenti sopra la terra e alle quali si debba ubbidire in virtù dell'ordine stabilito da Dio medesimo. L'audace confondere tutto, e non rispetta niente.

D. In fine s'abbandonarono a questi eccessi con tanto maggior furore, quanto, che rigettando per un acciecamento volontario il timore de' giudizj futuri fondato sulla giustizia d'un Dio vendicator del delitto non vollero comprendere, che chi commette tali misfatti si rende degno della morte agli occhi del Supremo Giudice.

Uomo senza Religione riconoscete qui a sangue freddo i frutti di questa maniera di pensare, che voi gratificate col nome di ~~saviezza~~ sapienza, e di cui siete così geloso. Ricercate in voi stesso, se voi conoscete un Uomo perfettamente convinto de' principj, che voi vi studiate di persuadere a voi stesso, vorreste voi di pienamente in costui confidare? Ascoltate ancora uno Scrittore, che non vi deve esser sospetto; quest'è l'Autore del Dizionario Filosofico (art. Athée) „ Io non vorrei, egli dice, aver a fare con un'Ateo, che trovasse il suo vantaggio........ „ . . . .

O Deista voi avete potuto riconoscere nella testimonianza dell'Appostolo, ch'io v'ho citata il quadro fedele de' frutti, che produsse altre volte questa sapienza, che rigetta la Providenza particolare, e la vita futura. Voi siete al caso di vedere, se il rinovamento di questa pretesa sapienza non tende anche al giorno d'oggi a produrre i medesimi frutti. Degnatevi di gettare un colpo d'occhio sugli insegnamenti d'una Dottrina, che voi chiamate follia; io la ~~trovo~~ ricevo il dal medesimo Appostolo; guardate, conoscete, giudicate.

La Misericordia gratuita di Dio nostro Salvatore (ad Tit. Cap. 2.) si è manifestata a tutti gli Uomini, e c'insegna, che avendo rinunziato all'empietà, ed alle passioni mondane noi viviamo nel secolo presente con temperanza, con giustizia, e con pietà nell'aspettazione dell'eterna nostra felicità.

A questo camminate degnamente nella vocazione a cui siete stati chiamati, come formando un sol corpo, i cui membri hanno diverse funzioni, e tutti particolarmente s'ajutano.

Odiate il male (Ad Rom. 12. 13.) attaccatevi al bene. Amatevi come fratelli, prevenitevi a vicenda coll'onorarvi l'un l'altro.

Adempite i vostri doveri con zelo, prontezza, e fervore, come servi di Dio.

La speranza sostenga la vostra gioja, questa gioja sostenga la vostra pazienza ne' mali, e la vostra perseveranza nell'orazione.

Soccorrete i vostri fratelli ne' loro bisogni, godete d'esercitare l'ospitalità.

Benedite quelli, che vi perseguitano, benediteli, e guardatevi dall'augurar loro del male.

Godete con chi gode, piangete con chi piange, non rendete male per male. Abbiate cura di far del bene non solamente avanti Dio, ma anche avanti gli Uomini.

Quanto per voi si può vivete in pace con tutti.

Non vi vendicate; lasciate a Dio la vendetta. S'il vostro nemico ha fame, dategli da mangiare; se ha sete, dategli da bere.

Non vi lasciate vincer dal male, ma procurate a vincer il male col bene.

Ognuno sia sottomesso alle potenze superiori; perchè non ve n'ha alcuna, che non venga da Dio, ed egli ha stabiliti quelli, che sono sopra la terra. Così chi resiste alla Podestà resiste all'ordine di Dio. Siate dunq. sottomessi non solo per il timor del gastigo, ma anche per dover di coscienza.

Rendete a tutti ciò, che loro è dovuto; il tributo a chi dovete il tributo, l'imposta a chi dovete l'imposta, il timore a chi dovete il timore, l'onore a chi dovete l'onore. Non restate debitori di niente a nessuno, se non se dell'amore, che voi dovete gli uni agli altri.

Vi avverto di non tener più una condotta simile a quella de' Gentili, che si lasciano guidare dalla vanità de' lor pensamenti, il cui intelletto è oscurato dalle tenebre dell'errore, la cui vita è totalmente lontana dalla via di Dio, che non isperando nien-te dopo la vita presente s'abbandonano ai più infami piaceri, ed avarizia

Rinunziate alla bugia; non vogliate cercar d'ingannarvi l'un l'altro nel commercio della vita; ognun parli al suo Prossimo il linguaggio della verità perchè noi siam tutti membri del medesimo Corpo.

Guardate, che la collera non vi faccia peccare: che il sole non tramonti prima, che abbiate deposto la collera

Chi rubbava più non rubbi; ma colle sue mani attenda a qualche lavoro buono, ed onesto per aver il come ajutar chi abbisogna.

Nè una parola cattiva sorta dalla vostra bocca, non ne sortano, che di buone, e di edificanti, portar al bene chi vi ascolta.

Ogni amarezza, ogni trasporto, ogni indegnazione, ogni clamore, ogni bestemmia, ogni empietà sia bandita da voi.

L'impudicizia sia nemmeno tra voi nominata, così ne l'avarizia, non si sentano licenziosi trattati, nè liberi scherzi, nè altre impertinenze

Conducetevi come figliuoli della luce, e sappiate, che il frutto della luce consiste in tutta bontà in tutta giustizia, in tutta verità.

Portatevi con circospezione, e non come imprudenti, ma come uomini saggi, e riscattate il tempo.

Non siate indiscreti; guardatevi dall'eccesso del vino, che è una sorgente di dissolutezze

Siate sempre in gioja nel Signore, io lo ripeto siate sempre in gioja, e la vostra modestia sia nota a tutti gli uomini.

Non v'inquietate voi, ma in ogni avvenimento presentate a Dio le vostre preghiere accompagnate da' rendimenti di grazie.

Tutto ciò, ch'è vero, tutto ciò, ch'è onesto, tutto ciò, ch'è dolce, ed amabile tutto ciò ch'è edificante, tutto ciò, ch'è lodevole in una condotta ben regolata, ben disciplinata sia l'oggetto de' vostri pensieri.

Rivestitevi, come eletti di Dio, santi, e ben amati di viscere di misericordia, di bontà, di umiltà, di dolcezza, di pazienza, sopportandovi l'un l'altro, rimettendo ognuno al suo fratello ogni soggetto di lamentanza che potesse avere contro di lui, e voi perdonandovi come il Signore ha a voi perdonato.

Mogli siate sottomesse a' vostri mariti, come conviene, davanti a Dio.

Mariti amate le vostre mogli, e siate dolci con loro.

Figliuoli ubbidite ai vostri Genitori. Perchè questo piace al Signore.

Padri non irritate mal a proposito i vostri figliuoli per non toglier loro il coraggio.

Servi ubbidite a' vostri Padroni, non servendo soltanto a vista, come se non aveste a piacere, che agli uomini, ma con semplicità di cuore, e col timor di Dio. Fate di buon cuore quel che fate come servendo a Dio, e non agli uomini.

Padroni siate giusti, ed equi co' vostri servidori, ricordandovi, che avete com'essi voi pure un Padrone nel Cielo.

Si facciano suppliche, preghiere, e rendimenti di grazie per tutti gli uomini, per il Re, e per tutti quelli, che sono innalzati a qualche dignità, affinchè noi conduciamo una vita pacevole, e tranquilla con ogni pietà, e con ogni onestà.

Non riprendete con asprezza un uomo avvanzato in età, ma avvertitelo, come se fosse vostro Padre, i Giovani come vostri fratelli, le Donne attempate come vostre Madri, le Giovani come vostre sorelle, e con ogni purità.

Insegnate ai Vecchj ad esser sobrii, onesti, prudenti, a conservarsi puri nella fede nella Carità, e nella Pazienza.

Insegnate alle Donne avanzate in età a mostrare nel loro esteriore una santa modestia, a non essere nè maldicenti, nè soggette al vino, a dar buone istruzioni, affinchè ispirino saggezza alle giovani a condursi saviamente, ad amare i loro Mariti e i loro figli, ad essere ben regolate, pure, attente alle loro faccende, acciocchè non si bestemmi la parola di Dio.

Σ

Esortate similmente i Giovani ad esser ben regolati.

Se taluno non ha cura de' suoi, e particolarmente de' domestici, costui è come se avesse rinegata la fede, ed è peggior d'un infedele.

L'aver la pietà, e ciò, che basta per vivere è già un gran tesoro. Avendo dunque di che nutrirci, e di che vestirci siamne contenti.

L'amor del denaro è la radice di tutti i mali, e ~~chi si è lasciato~~ qualunque, lasciandosi da lui possedere ha mancato circa la fede, ed ha avuto il tormento in se stesso per un'infinità d'interminazioni.

Prescrivete ai ricchi di non alzarsi troppo ne' loro pensieri, e di non mettere la lor confidenza nelle ricchezze incerte; ma in Dio vivente, che provede abbondantemente a' nostri bisogni. Prescrivete loro di esser benefici, e di rendersi ricchi in buone opere, di dar volentieri della loro abbondanza, e di far parte de' loro beni a chi ne abbisogna; di farsi così un tesoro, e un fondamento solido per la vita eterna.

Ora avreste voi potuto leggere una morale sì pura, e sì penetrante senza commovervi? Vi avete voi scoperto il minimo indizio d'errore, e d'illusione? Il vostro cuore non vi riconosce egli forse il linguaggio della verità, del candore, dell'amicizia? Sarebbe forse in vostro potere il negare la vostra stima, e la vostra approvazione ad un Uomo, che voi conosceste intieramente penetrato da queste massime? Non vi stimereste voi fortunato d'aver de' fratelli, de' figliuoli, de' Padroni, de' Servi, degli Amici e de' Confidenti animati da questo spirito?

Non vi augurereste voi di esserlo voi stesso, e non vi sarebb'ella cosa gratissima il ritrovare in voi una virtù così pura? Etc.

[illegible]

1. [illegible] si vis contritionem habere, pones te coram crucifixo genibus flexis, et devote dic Jesus, faciendo signum crucis iuxta cor, et molietur ad poenitentiam, et monumentum aperietur scilicet os per confessionem [illegible] B. Vinc. n. 548. B. Henr. n. 349

[illegible] S. Spiritus resuscitabitur ad [illegible] in gratia. S. Vincentius in Ser. de convers. S. Pauli.

2. Quando anima intrat Paradisum, Deus ostendit sibi unum librum, in quo solum sunt duae chartae, et subito anima est ita illuminata, quod scit plus, quam sciverunt in hoc mundo Philosophi et [illegible]tores: iste est liber vitae: S. Jesus habens duas chartas [illegible] divinitatem et humanitatem. laboremus ergo, ut in scolam Paradisi possimus intrare, ubi sola visione illius libri [illegible] optimi Magistri. S. Vin. ser. in Dom. 4. post Oct. Paschae. B. Vinc. n. 3. B. Henr. n. [illegible]

3. Sicut Parentes naturales diligunt omnes filios, sed singulariter dilig[illegible] [illegible] magis similem, [illegible]tiorem, et pulchriorem: Ita Christus diligebat omnes, sed singulariter Joannem sibi similem in [illegible] virginitatis. S. Vin. in [illegible] Joann. B. Vinc. 621. B. Henr. [illegible]

4. Christus venit in hunc mundum, ut aperiret tres portas Paradisi. 1a est de poenitentia, per quam possunt intrare peccatores [illegible] [illegible] ideo virginitas. Nativitate Xpi [illegible] porta est obedientiae [illegible] Joannes [illegible] fuit obediens non solum ad praecepta, sed etiam ad consilia Evangelica, ideo invenitur Nativitati Xri [illegible] loco. 3a porta est in [illegible] [illegible] ideo [illegible] Nativitati Xri. S. Vin. in ser. de Innoc. B. [illegible] B. [illegible]

5. Passus euntis ad Paradisum sunt ueritates fidei, et bona opera: si orasti hodie, iam fecisti unum passum, alium, si dedisti eleemosinam, alium si audisti missam. Dec David: Ibunt de uirtute in uirtutem, uidebitur Deus Deorum in Sion. Sam. Vin. in Ser. q. post oct. Pasch.

6. [illegible] exemplo Regum deferimus [illegible] aurum bone [illegible] [illegible] Deo [illegible] orationis, tertio debemus offerre [illegible] myrrham penitentialis afflictionis. Et dicere, roborit talis: [illegible] canis me, [illegible] pace amarissimo mea. [illegible] autem [illegible] animam meam ut non periret. [illegible] Vin. in Ser. i. Epiph.

7. Pro omnibus [illegible] quantumcunque, potes abnegare teipsum iuxta Saluatoris preceptum: Qui uult uenire post me, abneget semetipsum. Hoc sic intellige, ut tuam uoluntatem in omnibus mortifices, et conculces, et in omnibus ei contradicas, benigne amplectendo aliorum uoluntatem, si tamen licita sit, et [illegible] Vin. de uita spir. cap. 3.

8. Ad hoc sit totum studium tuum, ut teipsum in pace et tranquillitate cordis possideas, et pro quocunque euentu non doleas nisi de [illegible] proprio peccato uel alieno, seu etiam de his quae te inducerent ad peccatum S. Vin. de uita sp. c. 3.

9. Quando persona omnia opera sua ordinat taliter, ut ad celum possit peruenire tanquam ad finem: talis persona concordat, et conformat suam intentionem cum Deo, et multum placet Deo: sicut multum placet Principi, qui populus concordat cum eo [illegible] recepturus a populo S. Vin. in Ser. [illegible]

B. [illegible]

B. Henr. n. 79.

B. Vrb. n. 113.
B. Henr. n. [illegible]

B. Vrb. 100.
B. Henr. n. 103

B. Vrb. 525
B. Henr. n. [illegible]

[illegible]

10. Sicut esse hōis in duob[us] consistit .s. in cor- B. Vrb. 1 [illegible] pore et in aia; quia caro sine aia non B. Henr. 20[illegible] est hō: Ita deuotio consistit in ardore spiritus, ut lete fiant que sunt Dei, ut orationes, et huiusmi; sed aliud req[ui]ritur, ut .s. fiat opere corporali cum ge-nuflexione, uel gestu corpori[s] humili.
Si alterū istorū deficit, non est [de]uotio.
S. Vin. in ser. [illegible]

11. Si cū Deo consistit Paradisus, et Ap[o]- stolis amicis Dei: quid faciemus nos? A. Vrb. [illegible] quo precio ememus? simus penite[n]- A. Henr. 209.
tes, ut ad suā perueniamus societatē.
S. Vin. in ser. de S. Thoma Apost.

12. Hoc tibi ipsi persuadeas, quod non est ribaldus uel quicunq[ue] peccator, qui B. Vrb. 25[illegible] non magis assisteret Deo suo, quā tu, B. Henr. 2[illegible] et qui non magis recognosceret Dei beneficia, q[uam] tu, si recepisset gr[ati]as, quas tu sola Dei gratuita bonitate, et non proprijs meritis recepisti: propter quod sine fallacia potes teipsū uiliorē et inferiorē oī homine iudicare, et merito formidare, ne propter ingratitudinē tuā a [illegible] Xtus [illegible].
S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 3.

13. Dñe Deus uirtutū conuerte nos, et [osten]- B. Vrb. 471.
Psal. 79. de faciem tuam et salui erimus. Nota B. Henr. [illegible]5 conuerte nos .s. ad bonā uitam: quia alias melius esset anime in iudicio ui-dere centum millia demonū quam faciem Christi irati. S. Vin. in ser. de Vig. Nat.

14. [illegible] est bona uita uel penitentia [illegible] [illegible] mala [illegible] inferiore [illegible] auaritie et luxurie est [illegible] nos man-te[llo] penitentie, et nullū peccatū apparebit in confessionem uestri. Deo dicente: Bea-ti [illegible] iniquitates, et quorū tecta sunt peccata. S. Vin. in ser. S.
[illegible]

[illegible]

15 Via obedientiæ est via regia, quæ homi- [illegible] 158.
nes infallenter recte ducit ad summi- [illegible] 317.
tatem scalæ, cui Dominus apparet innixus. Hanc viam tenuere omnes SS. Patres in eremo; et breviter om-nes, qui ad perfectionem attigerunt, per hanc semitam processerunt. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 4

16. Bursa avari habet tres nodos, et quan- B. [illegible] 152.
do aliquis petit ab eo debitum, non sta- B. [illegible] tim solvit, sed disputat, dicens: Et quare sum [illegible] obligatus, et similia. [illegible] debet fieri antequam loquatur; ideo lingua habet tres clausuras, quasi tres muros, secus de aliis sensibus, qui omnes sunt aperti oculi, nares, manus; sed lingua vel lingua non habet tres custodes. S. Vin. in ser. 9. de Trin.

17 Qui vult curari a vulnere sagittæ, B. Vrb. n.º 24 oportet expellere sagittam deinde apponere B. Henr. 9.
re tyriacam contra venenum quod remanet [illegible]. Ita fecit B. Antonius, qui expellebat sagittas, i. tentationes, statim [illegible] cogitationes [illegible] nem [illegible], vel regni [illegible] et similia: [illegible] contra venenum sagittæ [illegible]
bat tyriacam abstinentiæ [illegible] con-[illegible]. S. Vin. in ser. S. Antonii Abb.

18 [illegible] filius Dei, ut det tibi divitias B. Vrb. 4 25.
temporales, honores et dignitates; [illegible] B. Henr. n.º 30.
[illegible] abeam, quam Creatorem: sed si diligis Deum propter infinitam suam bonitatem [illegible], et [illegible], ita quod tota ratio dilectionis sit in eo, talis amor est bonus, et est amor benevolentiæ. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible]

[illegible] clerici [illegible] equi-tant equum sine freno [illegible] [illegible]untur in lectum luxuriæ [illegible] amor de [illegible] et timor de damnatione. De pede [illegible] aquibus sit piger ad [illegible], orandum et

[illegible]

[illegible]

IANVARIVS.

percutiebat calcari de pede dextro, dicendo: corpus labora modo, quia resurges impassibile, clarum; si autem tu non te vult movere, percutiebat cum illo de pede sinistro, dicendo, si non vis ieiunare, in infernum nunquam comedes. S. Vin. in ser. S. Ioan.

20. Ille, qui facit pulchrum viridarium, quaerit arbores bonas et fructiferas, et plantat in suo viridario. Eundem modum tenuit Xpus, qui fecit unum viridarium, s. Sanctam Eccl.am ubi vult habere personas virtutibus fructificantes, ideo de nemore huius mundi elegit B. Sebastianum, ut arborem fructiferam, et plantavit in viridario suo. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Sebast.

21. Hoc festum B. Agnetis positum est inter duos martyres s. B. Sebastianum et B. Vincentium: quia optime convenit una rosa alba, s. virginalem puritatem inter duas rubeas, s. martyrii acerbitatem. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Agnete.

22. B. Vincentius non solum occupabat se in libris temporalibus Philosophorum, sed et in libro spiritualis amoris et devotionis. [illegible] sicut aqua descendit de alto fonte ad hortum: ita sapientia descendit ab illo fonte, de quo [illegible] fons sapientiae verbum [illegible] Deo [illegible], quod descendat ad hortum cordis vel intellectus, per canale orationis et devotionis, iuxta consilium B. Iacobi Ap. Qui indiget sapientia, postulet a Deo, qui dat omnibus affluenter. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Vincentio.

23. Si cogites innocentiam et perfectionem, quam debes habere sub mandatum Dei, s. quod tenearis esse sine omni vitio, et sine omni culpa, et in plenitudine virtutis totiens sicut est, quod debeas amare Deum ex toto corde tuo, et ex omni mente tua, et ex totis viribus tuis, videbis manifeste infirmitatem tuam et distantiam, in qua es a [illegible] innocentia et perfectione. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. [illegible]

24 Sicut in ... prosperitatis est misericordia, ita in ... adversitatis est patientia: ... [illegible] ... adversitatem infirmitatis vel paupertatis, vel persecutionis recipiatis ... patientie; quia talis omne cibum dulcorat. S. Vin. [illegible]

25. Benedicta est adversitas, seu tribulatio ... [illegible] ... seu persecutiones, que ... [illegible] ... modus ostenditur in Paulo ... ibat ... diuinus toto pectore ... et cadens in terra ... persecutore factus est vas electionis, dicens ... [illegible]

26. Nunquid aliquis in hoc mundo, quantumcumque dives, habuit quidquid voluit? profecto non. Et in Paradiso quilibet habet quidquid vult, et desiderat, et sunt immortales et impassibiles: de his bonis ergo homo debet se inflammare, et ... bonis huius mundi. S. Vin. inter. 4. in 3. ... post oct. Pasche.

27. Dum anima ... contemplationis oculus dilatatur, et in se scalam erigit, per quam transeat ad contemplandum ... et divinum: et ex tali contemplatione ... exardescit ad bona celestia, et omnia temporalia a longe conspicit tanquam nihil. Et hoc illa perfecta charitas incipit in mente ... que velut ignis ... interioris hominis. ... de vita sp. cap 3.

28 ... in bona vita incepta, ... timore verborum detrahentium, nec ... [illegible] ... dicit Apostolus: Itaque fratres mei dilecti stabiles estote, et immobiles, ... [illegible]
... [illegible] ... S. Vin. ...

S. ... 249.
S. item 100.

S. ...
S. item 216.

S. ... 17
S. item ... 2

S. ... 5.
S. item ... 7

S. ... 6.
S. item 18

IANUARII

29. Hoc [illegible] habeas pro quacumque re temporali, si quam corporalibus necessitatibus deservitur, numquam sequaris voluntatem propriam, ubi aliam contradicere videas, quantumcumque exorbitet a iudicio ratio[illegible]. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3. B. Umb. n. [illegible] B. Henr. n. 20[illegible]

30. Tempus est pretiosum bonum, in tantum quod si unus damnatus posset habere tantum tempus, quantum durat unum Ave Maria, ita ut esset viator, posset salvari. S. Vin. in ser. de [illegible] B. Umb. 40 B. Henr. 76

31. Non timenda est vanagloria quando iam vera gloria, et animarum zelus eius praecordia totaliter occupant. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 7 B. Henr. n. 295

FEBRUARII

1. Prepara te ipsum ad quaecumque aspera, ad quaecumque opprobria, ad quaecumque [illegible] sufferenda. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3. B. Umb. n. 578 B. [illegible] n. 350

2. Sicut Dei filius non propter se ipsum factus est homo; sed ut nos [illegible] gratiam faceret [illegible] et ut spiritualiter circumcidamur, [illegible] propter nos subiitur Dno, ut discamus, ~~[illegible]~~ praesentare nos [illegible], et hoc post circumcisionem eius factum est ut ostendat neminem nisi circumcisum vitiis dignum esse [illegible] conspectu [illegible] in ser. Purif. B. Mar. B. Umbertus n. 147. B. Henr. n. ~~[illegible]~~ 181

3. Licet B. Blasius esset plenus virtutibus; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] occultus [illegible] pernoctabat in orando et contemplando, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et porta[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] honeste indutus [illegible] [illegible]bat ieiunabat, et quantum poterat ex humilitate ~~abscondebat sanctitatem~~: sed Deus exaltavit eum. Humiliamini [illegible] [illegible] Dei ut vos exaltet in ~~[illegible]~~ tempore visitationis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Blas. B. Umb. 36[illegible] B. [illegible] 276

FEBRUARIUS

4 Qui nec quaerunt bonam vitam, portat exilium salvationis, dando bonum exemplum aliis; sic et illi, qui incipiunt malam vitam vel vanitate in indumentis vel ornamentis, portat exilium damnationis. Vin. in ser. de S. Antonio Abb. | B. Vinc. 5...

5 B. [illegible] Christo in con[illegible] quia recte ut Christus fuit conversatus, ita voluit etiam B. Agatha conversari. sicut pictor vel mulieres [illegible] de [illegible] imaginem [illegible] B. Agatha [illegible] imaginem S. vita Christi [illegible] suam vitam [illegible] bonis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Agatha.

6. O qualiter deberemus esse advocati Iesu Christi, et zelotypi de suo honore. Quemadmodum advocatus alicuius baronis pro modico salario [illegible] in omni loco defendit eum et suam [illegible] Christo, qui promittit regnum Paradisi nullus est advocatus, et nul[illegible] de suo honore. S. Vin. ser. 8. in dom. infra oct. ascens.

7 Quando creatura [illegible] consum[illegible] sermone [illegible] do, devote orando, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] gloriam Paradisi [illegible] in ser. de. S. [illegible] | Vin. n.° 58; B. Vinc. 540; B. [illegible] 67

8 [illegible] linguam [illegible] et lingua qui [illegible] loqui [illegible] omnino [illegible] loquatur nisi [illegible]

intercorabur Deo de[illegible] necessaria et [illegible]

[illegible]

9. Virtutes sunt vestes animę, et ideo Philos. in ethi. virtutes vocat habitus. Et sicut Religiosus sine habitu dicitur apostata: ita anima sine [illegible] in Dom. in[illegible] Oct. [illegible]

10. Qui vult intrare bellū, non solum armatur armis invasivis, sed etiam armis defensivis: ita de nobis, qui in hoc mundo sumus in campo melis, idem [illegible] oportet armari de armis invasivis et defensivis. diligentia in bonis, et reluctantia in malis, faciunt hominē electē armatum. S. Vin. in ser. 9. dom. Trin.

11. Dum aia omnia audita, visa, et temporali operata a se repellit et in [illegible] sam redire, et modo mirabili in se [illegible] concalescit, et sic ad originalem iustitiam; et celestem [illegible] pinquare incipit. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 7

12. Quemadmodū [illegible] et [illegible] cum magnis periculis pro modico lucro. Sta[illegible] apostoli, et Pred[illegible] Apostolici [illegible] rant p mundū, ut Christū lucrifacerent. O quod lucrū portabant in [illegible]

13. Si volumus coronā glorię obtinere, oportet hic nos sagittari et iustificari. [illegible] que se nolunt vivere in Christo. ... persecutionem patientur. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Sebast.

[illegible]

14\. Si attendas altitudinem et perfectionem vitae sanctorum Patrum, et eorum multas et ... virtutes, cognosces imperfectionem et infirmitatem vitae tuae et tuorum operum. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 14. — B. Vab. 364. B. Henr. 16.

15\. Sicut nullus cibus est sapidus sine sale: sic nullum opus est meritorium, nisi sal misceatur s. nomen Dni ... Dicit ... ... honorem Dei, ut habeatur meritum. Vade ... quaecunque facitis ... in ... nomine Dni Jesu Christi facite. S. Vin. ser. ... de aqua benedic. — B. Vab. 251. B. Henr. 75.

16\. Si aliquis intraret ad Papam pro aliquo beneficio obtinendo, et Papa de hoc faceret ei bullam optime scriptam, sed illa ... de sigillo, nihil obtineret; quando vellet intrare possessionem ... non adhiberetur ei fides: Ita ... Deus promisit magnam dignitatem in eccl... Qui fecerit et docuerit hic magnus vocabitur ... de isto beneficio ... bullam ... sed si ibi non est sigillum bonae vitae, non datur fides ... non penetrant corda ... ut emendentur. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Vinc. mar. — S. Vin. n°. 66. B. Vab. n°. 1. B. Hen. 148.

17\. Illa quae transit per ... et modo cadit in ... indicatur. Ita de pec... ... transeunte per ... modo cadit in lutum ... modo inter spinas pungentes ... modo inter ... lapides ... et maliter ... talis indicas — ... B. Vab. 610. B. Henr. 150.

cæcos: Ambulabunt ut cæci; quia Dño peccaverunt. Soph. 1. sic necessaria est lux divina illustrans mentem peccatoris. S. Vin. in ser. de convers. S. Pauli Apost.

18. P.° Angelus tetigit Heliam s. peccatorem p compunctioné; non.n. expectat infirmitatem. 2° comedit Helias, idest peccator edere debet p Eucharistiæ communionem, quia sicut cibus corporalis confortat ad ambulandú in hac vita, ita cibus spiritualis, 3° ambulavit p satisfactioné, et malæ societatis vitationé. Et in his tribus principaliter consistit pœnitentia. S. Vin. in [illegible] — S. Vin. 1[illegible] / B. Vrb. [illegible] / B. Venv. 26[illegible]

19. Quid respondebis Christo dicenti: quid fecisti pro me? ostendens vulnera, et dicens: [illegible] ego feci pro te, cognoscis ista vulnera. [illegible] quid tu [illegible] pro me? Quid dices tu, qui modo stas et vivis in peccatis, et nihil boni facis? quomodo evades inferni pœnas. S. Vin. in ser. de convers. S. Pauli Apost. — B. Vrb. [illegible] / B. Venv. [illegible]

20. Nihil valet opus virtuosum mala intentione factú, et multa et magna opera virtuosa pduntur ex mala intentione. Ideo dicit Apost. sive ergo manducatis, sive bibitis, sive aliud quid facitis oia in gloriam Dei facite. [illegible] in ser. [illegible] B. [illegible] — [illegible] / B. Venv. 2[illegible]

21. Palea significat superbos, quia plures sunt eorú, q humiliú. secundo etiam quia palea est vana, et levis, et semper eminet; granú veró parvú, et semper subijcitur: sic humiles. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Alex. — B. Vrb. 40[illegible] / B. Venv. 37[illegible]

22. Quando aliquis incipit boná vitam caveat, ne [illegible] familiaritate, [illegible] quæ [illegible] vadunt directé ad Paradisum p viam bonæ vitæ; sed post modicum [illegible] et [illegible] peccando moriatur. Ideo dicit Scriptura In via — B. Vrb. [illegible] rime .i. periculosa in occasione peccadi non eas nec offendas in lapides, nec credas te nimis laboriosum, ne ponas aliis tibi scandalum. S. Vin. in ser. de innoc. S Crucis

23. Attendas quot despectus et vituperia, ege- | B. Vmb states et dolores, et passioné tam amará, | B. Hem. 1041 quam sustinuit Filius Dei propter amorem tui, et hoc ut ames, et ho nores ~~illum~~ eum, et cognoscas, quod patienter, quod fecisti ad Deum aman-dum, et honorandum sicut quod facere deberes. S. Vin. in vita Sti. cap. 5.

24. Bos non portat onus, sed trahit ara- | B. Vmb
trum, colendo terrá: Ita ꝑsone de vi- | B. Hem. 104 ta Apostolica non debent portare onus proprietatis, sed trahere aratrum penitentię colendo terram corporis proprij. S. Vin. in ser. de corona Dni

25. Sancti et amici Dei cum quanta | B. Vmb 45
penitentia habuerunt Paradisum, | B. Heir. 999.
et nos credimus illum hře sine ꝑpi-tentia. Sed mentita est iniquitas sibi.
Ideo oportet nos facere penitentiam in corde ꝑ contritioné, in ore ꝑ con-fessionem, et in corpore ꝑ afflic tionem. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Blas.

26. Imaginatio hominis tam dormiendo | B. Vmb. 48
q vigilando apta est diabolo, in qua potest ponere plures malarú cogi tationú sive tentationú: sed nisi velitis eas retinere delectabiliter cogitando, nec consentire, ... si statim expellitis dicendo Jesus, Jesus ... dico dicit Scriptura Omni custodia serva cor tuum; quia ex ipso vita pro cedit. S. Vin. ser. de S. ...

27. Bonum sapientię est bené incipere, et | B. Vn melius continuare, sed optimé ꝑficere.
... religiosi, quot clerici, quot ...
... laic.

[illegible]

[illegible] laici incipiunt bene, sed antequam sint ad portam Paradisi, redeunt retro per peccata; ideo oportet perficere, et omnia complere. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Tho.

28. Non potest aliqua vanitas subintrare, ubi charitas totum occupavit. Numquid iam respectum habebit amplius ad aliquod commodum temporale, qui omnia reputat velut stercus. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3.

MARTIUS.

1 Macula gulae destruit corpus et animam, destruit vitam, anhelitum corrumpit, tollit fortitudinem; quia vinum pertubit nervos, aufert intellectum, inducit podagram morbum caducum, et alias infirmitates. Ideo Christus: Attendite, ne forte gravent[ur] corda vestra in crapula, et ebrietate. bestiae recipiunt necessitatem cibi et [illegible] necessitatem. S. Vin. in ser. de [illegible]

2. Nullo modo bibas extra comestionis horam nisi in sero, quando ieiunas, et tunc valde temperate, vel nisi propter laborem itineris, vel quacumque alia lassitudine. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 5.

3. Inter alias res quae quis potest habere sufficientiam et abundantiam bonorum tam spiritualium quam et temporalium, est timor Dei. Quando creatura in corde suo timorose proponit non facere aliquid contra Deum, nec corde cogitando, nec ore loquendo nec opere perficiendo, dicens, Deus custodiat me, ne faciam aliquid contra eius voluntatem. Timete Dominum omnes sancti eius i. Christiani, qui in baptismo sanctificantur: quoniam non est inopia timentibus eum. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Marco.

4. Illis qui nimis curat de corpore, accidit ut illo, qui nimis curat de suo equo, qui proiicit eum in lutum [illegible] corpus

sub freno

Martii

sub freno temperantiæ, et uincetis in pace. et hoc cum eo merebitur h.ō corona in cælo. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Petro M.

5. Sicut in figura circulari finis unitur principio: ita persona religiosa quicquid facit, facit ad laudem Dei, et non ad uanam gloriam seu lucrū, uel propter honores seu dignitates mundanas acquirendas: secus de multis, qui habent scientiam, sed non diuinā; quia finis eorū non unitur principio s. Deo. S. Vin. in ser. de corona Dñi — B. Vmb. 313. B. Henr. 264.

6. Oportet primitus, ut oīa terrena contemnat, et uelut stercora reputet, et solum districtissimé de ipsis recipiat: quam necessitatem in pauco colligat; sufferendo etiam quædam incommoda propter paupertatis amorē. S. Vin. de uita sp. — B. [illegible] B. [illegible]

7. S. Thomas, ut posset legere, dictare, disputare, et prædicare, uitabat colloquia hominū: sed Deus [illegible] mittebat sibi, cum quibus loqueretur uel sanctos de Paradiso, ut Angelos, uel animas de purgatorio, ut ea[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et sic consolabatur. Qui n. dimittit pro Deo consolationes mundanas, Deus dat sibi consolationes cælestes. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Thoma Aq. — B. [illegible] 28. B. Henr. 31.

8. Dum hō in tantam retulit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nihilitatem considerando, sibi ipsi intentissimé displicendo, et hæc et similia cogitando, et talem se uerē existimando in tantum circa [illegible] negotia occupatur, quod oīs alia inutilis cogitatio recedit. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 13. — B. [illegible] B. Henr. 218.

9. Sicut ille, qui uult ire ad dexterā, si recipit sinistram, mentitur: sic multi uolunt ire ad Paradisum uerbo, sed facto [illegible] [illegible] uiam inferni s. superbiæ et uanitatis. S. Vin. ser. 4. de. [illegible] — [illegible] B. [illegible]

10. Quot ~~sunt~~ Religiosi miseri, clerici, et alij sunt, qui vellent incipere bonã vitam; sed dicunt: O videre, quid faciam, quia dicent, quod sum hypocrita. Ideo necessaria est prudentia, s. non curare, quid dicunt malę gentes, sed quid vult deus, et quod tenemini facere. S. Vin. ser. 6. in dom. infra oct. Ascens. — B. Vinc. 526 / B. Hem. 194

11. Qx quis portat onus fortiter, dr: virtute habet, iste fortis est; secus si cum onere cadit: Ita quilibet nostrũ portat magnum onus carnis: Corpus, quod corrumpitur, agravat aĩam. Qui ergo pmittit se cadere onere malarũ inclinationũ carnis, non est virtuosus nec fortis; sed ille, qui tenet se fortiter, est virtuosus. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Barnaba ap. — B. Vinc. / B. Hem. 14

12. B. Gregorius, postq̃ in vita activa servivit Christo, dedit se vitę contemplativę. Et iste est ordo; quia de vita activa homo debet venire ad vitam contemplativã. Et ita fecit S. Gregorius, quia in uno illorũ septem monasteriorũ recepit habitum, in quo dedit se contemplationi, separando se á negotiis huius mundi, et ab amicis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Greg. — B. Vinc. / B. Hem.

13. Nihil tm̃ ~~non~~ movet cor creaturę ad devotionem, et peccatorũ contritioné quantũ memoria passionis Christi: nec aliquid est, quod tm̃ inflammat cor ad eius amoré, et dilectionem. S. Vin. in ser. de Corp. Xpi. — B. Vinc. / B. Hem. 14

14. Angeli Dei dixerunt S. Thomę: Ex parte Dei te cingimus cingulo castitatis, quod nullatenus de cętero dissolvetur. Licet esset verbus de sua castitate et virginitate, ad hoc — B. Vinc. 489. / B. Hem. 55

tamen

ramen noluit loqui secretè cum mulie= ribus. O quod exemplū dat nobis, qui sumus incerti de fortitudine, ut ca= veamus á familiaritatibus mulie=
rum. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Thoma Aq.

15. Patet, qualiter mundus debet esse sacerdos, qui tenet in manibus iudicem, et circumdatur Angelis. Si est bonus, dicunt Angeli: O benedicte maiorem gratiam habes, quam nos: si sit malus, dicunt Angeli Christo: Permitte nobis, ut occidamus istum proditorem. Respondet Christus: nolo mortem peccatoris, sed ut magis convertatur et vivat. S. Vin. ser. i. in festo corp. Xpi.

16. Exercitatio corporalis fit per ieiunia, vigilias, cilicia, sed respectu operum pietatis ad modicum utilis est: quia solum sibi prodest, gubernando corpus: sed opera pietatis et quibus dantur, habet promissionem vitæ, quæ nunc est et futuræ. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Martha.

17. Sicut ferrum induitur igne, recipit mollitiem contra conditionem suæ duritiei: sic et nos induendo Christum, debemus acquirere mollitiem contra implacabilitatem impatientiæ. S. Vin. in ser. 7. i. Dom. Adven.

18. Sicut gladius materialis scindendo, dividit membrum a corpore: ita gladius excommunicationis dividit hominē, qui est membrum mysticum [illegible] a corpore Ecclesiæ, intantum quod si mihi daretur optio quid [illegible] potius [illegible] [illegible] in excommunicatione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quā esse excommunicatum per medium horam. S. Vin. in ser. Dñ inuent. S. Crucis.

19. Si Maria et Ioseph, et SS. Patres ita ardenter desiderabant videre in hoc mundo puerum parvum passibilem, et mortalem: cum

quanto

B. ... 184

B. ... 420.
B. ... 411.

B. ...

B. ...

B. Amb...
B. ... 413

quanto desiderio nos debemus ipsum desiderare, ut eum possimus uidere in gloria magnum, impassibilem, et immortalem. S. Vin. in ser. de uig. Natiu.

20. Ioachim et Anna steterunt uiginti annis orantes, eleemosynas dantes, ieiunantes, et uouentes, et cum toto hoc non obtinuerunt prolem: et quia in uerecundia a sacerdote sibi facta habuit Ioachim patientiam, statim habuit promissionem de prole, ex quo sequitur, quod melior est patientia, quam orationes eleemosinae ieiunia, uel promissiones coram Deo. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Anna. — B. Vrb. 698. B. Henr. 80.

21. Cum B. Benedictus iuxta morem benedixisset uinum signo crucis, et cyphus frangebatur in quatuor partes: quia ubi fit signum crucis non potest nocere cibus mortis: ita debetis uos facere, quando debetis aliquid comedere, uel bibere, signetis uos etc. — B. Vrb. 66. B. Henr. 57.

22. Signum sapientiae est docere perfecte verbo et exemplo: quia pictor solo uerbo numquam faceret bonum discipulum: Ita Praedicator est pictor depingens uobis imaginem Patriarcharum, qui [illegible] de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de patientia, quando des martyrib. sed si solo uerbo dicat, non faceret bonos discipulos, quia oportet ut opere adimpleat quod aliis [illegible] praedicat. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Thoma etc. — B. Vmo 150. B. Henr. 124.

23. Considerare dei misericordiam sine penitentia stultitia est: ideo modo pro tempore redite ad bonam uitam et penitentiam, sic enim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. — B. Vrb. 48. B. Henr. 166.

24. Si cogitas altitudinem remunerationis et gloriae promissae et paratae illis, qui faciunt opera virtutum ad honorem Dei: quae gloria tanto maior erit, quanto opera erunt virtuosiora et maiora, cognosces pro certo tuum meritum esse nihil in comparatione tantae gloriae, et desiderabis facere opera virtuosa plus quam ante feceras. S. Vin. de vita spi. cap. 14. — S. Vi. 6 142. B. Henr. 139.

25. Ante adventum Angeli Virgo cogitabat de illa Virgine, et de tanta gratia, et statim Angelus eam salutavit, dicens: Ave gratia plena, quasi diceret: Tu es illa Virgo plena gratia. 2° cogitabat de tanta eius propinquitate cum Deo, ut esset Mater Dei; ideo Angelus dixit sibi: Dominus tecum. i. in maiori coniunctione, quam cum aliis creaturis. 3° cogitabat de excellentia illius Virginis super alias mulieres; ideo dixit sibi Angelus: Benedicta tu in mulieribus. S. Vin. in ser. de incarnatione. — B. [illegible] B. Iunii n° 15

26. Timor Dni est stimulus pungens conscientiam, ut homo recedat a peccatis, et confiteatur et satisfaciat de hoc Scriptura: Timor Dni expellit peccatum; nam qui sine timore est, non poterit iustificari. S. Vin. in ser. in [illegible] Pater nr. — S. Iul. n° 181 B. Henr. 430

27. Qui in hoc mundo servit prompte, et obedit verbo et mandato Dei, quando finierit servitium i. in morte inde habebit retributionem et beatitudinem pro salario. Ideo Luc. 11. Beati qui audiunt verbum Dei et custodiunt illud. S. Vin. in ser. dni. [illegible] — S. Vinb. 9-24 B. Henr. 41

28. Non est creatura, quae non faciat voluntatem Dei nisi nos miseri homines. Si Deus alicui columbae mandaret sibi dare plumas, incontinenti columba sibi obediret. proh — B. Vinb. 558. B. [illegible] 20

dolor

M A R [illegible] S.

dolor Deus precepit nobis simplicitatem et non accipimus, nec acceptamus, sed contrarium facimus s. superbiam. S.
Vin. ser. Dom. 2a post oct. Pasche.

29. Deus hēt duas curias, in quibus dan-tur sententie: 1a est iustitia, 2a est misericordie, de quibus David: Mise-ricordiam et iudicium cantabo tibi Dne. Quamdiu ergo uiuimus, si dat' sententias contra nos in curia iustitie, possumus confidenter appellare ad curiam misericordie debito mo-do; quia maior est. et obtinebimus reuocatione sententie [illegible]
3. in fer. 2a Rogat.

30. Illud opus queritur s. ingressu religionis, et dicitur quando hō intrat, ut uiuat in requie, non seruando religionē, ista intentio est peruersa.
Nam melius esset religioso, quod esset latro, q religiosus, non seruando que debet. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Petro apost.

31. Quanto una esca est magis pretiosa et excellens, tanto est plus necessarium, quod uoluatur in olla, ne adhereat olle ab intra: sic si aliquis est delicatus in deuotione, excellens in scia, et pretiosus in predicatione, necesse est sibi, quod faciat mutationem sic non adherebit; quia si recipiat familiaritatem alicuius [illegible] spi-ritualis, uel aliquarum personarum, iam perdet deuotionē. S. Vin. ser. de conu. S. Pauli. [illegible]

A P R I L I S.

1. Charitas proprie est amor Dei arden-[illegible] charitatiua [illegible] que dicit, cogitat, et operatur, ornat ad Deū. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Marg.

APRILIS.

2. Religiosus, qui est diligens in servando ordinē et regulam, et tria vota essentialia, et ceremonias in victu et vestitu, et silentio, talis est perfectus. qui autem dimittit predicta, longe est à perfectione. S. Vin. ser. 3. de Trin. — B. Amb. 6[illegible] / B. Henr. 451.

3. Postq̄ hō peccat fit processus et scribitur in libro Dei: Imperfectū meū viderunt oculi tui, et in tuo omnes scribentur. Et sententia est data: Anima, quę peccaverit, ipsa morietur. Vide misericordiam Dei quot anni sunt, quod tu incepisti peccare, processus factus fuit. et sententia data, tn̄ executio suspenditur. S. Vin. in ser. S. Marię Magd. — B. Amb. 09 / B. Henr. 102.

4. devotio nihil aliud est, nisi quędam celestis illustratio in corde hominis, qua cum letitia operatur quę Dei sunt. Deo David dixit: signatū est super nos lumen vultus tui Dne. Istud lumen habuit B. Ambrosius, qui in vita sua habuit magnam devotionem, et cum letitia magna servivit Deo. S. Vin. in ser. de San. Ambrosio. — B. Amb. 280. / B. Henr. 251.

5. Quot peccatores convertit unus predicator, tot coronas acquirit; talis magnum salariū meretur, et fuit dictū in persona Abrahę in persona predicatoris. Noli timere Abraham idest Predicator, ego protector tuus sum, et merces tua magna nimis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Luca. — B. Amb. 559. / B. Henr. [illegible]

6. Sicut aqua exit de fonte, et vadit p mundum multiplicando, et non cessat usq; ad mare: sic hō, quando exit de ventre matris semp currit ad mortem [illegible] morimur et quasi aqua dilabimur in terrā. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible] — [illegible] 665 / B. [illegible] 110.

APRILIS.

7. Multi damnantur ex promissionibus et votis; facientes vota, et non curant complere. Maius peccatum est fractio voti aliquo modo, quam homicidium; quia est infidelitas. Ideo ait sapiens: si quid vovisti Deo, ne moreris reddere; displicet enim ei infidelis et stulta promissio. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Anna.

B. Urb. 30
B. Heur. 29

8. Cor bene preparabis ad intelligentiam lectionis, que legitur in mensa; vel si lectionem non habeas ad meditationem aliquam spiritualem, ut nequaquam totus comedas; sed corpore suam refectionem habente, anima nullatenus defraudetur. S. Vin. de vita sp. c. 5.

B. Urb. [illegible]
B. Heur. 372.

9. Persona existens in bona vita est templum Dei; quia Spiritus Sanctus habitat in eo; et non est maior honor, et utilior, quam tenere Regem et Papam secum. De hoc dicit Apostolus: Nescitis, quod templum Dei estis vos, et Spiritus Dei habitat in vobis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Iacobo Apost.

B. Urb. [illegible]
B. [illegible]

10. Quando homo scit, quod domus sit antiqua, et minatur ruinam, nullus nisi sit stultus, vult in ipsa remanere ad habitandum: idem de navi antiqua ad navigandum: Ita est de domo huius mundi antiqua et ruinosa; ideo nullus, nisi sit stultus, debet ipsam appetere, nec diligere, nec in navibus vitę navigare. S. Vin. in ser. 6. Dom. i. Adu.

B. Urb. [illegible]
B. He[illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible]

11. Nunquam Christus suam gratiam ministrabit (sine qua nihil possumus) si homo habet a quo possit instrui, et deduci, et negligit, vel non curat alterius ductum amplecti, se credens sibi sufficere, et per se posse [illegible] et [illegible] hunc ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] salute [illegible]. S. V[illegible] [illegible] vita sp. cap. 4

B. Urb. 69
B. Heur. 488.

A[illegible]

12. Quot peccata mortalia hēt homo, tot catenis est ligatus; qū hō confitetur, et confessor dicit: Ego te absolvo, omnes rumpuntur. Magnū mirabile est, quia ōes homines mūdi cultellis non possunt solvere unam cathenam; sed tanta est virtus confessionis quod statim ōes rumpuntur. S. Vin. ser. S. Petri ad vincula.

P. [illegible] 105
A [illegible]

13. Primus gradus ascensus est peccatorum cognitio, qū conscientia pungit et remordet, dicens: O miser, ego sum religiosus et non vixi ut religiosus, non servavi regulam. Talis iam tenet pedem in primo gradu; talis cognitio est necessaria: quia nullus curat de medicina, qui non sentit se infirmū. S. Vin. ser. 4. de Trinitate.

A. Vin. [illegible]
A. Henr. [illegible]

14. Si attendas pulchritudinem et generositatem quam habent virtutes, et si attendas ad vilitatem et turpitudinem quam hēt vitia et peccata, conaberis, si sapiens fueris, ad amplius acquirendum virtutes, et amplius fugiendum vitia et peccata. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 14.

A. Vin. [illegible]
A. Henr. 298

15. Periculum est maius, quando navis impingit in rupem; ideo vigilant nautae diligenter. quando persona non curat de familiaritatibus, tunc navigat in profundo pelagi ad portum securitatis; sed quando contrahit familiaritates, tunc impingit in rupem. S. Vin. ser. in oct. S. Dom.

A. [illegible]
[illegible]

16. Qū creatura perseverat in bona vita usque in finem, quia nec diaboli tentationibus, [illegible], nec carnis inclinationibus dimittit bonā vitam; tunc [illegible] integritr [illegible], [illegible] indesinenter continuatur iuxta

A. [illegible]
A. [illegible]

illud Pr[illegible]

Aprilis

illud Prov. 4. Justorum semita quasi lux splendens procedit et crescit usque ad perfectum. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible] Ambros.

17. Ad hoc venit mundus, ut omnes reputentur ocioli, nisi sit negotiator; sed si vacant aliqui servitio Dei, et orationi, dicuntur ocioli; sed in sero apparebit, quis fuerit ociosus. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Dom.co — B. V. 6 [illegible] / B. H. [illegible]

18. Si ex dolore alicuius unius partis spine, vel unius pulicis non potes dormire, quomodo anima cum sit tam vulnerata! in capite vulnere superbie, in corde vulnere avaritie, in renibus vulnere luxurie, in gutture gule, in facie invidie; ideo suspirare, dolere, plangere nos debemus ad instar infirmi. S. Vin. in ser. 4. de oct. S. Dominici. — B. Vat. 2. 62. / B. Henr. 340.

19. Observantia preceptorum Dei est via plana et recta usque ad Paradisum. de qua Esa. Haec est via, ambulate in ea, et non declinetis, neque ad dexteram, neque ad sinistram. aliqui transgrediuntur Dei precepta ut acquirant aliquam dignitatem, seu honorem; isti declinant ad dexteram, que significat prosperitatem; aliqui faciunt contra Dei precepta timore alicuius damni vel periculi, et tales declinant ad sinistram. S. Vin. in ser. 2. de octava S. Domi.ci — B. Vat. 6ii. / B. Henr. 8i.

20. Si inspicias quantum Deus est dignus amari et honorari secundum suam bonitatem, et sapientiam, et alias suas perfectiones, que sunt in eo sine numero et sine termino, videbis, quod hoc, quod isti multum et magnum ad honorem Dei pro sua bonitate suam est minimum et quasi nihil in [illegible] quam deberet ei secundum quod Deus est dignus. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 19. — B. Vat. 6vi. / B. Henr. [illegible]

A. P. R. [illegible]

21 Plures damnantur per diffamationem, quam per furtum. quia furtum quod videtur, dat compunctionem cordis, et finaliter restituitur: sed verba ex quo dicta sunt, transeunt, et tradentur oblivioni, et sic non restituitur fama. S. Vin. in ser. 9. de oct. S. dominici — S. Vob. 82. / B. Henr. 42

22. S[i] artifices cum tanto labore vigilant ut lucrentur 12. ~~solid~~ denarios. quanto magis vigilare nos debemus dulciter, ut coronam Paradisi possimus lucrari. S. Vin. in ser. 4. de oct. S. Domini — B. Vob. 648. / B. Henr. 8[illegible]

23. Non imolabis Dño deo tuo bovem in quo est macula. deut. 17. Bos significat personam nobilem, habens duo cornua: s. potentiae et [illegible]. Caveant ergo tales, si volunt deo offerre sacrificium, quod sit sine macula, alias abominabile erit Dño: propterea B. Georgius, ut sacrificium martyrii sui esset deo acceptum, se ipsum obtulit immaculatum. ea non legitur unquam habuisse maculam peccati mortalis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Georgio. — B. Vob. 184 / B. Henr. [illegible]

24. Quando aliquis vadit per mare huius mundi ~~cum~~ cum devotione. et bona vita, talis ventus ducit navem ad portum Paradisi. sed quando venit aqlo s. diaboli tentatio, quae projicit navem sursum elevando in superbiam vanam gloriam ~~[illegible]~~ et ibi navis s. conscientia et animae perit. S. Vin. ser. 4. in oct. S. Domini — B. Vob. [illegible] / B. Henr. 161

25. B. Marcus erat ita humilis, quod pro nihilo se habuit videns [illegible] quod B. Sebastianum ipsum diligebat ex humilitate ne. fuaret — [illegible] / B. Henr. [illegible]

ne faceret ipsum sacerdotem nec Episcopum, obtinuit sibi potiram. Magnum mirabile fuit. Nonne est sacerdotem esse bonum? Imo. Si habet tria s. claram scientiam, sanctam vitam, et bonam famam, alias melius esset clerico non habere manus, nec pedes. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Marco.

26. Vita spiritualis multos habet inimicos. B. Vinc. 608.
V. g. si religiosus vult servare regu- B. Henr. 238.
lam, et vota, statim alij, qui nihil servant, dicunt: o Hypocrita, et sic de alijs. Ideo dicit Scriptura: Omni custodia custodi cor tuum. S. Vin. in se. ser. 3. Pentecostes.

27. Sicut ex quinque sensibus peccamus, B. V. 6[illegible] ita ipsis debemus facere penitentiam, B. Henr. [illegible] in oculis lachrymando, in auribus missas et sermones audiendo, in odoratu viam Christi sentiendo, sicut canis, qui sequitur leporem per odorem, sentit in [illegible], quo transivit, in gustu ieiunando, in tactu [illegible] totum corpus affligendo. S. Vin. ser. 6. in dom. infra Oct. Ascens.

28. Vigilans et alius sicut passer so- B. V. 6[illegible] litarius in tecto. Saltat n. passer de B. Henr. 95.
loco ad locum cantando: Ita peccator debet saltare de peccato ad peccatum plangendo, et dolendo de quolibet. S. Vin. in ser. 4. Oct. 1. Dom.

29. B. Petrus Martyr habuit victoriam B. V. 6[illegible] de intellectu per simplicem reverentiam, B. Henr. [illegible] de voluntate per humilem obedientiam, de carne per nitidam continentiam, de diabolo per veram sapientiam, de mundo per firmam patientiam. Ergo B. vir, qui suffert tentationem, quia cum probatus fuerit, accipiet coronam

vitæ

uitæ, quam repromisit Deus dili-gentibus se. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Petro M.

30\. Nunquam uideas, nec sentias, nec audias nisi solum Iesum stantem in cruce propter te mortuũ et suspensum ad exemplũ Virginis Mariæ et martiris in mundo, et uiuens in fide.
S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 16.

B. Urb. 264.
B. Henr. 131.

MAIUS.

1\. Philippus dr̃ os lampadis propter suã lucidentem prædicationẽ. Lampas ha-bet os latum, quod est uncta oleo, quod est clara ad illuminandũ. Sic os B. Philippi fuit latum ad prædicandũ, ubique unctũ et medecinale ad conuerten-dum populos multos, clarũ ad illu-minãdum corda gentiũ. Ergo dr̃ per Profetam: si separaueris pretiosũ a uili, quasi os meũ eris. S. Vin. in ser. SS. Philippi et Iacobi.

B. Urb. 331.
B. Henr. 346.

2\. Ad instar Christi pro omnium salute sit paratus et liberus ponere uitã suam, et die, noctuque orare, et la-borare, ut oẽs in Christo inuiscer-rentur, et Christus in eis. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 17.

B. Urb. 659. 741.
B. Henr. 429.

3\. Sicut crux fuit Christo afflictio, sed in ea uoluit mori: ita pænitẽtia est afflictio, et in ea oportet nos mori si uolumus saluari. Ideo Apostolus: Qui Christi sunt, carnem suam crucifixerunt cum uitijs.
S. Vin. in ser. SS. Philippi et Iacobi.

4\. Magna excellentia fuit Virginis Mariæ, quia in domo sua recepit filium Dei:
in hoc sibi assimilantur qui hodie com-municant; quia sicut ipse uenit in

B. Urb. 306
B. Henr. 186

uterum Virginalem, ita proprie ve= nit in hostiam consecratam; et per= fectius recipimus nos ipsum, quam Virgo Maria; quia ipsa recepit eum mor= talem, et passibilem, nos immortalem et impassibilem. S. Vin. in Assumptio= ne B. M. Virg.

5. Non ne videtur vobis magna excellen= B. Urb. 529.
tia recipere Christum in domo et mi= B. Hear. 333.
nistrare sibi: istam gratiam pote= stis habere per similitudinem propriam; quia pro amore et honore Christi recipi= tis pauperes et personas bonae vitae, po= testis dicere, quod recipitis Xtum in domo vestra. de hoc auctoritas: Amen dico vobis, quod uni ex minimis meis fecistis, mihi fecistis. S. Vin. ser. i de Assumpt. B. Virg., [illegible]

6. Possumus de S. Joanne dicere: Corona B. Urb. 6. 315 aurea super caput eius expressa signo B. Hear. 159.
sanctitatis. quia sicut intus in anima habebat coronam sapientiae, ita etiam expressabat extra per signum sanctita= tis [illegible] et bonae vitae. Multi portant coronam sapientiae non expressam signo sanctitatis sed vanitatis; ha= bent magnam scientiam sed habent malam conscientiam. S. Vin. in Ser.
S. Joannis.

7. Si volumus obtinere coronam gloriae in Pa= B. Urb. 692.
radiso, oportet nos in hoc mundo habere B. Hear. 338 in capite coronam quatuor genera spi= narum continentem. [illegible] memo= riam peccatorum, quae commisimus ama= re conterendo; [illegible] timendo pe= nas in inferno, quas meruimus, [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] in quo Xpus dicet. quid fecistis [illegible] si non [illegible]
[illegible] dicitis. S. Vin. [illegible]
[illegible]

8. Nisi haberemus Angelos defensores, dæmones destruerent nos, statim qñ creatura nasceretur ab eis suffocaretur, ne haberet baptismũ: Item quando peccat, ne faceret pœnitentiã: sed Angelus bonus defendit: item qũ creatura facit aliquod bonũ, ut oraret, destruerent creaturam statim, nisi boni Angeli nos defenderent, qui in omnib. horis nos prosequnt. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Michaele. — B. Urb. 95. B. Henr. 204.

9. Ultra pericula corporalia multa sunt pericula animarũ Religiosis et clericis euntibus Hierusalem. Ideo spiritualis fiat illa peregrinatio: hodie, et quolibet die potestis ire Nazaret ad camerã, ubi filius dei fuit incarnatus, et sic de alijs locis. S. Vin. ser. i. de Assumpt. B. Virg. Mariæ. — S. Vin. 118. B. Urb. 9[illegible]. B. Henr. ~~[illegible]~~ 38.

10. Dat Deus tres dies præparationis animæ devotæ: tres dies sunt opera pœnitentialia, sive sacramentalia: s. confessio, communio et extrema unctio, et dicunt. dies, quia in quolibet opere datur claritatis gratia. S. Vin. in ser. 2. de Assump. B. Virginis. — S. Vin. 1[illegible]. B. Urb. 150. B. Henr. 9[illegible].

11. Quare creditis, quod detur incensum in magnis solemnitatibus, nisi ad memoriam passionis Christi? Ideo quando sentitis illũ odorem suavem incensi, debetis cogitare qualem odorem, et quam odoriferũ sacrificiũ dedit ãia Christi in passione, quã cum tanta patientia sustinuit, Deo Patri, sanctis Angelis in cælo, et sanctis Patribus in limbo. S. Vin. ser. i. de corpore Christi. — B. Urb. 14[illegible]. B. Henr. [illegible].

12. Pro nullo lucro faciatis aliquid contra legem Dei; quia pro uno lucratur quis perdit animã. S. Vin. in ser. de qñ morte. — B. Urb. 158. B. Henr. [illegible].

13. Quando hõ est in peccatis et in mala vita, domus conscientiæ est obscura et tenebrosa: sed quando Deus accendit in ea.

MAIVS.

in ea lucernas uirtutum, efficitur clara et pulchra, et tunc Deus uult eam inhabitare; unde ait: Deliciæ meæ esse cum filijs homi= num .s. in conscientijs illumina= tis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Augustino | B. Vrb. 7 43. B. Henr. 489.

14. Cuilibet nostrũ commissum est ca= strum corporis et habitatores, quin que sensus, inclinationes et membra uellent contra Deũ rebellare. Sen= sus n. et cogitatio humani cordis in malũ prona sunt ab adolescen= tia sua. Quantũ ergo placebit Regi Christo, si cum rigore, sapien= tia, prudenter custodies castrum, et notabilr tales remunerabitur ab eo. S. Vin. in ser. Dom. infra Oct. Ascens. | B. S. Vin. 150. B. Vrb. 102. B. Henr. 102.

15. Qui uult uiuere castè, debet cu= stodire portas oculorũ, et non re= spicere; quia alias cadet. Ideo Hieremias loquens in persona iu= uenum, qui respiciunt libenter mulieres, dicit: Oculus meus de= predatus est animam meam. S. Vin. in ser. Decol. S. Ioan. | B. Vrb. 464. B. Henr. 423.

16. Qui manet in hac uita .s. Christo per ueram fidem absque errore et falsi= tudine, et per deuotam et ... obedientiã faciendi suã uoluntatẽ et seruandi sua præcepta; tales recipiet ab eo humiditatem gratiæ, quæ facit eũ abundare et fru= ctificare. S. Vin. ser. de Natiu. B. Vir. | B. Vrb. B. Henr. 114.

17. Nullus sit ita stultus, quod dicat: Deus ita miserebitur mihi sicut latroni: quia maius miraculum | B. Vrb. 266. B. Henr. 742.

esset, quod male viventes facerent bene quam, quam sustinere mortem. S. Vin. in ser. de Nat. B. Virg.

18 Si hic gaudia essent pura, essemus nimis dissoluti, nec timeremus Deum: si amaritudines et tristitiae essent purae, tunc veniremus in desperationem. Ideo, providentia divina temperat gaudia cum tristitiis, et e converso: quia bonus coquinarius est, et in cibo nimis dulci ponit sal, et in cibo salso ponit mel. S. Vin in ser. 3. de Nat. B. Virg. Mariae.

B. V. b. 072
B. Henr. 334

19. Ois creatura in suis necessitatibus et adversitatibus, etiamsi sit destituta omni auxilio et derelicta ab omnib. confidentia cordis in Deum, dat sibi motivum elevandi oculos in caelum. Nota exemplum de Susana in tribulatione posita quae flens suspexit in caelum: erat n. cor eius fiduciam habens in Dño. S. Vin. ser. in vigilia ascensionis

B. V. b. 204
B. Henr. 90.

20 Si cognosceres magnitudinem et multitudinem peccatorum, quae fecisti contra Deum cognosceres [illegible] quantumcumque bona sint nihil [illegible] [illegible] cap. 19.

B. V. b. 46
B. Henr. 94

21. Sicut Virgo Maria gaudebat de honore sibi promisso; tristabatur tn. ex compassione: Ita debet esse de sanctis praemiis quae licet gaudeant de sua bona vita; non tn. debent despicere peccatores, sed compati eis dicendo Dñe si vos dimisissetis me, peior essem ego. deo Dñe invetisceos, et sic compati, et non indignari debetis. ~~Ser.~~ S. Vin. ser. 3 Nat. B. Virg.

B. V. b. 36
B. Henr. 114

Deus est, [illegible] [illegible] dilectionis [illegible]

charitativam: quia sicut vide-tis ignem circa ferrum ignitum, ita voluntas iusti est inflammata divinitate ad diligendum Deum sup omnia et proximu sicut se ipsum. Deus charitas est, qui manet in charitate, in Deo manet, et Deus in eo. S. Vin. ser de S. Mattheo

B. Vrb. 19
B. Henr. 355.

23. Quando demon tentat aliquē de ali-quo peccato, Angelus videns hoc, de celo [illegible] non tu cogit creaturā ut faciat bonū nec malum sed dimittit in libertate arbitrij, sed consulit. S. Vin. de S. Michaele

B. Vrb. 236.
B. Henr. 471.

24. Dicatur de gloria, quam Deus ostendit de duabus scalis, quarum Christus tenebat caput unius et Virgo Maria alterius, et B. Domi-nicus corona aurea coronatus intravit gloriam. Si dicatur quare duas scalas? num quid una sufficeret? Responsio: Ad innuendum, quod Religio Pred.rum non solū p unam scalam s. vite contemplative mittit fratres ad celum, sed etiam p aliam s. vite active.
S. Vin. in ser. de oct. S. Domi.ce

B. Vrb. 547.
B. Henr. 486.

25. Fides Christiana est tante subtilitatis altitudinis et profunditatis quod intellectus humanus p se nō pōt attingere ad intelligendū, ideo requiritur quod a maiori intellectu iuvetur. intellectus n̄r est ut [illegible] candell[illegible] est ad legendam parvam litteram;
sed quando iuvatur lumine magni cerei videtur optime et legit

MAIVS

25. P sanctos Angelos in fide Christiana tu mus informa... Fides Christiana est tanta subtilitatis, altitudinis, et profunditatis, quod intellectus humanus ple... robiss attingere ad intelligendum; ideo requiritur quod a maiori intellectu... ... intellectus noster ... ab Angelis, qui clare ... S. Vin. in ser. de S. Michaele. — S. Vmb. ... / ...

26. Omnem humaná laudem fugiens cum horrore, tanq uenenú morbiferú, et in despectu tui gaudeas, te ipsum talem uere et ex corde reputes, qui merito debeas ab omnibus conculcari et despici. S. Vin. de uita sp. c. 5. — S. Vmb. 694. / S. Henr. 937.

27. In lucerna sunt tria cera fragilis quæ ... et ... ellychnium album, 3º lux clara: Ita quælibet persona sancta hēt ista tria 1. corpus fragile, q igne deuotionis liquescit in lachrymis. 2º intus hēt aiam albam claram innocentemq 3º hēt lumen gratiæ dei, sine qua non erunt sancti. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Francisco. — S. Vmb. 547 / S. Henr. ...

28. Christi atleta se accingat, ut obedientiæ regulam et semitam in omnibus et p omnia teneat quantū potest ... ubicunq omni loco et tpē intus et extra in refectorio dormitorio et choro; cogitans uerbum Xpi: Qui uos audit, me audit, et qui uos spernit, me spernit. S. Vin. de uita spi. cap. 4 — S. Vmb. 14 / S. Henr. 247. ...

29. Tu dimittis regnū uel prelationē, quā forte nunq habuisses quando dimittis ... habendi. Ideo religiosus licet non habuerit uxorem, nec filios tū — S. Vmb. 15. / S. Henr. 147.

relinquit

reliquit; quia posuit hic. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Francisco.

30. Non credatis, quod pro aliqua obedientia vel sancta vita debeatis habere gloriam eius ex debito; sed ex divina ordinatione et promissione. quia [illegible] promisit. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Luca. B. Vmb. 5 x 4. B. Henr. 249.

31. Pro nullo negotio debet persona dimittere aliquã orationẽ; quia de profundo abyssi extrahit peccatorem. Ideo ait David: Benedictus Deus, qui non amovit orationẽ meã, et misericordiam suam à me. Augustinus: Nunq̃ amovebitur à te oratio tua, et nunq̃ amovebitur à te misericordia divina. S. Vin. ser. de S. Franc. B. Vmb. 273. B. Henr. 247.

IVNIVS.

1. Si vellet se Religiosus excusare dicens: Ego non servavi, quia alij non servabant, ideo vadas cum eis ad infernũ. ~~S. Vin.~~ Religiosus n. debet aspicere regulam, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]ulum. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Francisco. B. Vmb. 610. B. Henr. 332.

2. Virginibus non potest custodiri à zeloso, de [illegible] [illegible] die, quia persona zelosa necessariò erit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] B. Vmb. 4 [illegible]. B. Henr. 9[illegible].

3. Multi incipiunt servire Deo, et religiosus in Noviciatu; sed ex quo fecerunt professionẽ, dicit unus in suum iubileum, ego sum doctor. Non emisisti votũ usq; ad iubileũ, vel ad Magisteriũ, sed usq; ad mortem. non sic fecit B. Franci[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] B. Vmb. 197. B. Henr. [illegible]

IVNIVS.

4. Quando diuites liberales aia vadit ad portam Paradisi, et dicit Christus quid fecisti respondet aia Dne dispensaui bona vestra, in voluntatem vestram, mercedem gloriæ recipit. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Luca. — B. Vmb. 351. B. Henr. 494.

5. Debes [illegible] et [illegible] afficere [illegible] Dominum s. amore ardentissimo timore summo, honore debito, zelo constantissimo et illis debet adiungi gratiarum actio, et vox laudis, omnimodæ obedientiæ promptitudo, et [illegible] diuinæ pro posse degustatio. S. Vin. de vit. sp. cap. 16. — B. Vmb. [illegible]. B. Henr. [illegible].

6. Captiui possunt petere gloriam non ex debito, sed ex promissione Domini: [illegible] de nobis, nullus reputet sibi [illegible], quia omnes sumus [illegible], Christi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Luca. — S. Vin. 156. B. Vmb. [illegible] 8. B. Henr. 385.

7. Quicumque voluerit proximorum animabus utilis esse, eosque verbis ædificare, primo studeat in se ipso habere quicquid alios est docturus, alioquin parum proficiet. [illegible] in proem. libelli de vita sp. — B. [illegible]. B. Vmb. 492.

8. Diuina sapientia est scire gubernare personam suam iuxta Dei voluntatem in virtutibus et bonis operibus, et ultra hoc attrahere bonis modis alios ad eam. S. Vin. in [illegible] de S. Luca. — B. Vmb. [illegible]. B. [illegible] 252.

9. [illegible] maxime [illegible] de foris sunt ornatas, et pictas sed intus [illegible]. Tales sunt personæ malæ vitæ et peccatores, quæ extra sunt ornatæ et pictæ sed intus [illegible] — B. [illegible]. B. Henr. 7[illegible].

10. Si volumus amari a Deo Patre, diligamus Xp̃m. quia Patres multũ amant dilectores filiorũ: si dicatur, qualiter est amandus Xpus, dico, quod sup̃ oĩa. Vos potestis diligere uxores, filios, et filias, sed plus Xhristum. S. Vin. in ser. dom. 4. post oct. Pasche.

B. Vmb. ~~229~~. 677.
B. Henr. n. 7.

11. Alte bonum est curare non solum de bono suo, sed etiam alterius. Sic S. Barnabas fuit non solum bonus de bono suo, sed et alterius, cupiebat .n. salvare totum mũdum ... cepit predicare de villa in Villam de Civitate in Civitatem. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Barnaba Apost.

B. Vmb. 738.
B. Henr. 926.

12. Dum Sancti hic viverent, habebãt liberum arbitrium, sicut et nos faciendi suas proprias sed restringebant, se gubernando sm̃ Dei voluntatem, non sm̃ suam inclinationem; ideo sunt omnipotentes ... S. Vin. ... in festo Sanctorum.

B. Vmb. 7..
B. Henr. 260.

13. In Deo est omnem inopiam et egestatem ... quia ipse est scala, per quam ascenditur ad celestes divitias et eternas. S. Vin. de vita spũ cap. 17

B. Vmb. 66.
B. Henr. ..6.

14. Si queratur, Utrum tenes multa grana arenę in manu, respondeo absolute, infinita sunt: sed respective comparando ad illa, quę sũt in littore maris, pauca grana sunt ... Ita de Sanctis, si loquamur de eis absolute sunt innumerabiles: sed comparando eos damnatos, pauci sunt.

B. Vmb. ...
B. Henr. ...

15. In celo non solum magni sancti, sed etiam minores laudant Deum: Ita debet esse in hoc mundo magni et parui debent Deum laudare. Maiores debent taliter nutrire pueros, ut quolibet die mane [illegible] debent [illegible], dicant: Ave Maria [illegible] in ser. [illegible] omnib. sanct.

[illegible] 6
B. Helmer. 149 [illegible]

16. Ante [illegible] statum uiuendi, debet petere consilium a spiritualibus personis, sed post [illegible] statum confirmare debes, quasi dicendo cum David: Hec requies mea in seculum seculi, hic habitabo quoniam elegi eam. Sed aliqui cum uento incipiunt et cum uento dimittunt. [illegible] in ser. i omn. sanct.

B. Vulg. 61.
B. Vulg. 506 [illegible]

17. Quandocumque ex societate malorum hominum uel imperfectorum est periculum uel occasio retrahens uel impediens a perfectione uel feruore uirtutum, debes a talibus, sicut a serpentibus uel draconibus elongari. Non enim est carbo ita ignitus, qui in aqua frigescat, aut separetur, sic e contrario nix est [illegible] ita frigida, qui non aceruo carbonum ardentium accendatur. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 17

B. Vulg. 740
B. Helm. 288.

18. Nauis trium constructionum est anima cuiuslibet sancti, in qua sunt tres potentie quasi tres constructiones s. memoria, [illegible], intelligentia [illegible] et uoluntas [illegible] quando est onerata de mercibus [illegible], [illegible] recedit de parte huius mundi, et sine nautis [illegible] [illegible] S. Vin. in ser. i. de sanctis.

B. Vulg. 329.
B. Helm. 199.

19. Cauere debemus a falsis iuramentis et blasphemiis, maledicta est domus et uilla

Villas, ubi hec sunt. Vis cognoscere quod peccatu[m] est, ac si contra Rege[m] ... [illegible] ires. Ex hoc peccato venit totum malum, et si non esset [illegible] ... S. Vin. ser. i [illegible] — ... 249. / S. [illegible] 350 / S. [illegible] 121.

20. In elementis habemus exemplum diligendi Deu[m]. Ignis, qui est calidus dat nobis exemplu[m] de fervore spiritali, aer qui [illegible] illuminat de contemplatione, aqua, que mu[n]dat, de munditia p[er]sonali, terra, que fructificat, de abundantia penitentiali. Augustinus: Celum terra, mare, et omnia, que in eis sunt, dicunt mihi, ut te Deu[m] diligam. S. Vin. ser. in Vig. Pentecost. — S. [illegible] 585. / S. [illegible] 4[illegible]

21. Sicut pictores quando volunt extrahere aliqua[m] imagine[m], [illegible] illam cora[m] se, et illam contemplando depingunt: Ita Sancti coram se, [illegible] imaginem filii Dei, idest vitam Christi, ad cuius similitudine[m] ordinant sua[m] vitam. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Simo. et Juda. — S. [illegible] 646 / S. [illegible] no. 12

22. In communitate quando maiores non odiunt, nec despiciunt minores, nec divites pauperes, tales diliguntur a Deo. Ratio huius est. Quilibet plus diligit domu[m] propria[m] q[uam] aliena[m]. Domus Dei est locus, ubi est pax et concordia. [illegible] est in [illegible] locus [illegible] Ubi sunt dissensiones [illegible] est [illegible] et locus demonu[m]. S. Vin. in ser. de oct. S. Joan. — S. [illegible] / S. [illegible]

IVNIVS.

23. Manus uirtutis Dei operata est in B. Ioanne generatione uirtutum, quia non sufficiebat uirtus Patris ad generandum nec Matris ad concipiendum; sed uirtus Dei suppleuit defectum Patris ad generandum et Matri ad concipiendum. S. Vin. in ser. 3. de S. Ioan. Bapt.

S. Vin. n. 261
B. Vrb. 501
[illegible]

24. B. Ioannes dr lucifer, siue stella matutina quia sicut lucifer precedit solem, et est maior et clarior aliis stellis, ut uidetur nobis. Ita Ioannes Bapta precessit Xpum ueniens ante eum, maior et sanctior [illegible]. Inter natos mulierum non surrexit maior Ioanne Baptista. S. Vin. in ser. de [illegible] S. Ioan.

B. Vrb. n. [illegible]
B. Henr. 54. 4

25. In tuo ualde abundantia timeas, ut ueneno, et ut mare submergeas. S. Vin. de uita sp. c. 17.

[illegible]
B. Henr. 452.

26. Vtilitas est hominum sed honor et gloria sunt Dei; Deo sicut Deus non tangit partem nostram; sed totam utilitatem dimittit nobis: ita nos nō tangamus partem sui quaerentes honorem et gloriam nostram, sed Dei: quia soli Deo honor et gloria. S. Vin. in ser. infra oct. Ascen.

[illegible]
[illegible] 208.

27. Honoratur imago non ratione materiae sed ratione Dei, cuius est imago: cum ergo sit imago Dei magis uera [illegible] imago picta [illegible] imaginem quippe Dei [illegible] ideo talis diligenda est in quacunque materia siue aurea, siue argentea. S. Vin. ser. 2 de Trin.

S. Vin. 270
B. Henr. 411.

VNIVS.

128. Quare mutant se fratres quolibet anno de Conventu ad Conventum, quia oportet eum baculo Prelationis agitare et movere, i.e. sicut cucurbitas vel alium cibum delicatum, ne adhereant, capiendo familiaritates. S. Vin. in Ser. de Convers. S. Pauli.

129. Si secundum prelationem Ecclesiasticam loquimur, maior est Petrus quam Paulus; quia Papa maior est legato, B. Petrus fuit Apostolus Xpi, et Papa universalis, et Xpi Vicarius, B. Paulus fuit Christi Apostolus, et legatus a latere. Si loquimur sm predicationem evangelicam Paulus fuit excellentior et abundantior Petro in ardenti predicatione et etiam Apostolis aliis. S. Vin. de Conv. S. Pauli Apost.

130. Si dicatur tibi: Ubi didicit Paulus? potes dicere, quod in celo empyreali in schola Angelorum tribus diebus studuit, et scivit plusquam Salomon, aut omnes philosophi in tota vita sua. In libro vite eterne, cuius efficitur hic Magister. S. Vin. in Ser. de Conv. S. Pauli Apost.

VLIVS.

1. Ioannes ostendit nobis quantam reverentiam debeamus gerere altari Xpi et ministris suis. Virgo Maria erat tunc altare, in quo erat corpus [illegible] B. Ioan. audivit ad Christum amplexus Matris, B. [illegible] reveravit se, humiliter inclinando. Multi erant in hoc, stantes prope altare ex devota oratione. Scimus, quod nos infirmatur ab Angelis, qui sunt ibi
V. in Ser. 3. de S. Ioan. Bapt.

122
324
547 321 n.º 149
250

2. Virgo Maria dixit Elisabet: o mea benedicta Cognata proficiat nobis, quia filium concepisti. Ista verba fuerunt tanta virtutis, quod sicut verbum sacerdotis in baptismo virtute Christi sanctificat animam baptizati: sic illud verbum Virginis virtute filij Dei incarnati, et in ea existentis sanctificavit Ioannem ... i. Tim. 4. S. Vin. in ser. 3. de S. Ioan. Bapt.

3. Mala opera et peccata, quae homo facit, auferunt vitam animae, item auferunt vitam gloriae, ... mortalia ... regulam, quia a fine denominantur res. S. Vin. in ser. de ...

4. Portet in se crucem, Christi quae ... 4or brachia. 1um est mortificatio vitiorum, 2um est derelictio omnium bonorum temporalium, 3um est derelictio omnium affectionum carnalium parentum ..., 4um sui ipsius contemptus, et abominatio et annihilatio. S. Vin. de vita sp. c. 17.

5. servire Deo in bonis operibus ... eius voluntatem, non ... ad quam finem ... ad vitam aeternam ... habebis ...

B. Hen. 6 ... in sanctificationem ... vitam aeternam. Ideo opera, quae fiunt in gratia Dei viva, quia ... ad vitam aeternam. S. Vin. ...

~~6. Petra ... ~~

~~...~~

S. Vb. 44.
B. Henr. 129 ...

B. Vib. 479 ...
B. Henr. 17 ...

B. Vab. 67. 64.
B. Henr. 5 ...

B. ...
B. Henr. 498 ...

IV. 175

6. Petrus est beatus dr prompta obedientia, que notatur hic, cum dicitur Symon quod interpretatur obediens. Qui ex plena audit et obedit verbis et mandatis dei, et sine aliqua excusatione implet voluntatem dei ut [illegible] voluntatem suam dei obediens [illegible] et [illegible] S. Vin. in S. de S. [illegible] etc.

B. Vub. 663.
B. Henr. 271

7. Inter omnia pretiosa, que nobis deus dedit in hoc mundo est tempus et dies [illegible] quia in hoc solo tempore potest homo penitere, confiteri, amorem dei et gloriam acquirere; in alio autem tempore non. Me oportet operari opera eius, qui misit me, donec dies est, veniet nox quando nemo potest operari. S. Vin. in ser. S. Martini.

B. Vub. 149.
B. Henr. 153.

8. Peccatum superbie facit [illegible] animi quia aufert sibi rationem, discretionem et intelligentiam, [illegible] superbie est ut [illegible] et [illegible] tare infirmum, cum sit in puncto mortis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Martino.

B. Vub. 9.
B. Henr. 479.

9. [illegible] contemplamini hic modicum. [illegible] erat antiqua, Virgo autem Maria erat tunc iuvenis [illegible] annorum: eis [illegible] [illegible], venter Elisabet [illegible] ventrem Virginis [illegible] Deo Joan. erat altior Xpo, propter hoc Joan. retraxit se in utero matris, dans filio dei honorem, sicut [illegible] Xpi in eodem [illegible] [illegible] videntur [illegible] hic sanctificatio [illegible] S. Vin. in ser. 3. de S. Joan.

B. Vub. 621.
B. Henr. 203.

10. Cogitate beneficium redemptionis, quia voluit humiliari, et de celo ad terram descendere, ut tu ascenderes in celum, [illegible] voluit suspendi in cruce, ne tu [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] spiritus voluit

B. Vub. 775
B. Henr. [illegible]

uoluit coronari, ut tu in celo coro:
neris corona gloriae: quanta est humilitas Regis uolentis se humi:
liore, ut ad coronam Regni exalta:
ret rusticum. S. Vin. ser. fer. 4. post Pentecost.

11. Si nauis staret ~~in eodem loco~~ 20.
annis in uno loco non faciendo uiam, omnes miraremur: Ita nos nunc, tot, fratres, ... caelum, et quot anni sunt, quod incepimus, et stamus in eodem loco, immo redimus retro: quia in uia Dei non progre:
di est retrocedere. S. Vin. in ser. de S.
Martino.

S. Vinc. 66.
S. Henr. ... 477.

12. Paupertas apostolica est ibi custodienda, sicut puella suam seruat uirginita:
tem. quia multi philocapti mittunt sibi iocalia, si recipit, erit putana.
Idem de religiosis. Ideo teneamus bene Deo, quia nihil deficiet nobis
... necessarii. S. Vin. in ser. de S.
Simone ...

S. Vinc. ...
S. Henr. ...

13. Religiosi Deo firmauerunt quod sibi dederunt scilicet corpus per uotum castitatis; quia mul tories sunt inhonesta, animam quam dede runt per uotum obedientiae; quia ...
sunt ... item bona temporalia, quae per uotum paupertatis dederunt Deo, dicentes: Ecce nos reliquimus omnia et secuti sumus te. Sed postea ... retro respicimus. Ideo dicit Xpus: Ne mo mittens manum ad aratrum, et re spiciens retro, aptus est regno Dei. S
Vin. ser. fer. 6. post Pentecost.

S. Vin. 29.
S. Vinc. ...
S. Henr. ...

14. Sicut bonus argentarius, qui uult facere uel ... auri uel argenti, non ponit aurum uel argentum in opere quousque in for nace sit purificatum: Ita Christus optimus
... purificauit ...
... aurum ex charitatiua conscientia et argentum

S. Vinc. ...
S. Henr. ...

41313

et argentum ex clara credentia, in inferno purgatorij. In igne ~~purgatorii~~ probat: i. purgatur aurum homines vero receptibiles in camino humilitatis. S. Vin. in ser. 2. ~~de~~ in die animorum.

15 Non te contristet quicumque eorum fortitudinis, non te exagitet indignationis stimulus contra defectum alterius, sed habeas ad quemcumque miserationis et compassionis affectum, cogitans semper, quod tu peius faceres nisi te, Christus Jesus sua gratia conservaret. S. Vin. de vita spir. cap. 3.

S. Vinc. 483.
S. ~~Vinc.~~ serm. 484

16. Nullus decipiatur, quia in hoc mundo sumus omnes peregrini et viatores. Ideo non debemus facere superfluitatem; quoniam peregrini non faciunt excessus in vestibus, nec superfluitates nec vanitates; sed solum curant de necessitate.

S. Vinc. 124.
S. serm. 335.

Quoniam advena ego sum apud te, et peregrinus, sicut omnes patres mei. S. Vin. in ser. fer. 4 Paschae.

17. Tria sunt a nobis singulariter exoranda, primo desiderium proprij contemptus abjectionis, et externae vivificationis. 2o intera compassio ad Jesum Christum Crucifixum, 3o esurientiam, passionum et martyriorum pro dilectione cultus nominis Christi Evangelicaeque vitae. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 19.

S. Vinc. 4..
S. se. v. 14..

18. Quando homo incipit bonam et sanctam vitam vel in Religione, vel in sacerdotio, vel in matrimonio, homo vadit ad Paradisum recta via; sed si illa bona vita dimittitur, ... [illegible] quot sunt religiosi, qui ardenter inceperunt currere ad Christum in ... de S. ... vel de S. Cicilia

... in ... [illegible]

19. Sunt multi, qui nesciunt regere se ipsos, et tamen volunt regere communitatem, cum tamen esset fugiendum; sed non considerant onus nec periculum, sed honorem, et vadunt ad infernum; ideo humiliamini sub potenti manu Dei, ut vos exaltet in tempore visitationis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Clemente.

B. Vmb. 595.
B. Henr. 441. 270.

20. B. Margarita habuit veram claritatem; erat enim clara in mente ad cognoscendum secreta Dei, et veritatem vitae. Simile est regnum coelorum homini negotiatori quaerenti bonas margaritas. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Margarita.

B. Vmb [illegible]
B. Vmb Henr. 45

21. Corpus suum totaliter in obsequio Christi [illegible] coerceat, ut omnes actus et motus corporis sint omni morum honestate compositi sub regularem disciplinam. [illegible] poteris unquam animum ab inordinatis cohibere, nisi prius studueris corpus tuum subjicere disciplinae ipsum restringendo non solum ab omni actu, sed etiam ab omni motu incongruo et inepto. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 4.

B. Vmb. 44.
B. Henr. 501.

22. Maria Magdalena quando in vixit voluptuose, Xpm non vidit interius, sed postquam fervor divinae dilectionis eam excitavit, tunc Xpus ei apparuit. Ideo volentes, quod Xpus eis appareat, debent omnem humorem pravum removere, et fervorem divinae dilectionis in se ipsos excitare. S. Vin. in ser. 2 in die Paschae.

B. Vmb. 640
B. Henr. 501.

23. Nauta dicitur prudens, qui non obstante fortuna maris et contradictione ventorum ducit navem ad portum, ad quem tendit: sic et de nobis, finis enim, propter quem finaliter sumus creati, est haec vita aeterna. Taliter debemus vitam nostram gubernare.

B. Vmb. 638.
B. Henr. [illegible]

gubernare, ut ad illam perveniamus, non obstantibus inclinationibus carnis, occasionibus mundi, et tentationibus diaboli. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Clemente.

24. Sicut lucerna cristallina de se est pulchra; pulchrior tamen est quando candela ardens in ea ponitur: ita est de persona, quae est pulchra corpore: sed quando intra tenet candelam divinae gratiae pulchrior efficitur. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Agnete.

S. Jub. 45.
S. Henr. 50.

25. Jacobus veniens ad Christum dimisit retia et patrem. Hic dat exemplum nobis religiosis maxime qui debemus sequi Christum quod dimittamus retia idest retinentias secundum etymologiam, sicut sunt negotia et occupationes mundanae, quae retinent religiosos, clericos et laicos quod non possunt ad Christum venire. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Jacobo Apost.

S. Jub. 4
S. Henr. [illegible]

26. Rosa colligitur ab uno et datur alteri, et ille eam portat et tenet in manu clausam, in quo ergo remanet plus de odore illius rosae, in dante vel accipiente? certum est quod in recipiente: Ita Rosa Paradisi Virgo Maria per Joachim fuit data B. [illegible] per generationem, et B. Anna recepit portavit, et nutrivit, et tribus annis lactavit, plus ergo remansit in ea de odore sanctitatis. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Anna.

S. Jub. 454.
S. Henr. [illegible]

27. Istud nomen Martha in lingua Syriaca idem est, quod dominans. In hoc ostenditur puritas virginalis, quia non est nisi dominium quod [illegible]

S. Jub. [illegible]
S. Henr. 16

[illegible]

corporis nec cogitando uel lo[illegible] [illegible] aliquam corruptionē, et dominatur quinque sensibus eos custodiendo. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Martha

28 Reliquiti quando sunt pauperes, prædicant gratissimè, quando uerò abundant, perdunt gratiam; ideo oportet uendere omnia, et nolle aliquid de mundo, ut homo possit emere thesaurum Sacræ Scripturæ. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Catharina Virg. et Mart.

29. Dicit Philippus doctor antiquus, quòd B. Magdalena post conuersionē nunquam respexit homines in facie, nisi Christum; et interrogata de causa Respondit, quod propter affectū hominū fecerit tot peccata. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Maria Magd.

30. Societatem contubernium, et apparatum diuitum et magnatum fugias, et contemptum tui et de societate pauperū gloriaris, et in memoria et affectu, atque con[illegible] [illegible] pauperū, et despectorū totus lætaris, quasi expressa imagine Christi. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 17.

31. Quantum nitrū sit inobedientia, patet, quia induxit omne malum, et priuat omni bono. Exemplum in primis parentibus, qui post inobedientiā uiderunt se nudos, et [illegible] eiecti de Paradiso et expositi omni angustiæ. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible] [illegible]

AVGVSTVS.

1. Oratio fiebat ab Eccl.ª Deo pro eo. Hic habemus doctrinam, quomodo totus populus debet orare pro suo Prælato in tribulatione posito. Talis oratio multum placet

B. Vb. 2.
B. Hen. 29.

A. Vb. 68.
[illegible] 240.

B. Vb. 2.
B. Henr. 16.

B. Vb. [illegible]
B. Henr. 49.

B. Vmb. 279.
B. Henr. 42.

De..

Deo, quia tangit totam communitatem; sicut bonum vel malum capitis est bonum et malum omnium membrorum: ita de Prelato, qui est caput bonum vel malum Christianorum. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible] Petri ad vincula.

2. Petrus dormiens significat peccatorem in carcere peccati dormientem inter duos milites s. Angelum bonum et Angelum malum. S. Vin. in ser. S. Petri ad vincula. — B. ~~Henr.~~ V. n. 6. 190. B. Henr. 462.

3. Multi sunt mente et corde inverecundi in tantum quod transeuntes ante imaginem crucifixi vel altare vel corpus Christi non dignantur amovere caputium suum, qui si transirent coram uno [illegible], illud facerent: et hoc multum displicet Deo. S. Vin. in ser. de superbia sup. P. [illegible] — [illegible] B. Henr. 443.

4. Qn hō vult preservare carnes vel [illegible], ponit in eis sal, quod restringit humiditatem: iste mundus debuit corrumpi et finiri, bene sunt ducenti anni et ultra elapsi: sed virgo Maria volens mundum adhuc preservare, posuit salem s. B. Dominicum et [illegible] [illegible] in libris [illegible] visio, quam vidit B. Dominicus et S. Franciscus [illegible] in ser. [illegible] — B. Umbert. n. ~~[illegible]~~ B. Henr. [illegible]

5. Quomodo aspectu [illegible] Virginis extinguebat omne malum [illegible] [illegible] sic [illegible] tentati de luxuria [illegible] B. [illegible] — [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible]

AVGVSTVS.

~~concupiscentiam~~ concupiscentiã ue= stram inordinatam. S. Vin. Ser. 3
sup. Pater noster.

6 Si dicatur religioso quare congregatus [illegible] — B. Vinc. [illegible] 40.
recurrant, respondet, quia ordo non [illegible] necessaria:
Faciatis officium uestrũ diligenter, et seruetis regulam; quia citius quilibet posset celum cadere, quam quod uo-bis deficiat. S. Vin. in Ser. Dom. [illegible] post [illegible] Pasche.

7. Qñ pannus laicus ponitur super feretrũ — B. Vinc. 695.
signũ est cadaueris, et quod ibi iacet mortuus: sic in corpore ornato signũ est, quod ibi sit anima mortua: unde mulier ornata non est, nisi feretrũ animę mortuę. S. Vin. in Ser. de [illegible]
[illegible].

8. Voluntas dei fit in celo et in terra per — B. Henr. 218 creaturas insensibiles, et irrationales, et solus hõ, qui est rationalis, facit contra uoluntatem dei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] uoluntas tua sicut in celo et in ter= ra scilicet quod sicut in celo sit in nobis in terra [illegible]
S. Vin. in Ser. [illegible]

9. Si consideremus imperfectioñ nostram — B. Henr. [illegible] [illegible] usq; humiliabimur.
[illegible] de natura sua quid imperfectũ [illegible] de nihilo creatus quia non de [illegible] seraphin nec cherubin, sed de nihilo et in principio est tanq; tabula, in qua
[illegible]
[illegible] S. Vin. in Ser. [illegible]

10. Legimus de Alexandro Magno [illegible]
[illegible] ipsum
[illegible], qui [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
sibi

[illegible]

libri: propter quod occidit ma[illegible] [illegible] vocatur [illegible] eundem, et verba nomen [illegible] [illegible] et cau[illegible] [illegible] malorum [illegible]: [illegible] fecit B. Laurentius, et videtur in eo fuisse completum verbum S. Ehi[illegible]: Bonum est viro, cum portaverit iugum Dni ab adolescentia sua. [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible].

11. Sumus homicidae et latrones: homicida occidit corpus, sed qui peccat mortaliter, occidit animam, [illegible] peccator mortaliter [illegible] occidisti animam [illegible] ma, quae peccaverit, ipsa morietur [illegible] fures. quotiescumque furati sumus Deo honorem, vel [illegible] [illegible] vel obedientiam ad sua praecepta, toties fecimus furtum. S. Vin. in [illegible] infra oct. [illegible]

12. Proh dolor multi [illegible] nomine gloriantur, sed paupertatis sodales et amici, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Non sic Beatissimus [illegible] Pater noster, non sic ille, qui cum diceretur pro nobis egenus [illegible] omnes [illegible] Apostoli, qui [illegible] verbo et exemplo documenta. S. Vin. de vita sp. c. i.

13. [illegible] omnium ciborum fuit [illegible] Adae quem serpens potionavit, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] et [illegible] infecti [illegible] bonus medicus ordinavit tyriacam [illegible] tyriaca est [illegible] [illegible] Pater noster, vel nomen Je[illegible] [illegible]

B. [illegible]
B. Henr. [illegible]

[illegible]
B. Henr. 296. 4[illegible]

ALTISSIMVS.

[illegible] Hoc de pavone, quando superbit, se elevat, et videt alas suas et plumas; sed [illegible] respicit pedes, deprimit alas, et humiliatur: Ita de nobis, aliqui superbiunt, contemplando alas suas et plumas, [illegible] pluma est o tu es de magno gen. [illegible] alia tu es pulcher, alia tu es [illegible] [illegible] modo respicis plumas; respice [illegible] ad quam tres venies, quia bufones, et [illegible] vermes te comedent. S. Vin. [illegible] de superbia. — B. V. vol. 965. B. Henr. 173.

[illegible] Secunda conditio, quae fuit in Virginis assumptione: quia omnes Apostoli, et multi alij Sancti et Sanctae fuerunt in [illegible] congregati [illegible] tes in circuitu Psalterii. Quare hoc [illegible] gebat [illegible] [illegible] quia quando persona laborat in extremis debet [illegible] circa se bonas et sanctas personas, quae legant Psalterium et [illegible] [illegible] confortent spiritum reducendo ad memoriam Xpi passionem. S. Vin. in Ser. de assumpt. B. Virg. — B. [illegible] B. Henr. 122.

[illegible] Antiquiores gentes non comedebant nisi semel in die, et ideo vivebant multum [illegible] contenti comedere semel vel bis; ideo vita nostra est brevissima: cavete ne nimis comedatis et bibatis quia non proficit corpori nec animae. S. Vin. Ser. [illegible] Pater noster. — [illegible] B. Henr. 101

[illegible] cont[illegible] quantum [illegible] quando [illegible] bona [illegible] natam [illegible] Tunc n. Angelus elevat oculos [illegible] dicens: O Anima audias eum, [illegible] [illegible] — [illegible]

depredibet

AUGUSTUS.

sic de quolibet bono operis. S. Vin. Sev. i. infra oct. ascens.

18. In omni locutione tua, in omni cogitatione tua, et in omni lectione tua ... reprehende, et in te semper conjunctam ... cogitans quod bona, que facis, non sunt pene executa, nec illo fervore facta quo debebant et multis negligentijs inquinata, ut merito ... tua in ... panno menstruato debeat comparari. S. Vin. de ciba ... cap. 3.

19. Deus facit magnam gratiam hominis dando sibi tribulationem et afflictionem in isto mundo: quia signum est quod Deus eum diligit: sed Deus hoc facit pro ... fideles, et patientiam et ut recompensaret nostra merita et premia ... S. Vin. Ser. S. super Pater noster.

20. Religiosi debent habere strictam necessitatem ... nihil ... recipere, etiam si vellent dare; quia hoc destruxit ordines: qui a principio inceperunt cum ... de foliis fagi comedebat. S. Vin. ... Ser. de SS. Simeone et Juda.

21. Et otiosus sicut campus male cultus in quo insurgunt urtices mala: ... communiter tales cadunt in tentationem: ideo ... dicens. Anc. Deus dat nobis ... ut ita simus diligentes in servitio

tuo

B. ... 229.
B. Item ...

B. Vat. 722.
B. Item. 02

B Vat. n.º 529
B. Item. 450.

B. Vat. 799
...

tes, et in operibus sanctis, ut occupati in illis non cadamus in tentationem. S. Vin. ser. 6. sup. Pater noster.

[illegible] Et mulier quædam Martha nomine excepit illum in domum suam. Martha interpretatur Dña. Nulla est domina cœli et terræ nisi regina cœlorum Virgo Maria, quæ recepit illum in domum suam, i. in uterum virginalem. S. Vin. ser. de assumpt. B. M. Virg. | B. [illegible] 96
B. [illegible] 90

[illegible] Aqua [illegible] [illegible] pida, idest sine charitate; quia non vult exire de peccato, nec recipit aliquam complacentiam de operibus [illegible] S. Vin. [illegible] Pater noster. | B. [illegible] 97
B. [illegible]

29. Si volumus intrare Paradisum, oportet, quod in his quatuor tormentis simus similes B. Bartholomæo. 1.º ut simus fustibus cæsi. Nam quando aliquis in aliquo stat in malo diu vixit, et emendat se, statim per oblocutiones fustibus cæditur. 2.º oportet, ut simus crucifixi: crux significat pœnitentiam, quam debemus sustinere. 3.º oportet, ut simus excoriati: si habetis pellem hominis superbiæ et vanitatis, humiliamini. 4.º oportet decapitari caput, unde venit omne malum, est superbia et voluptas. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Bartholomæo. | B. [illegible] 28
B. Item 88

[illegible] Si damnati possent habere de tempore quantum durat mundus [illegible] facerent pœnitentiam, ut salvarentur. Sed Deus dat nobis de tempore decem vel viginti annos et plus, ut faciamus pœnitentiam et bona opera ex quibus habeamus Paradisum, sed [illegible] | [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]

AUGUSTUS.

26. Pete, abeo ut [illegible] gat. Sicut deus [illegible] et [illegible] iter matutina, deus diriget uiam tuam, [illegible] humilitatis contra superbiam: [illegible] diriget uiam tuam [illegible] uiam misericordiae et liberalitatis contra auaritiam, et sic de alijs uirtutibus. S. Vin. ser. de dom.ca infra oct. ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible]

B. [illegible] 280 [illegible] 470
B. Heur. 2849

27. Reuelationem capere intendendo: [illegible] contra gulam intitias, nisi contra hanc uictoriam habeas, in uanum labores in acquisitione aliarum uirtutum. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 1.

B. Vrb. 91
B. Heur. 125.

28. Non sufficit habere uirtutes in oculis, nec labijs, seu auribus; sed in manibus, ut scilicet sicut legunt, audiunt uel praedicant, quod ita seruent et faciant opere: et quia ita, [illegible] B. Augus. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] possumus sibi dicere: lucerne ardentes idest uirtutes animam pulchrificantes in manibus uestris. S. Vin. in ser. de S. August.

C. [illegible] ber. n.° 69. 448. ~~[illegible]~~
B. [illegible]

29. Tunc caput Ioannis [illegible] praescinditur, puellae datur, et a puella [illegible] adulterae praesentatur. [illegible] qualiter B. Ioan. [illegible] uirtutum, Magisterium uitae sanctitatis forma, ~~[illegible]~~ norma iustitiae, uirginitatis speculum, [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] exemplum, poenitentiae uia, [illegible] uenia, fidei disciplina. Ioannes maior hominibus, par Angelis, legis summa, Euangelij [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mundi [illegible] [illegible] medius trinitatis. Et hic [illegible] datur [illegible], traditur [illegible] [illegible] S. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

B. [illegible]
B. [illegible]

AVGVSTVS.

31. Qui [illegible] stultissimus est. Videlicet pro modo meritum, mars [illegible] Deinde obtentum gloriæ cœlestis [illegible] est stultissimus qui videt pœnas inferni, non curat bene facere: Deus dicet talibus in hora mortis: o miser [illegible] in [illegible] vade ad hospitale miserorum inferni. S. Vin. [illegible] noster

B. [illegible]
B. Henr. [illegible]

3 Currus significat tentationes, quæ ad instar rotarum [illegible] de una in aliam: quando diabolus [illegible] unam, tentat per aliam. S. Vin. ser. in dom. [illegible] post oct. Paschæ.

B. [illegible]
B. Henr. [illegible]

SEPTEMBER

1. Si nux relinquat corticem ante tempus, signum est corruptionis interius: sic et Christianus, si non habet habitum [illegible] quem religio Christiana requirit, signum est quod [illegible] peccati intus latent. unde in hoc demon [illegible] malitiam suam. S. Vin. in [illegible]

B. Vmb. 69.
B. Henr. [illegible]

[illegible] magis ascendendo, magis deficit: sic superbus magis exaltatus, plus evanescit. Hoc est honorati fuerint et exaltati deficientes, [illegible] in [illegible] 7. [illegible]

B. Vmb. [illegible]
B. Henr. [illegible]

3. Fili nobilium et divitum multum timent offendere patrem, ne perdant hereditatem paternam: multo magis timendus est Deus, ne perdamus regnum eius tam magnum. S. Vin. ser. de timore Dei.

B. Vmb. 53a.
B. Henr. 29[illegible]

4 Plus gaudet Deus de sacerdotibus virtuosis, quam de ædificiis templorum: [illegible] [illegible] quod in [illegible]

B. Vmb. 157.
B. Henr. 208.

SEPTEMBRIS.

Ecclesiæ ferent ædificia nimis sumptuosa [illegible] Augustino.

5\. Eo tempore, quo hō est iratus, pe[rit] ratio et humanitas in homine, et sic p consequens hō moritur, et bestia efficitur. Nam hō est animal mansuetū, ut dicit Philosophus, de [illegible] iracundi dicit Job. 5. Virum stultum interficit iracundia. S. Vin. ser. 7. super Pater noster. — B. Vrb. 133. B. Hem. 207.

6\. Videas continué tuos defectus, et peccata tua, et ea aggraua quātum poteris, aliorum veró defectus post tergum proijcias, et non videas, et si vides, attenues, et excuses, et ipsos compatiaris et eos adiuues quantum poteris. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3. — B. Vrb. 484. B. Hem. 199.

7\. Dæmon nutrit porcos, et impinguat bacones [illegible], et postea ad infimum inferni ponat eos, et in æternū deuoret. Unde dicitur Matth. si ejicis nos hinc, mitte nos in gregem porcorum. S. Vin. in ser. 7. sup Pater noster. — B. Vrb. 51. B. Hem. 417.

8\. Et vidit deus lucem, quod esset bona. Scīa natiuitas Virginis Mariæ [illegible] Angelis, qui p eam reparantur eorum cathedræ, bona hominibus, quia p eam [illegible] p eam consequentur, [illegible] in [illegible] et [illegible] mentum meritis in meritis, et glo[illegible] [illegible] bona [illegible] quia p eam adepti sunt libera[illegible] — B. Vrb. 47. B. Hem. 118.

bono

bona animabus de purgatorio, qa. feā hent suffragiū, bona navigantibus, qa. f. cam pervenitur ad portum salutis, bona laborantibus in terra; quia per eam consequuntur requiem. S. Vin. in ser. de Nativitate Bi ug.

9. Superbus adeo est miser ... semine malam messem colligit; quia ... sunt bona in malum convertit de sanitate infirmatur, de vita moritur ... vulneratur ... victoria vincitur, et a morteo occiditur ... omnia eveniunt superbo ... et superbit de bono et sic de bono ... malis, et de virtute ... in ser. 7. post Pater noster.

... unquam fuit aliquis hens Dei timorē, qui veniret ad paupertatem Deo ... abundare, timete Deum. Nam timor ... sicut ... fructuosus qui Psal. facit dominū suū divitem: Timete ... Christiani ... tibi quoniam non est inopia timentibus eo. S. Vin. in ser. de timore Domini 11. Deus ... de bonis operibus, si non fiat cum illa diligentia, qua debent fieri. V. G. dicere missam est bonū opus, sed nisi Sacerdos sit bene paratus, et dicat bona intentione, damnabitur. S. Vin. in ser. 12. post Pater noster.

... fecit; dispersum vero facit agros fructificare: sic divitiæ avari quamdiu sunt congregatæ animam corrumpunt; sed ... et peccata redimunt iuxta illud: Facite vobis amicos ... mammona iniquitatis. S. Vin. ...

B. Vrb. 7.
B. Henr. 353.

B. Vrb. 109.
B. Henr. 500.

B. Vrb. 134.
B. Henr. 329.

B. Vrb. 245.
B. Henr. 183.

SEPTEMBER.

13. Luxuria comparatur gehennæ ardenti: in gehenna sunt specialiter tria, ignis ardens, vermis rodens, et sulphur fetens: sic in peccato luxuriæ est ignis concupiscentiæ, vermis, idest remorsus conscientiæ, et sulphur fœtens infamiæ, et ideo qui est in peccato luxuriæ, iam est in supplicio pœnæ. [illegible] in Ser. 7 sup. Pater noster.

B. Urb. 452.
B. Henr. 460

14. Signum, quod Christus recepit in die redemptionis, est crux, sicut Rex Franciæ recipit pro signo florem lilij: sic Christus Rex cœli et terræ recipit signum crucis, ex quo fuit ibi suspensus pro nostra redemptione: ne aliquis sibi credens vel obediens suspendatur in furca inferni. S. Vin. in Ser. de Trinitate.

B. Urb. 217.
B. Henr. nº 142.

15. Multum placet Deo, quando aliquis subjicit Deo castrum corporis, ut obediat, et hoc fit per pœnitentiam et afflictionem; quia sicut domatur equus indomitus amouendo annonam, ita et corpus. Ista est ratio quare pœnitentia placet Deo. S. Vin. in Ser. Sti Nicolai

B. Urb. 403.
B. Henr. 261.

16. Invidus similis est leproso Judæ traditori, et diabolo: leprosus vellet, quod nullus esset sanus; diabolus vellet, quod nullus esset bonus, et Judas contristatus est de effusione unguenti supra Christum: sic Invidus infecit sicut leprosus, sicut diabolus dolet de bono proximi, et ad modum [illegible] de bona fama. [illegible] Ser. [illegible] sup. Pater noster.

B. Urb. 129.
B. Henr. 407.

17. [illegible] quem [illegible] Angelis, et corpus [illegible] [illegible]

B. [illegible] 74
B. Henr. [illegible]

[co]mmilitemur omnes: ideo habemus [pro]elium sicut est in statera: chorda trahit sursum, et pondus lapidis deorsum: Corpus, quod corrumpitur, aggravat animam, et terrena inhabitatio deprimit sensum; sed habebit triumphum per ueram continentiam, attenuando corpus per poenitentiam. S. Vin. Ser. de quinque coronis.

18. Nihil tibi in speciali procures; sed cibariis, que Fratribus communiter apponuntur, sis contentus. Secularibus uolentibus tibi xenia mittere, nullatenus acquiescas pro tua persona; si tamen uolunt Conventui mittere, mittant. In recreatione habitum extra refectorium nullo modo recipias, sed continue refectorium sequaris omnibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. S. Vin. de uita sp. cap. 5.

B. Tub. 405.
B. Henr. 416.

19. O quantum diligeres illum, et timeres offendere illum, qui tibi dedisset manus uel oculum: quanto magis debes diligere et timere Deum, qui dedit tibi totum corpus et membra. Item qui dedit tibi animam ad imaginem Dei. S. Vin. Ser. in [illegible].

B. [illegible] 65.
B. Henr. 51.

20. Tantus est amor [illegible] quod iniuriam, que fit contra proximum, Christus recipit in se. Amen dico uobis, quod uni ex minimis meis fecistis, mihi fecistis. Ista ratio debet nos cogere, ut simus fideles proximo, sed benigni et misericordes. S. Vin. Ser. 3. in Dom. 3. post Pascha.

Matth.

B. Henr. 429.

21.

SEPTEMBER.

21. Oportet, quod diffidas de te ipso totaliter et de omnibus bonis tuis, et de tota vita tua et conuersatione tua, et reclinabis super brachia Jesu Christi pauperrimi et vilissimi, et impiorati ... et mortui propter te, ... quo sis mortuus in omnibus sentimentis tuis humanis, et ... vivat in corde tuo et anima tua. S. Vin. de vit. sp. cap. 16. — B. Vmb. 451 / S. Henr. 249.

22. ... facit multos defectus contra Deum; non tamen perdit hereditatem, nisi sit proditor: et tamen hereditas celi perditur una mala cogitatione, aspectu, uel minimo peccato mortali ... offendit autem in uno, factus est omnium reus. ... timeamus ... timore suo. — B. Vmb. 458. / S. Henr. 257.

23. Bonus Christianus in omnibus dictis et factis suis timet ne Deum offendat in aliquo: in principio diei orat Deum, ut ipsum preseruet a peccato, item in nocte ... et sic de alijs. Timor Domini expellit peccatum: nam qui sine timore est non poterit iustificari. S. Vin. ser. in Ter. 2. Sabbat. — B. Vmb. ... / S. Henr. ...

24. Si nos fortiter, bene, et fideliter militemus contra ... et peccata, ex tali victoria merebimur coronam glorie: ... corones et penam inferni. Deo ... labora, ut bonus miles Jesu Xpi. S. Vin. ser. 13. de quinque coronis. — B. Vmb. ... / S. Henr. ...

SEPTEMBER

25 [illegible] humiliari propter [illegible] voluntatem, sic triumphat, et meretur coronam gloriæ. V. S. dicendo: Ego sum inclinatus [illegible] voluntatem; sed quia vos præcepistis oppositum s. humilitatem volo humiliter vivere, magis faciens voluntatem vestram quam meam. S. Vin. Fer. [illegible] coronis.

B. V[illegible] 11
B. Henr. 4.35

26. Plus proficimus in gratia per communionem, quam per alia opera; quia ex bonis operibus licet merita multiplicantur; non tamen ex quolibet opere bono augmentatur gratia: sicut nec [illegible] [illegible] solo pane: sed quando homo communicat digne semper augmentatur gratia. Ideo dicebat David: Gustate et videte, quoniam suavis est dominus s. digne communicantibus. [illegible]

B. V[illegible] 546
B. Henr. 185

27. Ne nimis velitis conversari cum laicis; nam habemus conditiones imaginum, quæ de longe apparent pulchræ, secus de prope; quia videntur defectus imaginum. S. Vin. Fer. 7. in Dom.ca in albis.

B. Vul. 204
B. Henr. 276

28. [illegible] malum, quia [illegible] vitam, parentes, amicos, bona temporalia, 2.o peius; quia perdit vitam æternam, societatem Angelorum et sanctorum 3.o pessimum [illegible] [illegible] Dei et intrat tormenta intolerabilia, et visionem dæmonum. S. Vin. [illegible] coronis

B. Vul. 630
B. Henr. 230

SEPTEMBER.

29\. Quamuis permittat nos Deus tentari; tamen praebet auxilium Angelorum; et ideo recte facit Deus sicut Dominus qui habet multas oues in nemore ad custodiendum quibus [illegible] et canes ne a lupis deuorentur. Ita fecit Christus, qui dicit: Ego sum Pastor bonus. Nos vero sumus oues pascentes in nemore huius mundi, et deuoraremur a lupis, nisi Christus mitteret [illegible] pastores, s. sanctos Angelos. S. Vin. in ser. de S. Michaele

B. Vrb. 93.
B. Henr. 448.

30\. Qui vult fugere atque euitare laqueos atque [illegible] diaboli finales debet habere in proprio sentimento sui, quod sentiat de se ipso sicut de corpore mortuo pleno vermibus et male olenti, et sicut de cadauere, quod dedignantur videre intuentes; imo semper claudunt nares propter eius pessimum odorem et foetorem. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 16.

B. Vrb. 56.
B. Henr. 482.

OCTOBER.

Credo, quod quilibet natum habet aliquem [illegible] in deuotione [illegible] et aliquoties curat parum de nobis propter peccata nostra: sed Angelus eius nunquam deserit. Ideo dico bonum quodlibet mane et sero genibus flexis dicere: Angele, qui meus es, [illegible] pietate superna me tibi commissum serua, s. a malis inclinationibus [illegible] gubernas, s. in bonis operationibus. S. Vin. ser. de S. Michaele.

B. Vrb. [illegible]
B. [illegible]

OCTOBER.

2. Debet talem febrem de se ipsa sentire fidelis anima, cum maxima verecundia coram Deo sicut coram illo, qui [illegible], et sit sicut si esset coram districto iudicio, et dolere maxime de offensa Dei, et perditione gratiæ animæ, quando redempta fuit vir qua erat pretiosissimo Christi sanguine, et abluta per Baptismum. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 10.

B. Vrb. 467
B. Henr. 531

3. Deus proposuit duas vias Paradisi et inferni. Quilibet [illegible] diceret quod vult ire ad Paradisum. Et per quam viam [illegible] [illegible] viam [illegible]. Illa via est inferni: via Paradisi est humilitas. Qui vult ire Romam non recipit viam Angliæ; quia [illegible] sic non inveniretur. S. Vin. ser. 13 de quinque coronis.

B. Vrb. 591.
B. Henr. 283

4. Non credatis, quod perfectio sanctitatis consistat solum in additione bonorum [illegible] sed consistit in additione bonorum [illegible] cum ~~[illegible]~~ augmento devotionis: ita fecit B. Franciscus. S. Vin. in ser. S. Francisci.

B. Vrb. 119
B. Henr. 191.

5. Luciferi et alij pro vindicta vel predatione ibunt in æstate ardenti etc. et quantumcumque delicati abstinebunt ab his quæ sibi magis placent pro salute corporis [illegible] pro anima non dimitterent [illegible]. S. Vin. ser. 13 de quinque coronis.

B. Vrb. 768
B. Henr. 704

6. Quando persona quæ tenuit bonam vitam moritur [illegible] in articulo mortis, Angelus missus divinitus [illegible] exitum propter dæmones [illegible] [illegible] inter aereas potestates [illegible] introducit in cælum. S. Vin. ser. [illegible]

B. Vrb. [illegible] 10.
[illegible]

[illegible]

7. Quoties homo peccat, toties mentitur faciendo contra [illegible] et abre nunciationi factam in Baptismo: mendacium namque est, Christianum se dicere, et Christi opera non facere, mendacium est, Episcopum, Sacerdotem, vel clericum se profiteri, et contraria huic ordini operari. S. Vin. ser. 13. de quinque coroni[s]. — B. Vnb 239 - 244; B. Henr. ~~4~~ 460

8. Ut autem non excedas in sumptione cibi et potus, debes naturam tuam diligentissime examinare quantum cibi et [illegible] sustentationi [illegible] necessitatem. S. Vin. [illegible] — B. Vnb 413.; B. Henr. 407.

9. Scitis vos Sacerdotes, quid debetis facere et servare? diligenter et perseveranter debetis officiare devote conversari honeste, celebrare digne. O ~~d~~ qualis gloria est parata tali Sacerdoti. S. Vin. ser. 15. de [illegible] — B. [illegible] 155; B. Henr. 195

10. Si cogitas penas infernales damnatorum paratas cunctis peccatoribus credo, quod levis erit tibi omnis [illegible] humilitas [illegible] et omnis labor, quem in ista vita possis sustinere. [illegible] Dei, ut evadas penas supradictas et conaberis continue ad tenendum [illegible] et [illegible] ad supradictas penas. S. Vin. ~~[illegible]~~ de vita spi[rituali]. — B. Vnb 718; B. Henr. 168

14

OCTOBER.

11. Sicut aqua, si ponatur ad aerem fri- (in hieme) gidum statim refrigescit et congelatur sed si sit iuxta ignem non congelatur nec refrigescit: sic de bonis personis deuotis et ardentibus in charitate et amore Dei inter malos personas refrigescunt a deuotione, seu si stat iuxta ignem s. Christum et cum bonis et electis. S. Vin. Ser. 15. de Quadra-gesima.

B. Umb. 207
B. Henr. 66

12. Oportet, quod despici desideret, et contemni et quod omnia uituperia, uerecundias, diffamationes, iniurias, blasphemias et omnia aduersa summo cum gaudio et letitia recipiat et patienter ferat. S. Vin. de uita spirituali cap. 10.

B. Umb. 567.
B. Henr. 17

13. Religiosi seruantes regulam uotum obedientiam, paupertatem, castitatem, et ceremonias claustrales. O qualis sta parata est tali religioso. S. Vin. Ser. de Quadragesima.

B. Umb. 61
B. Henr. 29

14. Quando aliqua anima uenit ad ciuitatem Paradisi Deus non dat sibi gloriam ad certum tempus, sicut uno mense uel anno, uel uiginti etc. sed dat sine fine: sicut in ciuitatem eternam, idest sine termino et fine. Ex quo [illegible] dat gloriam, quamdiu erit Deus in se-cula seculorum: et tu debes ei seruire quamdiu eris homo. Et ista [illegible] proportio. S. Vin. Ser. de Quadragesima.

B. Umb. 592.
B. Henr. 102

Matth. 25.

15. Si in his, que sunt Deum operari deside-ras, aliquos tibi obsistere uideas et te etiam totaliter impedire, siue sint [illegible], siue pares uel inferiores, noli contentionibus detenerii: sed te ip-[illegible] [illegible] ad te restringes, te apud te ipsum collige, et ubique dicas: Deus enim pater [illegible]. Nec de hoc contristaris

B. Umb. 81.
B. Henr. 497.

OCTOBER

quia non possunt id facere, nisi finali-ter pro bono eo, et aliud sit expedi-
ens. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3.

16. Sicut in mari nullus potest diu navigare sine tempestate: sic nec possumus esse diu sine adversitate [illegible] ut nauta portabe malum patienter non solum in bono tempore, quando nō sunt tentationes, sed etiam quando veniunt vel a carne vel a mundo, vel a diabolo et tunc oportet abstinere et [illegible] custodire orando, [illegible] et ad deū recurrendo ut det firmitatem in fide. S. Vin. ser. de perseverantia.

B. Vrb. 71
B. Henr. 295.

sicut compositus pater
17. Quando sunt multi pueri facientes aliquā ribalariam [illegible] filium suum inter illos in platea, solum castigat filium, dando sibi alapas, nō curando de aliis: sic est signum filiationis. Sic quando corrigit nos alapis tribulationū in platea huius mundi, secus de illis, quos non corrigit. S. Vin. ser. de perseverantia.

B. Vrb. [illegible]
B. Henr. 97

18. Seminator instituit in agris continu[illegible] et praedicavit [illegible] sapientiam et virtutem [illegible] S. Lucas excellenter, qui 37. annis praedica-vit per mundum cum B. Paulo socius suus fuit, ibat de Villa in Villam. [illegible] castra acqui-[illegible] S. Vin. ser. de S. Luca.

B. Vrb. 40
B. Henr. 320

19. Oratio est quasi canale seu via, per quam dona misericordiae dei et corporalia et spiritualia ad nos [illegible] [illegible] pulsans [illegible] dico vobis dabit ei quot quot habet [illegible] Vin. [illegible]

B. Vrb. 210.
B. Henr. [illegible] 145

OCTOBER

20. Verba Dei sunt quasi ignis ardens hoc ad oculum potestis videre; quia multi veniunt ad sermonē frigidi, qui audiendo sermonē calefiunt; frigidus est superbus, sed calescit, quando humiliatur. Idem de alijs peccatis. S. Vin. ser. 4. in 3a. dom.a post oct. Pasch. — S. Vinc. 552 — S. Henr. 155

21. Quantū est laborandū pro sancta gloria, quando pro modica remuneratione Regis milites tantū laborant et exponunt se morti. S. Vin. ser. de resurrectione. — S. Vinc. 6 — S. Henr.

22. Si in his, quę tu summa desideras, te videas quodammodo divinitus impedire vel per infirmitatem, vel quocumq; alio contingente; de hoc nec labenus contristeris, sed totū equanimiter feras, et te ex toto committas illi, qui melius novit quod tibi expediat, quam tu ipse. S. Vin. de vita sp. cap. 3. — S. Vinc. 102 — S. Henr. 476

23. Sicut unda agitatur ventis, sic persona, quę dubitat in fide, agitatur argumentis et rationibus, et nihil potest obtinere a Deo.
Apoc. Estote fideles: Unde Apoc. 2. Esto fidelis usq; ad mortem, et dabo tibi coronā vitę. S. Vin. ser. ib. de Ide. — S. Vinc. — S. Henr.

24. Cum Adam diceret: Vocem tuam
Gen. 3 audivi et timui eo quod nudus essem ... operibus, et tu non feceras, nisi unū peccatū gulę: quanto magis debes tu timere qui tot peccata ... S. Vin. ser. de Resurrect. — S. ... — S. Henr.

OCTOBER.

25. O quale donum, ubi Deus dat temetipsum, nunquam tale donum reci-pies. quisque pauper [illegible] [illegible]; quia in ipso est quidquid desiderabile est, nunquam turbari aut tristari potest; quia ipsum est gaudium [illegible] [illegible], nunquam potest infirmari neque antiquari; quia Deus vita est. O quam pauper est ille, qui hodie non est hoc cibo cibatus. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible]

26. Ecce mirabilis dilectio et devotio mulierum [illegible] mortuorum [illegible]; [illegible] hodie [illegible] multos recipit memoria. [illegible] cum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qui ad clamorem eius [illegible] propter mortem suis entibus currunt, et cum ipsi viderunt [illegible] porcum in alveolo statim recedunt, et illius obliti sunt: sic [illegible] mortuum [illegible] flentes dum sepeliuntur, et [illegible] eius obliviscuntur. S. Vin. ser. [illegible] in die [illegible]

27. Omnes morimur, et quasi aquæ dilabimur super terram. Totum nostrum vivere non est nisi mo-[illegible] quia comedendo [illegible] [illegible] dormiendo vel stan-do continue vadimus ad mortem quasi aquæ dilabimur. S. Vin in ser. sabbati post [illegible]

28. Licet Simon et Iudas fuerint filij
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] fuerint filij [illegible] per [illegible]
[illegible]

B. Vab. 655.
B. Herv. [illegible]

B. Vab. 427
B. Herv. 216.

B. Vab. 467

B. Vab. 724.

Magis sunt sculti et [illegible], quia sunt filij penitentiæ, quam quia sunt filij Mariæ Cleophæ: Ita de nobis si facimus penitentiam, de quibus dicit [illegible]: Non [illegible] [illegible] vocare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] S. Vin. in ser. de SS. Simon. et Jud.

29. Peccatores sunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aperturam sepulchri s. confitendo peccata [illegible] et proijciendo peccata extra: isto modo, peccator resuscitabitur de morte culpæ ad vitam [illegible] [illegible] moru minor; ideo dicit Isaias: Vivens vivens ipse confitebitur tibi, sicut et ego hodie. S. Vin. ser. in sabb. post Pascha

30. Facta confessione, oportet corrigere et emendare vitam sua [illegible] devotas orationes [illegible] utile est [illegible] mane et sero cogitare quomodo videabis Christum in cathedra suæ maiestatis [illegible] [illegible] de Virgine Maria. S. Vin. in ser. [illegible] Dom.[ca] in albis.

31. Multi credunt esse iusti, boni et perfecti sed quando tanguntur, [illegible] destruxerunt se ipsos: ideo potest dicere quilibet talis: O [illegible] ser parum de bono est in me. S. Vin. ser. i. sabb. post Pascha.

B. Vin. [illegible]

B. Vrb. ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible]
B. Hem. ~~[illegible]~~ q. 33.

[illegible]

[illegible]

primo

ligione

lo

cate

lo

nesso

ne

me

D. Che

molto

che

[illegible] mondo è l'Europa? La più piccola delle altre [illegible] ma la [illegible] è più colta. D. Quali sono i suoi confini? Al settentrione confina col mare agghiacciato; all'[illegible] coll'Asia [illegible] col Mediterraneo ed a ponente coll'Oceano. Chi è stato il primo ad abitarla? Gia[p]fet [illegible] di Noè dopo una dispersione venne a stabilirvisi. Quali Religioni son professate in Europa? La Religione Cristiana Cattolica, la Luterana, la calvinista, la Maomettana, la Cristiana Scismatica, e la [illegible] In quante parti principali si divide l'Europa? In sedici, sei delle quali sono al settentrione, cinque di mezzo, e cinque al mezzodì. Indicate queste parti! Al settentrione vi sono l'isole Britanniche, la Danimarca e l'Islanda, la Norvegia, la Svezia, la Moscovia, e la Polonia. Nel mezzo v'è l'Alemagna, i Paesi Bassi, la Francia, e l'Ungheria. Al mezzodì la Spagna, il Portogallo, la Svizzera, l'Italia, e la Turchia Europea. Tutte queste parti sono elleno regolate all'istesso modo? No: ciascheduna [illegible] una forma di governo, e le proprie sue leggi.

Dell'isole Britanniche.

D. Che cosa s'intende per isole Britanniche? R. S'intendono due isole grandi e molte piccole che si trovano nel grand Oceano [illegible]. Quali Regni abbracciano l'isole Britanniche? Tre, quello d'Inghilterra, quello di Scozia, che è quello d'Irlanda; che tutti tre oggi sono [illegible] allo stesso [illegible]. Che Religione [illegible] Inghilterra? [illegible] la Protestante Calvinista. Che cosa [illegible] della storia antica della Inghilterra? [illegible] è molto oscura prima di Giulio Cesare che vi portò il primo l'armi Romane. Ha seguito molti altri imperadori fino [illegible] decadenza dell'impero i Romani dalle truppe [illegible] vi s'introdussero gli Anglo-Sassoni, popoli che abitavano il paese di Holstein. Quando? Nel 449 l'Inghilterra senza soldati Romani, che allora avevano [illegible] i Brettoni [illegible] a chiamarli in [illegible] contro de' Pitti e degli Scotti abitanti al settentrione, che approfittarono di quell'occasione, [illegible] la Brettagna. Gli Anglo-Sassoni aiutarono i Brettoni con esito felice, [illegible] questi [illegible] s'innamorarono di quel paese, e rivoltando le armi contro gli stessi Brettoni gli costrinsero a ritirarsi nel principato del Galles, ed essi fondarono sette Regni nel [illegible] secolo [illegible], de' quali regni però [illegible] è [illegible] oscura. Quando fu portata nella Brettagna [illegible] ne Cristiana? quel tempo di queste sette regni nel 596 quando [illegible] ... fu quivi S. Agostino [illegible] quest'effetto questo, mandatovi? Gregorio il Grande e vi contava molti di S. fra quei Re d'Inghil-terra. Quando si unirono i diversi Regni? Egberto Re d'uno di essi li ha conquistati tutti gli altri, nell'819 e prese il titolo di Re d'Inghilterra, che ritennero poi sempre i suoi successori e creato. Che ci raccontedi Guglielmo il Conquistatore? Gli Re [illegible] Edoardo [illegible] in cui finirono la stirpe degli Anglosassoni istessi [illegible] lui [illegible] lui, ch'era figlio di Roberto Duca di Normandia, che ricordava dai Greci questa corona dopo finite la [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ... in-

[illegible] [illegible]; e che [illegible] per forza acquistarla, onde gli fu dato il titolo di Conquistatore;

ciò avvenne nel 1066. I successori di Guglielmo il Conquistatore furono principi? Vi furono ancor due secoli continue guerre in Inghilterra per molto loro, e si sono veduti per la corona d'Inghilterra, e nel Ducato di Normandia [illegible] [illegible] contro i [illegible] ed [illegible] contro de' Papi coll'ajuto [illegible]

ne vita del [illegible] [illegible] Chi sottomise l'Irlanda? [illegible] Quest'isola, che contro [illegible] diviso [illegible] trovasse fu aggiunta da Enrico Secondo Re d'Inghilterra, che aggiunse delle [illegible] intestine, il titolo di Re d'Irlanda però non si prese dal Re d'Inghilterra, ma al tempo di Enrico Ottavo [illegible]

co. Il Regno d'Inghilterra non fu mai posseduto dalla [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] al tempo di Giorgio Ottavo. Questi Re gli [illegible] detto Re d'Inghilterra di tutte le provincie che possedevano in Francia, indi chiamato degli Inglesi,

Chi erano [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] venne in Inghilterra, e ne prese il commando ma fu poi obbligato a

[illegible] [illegible] morte di [illegible] essendo stato creato Re Enrico, il figlio di [illegible] [illegible] i ribelli

gli [illegible] ad Enrico III? Si e fu egli necessitato a sottomettere la guerra contro i ribelli a vendere al Re di Francia tutte le Provincie che aveva [illegible] fu fatto prigione, ma liberato poi dal figlio Edoardo, che disfece l'armata nemica. Chi fu Edoardo I? Re [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] alla Corona [illegible] [illegible] Obbligò Filippo il Bello Re di Francia a restituirgli primamente di [illegible];

a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lo fece prigione. Edoardo II fu egli del carattere di suo padre? No, quelli, che fu [illegible] di [illegible] ... fu preso in [illegible] alcune provincie di Francia ... i ribelli;

della figlia di [illegible] di Valois, fu cinta degli [illegible] e di un [illegible] punto della [illegible] ... Per quale motivo [illegible] la guerra tra Edoardo e [illegible] Filippo di Valois Re di Francia? Per la successione a quel Regno, che inutilmente pretese Edoardo per essere figlio d'

[illegible] corona in luogo ad Edoardo [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Qual esito ebbe questa guerra tra Edoardo,

[illegible] Francia, che vi fece perdite notabilissime; ed Edoardo [illegible] [illegible] Regno di quel Regno ... sotto il qual Enrico V fu dichiarato Reggente di quel Regno, ... ebbero il possesso di una gran parte della Francia ... Carlo VI, ad Enrico V ne fu dichiarato Re; ma fu poi scacciato dal Delfino, che fu Carlo VII. ... Qual fu la sorte di Riccardo? Questo Principe ha [illegible] [illegible] il coraggio di [illegible] [illegible] di

[illegible] malcontento, ed avendo voluto limitata l'autorità del Parlamento [illegible], che venne tramata la sua morte

[illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] fu vinto, fatto prigione, e poi anche ucciso dal Duca di Lancastro, che [illegible] [illegible] di lui

stato cacciato in bando [illegible] ritornato con degli armati, ed era divenuto Capo di un gran Partito di Ribelli in Inghil-terra [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dal Parlamento, [illegible] [illegible] Regione [illegible] Re col nome di Enrico IV

[illegible] contiam

Isole Britanniche

+ Ulterato nel 1[illegible] [illegible] il antico [illegible] sopra [illegible] allora [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] invasò [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Re s'impossessò di quel Trono, [illegible], e due [illegible] ribellioni;
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fu [illegible] sempre soggetto all'Inghilterra [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] delle quali si fecero nuovi trattati; finchè [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] unita all'Inghilterra nel 1706 # mezzo della [illegible] Stuarda Regina d'
[illegible] Inghilterra.

che hanno sempre creduto di [illegible] al contro, che la [illegible] appartenesse all'Inghilterra.

[illegible] madre Elisabetta [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] famiglia di Lancaster. Due impostori, cioè [illegible] [illegible] ed [illegible] [illegible] pretendenti il diritto alla Corona [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] ad Enrico dal principio de' fratelli; [illegible] furono da lui vinti, e trattati con generosità. Fece allean[za] [illegible]
[illegible] Re di [illegible], [illegible] la sua figlia in [illegible] e un [illegible] il [illegible]. La di lui figlia Catterina [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] di Carlo di lui figlio [illegible] [illegible] anno 6. Chi fu Enrico VIII? Gli a seguì dalla Comunione [illegible] della Chiesa Cattolica, si diede in preda alle dissolutezze, e fu l'origine di tutti i mali [illegible]; che [illegible] quel del Regno [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ con Francesco I. Re di Francia, [illegible] poi ~~[illegible]~~ colla [illegible] [illegible] contro [illegible]
Carlo V. imperatore dopo la prigionia di Francesco I. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contro Francesco [illegible]
I. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tolto # mezzo di una [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible], il [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] morte [illegible] [illegible] morte a lui non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nel 15[illegible]? Qual fu il Regno di Odo[ardo]
IV? fu di [illegible] cinque anni, ne' quali fu sempre a cagione della età sua sotto la tutela del [illegible] di [illegible] [illegible]
e poi di quella di [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alla Religione Cattolica; l'ultimo de' quali sposò [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] i di lui capitali di Suffolck. l'anno 1553 Come [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] figlia di Enrico 8, e di Catterina d'Ara[gona]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], che si oppose agli sforzi del Duca di Northumberland [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] di Suffolck da lui in [illegible] [illegible] proclamar Regina. Qual fu la condotta di Maria ella [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ristabilire in Inghilterra la Religione Cattolica; sposò Filippo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] data a chi la dichiarò Regina, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] congiura [illegible] della propria [illegible] [illegible], e di [illegible] altri. Morì nel 1558 dopo aver perduta la piazza di Calais colle piccole [illegible] intorno [illegible] da Enrico II Re di Francia, contro cui guerreggiavano [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ed i Spagnuoli: Chi successe alla Regina Maria? Elisabetta figlia di Enrico 8, e di [illegible] Bolena [illegible] [illegible] nemicissima della Religione Cat[to] lica, e stabilì la Riformata in Inghilterra. Molte congiure furono tramate contro di lei, principalmente da [illegible] Stuarda Regina di [illegible], [illegible] però fu fatta prigioniera, e poi decapitata nel 1587, co[illegible] sa, che meritò l'odio di [illegible] potenza contro di lei, e principalmente delle [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Elisabetta continue [illegible]; e contro l'[illegible] [illegible] potenza della Spagna. Ella [illegible] molto danno all'[illegible] Spagnuole

[illegible] continua

ne Cristiano [illegible] ... la vostra [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

te di [illegible] guerreggiare [illegible]

che volle del Re di Francia. Chi sottomise l'Irlanda ~~come~~ quest'isola, che ~~costo~~ ~~agli~~ [dopo aver tormentata gli ... discordie d'[illegible]] Inghilterra fu soggiogata da Enrico secondo Re d'Inghilterra, ~~aggiungendo~~ [approfittando] delle ~~sue~~ [diverse] intestine.

Il titolo di Re d'Irlanda però non si prese dal Re d'Inghilterra, se non al tempo d'Enrico [VIII], [illegible] ... Il Regno [illegible] d'Inghilterra non fu mai posseduto dalla [illegible] [illegible] [Arrigo ... al tempo [illegible] ... Ottavo]. Quali Re

[fu detto Senzaterra] ... Giovanni Re d'Inghilterra di tutte le provincie, che possedeva in Francia, ed chiamato dai [Pari]

[illegible] erano ~~[illegible]~~ [disgustati] del [illegible] [illegible] venne in Inghilterra, a ne prese il comando ma fu però obbligato a [render via a le provincie di Francia appartenenti a quel Regno]

[illegible] ... morte di Giovanni essendo stato creato Re Enrico. [illegible] figlio di Giovanni [illegible] i ribelli

[illegible] ad Enrico [illegible] [e ritenne la guerra contro i ribelli] ... costretto a cedere al Re di Francia tutte le Provincie che [avea possedute] ... [illegible]

fu fatto prigione, ma liberato poi dal figlio Odoardo, che disfece l'armata nemica. Chi fu Odoardo I.? Un prode

Principe. Riunì alla Corona il Principato di [Galles]. Obbligò Filippo ~~[illegible]~~ [Bellet] Re di Scozia a prestargli giuramento di fedeltà, a cui avendo poi [illegible] mancato, lo fece prigione. Odoardo II fu egli del carattere di suo Padre? No. Questi ne fu [illegible] di [illegible] [che fu posto in sorte alcune provincie di Francia]

sotto [illegible] di [Filippo] di Valois, fu [illegible] dei Scozzesi e [illegible] ... ~~[illegible]~~ [dei] [illegible] [illegible] la guerra tra Odoardo III e che [illegible] la corona in luogo di Odoardo III di lui Figlio. [Per quale motivo ~~[illegible]~~] ~~[illegible] della [illegible]~~ [illegible]

[illegible] Re di Francia? Per la successione a quel Regno che inutilmente pretese Odoardo III essere figlio d'

Isabella [illegible] di Carlo IV morto senza posterità mascolina. Qual esito ebbe questa guerra tra Odoardo, [illegible] Francia? [illegible] Francia, che vi fece rendite notabilissime, ed Odoardo 3.° [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] suoi successori ebbero il possesso di una gran parte della Francia [illegible] ... quel Enrico V fu dichiarato Reggente di quel Regno [illegible] [illegible] di Carlo VI, ad Enrico V ne fu dichiarato [illegible] ... fu poi [illegible] dal Delfino, che fu Carlo VII [illegible] ... [illegible]

Qual fu la sorte di Riccardo? Questo Principe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] il coraggio di ordine fatto da[l] Popolo [illegible], ed [illegible] [illegible] l'autorità del Parlamento [illegible], che [illegible] la sua morte, [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] fu [illegible], fatto prigione, e poi anche ucciso dal Duca di Lancastro, che ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] essendo da lui

[illegible] cacciato in bando [illegible] ritornato con delle armate, ed era divenuto Capo di un gran Partito di Ribelli in Inghil-

terra [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [riconosciuto] dal Parlamento [illegible] [illegible] Re col nome di Enrico passò il Regno [nella casa di York]? A forza di ribellioni da lui eccitate gli riuscì di far prigioniero [Enrico] VI, e di farsi dichiarare tutore del Regno, e successore dopo la morte di Enrico. Questo infelice Principe rinunziò la Corona, e Riccardo prese il nome di Odoardo 4. Il di lui Regno fu pieno di turbolenze, e di ribellioni; [illegible] morì [illegible] d'Inghilterra, ma il di lui figlio Odoardo V [d'11 anni] non potè [illegible] che cinque mesi la Corona rapitagli dai maneggi del Duca di Glocester suo zio paterno che lo fece [uccidere insieme col di lui fratello] [illegible], [facendosi dichiarar Re col nome] di Riccardo III. Come finì Riccardo 3.? Essendo salito al trono con via di scelleraggini non tardò molto a pagarne il fio. Si unì l'unico figliuolo, et l'unico Conte di Richmond coll'ajuto di Carlo VIII Re di Francia [e di un gran partito nella Brettagna] gli mosse guerra, in cui perdette la vita. Questi fu Enrico VII. D.

Che si racconta del Regno di Enrico VII.? Fu questi a ragione chiamato il Salomone dell'Inghilterra. Egli pose [illegible] Elisabetta erede della Casa d'York, con che pose termine alle lunghe contese di queste due case [illegible] di Lancaster. Due impostori, cioè Lambert Simnel et Perkin Warbeck [pretendendo] il diritto alla corona [illegible] [illegible] diedero ad Enrico [illegible] in principio de' suoi [illegible], e trattati con generosità. Fece alleanza con Giacomo Re di Scozia, cui diede la sua figlia in sposa, e con Ferdinando il Cattolico, di cui la figlia Catterina divenne sposa di Arturo di lui figliuolo, che fu poi Enrico 8. Chi fu Enrico VIII? Egli si separò dalla Comunione della Chiesa Cattolica, si diede in preda alle dissolutezze, e fu l'origine di tutti i mali, che opprimono quel del Regno. Ebbe guerra con Francesco I. Re di Francia. [illegible] poi [collegatosi] [illegible] contro Carlo V dopo la prigionia di Francesco I. [illegible] in seguito si collegò di nuovo [illegible] contro Francesco
I. [illegible] mezzo di una somma di danaro. Non eseguì però il trattato [illegible] la morte [illegible] sopraggiunse morte a lui non lo [illegible] nel 1547. Qual fu il Regno di Odo-ardo VI.? Fu di soli cinque anni, ne' quali fu sempre a ragione dell'età sua sotto la tutela del Duca di Somerset [illegible] alla Religione Cattolica. L'ultimo de' quali sforzò Odoardo [illegible] [illegible] l'anno 1553 [illegible] di lui cugina di Suffolck. Come [illegible] figlia di Enrico 8, e di Catterina d'Arago-na? Ella fu riconosciuta dalla Nobiltà, e dal popolo, che si oppose agli sforzi del Duca di Northumberland [illegible] favore di Giovanna Gray di Suffolck da lui in Londra fatta proclamare Regina. Qual fu la condotta di Maria? Ella [illegible] [illegible] ristabilì [illegible] la Religione Cattolica. Sposò Filippo [illegible]
[illegible] a chi la dichiarò Regina [illegible] una congiura [illegible] [illegible], e di [illegible] altri. Morì nel 1558 dopo aver perduta la [illegible] di Calais [illegible] da Enrico II Re di Francia, contro cui guerreggiavano [illegible] gl'Inglesi ed i Spagnuoli. Chi successe alla Regina Maria? Elisabetta figlia di Enrico 8, e di Anna Bolena [illegible] nemicissima della Religione Cattolica, e stabilì la Riformata in Inghilterra. Molte congiure furono tramate contro di lei, principalmente da Maria Stuarda Regina di Scozia, la quale però fu fatta prigioniera, e poi decapitata nel 1587; cosa che mosse l'odio di varie potenze contro di lei, e principalmente della Spagna, contro di cui ella [illegible] continue [illegible]; e contro l'Irlanda [illegible] dalla Spagna. Ella diede molto danno all'Indie Spagnuole continuazione

O[illegible]

nell'[illegible] ipsa fu mai maritata, benchè sia stata ricercata da molti Principi, e [illegible] più volte da' suoi sudditi [illegible] in specie [illegible] dell'Inghilterra e vi stabilì varie manifatture. La morte di lei accadde nel 1602. Chi successe nel Regno d'Inghilterra ad Elisabetta? Jacopo I figliuolo di Maria Stuarda Re di Scozia dichiarato da Elisabetta per suo successore. Qual fu il di lui regno? Furono tramate due congiure contro la di lui vita [illegible] una sostenuta da Filippo 3 di Spagna, e l'altra fu quella tanto famosa delle polveri [illegible] pace colla Spagna. Perchè riunì in se stesso le Corone di Scozia, e d'Inghilterra prese il titolo di Re della gran Brettagna; si crede, che avesse risolto di riunirsi colla S. Sede; ma glielo impedì la morte avvenutagli nel 1625. Chi fu Carlo I. Egli era figliuolo del defunto Jacopo I. È stato il più infelice di tutti i Re d'Inghilterra. Guerreggiò inutilmente contro la Spagna, e contro la Francia per le sue [illegible], e perdè l'amore de' suoi sudditi. Ebbe l'imprudenza di voler [illegible] i diritti del Parlamento, di mettere delle gabelle a capriccio e [illegible] i Calvinisti Presbiteriani, ch'erano in maggior numero per innalzare gli Episcopali e di [illegible]. La Camera Bassa, che [illegible] per guerreggiare gli Scozzesi [illegible] grande fermento contro di lui. Che cosa fece il Parlamento del 1640, nominato il lungo. Questo Parlamento separato dal Re ad istanza degli Scozzesi fu la funesta cagione di tutti quei mali, che aggravarono in seguito il Re, e tutta l'Inghilterra. In esso la ribellione fu manifesta, ~~[illegible]~~ ed decretò la morte de' ministri di lui difensori, si obbligò a sottoscrivere molte ~~[illegible]~~ deliberazioni contro la propria [illegible]. Non vennero all'armi i ribelli contro il Re Carlo? Vennero, e furono più volte battuti; ma uniti a questi gli [illegible] il Re ricorse [illegible] presso quest'ultimi, che lo venderono al Parlamento d'Inghilterra a patto [illegible] fosse rispettata ~~[illegible]~~. Non insorse allora in Inghilterra un'altra fazione? Sì, e fu quella degl'indipendenti sotto la condotta di [illegible] e di Oliviero Cromwell uno de' più facinorosi [illegible] siansi veduti. Gl'indipendenti vinsero i Parlamentari, e gli Scozzesi, che si erano uniti [illegible] persona del Re, e [illegible] di gente scellerata affatto giudicarlo. [illegible] magistrati [illegible] al n° di 150, tra soli furono così empj, che ardissero di votare contro la sua persona, che per giudizio di costoro fu decapitato circa di Gennajo ~~[illegible]~~ 1648 giorno funesto ~~[illegible]~~ per gl'Inglesi ed in cui la Nazione ogni anno fa rinnovare con un pubblico digiuno il suo pentimento. Che seguì dopo la morte di Carlo I.? Carlo 2 di lui figliuolo fu dagli Scozzesi riconosciuto per Re; ma Cromwell marciò contro di loro, battè le loro truppe e una grande parte di Scozia? Carlo salvò la vita fuggendo; Cromwell entrò trionfante in Londra e [illegible] dichiarato Protettore della Repubblica; ~~[illegible]~~ Dichiarò egli la guerra agli Olandesi, e riportò molti vantaggi, obbligandoli a chieder la pace. e finalmente morì nel 1658 coll'estimazione di gran guerriero; ma del più scellerato uomo, che al- [illegible] l'Inghilterra. Qual effetto produsse la morte di Cromwell in [illegible] Che il Re Carlo 2 fosse alla fine dopo [illegible] contrasti per mezzo principalmente del General Monk nominato Re d'Inghilterra. Come fu il Regno di Carlo 2? Fu pieno di guai. Ebbe guerra felice cogli Olandesi; ma ebbe continui disgusti [illegible] da' suoi sudditi, i quali avendo [illegible] al Duca d'York di lui fratello perchè s'era fatto cattolico volevano obbligare il Re a dichiararlo incapace di succedergli [illegible]

corpus ita suspensum ut aliquid remaneat aut ex [illegible] aut ex [illegible]

Chi fu Jacopo 2°? fratello di Carlo 2° e suo successore. Cattolico com'era con consiglieri e fautori cattolici. Disperò soggetti a gravissimi sacrifici avendo i suoi sudditi fatto chiamare in Inghilterra dopo la nascita del Principe [illegible] Guglielmo 3 il Principe e Conte Statolder d'Olanda genero suo e [illegible] vi fu coronato, avendo dovuto il legittimo Re colla sua famiglia ritirarsi in Francia presso Luigi XIV che lo mantenne. Ciò avvenne nel 1689 donde fu il Regno di Guglielmo 3. Egli si oppose con esito sempre felice a Jacopo 2, che comandato per Francia fece vari tentativi per rientrare nel possesso de' suoi stati. Finalmente fece pace con Luigi XIIII che lo riconobbe per Re d'Inghilterra. Aspirò ad una parte del Regno di Spagna per la morte di Carlo 2, che non avea figli ma inutilmente, avendolo questi lasciato per testamento al Duca d'Angiò suo nipote, e vide altresì che Luigi XIV dopo la morte di Giacomo 2 riconobbe per Re d'Inghilterra il Principe di Galles col nome di Giacomo 3. Morì egli finalmente nel 1702.

gli davvero ipso fu mai marito. Benché sia stato ricevuto ... più volte

Per
ne
l' la fe
O, an
l.
e.
me
imm one fare appr altr
...
respi tasse fu g
...
ch non Persona il un di ols
e loro.
di riuno
la pose.
S.a ma alla fine fu il fe e molte
gente ial

corpus ita suspensum, ut aliquod semper aut ex asperitate aut ex aere aut aliunde non adsit impedimentum quo vel glob[illegible] vel [illegible] motus sensim debeat retardari. Sin ergo [illegible] vi illorum impedimentorum motus retardatur, nunquam corpori immutatur. Si quae officit, quod globus aliquando ex impetu procedens per planum, repente in contrariam partem retrocedere videatur: id enim ex eo oritur quod globus motu contrario motui impulsionis circa proprium axem adhuc rotatur cumque motus rotationis perseveret, cum adhuc proiectionis motus iam languerit et desierit: fieri siquidem debet ut corpus in contrariam partem rotationis contrariam a subiecto plano resistente accipiat directionem, atque ita retrocedere quoque non sponte, sed necessario cogatur. Quod denique corpus secundum lineam rectam orizontaliter proiectum curvam in descensu describat, id repetendum pariter est non a spontanea virtute [illegible] sed a viribus impressis, quarum altera recta orizontem versus, altera versus centrum ferre corpus conatur. Ex duplici enim duarum virium potentia, impulsione nempe ad orizontem et retractione ad centrum quae per duas motus lineas [illegible] rectum [illegible] describitur tertia quaedam oritur proprie seu directio motus curvam illam describens, quam pro exemplo habemus in compositionis [illegible] illaret. Quaenam vero ea curva sit, [illegible] non est huius loci explicare.

[illegible] Si constat experientia [illegible] in corporibus [illegible] quae status sui mutationi conantur [illegible]; experientia constat [illegible] in corporibus quae sunt in motu; ergo in corporibus quiescentibus non debet admitti. Et [illegible] corpus quiescens nullum [illegible] motum producit; contra autem corpus [illegible] in [illegible] quiescens illud movet. [illegible] vis inertiae, seu resistentiae maioris aut minoris, ex notione acquiritur maioris vel minoris motus, nunquam vero ex notione quietis: nullam ergo notionem [illegible] inertiae in corpore quiescente. Praeterquam quod si corpora etiam in motu posita habent vim inertiae [illegible] nulla est motus continuandi causa: [illegible] [illegible] status corporis immutatur

[illegible] cum celeberrimo [illegible] [illegible] ejus est [illegible] huius difficultatis [illegible]. Facile, inquit ipse sibi persuadent homines meditationi [illegible] philosophicae [illegible]; [illegible] in corporibus motis [illegible] quarum, quo carent corpora quiescentia, inde autem originem [illegible] error ille quo inanimatis corporibus ea facilius tribuimus, quae in proprio corpore observamus. [illegible] vim vi nomen ad inanimata [illegible] levi etiam attentione [illegible] non posse [illegible] triplici [illegible] Si corpori inanimato propriam sensationem tribuamus [illegible] si vis nomine intelligamus metaphysicam quandam entitatem a motu [illegible] diversam; quam quidem nulla ratione intelligere nec [illegible] possumus: 3° tandem si vi nomine significemus [illegible] atque [illegible] etiam [illegible] non [illegible] Haec autem ultima significatio sola est rationi consona. [illegible] nomini hanc significationem [illegible] corpori [illegible] motu competit, et quidem non minus [illegible] motus continuatio tanquam [illegible] nasci potest. Tandem dum corpus [illegible] corpori quiescenti motum imprimit, id facere non potest sine aliqua proprii motus iactura. Quae quidem [illegible] ex vi, qua corpus quiescens status mutationi resistit, [illegible] corpori quiescenti non [illegible] motu tribuenda est [illegible] ad [illegible] statum [illegible] [illegible] Ita Pater loquar. Quod vero subditur de causa motus continuati[illegible]

si attendatur, id quod notissimum est non modo inter sui [illegible], sed inter homines qui ratione [illegible]; nullam aliam esse continuationi motus primariam causam, praeter Deum ipsum, qui non motum duntaxat, sed res omnes conservat; secundam autem causam esse vim inertiae. Falso enim motus continuatio, continua status corporis mutatio dicitur: quandoquidem status corporis, eo non immutatur quod loci puncta seu relationes ad entia circumposita immutantur: cum relationes, ut satis dictum est nihil in natura rei subiecti mutent quod ingressu sive alia itaque ratione perseverant motus, et optime [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quam qua continuantur corporis alicuius figura, color, aut aliae huiusmodi affectiones, quae semper easdem permanent, nisi vis aliqua eas turbaverit. Caeterum Philosophi qui tantas lites excitant de motus communicatione, deque continua aut instantanea vis motricis actione, oleum et operam perdunt, ut dicitur: cum ea quaestio vel [illegible] paucis verbis, vel nullis omnino in Metaphysica solvi possit: in Physica vero ad aestimandos effectus, quod unice volumus, nihil [illegible] conferat. Ab ea igitur abstinemus. Et cum de passivo principio satis dictum videatur ad principium activum iam gradum [illegible] facimus.

Quemadmodum passivi principii nomine non entitatem aliquam metaphysicam a sensationibus nostris diversam, sed effectum ipsum, seu proprietatem in eo manifestatam quod corpus in statu suo motus vel quietis perseverare conatur; ita nomine principii Activi nihil aliud intelligi volumus quam ipsum effectum seu motum quo corpus actu movetur seu quantitatem motus quam habet vel quam remotis impedimentis habere potest. Quam enim notionem alicuius facti acquirimus cum corpus aliquod in aliud incurrens, ipsum ad motum excitat, [illegible], idem quia causam investigemus, principii activi nomine designamus. Haec itaque vis activa [illegible] [illegible] nostro, differt eo [illegible] actione [illegible], sive a quantitate motus actu [illegible] [illegible] nihil aliud est quam aggregatum [illegible] producenda remotis omnibus impedimentis. Quantitas autem motus, [illegible] velocitatum, quae datur in corpore moto, pro ratione singularum [illegible] particularum quibus ipsum componitur et corpus. Velocitates enim sunt illae particularum affectiones quibus datum aliquod spatium dato tempore percurrunt: percurrunt vero eo tempore, quo corpus ipsum percurrit in quo consistunt; [illegible] enim corpus [illegible] non contra quam supponimus. Eadem ergo et quantitatem motus esse productum ex numero particularum seu quantitate materiae in velocitatem. Sed velocitas uti diximus est illa corporis affectio, qua dato tempore datum spatium percurrit: ergo prout maius vel minus spatium, maior vel minor est velocitas: ergo maior vel minor motus in corpore pro maiore vel minore quantitate materiae, itemque pro maiore vel minore quantitate spatii ab eadem materiae quantitate percursi. Eadem ergo materiae quantitas eodem tempore idem spatium [illegible] percurrens, eandem habet motus quantitatem: [illegible] materiae quantitas quanto maius spatium eodem tempore [illegible], [illegible] habet motus quantitatem [illegible] [illegible] pro [illegible] [illegible] quantitate idem spatium percurrens eandem habet motus quantitatem. Hinc sequitur quod si tanto maior sit materiae quantitas quanto minus est spatium quod eodem tempore percurritur, eadem sit motus quantitas: [illegible] si tanto minus sit tempus quanto maior est materiae quantitas, idem spatium percurrens eadem erit motus quantitas: et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] magis patebit. Fingamus corpus aliquod [illegible] [illegible], cuius quantitatem materiae ponimus esse ut decem [illegible] movemus ipsum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et quaeque [illegible] magis patebit [illegible], [illegible]

Sed ut magis id pateat, fingamus ex. gr. corpora duo moveri, quorum alterius quantitas materiæ sit ut centum, velocitas ut decem; alterius vero quantitas materiæ ut decem, celeritas ut centum: quæritur deinde ex nobis utrum corpus æque moveatur; motus quia in utroque æqualis uter magis moveatur? Ex iam dictis respondendum erit utrumque [illegible] numerus [illegible] est mille: cum in utroque quantitas materiæ in quantitatem velocitatis ducta adæquet productum ex decem in centum quod est mille. Patet ergo quando ex ratione velocitatis et quantitatis materiæ ratio ex[illegible] quantitatis motus.

Ingeniosa modo Notio primo velocitatis ex ratione æquiritur spatii et temporis: Ponamus duo corpora æqualia ita moveri, ut alterum decem horæ minutis unum passum peragerat, alterum uno horæ minuto passus decem; iam ducto in se tempore et spatio utriusque nempe decem et uno; deraticæ productum quem numerum in utroque velocitas non æquabit: sed in primo velocitas est [illegible] nempe decem et uno; [illegible] ergo requiritur ut in utroque velocitas æqualis sit: nempe ut [illegible] ad decem [illegible] et decem ad [illegible]. Patet igitur quo tempus maius in eodem spatio minor est velocitatis et [illegible] tempore idem spatium percurrat. [illegible] quo tempus minus in eodem spatio: [illegible] maior est velocitas in [illegible] eodem tempore [illegible] velocitas quo tempus minus in eodem spatio. Hoc illud et quod [illegible] Geometræ dicunt: velocitatem in maiori spatio eodem tempore [illegible] in ratione reciproca temporum in iisdem spatiis, et in ratione reciproca [illegible] in iisdem temporibus [illegible] in ratione reciproca temporum in iisdem spatiis [illegible] ad tempus. Quod si [illegible].

Velocitatis ergo ratio a ratione pendet illius rationis quam spatium [illegible] ad tempus: per relationem est [illegible] ratio cognoscatur temporis ad spatium et vicissim spatii ad tempus: per [illegible] relationem respiceremus velocitatem vel ad motum, vel ad spatium et tempus aliud. Nam spatii aut temporis absolutam notionem habere non possumus ut iam diximus. Sed [illegible] et nobis spatii et temporis [illegible] notio: [illegible] habere qui de velocitate aut motu non [illegible] sed relativis agere [illegible] facile est etiam [illegible] motus et velocitatis, adeoque de actionis [illegible] intelligere [illegible]

[illegible] nihil enim aliud est nisi actio contraria: Cum scilicet in actione [illegible] reactio: nihil enim aliud est nisi actio contraria: Cum scilicet in actione [illegible] motus a corpore agente amittatur, tantundem corpus [illegible] excipiat; [illegible] unde illud est Physicorum principium: Reactionem actioni contrariam [illegible] in reactione [illegible] experientia [illegible]; interim et [illegible] esse. De veritate [illegible] principii in sequentibus [illegible]

quantitatem materiæ [illegible] magnam [illegible] et [illegible] motus [illegible] quantitatis materiæ [illegible] consideretur velocitas aucta vel retardata [illegible] illam [illegible] vim accelerantem [illegible] His præmissis [illegible]

[illegible] II. Actioni semper æqualis et [illegible] contraria reactio.

Prop. [illegible]

Prob. [illegible] ut demonstratum est, illud [illegible] corpora omnia [illegible] mutationi [illegible]. Sed quando non [illegible] manifestatur quando nempe corpus aliquod [illegible] sui motus quantitatem in aliud corpus [illegible] motus quantitatem illam [illegible] mutationem, ita resultat, ut non [illegible] in se induci quam [illegible] Pugnant ergo [illegible] duo corpora [illegible] pro pari [illegible] in corporis [illegible] quam quietam [illegible] inertia, quo pugnat [illegible] in utroque sit, ut [illegible] quantitati materiæ [illegible] neutrum [illegible] conflictu vincat neutro vincatur. sed unumquodque tantundem quantum dat tantundem vice versa ab altero accipiat. Nam quod corpus unum agens dicatur, aliud vero patiens non respectu vi inertiae dicitur, sed motus et quietis. Sive enim corpus moveatur sive quiescat semper eadem est in eo vis inertiae eodem modo agit. [illegible] proportionalem obtinet dicimus. Ergo corpus agens [illegible] actionis, idem est cum corpore patiente adeoque aequalis est actioni reactio: ratione vero qualitatis actioni est contraria reactio.

Prob. [illegible] vis inertiae omnibus inest corporibus, et est [illegible] profecto inest, qua durent status sui mutationi resistunt. Sed quandonam resistentia [illegible] quando nempe corpus unum etiam sui motus quantitatem in aliud corpus transmittit, illudque quantitatem illam motus accipere cogitur. Necesse est enim ut utrumque [illegible] status sui mutationi resistat. Conatur enim corpus A movere corpus B. corpus [illegible] quantitatem [illegible] quam corpus A [illegible] transmittit debet [illegible] mutare: [illegible] ergo resistit mutationi, et [illegible] novum statum motus [illegible] [illegible] par pro [illegible] [illegible]. Sed corpus A datam motus quantitatem [illegible] in [illegible]. Sed corpus A est in statu motus ergo resistit immutationi, [illegible] quietis, quae advenit ex B. Pugnant ergo inter se duo corpora [illegible] et [illegible] quietem [illegible] motum [illegible]. [illegible] inertiae [illegible] eadem in utroque est, proportionalis quippe est quantitati materiae; inde fit ut neutrum in eo conflictu vincat neutrum vincatur, [illegible] quantum dat tantum [illegible] accipiat. Nam quod unum corpus agens dicatur alterum vero patiens non ideo maior vis in uno quam in altero cernitur; sed qualitas denotat actionis [illegible] [illegible] motus [illegible] proprietas designatur qua distinguitur ipsa vis. Una ergo et eadem [illegible] in actione tum in reactione operatur modo quidem seu relatione contraria, sed quantitate, et ut ita dicam [illegible] activitate aequali. Et sane si actioni corporis aequalis plane non esset reactio, quomodo dici posset corpus [illegible] suae mutationi resistere? resisterent quippe alicui tantum mutationis parti non omnino, adeoque non esset in omni corpore et in qualibet componente parte inertia. quod [illegible] experimentis est demonstratum. Non ergo ex notione vis inertiae necessario notio consequitur huius principii, quam ex ipsa huius principii notione inertiae notio confirmatur. Quod si quis, ad rem planius intelligendam [illegible] ita moveantur [illegible] adversus [illegible] corpora duo sibi repraesentet [illegible] et alterum in alterum impingat aut vel ita moveantur [illegible] [illegible] vel ita moveantur eandem directionem et [illegible] celerius moveatur in [illegible], vel corpus quod movetur in aliud quiescens: in qualibet [illegible] casu [illegible] actioni reactionem [illegible] et aequalem depraehendet [illegible] utroque corpore [illegible] propter eandem motus [illegible] in [illegible] casu tantum motus accedat quiescenti quantum impingente [illegible] tantum quiescens [illegible] quantum [illegible] amittit. Nam cum motus quantitas [illegible] ex quantitate velocitatis et materiae [illegible] velocitates [illegible] motus [illegible] et [illegible] quantitatem materiae [illegible] totam quantitatem motus [illegible] quae fuit ante conflictum et [illegible] post conflictum et comparationes [illegible] per conflictum [illegible] cognoscetur. [illegible] non [illegible] experimenta [illegible] non [illegible], [illegible] vero facile. [illegible] illis sit respondendum qui negant Reactionem actioni contrariam et æqualem esse quod in aliquibus experimentis [illegible] tantundem motus transire in corpus quiescens quantum in corpus motum [illegible] quietis quando hoc in aliud impingit. Vident enim ex. gr. navim sensibili velocitate a littore recedere, cum nauta manu vel conto agit in ipsum littus et urget, neque tamen littus vel tantillum moveri: vident maxima velocitate lapidem descendere in subjectam tellurem impingere, neque tamen tantundem velocitatis in tellure excitari. Hi aliique similes [illegible] [illegible] dictus colligitur [illegible]. Inde enim fit ut reactionem actioni contrariam et æqualem [illegible] illis experimentis non agnoscant, quia sensum nostrum insensibilitas et impedimenta. Ea enim hæc est ut possit quidem spatium ubi magnum quod dato tempore corpus motum percurrit, [illegible] non vero ut quoniam [illegible] [illegible] spatiolum [illegible] pæne menti, et dum oculorum aciem fugiat. Jam ergo hæc sensuum insensibilitas veluti impe[illegible] [illegible] patent, etiam [illegible] littore relata ad navim, in tellure relata ad lapidem, non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] proportionalem quantitati materiæ [illegible] littoris et navis [illegible], quem motum mente percipimus [illegible] quantitatem [illegible], a quantitate materiæ ducente comparamus [illegible], cum motu [illegible] [illegible] motus ex producto [illegible] in massam et [illegible] uti supra [illegible]. Quare ergo et contrariæ actioni reactio [illegible] experimentis in quibus [illegible] comprehenditur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible]. [illegible] sufficiat ostenditur [illegible] navem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible]. Quare si [illegible] ver experimento [illegible] ventus [illegible] [illegible] in tellurem [illegible] sensibus experimenta facere non licet, [illegible] impedimentum et veritas patebit per arithmeticam consequentiam; licet per physica etiam pateat experimenta [illegible] [illegible] analogia. Neque vero ex eo quod actioni æqualis [illegible] [illegible] perpetuam quietem [illegible] [illegible]. Sequeretur enim hoc in casu [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] actionis [illegible] agentes in motus [illegible] æquales, ita ut [illegible] [illegible]; non vero in casu quod una vis aliam superet. Sed nos cum de vi inertiæ loquimur [illegible] fit ut actioni sit æqualis et contraria reactio, utique [illegible] loquimur [illegible] [illegible] valet. Actionem ergo et activo quo [illegible] [illegible] æquali [illegible] principio actio; reactionem non caeteris æqualis esse [illegible] [illegible]. Ita ex. gr. equus qui funi alligatus sed quatenus [illegible] a principio [illegible] [illegible] trahit unius et pondus seu resistentia mille [illegible], si mille [illegible] [illegible] impendat [illegible] [illegible] non movebit. Tota [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] æqualem [illegible] [illegible] ... Passivum ergo principium quo corpus [illegible] lapis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et reactionem [illegible] determinat quatenus lapis [illegible] lapidem moveat, [illegible] [illegible]. Principium vero activum [illegible] agere [illegible] quo [illegible] [illegible] aliquo [illegible] superat a quantitate [illegible] proportionale [illegible] a principio [illegible] determinato [illegible] [illegible] reactio [illegible] semper [illegible]. Vis parvis itaque [illegible] omnia. Actioni æqualis et contraria semper est reactio, non tamen reactio semper [illegible] vim a qua oritur actio. Sic resistentia lapidis est æqualis actioni equi in lapidem, non autem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Equilibrium ergo perpetuum et quies dabitur [illegible] [illegible] absurdum [illegible].

Oppositioni reactionem aequalem et contrariam dicimus, observavimus iam aequalitatem in quantitate, contrarietatem in qualitate esse spectandam: nunc superest animadvertendum, quid quantitati, quid qualitati nomine proprie velimus intelligi. Quantitatis ergo nomine illam qualitatem in motu intelligimus, qua maior vel minor dicitur, ratione maioris, vel minoris vis impellentis: qualitatem vero eam nominamus [illegible], qua corporis motus in unam potius quam in alteram partem dirigitur, seu determinatur. Ita ex. gr. si pilam lusoriam data vi ut octo in parietem impello, ut octo dicitur quantitas motus in pila: si vero dato modo vel perpendiculariter vel oblique ipsam impello, perpendicularis, vel obliqua qualitas motus est: et illa gradus octo, haec qualitas determinatio motus appellatur. Neque vero fit ut quantitas seu gradus motus immutetur, ex eo quod qualitas seu determinatio motus immutatur: sive oblique pila in parietem impingat, sive perpendiculariter, modo ab eadem vi sit impulsa, semper eadem est quantitas motus. Quamvis ergo motus ratione sui simplex dicatur sit, ac mobile unam tantum lineam seu rectam seu curvam describat dum ex uno in aliud punctum movetur, duas tamen aut plures nonnunquam in eo determinationes concipimus motusque ex duabus aut pluribus determinationibus quodammodo compositus dicitur, ubi scilicet duae vel plures causae unum et idem mobile in diversas partes eodem movere conantur: quo casu singulis determinationibus aut potentiis motricibus satisfacere debet motus. Si quis ex. gr. vel flumen cimba traiicere ab A in B, et eadem prorsus vi ab aqua profluente abripiatur in G, quae propellitur a Vento vel a remis in D tunc neque rectam A.G. neque rectam A.D. sequetur, sed lineam A K describet. Nam si primo momento vi Venti aut remorum ad punctum B perveniret, atque vi fluminis ad punctum E pervenire quoque debuisset suo [illegible] motui satisfaciat, ut et ad punctum D tanto intervallo propius accedat, quantum est inter A et B. et ad punctum G. tanto intervallo quantum inter A et E intercedit, necesse profecto est et primo momento sit in puncto H. secundo in I, tertio in K.

Theorema de [illegible] allatum valet etiam ad demonstrandam compositionem plurium virium aliarum. Si enim diagonalis ita inventa conferatur cum vi tertia, et ita inveniatur diagonalis, et ita deinceps donec veniatur ad communem virium omnium diagonalem, quae indicat directio appellatur [illegible] in linea in qua [illegible] componuntur vires, quamquam corpus nullo impedimento distractum semper insistat. Fieri potest eadem ratione qua componuntur per latera nempe, vires resolvi quoque posse, quae operatio virium resolutio vocatur. Cavendum tamen est ut id ne [illegible] vires per latera confundatur; [illegible] componentibus non est aequalis. Cum enim vires componentes repraesententur per latera trianguli, [illegible] tertium latus et ipsa vis composita; vires componentes maiores semper indubitanter debent esse vi composita quemadmodum latera duo trianguli maiora sunt tertio. ut patet. Vires itaque illas quae per latera exhibentur aequipollentes vocare possumus: Patet motum idem esse sive corpus urgeatur viribus duobus per latera, sive urgeatur vi unica per diagonalem ex duobus viribus compositam.

Postquam demonstravimus, quam directionem seu quam lineam describere debeat corpus, quod a pluribus viribus [illegible] componuntur; nunc videndum est quaenam directio vel quae linea oriuntur ex viribus, quæ uniformes et simul non essent. ~~Fingamus~~ [illegible] ex. gr. motum pilæ e tormento bellico explosæ [illegible] Jam pila hæc, uti patet, a duplici [illegible] vi ~~horizontali~~ [altera] quæ a pulvere impressa [et] [altera] perpendiculari quæ a gravitate [illegible]. Sit [illegible] recta C D quæ horizontalem representet motu æquabili uniformi: [illegible] motus ille uniformis in pila ~~vis requirit~~ fingamus [illegible] explicationis gratia [illegible] recta C A vel D B quæ vim perpetuam magis ac magis, semper motum accelerantem [illegible] ~~Corpus~~ [illegible] motu uniformi [illegible] recta [illegible] angulis [illegible]

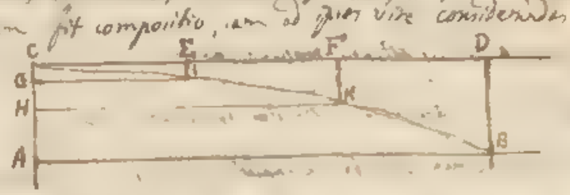
[illegible] per vim [illegible]. Et [illegible] gravitatis [illegible] semper [illegible] magis [illegible]

[illegible] paulatim ab horizontali [illegible], ut E I primum [illegible] F K [illegible] D B [illegible] C E, C F [illegible] H [illegible]

H perpetuo acceleratum [illegible] E I, F F K [illegible]. Igitur triangula C E I, C F K C D B non sunt [illegible] triangula illa utcunque minima [illegible] et rectæ quævis E I, F K, D B [illegible] non [illegible] ac propterea [illegible]. Quod de pila e tormento [illegible] et per aerem [illegible] [illegible] quæ [illegible] in hujusmodi corporibus [illegible] gravitatis [illegible] motus, nunquam aut fere nunquam [illegible] esse contingat, hinc [illegible] a motu [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] viribus ~~[illegible]~~ composita [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ Cognita [illegible] compositio, [illegible] considerandas [illegible]



[illegible]

Prop. III Inest omnibus corporibus [illegible]

[illegible] intelligitur quæ corpora se se invicem trahunt, vel a puncto aliquo [illegible] in quo perpetuo [illegible] [illegible] vocatur; [illegible] ergo inest omnibus [illegible] corporibus [illegible] omnes quæcunque [illegible] plane [illegible] perpolite [illegible] [illegible] ibi invicem superimponuntur se se [illegible] tanta [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] vix ullo [illegible] conatu possint divelli; idque non modo in aperto aere, sed in spatio [illegible] ubi [illegible] experimenta sæpe facta [illegible] in vacuo Boyleano. [illegible] vitrea, metallica aut ex alia materia [illegible] in vase vel ~~[illegible]~~ non pleno, vel pleno [illegible] aqua ~~[illegible]~~ dependentibus ut facile [illegible] continua in vase non pleno [illegible] ab ipsius vasis lateribus globulos [illegible] in aqua [illegible] [illegible] Corpora ergo [illegible] in [illegible] se se invicem [illegible] Duæ cuiusque fluidi sive naturalis sive artificialis guttæ [illegible] vel [illegible] [illegible] invicem contingant statim [illegible] [illegible] guttæ fluidi cujuscunque, aeris, igne [illegible] [illegible] guttam [illegible] obtinent figuram: at, [illegible] partes omnes se se invicem petere [illegible] quæ naturalem [illegible] gravitatem [illegible] continent, ne proprio ponderi [illegible] plani superficiei [illegible] conformarent. [illegible] inter diversorum fluidorum partes attractionem vigere inde patet quod si fluida fluidis aliquibus puta albumen ovi acido spiritui salis marini, aut [illegible] miscueantur [illegible] major minorve fuerit vis attrahens particularum [illegible] coagulare ut aiunt, vertuntur firmius [illegible] [illegible]

fluida a solidis attrahi. Nam primo aquae omnes, vina, aceta, olea tenuia quaecunque et spiritus seorsim infusa in vas vitreum [illegible] [illegible] attrahuntur, versus ea feruntur, iisque adhaerent ac altius assurgunt, ita ut concavam superficiem [illegible] [illegible] exhibeant, et elevationem [illegible] obtineant. Secundo si corpus solidum [illegible] non pingue in aquae fluminis immergatur et deinde extrahatur, fluida [illegible] adhaerebunt, et ita quidem ut si corpus a fluidis lente extrahatur, priusquam paulatim [illegible] separentur, aliquantulum [illegible] [illegible] interveniente quasi fluidorum columna a solido attracta, quae ob eo [illegible] [illegible] non separantur nisi cum ipsius gravitas solidi attractionem [illegible]. Tertio sint duo aequalia specula plana [illegible] et polita quae parvo admodum intervallo a se disjuncta inclinata vel recta in [illegible] aquae immergantur. Si parallelos habuerint [illegible] aqua [illegible] inter specula ascendet eo altius quo minus inter se [illegible], ac aqua sublata [illegible] terminantur. Si [illegible] juncta ad latus unum, et ad alterum separata angulum [illegible], pariter sua sponte ascendet aqua altius ubi specula propiora sunt, humilius ubi sunt specula [illegible] elevata aqua linea [illegible] terminatur [illegible] speciem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Quarto [illegible] repetito ac [illegible] si [illegible] [illegible] vitri laminae [illegible] parallelae [illegible], [illegible] extremitas [illegible] tangat, ut angulum [illegible] autem [illegible] aut quaedam minutorum intercipiat, tum alteri [illegible] laminae extremitati gutta aliqua olei [illegible] imponatur constat experimento guttam ipsam a vitreis laminis attractam motu accelerato ferri [illegible] illam quae laminarum [illegible] attractio, [illegible] laminae se contingunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tangentes laminarum extremitate [illegible] laminis [illegible] [illegible] guttae [illegible] [illegible], aere longiore per vitrum transeunte. Fluida itaque a [illegible] attrahi probant experimenta. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attrahi, idque [illegible] fluida fuerint specifice leviora [illegible] gravior. Sic [illegible] in aura aqua [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attractione [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] et aqua [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] experimento, [illegible] et similia, [illegible] omnibus adhaerent. Valet ergo et [illegible] a fluidis attrahi. Constat itaque inter corpora terrestria in quibus [illegible] experimenta mutuam esse attractionem adeoque in omnibus

~~[illegible] ex analogia [illegible] corporibus [illegible]~~. [illegible] Itaque [illegible] inter ~~corpora terrestria~~ [illegible] non [illegible] inter corpora terrestria [illegible] minimas particulas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vigat [illegible] vis potentissima, [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] magna corpora, caelestia etiam ad distantias [illegible] magnas exercetur. [illegible] circa solem in primis quinque stellas [illegible] quae planetae [illegible] dicuntur, et nominibus Mercurii, Veneris, Martis, Jovis, Saturni designantur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quinque quae [illegible] [illegible] et Jovem quatuor. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et lege [illegible] planetas primarios, revolvuntur. [illegible] quoque Luna circa terram nostram. [illegible] revolutiones quae fiunt [illegible] lineae [illegible] per compositionem [illegible] duarum virium, ut supra vidimus, quarum altera corpus [illegible] [illegible] quae tangentem, altera quae radium [illegible] tangenti perpendicularem describit. [illegible] corpora [illegible] potest [illegible] ab aliis corporibus [illegible], seu quae tendunt ad aliquod centrum, [illegible] vis centralis [illegible] attractio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] centripeta tendunt. [illegible] et planetae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] ipsam; Luna etiam vi centripeta urgetur in terram. [illegible] aequalis est et mutua [illegible] [illegible] nempe planetae attrahuntur a Sole, et vice versa sol trahitur a planetis; satellites tendunt in planetas primarios, et contra planetas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mutuam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] explicata Astronomiae doctrina [illegible] [illegible] mutuam planetarum attractionem [illegible] [illegible] est. Tam inter planetas primarios et secundarios, inter solem et planetas [illegible] [illegible] inter [illegible] planetas actionem [illegible] [illegible] analogia naturae [illegible], nunc autem ratiocinationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] videlicer confirmant errores in Saturni, Jovisque [illegible] in natura [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] planetarum [illegible] distantia a sole [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

multis in

motus in [illegible] observantur inaequalitates quae [illegible] causa [illegible] mutuae attractioni [illegible] possunt [illegible] non [illegible] fieri potest ut puncta [illegible] pro varia positione suos motus haberent [illegible] vi aequa attrahente, quae in minoribus distantiis major est in [illegible] autem minor? Adest ergo [illegible] attractione unde minime de veritate propositionis nostrae [illegible], quae in omnibus corporibus vim attractionis [illegible].

Newtoniani vim attractionis probant per phenomena, per experimenta [illegible] corpora ad se invicem [illegible] videntur, haec autem phenomena [illegible] experimenta explicant per vim attractionis sed hic est [illegible] vitiosus [illegible] per experimenta attractio, et per attractionem experimenta [illegible] patet: Non ergo [illegible] attractionis

[illegible] mirum mihi videri quod haec Newtonianis [illegible] cum [illegible] qui analytica methodo [illegible] inveniuntque [illegible] reprehenderent esse quasi in vitioso circulo versantur? Sunt tamen [illegible] [illegible] per phenomena vim attractionis [illegible] per vim attractionis phenomena [illegible] explicare [illegible] modo rationes quae per [illegible] experimenta [illegible] sunt [illegible] et [illegible] veritatem [illegible]. Si autem attractionis [illegible] per [illegible] experimenta et observationes Newtoniani [illegible] et demonstrant: [illegible] propensionem via synthetica inventa attractionis [illegible] ad naturalia phenomena explicanda [illegible] philosophandi ratio [illegible], ut in circulo vitioso [illegible]. Immerito ergo Newtoniani hoc nomine reprehenduntur.

[illegible] omnia [illegible] tellure superficie magno [illegible] [illegible] atque [illegible] non [illegible] magna et [illegible] multus ille [illegible].

Respondeo cum D. Jaquier negando majorem. Corpora quaelibet [illegible] attractionem universalem in quantitate materiae [illegible] individuales [illegible] attractionem [illegible] [illegible] quantitas materiae in terra [illegible] quantitatem materiae in [illegible] attractionem [illegible] [illegible] hanc attractionem [illegible] D. Bouguer [illegible] [illegible] consistebant [illegible] [illegible] Quod autem debet [illegible] magnetis et ferri [illegible] non potest [illegible] universali. Attractio autem magnetica est [illegible] plane generis, et ad magnetem ferrumque [illegible] pertinet.

[illegible] distantia [illegible] repellunt quod [illegible] reflexione [illegible] philosophi qui vim attractivam in [illegible] ad certos usque limites admittunt, quam vim attractivam deinde in repulsivam abire affirmant [illegible] physicus immediatusque contactus [illegible] argumentum [illegible] omnia secundum aliquos philosophos [illegible] [illegible] major. Vi attractionis negari non potest ab [illegible] philosopho [illegible] [illegible] repellere [illegible] proveniens [illegible] [illegible] reflexione [illegible]

repulsive nomine utemur quo effectus denotamus non vero causam aliquam significantes. Enim quaecunque sit repulsioni causa vis haec actionis ad calculum revocari et aestimare liceat quoad utilitatem tota res pertinet; [illegible] habet

Neque repulsio obtineri potest si quae antea de compluribus attractionem neque in minimis distantiis atque in contactu vigere [illegible] enim [illegible] de corporibus quorum partes cohaerere [illegible], non vero de corporibus elasticis quorum partes se se fugiant atque repellant. Tandem [illegible] a nobis intelligitur qualis in corporum cohaerentium particulis conservatur neque de contactu physico et immediato [illegible]. Certum quidem est ubi de primis [illegible] [illegible] multa fieri posse hypotheses quae solidis rationibus difficile [illegible]. Itaque hanc nobis [illegible] philosophandi regulas in corporum universalis investigatione nostra [illegible] adhiberique [illegible].

[illegible] 4.º Mutua inter caelestia corpora attractio non est admittenda [illegible] [illegible] Planetae [illegible] [illegible] Planetae se mutuo attraherent, progressu temporis in se mutuo [illegible] atque [illegible] in [illegible] dem cum Sole massam coalescere. Ergo etc.

[illegible] Haec [illegible] facile evanescit, si attendamus Planetas [illegible] eadem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible]. Et quidem sine viribus illarum compositione nullum orbem curvilineum describi [illegible]. Et certe sola vi centripeta in se mutuo ruerent [illegible]. [illegible] tamen [illegible] [illegible] fuerint [illegible] [illegible] certa et admiranda lege regantur atque [illegible].

[illegible] eandem respectu a se invicem distantiam servant, [illegible] [illegible] nulla [illegible] [illegible] ac proinde [illegible] vi centripeta qua stellae [illegible] tandem coirent globum. Itaque sic argumen[illegible] [illegible] attractio illa qua stellae [illegible] in se mutuo [illegible] tandem coalescerent massam, atque etc. ergo etc.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fuerit [illegible] tanta tamen esse potest [illegible] ut mutua attractio [illegible] distantia [illegible] omnino evanescat. Praeterea certum non est stellas [illegible] [illegible] lumine [illegible] probabilissimum est [illegible] diversa Planetarum [illegible]. Si autem haec fiat hypothesis, jam facile intelligitur stellas [illegible] in proprio [illegible] nihil [illegible] conjunctione et aequilibrio, [illegible] mundanae machinae [illegible] [illegible] divinae intelligentiae et omnipotentiae argumentum.

[illegible] et alter hisce nomine [illegible] generatim quo corpora ad se se invicem accedunt intelligendum est, cum tamen ~~[illegible]~~ in minimis distantiis ~~atque [illegible] [illegible]~~ aut in tanto [illegible] corpora particularum diversimode agat atque in magnis [illegible] corporis intervallis, ~~[illegible] universalis attractiones~~ juvat ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] attractiones [illegible], et separatim utriusque leges ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] plenius explicemus. Prima attractionis species [illegible] minimis corporum [illegible] particulas [illegible], particularis attractio dicitur. [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ quae in magnis [illegible] attractio universalis [illegible] appellatur. [illegible] leges [illegible] [illegible] et quae in ea nostrum maxime faciunt [illegible], et quantum fieri potuit [illegible]. Sit itaque ~~[illegible]~~

[illegible] Attractio particularis decrescit in ratione plusquam triplicata distantiae [illegible] (nam [illegible] triplicata minores infinitae esse possunt) [illegible] particularis attractio, [illegible] determina[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

retribuetur

habebuntur. Siquidem in elementis, minimisque corporis particulis experimenta capere non licet, in corporibus vero plura nos latent, scilicet quantitas materiae et pororum, figura, compositionis, implicationis diversitas etc. ex quibus pendet attractio. Sperandum est tamen hoc dherim [illegible] alia accuratione dignoscenda esse. Quod vero communiter allatam legem decrescat in ratione plusquam duplicata distantiarum ita fere demonstrat Newtonus Sect.° 75 libri primi. Si corporis attracti vel attrahentis contiguum est attractio longe et fortior quam cum a minimo intervallo separantur ab invicem; vires particularum tendentes ad quas in nostra corpora attracti decrescunt in ratione plusquam duplicata distantiarum; quatenus nequeant decrescere in ratione aut tantum duplicata vel minori, aut tantum [illegible] vel majori distantiarum. Sed [illegible] ergo decrescunt in ratione tantum plusquam duplicata distantiarum: quae scilicet inter duplicatam et triplicatam sit media. Utramque minoris partem ita idem advertit Newtonus. Si enim [illegible] tantum in duplicata vel minori ratione distantiarum decrescerent, sensibiliter non augerentur, neque fortiores [illegible] [illegible] distantia vel in ipso contactu: quod in terrestri gravitate manifestum est [illegible] in duplicata tantum [illegible] distantiarum ratione decrescat, non multum neque sensibiliter intensior vel augetur [illegible] corporis [illegible] [illegible] distantia, adeo ut corpora eandem penitus gravitatem [illegible] in convallibus sive in sublimioribus montium verticibus; ergo [illegible] corporis attracti etc. vires particularum etc. nequeunt decrescere in ratione tantum duplicata aut minori distantiarum. At neque valent decrescere in ratione triplicata, aut majori [illegible] [illegible] triplicata aut minori distantiarum. [illegible] attractiones, ut [illegible] notus observat, in qualibet minima distantia, minimis atque a [illegible] [illegible] infinite esse deberent. Siquidem ex Newtoni Theoremate 4°, vires attractivae in contactu se haberent ad attractiones in [illegible] distantia ut area hyperbolica, hyperbola et asymptotis comprehensa quae infinita est, ad aream hyperbolicam hinc, hyperbolae ordinatis, uni asymptoto perpendicularibus, alteri parallelis comprehensam quae est tamen [illegible] finita. Quare neque in contactu fortiores essent tantum quam in minima distantia, neque in minima distantia [illegible] [illegible], contra ut [illegible] propositionis exigit conditio. Ergo [illegible] corporis attracti vel attrahentis contigui [illegible] est [illegible] nequeunt decrescere vires particulares habentis corporis in ratione aut tantum duplicata aut minori, vel triplicata [illegible] Ergo corporis attracti etc. vires particulares etc. decrescunt in ratione plusquam duplicata distantiarum. Hinc patet [illegible] difficultates quae adversus hanc legem obiici possunt est respondendum. [illegible] enim potest obiici [illegible] [illegible] aut attractionem decrescere in triplicata ratione distantiarum, aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Primum quia licet nos attractionem in ratione plusquam duplicata [illegible] [illegible] decrescere contendamus; eam tamen minime volumus in triplicata ratione decrescere [illegible] quia quam plurimas inter duplicatam et triplicatam rationes intermedias agnoscant Mathematici; patet duplicatam [illegible] [illegible] necessario triplicatam sit admittenda. Itaque decrescit attractio in ratione tantum plusquam duplicata distantiarum; [illegible] fortior tantum [illegible] quam in minima distantia non tamen infinita; [illegible] [illegible] minor sit quam in contactu, non tamen nulla, uti postulant experimenta

[illegible] facile [illegible] [illegible] attractio [illegible] contactu habent [illegible] [illegible] in gravitate vires attractivae in data qualibet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distantiis sunt infinite minores viribus attractivis in [illegible] [illegible] infinite minores [illegible] [illegible] habeat [illegible] rationem, cujusmodi esse supponitur gravitas. Atque vires attractivae etc. [illegible]

Sed [illegible] particulari attractio in contactu finita [illegible] [illegible] quantitati [illegible] [illegible] ut ponitur.

[illegible] attractionem in contactu [illegible] limitibus superare gravitatem; atque hæc [illegible] quæ infinita [illegible] videatur, tamen infinita [illegible] non esse inde colligitur, quod partes [illegible] attractionem conjunctæ aliquo corporis [illegible] divelli aliquando et [illegible] possunt. [illegible] attractioni

2ª. Attractio [illegible] in contactu [illegible] superet [illegible] gravitati, hæc tamen non est infinite major in data vero qualibet distantia est vi gravitatis infinite minor.

[illegible] hac lege attractionem particularem nonnisi per admodum exigua [illegible] distendi et in majoribus finitis distantiis [illegible] gravitati est infinite minor [illegible] nulla. [illegible] nobis minime videri debet. [illegible] in [illegible] corporibus [illegible] attractionem tamen [illegible] Nam [illegible] distantiis attractio non [illegible]: 2do [illegible] plana [illegible] parieti non adhæreat [illegible] quod accidit. Nam parietis attractio a gravitate [illegible] corporis superatur, quæ in finita distantia est attractione infinite major.

[illegible] vires attractrices nonnisi per [illegible] exigua [illegible] diffunduntur, vires [illegible] sunt proportionales [illegible] contactuum. [illegible] quæ producunt [illegible] quæ [illegible] multo [illegible]. [illegible] vires [illegible] nonnisi per admodum exigua intervalla diffunduntur [illegible] a contactu [illegible] ad [illegible] conferre possunt [illegible] corporum [illegible] a contactu [illegible] proportionales. Erit ergo attractionis

3ª. Attractio [illegible] est proportionalis contactibus, sive major et vel minor, prout [illegible] majores vel minores [illegible] corpora [illegible] sorgent.

Hinc vero sequitur, quod cum contactus ab attrahentium particularum [illegible] maxime dependeat, ab his maxime pendebit etiam attractio particularis [illegible] corporum pro varia dispositione [illegible] variari [illegible] potest attractio. Pariter cum utriusque [illegible] major minor [illegible] partibus pro majori vel minori [illegible] pro ratione [illegible] majus vel minus erit. [illegible] attractio [illegible] proportionalis est quantitati superficierum, [illegible] major vel minor est [illegible] respective contactuum [illegible] Denique eadem manente [illegible] attrahentium [illegible] natura, [illegible] Nam [illegible] materiæ [illegible] attractionem augeri vel minuere non [illegible] attrahentis [illegible] — [illegible] attractionem contactuum vel respectuum [illegible] attrahentium [illegible]. Hi porro contactus vel respectus [illegible] non geometrice. Comparatio hic physice capienda. Hinc vero plura [illegible] quæ attractioni [illegible] corpora illi imposita non [illegible] minori [illegible] quæ illi [illegible] attractionis [illegible] quibus abundant [illegible] sensus nostros effugiunt. [illegible]

[illegible]

non sunt, uti manifeste ostendunt observationes microscopicae in vitro aliisque planioribus corporibus. Pariter [illegible] [illegible] corpora [illegible] non congruent, puta aqua, oleo, cera, pice, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Haec enim fluida, quae poros corporum quae [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], superficies [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporum [illegible] etiam augent attractionem [illegible]

Quod quidem adeo verum est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] vel minor attractio deprehendatur [illegible] [illegible] magis vel minus, et interposito [illegible] [illegible] augeatur, [illegible] [illegible] experimentis ostendit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Hinc [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] argumenta, quae [illegible] attractionem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lege. [illegible] enim omnis [illegible] contactus corporum [illegible] [illegible], facile animadvertes [illegible]

4.ª Corpora minora ob attractionis vim majori velocitate ad se invicem accedunt quam majora.

Res per se patet. Nam data eadem vi velocitas est in [illegible] ratione [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]. Si igitur corpus A massam habeat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], utrumque autem eadem vi [illegible], velocitas A erit ad velocitatem B, ut massa B ad massam A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ergo si corpora [illegible] et non aequali [illegible] [illegible] minori velocitate [illegible] [illegible]. Quod si massa corporum [illegible] tanta ut ab eadem attractione nequeat superari, et moveri, nulla velocitate ad se corpora accedent; quasi immota permanebunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Facile hinc [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corpora [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in se invicem, atque [illegible] corpus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tantum [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] eandem superficiem, ad aliquas vero remotiores partes attractio non extendatur, utraque [illegible] ad se mutuo accedere non possunt attrahentes, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attrahuntur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel attractioni [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel gravitate. Atque hinc etiam fit ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] deprehendatur, quorum minimas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fluido, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] figuram [illegible] in aliqua [illegible] [illegible]. Similiter [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aliquando [illegible] [illegible] metallicis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a se invicem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ob attractionem [illegible] [illegible], quas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] attractio omnibus corporibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attrahi [illegible] et [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] attrahunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sunt parva [illegible] quae minima etiam quacunque vi sensibiliter movere. Deinde vero [illegible] aliquo a corpore alio vel minimum attrahantur, facile possunt a [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] aut plures similes particulas nequit evanire. Si quis [illegible] sicut [illegible] magis ponunt et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nent, et [illegible] una [illegible] attrahens nequit [illegible] ad reliquas particulas [illegible] aut [illegible] impleat. Debebit igitur [illegible] versus lamina ascendere quin prætérea deberet ad se [illegible] aut [illegible] in [illegible] experimentis [illegible]. Quare nulla hic est contra attractionem difficultas.

[illegible] Quinto Effectus attractionis ab accidentalibus extrinsecis causis augeri, minui et penitus etiam tolli vel quomodocunque immutari possunt.

E. Attractionis effectus immutari possunt vel a vi gravitatis, corpus majori impetu deorsum impellente vel a contactu vel [illegible], vel a majori et [illegible] vi, vel ab æqualibus viribus [illegible] in contrarias partes trahentibus, vel a similibus aliis causis accidentalibus extrinsecis. Hinc porro cadit ratio cur aquæ guttæ, quæ figuram exacte sphæricam obtinere deberent [illegible] inter attractrices vires particularum, [illegible] ponantur non [illegible] obtineant figuram. Etenim cum [illegible] Physicæ cap. XVIII in aquæ guttula tres vires sint distinguendæ attractionis nempe particularum, gravitationis et attractionis a subjecto plano. [illegible] ob actionem virium attractionis particularum perfectam sphæricitatem guttæ donari deberent, tamen gravitate simul et attractione a subjecto plano [illegible], guttæ figuram [illegible] viribus attemperatam obtinere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] guttæ superiori [illegible] particularum attractionem in [illegible] et infirmata, [illegible] ob experimentiam particularum [illegible] attractionem, [illegible] complanatur atque a perfecta sphærica figura guttæ [illegible]. [illegible] gravitatis atque attractionis a subjecto plano non [illegible] [illegible] partes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] minor eo minus vel magis guttæ se perfectæ [illegible] sphæricitati. Hinc compertum est experimentis, minores guttas [illegible] quæ experimentis ac [illegible] minus [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] plantarum foliis insident, magis a perfecta sphæricitate distare, quam majores [illegible] quæ plano [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]. Hinc Mercurii guttæ supra chartam, quæ superior et [illegible], supra [illegible] aliquantum apparent complanatæ.

[illegible] [illegible] gravitatem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mercurii guttæ, licet graviores aquæ supra [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] in promptu est quod respondeamus: [illegible] est mutuam attractionem [illegible] multo esse majorem, quam inter partes aquæ: est enim attractio proportionalis contactibus, et partes Mercurii [illegible] numero multo majori sunt. Sic [illegible] contingere quam partes aquæ, [illegible] Mercurius et [illegible] aquæ [illegible] est. [illegible] major attractio inter partes Mercurii, [illegible] gravitatem, et [illegible] plani attractionem potest [illegible] ne gutta Mercurii [illegible] complanatur [illegible] non potest attractio vigens inter partes aquæ.

[illegible] [illegible] hoc [illegible] capituli [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] experimento accelerato motu ferantur, [illegible] vero in capillaribus [illegible] [illegible] motu retardato. Cum enim [illegible] experimento [illegible] attractrices vires [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] accelerant. E contrario in tubis capillaribus et [illegible] elevat fluidi gravitas [illegible] magis quo magis fluidum [illegible] [illegible] magis attrahatur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

debent ascendere

debeat ascendere. Unde hinc etiam aliud retinere [illegible] quae [illegible] explicavimus. [illegible] [illegible] attractioni effectus impediantur [illegible] accidentales [illegible] [illegible] debent.

Denique, et ceteri minime animadversis accidere aliud contingere [illegible] et attractionis effectus [illegible] in laminis laevigatis seu frigidis, aut certo fluido interposito sibi invicem impositis maxima vi cohaerentibus [illegible] calefactis aut alio interposito fluido, nullam ostendunt attractionem. [illegible] autem id? nisi quia permanet [illegible] a quo [illegible] pendet laminarum attractioni, [illegible] effectus, et diversa in diversis fluidis particularum figura [illegible] ut unum fluidum prae alio aptius sit obstruendis dati corporis cavitatibus eiusque superficiebus laevigatioribus [illegible] Itaque contendendum maxime, ut in singulis casibus, particulares harumce [illegible] determinemus ac detegamus: tum enim facili negotio dicentur omnia quibus particularem attractionem [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible].

Atque haec de legibus attractionis [illegible], dicta sint quae licet ad commodiorem usum in pluribus fuerint [illegible] tamen, [illegible] considerentur, ad unam tantum vel [illegible] possunt: nempe quod attractio in contactu maxima in distantia minima in distantiis paulo majori multo etiam minima; et [illegible] vel repulsiva ratione [illegible]. Quare non est cur attractionem particularem [illegible] quod naturae simplicitati repugnantem [illegible] [illegible] legem quasi [illegible] retentam [illegible].

Jam [illegible] est quae [illegible] sint etiam attractionis leges universales atque in primis quod [illegible] et [illegible] in eius [illegible] demonstrata [illegible] explicandum. [illegible] quae minima [illegible] a, corumque minimae partes, ut maximis corporibus distinguantur, premant ut particularem attractionem ab universali distinguamus; ita corpori maximi inter quae ad magnas distantias attractio universalis agit, effici ut hanc a particulari [illegible] et separatim considerandam putemus. Attractio [illegible] universalis [illegible] [illegible] vim qua corpora [illegible] liberè omnissa ex quiete per lineam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tanquam centrum feruntur, impelluntur vel [illegible] tendunt: retenta autem eadem vi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] premunt. [illegible] et cetera corpora versus centrum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] haec [illegible] universalis, licet una [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel ad corpora centrum retentum vel ad centrum [illegible] et absolute, prout vel ad corpora centrum retentum vel ad corpora [illegible] vel ad centrum [illegible] [illegible] motum est conatus totius corporis in centrum compositus ex conatibus omnium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Attractio accelerans [illegible] [illegible] acceleratrice. Attractio in hoc respectu considerata [illegible] ad movenda corpora [illegible] [illegible] quidam efficacia de centro per [illegible] quod generat. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] singulas partes corporis tendunt in centrum [illegible] et accelerantibus, seu [illegible] et gravitatem [illegible] Attractio est causa quae in centro [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] absolutam [illegible] pora ad [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], illa est quae attractio vocatur.

Hinc vero manifestum est quomodo virium [illegible] quantitates sint dimetiendae. Communis attractio motrix [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] totius proportionalis sit quantitati motus [illegible] dato vel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] siquidem [illegible] motum, seu pondus proportionale est omnes gravitatur acceleratricis omnium particularum, ea quam [illegible] [illegible] celeritatem a gravitate acceleratrice in [illegible] corporis particulis, [illegible] sive non aequales particulae aequali vi acceleratrice [illegible] velocitate urgeantur, producto vi acceleratricis vel celeritatis in massam corporis, [illegible] Pariter cum energia quaelibet sit proportionalis [illegible] proportionalis et Attractionis accelerationi sive gravitati ejus planetae, sit velocitas quam dato vel constanti tempore ipsa producit; hinc attractio accelerantur, sive gravitas [illegible] velocitati commensurabitur. [illegible] [illegible] efficacia causae eam propagantis.

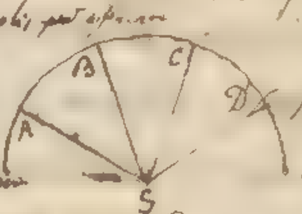
Cum ergo constet Saturnum, Jovem, Martem, Venerem, Mercurium et Telluremque, in hypothesi terrae motae, moveri in linea curva, ut praeter vim impulsionis qua secundum directionem tangentis promoventur [illegible] [illegible] centrum [illegible] [illegible] decumbent. Jam primum considerandum [illegible] quarum lege orbitas illas maxima [illegible] describant. Observavit enim Keplerus, doctisque quos [illegible] [illegible] puncto radii ad Solem [illegible] et centrum areas [illegible] [illegible] proportionales, eaque Keplerianae [illegible] appellatur, quam [illegible] [illegible] est, ut nempe de illa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]



[illegible] occurrat difficultas. Sit figura [illegible] S. Sol [illegible] ABCD [illegible] ad Solem S [illegible] puncta orbitae ABCD [illegible] AS, BS, CS, DS [illegible] Saturnus [illegible] [illegible] ita ut [illegible] areae ASB, BSC, CSD [illegible] proportionales [illegible] quibus [illegible] arcus orbitae AB, BC, CD [illegible] ad aream ASB, ut ad aream BSC, et tempus quo [illegible] AB ad tempus quo [illegible] BC, unde duplo tempore dupla, triplo tempore tripla area [illegible] percurritur, et majus minus [illegible] spatium, [illegible] minoris majorisve distantiae planetae a Sole comparatione, et areae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Quod de primariis planetis dictum est, [illegible] qui [illegible] [illegible], pari ratione dicendum de [illegible] [illegible] primariis in orbitis moventur circa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] primarii et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] eandem Keplerianam legem [illegible] servant in orbitis [illegible], ut Keplerus [illegible] et deinde Astronomi [illegible] observarunt. [illegible] [illegible] caelestium [illegible] motus habent, sed certa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] agit, ubi patet.

[illegible] [illegible] in caelestibus corporibus [illegible] attractionem [illegible] [illegible] similis [illegible]. Corpora enim [illegible] [illegible] effectus [illegible]: Quod ita potest [illegible], [illegible] centripetam, quam cometae omnes et planetae habent etc. similes sunt [illegible] vi centripetae qua Luna tendit in Tellurem, [illegible] [illegible] ellipticis, qua Luna in Tellurem tendit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et agit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Tellurem, [illegible] [illegible] centripetae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] gravitas corpori [illegible] [illegible] sibi libera [illegible] per lineam rectam [illegible] ad centrum telluris, [illegible] [illegible] accedat ad centrum telluris [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nititur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel Solis vel primariorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

quibus

a quibus [illegible] ne ad eadem centra accederent, quemadmodum nunc evenire efficit, ut resistant vi qua nititur eo, [illegible] per tangentem. Si ergo centripeta quam Comete habent et Planete omnes, [illegible] sunt effectibus vis gravitatis corporum terrestrium.

[illegible] si eosdem [illegible] effectuum eadem causa sint assignande, et cause propterea producentes effectus [illegible] eiusdem [illegible] sunt. Iam constat profecto vim centripetam quam Comete habent planeteque [illegible] [illegible] et tamen [illegible] gravitatis corporum terrestrium; precipue cum utraque [illegible] [illegible] iam non semel demonstraturi. (Porro interim notandum est vim hujusmodi centripetam [illegible] gravitatis [illegible] [illegible] coelestia [illegible] atque terrestria corpora [illegible] [illegible], non eandem [illegible] diversa centra respicere, neimpe et [illegible] [illegible] centra; sicuti gravitas corporum terrestrium respicit centrum Telluris.

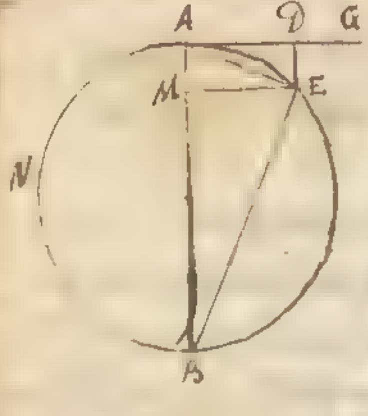
[illegible] hoc loco ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] planete [illegible] [illegible] primarios [illegible] [illegible] deberent in ipsos [illegible] ubi in tellurem [illegible] [illegible] ipsam tellurem gravitat; hoc non contingit, ergo [illegible], quo [illegible] a viis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] horizontaliter, aut oblique projecta in terram statim non ruit ex gravitate, [illegible] [illegible] arcus describit eo nempe majores quo [illegible] projectum [illegible] [illegible] aeris resistentia [illegible] montis [illegible] quo posset [illegible] terrestrem [illegible], ut ultra telluris [illegible] pergeret [illegible] amplius in terram rueret, sed circulum [illegible] ad [illegible] montis [illegible] Newtonus de Systemate Mundi et alii plures Mathematici ostendunt! [illegible] [illegible] centrum telluris quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] evenire. Nam [illegible] et [illegible] gravitate [illegible] [illegible] in quod gravitant et [illegible] [illegible] pervenient tempore quod esset ad tempus unius integre revolutionis ut [illegible] radicem binarii uti ex prop. 36 lib. primi Newtoni colligunt clarissimi eiusdem commentatores. Attamen ne id accidat, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tangentes. [illegible] quo [illegible] obliquantes, decidant ad centrum in quod gravitant.

[illegible] ad [illegible] attractionem universalem seu gravitatem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] explicandos spectare videntur. Quare cum iam quas leges [illegible] sit, et tractatio [illegible] [illegible] temporis angustiis restringenda ad [illegible] totam ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] [illegible] admodum brevem in Geometrarum gratiam, reliquis [illegible] omnium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ gravitatem [illegible] attractionem [illegible] [illegible] solem semper equali [illegible] [illegible], quemadmodum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] leges, projectam pro diversa gravitantium corporum distantia a centro, Newtonus [illegible] demonstrant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] legibus [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] centripeta quod in [illegible] [illegible] habet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] equalis est [illegible] [illegible] divisa per diametrum eiusdem circuli.

[illegible]



Sit ADBN circulus, in quo movetur corpus in arcu infinite parvo AE, et ducta [illegible] parte AG ex puncto E elevatur [illegible] perpendicularis tangenti AG. Quoniam vis centripeta est vis, qua retrahitur corpus a motu per tangentem AG et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. et eodem tempore quo corpus describit arcum AE a vi centripeta quam habet in A retrahitur a tangente per quantitatem recti DE, [illegible] AE [illegible] [illegible] corpus [illegible] ab A in E [illegible] E exprimit vim qua corpus retrahitur a tangente, [illegible] vim centripetam quam habet corpus in A. Itaq. vis centripeta quam habet corpus in A erit [illegible] E; [illegible] diameter AB [illegible] perpendicularis tangenti, [illegible] est [illegible] E, et E [illegible] parallela tangenti AG, et propterea perpendicularis diametro AB, erit [illegible] E [illegible] A [illegible] vis centripeta quam habet corpus in A erit equalis [illegible] E, [illegible] A: sed [illegible] [illegible] E, [illegible] AE sit infinitesima ac proinde pro recta haberi possit est BEA triangulum in E rectangulum et [illegible] perpendicularis ab angulo recto E ducta ad Hypotenusam AB, ergo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] similitudinem triangulorum BEA, AME, erit AB ad AE ut AE ad AM, [illegible] AM ducta in [illegible] et dividendo utrumque per AB erit AM = AE^2 [illegible] per AB itaq. vis centripeta quam habet corpus in A erit = [illegible] E = AM = AE^2 diviso per AB = □ [illegible] arcus divisa per diametrum circuli, ut erat demonstrandum.

Prop. 2ª. Quadrata temporum periodicorum quibus Planetae primarii circa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habent inter se eandem proportionem quam [illegible] [illegible] distantiarum mediocrium eorundem planetarum a centro [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quo gravitant.

Ex dictis hoc alterum phenomenon quod primus omnium [illegible] animadvertit, et lex Kepleri secunda dici solet. [illegible] autem ut quadratum temporis, quo Saturnus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est ad quadratum temporis quo revolutionem suam circa Solem [illegible] Jupiter ut cubus distantiae mediocris Saturni a Sole ad cubum distantiae mediocris Jovis a Sole [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Saturnus revolvitur circa Solem [illegible] circiter annorum triginta, Jupiter duodecim; Mars, duorum, Tellus unius, Venus dierum [illegible] viginti quatuor, Mercurius octoginta septem. Distantiae mediocres horum planetarum autem [illegible] Keplerum, [illegible] sunt proxime inter se ut numeri 95, 52, 15, 10, 7, 3; Si periodicorum temporum quadrata comparas cum cubis mediocrum distantiarum, illa ad haec esse quamproxime [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Nam [illegible] cum tempus periodicum Saturni [illegible] sit ad tempus periodicum Jovis ut 30 ad 12, erit quadratum temporis periodici Saturni [illegible] quadratum temporis [illegible] Jovis ut 30^2 ad 12^2, sive ut 900 ad 144. et [illegible] cum distantia mediocris Saturni a Sole [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a Sole ut 95 ad 52 erit cubus distantiae mediocris Saturni [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Jovis, ut 95^3 ad 52^3 [illegible] [illegible], sive ut 857375 ad 140608 [illegible] 900 ad 144 ut 857375 ad 140608 proxime, ut patet [illegible] minima differentia quam [illegible] [illegible] mediocrium et [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quadratum temporis periodici Saturni [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cubus [illegible] distantiae Saturni a Sole ad cubum [illegible] distantiae [illegible] Jovis a Sole. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] primariis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Dom [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] periodica, et mediocres distantiis a centris in quae gravitant [illegible] quod nimis [illegible], [illegible] quod animadvertere eadem per [illegible] quae in primariis, in Planetis etiam [illegible], [illegible] proportionem [illegible], [illegible] magis in his quam in illis, [illegible] proportionem [illegible], quod in primariis [illegible] minus quam in secundariis, [illegible] habeantur [illegible] diversi et tempora periodica, ut videre est apud astronomos.

In his vero ita geometrice poterit ratiocinari. [illegible] vis centripeta accelerativa commensuratur velocitate, quam [illegible] vel constanti tempore generat, haec vero velocitas commensuratur [illegible] quod gravia ob vim centripetam versus centrum [illegible] eodem tempore percurrunt, vis centripeta accelerativa commensuratur [illegible], [illegible] gravia ob vim centripetam percurrunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] percurrit arcum minimum AE [illegible] superius posita, vis centripeta [illegible] in A [illegible] $AM = AE^2$ diviso per AB, igitur [illegible], patet quod corpus [illegible] vim centripetam [illegible] in A [illegible] tempore quo describit minimum [illegible] AE [illegible] $= AM = AE^2$ diviso per AB. Alia quae hinc deducuntur corollaria Geometrarum [illegible] [illegible] Quare sit Prop. 3.a G. centripeta [illegible] gravitas accelerativa corporum [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] in diversis distantiis ab eorum centro proportionalis est quadratis earundem distantiarum reciproce.

Si ne quid desit ad planiorem propositionis [illegible] expositionem [illegible] duo corpora A B, quae propter gravitatem ferantur [illegible] centrum idem, a quo distet A pedes 20, B vero distet pedes 25, dico gravitatem accelerativam corporis A se habere ad gravitatem accelerativam corporis B ut quadratum distantiae corporis B a centro ad quadratum distantiae corporis A ab eodem centro, sive ut 25^2 ad 20^2. [illegible] ut 625 ad 400, sive reductis terminis, ut 20 ad 16 quare gravitas accelerativa corporis [illegible] ab eodem centro [illegible] augetur in ea ratione, qua minuitur quadratum distantiae corporis [illegible] a centro et vice versa minuitur in ea ratione, qua eiusdem distantiae augentur per quadratum id quod [illegible] de corporibus terrestribus

Igitur gravitas accelerativa corporum terrestrium gravitate [illegible] tendentium ad centrum telluris, in diversis distantiis ab eodem centro proportionalis est quadratis earundem distantiarum reciproce [illegible] rationem [illegible] gravitas [illegible] [illegible] experimenta [illegible] vero [illegible] observationes [illegible] et experimenta [illegible] nequeunt [illegible] [illegible] superficie [illegible] distantiarum a centro [illegible] differentiae [illegible] in iis distantiis [illegible] nos [illegible] comparatio instituatur nullam deprehendi poterit [illegible] gravitatis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distantias [illegible] telluris [illegible] a centro [illegible] [illegible] telluris [illegible]. [illegible] gravitates accelerativas lunae et terrestrium corporum [illegible] habent [illegible] gravitas terrestrium corporum [illegible] gravitate [illegible] tendentium ad centrum telluris in diversis distantiis ab eius centro [illegible] et quadratis earundem distantiarum reciproce. [illegible] [illegible] gravitates [illegible] corporum [illegible] quadratum [illegible] corporum a centro telluris [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

spatiis, quæ gravia deorsum descendendo ob vires gravitatis dato vel consimili tempore percurrunt. Atqui spatium quod Luna deorsum cadendo percurrent, est ad spatium quod eodem tempore corpora in telluris superficie libere decidentia percurrunt ut quadratum [illegible] horum corporum a centro telluris ad quadratum distantiæ Lunæ ab eodem centro, quod ita ostendo assumpto pro communi tempore uno minuto primo

Cum ex Astronomicis observationibus distantia Lunæ a centro telluris sit æqualis 60 semidiametris, si ponamus Lunam æqualiter moveri in circulo circa tellurem, et ita [illegible] circularem, orbita Lunæ erit ad circulum telluris in ratione radiorum scilicet ut sex ad unum; sive orbita Lunæ, erit telluris ambitu sexagies vicibus major, [illegible] [illegible] dimetiente ambitus telluris, et pedum parisiensium 123249600. Itaque orbita Lunæ erit æqualis [illegible] 123249600 [illegible] in 60 sive pedibus 7394, 70000 [illegible] hanc orbitam percurrit una viginti [illegible] [illegible] quadraginta tribus minutis [illegible], sive omnia ad minuta prima reducendo 39343 [illegible] integrum revolutionem [illegible] minutum primum ad eam orbitæ partem quam Luna currit tempore [illegible] minuti [illegible] [illegible] ut 39343 minuta prima ad 123249600 | 7394 [illegible] pedes [illegible] minutum primum [illegible] quartum [illegible] terminus qui prodit ex divisione producti mediorum per primum terminum erit orbitæ pars, quam uno minuto primo percurrit Luna. Instituto autem calculo eam reperies 187962 [illegible]. Pariter ex datis [illegible] peripheriæ ad diametrum [illegible] diametrum Lunaris orbitæ 2353893769 quare cum spatium quod Luna vi propria centripeta [illegible] percurreret tempore unius minuti primi sit æquale, quadrato arcus, quem uno minuto primo describit diviso per diametrum orbitæ Lunaris, erit spatium quod Luna [illegible] æquale pedibus 187962 diviso per 2353893769 sive æquale pedibus 35329437321 divisis per 2353893769, sive divisione peracta æquale pedibus quindecim cum una [illegible]

At vero cum [illegible] experientia, et demonstrationem Hugenii gravia in telluris superficie [illegible] percurrunt tempore unius minuti secundi pedes $15\frac{1}{12}$ cum una [illegible] [illegible] et in motu [illegible] [illegible] juxta Galileanam theoriam sit ratio [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] erit spatium a gravi in superficie telluris cadendo percursum unius minuti primi = pedibus. 54300 [illegible] erit spatium quod Luna deorsum cadendo tempore unius minuti percurrit ad spatium quod gravia in telluris superficie libere decidentia eodem tempore percurrunt ut pedes $15\frac{1}{12}$ ad pedes 54300 [illegible] 15 [illegible] cum $\frac{1}{12}$ ad [illegible] 54300 ut quadratum distantiæ corporum terrestrium a centro telluris [illegible] distantiæ Lunæ [illegible] sive ut unum quadratum ad 60^2 [illegible] ut unum ad 3600 [illegible] æqualitate mediorum et extremorum [illegible] [illegible]. Igitur spatium quod [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] quadratorum distantiarum [illegible], quod erat demonstrandum. [illegible] vis centripeta [illegible] acceleratrix corporum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idem reciproce.

[illegible] de gravitate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] corporum gravitas [illegible] [illegible] idem [illegible] gravitas [illegible] [illegible] utraque [illegible] [illegible] demonstratum [illegible] in plano [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ratione [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

a centro, sive, quia eadem et quadrata temporum [illegible] eorundem sint ut cubi [illegible] distantiarum. vires ipsae [illegible] corporum centripetae erunt reciproce ut quadrata ~~temporum periodicorum~~ distantiarum a centro. At corpora omnia caelestia [illegible] moventur ut ipsorum quadrata temporum periodicorum sint ut cubi distantiarum [illegible] igitur vires corporum caelestium centripetae erunt reciproce ut quadrata radiorum, seu distantiarum a propriis centris respective. Vis igitur centripeta seu gravi[tas] [illegible] acceleratrix corporum gravitantium seu tendentium ad centrum idem, quodcumque in diversis distantiis ab eodem centro [illegible] portionalis est quadratis earundem distantiarum reciproce.

Opponas pot. contra demonstrationem utramque. In utraque demonstratione attribuitur luna circa tellurem et planetis primariis circa solem et secundariis circa primarios revolvi in orbitis circularibus motu aequabili. [illegible] hoc falsum est. [illegible] primarii [illegible] [illegible] ellipses, alterum focorum habentes in centro solis, et lunae orbita circa tellurem [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] Astronomi [illegible] figuram [illegible]. Motus autem [illegible] modo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: itaque falsa est [illegible] utraque demonstratio.

Respondeo non allatae demonstrationi [illegible] officere [illegible] eandem excentricitas orbitarum in quibus moventur [illegible] et motus earundem inaequalitas tanta non est ut negligi tuto nequeat, et planetarum orbitae circulares et motus aequabilis haberi possint, ita ut quae de corporibus aequabiliter in circulis revolventibus demonstrat Newtonus [illegible], circa solem motis possint applicari. Sed quid si ex ipsa ellipticae planetarum orbita et motu inaequali [illegible] [illegible] datur lex [illegible] gravitatis? Sane id facile est colligere ex ipso Newtono. Siquidem ipse ostendit non posse corpus [illegible] [illegible] in ellipsi habente [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ita ut in singulis revolutionibus semel descendat ad minimam a centro distantiam, semel ascendat ad maximam ab eodem centro distantiam, et harum distantiarum loca maneant immota, nisi vis centripeta quae ad focum tendit, et in curva elliptica corpus retinet accurate decrescat in ratione duplicata distantiarum reciproca ab eodem centro virium. Nam si vel minimum ab hujusmodi lege vis aberraret in singulis revolutionibus notabili, in plurimis enormes haberemus motus [illegible] minimae et maximae distantiae a centro virium. Atqui revera planetae circa solem et [illegible] circa tellurem, et [illegible] circa primarios [illegible] moventur in ellipsi ut singulis revolutionibus semel descendant ad minimam distantiam a centro virium [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible], et semel ascendant ad maximam distantiam ab eodem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ac vix post innumeras revolutiones sensibiliter [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tendit et [illegible] lunae quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in planetis primariis [illegible] decrescit in ratione duplicata distantiarum reciproca [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] legem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Astronomorum: centripetae [illegible] eorundem [illegible] non decrescunt in ratione duplicata [illegible] distantiarum a centro virium, sicut [illegible] primariis et telluri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] planetis [illegible] [illegible] gravitatis legem nullatenus potest in dubium [illegible]. Quinimo ad planetas primarios quod spectat, Astronomi aliqui negant motum omnem [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible], quorum quia causis extrinsecis praecipue [illegible] planetarum [illegible] inter se [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut ait Newton in opusculo de Mundi Systemate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Sed et [illegible] [illegible]

internis aether motus longe minor appareat in Planetis secundariis et in Luna praecipue, cum eorumque [illegible] sumena [illegible] revolutionibus [illegible] ad minimi [illegible] progrediatur. Nam quamvis concederetur, astrum [illegible] appareat ex eo [illegible] quod attractio virium quibus secundarii in primarios, et Luna in tellurem tendit a duplicata reciproca distantiarum recederet, [illegible] tamen hoc prout [illegible] mathematice [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et apud clarissimos [illegible] commentatores. Quamquam res [illegible] et [illegible] notabilis [illegible] apparere [illegible] quod planetarum secundariorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] proportione recederet [illegible] quippe [illegible] potissimum ab actione Solis quam attrahent, [illegible] motus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] actione Solis [illegible] mutua actione Planetarum [illegible] per tempus [illegible] [illegible] Phaenomena quae actiones [illegible] cessarent [illegible] Planetarii [illegible] omnino quiescerent. Itaque vera gravitas acceleratrix corporum omnium [illegible] ratione distantiarum auctarum decrescit.

Iam alia quae adversus hanc [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], gravitatis causa [illegible]; [illegible] antiquam [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] attractionis universalis, ad [illegible] leges statutae a Newtono [illegible] relationes afferi [illegible], quae sunt praecipua Universi phaenomena. [illegible] nullam est [illegible] Newtoniana attractio [illegible] reciproca distantiarum [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible], uti [illegible] celeberrimus [illegible] qui philosophi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Quod quidem notatu [illegible] non [illegible] at [illegible] hoc [illegible] [illegible] magisque confirmatur [illegible] [illegible] apparet quam [illegible] nonnulli Newtonianam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod attractionis universalis leges [illegible] [illegible] negligant [illegible] minime [illegible] at [illegible] [illegible] simul [illegible] [illegible] possunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] certa quae tamen hactenus [illegible] neutiquam [illegible]. [illegible] tantum abest ut inde Theoria Newtoniana minus certa reddatur quin potius inde [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Phaenomeni [illegible] [illegible] Siquidem ut ait [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] exactius [illegible] phaenomena [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum observationibus [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] principii attractionis [illegible] [illegible] distantiarum [illegible] [illegible] tum physicis quam astronomicis Phaenomenis conformem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] a Philosophia [illegible] [illegible] ".

Ex tribus hisce statutis a nobis Propositionibus, plurima colliguntur scitu dignissima, ex quibus et aliqua quae sunt praecipua et pauca perstringere ~~Atque~~ Illud in primis ~~[illegible]~~ observandum occurrit, quod Gravitas motrix corporum omnium in distantiis aequalibus ab eodem centro in quod gravitant, proportionalis est quantitati materiae corporum eorundem. Ita enim probatur. Gravitates acceleratrices corporum omnium in [illegible] [illegible] a centro in quod gravitant, sunt reciproce ut quadrata distantiarum ab eodem centro, [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] paribus distantiis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] gravitates acceleratrices [illegible] aequales. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] spatia, quae corpora [illegible] centrum [illegible], dato vel constanti tempore percurrerent. [illegible] corpora omnia in paribus distantiis a centro in quod gravitant descensu [illegible] aequalia [illegible] aequalia spatia percurrent. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Mechanicae Theorema quod vires motrices [illegible] [illegible] aequaliter [illegible] [illegible] aequaliterque accelerantur sive [illegible] aequali tempore [illegible] aequalia spatia percurrere [illegible] ut ipsa corpora [illegible] ut quantitates materiae in corporibus [illegible] [illegible]

Itaque

Itaque vires motrices quibus corpora omnia in variis distantiis a centro gravitatis aequali tempore aequalia spatia per[illegible], sunt corporibus ipsis, seu quantitati materiae in iis contentae, [illegible] seu vires [illegible] motrices [illegible] [illegible] omnes gravitatem acceleratricem [illegible] singulis corporibus [illegible] [illegible] gravitate motrices.
Gravitates igitur motrices corporum omnium proportionales sunt quantitati materiae [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] corpora omnia sive coelestia sive terrestria respicit et [illegible] et [illegible] de terrestribus corporibus [illegible] [illegible]. Observantibus Vastmo Gravesandio Evangelicio Musschenbroekio Nolleto . corpora omnia terrestria [illegible] sint pondere et magni-tudine nempe et auri frustulum, et [illegible] ~~globulus~~ flosculus et plantis [illegible] . et levissima pluma ex eadem altitudine in Recipiente vacuo demissa aequali omnino velocitate descendunt, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] eadem [illegible]
[illegible] eodemque tempore idem spatium [illegible]; ergo ex citato superius Theoremate necessario corpora omnia vires
[illegible] gravitatis, scilicet motrices proportionales [illegible] massi sive quantitati propriae materiae . [illegible]
A et B quorum A sit triplum B utrumque autem aequali velocitate in vacuo descendit . [illegible] [illegible] massas in [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible], quarum massa corporis B habeat 30 eandem habebit ~~[illegible]~~ massa corporis A decem [illegible] corpus utrumque eadem velocitate ex hypothesi descendat, ex posterea eadem velocitate descendant [illegible] omnes [illegible]
[illegible] singulae ex triginta partibus corporis B eadem velocitate descendunt ac singulae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporis A aequalem vim habebunt ac partes singulae corporis B. [illegible] [illegible] omnium virium quibus urgentur partes omnes corporis ~~B~~ A ea habebit ad summam omnium virium quibus urgentur [illegible] omnes corporis B ut 10 ad 30, sive ut numerus [illegible] aequalium quae sunt in corpore A ad numerum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] B, sive ut quantitas materiae corporis A ad quantitatem materiae corporis B. Itaque cum summae [illegible] virium non sint nisi motrices gravitates gravitas motrix corporis A ea habebit ad gravitatem motricem corporis B ut quantitas materiae corporis A ad quantitatem materiae corporis B. Igitur gravitas motrix corporum omnium [illegible].
[illegible] in corpore quod duplo maiorem habeat materiae gravitatem duplo maiorem [illegible] [illegible] duplo maiori in [illegible] triplo maiorem habente materiae quantitatem, ac sic deinceps.
[illegible] [illegible] gravitate corporum terrestrium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] gravitate coelestium corpora [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
Primo enim cum coelestium corporum gravitas similis sit et eadem cum gravitate corporum terrestrium; eaque utrumque [illegible] leges . Deinde vero quemadmodum corpora omnia terrestria [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ procedunt experimenta [illegible] et corpora omnia coelestia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distantia a centro docent geometricae [illegible]. Ergo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], aequali velocitate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] gravitatem proportionalem sive quantitati materiae.
[illegible] gravitas motrix [illegible] quemadmodum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] gravitas [illegible] [illegible] sive attractio [illegible]
[illegible] est proportionalis quantitati materiae [illegible] [illegible] attrahentis, sive versus quam gravia tendunt. [illegible]
attrahens [illegible] aequalia elementa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sit proprietas singulis materiae partibus insita ut [illegible] in aequalibus materiae partibus sint aequales [illegible] gravitas [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] summa attractionum [illegible] [illegible] proportionalis [illegible] partium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attraho [illegible] proportionalis [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] quantitati materiae corporis attrahentis.
[illegible] denique colligitur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Gravitatem neque
[illegible] attractionem universalem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aequalem, sive corpora omnia gravitare inter [illegible] et aequaliter [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] enim actioni corporis æqualis est et contraria reactio (ut demonstravimus ubi de inertia egerimus) attrac[tio] [illegible] actio [illegible] corpus [illegible] potest attractionem semper contrariam et æqualem [illegible] esse debere. Itaque attractio universalis [illegible] mutua est semper et æqualis, ut quantum unum corpus attrahit alterum, tantum [illegible] attrahens ab attracto attrahetur. [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] confirmare [illegible] [illegible] quæ terrena [illegible] corpora gravitant [illegible] [illegible] gravitent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tellurem [illegible], nec [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] motu, [illegible] telluri et [illegible] in infinitum moverentur per spatia libera [illegible] [illegible] Planetæ, Cometæ et Sol [illegible] corpora [illegible] partes ex quibus constant, corpora [illegible] mundi, et partes in ipsas gravitantes [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], quod absurdum est [illegible] experientiæ [illegible] systematis ordinem [illegible]. Igitur [illegible] [illegible] in tellurem et [illegible] cœlestium corporum partes in cœlestia corpora [illegible], corpora [illegible] [illegible] telluri [illegible] [illegible] terrena, et corpora cœlestia in singulas ex quibus constant partes gravitant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporum [illegible], et singulas cœlestium corporum partes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] sunt ad [illegible] respective [illegible] pertinentia, primarii ac cometæ [illegible] corpora pertinentia ad Solem; et Terra in Lunam gravitat, et [illegible] [illegible] et Solem [illegible] cometæ [illegible] quod [illegible] ad [illegible] pertineant ad [illegible] ad Solem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] gravitant [illegible] in [illegible] Sol gravitat. 3º quod Planetæ omnes et Cometæ gravitant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corpora ad [illegible] Sol [illegible] pertinentia. 4º [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et singula componuntur, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 4 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] gravitatem mutuam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] anno 1759 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 76 [illegible] [illegible] 75 [illegible] 77 [illegible] [illegible] inter [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 32 [illegible] ab attractione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] universalem [illegible] mutua et inductione et ex phænomenis [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] æqualis [illegible] duobus [illegible] A et B [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] B [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporis A [illegible] corpus B [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] universalis, etc.

Quæ de legibus gravitatis tradiemus, licet admodum pauca in iis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Astronomiæ et [illegible] Mechanicæ, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Atqui, inquit idem Socinus, licit: Spi. Dei nomine non persona, sed virtus, et efficacia venit. Nam Isaiae cap. 40.7 legitur exarescere herbam, et cadere florem cum Spiritus Dni sufflaverit in eum.

3 Sed vehementer Socinus errat. Quamvis enim nomine Spiritus virtus et efficacia veniat, atq: etiam ventus, vox, animus, affectus, substantia, quae corpori adversa[?] [illegible], et alia, quae collegit Jo: Clericus[?] in art: crit: [illegible] c: 8. frustra tamen hinc colligit nullibi eo nomine designari personam, praesertim ubi personarum notae atq: caracteres reperiantur. Dac[?] efficientis personae [illegible] effecta nomen sortitur: ac propterea Sp. S. appellatur, [illegible] praestat. [illegible] eadem ratione animam pro vita, aut voluntate, Moysen, et prophetas pro eorum libris, linguam, [illegible], guttur pro sermone, gladium pro caede, manus pro conatu, et auxilio non raro usurpata reperies.

At vero [illegible] idem [illegible] 1. [illegible] 16. vocatur Spiritus Dei bonus sicut [illegible] cap: 18 appellatur Sp: Dei malus ille quo Saul arreptus fuit. [illegible] quo Saul arreptus fuit, non est persona divina, sed vero ipsa virtus et efficacia [illegible] qua ajente Apostolo ad [illegible] dantur homines in sensum reprobum; [illegible] [illegible] non est persona divina, sed virtus, et efficacia Dei, qua homines boni fiunt, divinisq: muneribus locupletantur.

4 Sed Socinus [illegible] eo malo Spi. invasum ostendit quo arreptum fuisse Saulum narrat l. 1. Reg. quis enim [illegible] malo Spiritu erepturus affirmare poterit malum Dei spiritum, qui Saulem invasit fuisse virtutem et efficaciam Dei? An ne Deus efficacia sua rationalem Creaturam in reprobum sensum tradet? [illegible] in [illegible] hoc in Deum [illegible]. Deus enim mala tantum permittit, minime vero efficit. Quamobrem, et Hebraeorum Magistri, et Ecclesiae PP., et omnes sacrarum litt: Interpretes sine ulla dubitatione docent malum illum [illegible] Spi[?] immundum eum Spiritum [illegible], sive Daemonem qui ideo Dei Spiritus malus jure dicitur quia Deo, veri mancipium [illegible] permittente [illegible] vi magna aggreditur, et ad scelera vehementer movet, et [illegible]: Et sane Chaldaeus textus voce Dei omissa, ita narrat: Et mansit Spiritus malus [illegible] ante Dnum super Saul. In Graeco autem est a Deo. Cecidit, inquit, Spiritus a Deo malus. [illegible] cum ita sint tota objectio in ipsummet adversarium recidit. Nam Spiritus malus, seu Demon non est mera virtus, et efficacia, sed vera, et a Deo distincta Persona. Ergo etiam [illegible] bonus, seu Sp. Sanctus non mera virtus, atq: efficacia est, sed vera Persona a Deo Patre, Filioq: distincta. [illegible] vero [illegible] et Socino confutatis alium Adversarium aggrediamur.

Iste Adversarius [illegible] addictus est [illegible] qui in impio [illegible] de trib: in una Deitate Personis cap. 8 et 18 [illegible] ex Script: et SS. Sanctis a vera [illegible] ratione [illegible]. Dic enim Sp. S. [illegible] 11. appellatur Digitus Dei. Act: 2. 38 Dei donum [illegible] ad Cor: 1. 22. et ad Ephes: 1. 14. pignus, sive, ut loquitur in graeco textu Arrhabo (quae vox proprie designat portionem rei promissae, et [illegible] aliquid [illegible] pignus [illegible] [illegible], quemadmodum [illegible] de verbis [illegible] admonet [illegible]. Sed Digitus Dei donum Dei [illegible], sive arrhabo aliena [illegible] a notione Personae [illegible] in Epta ad [illegible] cap: 3. [illegible] Spiritus, quod in homines effundatur [illegible] ad Cor: 12. [illegible] potionentur [illegible] hominib. distribuatur. [illegible] dicatur Spiritus Sancti primitias in [illegible] 5. 19 [illegible] a nobis extinqui. [illegible] in veram personam quadrare [illegible] cap: 30 [illegible] nondum [illegible] erat Spiritus, quia Jesus nondum erat glorificatus? Id certe de mera qualitate et Dei gratia dici recte potest, quia nondum illa se diffuderat. At de persona vere divina dici nulla ratione potest

5 Verum iis omnibus, quæ Wolzogenius objicit non difficile est respondere, ac demonstrare ne minimum quidem Spiritus sancti veræ personæ rationi ea officere. Et ad primum quidem dicimus Spiritum S. digitum Dei metaphorice appellari, quatenus scilicet tribui ei solent peculiari quadam ratione, quam Theologi appropriationem vocant, opera divinæ potentiæ, quæ ad spiritualem hominum utilitatem referuntur. Digitus Dei enim sum:
mam Dei potestatem significat, ut constat ex vers. 19 cap. 8 Exodi. Porro sum:
ma virtus, sive virtus Dei idem esse debet, ac Dei substantia: quippe in Deo virtus, ac potestas ab ejus natura non distinguitur. Quare si Spiritus digitus, mens naturæ Dei, summusque Deus sit necesse est

8 Ad a.m respondemus nomen Spiritus sancti in sacris litteris dupliciter adhiberi, modo scilicet ad significandam ipsam Spiritus sancti personam; modo ad innuendos effectus gratiæ, quæ illi peculiari quadam ratione, quam Theologi appropriationem vocant, adscribi consuevit: non secus atque nomen Moysis aliquando pro ejus persona sumitur, aliquan do vero pro libris ab eo conscriptis adhibetur, ut eo in loco ubi Christus de Judæis dixit habent Moysem et Prophetas, audiant illos. Duplici ergo ratione Spiritus sanctus donum Dei appellatur. Vel enim accipitur pro effectu gratiæ, et tunc est donum accidentale, vel accipitur pro seipso et tunc donum est personale mere increatum Nihil autem vetat quin Spiritus sancti persona donum dicatur. Ipsa enim animorum expiandorum causa a Patre in nomine Christi missa igitur, sive in tempore vel donata. Quin etiam singulari quadam ratione nomen doni sibi ipsa vindicat.
Cum enim Amor donum sit et causa donorum Spiritus S. qui solus suæ origi:
nis id hoc habet, ut sit mutuus amor Patris, et Filii, ob hanc suæ proprieta:
tem debet donum et donorum causa appellari. Neque vero doni appellatio Personæ rationi repugnat: quippe Christus Numeri [illegible] dicuntur [illegible] traditi A: aron, et Filiis ejus. Et Jo: 3 Christum donum asserit inquiens. Sic Deus dilexit mundum ut Filium suum unigenitum daret. Christum donum imaginarium dedit pro peccatis, ut ait Ap. in ad Galat: cap: 1. 4

Ad 3. quod attinet animadverto cum Vorstio, Lipsio, aliisque Paulo ipsis in illo loco Epist. 2 ad
Cor: nominari quidem pignus spiritus: at Spiritum S. non dici pignus inquit enim ipse qui et signavit nos et dedit pignus Spiritus in cordibus nostris, jam vero pignus, aut arrha bo Spiritus est quæ non persona, sed gratia. At enim inquit Wolzogenius in altero loco 1 Epist. ad Ephes: Spiritus sanctus nuncupatur pignus, aut arrabo hereditatis nostræ. Non diffiteor.
Sed quid inde? An non ille esse haud poterit pignus, qui ut certam sua gratia nostram salutem reddat a Patre nobis et a Filio communicatur? An non ille haud erit Arrhabo hereditatis nostræ, qui nostram beatitudinem in Dei visione solidam una cum P. et Filio facit, ac propterea promissæ nobis hereditatis portio est?
Nil ergo prohibet prominus Spiritus et pignus sit et arrhabo, et Persona.
Quamobrem D. Aug. qui certe a Socinianorum sententia longissime aberat sic de Sp. S. disserit serm. 13 de verbis Apost. Qualis ergo est, cujus pignus tale est? Nec pignus, sed arrha nominandus est.

Ad reliqua testimonia, quae a Wolzogenio obijciuntur, dico generatim nomen Spiritus S. pro eius effectibus donis, ac Charismatibus sumi. Dicitur enim effusus in Epistola ad Titum cap. 3. v. 6. et effusus in gratiae muneribus hominibus largiendis, ut patet ex ipsa significatione effusionis, quae ut Berrius animadvertit largam communicationem significat, seu copiosam gratiarum exhibitionem, atque patet etiam ex alio testimonio quod legitur Act: cap: 11. 45, sicque se habet = Gratia Spiritus Sancti effusa est. Adde quod Deus etiam in psalmis effusus dicitur sicut aqua, tametsi nec Wolzogenius, nec Socinianus alius eas veram personam esse audiret. Jam vero Act: 2. non legitur Spiritus Sanctus esse distributus aut divisus, sed Apostoli dicuntur repleti Spiritu Sancto. Porro licet gratiae dona dividantur, unus tamen idemque est Spiritus, ut monet Apostolus Cor: 1. 12. Quae porro ex eo quod Epistola ad R. 8. 23 primitiae Spiritus Sancti vocatur donum Electi, non video quid hinc inferre valeat Wolzogenius, cum et primitiae dicantur de Christo in 1 ad Cor: 15. quem nec ipse ambigit Wolzogenius esse personam.

\+ Tandem in 1 ad Thess: epistola 5. 19 hortamur ne extinguamus Spiritum, posito per metonymiam nomine donae pro re effecta, idque aptissima comparatione, cum Spiritus Sanctus in ignis forma descenderit.

Nihil vero est, quod gloriatur Wolzogenius in vers: 39 cap: 7 Joan: Cum enim Jo: cap: 1 iam narrasset visum fuisse a Baptista Spiritum descendentem sub Columbae specie de Coelo, et manentem super Jesum cap: 7 non poterat affirmare poterat, quod Spiritus nondum erat, proinde quasi nondum existeret, quare cum ait: Nondum enim erat Spiritus hoc unum intelligere poterat, eo tempore, de quo disserebat Spiritum S. nondum fuisse datum fidelibus eum illa altera coelestium donorum copia, cum qua inde in die Pentecostes dari debebat. Quam rem quidem ita se habere ex orationis contextu colligitur, nam obiectis vocibus quae immediate praecedunt: Hoc autem dixit de spiritu, quem accepturi erant credentes in eum, ubi accipere ac dare, sensu respondent. Quocirca, qui aperuit credentes in Christum accepturos fuisse Spiritum, et continuo subdidit: nondum enim erat Spiritus, non aliter certe loquutus est, ac si dixisset nondum enim erat Spiritus datus quemadmodum legitur in editione vulgata in Syriacis exemplaribus, in aliquibus Graecis, ac legerunt etiam Didymus in 1° lib: de Sp: S. August: Multis in locis, et Ambros: l. de Incar: cap: 6. vid. de Wolzogenii Object: satis: nunc nonnullae aliae discuendae restant, quae a Crellio aliisque Socinianis proponuntur.

\+ Ajunt enim 1 Jo: Bapta Matth: 3 ait, Ille vos baptizabit in Spiritu S., et vero ipse Act: 1 suos discipulos sic affatus [illegible] vos autem baptizabimini, a Christo non post multos hos dies. Atqui Homines baptizari persona nemo dixerit. Ergo ipsum Sp. S. in personarum numero recensitur.

2. Sciscitatus Paulus quosdam ab Jo: Bapta baptizatos an Sp. S. accepissent, responderunt, sed neque si Sp: S. est audivimus, ut est in cap: 19 Act: quae quidem responsio Spiritum S. haudquaquam esse personam ostendit.

3 Spiritus vindictae, ac furoris Dni sacris in literis nominatus certe non est persona. Ergo nec persona est Sp. S.

4 Sp. S. saepissime in literis sacris virtus Dei appellatur. Sic Luc. 24. 49. Xtus promittens Spiritum S. Aplis dixit: sedete in civitate, quoadusque induamini virtute ex alto sic pariter Angelus dixit M.ae Luc. 1.35. Sp: S. superveniet in te et virtus altissimi obumbrabit tibi. Atqui idem dic de innumeris aliis locis, in quib: edocemur ex Scripturarum usu nomine Sp: S. non designari nisi virtutem Dei; ac vicissim quando virtus Dei nominatur intelligi Sp: Stum.

D. Hoc nomen Sp: S. sacris in literis innuit divinam essentiam omnis materiæ expertem, non vero divinam Personam. sic Jo: 4. 24 scriptum est Spiritus est Deus. Et in 2 ad Cor: cap. 3. 17 habetur. Deus Spiritus est. Præterea nomen idem docente D. Aug: lib. 8 de Trin: aliquando tribuitur Patri, ut cum dicitur Isaiæ cap. 61. Spiritus Dni super me: aliquando vero Filio, ut cum Xtus dicebat Matth: cap. 12. vers: 28 in spiritu Dei, hoc est meo, ejicio dæmonia. Ergo non est nomen Personæ a Patre et Filio distinctæ.

Deinde. Nomina divinarum Personarum debent esse relativa, ut sunt P. et F. Sed hoc nomen Sp: Sti non est relativum, sed absolutum, ut patet, ergo non personæ divinæ, sed essentiæ nomen est.

At vero Sociniani hujusmodi cavillationes proponentes videntur mihi imitari Virgilianum illum luctatorem, qui alterna bracia et protendit, et jactat et auras verberat ictis. Et re quidem vera ut [illegible] occurramus dicimus ad primam temere prolat ex adductis testim: inferre Socinianos Sp: Stum non esse Personam. Nam ad Galat: 3 inquit Paulus homines in Xto baptizari, et Xtum induere, quin inde vel ipsi ambigant Sociniani eidem Xto veræ personæ rationem detractam iri. Et quidem ob eam causam quia in hujusmodi locis tropum latere cognoscunt. Atqui tropus latet etiam in locis ab ipsis objectis. Sensus enim est Xtum emundaturum eos, qui baptismum acceperint, gratia Sp: Sti. Secundus vero docet discipulos Xti virtute, ac donis Sp: Sti [illegible], fortitudine in die Pentecostes [illegible] evasuros [illegible] nihil ex iis [illegible] Sp: Sti personæ [illegible] potest.

Secunda cavillatio, quæ a [illegible] pronenitur, (quæ: licet [illegible] exposita sit alteram potius [illegible] in qua [illegible] verum esse Deum ostendemus) sic a doctiss: [illegible] diluitur: Pérabsurdum est, inquit lib. 8 de Trin: [illegible] judicium, putare idcirco non esse Deum [illegible], qd illi nescio qui nihil tum [illegible] se in eo fatentur. Sic enim neq. [illegible] esse [illegible] aliquem dixeris, nedum ut vero tenus confitetur [illegible], Deum, et ejus Filium quia multi ad [illegible], et qui [illegible] ignorant. [illegible] Deum [illegible] summum, quod ille apud Prophetam dixerit Non est Deus. Sed vero mirum esse [illegible] nomen Sp: Sti accepto [illegible], ac solo hujus nomine, ac rudi notitia [illegible] nihil adhuc scisse de [illegible], quod Paullo statim doctore didicerunt.

5 Tertia Cavillatio futilis omnino est. Nam ut in Tractatu de SS. Trinitate cap. 5 iam nostes animadvertit; spiritus furoris, atq: vindictæ Dñi, aliquando stricte sumitur pro effectu, idest pro pœna, et ita non est Persona: aliquando sumitur etiam pro principio ejusdem effectus; et tunc significat tam justam, et omnipotentem Dei ulciscentis virtutem, tum ipsam personam ..., qui uti præmia largitur probis, ita sceleratis supplicia retribuit.

6 Ex quo intelligitur spiritum vindictæ, ac furoris Dñi, etsi persona non sit cum accipitur pro vindictæ, et furoris effectu esse tamen personam, si cum hujus effectus principio confundatur.

6 Quartam Dissert: solvit P. Gazzaniga Dissert: 5 cap. 1. ... primo ... Sp: Stum appellari Virtutem Altissimi, quin tamen sequatur eum non esse Personam divinam: nam etiam Xtus a D. Aug. vocatus est virtutem Dei, Sapientia Dei, via, et veritas, nemo tamen negabit ipsum verum esse personam. Deinde quomodo Sociniani explicabunt cum ... Xti promissionem factam ... Act: 1 vers. 8. Accipietis virtutem supervenientis Spir: sti in vos. Quomodo illa Ap. Sancti ad Ephes. 3. 16, det vobis secundum divitias gloriæ suæ virtute corroborari per spiritum ejus? An non duplicem Dei virtutem distinguet quarum una oriatur ex altera?

7 Sam Cavillationem dicimus cum Doct: Angelico p. q. 36 art. 2 ajendo, Nomen hoc spiritus stus, si gramatice accipiatur, significare quidem divinam essentiam, ac Patri, Filioq: proprie convenire; immo vero etiam Angelis bonis et animab: stis aptari posse: quippe et Angeli, et Animæ eorum sunt spiritus, et aeternitate gloria percellebres. At vero Divinam Ecclesiam post divinam Scripturam ac SS. Patres nomen idem ad tertiam divinam Personam, quæ procedit per modum amoris significandam determinasse. Atq: hujusmodi ... rationem hanc S. Doct: adducit rationem. Nam inquit nomen Spiritus in reb: corporeis impulsionem quamdam, et motionem significare videtur, nam flatum et ventum spiritum nominamus. Est autem proprium amoris quod moveat, et impellat voluntatem amantis in amatum. Sanctitas vero illis reb: attribuitur, quæ in Deum ordinantur. Quia igitur Persona divina procedit per modum amoris, quo Deus amatur convenienter Spiritus S. nominatur.

Ad id quod adjunctum est de nomine relativo, ita subdit S. Doctor ibidem, ad secundum dicendum quod licet hoc quod dico spiritus stus relative non dicatur, tamen pro relativo ponitur inquantum est accomodatum ad significandam personam sola relatione ab aliis distinctam; potest tamen intelligi in nomine aliqua relatio, si Spiritus S. intelligatur quasi spiratus. Hactenus Doct. Angelicus.

... erum inferunt Wolzogenius, et Crellius si Sp. S. sit persona duos habebimus in Trin: Filios: unum videlicet primæ personæ filius, alterum primæ et secundæ. Pariter duos habebimus P. unum primam personam, qui duplici nomine Pater erit, nempe quia secundam et tertiam personam generavit, alterum secundam quæ una cum P. generavit Sp. S. Atqui ex sacris litteris constat unum solummodo esse P. unumque solummodo Filium Ergo vulgaris doctrina de personalitate Sp. Sti contradictionis gladio se ipsam conficit.

Hæc turpissimi homines ajebat jam S. Athanasius Ep. 1 ad Serapionem Macedonianos conturans, qui similes cavillationes in medium proferebant.
Hæc turpissimi homines cavillando continuat, qui curiosius profunda Dei scrutari conantur, quæ nemo novit, nisi Spiritus Dei de quo illi tam impie sentiunt, quibus nihil amplius respondere æquum, sane esset, sed secundum Ap̄li præceptum ... monitionem tanquam hæretici vitandi essent. Verum ne sientium majoris ipsis fieret impudentiæ occasio S. Pater deinde Macedonianis respondendum censuit.
Quod et nos cum Socinianis præstabimus: qui nonnisi absurdissima, et futilia proferunt. Si enim sequor verbis clariss. P. Beiri l. 6 cap. 14 de Theolog.
discipl. Sp. Stus est a duobus ut cum nos asserunt Sociniani, quod verissimum
... jam ipsi rationem reddant cur unus tantus in Deitate sit Pater, itemque unus Filius. Nam Filius est ab uno P. et ab eo spiritu immediate si autem Spiritus est a solo Filio, sive a P. per Filium, non erit Filius Filii, quia procedit etiam a P. non erit Filius Patris, quia procedit per Filium Quod verbis Augustini præstat exponere. Utcumque, ait S. Pater in 15 de Trin: cap. 27, etiam illud intelligitur, quantum a talibus quales nos sumus intelligi potest cur non dicatur natus esse Sp. S. sed potius procedere ... quod absurdissimum est. Filius quippe nullus est duorum, nisi Patris et Matris: absit autem ut inter Deum Patrem, et Deum Filium aliquid tale suspicemur. Quamquam vero quid intersit inter generationem Verbi, et Processionem Sp. Sti difficillimum sit definire et plures afferantur rationes, hæc a Petavio l. 7 cap. 13 n. 9 censetur emuncta-tior et Wolzogenii Argumentum omnino frangit, quemadmodum, quas exponit Crellius l. 2 sect. 3. Verum jam satis pridem adversus Socinianos, recentioresque Macedonianos ostensum est Sp. Stum non esse meram Dei efficaciam. Nunc reliquum est, ut adversus veteres Macedonianos atque ... ipsum verum esse Deum demonstremus. Sit itaque:

quoniam si ex ipso Filius diceretur, ambo: utriq: Filius diceretur operationem erroris ut credant mendacio. Matth: 24 de eodem Antichristo dicitur: surgent pseudochristi, et pseudoprophetæ, et dabunt signa magna, et prodigia ita ut in errorem inducantur (apud S. Marcum ad seducendos electos) si fieri potest etiam electi. Et Matth. cap: 7: multi dicent mihi, inquit Xtus, in illa die: Dñe, Dñe in tuo nomine prophetavimus, et in nomine tuo demonia ejecimus, et in nomine tuo virtutes multas fecimus; et tunc confitebor illis quia nunquam novi vos, discedite a me qui operamini iniquitatem: quibus hæc apponit S. Hyeronimus: Nam et Saul, et Balaam, et Caiphas prophetaverunt; quo loco commemorari potest etiam Endorea, pitonisse quæ 1. Reg: 28 dicitur animam Samuelis suscitavisse. S. vero Jo. Chris. in hæc testimonia spirans, si propheta, inquit, quicquam signum ediderit, vel mortuum suscitaverit &c, signoque edito ad impietatem te invitaverit, ne propter signi eventum obedias: quarum tentat te Dnus Deus tuus.

[illegible]

3 quin et historia Eccles. refert ab hæreticis sæpe patrata miracula fuisse. tu de Paulo Novatiano refert Socrates plus una vice contigisse lib: 7 hist: Ecclesiasticæ cap: 17; et de aliis etiam, et Tertullianus, et alii scriptores testantur. Nam vero si hæc miracula vera supponerentur, vitam etiam hominum impiorum honestarent, porro uti vitam Sanctorum commendant miracula, cum de eorum agitur canonizatione; si vero miracula non sunt. Ergo præstigium ita cum miraculo confunditur, ut neque sapientibus homines unum ab altero noverint distinguere.

4 Etiamsi signa discernendi miraculum a præstigio esse possent; hæc tamen cognosci saltem a populo non possent. nam si collationes, comparationes et disquisitiones de uno miraculo sæpe adeo multum detinere Congregationem rituum consuevere; quanto magis incertus hærebit simplex vulgus in tot præstigiis a tot miraculis discernendis; ut idcirco via hæc doctrinam per miracula dignoscendi, aut facillime inducat in errores, aut multo operosior sit, quam illa ipsa via examinis quæ a catolicis refutatur.

5 Etiam miracula vera possunt ad finem rectum a Deo ordinari sed converti ad malum, et ad confirmationem erroris per malitiam hominum; ita ut verum etiam miraculum non ex Dei intentione, sed ex instrumenti perversitate ad errorem confirmandum facere possit. Hanc sententiam acriter defendit Auctor libri anonimi Parisiis editi Anni 1763, cui titulus est: Tractatus de miraculis

Tandem experientia ipsa constat ita præstigia speciem miraculorum induisse, ut omnis Religio quamvis erronea, et absurda, sua tamen miracula, ac prodigia jactitaverit. quo loco multa apud gentiles commemorantur de vestalibus de Apolonio Tianeo, Vespasiano imp. Accio Navio de Side, Esculapio Ermeticæ magistro, Terrenno gallo, de filiis Annii, de capite Orphei, ac de infinitis oraculis, quibus paganorum tot plena fuerat superstitio

1RR R°

118 R. Verum aut hic de veris miraculis sermo est quae etiam a demonibus fieri supponantur in confirmationem erroris aut de falsis miraculis agitur, quae demonum, aut hominum astutia veri similitudinem induere videantur [illegible] propositionem [illegible] esse [illegible], [illegible] docuimus cum ostendimus miracula vera quod importent immutationem primarum naturae determinationum idcirco nonnisi ab Auctore totius naturae causam illorum efficientem esse posse, causam vero instrumentalem esse [illegible] [illegible] vel ad confirmandam veritatem, vel ob aliam finem bonum qui non indigeret causa [illegible] efficiente sit. At vero causam hanc instrumentalem esse demones non posse juxta illa scilicet S. Thomae quodlibeto 2° q. 4: potest contingere quod aliquis gratiam gratum facientem non habens miracula faciat, sed non contingere non potest quod aliquis falsam doctrinam annuncians vera miracula faciat; quae nisi virtute divina fieri non possunt, sic enim Deus esset falsitatis testis quod est impossibile, et juxta illud altera q. de miraculis art. 5. operatio miraculosa sit quoddam divinum testimonium indicativum divinae virtutis et veritatis [illegible] demonibus quorum est tota voluntas ad malum aliqua potestas daretur faciendi miracula [illegible] falsitatis eorum testis existeret.

Si vero demones supponantur aut perversi homines miraculorum quandam similitudinem exhibere, quae [illegible] proprius praestigii nomine debet insigniri, tum neque desse notas dicimus, et criteria verum miraculum ab ipsis praestigiis discernendi. Nam cum certius ab Deo id esse dicendum sit quod aut praestantia, aut utilitate magis excellat; proinde praestantia et utilitas [illegible] erunt notae certissimae veritatem a mendacio in miraculis distinguendi. Praestantia [illegible] quae innotescit vel quando sunt multo majora, et mirabiliora quae pro veris haberi debeant juxta S. Augustini illa de Civit: Dei cap. [illegible]: cum vero Deus [illegible] ad commendanda eloquia veritatis [illegible]. Faceret majora, certiora, clariora miracula, quos tandem ita desipere libeat, ut non eligat quae [illegible], ubi et ampliora invenit quae miretur. Vel vero praestantia innotescit ex ipsa perspecta aliunde rei bonitate, aut probitate et sanctitate eorum ab quibus fit vel dignitate illius cujus in nomine fit. Utilitas vero constet, si quae educuntur certo pertineant ad homines juvandos, ab periculis defendendos, ad mores informandos, ad pacem, pietatem, religionem promovendam. Ita ut nisi haec colluceat evidenter, sitque dubium sit utrum ad malum potius, ad facinora ad turpia ad odibilia Deo inducere [illegible] hoc esse debeat, ne ipsa pro certis miraculis habeantur [illegible] [illegible] ad singula responsio [illegible].

[illegible] quod de magis Pharaonis asseritur refutatur ipsis rerum circumstantiis, quae si [illegible] [illegible] praestares videantur: cogere potuere, ut ita confiterentur [illegible] Dei [illegible] [illegible] haberi debet [illegible] plus quingenta mille phantasticis potius rationibus, quod experientia inductum hominem curare, qui [illegible] illud velit, quod ipsi vel nolentes concedere deberent. Ac neque [illegible] rerum, an res veras per praestigium prodire in conspectum Moysis et Pharaonis fecerint dijudicare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est, at verum [illegible] fecerunt similiter non similem vim miraculorum innuere docet hujus ipsius verbi repetitio, quae habetur Exodi 8 vers. 18, [illegible] cum Aaron percussit pulverem terrae, et facti sciniphes [illegible] in hominibus, et in jumentis [illegible] ibidem dicitur: feceruntque similiter malefici incantationibus suis, ut educerent sciniphes, et non potuerunt. Quare illud similiter significat conatum imitandi, non similitudinis potestatem.

Neq. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
Pharaone [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intervallo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] patrare mirabilia

prohibente et constante [illegible] luce divinae potestatis vicissim quae etiam ex permissione momentanea praestigiorum, tamquam umbram splendidius et certius enitere

1113 ad n.m Quae ad falsitatem sunt, ea nomine praestigia esse dicimus; quae vero ad gratias gratis datas referri possunt, ea licet vera miracula sint tamen contra nos nihil facere. Dein cum Deut. illud si surrexerit &c. sumit large miraculum pro praestigio, quod tamquam miraculum habetur a vulgo [illegible]. Deo permittente hoc, ad probationem [illegible], juxta [illegible] Augustini [illegible] de Trin. lib. 3. cap. [illegible], ubi de demonum agens potestate: datur [illegible] potestas ad fallen dos [illegible], sicut in Aegyptiis, et in ipso etiam Simone [illegible] ut [illegible] spiritualibus Ducti: one [illegible] admirandi, a quibus fiebant, a Dei virtute damnandi. Caeterum vero de praestigiis hisce, quae permitteret Deus, [illegible] ipse praecavere jussit cum [illegible] monuit, Non audies, quia tentat vos Dominus &c.

De Antichristo, vera miracula expectanda non esse, uti de nullo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] q. [illegible] de miraculis art. 5 ubi maxima, inquit, Demon habebit virtutem ad operandum vera [illegible] ut dicetur [illegible] secernerit cum [illegible] modico tempore quod intelligitur tempore Anti: [illegible]; sed tamen non operabitur vera miracula, quod patet per hoc, quod dicitur secun da ad [illegible], quod adventus [illegible] in omni veritate, et signis, et prodigiis mendaci: bus. Ergo demones vera miracula facere non possunt =

[illegible] vero dicatur missurus Deus operationem erroris [illegible] iniquitatem [illegible], ut ex eorum culpa multi decipiantur, dum signa veritatis credent esse, quae neque miracula sunt neque [illegible] veritatem [illegible], uti est ventos, et tempestates excitare, ignem e Coelo deducere, [illegible], [illegible] &c. Poterunt etiam [illegible] [illegible] ea prodi: gia esse, quae a Deo erunt non ad errorem probandum, sed ad praedictum [illegible] [illegible] nunciandum. Caeterum [illegible] dixisse hoc ipso, quod praecavere sibi omnes Deus voluerit cum dixit [illegible]: Ecce praedixi vobis &c.

Jam quae proferuntur Matth. [illegible] &c. pertinent ad gratias gratis datas, non gratum facientes, quas quidem etiam in peccatoribus non ad errorem [illegible] ad aliquod [illegible] esse [illegible] et [illegible] et inferius apertius ostendemus.

[illegible] Hyeronimus addit, ad idem hoc pertinent argumentum, ad [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] instrumentales esse possunt [illegible] [illegible] multi non autem [illegible] de Saule quidem nobis necesse non est implicatissimam hic tractare controversiam, sed satis sunt Augustini [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] est ut non [illegible] magica arte, [illegible], et obtemperant occulte [illegible] Dei quae et [illegible] habebat confirmatione Spiritus prophetae. [illegible] [illegible] cum [illegible] [illegible] cessurus.

[illegible] Chrisostomi dicta pertinent ad expositionem Citati superius loci Deut: cap: 7; [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] tamen [illegible] [illegible] afferre hanc interpretationem [illegible] [illegible] Judaeus [illegible] ad [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible]. [illegible] licet nos, aut Angelus de Coelo evangelizet [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Christo fuisse explicant [illegible] 14 [illegible]. 4 de Canonic. B.tae p. 2 cap. 4

111 [illegible] nonnulli putarunt miracula ab hereticis aliquando ad errorem confirmandum vera edita fuisse, atque ad hanc sententiam primo auctoritatem habere Tertulliani, qui in lib. de praescriptionibus hereticorum cap: 44: adicient, inquit, praeterea, multa de auctoritate cuiusque doctoris heretici, [illegible] maxime doctrinae, [illegible] quidam confirmasse mortuos suscitatos, debiles reformasse, futura significasse, ut merito Apostoli crederentur. Secundo etiam afferre Maldonati illam [illegible] Prophetas de quibus loquitur Christus vera miracula facturos; et denique rationibus uti [illegible] penultimi citati anonimi Auctoris in Tract: de Miraculis, qui putat pseudoprophetas miracula indirecte obtinere posse a Deo ad confirmationem errorum. Sed horum opiniones male tutae et erroneae debent haberi. Nam Tertullianus quidem certum est ipsis non favere. Loquitur ipse citato loco de Miraculis apparentibus [illegible] propter [illegible] facienda esse [illegible] dixerat; atque [illegible] autem ostendere [illegible] qui [illegible], qui decipisse ab pseudoprophetis [illegible] [illegible] licet [illegible] vera [illegible] ventures [illegible] [illegible] qui etiam virtutes [illegible] ad fallaciam [illegible] corrupte praedicationis [illegible] apprime [illegible] respondeat, quae [illegible], et prodigia [illegible] superius allata sunt. Maldonati vero opinio omnibus boni sensus Theologis adversatur [illegible] ipso, quod [illegible] miraculis verae doctrinae esse posse argumentum probabile nunquam autem necessarium; quae quidem [illegible] [illegible] heretici [illegible] [illegible] debet. Auctorem vero Tractatus de miraculis [illegible] tat ipsa communis omnium hominum opinio de veracitate Dei, denique miraculorum [illegible], et natura ad vocem Dei ipsam exprimendam, quod quidem Deus commovere nulla totam naturam, quin vera aliquid significet existimare sane non potest, nisi qui aut Deum non noverit, aut sensum exuerit communem. Quare hanc opinionem praeter superius allatum [illegible] cujus [illegible] [illegible] esse jactitat, refutant [illegible] etiam Theologi, [illegible] Card. Gotti [illegible] dubio 6 § 6. Estius in 4o Sententiarum dist: 7 § 19; et praecipue Ricardus in dictionario de [illegible] Ecclesiasticis, et a pluribus [illegible] ubi multa etiam capita alia refutat hujus anonimi, et hanc suspecti maxime Scriptoris.

4 [illegible] praemissis respondemus sine dubitatione, miracula illa edita ab peccatoribus ab falsis prophetis, et etiam ab hereticis nunquam, et nusquam directe fuisse ad falsitatem confirmandam, [illegible] longe ad alios fines. Atque ita scilicet quae narrant Socrates, et Sozomenus [illegible] merito [illegible] [illegible] haberi debeant, [illegible] [illegible] hereticis favantibus) haec [illegible] etiam si vera [illegible] nihil tamen vetat, Deum [illegible] miracula [illegible] voluisse ad ostendam [illegible] Sacramenti, ac Templi [illegible] [illegible] reservatum [illegible], [illegible] male [illegible] tur ea in confirmationem [illegible] erroris effecta esse jactitantes. Caeterum [illegible] [illegible] per vera miracula doctrina hereticorum, [illegible] conatus aut frustrati fuere [illegible], aut etiam in [illegible] penitus [illegible] contrario [illegible] [illegible] Episcopo Ariano narrat Gregorius Turonensis in lib. Francorum cap. 3 voluisse illum Arianos errores [illegible] simulata illuminatione corroborare; itaque cum hominem videntem [illegible], ut se fingeret [illegible], ut deinde per miraculum visum recipere videretur [illegible] ficto caeco [illegible] nunquam [illegible], [illegible] per heretici artem ullam visum recipere potuit [illegible] confirmat etiam Victor Uticensis lib. de persecutione Wandalorum, et [illegible] apud Baronium ad Annum 484. [illegible] vero, et ridiculos conatus [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] comparati, et [illegible] recentiorum etiam [illegible] Calvini [illegible] pseudo reformatorum [illegible] recensuit [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] Eccle: siae cap. 14

115 [illegible] providentia semper effectum [illegible], ut [illegible] veritate [illegible] Deus ita [illegible] [illegible] praestigia ab veris miraculis separarentur, ut vel insensatis de divina [illegible] [illegible] nemo posset [illegible], [illegible] ratione [illegible]

Moysis penitus averaverit, ex opposito alias est sacerdotes Baal cultores tolleratos 3 Reg. 18 Elias tandem insigni prodigio in conspectu omnium edito superavit, confudit, trucidavit. Elimas Magus ab S. Paulo devictus, et excaecatus fuit Actor. 13. Simon Magus a S. Petro prostratus in terram fuit. Tot et tanta denique ad [illegible] Deorum cultus evertendos edita prodigia fuere, ut per Christum conversus inimica Carni, et Sanguini Religio propagata fuerit paucorum, et despectissimorum hominum opera; quod quidem aut Christi miraculum maximum omnium est aut nonnisi ab evidentibus tota terra prodigiis, ac portentis evenire potuisset. Haec igitur dubitatio, haec ambiguitas miraculorum, quae tenere populum accipere debeat omnium potius incredulorum est, quam ex re et experientia deductum monumentum. Sed etsi revera aliquid inquirendum esset, non proinde vulgo etiam criteria deesse miracula a praestigiis distinguendi jam superius expositum est. ~~Neq~~

Neque enim cum de Religionis veritate agitur idem contingit, ac cum agitur de Sanctorum virtutibus et prodigiis probandis. Quae etenim ibi tractantur neque ad religionem veram statuendam aut evertendam pertinent, neque ad comparationem cum praestigiis, et geniorum malorum artibus. At vero in iis quae ad veritatem doctrinae, et Religionis probandam pertinent, providentia Dei est, ut ita aperta, et splendida veritas innotescat, ut excusationem habere nullam errantes homines debeant, ac proinde Christi, ei, certitudine, praestantia, et Moysis, et Christi, et aliorum Religionis Propagatorum ita miracula voluit praestare, ut nemo nisi ex perversa voluntate lucem effugere hujus veritatis posset. Comparatio vero cum rei veritatem in primis probare possit, idcirco miracula verae doctrinae cum miraculis falsarum Religionum comparata ita longe praestare, atque excellere visa sunt ut nemo jam sit, qui non fateatur, si loqui ex vero velit, uti Sol tenebras, ita lucem miraculorum, quae Christus, et Apostoli edidere, tenebras omnes gentium, et Idololatriae dissolvisse, et vere vocatos ob Christo fuisse omnes ad admirabile lumen suum

Caeterum vero quod tantam lucem miraculorum aliqui non aspexerint quodque aliqua aliquibus de his rebus obscuritas remanserit, id ad profundam pertinet divinorum consiliorum rationem, quae dum supernaturalem revelationem veritatis, ipsius splendidissime insignivit, permisit tamen extare aliquando obscuritatem aliquam, unde errandi occasionem culpa sua aliquid invenerant. Satis est luminis, inquit Pascalius de Relig. cap. 18 pro iis, qui videre cupiunt, et satis tenebrarum pro iis, qui aliter dispositi sunt. Satis claritatis, ut illuminentur electi, et satis obscuritatis, ut condemnentur, ut videntes videant et non videant, et audientes audiant, et non intelligant. Caeterum et in rebus naturalibus saepe aliquid ex parte una clarum, et manifestum est ex parte altera obscuritate, et difficultatibus refertum. Quare uti in natura, ita in gratiae operibus conquerendum nobis non est, si nos voluerit Deus quasi inter lucem, et tenebras ambulare, ita tamen ut quilibet possit divini luminis ope [illegible] veritatis rectum vitae iter tenere, juxta S. Pauli illud 2 ad Cor. 3: quod si etiam opertum est Evangelium nostrum in iis qui pereunt est opertum, in quibus Deus hujus saeculi excaecavit mentes infidelium, ut non fulgeat illis illuminatio Evangelii gloriae Christi.

Ad 5. ut sine ambagibus haec absolvatur, a multis et [illegible], nimis obscure tractata controversia, aut miraculum ita facere videtur ad probandum errorem, ut tamen ponderans quisque non necessario judicare debeat, revera in contestationem erroris tale miraculum peractum esse; et in hoc casu abitur a quaestione in qua quaeritur, utrum miraculum contestari falsam doctrinam possit, seu quod eodem redit, utrum judicio prudentum necessaria connexio esse possit inter miraculum factum et judicium de veritate rei, cujus in gratiam peractum sit. Aut vero miraculum eam habet connexionem cum re probanda, ut judicio prudentum necessario judicandum sit veritatem per miraculum contestari; et eo in casu nego posse unquam miraculum in contestationem fieri erroris. Sequor hac in re Estium, qui verum est, inquit, Gersonem (quem fortasse nuperus hic sequitur Auctor) in istam sententiam [illegible] propendere, propterea quod opinetur Augustinum, et alios ita sentire. Quo in re falli eum existimamus. Sed haec sententia facile confutatur. Nam, ut idem ait Estius, licet de absoluta Dei potentia necessarium non fuerit miracula ad hoc instituere ut essent signa seu testimonia, sed possit ea facere Deus simpliciter, et absque omni testificatione, sicut facit opera naturae; tamen de via ordinaria constat, Deum miracula instituisse tanquam signa quaedam, et testimonia ejus rei ad quam verificandam ab eo qui illam coram hominibus exhibet inducuntur. Cum enim rerum naturam Deus semel instituerit, ab ejus ordine non recedit nisi per opus extraordinarium et supernaturale velit aliquid loqui et significare omnibus. Loquitur autem illud loqui velle [illegible] loquitur Angelus vel Homo per cujus ministerium tale opus hominibus ostendit. Atque hujus rei [illegible] miracula in Scripturis passim signa appellantur quasi veritatis alicujus ad homines significativa. Hoc autem praeter citatum superius S. Th., ita sapienter exponit S. Aug. Epist. 102 ad Deogratias. Sicut humana inquiens consuetudine verbis, ita divina potentia etiam factis loquitur. Et sicut sermoni humano verba nova vel minus usitata moderate et decenter adspersa splendorem addunt, ita in factis mirabilibus congruenter aliquid significantibus, quodammodo luculentior est divina eloquentia. Atque hanc connexionem miraculi cum expressione divinae testificationis praeter allata superius ad probationem responsionis [illegible] miracula probant etiam haec Josue 3; magnum miraculum in transitu Jordanis edentis, quo in hac inquit scietis quia Dominus Deus vivens in medio vestri est et Elias magnum illud faciens prodigium 3 Reg. 18 qui exaudi, inquit, hodie quia tu es Deus Israel et ego servus tuus. In vero in novo testamento ad credita [illegible] operis credite [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] possessum et haec signa scripta sunt etc. [illegible] possunt [illegible] Signa autem eos qui crediderint haec sequentur: in nomine meo ejicient daemonia, linguis loquentur novis etc. Hoc denique et communi sensu homines docet qui miracula etiam portenta dicere quasi per Deum portendi [illegible] aliquid quasi significatione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] miracula, et vero probat id experientia ipsa, quatenus, ut Estius ille [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad confirmationem alicujus erroris factum esse verum miraculum, quia potius de [illegible] [illegible] pseudoprophetarum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intercessisse. Ex his ita instituere [illegible] prudentium [illegible] poterit: de via ordinaria connexio necessaria est inter Miraculum, et testificationem Divinam de ea re cujus rei gratia constet fieri miraculum; atqui divina contestatio de falso esse non potest; ergo miraculum nullo modo potest falsitatem contestari. Minor propositio Dei innititur veracitati, quam nemo sanus revocat in dubium, majorem probant alii quae adduximus principia quibus possunt hanc absolvere controversiam, quam tamen minutius expositam vi: debis est apud Cardinalem Gotti Tomo 10 Theol. Dubio 6 §. 6 N. 49 et 54.

127 Ad alterum contingere de miraculis dicimus, quod de veritate contingit, quam ideo quilibet pro sua causa tenere vult, quod fateantur omnes veritati cedendum esse: at ideo tamen multi falsitatem pro veritate accipiunt, quod veritatis ipsius criteria non animadvertunt. Atque ita quidem cum agitur de Religione miraculis cedendum esse omnes intelligunt, at non omnes miraculorum criteria perpendunt, quae quidem nos, ut superius exposuimus, quaeque, ut constet non aptari miracula falsarum Religionum, ita prodigia quae afferri solent sep: tim et curtim perspiciemus, ut deinde quam longe sint ab certitudine, et praestantia mira: culorum nostrae Religioni manifestum fiat.

Atque de Androgeonis Ovidiana et Hypoliti resurrectione, de Aeneae fingunt omnia commentaria; de Capite Orphei Oracula fundente deque Homericis, Virgilianis, Ovidianis, Propertianis hujusque generis neque est cur disputetur, cum haec ad eas fictiones pertineant, quas ex Poetarum officio et munere esse docuit Aristoteles in Poetica, ac de quibus Poetis idem Aristoteles in Metha: physicorum lib. 1 cap. 2: Multa inquit proverbio aiunt multa mentiri Poetae. De Pithagora quae revocat Voltairius in scenam jam plurimis eruditorum demonstravit in historia critica philosophiae Romanenses esse fabulas illas, quas Jamblicus et Porphirius, aliique longo post spatio Pithagorae posteriores et quidem plerique mendacii Auctores, inspersere. De Simonide (Cic. apud ab Tindaridis admonito haec habet lib. 2 de Oratore) Quintilianus cap. 20 mihi totum de Tindaridis fabula videtur, neque omnino hujus rei meminit usquam Poeta ipse profecto non taciturus de tanta sua gloria. De Romulo redivivo, nar: rat Plutarchus, cum propter Romuli occisionem Populus tumultuaretur, Proculum unum de Principibus civitatis prodiisse, jureque jurando testatum esse Romulum se redivivum vidisse, et multa splendidum gloria Coeli superna conscendere; itaque commenta haec intelligantur quae si: milia visa fuisse iis, quae de Aristeo Proconnesio, et de Cleomede Astypalaeensi Graeci fabulabantur. De novacula Accii Navii: omitte inquit Tullius de divinatione cap. 38 lituum Romuli, cotem Accii Navii, nihil debet esse in philosophia com: mentitiis fabellis loci, quod et habet initio lib. 3 de Nat. Deor.

Hoc Celsus Christianis objiciebat de resurrectione Cleomedis primo non proponuntur tanquam certa. Nam omnes, inquit, Cleomedis animam spiritus relicto corpore evagatam putant deinde quae non videat aut ... hanc Cleomedis pro ratione separationem, conjunctionemque animae cum corpore, quam Stoici aliqui invexere, quamque vel Tullius ipse valuti ... ... explodit in lib. de Rep:

De iis quae Apulejus mirabilia enarrat in Asino aureo Auctor ipse, sic inquit sermone Mi: lesio (hoc est romanensi) varias fabulas conseram. Et S. Augustinus memorat Apologiam adversus Apulejo, ubi conqueritur magica arti ea tributa fuisse, quae ipse perpeni, et ... qua fabulas enarravisset.

De Tuccia Claudia, et ceteris vestalib. S. Augustinus lib. 10 de Civ. Dei demonstrat, to: tu id Demonis potestatem non excessisse. S. Th. q. 6 de malo probat fieri hec etiam ab Deo potuisse ad veritatem, virtutemque aliquam concludendam, quod, ut superius ostendimus, nihil inconvenientis involvere.

De Iside atque Esculapio certum est omnia vel excellenti medicae arti tribuenda esse, quam Isidis quidem sacerdotes exercebant, et cujus erat praestantissimus Magister Esculapius iuxta Luciani illud in philopseude: Esculapius, ejusque posteri salutaria pharmaca admoventes agros curabant. vel vero quae medicam artem excederent, Demonum artibus effecta fuisse uti ait Jo. Chris. Orat. 1 adversus Judeos, morbos scilicet ipse ab demonibus fusos Curatos ad egrotos [illegible] restitutos, quatenus, scilicet, uti habet Tertullianus in Apologetico cap: 22. Demones dant primo dehinc remedia praecipiunt, post quae desinunt ledere, et curasse creduntur sive ut inquit Lactantius in Epitome institutionum cap: 28: Irrepunt etiam in Corporibus, uti spiritus tenues, viciatisque membris morbo concinunt, quos sacrificiis, votisque placati postmodum relaxant. Atque hac quatatione Deos [illegible] [illegible] aliquando jam superius ex S. Augustino expositum est.

Se vero etiam Vespasiani, et Adriani curationes simulationes dici possunt; ac de Vespasiano hoc deducere licet ex Tacito, et Suetonio, cum alter Vespasianum ipsum haec irridere et aspernari diceret, alter haec efficta innuat fuisse, ut Auctoritas Regni initio Vespasiano conciliaretur. De Adriano vero idem colligere licet et ex Sannonii circumstantiis, et vero ex historico Spartiano, qui dum haec enarrat Marius, inquit, Maximus haec per simulationem facta esse commemoravisse. Quod si quidquam veri in his enarratur curationibus, id demonstrante Dillemontio Demonis ope factum fuisse censendum est, eminitum ad obscuranda si fieri posset recentia Christi miracula; quatenus primo Demones ipsi ederent deinde nec lesione abstinentes, curavisse per miraculum viderentur. Ne enim vera de Ceco Vespasiani medici ipsi, inquit Tacitus, ea pera varie disserere, huic non exesam vim luminis, et reditura si repellerentur obstantia: Quod quidem Demoni non excedere potentiam videtur.

De Brenno Gallo ejusque exercitu Strabo quidem, et Athenaeus negat, illum extinctum fuisse, sed imo Delficis [illegible] opulentum domum referant rediisse. Pausanias gallos hosce [illegible] corruptos improvisis tocensinnaie missilibus, ac lapidum jactu percussos, et hisce vulneribus, et frigore postremum fuisse confectos. Justinus eandem concedit hanc cladem Gallorum, sed non Delfica potentia immissam, sed justa punitione Dei potissimum ob Brenni ducis insignem impietatem. Qualibet ex hisce responsionibus difficultatem [illegible] solvere poterit.

Ceterum quae ab Ethnicis proferuntur aequare omnia demonum artis esse tribuenda probat Lactantius lib. 2 Divinar. Institut. cap. [illegible]; ubi etiam alia multa de Junone, Castore, Proserpina, Hercule, Jove, Minerva commemoravit quae quidem omnia quam impar, [illegible] cum miraculis Christianis aequiparanda, tanta temporum diuturnitate, tanta [illegible] [illegible], tanto martyrum sanguine confirmatis videre licet ex iis, quae Baronius habet in [illegible] [illegible] cap: 57. Nam quidquid antea, inquit, [illegible] [illegible] adducerent, cum errorem [illegible] confirmatum oculis [illegible] viderent, et eandem ubique templorum ac simulacrorum vastitatem intuerentur, alii ad [illegible] [illegible] doctrinam se conferebant, alii licet idem facere adhuc majorum tamen caeremonias ut pote [illegible], atque [illegible] contemnebant, et quos antea pro Diis habuissent condemnabant

Propositio

Propheti[ae] not[ae] ver[ae] Religionis sunt.

Doct: thesis Prophetiarum nomine quid veniat exposuimus th° [illegible] itores ver[ae] revelationis, sive religionis cum dicimus, tum intelligimus prophetias, ita uti miracula, argumentum exhibere moraliter certum de veritate doctrin[ae], cui ipsae faveant quatenus Prophetiae scilicet, et adeo sint et testimonium divinum, atque infallibile exhibeant. Res hic agitur precipue contra incredulos, qui divinitatem prophetiarum derident, et contra aliquos etiam, qui divinitatem prophetiarum concedunt, sed earum certum testimonium de veritate doctrin[ae] non concedunt.

1028 Confir: thesis primo ex sensu comuni hominum, qui cum semper in qualibet religione Oraculis, et vaticiniis sive veris, sive falsis primas detulere, tum aperte ostenderant, tanquam divinitatis testimonium generatim haberi debere prenotionem, ostensionemque futurorum.

2° Prob. id ratione prophetia strictius sumpta, uti superius eodem numero demonstratum est, est de futuris contingentibus, qu[ae] necessarium scilicet connexionem non habent cum causis antecedentibus, ac proinde non per deductionem, sed per visionem solam certo cognosci possunt. Visio autem futurorum non est nisi ab eo, qui temporum determinationibus nullimode subjicitur, et cui tota est pr[ae]sens [ae]ternitas cujusmodi Deus est. Et quicunque tandem sit modus quo Deus h[ae]c videt, semper certum illud haberi debet, ita ab solo Deo prophetias esse, uti soli Deo tribui debet pr[ae]scientia. Quod vero de futuris contingentibus, sive liberis potissimum valet, id cum proportione valet etiam de c[ae]teris, qu[ae] cum notis causis necessariam connexionem non habent, et qu[ae] proinde certo cognosci nisi divina ope non possunt. Jam vero quod solum ex Deo est, id si non faceret ad veritatem, causa erroris in Deum ipsum refundenda esset, quod cum sit absurdum tam et absurdum erit prophetias tanquam notas veritatis non haberi.

Prob: id 3 ex Scrip. Isaiae 41 dicitur: annuntiate qu[ae] ventura sunt in futurum et sciemus quia Dii estis vos; et cap: 46: recordamini quoniam Ego sum Deus... nec est similis mei annuntians ab exordio novissimum, et ab initio qu[ae] nec dum facta sunt. Daniel cap: 2 Mysterium inquit, quod Rex interrogat, sapientes Magi, aruspices, et ariolo, nequeunt indicare Regi, sed est Deus in C[ae]lo revelans Mysteria; et post somnii prophetici explicationem Nabucodonosor vere, inquit, Deus vester, Deus Deorum est, Deus Regum, et revelans Misteria. Christus ipse Joannis 5. Scrutamini inquit scripturas, et ill[ae] sunt qu[ae] testimonium perhibent de me, et cap: 14, dixi vobis inquit, priusquam fiat, ut cum factum fuerit credatis. Luc[ae] 24 ita reprehendit discipulos. O Stulti, et tardi corde ad credendum in omnibus qu[ae] loquuti sunt prophet[ae]. Act: 3° de Paulo dicitur: erat testificans Regnum Dei suadensque eis de Jesu, et prophetis a mane usque ad vesperam. S. Petrus epist. 2ª cap: 2, et habemus, inquit, firmiorem propheticum sermonem, cui benefacitis attendentes quasi lucern[ae] lucenti in caliginoso loco... non enim voluntate humana allata est aliquando prophetia, sed spiritu S. inspirati locuti, sunt sancti Dei homines.

Afferri possent hic testimonia Justini in apologia prima, Lactantii in lib: 3°, [illegible] Augustini contra Faustum, Origenis contra Celsum, Tertulliani in apologetico, et aliorum quamplurium quos refert Huetius in demonstrationib: Evangelicis prop: 8.; sed brevitatis causa h[ae]c possunt omitti, pr[ae]sertim in tanta de hac re comparanda perspicuitate.

Opp: 1 Cum Spinoza Autore sermonis de fundamento Religionis, et alii increduli, prophetias humanae potius artem opere quam divinae potentiae. Hac arte quadam ajunt magno verborum, et imaginum involucro commisceri effata prophetarum consuevisse, ut in ea obscuritate quidquid occurret, semper aliquid veluti praedictum, et praefiguratum in illis ambagibus apparere posset. Hujus artis scholas apud Judaeos extitisse videtur innuere illud 1 Reg 10 ubi dicitur, grex prophetarum obviam ipsi occurrisse. Id etiam ex stylo prophetarum videtur erui posse, qui ipsos non ex divina inspiratione, sed ex propria naturae temperatione, aut educatione jam incultus est uti in Eliseo, jam asperus ut in Jeremia, jam nobilis ut in Isaia liberaliter educato, jam infimus ut in Amos armentario.

2° Quid nisi humanum sapiat ita etiam, quae deterius deridet de Isaia, qui cap: 20 nudum se dicit per civitatem ambulavisse deque Ezechiele, qui cap: 4 jussus esse dicitur panem commedere opertum stercore humano, et pro magno beneficio obtinuisse, ut stercus humanum in bovinum immutaret. Quin et naturalis tantum videtur esse hic quae humanis opibus indiget, uti contigit Eliseo, qui lib. 4 Reg. cap. 3 prophetare volens petiit adduci sibi psaltem, et nonnisi eo canente sua effudit oracula. Quare si quid etiam prophetae praedixere, id videtur potius Ctvetio tribuendum esse dexteritati ingenii ad conjecturas efficiendas quo in sensu Temistocles, Scipio, aliique magni viri multa, et maxima antequam contingerent conjectura aspicere potuerunt. Sed hae tamen conjecturae aliquando etiam in prophetis ut contradictoriae exponebantur, uti quum Eliseus 4 Reg: 8 vade inquit, dic ei, Regi scilicet Syriae, sanaberis: porro ostendit mihi Dnus quia morte morieris; aut si quae vere propositae erant, eae fallaces ex rerum eventu repertae sunt, ita ex. c. Isaias falso praedixit mortem proximam Ezechiae; et Jonas ipse congoscitur, se deceptum fuisse, quando urbis Ninive subversionem praedixerat.

3° Etiam SSrum PPum testimonia aliqua videtur vim vaticinandi naturali arte, aut ingenio extare posse. S. Gregorius lib. 4 dialog cap: 26 ipsa inquit aliquando animorum vi subtilitate sua aliquid praevidet. et ex S. Augustini lib: de genesi ad litt. 13 cap: 3 afferuntur verba haec: animae humanae, secundum quod a sensibus abstrahitur competit futura praevidere

4° Quod si etiam vim naturalem Prophetiae excedere dicantur tamen nec probare Religionem possunt cum omnes etiam falsae religiones sua prophetias, sua vaticinia, et oracula jactitent, ut si veram Religionem Prophetiae inportarent, non una, sed quamplures, et invicem oppositae verae haberi Religiones deberent

5° Nec vero apparet quinam certo prophetiae verae ab falsis distinguantur, et utrum propheta ab malo spiritu deciniatur, uti evenit cum Achab, et Josaphat deceptus fuit a prophetis omnibus exponentibus 3 Reg 12, an vero divino spiritu afflatus sit.

Denique uti habet Gustovius in Emilio certi aliquid eruere ex prophetiis non licet nisi concurrant 3a haec: primo prophetiae nostrae testes esse 2° nos esse testes pariter eventus secundum prophetiam 3° nihil constare, eventum illum neque fortuito cum prophetia convenire, neque naturaliter praevideri potuisse. Quae 3a cum fere nunquam concurrant, tum fere nunquam prophetiae esse argumentum verae Religionis poterunt

130 Et ad primum in prophetiis per ambages obscuritatesque rerum eventus informiter et indeterminate continerent non eas Porphyrius, nec Julianus, nec Deistici multi eas contendebant effectas fuisse post rerum eventus quod scilicet ipsis impossibile videretur ita exacte, ita precise nomina, facta, circumstantias describi nisi post ipsum eventum. Hos igitur homines in suo ratione spicitiores, aut saltem iniquos magis opponemus Spinozae et ceteris incredulis qui bene non est animo nec nisi stultitiae possunt evidentiam certam negare, quae Daniel, Hieremias, Daniel de Cyro, de Alexandro, de Antioco prodixere quae ceteri vates de Messiae nativitate, doctrina, predicatione, miraculis, passione, resurrectione ita describere, ut raro historici ipsi rerum transactarum adeo minutas circumstantias confecerunt, quae denique non mistice nec allegorice sed plane ac litteraliter de vocatione gentium, de reprobatione synagogae, de caecitate Judaeorum deque ipsorum dispersione prophetarum oraculis praevisa et descripta sunt. Et si quod in aliquibus vaticiniis minus nobis perspectum voluit ipse Deus, si multa allegorica ac mistica pro eorum temporis rationibus voluit predici, si aliqua denique nondum completa ita ut sub certo cognita dici possint, hoc ad rem nostram nihil dicimus facere. Cum de his agatur vaticiniis, quae clare facere debeant pro ea doctrina qua prophetiis probari supra diximus. Porro nobis erit si pro disputatione nostra prophetiae multae aut singillatim inspectae aut inter se comparatae, aut recto studio perpensae clare evidenterque ita faciant, uti superius declaratum est. [illegible]

Neque vero prophetandi, sed bene ac pie vivendi disciplinam tradebant prophetae, ad quos discipuli confluebant convenire, ut pari spiritu societate uterentur utriusque generis et pueri erant et ii illi qui Reg. 3 cap. 10 dicuntur filii prophetarum, et qui psallentibus et citharis addicebantur, de quibus mentio fit Numerorum 11 ac de quibus cecinit Moyses: quis tribuat ut omnis populus prophetet, et det eis Dominus spiritum suum. Atque ex iis quidem aliqui spiritu prophetiae non ex fructu artis, sed ex dono gratuito Dei instruebantur uti Sauli etiam ipsi contigit, qui a vita prophetiae Samuelis cuneus prophetarum obviam ingens insiliit super eum spiritus Domini et prophetavit in medio eorum licet Saul adeo parum esset ex arte prophetarum, ut res hec absurda adstantibus videretur et omnes dicerent, quae res accidit filio Cis, num et Saul inter prophetas, et versum sit in proverbium num et Saul inter prophetas.

At quod spectat prophetarum vite illa aptantur S. Thomae 2.2. q. 172 ar. 3 indifferens dona ad prophetiam quibuscumque similitudinibus ad prophetica exprimatur. et ideo homo ex operatione divina non immutatur ubi a prophetia; removetur autem divina virtute si quid prophetiae repugnat. Cum homo nimirum veluti instrumentum divinae revelationis sit nihil vetat, ut solum pro sua temperatione adaptet unumquodque vocis uti voce eadem suo tamen proprio modo diversa exhibent armonica instrumenta. Atque ut quae didicit quisque exprimere proprio stilo potest, ita quae ex divino afflatu hauriunt prophetae ea suo quemque modo exprimere nihil vetat dummodo non incongrue, et repugnanter se habeant. Ceterum de illis quidem perverse Spinozam dicere constat ex facili legenti caput Amos ultimum ubi vindex Dei manus qua non effugient peccatores mirabilibus depingit figuris nec dissimili stilo deinceps exponit aedificationem Dei tabernaculum Davidis reedificaturum sicut in diebus antiquis. De ceteris vero prophetis statuendum illud Augustini est, qui lib. 4 de Doctr. Xti capit. postquam eloquentiam simul cum sapientia prophetis docuit non defuisse exemplo Amos, quo dominantes non minus diserte, quam graviter obiurgat, ita denique concludit: neque enim ingenio humana industria composita, sed divina mente sunt fusa, et eloquenter, et sapienter non intenta in eloquentiam sapientia, sed a sapientia non recedente eloquentia erant in prophetis animadvertenda. 2° Scilicet morem Orientalium fuisse allegorias multas atque imagines non solum verborum, sed factorum etiam ad res exprimendas adhibere. 3° Prophetas agere aliqua potius quam dicere consuevisse, ut scilicet eis significatis per actionem hominum animos acrius percelleret, et ne ipsius irritaret demissa[?] pauca, quam quae essent oculis subiecta [illegible] 3° multa ipsos tanquam facta narrare, quae tantum in visione contigerunt. Quibus animadversis quae duo inepte ab Voltero in medium afferuntur, ita facile refutari possunt. Primum quidem nuditatem Isaiae necesse non esse ita summi prorsus, et praecise, ut ipse impudenter, aut inverecunde per civitatem ambulaverit dicendus sit, sed ita solummodo, ut saccum vestis potius propheticam deposuerit una cum calceamentis, sola tunica retenta interiore. Cujus rei exempla non desunt in scripturis, nam et in 2° Regum [?] 4° David Rex dicitur nudatus ante Arcam Dei exiluisse, cum tamen [illegible] eodem in cap: dicatur: accinctus Ephod lineo. Ita improprie etiam [illegible] ut cum [illegible] Nudus, inquit, ara sere nudus [illegible] gravi colonis = Et Seneca de beneficiis, sic, inquit, qui male vestitum et pannosum vidit nudum se vidisse dicit

Perversi vero stercorum indagator ulterius phrasim hebraicam coopertis intendit. Cum [illegible] nihil significet nisi coctum sub cinere stercoris, quae quidem simbolice prolata ostendit id quod illico sequitur et dixit Deus sic comedent filii Israel panem suum pollutum inter gentes ad quas ejiciam eos, summam scilicet hae exprimunt populi miseriam, qui quod vilissimum est cibus scilicet, id tamen neque habiturus sit sinceruum ad panem decoquendum, sed foedum et ex rebus turpibus conquisitum; qua iperbole famis, et ignominiae Judaeorum adeo rebellium praedicata nihil quidem inconveniens est. Cum vero vix quidquam minarum remittit Deus agens etiam cum Propheta, tum vel Christus praefiguratur, qui etiam si innocens, peccata nostra, et poenas nobis debitas portavit; vel ostendit magnitudinem furoris Dei, qui vix mores patiatur, quod quidem exprimitur in versibus sequentibus hoc modo, et dixit ad me Ecce conteram baculum panis in Jerusalem, et comedent panem in pondere, et in sollicitudine, et aquam in mensura, et in angustia bibent, et inter alia terribilia: et eris, inquit, Deus Israeli, opprobrium, et blasphemia exemplum, et stupor in gentibus, cum fecero in te judicia in furore in indignatione, et in increpationibus irae.

Ad Eliseum quod spectat non prophetiam dicimus indiguisse ope psaltris tanquam humano conatu, sed animum illius voluisse hoc indiguisse, ut turbatam mentem componeret ad pietatem, atque ut cantu sacro excitaretur ad ferventius exorandum donum prophetandi, quod uti est apud S. Hyer. ob humanam fragilitatem, et vitae hujus necessitates interdum recedebat ab prophetis, et quod donum prophetae oratione impetrabant; ita enim Danieli post postulatam misericordiam a facie Dei Coeli mysterium per visionem revelatum est; et Hjeremiae imperat Deus: clama ad me, et exaudiam te, et annuntiabo tibi grandia, et firma, quae nescis.

Eloveni, et Incredulorum suspiciones de arte conjectandi satis refutantur ex iis, quae superius attulimus de praedictis determinate circumstantiis minutissimisque earum, quae ab Dei arbitrio pendebant, quaeque tam indifferentiam exhibebant, qua essentialiter excluditur conjectandi ars, sive ars rerum connexiones investigandi. Atque vero de Temistocle, aut Scipione, aut quolibet humanæ sapientiæ portento quidquam simile afferri ab Elvetio poterit, quod scilicet ab duplici adversariorum genere confessionem vel invitam eliciat, ab Judæis scilicet, atque ab Gentilibus, cum alteri prophetiarum existentiam, eas libros proferendo testentur, alteri vim incredibilem prophetiarum eas effictas post eventus credendo fateantur.

Neque illud Elisei quod objicitur æquivocum aut ambiguum fuit; sensum enim, si rite perpendatur habet nimirum hunc: ægritudo Regis Benadab non est mortalis, ipse tamen morietur alia de causa; et revera, uti fuerat prædictum convaluit Benadab, sed fuit deinceps suffocatus ab Hazael, cui idem Eliseus, et Regnum prædixerat, et mala horribilia, quæ Israeli illaturus erat.

Neque rerum eventus falsum probavit Ezechiæ prophetæ aut dona vaticinium. Ezechias mortem prædixit secundum dispositionem causarum naturalium, quæ mortem ipsi parabant; non autem secundum decretum Dei, quod sciebat suis precibus sanitatem Regis concessurum esse, et ita certo sciebat, ut idem confirmatus Ezechiæ fuerit per prodigium reducendi horologium decem lineis; non solum igitur Ezechias falsus non fuit, sed et mirabili dono Dei claruit, quæ in causis naturalibus et quæ in divinis decretis erant penetrare atque expromere potuit.

Vaticinium denique subversionis Ninive ita fuit conditionatum, uti erant alia hujus generis, quæ mortem peccatoribus minitarentur si nempe non converterentur. Nam uti est apud Hieremiam cap: 18: si pœnitentiam egerit gens illa [illegible] et ego pœnitentiam agam de malo quod cogitavi ut facerem ei. Quæ vero dona Deus ipse edere prodigio injustas docuit [illegible]

132 Ad 3. S. Gregorius in cit. ab Adversariis loco distinguere prævisionem naturalem ab revelatione, revelationis nomine significans eam veri nominis prophetiam de qua nos agimus, prævisionis vero naturalis nomine intelligit conjecturandi, sive effecta ab causis deducendi facultatem quam nos alias innuimus, et de qua hæc habet S. Thomas Gregorium eamdem explicans. quando Anima abstrahitur a corporeis magis aptior redditur ad percipiendum ea ... a quibus impeditur cum fuerit circa sensibilia occupata, et ideo Gregorius dicit lib. 4. Dialog. cap. 26 quod Anima quando propinquat ad mortem recognoscit quædam futura subtilitate suæ naturæ. S. Augustinus, ut nihil cum nonnisi de conjecturali arte loqui posse, cit. in loco non præcise ponit Animæ humanæ competere futurorum prævisionem, sed disquirit ac disputat eorum opinionem qui volebant, animam humanam habere vim quamdam divinationis in seipsa, et postquam varios expendit modos, quibus id fieri posse asserebant, concludit demum, nihil temere affirmari oportere. Caeterum nemo nescit quantum prophetiis Augustinus tribuerit, et quam miretur divinam providentiam utentem ipsis inimicis, hoc est Judæis, ut ex eorum codicibus ea prophetiæ eruantur. quæ argumentum invincibile nostræ fidei exhibeant.

133 Ad 4. Negamus quidem hanc operam nec nimis opportunam singulatim oraculum singula Gentilium refutare suscepere præter veteres Tertullianum, Minutium Felicem, Eusebium ... recentiores [illegible] [illegible], Baltus, aliique non multi; nobis vero, uti in videre est Adversarios argumentum hoc omnia gentilium oracula contemnendi, quod scilicet, qui olim ipsis oraculis credebant facto ipso, et defectu oraculorum post Dei religionem propagatam refutati fuerint, qui vero ingressus oracula gentilium commemorant, ii neque ipsi credant, nec nisi simulare [illegible] omnium contradicant, qui gentilium contradictiones, et inconstantiam deridens, et nostrorum oraculorum consensionem et constantiam mirantur, ita ut de judicio etiam harum rerum valere liceat illud ... commenta delet dies, naturæ judicia confirmat. Illud igitur præstitisse ... nonnulla generatim protulimus quæ sufficiant ne fidem indoctam oraculis gentium cum fide debita prophetiis nostris audeant asphus sparte comparare. Unum est igitur viros sapientiores inter gentiles ... ut plurimum oracula videre conspexisse ut videre est apud M. Tullium lib. 2 de Divinatione ubi nec plures oraculorum contemptus de Aruspicibus, Augurii et vatibus illud etiam dictum refert Catonis, qui mirari se ajebat Aruspicem non videre cum alium aruspicem videret. Similes insuper derisiones habet etiam Lucianus in dialogis. 2° loco Oracula illa ut plurimum equivoca, et apta ad omnem eventum fuisse ibi revidi non noverit in bello aio te Æacida Romanos vincere posse. Crœsus Halim penetrans magnam pervertet opum vim, erat ita fuisse ambigua et obscura, ut interpretes quæreret interprete, et sic ipsa ad omnem idem referenda, quod et Tullius demonstrat, et Porphirius etiam negare non potuit in ejus libro de philosophia ex oraculis petita, quod refert Eusebius. 3° loco multa conjecturis naturalibus, et sacrificulorum artibus esse tribuenda, uti quæ præposita studii Sacerdotes prophetabant, et quæ de obsignatis tabellis deque divinatione eorum, quæ in tabellis continerentur enarrat Lucianus in Pseudomante ubi de quodam hujus generis impostore. Alexandro acu, inquit ignita partem ceræ quæ infra signum est ubi liquefecit signum ipsum detraxit, lectoque libello acus ope liquefactam iterum ceram cum quæ infra filum imo est, tum ea quæ sigillum ipsum continet facile conglutinavit. Quo loco alias etiam describit Lucianus artes libellos recludendi, plegendi, et rursus ita imponendi, quasi semper fuerint intactissimi. 4° adversantur Vandale atque Fontanellus, tamen ex eruditiorum opinione, quam fusius probat Honoratus a S. Maria multa etiam esse Dæmonum vaticinia præferre potuisse, qui demones suscitare homines sperando, multa Deo permittente prædixisse. Ex vero dicenda sunt etiam ex hoc ipso, quod ad tempus venit, in quo potestas deficeret tenebrarum, et sola lux Evangelii Christi cœpit elucere tunc pleraque, et celebriora apud Ethnicos Oracula repente conticuere, uti est apud Tertullianum in apologetico cap. 22, et apud Eusebium lib. 5 præparationis Evangelicæ cap. 1

133 5° eandem aliqua Ethnicorum vaticinia apertissime falsa inventa fuisse, uti prædictio illa quam S. Aug. commemorat, et de qua agunt Baronius, et Bossuetus, quæ versibus quibusdam græcis continebatur, quæque renunciabat Christi nomen post annos 365 oblivione delendum esse. Hæc si omnia comparentur cum iis quæ de prophetiis nostræ religionis superius exposuimus, facile erit illusores hos, et malæ fidei incredulos confutare

134 Ad 5 Sunt fateor quidem pseudoprophetas posse non autem veros Dni prophetas; neque etenim desunt caracteres quibus, et prophetæ ipsum Spiritum, et populus vocem veri prophetæ internoscat. Etenim ut mirum quod habet S. Greg. veros ab illusiones, atque revelationes ipsas dæmonum voces, aut immagines quodam interno sapore discernere, ut sciant vel quod a bono Spiritu percipiant, vel quid ab illusione patiantur. 2° habeat prophetæ quo Spiritum bonum distinguant omnino ab miraculis quæ prophetiam comitentur uti [illegible] et Gedeoni contigit, secundo vocationem alterius jam noti prophetæ, uti Moyses Josue, Elias, Eliseum comprobavit 3° denique caracteres eos omnes, per divinam vocationem electionemque repræsentant. Prophetas vero ab pseudoprophetis hæc apud populum distinguere possunt. 1° Dona quæ in prophetantur sanctitas, puritas, honestas. 2° Prophetarum pietas, integritas, abstinentia, et zelus pro gloria Dei. 3° quod præcipuum est ipse iterum prædictarum eventus juxta illud Deut. 18 Hoc habebis signum, quod in nomine Dni propheta ille prædixerit, et non evenerit, hoc Dnus non est locutus sed per tumorem animi sui propheta confixit

135 Ad ult. primo falsum est prophetias non extare, quæ omnes has conditiones habeant, quæque propterea etiam Infideles probent veritatem ejus Religionis, cui ipsæ favent. Deinde ex c. Filii Noe prædici diluvium videre ipsum propriis oculis conspexere, et eventum hunc neque naturaliter contingere, neque naturaliter praevideri, neque ex casuali, et fortuita causa esse potuisse certum, atque exploratum habuere. Ita etiam Apostoli Christum audivere praedicantem suam resurrectionem, ipsum resurgentem cum redivivum conspexere, et de supernaturali causa ipsius resurrectionis dubitare minime potuere. Itaque quod maxime est miramur hic Aspovium non vidisse in moralibus contestationem monumentorum, quae fide digna sint, aequivalere propriae visioni, atque experientiae, quasi qui Romam misurus merces aliquid sit, ipsi prius necesse sit de Romae existentia propriis oculis experientiam facere. Prudenti homini igitur praedictionum veritatem satis testatam facit ipsa inimicorum, Judaeorum scilicet confessio. Exitum earum satis probant novum testamentum, et sacrae historiae. De exclusione vero causarum fortuitarum, aut naturalium certus esse quilibet poterit, qui naturam, rationem, consequentias perpendet eorum, quae objecta, et argumenta prophetiarum extitere.

Scholion

136 Si quis male nos uti dicat prophetiis contra incredulos eo quod Apostolus S. Paulus 1 Cor. 14 haec ita praecipi videantur: linguae in signum sunt non fidelibus, sed infidelibus, prophetiae autem non infidelibus sed fidelibus. Facile erit respondere prophetiae nomine non ibi S. Paulum significare vaticinium, sed explicationem verbi Dei, et sacram doctrinam, ad quam nondum infideles apti essent. Quod constat perlegenti totum caput illud, et ea potissimum: qui prophetat hominibus loquitur ad aedificationem, et exhortationem, et consolationem.... qui prophetat Ecclesiam Dei aedificat etc. Sive igitur nomine linguarum, quae hic prophetiis opponuntur intelligatur supernaturale donum quod conveniat infidelibus, uti placuit Joan. Chrisostomo sive intelligatur usus quidam diverso a vulgari sermone utendi, quod totius capitis contextui magis videtur accomodatum, id non debet, contra manifestum sensum, in quo hic sumitur prophetia, cogere nos, ut Apostolum credamus, vaticiniorum vim adhiberi nolle ad incredulos vincendos, et de religione vera suadendos

De via certiore depositum verae revelationis inveniendi

137. Etsi alii multi caracteres intrinseci verae revelationis afferri possint tamen hos duos potissimum extrinsecus prophetiarum, et miraculorum attulimus, quod nostrum institutum sit ea exhibere monumenta, quibus incredulus si velit tuto, et comode veram addiscere revelationem possit. Hoc autem multo commodius, atque expeditius fiet, si intrinsecis omissis extrinsecos ipsos verae revelationis caracteres inspiciat. Putamus etenim Protestantes omnes, qui via examinis omnia Religionis dogmata expendere, eorumque singillatim refutare omnes instituere, cum vellent veram Religionem suadere, confusioni potius, quam verae Religioni inservisse. Quod etiam argumento est, non examinis, sed auctoritatis via in Religione procedendum esse, ne eveniat illud scilicet in inquirenda revelatione, quod cecinit Poeta fugit irreparabile tempus, singula dum capti circumspectamus amore. Certissime etenim vita functus erit vel quisque sapientissimus antequam via examinis de veritate dogmatum omnium singillatim certam, et undique comprehensam habeat rationem. Dum igitur contra incredulos agimus, reprehendimus etiam Protestantes qui non rectam viam ineunt incredulos revincendi, dum viam ineunt examinis atque dum a errore volunt alienos errores emendare contingit. Ut id quod de Hebraeis caecis et ducibus caecorum Christus dixerat: si caecus caecum ducatum praestat ambo in foveam cadent.

Sidarno inquit apposite Bergerius avrebbe Dio illuminati gli uomini con un lume sopranaturale se dato loro non avesse de mezzi sicuri di conoscere qual sia la dottrina, che sono obbligati di professare; conviene dunque sapere, dove si ne può trovare il deposito, e ciò che Ella ci insegna. Per ottenerlo non vi son che due strade. l'esame de dogmi che Ella ci propone, e questo il mezzo al qual noi, ut propriè hic abloquimur, vi fermate, e di cui servonsi i protestanti. L'esame della missione, e dell' autorità di quelli, che insegnano; e questo è il metodo, che han ritenuto i cattolici... l'esame de dogmi non solamente è impraticabile, ma inoltre ridicolo, che quand anche fosse proporzionato ai dotti, il che non è, sarebbe impossibile al popolo vale a dire ai 3 parti del genere umano. Dio facendo predicare la religione Xtiana non la soggettò alle ricerche della ragione, di cui ne sapera i limiti.. rimetterli a questo tribunale egli è un annientare la fede, e l'autorità della parola divina. Questa S. Religione deve perpetuarsi per lo stesso mezzo, di cui si servì Dio per istabilirla. Or Ella si è stabilita per la credenza alla missione, e all'autorità di quelli, che l'han praticata. Dunque anche in oggi di nell' altro si tratta, che di assicurarsi, se questa missione, e quest' autorità siano sempre sussistiti. Ita igitur, ut præfati simul, et declarare thesim nostram facilius possimus via ~~auctoritatis~~ examinis nomine intelligimus media illa omnia, quæ Protestantes, et increduli adhibent ad religionem expendendam, judicium rationis, spiritum privatum, confessiones, et si quæ alia invexere media perturbandi potius religionem quam probandi. Via vero auctoritatis nobis est medium quodcumque, quod auctoritatem conciliare iis possit, apud quos depositum veræ revelationis extare, existimandum sit.

Propositio VII

Ad revelationem via auctoritatis optima omnium est.

Ad thesis. Supponimus hic depositum revelationis non in mente prædestinatorum esse non etenim in invisibilibus sed ita extare visibiliter, ut qui velit ~~tuto reperire~~ recta via salutem et felicitatem inquirere ipsum possit reperire. Jam vero ad reperiendum depositum revelationis, qui comparatur, aut is revelationem adeo nullam cognovit, aut cognovit aliquam si nullam cognovit, tum non sosteniamo, inquit Bergerius, che si debba cominciar con provare l'autorità della Chiesa dalla ~~[illegible]~~ missione degli Apostoli e de loro successori, dalla costituzione del Cristianesimo, e dalla necessità di un centro di unità della fede. Di questo ce ne serviamo poi per appoggiare tutti i dogmi Cattolici, e in particolare l'autenticità e divinità delle Scritture. Bensì pretendiamo, che quest' autenticità, e quest' divinità non possano esser solidamente stabilite senza l'autorità della Chiesa. Tal' era l'avviso di S. Agostino, quando dicea: Ego Evangelio non crederem, nisi me Catholicæ Ecclesiæ moveret Auctoritas. Si si revelationem aliquam cognoscat, qui verum in disquirit an aliquando Russovius videtur revelationem cognoscere atque uti cognoscunt qui divinitatem Evangeliorum admittunt; tum vero non modo ratione, sed etiam natura ipsa cognitæ revelationis persuaderi potest pro via Auctoritatis hoc ipso quod, uti addit Bergerius, qual sarà il refugio de popoli ignoranti, e rozzi, cui G. C. ha ordinato d'instruire. non posson essi fondare la loro fede sul carattere di quei che parlano in nome di G. C., su di che la fonderanno eglino? Si Signor mio io lo sostengo, se G. C. non ha dato a suoi inviati un carattere divino, se non continua egli la sua assistenza sino alla fine de secoli, la fede è impossibile, G. C. egli stesso indarno è venuto, Dio non volle ne illuminare, ne salvare il genere humano. Secundum igitur hanc Methodum Bergerii, et recentiorum Apologistarum ita de hac re scribentium idearum componi potest. Christum Doctorem, et Legislatorem divinum extitisse cum multa alia, tum praecipue docent miracula, et prophetiae prouti jam superius ostensum est. Qui quaerat igitur veram legem et doctrinam huic duo haec tantum erunt inquirenda. Primo utrum Christo legislatores, et doctores legitimi succes-serint, 2° qui successerint ubinam ipsi sint. Successisse legislatores, et Doctores, sive ministerium legis, et verbi Dei perseveravisse post Christum apud legitimos Ministros demonstratur contra Protestantes, qui mutum tantum codicem legum, sine Magistratu legem applicante, et ministrante esse volunt, cum volunt scilicet solam scripturam controversiarum omnium esse judicem. Secundum pertinet ad paganos, et superstitiosos quoslibet, qui debent eos habere pro Legislatoribus optimis, quos successores inveniant eorum, qui caracteres divinitatis toto Orbe [illegible] [illegible] exhibuere. Ita scilicet Acatholicos omnes, seu hereticos, seu paganos haec respicit propo-sitio, in qua via ostenditur comodior qua unusquisque si velit felicitatem consequi tuto possit. In hac autem via comodiore demonstranda controversia tota in eo stat, utrum scilicet tutius, et expeditius sit dogmata ipsa, sive ipsum depositum revelationis intime perpendere, an vero jus perpendere et auctoritatem eorum, qui depositum hoc verae revelationis se autumant exhibere. Primum dicitur via examinis, alterum via auctoritatis. Ac cum illud optimum sit, moraliter loquendo cujus in comparatione cetera inferiora sint. Cumque in contentionem cum via Auctoritatis nihil fere veniat, quam late quidem [illegible], via examinis. propterea si ad hanc examinis minus esse aptam constet, illud consequetur viam Auctoritatis esse optimam omnium [illegible]

138 Ita igitur confirmo thesis primam viam examinis improbando, quae via duplex esse potest, altera in-credulorum, qui convenientiam dogmatum revelatorum inquirant, altera protestantium, qui dogmatum interpretationem proprio arbitratu velint accipere. Prima contra propositionem ita refutatur. Revelatio ex parte Dei actus liber est, qui proinde non rationibus metaphisicis sed factis et testimoniis debeat innotescere. Si vero etiam obscura aliqua sint, cum tamen Deus sibi non contradicat, tum ea etiam uti vera habenda sunt, unde evidentia extrinseca, sive argumentis credibilitatis evidentibus constet fuisse revelata prouti scilicet jam de Mysteriis, et de possibilitate revelationis agentes docuimus. Contra illos vero [illegible] probatur [illegible] examinis [illegible] Aut enim volunt singulos [illegible] Scripturas colligere, et ipsos [illegible] praeferre evidentiam, ut ipsi [illegible] necessitate morali uni, et [illegible] in omnibus errare [illegible] [illegible], aut non [illegible] [illegible], ut omittam male ipsos [illegible] admittere ad judicium [illegible] traditiones ad fidei regulam [illegible] adhiberi. Sed ut hanc longiorem quaestionem nunc omittam, dico [illegible] falso eos venire talem perspicuitatem in Scripturis, quae una in singulis hominibus, et certissimum judicium creat Scripturis obedire assuras in multis esse, et diversos sensus admittere posse, probant, primo Scripturae ipsae Actor. nempe illud cap. 8 de Candacis eunucho legenti qui ait quomodo, inquit, possum intelligere si non aliquis ostenderit mihi, et illud Matth. 13 dixisse [illegible] parabolam Zizaniorum, et [illegible] 18: et ipsi nihil horum intellexerunt, et erat verbum illud absconditum ab eis, et [illegible]

illud a Petri 3 ipse in Pauli epistolis, quae dam difficilia intellectu quae indocti et instabiles deprav-ant sicut et ceteras scripturas ad suam ipsorum perditionem. Quod ostendit etiam obscuras esse scripturas in rebus, quae si rite non intelliguntur perditio inde consequitur. Secundo constat id ex instituto, quod in veteri et novo testamento viguit semper interpretandi scripturas quod etiam ministerium prophetiae olim dicebatur; quod quidem institutum superfluum fuisset si res certam, et evidentiam efficerent scripturae. 3 Probat id diversitas immensa interpretationum, quam tenuere secte eterodoxorum diversae, et ex qua discrepantia plus 40 sectas post Lutherum, et Calvinum constat extitisse, quae suis nominibus, et Ducibus insigniuntur quaeque adeo in dies pugnant invicem dissentiunt dividunturque uti jam olim adnotaverat Bossuetus in historia de variationibus doctrinae Protestantium, et in admonitionibus ad protestantes. Tandem etiam si efficere moraliter certum scripturae possent evidentiam, tamen semper quidem alii ambitione, et passionibus obcaecati non vellent hanc evidentiam attendere, et possent id impuniter facere in systemate protestantium, alii autem, imo pars major generis humani hic attendere non posset sive evidentiam, sive inevidentiam. Ipsi enim aut negotiis occupati, aut ignorantia impediti legere, investigare, expendere scripturas non possunt, quod si dogmata scripturarum exponantur in catechismis, tum falsum erit scripturas ipsas immediate evidentiam facere huic parti generis humani; si vero credere haec eos debeant non ex vi examinis, tum non amplius via hec examinis valebit pro parte tanta generis humani.

139 Ne vero si concedant etiam ipsi Protestantes, scripturas per se certum et evidens judicium creare in omnibus non per se ipsis non posse; ad necessario recurrant deinceps ad quendam ut ait Claudius radium spiritus Dei, vel ut vocat Jurio ad interiorem sensum gustum, vel ut magis saepe ponit Gisonitius ad motionem per rationes inexplicabiles, vel denique ut communi modo dici solet ad spiritum privatum. Tum primo ita ipsi reprehenduntur ab Ezechiele cap. 13 Vae prophetis insipientibus, qui sequuntur spiritum suum, et nihil vident, et in ipsos proferentur verba illa Epistolae 2 Petri cap. 1 hoc primum intelligentes quod omnis Prophetia scripturae propria ratione non fit etc. Deinde cum omnes dicere spiritu privato vere possint, tum singuli etiam quando pugnant invicem dicerent illud dicere pseudoprophetae Sedeciae ad Michaeam in 2 Paralip. 13 per quam viam transivit spiritus Dei a me, ut loqueretur tibi. Loco de uno potius, quam de altero Catario aud

Tertulliani illud de praescriptionibus idem licuit Valentinianis, quod Valentino idem Marcionitis quod Marcioni, de arbitrio suo fidem innovare. Enim vero nunquam ab hoc se dilemmate extricabunt Protestantes. aut judicium privatum hoc habet per ipsos auctoritatem divinam, aut humanam tantum; si habet auctoritatem divinam, ergo aut Deus de veritate sollicitus non erit, aut Deus sibi toties contradicet quod sunt secte opposite inter Protestantium, quae quidem duo quam sint absurda nemo est qui non videat. Si vero habet humanam tantum auctoritatem, ergo homo quilibet sibi judex poterit ab aliis independens, poterit sibi imitationem capere, et alteri dicere tu tibi ego mihi, quod etc. Itaque unusquisque poterit quodlibet statuere sive haec indifferentismum, sive Atheismum capiant, et eadem poterit etiam pro libitu mutare, quod est pariter itidem absurdum, uti absurdus est tolerantismus indifferentismus, Atheismus, cum haec consequentia sint hujus inductæ universalis Anarchiæ, et judicium privatum eorum hominum, quos homines natura sua esse mendaces, et ipsa vanitate vaniores confitetur eorum Belgica ipsa confessio art: 6.

1413 Opp: 2 Satis esse ad revelationem Scripturæ investigare, quod eæ ita claræ sint, ut nullo opus sit alio judice aut interprete ad depositum omne sacrorum dogmatum, et divinæ revelationis agnoscendum. Deuteronomii: 30 dicitur: mandatum hoc quod Ego præcipio tibi hodie non supra te est, neque procul positum atque verba hæc S. Paulus ita accomodat Evangelio ad Rom: 10 quid dicit, inquiens, scriptura: prope est verbum in ore tuo, et in corde tuo: hoc est verbum fidei quod prædicamus. Ps: 18 dicitur præceptum Domini lucidum illuminans oculos. Ps. 118 lucerna pedibus meis verbum tuum, et lumen semitis meis. Prov: 6 Mandatum lucerna est, et lex lux. Quod et S. Petrus ita Epla 2a Cap: 1 mirifice confirmat: habemus inquiens propheticum sermonem, cui benefacitis attendentes, quasi lucernæ lucenti in caliginoso loco.

2o Quin et ad ipsas Scripturas nos remitti, cum de vera doctrina judicium ferendum est docent aperte, quæ protulit Xtus ipse Joan: 5o Scrutamini, inquiens Scripturas, et illæ sunt, quæ testimonium perhibent de me; quibus quidem respondent ea, quæ et Judæi dixerunt Nicodemo Jo: 7: Scrutare Scripturas, et vide quia a Galilæa propheta non surgit. Et ideo Xtus Jesus nihil ad judicandum proponit, præter verbum suum, cum dicit scilicet: Sermo quem locutus sum, ille judicabit eum in novissimo die. Et S. Paulus diligentiam laudat Beroensium qui ut dicitur Act: 17, susceperant verbum cum omni aviditate, quotidie scrutantes Scripturas si hæc ita se haberent.

3 Atque usque adeo hunc ante omnia Scripturas adhibendi modum quidem Apostoli tenuere, quorum in scriptis omnia videmus veterum Scripturarum testimoniis confirmari, et vero SS: Patres cum de dogmate exorirentur controversiæ, non ad judicem aliud, quam ad Scripturas hæreticos provocabant, ut celebre Augustini illud sit lib: 2o contra Maximinum cap: 14: nec ego Nicænum, nec tu debes Ariminense proferre Concilium Scripturarum auctoritatibus, non quorumcunque propriis, sed utriusque communibus testibus res cum re, causa cum causa, ratio cum ratione concertet. Atque de Scripturis unica consulendis, deque earum perspicuitate multi ab protestantibus Patres afferuntur. Basilius, Optatus Milevitanus, Athanasius Ambrosius, Chrysostomus pluribus in locis, at iterum Augustinus præsertim lib. 2o de peccatorum meritis et remissione

[illegible] longe aliud spectare, quam ut auctoritatem Ecclesiæ [illegible] excludant. Deut: 30 [illegible] Mandatum hoc etc. componi debeat [illegible] jubet [illegible] antiquitus [illegible] judicium [illegible] ad sacerdotes [illegible] referenda [illegible] ad [illegible] dijudicatio [illegible] tionem ac dispensationem [illegible] revera non omnia Judæi [illegible] et Protestantes [illegible] at vero [illegible] Xtus [illegible] respondit [illegible] Decalogi præcepta [illegible] intelligerent.

[illegible] est ea applicatio [illegible] in Xto [illegible] et potissimum Xti [illegible] etiam motiva credibilitatis [illegible] memorat dicens: [illegible] motiva credibilitatis non afferre, [illegible] via auctoritatis [illegible] docuimus 38

Caeteri quae tamen, licet lucernae vocitant ipsas, spontè facile illa alia poterunt quae ab Deo exposuit intellectum, revelationem, illuminationem, declarationem, sermonem, quibus frequentes testes refertus est [illegible] idem. et quae quaecunque docent clarum quidem ipsum verbum Dei iis omnibus attractum, quae ad ipsum verbum tradendum hominibus instituta sunt, quae inter omnia tenet cum Auctoritate Ecclesiae, saepius praeclarum [illegible] Patres de motivis pariter loquitur credibilitatis, quae efficacia esse docet, non modo ex factis et prodigiis Christi, sed etiam ex complemento Prophetiarum, quas nec Judaei non possent negare, idcirco Argumentum hoc firmius et efficacius [illegible] hoc ipso quod ad nominandum [illegible] Caeterum lucernam [illegible] in tenebris [illegible] esse in [illegible] deprav[er]entur, constat ex iis quae ab ipso [illegible] Petro [illegible] adduximus n.° 138. Ac proinde non hinc deducitur omnia solum in [illegible] ita esse efficacia, ut necessitatem, utilitatemque Ecclesiae interpretationis excludant.

1472 Ad 2.um Dicito equidem [illegible] verum quod illud Scrutamini, quod [illegible] dubitant utrum imperativum an indicativum sit, supponendo imperativum, et ipso argumentum ipse [illegible] ad homines, eos nempe, qui [illegible] ipsius volunt, jubere, ut Scripturas consulant, itaque [illegible] de complemento prophetiarum in Christo. At Ecclesia quotidie suis ut armis haereticos contundat, jubet ipsos ea consulere monumenta quae [illegible] tempore legitima admittunt, ut ita ipsi suo [illegible] jugulent. An idcirco Ecclesia definit in exponendis [illegible] ipsius auctoritati standum esse. A pari igitur, neque per hoc Christus excludere Ministerium interpretationis et expositionis [illegible]

[illegible] sunt ideo peccatores damnaturum absente [illegible], quod ipsi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] omnibus [illegible] posset, non autem quod exigat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad examen revocari, [illegible] [illegible] Ministerium expositionis expostulet apertissime [illegible] praedicate Evangelium, docete omnes gentes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] possunt, quae aliasque [illegible] sermone, et miraculis attulimus.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] examini Pauli [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de Auctoritate [illegible] [illegible] caeterorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] licere, quod [illegible] [illegible] qui volunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] affectu fidelis oportet [illegible] fuisse. Et [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] examini [illegible] ad [illegible] utrum [illegible] [illegible] divina esset, quod quidem [illegible] superius ostendimus etiam in nostra sententia optime [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vero [illegible] fideles [illegible] et Christi credulitate [illegible] ideo laudabantur non quod dubitarent de veritate [illegible] [illegible] ut Prophetica scripta cum [illegible] verbis conferendo magis, magisque in veritate confirmarentur, et haberent unde alios convincerent [illegible] sunt haec [illegible] inter [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae proinde difficultatem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

a togian
sto dar nt.
giopnare quarisua per ipsi capi tuitio

ore or non con
[illegible]
ng nt

liquid
bi . C minem et grae
t dinarz

liguraz stury ent Pon di ordin

q omnes rate
i lethi

da locum γεωδαι
unt.
proponere
...
ae per ...
... exper.
intuitio

... ove ...
... con
... in
... ...

aliquid
... Cu
eminem at quae et Dionys aliqua ...

... ...
... Con-
... ordine
in ... omnes
obj. ... parte
... lectio

Propositio.

Utrum ad revelationem homini liceat indifferentem esse

Auctores Tolerantismi, ut dicitur universalis, quos inter eminet Rhovius, ita esse indifferentes nego: tiunt varias religionis revelatae ut et ipsas penitus negligere, et revelationes oppositas sequi liceat, dummodo naturalis quaedam vivatur honestas, juxta illud de ingressu et quo exitum porta patens esto nulli claudatur honesto. Jurius vero, et inter Protestantes Tolerantismi alii distinguunt in revelatione fundamentalia quaedam, et non fundamentalia, porro in primis errare non posse autumant sine aeternae salutis dispendio, in alteris autem errorem quemlibet tollerabilem esse et minime damnandum. Contra utrumque tolerantismi genus hec propositio

Propositio

Et Rhovii, et Petri Jurii Tolerantismus omnino damnandus est

Prob. 1ª Ca. Just. Ut propositae revelationi liceret alicui indifferentem esse oporteret aut de revelatione non constare, aut ipsam obligandi vim non habere, aut obligationem hanc inde: terminatam esse et aequali modo se ad opposita habere posse. Atqui vero de revelatione quidem satis constare jam ostendimus, cum notas et caracteres revelationis apertissimos produximus, et potissimum miracula, et prophetias quae revelationem comitantur. Obligandi vim habet revelatio per ipsam quod legis habeat naturam quodque manifestationem divinae exhibeat voluntatis, cui resistere est Deo resistere, prouti etiam de cultu Deo debito jam alias aperte docuimus; resistere autem Deo est propriam abjicere felicitatem quae in manu Dei est. ut proinde cum obligatio nulla sit, nisi necessaria connexio rei adimplendae cum felicitate propria, tum strictam habet vim obligandi competentem revelationi dicenda erit. Tertium de obligatione, quae indifferenter se habeat ad opposita, ne excogitari quidem ab Philosopho deberet cum ita aperte repugnet veracitati constantiae, sanctitati, majestati imperantis ac loquentis Dei, ita ut in hipotesi adversariorum res esset ambigua, mutabilis, anceps imperium ut in sensu opposito dictum sine piaculo accipere liceat quo quidem nil nec jam contemptibilius quolibet legitimo legislatore cadere in mentem potest. Cum quidquid igitur ex his tribus necessario deberet esse ut indifferentia sub revelatione vigeat, quemadmodum innuimus in prop. majori, idque 3a singula haec repugnant esse, prouti docuimus in propositione minori, tum legitime ex consequenti ad propositam revelationem, neque indifferentia nec tollerantia ullatenus homini licere. Absunt hic nullam declamari de fraude, de dolo, et perfidia Tollerantistarum, qui semper cum debiles essent tolerantiam implorare, ut cum fortes efficiant crudelissimum exercerent dominatum. Sed brevitatis causa hoc ca. ..... sufficiat hanc evidens ratiocinium, quod magis etiam in objiciendis refutandis evolvetur.

1° Prob: C[illegible] Juriu. Ac primo damnat ipsum Aplē, quas ipse fatetur admittere. Unum Corpus inquit S. Paulus ad Ephes. cap. 4, et unus spiritus, unus Dnus, una fides una baptysma; et ad Philipp. 2°: implete gaudium meum ut idem sapiatis, eandem charitatem habentes, in ipsum sentientes. Et Aplus ad Tit. cap. 3 hereti- cum hominem post unam et secundam correptionem devita. Matth. 18 Xtus ipse si Ecclesiam inquit non audierit sit tibi sicut Ethnicus et Publicanus, quæ cum universim dicta sint, tum fundamentalibus, et non fundamentalibus indi- stinguendis, tum profecto Juriu hujusce novæ auctorem distinctionis ad Ec- clesiæ auctoritatem evitandam apertissime condemnant
2° Juriu condemnat Apostolica traditio, quæ semper in singulis, et sine contradictione habuit articulum illum Credo in Ecclesiam Catholicam, quod semper intellectum fuit de rejectione omnium, qui non præcise ita uti ipsa sentirent, juxta Constantinopolitani concilii Canone [illegible] quo anathematiz- zat omnem hæresim, quæ non sentit, ut [illegible] Dei Ecclesia, et Aplica
3 Damnat Juriu hæc distinctio fundamentalium, et non fundamentalium, quæ nova in Ecclesia est, et ante seculum [illegible] penitus inaudita. Insuper et Conciliorum Auctoritati contraria, cum semper vigeat illud Ecumenici Concilii 2° Can: 6. hereticos dicimus et qui olim ab Ecclesia ejecti sunt, et qui sunt postea a nobis anatematizati [illegible] et conditio hujus distinctionis Juriu condemnat, neque etenim satis facile est, qui Articuli fundamentales sint, et qui non, et in hoc homines possunt errare. Deinde quidem facit illico falli[illegible] [illegible] fidei a Xti promissionem de docenda omni veritate, et vero magnam li- bertati, atque adeo impietati aperit fenestram, cum quisquam refragari Ecclesiæ possit cum prætextu dissentiendi in iis tantum, quæ fundamentalia non sunt.
[illegible] Pro Responsio [illegible] universali [illegible] in Deo [illegible] [illegible] aut veritatis [illegible]. Divinum etenim, et [illegible] est eos ab salute ex- cludere, qui non culpa habeant aliam suam quod in hoc potius, quam in illo puncto geographico nati sint. Culpam autem non habere [illegible] [illegible] nisi nascantur deducitur ex practica [illegible] morali quadam necessitate eam sequendi religionem in qua nati sunt. Primo etenim quod nunquam [illegible] [illegible] quamdam [illegible] necessitatem, ut non contingit; [illegible] autem evenire, ut qui natus in religione una [illegible] alteram eligat, id prorsus [illegible], et experientia docet. Secundo non potest aliam sequi religionem qui de illa ne cogitandum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et nativa imaque [illegible] probat exemplum Catholicorum, quos nemo jusserit de sua religi[illegible]

ne dubitare, deq. altera cogitare. Tertio vero aut quaerere religionem alteram oportet via examinis, aut via auctoritatis; via examinis sed disquisitionem religionum omnium earumque comparationem importet, tam practice quidem impossibilis [illegible] debet via auctoritatis, et dedicationem [illegible] propriae religione excludit, et vero ut [illegible] in sua permaneat religione persuadet. Auctoritas majorum, usus locorum, ipsi principum, leges [illegible], et alia hujus generis, quae [illegible] testimonia et significationes divinae voluntatis [illegible] deferre et quae, qui sequitur tutior erit semper, quam qui novam religionem eligendo exponat se periculo, impingendi in errorem non necessarium, sed voluntarium, ac spontaneum.

N°. Mala maxima etiam in homines infert intolerantia criminantur. Sed si quod fere impossibile videtur [illegible] in orbe terrarum catholica religio dominans sit, [illegible] tirannicam in omnes exercere dominium ecclesiasticis [illegible], cum religio in omnes fere influat actiones humanas, et in religionis puncta omnia ecclesiastici influant, et quo sublatis principibus, et regibus imperium erit ecclesiasticis delatum. At cum imperio deinde caeterae illae exsurgent oppressiones, quas jam ut [illegible] increvere [illegible] superstitiones in populos inducet. Et vero, ut fere necesse est, diversis [illegible] in terrarum orbe religionibus cum catholica religio dominari omnibus velit, [illegible] hominum indiget. Nec etenim practica amicitia cum iis potest esse, qui Deo rebelles, damnati, ac [illegible] tur, [illegible] vero amicitia [illegible] caritas, amor socialis, aequitas caeteraque vincula societatis [illegible] quantur necesse erit [illegible] detrimenta in societatem [illegible] intolerantia [illegible] ratio [illegible], sed etiam ex historia multorum de religione [illegible] probari.

3 [illegible] societatem servandam esse evidentius sit, quam hunc [illegible] potius, vel illum ad gloriam Dei [illegible], [illegible] praeceptum [illegible] servetur, [illegible] differentiam [illegible] societate [illegible] referre [illegible] Principum mores regiminum legum institutum [illegible], quae [illegible] caetera societatis [illegible] servet. Atq. necessitatem hanc [illegible] omnia, [illegible] ab omnibus [illegible] dummodo [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible], quae charitatem omnibus aequat praestare; et vero et ipsa ratione, quae [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] At [illegible] de ignorantia verae religionis invincibili aut [illegible] [illegible] ignorantia [illegible] [illegible] via ordinaria, vel extraordinaria illuminatum [illegible] omnibus paravit, quia vult omnes homines salvos fieri, et ad viam veritatis venire. Ubi vero ignorantia [illegible] ex [illegible] tentatio [illegible] [illegible] religione [illegible] oportet [illegible] ignorantia vero [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] catholicos [illegible] ipsos facit ad suam religionem multos provocandi ea ipsa facit etiam, ut [illegible] qui velint catholici fiant aut [illegible] [illegible] veritatem reperiri fateantur; quod si [illegible] 3 motiva credibilitatis [illegible] nostrae [illegible] non probat impossibilitatem [illegible] ex consuetudine, et ex pravis exemplis tentationem ita deficiendi in virtute religionis, [illegible] aliis virtutibus deficiunt fere omnes ex vitiis propriis [illegible] rationis que plerisque etiam dicantur non ex vinculo necessitatis, sed ex impedimento consuetudinis et ex pondere humanae infirmitatis. Itaque vel probant quidem inscrutabilia esse judicia Dei, quibus in tenebris multos relinquerent, sed non probant esse ingratitudine apud Deum, juxta ea [illegible], quae de revelationis convenientia [illegible] protulimus.

Ad [illegible] secundum de non excogitanda certa [illegible] Religionis, quidquam valet illa religionum est ex officiis hominum, et quemadmodum quid hominibus, quid sibi, et quid Deo debeat homo [illegible], similiter homo et teneretur inquirere, prout de necessitate Religionis agentes alias docuimus. Quod si hoc quaerere omnes debent, ipsis etiam de vera religione cogitandum erit, adhaerendumque Religioni illi, quae evidentiora credibilitatis argumenta praeseferat. Hoc non facere est [illegible] partem illam praetermittere, quae officia in Deum continet. Et denique illud [illegible] [illegible], quod alios [illegible] simulare [illegible] videtur abhorrere. Neque valet exemplum Catholicorum, qui non ideo dubia omnia deponunt, quia veritas quaerenda non sit, sed quia prohibent eos dubitare [illegible] credibilitatis, quibus [illegible] [illegible] paratos atque instructos se esse profitentur, quibusque si velint veram quaerere [illegible] facile [illegible] poterunt.

Sed neque responsio valet 3ª illud de via examinis aut auctoritatis. Illud examine, et rationis investigatione utendum esse dicimus, ut legitima a Deo constituta auctoritas inveniatur. Hac vero semel inventa, ipsi deinceps obsequendum, et audiendum esse in omnibus. Auctoritatem vero legitimam facere in religionis negotio juxta principium, mores [illegible] [illegible], profecto videri debet [illegible] iis qui non humana, sed divina noverint in religione esse attendenda, quibusque affulgent satis evidentiae argumenta de voluntate Dei, ut illa alia contemnant, quae [illegible] commemorat, quaeque non valerent nisi quando de Religione lumen nullum aliud exstaret. Quod ex hypothesi est, et contra experientiam, cum lumen revelationis propagatum satis in orbe sit ut saltem [illegible] [illegible], aut investigare omnibus detur. Quod si lucem hanc illi qui illuminat omnem hominem aut obstinate refugiant, aut negligenter contemnant, id [illegible] [illegible] non in Deo, qui paratus est lumen illud dare quod ipsi parati non sunt accipere, dum rerum temporalium [illegible] tenebrantur. Atque ex his falsum [illegible] evincitur illud de tutiori optione. [illegible] enim constet ipsis de propria Religione dubitandum esse, de nostra vero, ipsis etiam [illegible] non constet esse dubitandum, [illegible] profecto tutius [illegible] erit [illegible] ipsorum minus certam ad nostram certiorem Religionem confugere.

Ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Catholica religio, non minus [illegible] valerent, vigerentque illa semper [illegible] [illegible] Caesaris Caesari; cui tributum tributum, obedite praepositis vestris, qui potestati resistit Deo resistit et cetera illa omnia, quae principibus [illegible] [illegible] omnia [illegible] [illegible] obligantes, obedientiamque ex animo catholicam faciunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] frequentem [illegible]. Haec confessio [illegible] [illegible] de nostra vera religione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] confirmat. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] danno ingiustamente a morte, e la ricevono, la Religione presso i Xni rende i gov[er]ni meno simili, e p[er] conseguenza meno crudeli de' Principi contro i proprj sudditi, e di sud-diti verso il Principe. [illegible] la Religione [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] ha per oggetto che le felicità dell'altra vita, anche nella presente vita [illegible] la nostra felicità. Mettiamoci davanti [illegible] per una parte il naufragio continuo di [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distruzione de' popoli, e delle città fatta da [illegible] Timor, e Jengis [illegible] che devastarono l'Asia e vedremo, che siamo noi debitori al Xtesimo, e nel governo di un certo diritto politico e nella guerra [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tutte quante [illegible] [illegible] umana non può abbastanza conoscere. [illegible] [illegible] ipso quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vere ministri Religionis [illegible] videre [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] praeterea hic posset, haec satis jam refutata fuere quando [illegible] [illegible] Religionis, [illegible] conscientiae et propagatione [illegible] revelationis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et si qui vera fuerint [illegible] tamen minora fuisse malis [illegible], quae exoriunt ex philosophis, et moralis disciplinae praeceptoribus, quis [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] administrari naturam [illegible], [illegible] Dei [illegible] potius, atque [illegible] et [illegible]

Quaecumque vero apponantur in hypothesi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Religionum [illegible] omnia [illegible] vantur hac una posita distinctione inter theologicam tollerantiam et civilem [illegible] [illegible] amor [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut falsitatem, errorem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ipsa [illegible] [illegible] at non peccatores, [illegible] peccata [illegible] odio sint, [illegible] hereticos etiam quemadmodum caeteros homines [illegible] justitia, et veritate aberrantes omni charitatis, et benevolentiae officio complectamur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] arguendo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vando, salvis [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], et tranquillitatis omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facere [illegible] veritatem circa religionem valet idem, quod de veritate [illegible] vitae [illegible], ut licet pro jure civili [illegible] [illegible] reprobis una vitae societate jungamur, pro officiis tamen veritatis profitendae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] historiae discordiarum ex intolerantia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in negotio Religionis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lege aeterna veritatis, ac justitiae, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] longe ab causis aliis, quam ab intolerantia theologica [illegible] fuisse. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], tutte [illegible] [illegible] guerre [illegible] che voi chiamate guerre di religione, Voi troverete, che non ve n'è neppur una, ove non abbia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Dagli [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], e poi i capi [illegible] i popoli in nome di Dio

Da logica
yrodac
unt.
proponere
comparatum ac per ips us experi
intuitio
s vere ac
d non con
y sin congruit
aliquid
nti. C hominem
at quae et divers aliquare naturas
unt Pro dei ordine
nes omnes or parte ethe

da logica
Eγγονάτας
riunt.
proponere
atque ac per nes caper intuino ien

t vere oc
d non con

rs spin
congruit

aliquid
erti. C hominem
ut quia let dinarix

aliquorum
nataturus ut Bon dici ordin

nes omnes
ior parte
a lethi

da logica
yro adix
unt.
proponere
quantum ac per ipsi
us experi
intuitio
v

vere ac
d non con
y ...in congruit
aliquid
ob. C hominem
ut quae
at ... aliquorum
naturas
int Pri dei ordine
res omnes or parte
c aether

Ad logicam introductionem
Praefatio

Logica est ars bene cogitandi; ita dicta quod quod graecis λογος idem sit atque ratio, unde Logicam latine rationalem appellant disciplinam. Dialectica etiam vocatur a graeco verbo διαλεγεσθαι quod est ratiocinari, seu disserere, unde artem bene ratiocinandi, disserendive illam definiunt.

Quod diximus porro bene cogitare videtur quattuor ista complecti bene imaginari, bene proponere, bene colligere, bene ordinare. Ad bene enim cogitandum opera pretium imprimis est unam quamque rem bene imaginari h. e. legitimam ac veram cuiusque rei imaginem animo praeconcipere ac per ipsam rem animo quasi obversantem habere. Tale est dum hominem [illegible], caeterasque res cogitamus, experimur enim nobis obversari talium rerum imagines, in quas veluti intuemur. Haec vero quasi intuitio cogitatio est, quae imaginatio dicitur, itemque notio, conceptio, apprehensio; et simplex quia [illegible] rem simpliciter apprehendimus, nec quidquam de ea affirmamus vel negamus.

Deinde opere pretium est bene proponere h. e. de unaquaque re id quod ipsa est, vel non est vere ac legitime enunciare unique scilicet asserendo, tribuendove quod illi congruit negando quod non congruit. Tale est dum [illegible]: Homo est animal; homo non est planta. asserimus enim de homine quod animal sit, quia hoc illi congruit; negamus, quod planta quia illud non congruit. Cogitatio autem qua id dicimus vocari propositio enunciatio, [illegible] et caetera solet.

Tertio opera pretium est bene colligere h. [illegible] ex propositionibus [illegible] aut altera legitime ac vere aliquid inferre. Tale est dum dicitur: Homo est animal, et omne animal sentit homo igitur sentit. Cum enim quod [illegible] hominem esse animal, et omne animal sentire legitime infertur hominem sentire. Quae sic nos proinde [illegible] cogitatio dici latine collectio potest, usus tamen obtinuit, ut graece potius Syllogismus dicatur quae vox etiam reddi ratiocinatio [illegible] solet. Dici quoque solet discursus a [illegible] ratiocinatio est.

Denique opera est pretium bene ordinare h. e. quoties plura de aliqua re imaginari proponere colligere expedit legitimo et congruo ordine ea disponere, unde ordinem [illegible]. Tale est si quis contentuisset declaraturusque quae homini agenda sint, ille recitatur [illegible] virtutes genera, quae sunt Prudentia Iustitia Fortitudo et temperantia Quae tunc nos [illegible] cogitatio, cum ordinis [illegible] sit dici ordinatio sive dispositio possit, ad familiare tamen est ut graeca voce methodus dicatur.

Cum tot ergo modis bene cogitemus et logicae officium sit regulas ad bene cogitandum dare videntur nec omnes [illegible] bene cogitandi varietatem posse [illegible], atque adeo videtur posse Logica in quattuor partes dividi, quarum prima sit de simplici imaginatione [illegible] 3a de Syllogismo 4a de Methodo

[illegible] tametsi quas [illegible] unumquemque eatenus [illegible] singulos, non sint futurae omne [illegible] aliquid [illegible] quasi quaedam Theoremata [illegible]

[illegible] peculiarium [illegible] et attendere ad [illegible] que cogitationes nostras dirigat, [illegible] quoque [illegible] regulas [illegible]

[illegible] Logica [illegible]

[illegible] Rerum imaginatione [illegible]

Imaginationem [illegible] cogitatione [illegible] actione mentis quae [illegible] imaginem [illegible] mente [illegible] interiore [illegible] imaginari [illegible] et [illegible] phantasia [illegible] imaginationes [illegible] mentis [illegible] obiicit [illegible] nominibus [illegible] idea [illegible] accommodato nomine actionis [illegible] anticipata notione [illegible] acquisita [illegible] in phantasia [illegible] imaginatrice. [illegible] idea [illegible] familiaris [illegible] planius datur, quam [illegible] propria accomodari ad [illegible] regula ista [illegible]

Reg. 1a.

[illegible] imaginatio [illegible] idea [illegible] imaginamur homines [illegible] Sit imaginatio [illegible] imaginamur [illegible] cumque imaginamur [illegible] fingunt pegasum, [illegible] illa idea, quam de equo habemus [illegible]

Reg. 2a.

Omnis idea [illegible] formatur [illegible] metallorum [illegible] mentis [illegible] ita de ceteris.

amplificatione autem vel minutione [illegible] ex [illegible] magnitudinis vulgaris [illegible] addendo [illegible] aut ex eadem [illegible] ideas [illegible]

Translatione denique et accomodatione seu similitudine ac proportione, ut cum ideam [illegible] transfert et accomodat aque [illegible] non [illegible] fingit [illegible] nempe illa [illegible] quam dicunt Romam [illegible] putasti Stultus ego huic nostrae similem. [illegible] ideam [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] accomodat [illegible] ideam [illegible] formosi adolescentis [illegible] modo cetera

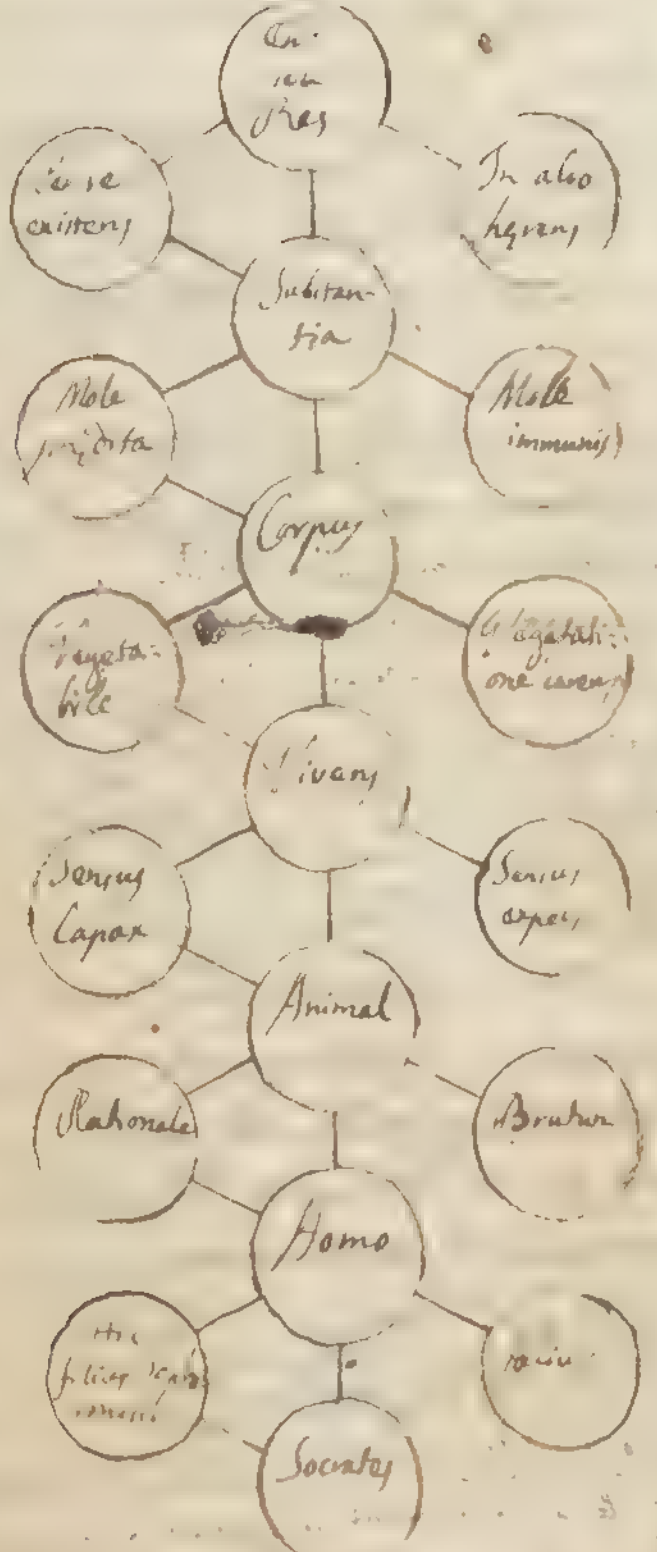
Reg. 3ª

Omnis idea quae per sensum hausit singularis est, mens autem et quae ex singularibus [illegible] generalis [illegible] ipsa cum res omnes quae in Mundo sunt [illegible] singulares sunt ut Socrates, Bucephalus, hic lapis, hic herba et cetera, [illegible] demonstrative non possunt [illegible] ideae quae [illegible] mentem [illegible] singulares non esse [illegible] mens [illegible] generalem facit et modo [illegible] uno aggregando alio [illegible] modo [illegible] [illegible] continens universalis idea fit ac universalis, proinde, et communis generalisque dicitur [illegible] et sub uno nomine communi [illegible] genus. Talis est [illegible] Socratis Platonis Aristotelis caeterorumque omnium [illegible], quae ob communem homini nomen [illegible] humanum genus [illegible] genus [illegible] humanae [illegible] licet [illegible] singulari in aliquo [illegible] [illegible] convenient, multa tamen simul discrimina habeant [illegible] ideas [illegible] spectando [illegible] ideas [illegible] in quo omnes conveniunt et [illegible], [illegible] particularia [illegible] [illegible] quod in [illegible] particularum nihilque non communi habens [illegible] communem universalem, generalem [illegible] quae et [illegible] dicitur genus [illegible] ideas [illegible] Socratis, Platonis, Aristotelis in eo conveniunt, similesque [illegible] attendit quod unaquaeque [illegible] repraesentat animal [illegible] [illegible] animal [illegible] ideam [illegible] differunt [ut, quod [illegible] Sophronisci ille [illegible] ille [illegible] homo [illegible] repraesentatur non [illegible] aut ille aut [illegible] generalis [illegible] homo

Regula 4ª

Praestat mente tenere seriem quandam [illegible] idearum [illegible] a singularibus [illegible] specialissimis ad generalissimas usque.

[illegible] [illegible] imaginatione [illegible] [illegible] Porphyrius a [illegible] ad quod [illegible] quod [illegible] Aristoteles [illegible] schemate [illegible] [illegible] quae hinc inde [illegible] [illegible] parte [illegible]



Animal rationale et homo [illegible] continentur [illegible] est [illegible].
Quae vero ad dextram sequentur, prioribusque opposita sunt [illegible] sunt singularia [illegible] continent [illegible] omnes continet, sic ens in alio omnia adiuncta, et ut substantia mole praedita continet omnia corpora, sic substantia mole immunis omnia incorporea et sic caetera.
Cum porro quidquid hoc ratione multa continet genus sit, et quae continentur sint illius species (Cicero dicit potius formas) [illegible] constat [illegible] substantia [illegible] continet [illegible] genus, et [illegible], et e contrario [illegible] specialissima [illegible] continet et non continetur [illegible] intermedia [illegible] vero quia continent et subjiciuntur [illegible] generum et speciei; homo [illegible] animal [illegible] enim continet et genus, [illegible] animal [illegible] et [illegible] animal genus est homini, species viventis atque [illegible]

Regula 5ª

[illegible] clara, tanto est perfectior quanto [illegible] plura adjuncta rei repraesentat.

Quia enim idea est perfectum [illegible] repraesentare [illegible] modo est, debet [illegible] singulares [illegible] omne
[illegible] et quoddam totum in [illegible] perfectum, ut homo ex capite, trunco, brachiis, cruribus partibus [illegible] aliis minutioribus, [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] sive dotibus, proprietatibus, qualitatibus [illegible] ut [illegible] homo magnitudine, forma [illegible] ingenio, memoria, virtute, sapientia [illegible] [illegible] quanto plura [illegible] plura adjuncta repraesentant.
[illegible] commendandae sunt anatomia humana, caeteraeque artes quae nobis [illegible] qualitates [illegible]
[illegible] et [illegible] adeo ut ideas [illegible] . [illegible] nota [illegible]
[illegible] idea quae [illegible] totius [illegible] valeant et [illegible] minusque [illegible]; caput enim pars hominis, [illegible] respectu faciei [illegible] respectu oculi, oculus respectu pupillae. [illegible] quoque [illegible] [illegible] qualitatum [illegible] abstracte [illegible] nominibus [illegible] [illegible] a suis subjectis, quae no-minibus concretis [illegible] exprimuntur; [illegible] non modo ideas [illegible] habemus [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] quoque justitiae [illegible]

Reg. 6ª

Idea generalis tanto est perfectior quanto est completior, seu repraesentat plura, in quo singula conveniunt [illegible] dicitur [illegible] aggregatione [illegible] quae [illegible] sunt genera, tanto [illegible] perfectior erit, quanto [illegible] quibus [illegible] [illegible] hominis idea non modo Europaeos Africanos, Asiaticos [illegible] Europaeos, Africanos, [illegible] completior [illegible] generalis [illegible] repraesentat [illegible] [illegible] omnibus [illegible] quod omnibus non competat [illegible] atque adeo minus perfecta [illegible] repraesentat animal [illegible] facie, [illegible] et [illegible] quae [illegible] hominibus [illegible]

Reg. 7ª

Idea aut propria experientia, aut alterius doctrina acquiritur
Siquidem [illegible] vel loco vel tempore vel [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] ideam [illegible]
[illegible] figuras [illegible] intervallum [illegible] perceptam [illegible] effectu [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hum-
[illegible] [illegible]
audiendo quae narrat [illegible] [illegible] in mente; [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] tanto magis [illegible] aut [illegible] nobis non [illegible]

Reg.^a 8.^a

[illegible] ideæ [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Idea [illegible] ex re quæ inverit in [illegible] accepta, [illegible] rei idea est; quæ autem [illegible] [illegible] formatur non tam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] concipimus [illegible] idea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in nobis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] audire et [illegible] volumus; id [illegible] nihilominus, ut si res nobis præsens [illegible], tum non talem esse [illegible] qualem [illegible] imaginati comperiamus. Nam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] talem hominem, talem urbem, [illegible] [illegible] aut aliud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mente [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] depingeretur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est illud. Segnius irritant animos demissa per aures Quam quæ sunt oculis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reg.^a 9^a

Circumspiciendum tamen est, ne proportione [illegible] experientia [illegible] imponat

Plerumque [illegible] ea quæ percipiuntur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] modo apparent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] apparet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quæ aliorum quadrata est [illegible] [illegible] apparet [illegible] [illegible] baculus, qui in se est rectus [illegible] in aere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Quare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] primo aspectu [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facere possunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] explorandum tamen est tale ne sit [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] sit ne [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] esse apparet, lapidem Lydium [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible], ne [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de cæteris. [illegible] licet [illegible] semper [illegible] sit [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sit, non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] omnig. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] omnibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible].

Reg.^a 10

[illegible] idea rei est, [illegible] [illegible] eius definitio.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible], aut [illegible] volumus, quid aut [illegible] sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est oratio, quæ rei naturam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] genere et differentia ([illegible] [illegible] [illegible] constare [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] difficultas [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quid sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] animal ([illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], corpore etc. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]) [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad differentiam, [illegible] in [illegible] sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] animal [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationale animal, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationalem [illegible] [illegible] mortalem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] integra hominis definitio sit animal rationale mortale [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] et quæ [illegible] rei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reg. 11

Reg.a 11.

Qualis idea rei est, talis institui[illegible] illius in species, partes, adiuncta divisio

Quandocunque enim idea repraesentat rem aliquam ut genus, ipsa repraesentat et continentem species, quandocunque ut totum, repraesentat [illegible] et [illegible] partibus, [illegible] ut [illegible], repraesentat ipsa et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potest divisio [illegible] generis in species, totius in partes, subiecti in adiuncta.

Reg.a 12

Qualis idea rei est, talis intelligitur ipsius ad alia relatio.

[illegible] unaquaque res per suam ideam, non solum qualis sit in se, absolute cognoscitur, sed intelligitur etiam qualis sit ad aliud, sive comparata; quare et prout idea est intellecta, qua res sit [illegible] [illegible] refertur ad aliud. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rationale animal, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] respectu [illegible] [illegible] respectu [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] species [illegible] [illegible] intelliguntur reciproca ad genus, totum, subiecta, [illegible]

[illegible] generaliter [illegible] res potest [illegible] [illegible] varietatem quibus quaelibet res [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nomen proprium, aut vocatur appellativum quod ad rem absolute significandam [illegible] inservitur, ut sunt nomina [illegible], hominis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] relativa sunt, quibus eadem [illegible] cum relatione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adiectiva [illegible] in aliud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad aliud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] relatio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] actione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] generalissima vero sunt [illegible] quae producit effectum [illegible] et actionem [illegible] facit opus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qui generatur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Sunt autem praeterea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quibus relationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] disparatio. Quaecunque enim conveniunt in qualitate aliqua, dicuntur similia, quaecunque [illegible] [illegible] dissimilia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae spectant quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Caetera autem quae comparantur inter se aut ratione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] dantur [illegible] [illegible] externa [illegible] [illegible] aut ratione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et haec aliaque alia [illegible] pene infinita.

Reg.a XIII

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] scientia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ei rerum plurium et perfectiores ideas habet

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illa in idea eius continentur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ideas in mente [illegible] habet, eo scientia [illegible] et [illegible] sit, et quo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distinctas plenius continent, eo talis scientia fit simul [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sapientis scientia est pene sine discursu et [illegible] [illegible] intelligentia.

Quod in [illegible] uno prospectu [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pervideat; in [illegible] vero non sine discursu aliquo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quod speculatione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cognitis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ipsis consequentia perspiciat. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qui et [illegible] noscat et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod et habetur [illegible] ipsa undique [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], quod multa, id male tenere. Saltem si quis velit plura ingerere [illegible] aut debet plerasque perfunctorie [illegible] cognoscendi, quae veluti primaria sunt [illegible] aliis [illegible] et opera [illegible]. Sed de [illegible] ideis, atque adeo de simplicium imaginatione hae satis.

Institutiones Logicae [illegible]

De Propositione

Sequitur ut de Propositione seu enunciatione dicamus, quae non id [illegible] simpliciter imaginamur [illegible] de [illegible], sed aliquid [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] aut negamus, [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] duo [illegible] [illegible] varios quas [illegible], [illegible] quae [illegible] congruunt affirmatione copulat, [illegible] quae non congruunt negatione [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] aut [illegible] generalem est, et [illegible] et affirmationem negationemque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est, et [illegible]: Socrates est [illegible]: [illegible] non est [illegible] [illegible] est illud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illud et [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attributum aut praedicatum quod illud est, quod alteri tribuitur aut de [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] exemplo. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut propositiones [illegible] [illegible] constant [illegible] si dicas Socrates [illegible]: Justitia non [illegible]; [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] propositiones [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Socrates est [illegible], Justitia non est [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Propositione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] composita, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et loco [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] autem quia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] propositiones [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] aliquid [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Si [illegible] [illegible], ut: si Sol lucet dies est [illegible] [illegible] quae dicuntur analogicae seu [illegible] ob particulas propositionis [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad columnam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Justitiam; [illegible] quae disjunctivas ob particulas disjunctionis, vel, aut, sive, [illegible]: ut: Socrates vel justus vel injustus [illegible] [illegible].

Omnis propositio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut generalis universalis [illegible] aut particularis singularis est. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] homo est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Socrates est homo [illegible] quo [illegible] generale [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] particula, et [illegible] [illegible] homo, [illegible] aliquis homo est [illegible], [illegible] generalis [illegible], si affirmativa est, voce omnis, si negativa voce nullus [illegible] [illegible] homo est animal, nullus homo est [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] particula [illegible] [illegible] proprium aut [illegible] vel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et loco [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est vera aut demonstrata [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] nulla [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut. Socrates est [illegible], Socrates non est Baronius [illegible] homo [illegible] [illegible] homo non [illegible] [illegible] homo est [illegible], aliquis homo non est [illegible] vel est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] affirmativa negativa [illegible] [illegible] idem subjectum, idemque attributum est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] homo est [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] nullum [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Cum experit præcipua propositionis distinctio, qua in veram et falsam [illegible] sunt sequentes Regulæ notandæ.

Regula 1ª

[illegible] propositionis affirmativæ in eo pendet, quod attributum [illegible] subjecto [illegible].

Subjecti [illegible] enunciatio [illegible] vera est [illegible] [illegible] conquirit [illegible] [illegible] et sit [illegible] [illegible] modo [illegible] enunciatio [illegible] non est [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Sic cum a quo dicitur Sol est lucidus vera est [illegible] enunciatio, et quibus [illegible] tales et [illegible] lucidus [illegible] propter quod sol est lucidus [illegible] conquirit [illegible] est, [illegible] non vera dicenda [illegible]. Denique modo [illegible] Sol non est [illegible] est negatio, [illegible] enunciatio talis [illegible] non est [illegible] enunciatio [illegible] non est [illegible] illi est Soli [illegible], et [illegible] illo [illegible] quid [illegible] [illegible].

Reg.ª 2ª

Attributum [illegible] subjecto, aut [illegible] inseparabiliter et necessario [illegible] aut separabiliter et contingenter.

[illegible] inseparabiliter dico, [illegible] attributum [illegible] animal [illegible] animal potest. [illegible] necessario autem, [illegible] [illegible] Tale est lucidum [illegible] [illegible].

Reg.ª 3ª

Attributum necessarium est genus aut est [illegible] a natura [illegible] subjecto [illegible] inseparabile [illegible] aut species aut genus, [illegible] [illegible] hominis esse animal esse vivens esse corpus. aut est qualitas [illegible] a natura [illegible] et hominis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habet communem [illegible] omnibus aliis animalibus [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] dicitur.

Reg.ª 4ª

Attributum contingens aut qualitas est adventitia, aut relativa denominatio.

[illegible] contingens est, quod est separabile [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qualitate [illegible] natura [illegible] [illegible] possint. Talis est in homine color [illegible] fit [illegible] albus [illegible] album [illegible] attributa sunt necessaria [illegible] homine tamen [illegible] sunt contingentia [illegible] [illegible] ampliùs congruunt. Talis [illegible] denominatio [illegible] regnare et dividi [illegible] [illegible] evanescit relatio neq. habent amplius [illegible] denominatio [illegible] ille [illegible] dicitur, [illegible] amplius non dicitur [illegible] [illegible] servi dominus, et similia.

Reg.ª 5ª

Non potest genus [illegible] attributum [illegible] genus [illegible].

Cum dicimus [illegible] animal [illegible] est [illegible] color et candor, [illegible] quia non dicimus [illegible] homo est animal [illegible] hominis species [illegible] Quidquid est homo est animal: et si diceretur: Animal [illegible] esse animal [illegible] hominis species [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] aliquid necessarium est [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] reciproce [illegible]

Reg. 6^a.

[illegible] propositio affirmativa vera est [illegible] necessario, negativa falsa [illegible] impossibilis.

[illegible] necessarium [illegible] de propositiones homo est animal [illegible] non modo vera est, sed etiam necessario, seu necessario vera: illa autem, homo non est animal, Solum est lucidus, non modo falsa est, sed fieri etiam, ut vera sit, non potest, unde et dicuntur impossibiles.

Reg. 7.

[illegible] opposition [illegible]

[illegible] propositiones [illegible] Caius non [illegible] neque [illegible]

[illegible] propositiones [illegible] non [illegible] ambiguitas [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Caius [illegible] non [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] dicat [illegible] Caius [illegible] ludet [illegible] Caius [illegible] non ludet [illegible]

[illegible] dicit ignorans. Veritas enim propositionis [illegible]

[illegible] aut non est [illegible] eo quod [illegible]

Reg. 8^a.

Propositionis certitudo pendet ex evidentia qua illud esse necessarium patet

[illegible] formiter illa [illegible]

[illegible] evidentem [illegible]

[illegible] propositionis [illegible]

[illegible] At [illegible] haec propositio Sol est major terra [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

quod manifestum sit ipsum [illegible] habere non posse.

Reg. 9

[illegible] quod [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] propositio [illegible] numero

[illegible]

[illegible] quid [illegible]

[illegible]

interim longe propius ad evidentiam quam ad obscuritatem accedit

Pag. 10

[illegible] habere [illegible] propositionem necessariam [illegible] et evidentissimam [illegible] quaeq. [illegible] vocant.

[illegible] vocant, [illegible] communes sententiae, [illegible] axiomata. [illegible] et per se nota [illegible] [illegible] experientia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] quotiescumque quidpiam [illegible] Sed [illegible] quaelibet, [illegible] speciatim [illegible] celeberrima [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et vel non est — Impossibile est idem simul esse et non esse — De quolibet affirmatio vel negatio vera est [illegible] — Totum majus est sua parte — [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aequalibus [illegible] [illegible] aequalia. Quae sunt aequalia uni tertio aequalia sunt inter se. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potest Deus et natura nihil frustra agunt. [illegible] fit per plura quod [illegible] per pauciora. Bonum est quod omnia appetunt, et malum quod omnia refugiunt. Bonum [illegible] quia bonum est, malum amare, quia malum est nemo potest. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] Fingantur [illegible] animo omnes [illegible] definitiones [illegible] continere omnes causas in alio, omnia [illegible] in alio [illegible] de ceteris, adeo [illegible] ad argumentum [illegible] definitionem [illegible] definitio argumentum vocatur, [illegible] argumenti [illegible] [illegible] argumentum [illegible] [illegible] attingemus. [illegible] Maximae [illegible] argumentis [illegible] [illegible]

A [illegible] [illegible] convenit, et quia convenit [illegible] [illegible] species, ut posito in [illegible] natura animali non ideo sequitur esse hominem [illegible] [illegible] animal esse.

A specie. Posita specie, ponitur genus, et posito homine in rerum natura sequitur esse animal [illegible] convenit [illegible] [illegible] et genus et quia convenit Socrati ut sit homo, convenit etiam ut sit animal.

[illegible] [illegible] species [illegible] animal [illegible] [illegible] quidquid differt, ut [illegible] quo animal differt a [illegible] [illegible] differt a [illegible]

A definitione [illegible] [illegible] definitio [illegible] convenit et quia convenit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] convenit [illegible] definitum ut [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

A subiecto. [illegible] et subiecto alia sunt adiuncta, ut [illegible] ut [illegible] sunt [illegible] symptomata. et ubi est [illegible]

ibi adiuncta sunt. ut ubi [illegible] ibi [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] dolor, [illegible]

A adiunctis. ut [illegible] sunt adiuncta [illegible] et subiectum ut [illegible] divitiae, [illegible], et [illegible] gloria avarum [illegible] [illegible] ut

Adiuncta ex adiunctis [illegible] sunt ut [illegible] et [illegible] commisit, et qui non commisit [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible], ex [illegible] in [illegible], ex [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A antecedentibus [illegible] antecedentia [illegible] il [illegible], ut [illegible] odio [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

A consequentibus. Consequens non est sine antecedente. [illegible] [illegible] non est [illegible] sine [illegible], non dies sine [illegible] etc.

A causa [illegible] causa [illegible] effectus ut [illegible] bona [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] idem manens idem semper facit idem [illegible] manens [illegible] semper [illegible] agit. ut qui per alium facit, [illegible]

ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Ab effectu. [illegible] [illegible] vel fuit oportet. ut [illegible] [illegible] oportet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] est [illegible], et [illegible] magis [illegible] [illegible] tamen [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], ut quia aqua est calida propter [illegible]

debet [illegible] magis calidus. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quoniam [illegible] [illegible] propter [illegible], non [illegible] est tamen [illegible] magis [illegible].

A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], ut [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], Regis [illegible] [illegible] Regni.

A Pari. [illegible] [illegible] congruunt, aut repugnant. ut si [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est et, [illegible]

[illegible] Ciceroni [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Demosthenes [illegible] Philippum [illegible] [illegible] occideretur, neque debuit Cicero

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] subiecto [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]: [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible] [illegible]

A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] animal est [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] planta, est [illegible] [illegible]

A dissimili. Dissimilibus [illegible] congruunt et Principes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] eas servat.

A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] magis [illegible], non est [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ad [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible]

A Minore. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] minus [illegible] debere est [illegible] propter id [illegible] magis, [illegible] qui mediocriter [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est, quanto est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A Contrariis. Contraria [illegible], [illegible] et calor, [illegible], [illegible]. [illegible] contraria [illegible] subiecto [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et frigus [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] aere [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] a [illegible].

A repugnantibus. Repugnat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et ubi amor est, ibi [illegible] [illegible] affectus non adest et ubi est [illegible] [illegible] qui [illegible] et [illegible] non fit.

A [illegible].

[illegible] Si lux est, tenebrae non sunt: si tenebrae, sunt lux non est. A privatione [illegible] in [illegible] non [illegible] neque [illegible] eadem [illegible] vere [illegible]

[illegible] et [illegible] est si verum et [illegible] videre, aut non videre [illegible], et si illud falsum [illegible] inde et illud est [illegible] contradictoria non possunt esse simul vera.

Ab Auctoritate divina. Deus verax est et mentiri non potest. unde et quae Deus dixit vera esse, [illegible] qui propter iustitiam [illegible] omnino [illegible]

Ab Auctoritate humana. Quod probatur vel omnibus vel plurimis, vel sapientibus, iisque vel omnibus vel plurimis, vel maxime notis et claris, [illegible] minime est [illegible] omnes [illegible] asserit. [illegible] negatos non esse male [illegible], quod sapientes omnes esse beate vivendum: [illegible] potiorem [illegible] vitae beatae [illegible] tamen Phalaridis esse deserturum. quod [illegible] ut [illegible] Cicero [illegible]: Tempori parere, sequi deum, se noscere; nihil nimis, etc. [illegible]

Institutionis Logicae Pars Tertia.

De Syllogismo.

Syllogismus nihil aliud est, quod [illegible] oratio, qua ex duabus [illegible] propositionibus positis, colligitur necessario tertia. [illegible] syllogismus, [illegible] collectio, et frequenter ratiocinatio. Tres porro propositiones [illegible] syllogismus constat. prima per excellentiam vocatur propositio, [illegible] quae proponatur velut [illegible] totius ratiocinationis, [illegible] assumptio quae assumatur [illegible] ad inferendam tertiam. [illegible] autem [illegible] sumptiones, quod [illegible] praemissae quod illae praemittantur ac ob eandem causam [illegible], utraque una dicitur antecedens. At vero ipsa tertia dicitur conclusio, quod sit velut clausula totius ratiocinationis [illegible] complexio, quod duas [illegible] cum tertia comparatas [illegible]. [illegible] quoque, et consequens, [illegible] consequitur ex antecedente; denique et illatio, et illativum [illegible] quod ex positis infertur, idque [illegible] particula ergo, ideo [illegible] [illegible] conclusio [illegible] syllogismi [illegible] est, [illegible] fit ut [illegible] propositio [illegible] ex subiecto et attributo constant [illegible] syllogismi tamen [illegible] conclusionis subiectum et attributum, [illegible] per excellentiam [illegible] conclusio quasi in quaestione posita, et ex [illegible] quod [illegible], problema in hanc [illegible]. [illegible] vivens an non? [illegible] est autem tale problema [illegible] generale est [illegible], [illegible]: est [illegible] vivens an non? hypothesis) Et quia duae sunt problematis partes, [illegible] altera [illegible] affirmativa [illegible] negativa ut [illegible] homo est vivens [illegible] conclusionis argumenti [illegible] ad eius subiectum, attributumque effectum sit.

[illegible] argumentum et [illegible] attributum [illegible] praedicatum [illegible] terminum [illegible] allato exemplo. Homo est animal [illegible], ergo homo est vivens. Homo et vivens [illegible]

ut genus est respectu hominis ita species est respectu viventis

[illegible] absolute [illegible] et attributum [illegible]

quia illum syllogismum affirmativum cum propositione jungimus in unys terent. animal est vivens, homo est animal; ergo homo est vivens, et hac ratione [illegible] extremum est in propositione minus extremum in assumptione, [illegible] [illegible] esse et quod propositionem dicimus majorem, quam assumptionem, minorem vocant.

Afferimus hic exempla Syllogismi per [illegible] voces, Homo, Animal, vivens, [illegible] ut [illegible] syllogismus fit [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ac observari facilius [illegible] [illegible] proferentur [illegible] [illegible] corpus [illegible]. Nam in hoc [illegible] cibus et potus [illegible] sunt, [illegible] quia [illegible] transigi non potest [illegible] ad vitam [illegible] [illegible] vita transigi non potest, [illegible] omnino necessaria sunt Cibus et potus; igitur res omnino ad vitam necessariae sunt. [illegible] observato et subjectum seu minus extremum esse illud Cibus et potus; attributum seu majus extremum [illegible] omnino ad vitam necessariae: medium denique seu argumentum illud: res [illegible], sine quibus vita transigi non potest.

[illegible] simplex seu compositus Syllogismus sit, [illegible] potest vel attributum, cujusmodi allati sunt; vel (ut [illegible]) [illegible] hypotheticus, seu conditionalis, ut: si Sol lucet dies est. atqui Sol lucet; ergo dies est. [illegible] analogicus, seu comparationalis [illegible]: Ut [illegible] columnis [illegible], ita ad Regni justitia et judicia [illegible] columnae quare et sublata justitia evertitur Respublica. Vel disjunctivus, seu disjunctivus [illegible] prodesse volunt aut delectare. prodesse non volunt; ergo delectare. [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] quae habemus diximus, absoluto [illegible] convenient; [illegible] [illegible] singula [illegible] de eo [illegible].

Reg.a 1.a

[illegible] commodissima est Syllogismi absoluti est quae [illegible] medium terminum in medio, inter subjectum scilicet et attributum. [illegible] hoc ordine subjectum medium attributum cujusmodi sunt [illegible] homo animal, vivens [illegible] homo, animal [illegible] et propositionem [illegible] medium [illegible] assumptionem enunciando aut negando attributum de medio. et conclusionem [illegible] enunciando aut negando attributum de subjecto [illegible] ratione [illegible] medium [illegible] et [illegible] est communius seu majus, secundum naturam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] per medium aut perveniatur ad aliud extremum. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] principium et [illegible] [illegible] et hac [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attributi et medii, convenit. Nam proposita quaestione an homo sit vivens [illegible] homo est, [illegible] [illegible], et hac consistente [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible]: Homo est animal. animal est vivens; homo ergo est vivens.

Reg.a 2.a

[illegible] syllogismi figurae sunt duae, una [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negativa. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attributi [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] figuras [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] consequentia fiant, aut [illegible] incohaerentia maneant. [illegible] ut duae [illegible] [illegible] figurae fiant, [illegible] [illegible] cohaerens et affirmativa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Posterior [illegible] cohaerens et negativa, [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible]

Pro [illegible] medio

medius tamen ab attributo et subiectum ab eodem attributo [illegible] et ex his propositionibus sunt quarum una prima affirmativa sit, reliqua tamen sit negativa. Illae itaque delineare [illegible] possunt Figura coherens et affirmativa.

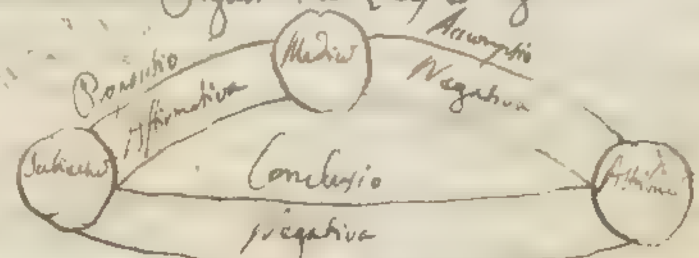
Reg. 3a pro priore figura

Quod coharet cum aliquo coherens est etiam cum eo cum quo illud necessario cohaeret

Res est manifesta ac evidens fit, et quia subiectum est coniunctum cum medio et medius cum attributo et quoque [illegible] coniunctum cum ipso attributo, atque proinde cum medius affirmatur de subiecto, attributum quoque, quod affirmatur de medio, affirmatur de eodem subiecto.

Figura incoherens et negativa



Regula IV pro figura posteriore

Quod coharet cum aliquo, incoherens cum eo est cum quo illud est incoherens

Est etiam haec res manifesta, ac evidens fit, et quia subiectum est coniunctum cum medio et medius [illegible] ex attributo, et ideo subiectum [illegible] ab ipso attributo. atque proinde licet medius affirmetur de subiecto, attributum tamen quia negatur de medio, negatur etiam de subiecto.

Reg. V

Figurae utriusque tres sunt modi, nempe generalis, particularis, et mixtus.

[illegible] enim figuris generalium [illegible], et assumptis pro subiecto v.c. homine, pro [illegible] animali, et pro attributo vivente aut lapide [illegible] haec [illegible] licent homo est animal, animal est vivens, homo ergo est vivens. vel homo est animal, animal non est lapis, homo igitur non est lapis. constat posse utramque figuram [illegible] modis, quarum [illegible] utriusque [illegible] propositiones seu enunciationes sunt affirmativae, in posteriore prima affirmativa, [illegible] negativa: possunt tales propositiones [illegible] fieri generales, particulares, [illegible] omnes quidem generales [illegible] generalis, [illegible] particulares omnes particulares [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] mixtus Singularem porro modum utriusque figurae exempla [illegible]

Figura coherentis, seu affirmativae modus

Generalis { Omnis homo est animal
Omne autem animal est vivens
Omnis ergo homo est vivens.

Particularis { Socrates est Sophronisci filius Sophronisci [illegible] est, [illegible] Platoni; [illegible] est [illegible] Platonis.

Mixtus { Socrates est animal
Omne autem animal est vivens
Socrates igitur est vivens

Figurae incoherentis seu negativae modi

Generalis { Omnis homo est animal
Nullum autem animal est [illegible]
Nullus [illegible] homo est [illegible]

Particularis { Socrates est filius Sophronisci / Filius autem Sophronisci non est discipulus Platonis; / Socrates igitur non est discipulus Platonis. | Mixtus { Socrates est animal / [illegible] autem animal est lapis / Socrates igitur non est lapis.

Cap. VI

[illegible] Syllogismus, in quo altera sumptionum [illegible] intelligatur [illegible] siquando [illegible]

[illegible] Enthymema [illegible] animo [illegible] Quo fit ut [illegible] mente quidem, seu animo et perfectus est, et non aut affirmativus, aut negativus sit, ac figurae aut consequentem aut [illegible] [illegible] Sane vero [illegible] non [illegible] quorsum conclusionem [illegible] et quotiescumque quis dicit v. c. Omne animal sentit homo igitur sentit non aliud ob causam conclusionem infert, quam quia simul intelligit hominem esse animal. Et cum dicit homo est animal: omni igitur homo sentit ob [illegible] proprium esse omni animali, [illegible] ne syllogismus quidem imperfectus fuit, sed temere [illegible] illatio, perinde ac si quis libet sequeretur ex quolibet, ut [illegible] dicerentur v. c. Luna in coelo est, homo igitur sentit.

Cap. VII

Gradatio quae Syllogismus [illegible] in [illegible] figurae locum habet.

Neque [illegible] Syllogismus [illegible] quandam per [illegible] v. c. cum dicitur: Omnis homo est animal, et omne animal est vivens, et omne vivens est corpus, et omne corpus est substantia: omnis igitur homo est substantia: quod non [illegible] a primo ad ultimum argumentum. [illegible] porro aut plures illae assumptiones [illegible] intelligamus [illegible] syllogismos fieri. [illegible] huic conclusioni: Omnis homo est [illegible] immediate, sed per intermedias [illegible] et corporis [illegible] [illegible] gradatione [illegible] habere nisi in [illegible] figura vel [illegible] quod in [illegible] aut [illegible] negativa [illegible] quemadmodum si dicas: Omnis homo est animal, nullum animal est lapis, nullus lapis est vivens; nullus igitur homo est vivens.

Spectare ad gradationem potest, quod vulgo [illegible] et [illegible] syllogismum appellant. Cum enim quispiam sic dicit: Omnis homo est animal, et omne animal est vivens, ergo omnis homo est vivens, [illegible] omne vivens est substantia ergo omnis homo est substantia [illegible] syllogismo [illegible] Omnis homo [illegible]

Cap. VIII

Inductio quae quid universe ex plurium singularium [illegible] colligitur [illegible] figura.

[illegible] quoque inductio Syllogismus [illegible] est et [illegible] enthymema et gradationes [illegible] enthymema [illegible] et ut gradatio [illegible] v. c. Omne animal [illegible] vivit, omne [illegible] natatile, omne reptile, omne zoophitum, igitur omne animal [illegible]. Assumptiones vero plures sunt vera generum species [illegible] animal collecta et quasi in unum coacta [illegible] infecularum [illegible] omne animal est [illegible] aut volatile, aut natatile aut [illegible] aut zoophitum est. [illegible] ratiocinatio [illegible], [illegible] nulla fuit. Porro inductio syllogismum [illegible] [illegible] ac [illegible], quod [illegible] est exemplum [illegible] affirmativum et [illegible] negativum, [illegible] intellectiva [illegible]: Nullum reptile est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] volatile, nulli natatile, nulli reptile, nulli zoophitum, nullum ergo est animal [illegible].

Reg. IX

Hypotheticus seu conditionalis Syllogismus nihil addit [illegible] enthymema [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Si homo est animal est ergo homo vivens; atqui homo est animal, est ergo homo vivens: [illegible] constructivus est [illegible] [illegible] animal, est et vivens, et autem animal, est igitur vivens. [illegible] in [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible]: Si homo est animal, est vivens, enthymema [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] animal vivens est, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] energia [illegible] integra [illegible]. Si homo [illegible] quia omne animal est vivens, homo igitur est vivens.

Reg.a X

Analogicus seu proportionalis Syllogismus, aut proportionem probat, aut [illegible] [illegible] explicat, quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] enthymema fit.

Analogia [illegible], seu proportio [illegible] est quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habet. Ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 2. 4 : 3. 6. quae relatio est [illegible] et [illegible] inter 2 et 4 [illegible] et inter 3 et 6. ~~[illegible] ergo syllogismus~~ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] justitia Republicae, quae relatio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illa est eadem [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] autem et hic [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] consequentia. Analogicus ergo syllogismus [illegible] [illegible] proportio [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] consequentia [illegible] [illegible] antecedentia [illegible] alterius ad alia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conclusione [illegible] prima antecedens [illegible] [illegible] ultima consequentia proportione similem. [illegible] [illegible] dum dicitur est ut 2 ad 4 ut 3 ad 6 [illegible] 4 ad 3 [illegible] [illegible] 12. [illegible] igitur 2 ad 3 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quae in propositione est [illegible] [illegible] in assumptione antecedentia et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] media quibus cum extrema (tum [illegible] antecedens, tum consequentia) coheret, [illegible] ipsa inter se extrema cohaerere inferuntur.

Reg.a XI

Disjunctivus seu Disjunctivus Syllogismus, aut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut in hypotheticum [illegible] [illegible] efficitur planus vel [illegible].

Nam primus quidem primum propositionem disjunctivam, tollit in assumptione membrum unum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ponat alterum; ex[illegible] dum dicitur: aut dies est, aut non est; dies non est, igitur est nox: vel: nox non est, igitur est dies. Ponit vero et tollat [illegible] dum dicitur: Aut dies est, aut nox est; dies est, non ergo nox est; [illegible] [illegible], non est ergo dies.

Quia porro iste syllogismus ex principio nititur [illegible] non possint esse simul vera, ideo iccirco et cum sunt plura membra disiunctionis quod vero [illegible], quae non altero sint, opponendum. Hinc si propositio [illegible] Socrates, aut est Europeus, aut Asiaticus, aut [illegible], aut Americanus, aut ex terra incognita: vel in assumptione [illegible] ponitur, ut in conclusione caetera [illegible] tollantur hoc modo: Est vero Socrates Europeus; igitur non est neque [illegible] neque Asiaticus etc. vel in Assumptione caetera tollantur et unum in conclusione ponatur hoc modo: Socrates vero non Asiaticus, non [illegible] etc. est ergo Europeus. Et praeterea vero nullum in Prop. membrum debeat [illegible] circa inductionem intelligitur.

[illegible] possint vero plura esse membra, non tamen necessaria est plurium ad unum reductio, quod unicuique addi [illegible] conditionalis particula valeat velut si apud Aristotelem dicatur: Omne corpus simplex aut movetur ad centrum aut a centro, aut circa centrum: si ad centrum grave est, ut terra: si a centro, leve est, ut ignis: si circa centrum nec grave est, nec leve, ut ignis.

Donec autem est Prop. praecedentis [illegible], qui duplex syllogismus hypotheticus requiritur si clare concludat, [illegible] seu naturaliter [illegible] potest disiunctivus syllogismus planus certus et [illegible] dicitur: Aut dies est, aut nox est: si dies est, lux igitur est; si nox est tenebrae ergo sunt: ubi utraque consequens intelligitur simul cum antecedente [illegible] si consequatur [illegible], sed dicta tamen improviso [illegible] syllogismus dicitur [illegible], quod non plane velut [illegible] sed quasi [illegible] mucrone mentem feriat, et Graece vocatur Dilemma quasi utrinque capiens, quod utrovis [illegible] capiari, seu consequutione improvisa [illegible]. Tale est illud Epicuri: Aut quia longus est [illegible], aut quia magnus; at, si longus est, levis est, [illegible] magnus vero brevis est, [illegible] solvitur aut solvit.

[illegible] tamen est Dilemma celebrius, quam quod veteres memorant inter [illegible] discipulum et praeceptorem Protagoram, cui amplam mercedem pollicitus fuerat, si prima [illegible] causa quam ageret, superior foret. Cum enim prima foret pro qua de non solvenda mercede contenderetur, hoc Dilemma est Euathlus usus. aut cadam hac causa aut vincam: si cadam non debebo ex pacto, si vincam non debebo ex sententia. Protagoras vero sic excepit. Aut cadis hac causa aut vinces: [illegible] ex sententia [illegible] vincis debebis ex pacto.

Regula XII

Cuius syllogismi praemissae fallaces, incepti[illegible] [illegible] et paralogisticus est

[illegible] [illegible] hoc est [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] Sophisticus autem, seu [illegible], quod [illegible] sophistae [illegible] cavillos [illegible], [illegible] syllogismus appellatur cavillatorius. Oratorius vero [illegible] paralogisticus, seu paralogismus, quod praeter rationem procedat, supponendo nempe praemissas veras et necessarias, quae [illegible] tales esse appareant, revera tamen tales non sunt. [illegible]

Reg. XIII

[illegible] hae loca ad Syllogismum sophisticum [illegible], [illegible] manifestus fit, [illegible] syllogismum [illegible]

Quippe Aristoteles [illegible] tradacin enumerat locos [illegible]

[illegible] ut ambiguitas [illegible] vel in [illegible] pars, et [illegible] vel [illegible] ut mirum [illegible] non est, [illegible] conclusio [illegible] equatur. [illegible] refutatione [illegible] non [illegible], quam [illegible] syllogismum non esse in eo constat, quod cum ut syllogismus sit [illegible] unum [illegible] attributum oporteat; in sophystico [illegible] subiecta et duo attributa sunt, nullum autem [illegible]; id enim quod videtur medium [illegible] separatam enunciationem, [illegible] attributum alterius [illegible], unde et ambo et conclusio nihil [illegible] quam [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] homonymus seu aequivocus hoc [illegible]

Quando [illegible]: Quoddam sidus est canis; canis autem est animal latrans; quoddam ergo sidus est animal latrans; [illegible] ambiguitas est in voce canis, que est duobus rebus [illegible] attributa, et in propositione accipitur pro [illegible] pro stella aut constellatione quae Orionem insequitur, in assumptione pro alia, pro animali scilicet [illegible] et familiari, constat voce canis nihil significari medium quod subiecto cohaereat et haereat etiam attributo, aut [illegible] [illegible] subiecto [illegible] congruat; [illegible] et alteri subiicitur [illegible]
[illegible]: [illegible] homo est animal [illegible] caret

[illegible] ut [illegible] sidus non modo canis sed [illegible] sirius appellatur, hoc nomen usurpemus in propositione, et in assumptione relinquamus nomen canis tamquam proprium illi animali: et quia haec praemissae sic se habebunt: Quoddam sidus est sirius; [illegible] autem [illegible] animal [illegible] [illegible] conclusionem: quoddam ergo sidus est animal latrans; [illegible] homo [illegible] caret

[illegible] et [illegible] locis [illegible] Aristotelem [illegible] Ignoratio Elenchi, [illegible] argumenti, [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] cum [illegible] innovatione ambiguitatis. Ambiguum est nempe an [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] quoniam est [illegible] esse, et non respectu [illegible] partis, Item an [illegible]: Caecus et videns et non videns, [illegible] intelligas [illegible] toto vitae tempore an ita ut videns [illegible] [illegible], non videns [illegible]; [illegible]

[illegible] argumentatione [illegible] accipiatur. Sic nempe sophistae facile [illegible] [illegible] syllogistica [illegible] argumentari

[illegible] est ut illos valere sinamus, utpote qui [illegible] loco veritatis, quod inquirimus, [illegible] [illegible], aut per [illegible] malint [illegible] [illegible] Seneca: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ergo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] liber [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] In hoc [illegible] [illegible] et quod [illegible] et [illegible]. Et haec de Syllogismo

Institutiones [illegible] IV

De Methodo

Superest Methodus, quae [illegible] quod ordinate aliquam, seu potius cum certa ratione cogitationum progressio videri jure potest complecti ceteras partes Logicae, quatenus doceat ordinate ex cogitatis simplicibus per enunciata pergere ad syllogisticam conclusionem. Et sunt sane qui syllogismum esse methodum propria dictam velint [illegible] usum vero in scientiis tradendis servatur non tam methodum quam ordinem [illegible] contendunt. Sunt qui [illegible] partes quae de definitione et divisione agit [illegible] et [illegible] sunt qui [illegible] methodum [illegible] Nobis at ea quae hujus loci sunt praesertim propria [illegible] certa ratione [illegible] ordinem [illegible] aut ad [illegible] aut ad examinandam [illegible] aut ad [illegible] et [illegible] Hac sane ratione [illegible] triplex methodus [illegible] ut una in [illegible], altera judicii, tertia [illegible]. De [illegible] regulae [illegible]

Regula Ia

Methodus inventionis in medio [illegible] consistit

[illegible] et opera [illegible], ut quaestione proposita inveniatur [illegible] argumenta, quae [illegible] vera esse aut falsa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum uno extremo [illegible]

[illegible] sunt loci [illegible], seu argumentorum [illegible] et [illegible] generis loci maxime idonei aut in [illegible] continentur [illegible] aliquod [illegible] ut quid ut ad [illegible] [illegible] latentes [illegible] docuerit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] appellatur.

Regula II

[illegible] analysis [illegible] aut ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut ab homine [illegible] aut a [illegible] [illegible] Dubito autem [illegible] animali [illegible] [illegible] et proprietatem [illegible] [illegible] proprietate est quidquid [illegible] [illegible] intelligens [illegible] [illegible] resolvitur, quod esse substantiam. —

[illegible] proprietate [illegible] corpus. Quo deinde modo quod corpus cum proprietate vegetativa [illegible] proprietate sentientis (qualis [illegible] est) constituat animal; at ipsum [illegible] animal [illegible]

[illegible] habet [illegible] per medio, aut facta [illegible] corpus, aut peracta compositione animal; quatenus primo cognit cohaesione immediata animalis cum homine [illegible] [illegible] cohaeret [illegible] aut [illegible] primo immediata cohaesione corporis cum [illegible], pervenitur et ad animal quod cum homine immediate cohaeret. Singulis modo certi sumus de connexione extremorum inter se ob eam, quae est ipsorum cum intermediis.

[illegible] est ac [illegible] genealogias texentes probatur [illegible] in certa prosapia [illegible]. [illegible] enim ab eo [illegible] [illegible], in quo [illegible] an sit ortus, per gradus patris, avi, proavi, abavi, atavi, tritavi, etc. [illegible] denique stirps [illegible] [illegible], aut ab illo [illegible] per gradus filii, nepotis, pronepotis, abnepotis, adnepotis, trinepotis, et [illegible] perveniunt de quo quaeritur.

Ex hoc vero etiam intelligitur non pauca negativa problemata [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] resolutionis seu compositionis [illegible]. [illegible] ut in genealogia [illegible] occurrit principium graduum intermediorum [illegible] [illegible] demonstratur [illegible] esse [illegible] hominem [illegible] familia [illegible]; [illegible] gradus occurrit, quae ab altero [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible] esse ab altero [illegible].

[illegible] vero ex hoc [illegible] intelligitur quae resolutio et compositio [illegible] specialiter est. Apud [illegible] [illegible] quaeritur [illegible] aut certa, aut [illegible] [illegible] tanquam [illegible] [illegible], et ex eo [illegible] sic proceditur, ut tandem ad aliquid perveniatur quod [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] primum principium [illegible], tum esse quoque verum concludunt [illegible], quod ab initio quaesitum propositumque, verum et factibile [illegible] [illegible] fieri posse [illegible] perveniatur ad aliquid quod falsum repugnansque sit, tum falsum quoque [illegible] quod [illegible] propositumque [illegible], aut etiam non factibile [illegible] in aliquid, quod ostenditur fieri non posse; atque [illegible] [illegible] est analysis seu resolutio.

Synthesis autem seu compositio est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] resolutione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] antecedentes [illegible] ad tandem demonstrationem, ipsa quaesita propositioque [illegible] vera aut falsa [illegible] [illegible] possibilem [illegible] aut impossibilem facta

Prop. III

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est [illegible] inventio [illegible] per resolutionem; aut [illegible] per [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut in arithmetica [illegible] cum additione [illegible] et subtractionem [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] enim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; quatenus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Athenis [illegible] et [illegible] Athenis [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quatenus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Prop. IV

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est, et [illegible] [illegible] per ipsum fit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est aut [illegible], postquam est [illegible] [illegible]

ob quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] quae attingentur [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] sola intelligentia [illegible] in ratione est [illegible] quam [illegible] perceptam ex re alia, quae sensu percipitur, [illegible]: ut dum quaeritur, sint ne pori in cute, an non [illegible] ratione (quantumlibet [illegible] percipiantur) [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] perspecto transitus pervenit. Aut dum quaeritur an detur inane (quod [illegible] inconspicuum est) [illegible] ea ratione colligit, quod nisi daretur nullus foret motus, quem [illegible] esse est [illegible] potest [illegible] ratione [illegible] agitata [illegible] interius [illegible] causa [illegible] quando et experientia [illegible] ab [illegible] ab ipsa [illegible]. Sic [illegible] [illegible] ratione [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] plane ea ratio; [illegible] et ratio agnita sit, quod [illegible] in partibus [illegible] non vero [illegible] a centro, et nihil proinde [illegible] [illegible] quam nos qui [illegible] [illegible]; neque magis [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Reg. V

[illegible] incipit, et per compositionem procedit.

[illegible] omnis [illegible] aut de re operabili aut de [illegible] speculabili sit, unde et vulgo [illegible] divisio in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] potest [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sive operabilibus rebus. Quippe [illegible] compositione [illegible] oporteat, [illegible] [illegible] generalibus [illegible] [illegible] docetur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] partes [illegible] [illegible] compositione resultet quod quidem componendo [illegible] et [illegible] compositione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nomen, verbum et alia (hic quod) [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] propositiones, [illegible] componere.

[illegible] medicina sanitatis [illegible] tradenda [illegible] variis modis, et quibus [illegible] [illegible] varietate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conservarique sanitas possit. In tradenda autem ethica [illegible] est vita [illegible] declarata

[illegible] in quo beatae vitae status consistat, doceturque media ipsi consequendo, tuendoque congrua esse honestos mores [illegible] et actiones in civitate perfecta [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quomodo ex his beatae vitae status efficiatur, deducitur.

[illegible] res deinde in scientiis, quae doctrinae speculativae continentur [illegible] verum. [illegible] tametsi ipsi nos non [illegible] quae nostra industria res huiusmodi adoperemur, nihilominus quia quae naturam, ipsam naturae opificem per illorum [illegible] habeamus, philosophamur de iis instar rerum, quarum ipsi auctores sumus, sive et ex iis, qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ipsi tanquam facti [illegible], ut de eius structura seu compage [illegible] philos. [illegible] [illegible] circa ipsas non absimili procedimus modo.

[illegible] Physicus scientia [illegible] [illegible] hanc naturae [illegible] seu machinam mundi prae oculis statuit, eiusque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ingentes [illegible] maiores minoresque [illegible] revolvendoque ad minimas usque, ipsas examinat [illegible] quae principia, ex quibus constant universa; ac deinceps explorat ex quibus et qua ratione coadunatis, pro[illegible] [illegible] caelum et in eo [illegible] [illegible], alia [illegible] ex quibus et quomodo terra, ac in ea [illegible] [illegible], vegetabilia [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] moles mundi universam perinde [illegible] [illegible] fuerit ac is, qui aedificium explorat, perspexeritque, quod tamen non fuerit ipse.

Reg.ª VI

Methodus doctrinae talis esse debet, ut subiectam materiam, quam maxime potest, clare exhibeatur.

[illegible] doctrina enim et disciplina eadem res sit, doctrina enim dicitur prout [illegible] a docente, et disciplina [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] quam [illegible] maxime perspiciat. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] materiam [illegible] ita exhibeat, ut desiderari nihil ad perspicuitatem [illegible]

Reg.ª VII

[illegible] [illegible] esse debet, ut verba non ambigua, phrases non ambiguae sint.

[illegible] [illegible] enim aut ex vocibus aut ex ipsis rebus oriatur, nihil sane [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rebus percipiendis plerumque est illam addere quae ex [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quo minus recte percipiat et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reg.ª VIII

[illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] debet [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut [illegible] contemplativa et physica quae mundo et quae in eo sunt, contemplatur non quod ista artis divinae, seu naturae opera non sint, sed quod ipsius contemplatio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut natura [illegible] [illegible] facta [illegible] [illegible] qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] opere debet, qui [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reg.ª VIIII

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] explicari quid sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] non declarat quid sit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ambiguo nomine [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

et quo casu accipiatur, quatenus [illegible] [illegible], perspectum est, quod ne desinat, [illegible]

[illegible] stantiis, in quibus intellectus, pro alia, quam ipsa est accipi non potest.

Reg. X.

[illegible] et [illegible] sua [illegible] unum [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] memoria omnia [illegible]

[illegible] harmoniam compicient.

Reg. XI

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Reg. XII

[illegible] nihil [illegible] quod aliud est nihil [illegible]

[illegible] aliud est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et quidquid [illegible] intuitus

[illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] inde [illegible] aliter [illegible]

Reg. XIII

[illegible]

[illegible]

Reg. XIV

[illegible]

[illegible] alter [illegible]

et quoque tamen [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] natura, conditionesque [illegible] videlicet [illegible] natura [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] magis [illegible], et ad [illegible] ipsa, et ad [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] tanquam

genus in species, aut tanquam integrum in partes, aut tanquam [illegible], aut tanquam [illegible]

[illegible] aut tanquam [illegible] in media aut tanquam [illegible] in fines, [illegible], atque [illegible] de [illegible]

[illegible]

Metaphysicae Pars III
De Deo seu Theologia naturali
Quaestio Pr.ª
Sitne Deus

Praecipuum universae Philosophiae fundamentum est Dei cognitio, qua sublata, non solum, ut inquit Cicero nulla potest esse Religio ac pietas, verum ne ceterae quidem virtutes atque officia ullo modo constare possunt quarum vero tota vis a summa illa omnis honestatis norma proficiscitur. Itaque nihil illa Davidis sententia verius: Dixit insipiens in corde suo non est Deus: quid postea? corrupti sunt et abominabiles facti sunt in studiis suis non est qui faciat bonum, non est usque ad unum. quem quidem locum si animadvertere voluisset Baylius, qui nescio libentius an auctoritati se quoque excen propitatur, non iis laudibus affecisset Atheos, quorum plures magna cum prosperitate et commendatione virtutis vixisse passim scribere non dubitavit: non enim solum [illegible] eos qui Deum esse negant summa virtutis perfectione carere dixit quod unum sit definire alibi patet ita homo Pyrrhonius (Cicer. nisi ment sunt iis Atheis) quorum etiam disertis ac amicabilibus, ut aiunt, litteris, eosdem corruptos abominabiles Deum esse testatur. Ac profecto si ademptis magistratibus ac iudiciis omnes civitates evertantur necesse est, quanto magis si eveniat oportet ubi etiam summi illius Domini atque imperatoris Dei metus omnis evellatur ex animis, neque quemquam esse putemus qui non modo facta, verum etiam tacitas cogitationes intus noctuque intueatur? Quo etiam studiosius, majorique contentione haec nobis pervagenda est disputatio, quae, si unquam, nostris certe temporibus maxime necessaria est, in quibus, postquam per summam ingeniorum libidinem et per levitatem iudiciorum tam multa alia errorum portenta extitere, hoc denique extitit ut religionem totam, quos Athei, nunc vocant quidque in Transalpinis regionibus orti paulatim se expere ac propagari coepit, ut ne Italia quidem nostra penitus ab ea peste immunis esse existimatur. Itaque nonnullis rerum gravibus existimatoribus appropinquare videntur ea tempora quibus Christus Dominus tanto ante praedixit fore ut ita abundaret iniquitas, ut vix usquam religionis vestigium inveniatur.

Ceterum erat haec res facilis erit, si cum ingenuis ageremus ad aliquam credulitatem proclivibus; ita plurimum habitura est laboris et operae propter genus adversariorum qui ita pertinaces, impudentesque sunt ut omnia commovere, ac perturbare malint, quam illud unum admitti, quo natura vehimur, esse Deum. Quid enim absurdius, quam rerum summa cum pulchritudine effectarum auctorem ponere casum vanum quam ac temeritatem atomorum, nulla certa lege vagantium? quid ab omni ratione physica tam alienum, quod rerum causas nullas causa agnoscere, quae sibi causa esse non possit? quid a sensu communis atque ab omni existimatione cum ... tione tam adhaerere quam unam in universitate substantiam ponere, eamque nullis partibus, sed simplicem et individuam et propterea omnes homines idem homo sit, hic autem cumque terra, haec caelum caelum denique universitas, et quaedam rerum infinitas? Atqui in hos ineptias Athei praecipitarunt, nihilque tam falsum, tamque contra perspicuitatem fuit, quod non eidem credibile visum, perquamque videretur, modo ne illud unum agnoscere fateri, quod quia semper a maxima hominum parte creditum est, etiam nunc omnium maxime credibile existimatur. Quid multa? ne defuere quidem qui sese omni errarint non solum ratione, sed sensu quoque, cum se se nimis premi sentirent iis rationibus, quae a mundi artificio sumi communiter, eo processerunt insaniae ut mundum ullum ulla corpora esse negarint. quod deliramentum non ita pridem in Britannia toto volumine defensitatum et a Baronio [illegible] (ut librorum formula habet) obiurgatum est correctum, ut neque ea videant quae vident, neque se putent sentire quae sentiunt. Quae cum ita sint unusquisque facile intelligit quantopere nobis sit in hac quaestione laborandum. Primum enim ne quid optimae causae praejudicii afferatur ea nobis omnia omittenda sunt, de quibus aut jure dubitari potest, aut inter nostros certo non constat. Deinde ea ipsa quae afferri debent nunquam pro certis ponenda sunt, nisi aut ab adversariis concessa fuerint, aut certe omni exceptione [illegible] communita [illegible] ea quae ab illis contra dici solent aut possunt nihil et praetereundum ne non tam eorum argumenta contempsisse quam pertimuisse videamur. In quo quidem video me non posse eorum imitari exemplum, qui profitentur se in docendo esse breves. non enim tam breves sunt quam praefracti atque mutili cum ea praetermittunt, quae ad absolutam perfectamque persuasionem requiruntur atque ita se gerunt in rebus gravissimis, ut magis dubitationem commovere, quam removere videantur. Atque hic etiam a nobis commodius praestari potest quod semper et ubique in rebus longe minoris momenti collocatum, nos qui minime ceterorum hominum curiosi sumus, lucro id appositum in re ponamus omnium maxima gravissimaque consumere. Ceterum non solum hinc gregariis philosophis, verum etiam illis, qui horum generis principes existimantur longe nobis antiquior esse debet Pauli Apostoli auctoritas, primae ad Corinth. X praecipientis et machinas [illegible] scientiam Dei comparatas non aliquas solum, sed omnes; neque ut modo [illegible] destruamus [illegible] omnem altitudinem extollentem se adversus scientiam Dei. Quae quidem cura cum, [illegible] dignitatem religionis, atque hominum salutem cum nos admonitos esse deceamus, tum etiam propter quandam communem in credendo infirmitatem futura est utilissima. Scio enim quam fragilia sint haec in re hominum studia, quas [illegible] quam vehementes cupiditates quibus quasi fluctibus hoc religionis fundamentum pulsatur et oppugnatur. Itaque divina ope implorata id omnino [illegible] omnium est, ut cum credimus esse Deum, non beneficium quasi quoddam ipsi dare, sed iustissimam rem et necessariam [illegible] credamus.

Est Deus

Prima hujus rei probatio ex ipsa naturae voce atque ex omnium fere gentium populorumque consensione ducitur. quae quidem quam firma sit non solum tot gravissimorum hominum, qui ea ratione perpetuo usi sunt, auctoritas ostendit. verum etiam ipsorum pene adversariorum confessio. Primum enim Epicurus qui de religionibus pessime sensit, quique proxime accessit ad Atheos, ac caetera alia argumenta quibus planum fit esse Deum oppugnare non dubitavit tamen vel hoc uno quod ex communi hominum sensu assumitur perstitit ut ne omnino fieret Atheus. Quare sic de eodem loquitur ejus sectator Velleius apud Tullium pr. de Nat. Deor. Solus Epicurus vidit primum esse Deos, quod in omnibus animis eorum notionem expressisset ipsa natura. quae est enim gens aut quod genus hominum quod non habeat sine doctrina anticipationem quandam Deorum? Ubi non solum fatetur Epicurum docuisse esse Deum verum etiam eidem tribuit hujus argumenti inventionem. An vero homo certe dissolutus, ac minime omnium laborans de religionibus, qui Mundum a Deo negavit aedificatum, qui omnem sustulit providentiam, qui naturam numinis, qui honorem ei reddendum, qui sacrificia qui caeremonias, qui templa qui omnem denique pietatem in Deum oppugnavit, ac nimium etiam aliquem Deum omnino tollere dubitasset, si non haec ratio magnam quandam vim habuisset? Quid ipse Cicero, qui ut Academicus, quemadmodum in caeteris rebus maxime perspicuis, ita in hac nihil non commovit, tamen in primo Tusculanarum quaestionum perscripsit tamen hoc argumentum appellat firmissimum: firmissimum hoc afferri videtur, cur Deos esse credamus quod nulla gens tam fera nemo omnium tam immanis, cujus mentem non imbuerit Deorum opinio. Universe id semper ratum ratumque fuit apud omnes qui non insaniunt, quod idem Velleius loco citato affert: de quo omnium natura consentit id verum esse necesse est. quod rursus ipse Cic. inculcat in prima Tusculana: omni in re consensio omnium gentium lex naturae putanda est. quid enim stabile, quid firmum in philosophia relinquatur, si ne ipsa quidem natura, ubi [illegible] veritatis magistra habeatur? quoniam autem porro aut reliqui philosophi rerum evidentia tueri potuerunt contra Academicos, aut hi rursus contra Stoicos probabilitatem retinere aut hi quoque appetitionum vim, quas ponunt actionum normam, et regulam, si ne id quidem valeat quod non aliquibus aut multis verum videatur sed prope omnibus? Jam haec naturae vox hic instinctus cognoscitur intelligitur ex [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] aut sensu. Cum enim naturae impulsibus obsequentes quippiam affirmant, accedunt [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] autem ex ipsa naturae impressione oritur atque consistit, [illegible] nonnulli qui [illegible] [illegible] attendentes contra eandem vocem et quasi imperium [illegible].

Porro ut

Porro ut a priore parte incipiam: quo argumentum ex hominum iudicio ductum certa sit veri nota minime necesse est, ut omnes ad unum quique ita iudicent, sed satis est ita si maxima mortalium pars aliquid verum esse fateatur. Saeculum nullum autem est in quo hominum inventionem aspicere liceret cum vel in rebus maxime perspicui plures reperti sint qui vel obscuras aut etiam falsas dicere affirmarent cuiusmodi fuere academici Pyrrhonii sceptici Acataleptici. nec profecto neque semper omnes naturae vocem intelligunt, praesertim ubi aliqua argumentatione est opus; et si iidem aut stupidi sunt aut cupiditatibus obcaecati: neque omnes quaecumque verum vident illud etiam conantur fateri a natura: haec enim mentem movet impellit, caeterum linguae atque voci in homine potestas sunt. Praeclara Aristoteles Metaph. lib. II cap. III de Heraclito verba faciens qui affirmabat idem posse simul esse et non esse; non necesse est, inquit aliquem quaecumque dicat ea etiam putare vera. quonam autem modo ostendere poterimus quempiam in affirmando aut negando vel conscium esse vel falli? ita ducentur si maxime hominum partis testimonium iudiciumque opponatur. Et haec licet aut inscitiae aut pravae cupiditati hominis plura falsa huiusmodi iudicio admiscentur pro vario singulorum ingenio et indole; tamen non est dubitandum in ea parte iudicium esse dubium in qua parte conveniunt omnes. Quid enim? Nonne inter omnes constat Philosophos aliquem esse finem homini propositum a natura aliquod summum bonum cuius in possessione consistit vita beata, quod hoc inventum nemo caret ut finem aliquem assequatur? Atqui quam multi sint hac in re singulorum errores et placita nemo ignorat: alii enim scientiam virtutem alii alii voluptates denique alii alia esse putant summum bonum, quo natura nos vocat. Aliud est igitur naturae vox, aliud singulorum opinio. alterum commune et constans, alterum mutabile est, et discrepans; itaque aliud certum, aliud dubium. Quae cum ita sint facile ostendero maximam hominum partem tum appellatione tum sacrificiis, ac caeremoniis aut aliqua specie religionis aut aliis signis ostendisse se existimare aliquam etiam esse divinam vitae conditricem fuerit, aliquem esse Deum. Quis igitur hac in re dubitare potest nisi qui non solum in litterarum monumentis, ac memoria temporum, verum etiam in vita sunt prope hospites ac peregrini? Pleni sunt libri, plenae sapientum voces, plena exemplorum vetustas. Afferam nonnulla ex innumerabilibus afferantur magis eruditionis gratia quam necessitatis. Aristoteles in L. 1 de Caelo cap. 3° omnes homines deorum habent notitiam. Jamblicus de Mysteriis sectione pr.a cap. 3° nostrae essentiae inest simul de Diis innata cognitio. Dio Chrysostomus Orat. XI. haec est opinio et notio communis omnino generis humani. Quid plura? omnia scriptorum hac in re testimonia consonant divino illi [illegible] oraculo quo ignorant, quod haec omnia [illegible] homini fuerit?

fuerit? Cum igitur non multorum sed prope omnium hac in re suffragia habeamus, quid praeterea expectabimus ut eam naturae vocem existimemus? Deinde ac si non eodem modo innotescat nobis ac in tot aliis rebus, quarum veritatem ne impudentissimi quidem oppugnare ausi sunt, ut in vita beata quam omnes appetunt, in iure naturali, in virtutis pulchritudine, quibus de rebus si quis etiam moveat, statim humani generis consensu [illegible].

Caeterum si in omni re ejusmodi consensio tantum momenti habet quantum omnes fatentur Philosophi, in hac quidem causa duobus nominibus gravissima debet esse quae non in hominibus humani generis judiciis [illegible] nuntur. Primum quod cum in iis quae maxime necessaria sunt vitae, nunquam desit natura cum certis animi impulsibus atque appetentiis significata; nihil autem tam interest nostra quam scire, quam exploratum habere, sitne Deus, an nullum Dominum colere, nulli servire debeamus, nisi natura haec impelleret nunquam in eo tantam mortalium multitudinem consentire oporteret. Itaque nihil unquam efficient Athei afferendo exemplis errorum communium. Ut enim res ita se habere possit in iis, quorum cognitio supervacanea est, aut certe non maxime necessaria, nunquam vel unum memorare poterunt ubi cum omnium hominum [illegible] iis in rebus, quibus vivendi ratio continetur. Deinde tametsi omnes decipi possent ubi aut cupiditates in errorem impellunt, aut certe non adversantur, nec tamen omnino et universos conspirare posse in ea re, quae depravatis moribus, ac perversis studiis et cupiditatibus inprimis sit incommoda atque molesta. Quid autem vitiis hominum tam infestum esse potest quam religio, quam Dei metus? qui stimulus, quae [illegible] acutior et acrior in animis nostris, quam cogitando nihil nos clam agere aut moliri posse, semperque omnium et facinorum et cogitationum terribilem censorem et vindicem imminere cum? Itaque Cotta apud Ciceronem lib. 3 de Nat. Deor. fatetur se magno timore liberatum iri, si evulsa et sublata fuerit Dei opinio. Hinc illa Epicureorum flagitia qui quo homines tranquillos efficerent, pollicebantur e cervicibus nullo [illegible] habere [illegible] privationem Deos. Etenim hoc illud est quod diu naturque requiescere non sinit Impios, quod illos perpetuo pungit ac stimulat cogitantes ne verum omnium quas agunt, quasque cogitant reddenda sit supremo Imperatori Deo aliquando ratio. Qui igitur fieri potuit, ut mortales adeo ad vitia proni ac proclives judicem sibi aeternum constituerent, nisi hunc natura ipsa impulisset. Si enim, ut in veteri proverbio est: facile credunt miseri quod optant; illud etiam necessario contra est tenendum, difficile credi id a quo abhorremus.

Age nunc veniamus ad alterum naturae caput. Cur in omnium animis hunc sensum atque hanc vocem [illegible], quae ad Deum aliquem agnoscendum colendumque excitamur, in quo non est mihi necessarium statuere quod cum magna opinionum varietate disceptatur inter philosophos utrum notio et idea Dei initio

fuerit animis

animi nostri innata ac congenita; an usu quodam et ratione nobis comparata. satis enim quid sentiendum videatur vidimus ubi de ideis generatim et singillatim de phantasmatibus et puris intelligentiis egimus. Illud tantum hic ostendam quod huic causae satis est, hanc notitiam non minus certae divinitatis testem esse, quam reliquas earum rerum quas exhibent referunt. In quo uno utar exemplo, eoque perspicuo et indubitato. Notio finis ac summi boni sive innata sit sive acquisita firmissimum argumentum suppeditat omnibus aliquem esse finem bonorum aliquod extremum quo omnes vitae actiones et consilia referantur: similis autem est notio Dei. Quamquam enim haec non aeque clara et explicata sit in animis omnium, tamen quantacumque est talis certe est, ut numinis imago haberi possit. multi ea indicante eamque penitus excutientes statuerunt aliquem esse [illegible] rerum effectorem ac moderatorem cui obtemperemus, quem diligamus cui honores habeamus, quod indicii fuit. Nonnulli vero aut hebetiore ingenio aut mala consuetudine [illegible] nihil eiusmodi cogitarunt. at profecto etiamsi naturam secuti non fuerint non eius tamen vocem non audierunt. Itaque neminem omnium reperias in quo non quaedam signa extent divinitatis impressa quique si minus certa certe aliqua Dei attributa non videatur quamquam imprudens cognoscere. Quis enim est adeo barbarus atque immanis qui in atrocissimis sceleribus non repentino quodam terrore percellatur non illius confodiatur conscientiae stimulis. aut si etiam diuturna consuetudine eos vel oppresserit vel extinxerit tamen [illegible] aetati minime senserit. Quas gentes ita efferatas existimabimus quae in gravissimis calamitatibus acerbissimisque doloribus non quodam interno monitore et [illegible] hominum incitatae ad summi cuiusdam adiutoris opem implorandam. quid? non illud ipsum certum est huius rei argumentum quod animi nostri nullis divitiis honoribus voluptatibus impleri et exsaturari possunt. atque ita sunt ampli et capaces ut semper aliquid immensum infinitumque desiderent? quid igitur? ex reliquis naturae impulsibus certissime colligamus ea extare ad quae impellimur, neque solum finem aliquem bonorum esse indicamus animorum motibus respondentem sed ne in iis quidem levioribus appetitibus ullum reperiemus cui non fuerit aliquid a natura paratum. itaque et fami cibus et siti poculum, tum colores oculis, tum soni auribus praesto sunt ac ne ipsae quidem volucres illis carent rebus, quas appetunt quibusque indigent. tanto autem animorum motui, tantaeque amplitudini et capacitati nihil constitutum erit, id omnia inania esse suspicabimur?

Sive quae ad hanc argumentationem respondent Athei cognoscamus. Primum negat Cotta quod Cicer. lib. III de Nat. Deor. res tantas iudicio multitudinis aestimari placere. Quasi vero multitudinis iudicio non naturae consentiunt cum summis modis infimi, docti atque indocti omnium temporum omnium locorum ac populares leges admirantur. Quod si dices multitudinis etiam imperitae consensum quod in aliis rebus leve est, hoc in re gravissimum esse oportere, etiamne nobis neglegi liceat isto nomine? Quid enim est

Quid enim est cur contemnant multitudinem? illud scilicet quia tardiore ingenio est et rudiore et propterea errat facillime. atqui id ipsum in causa est cur hoc in re multitudinis iudicium maximi momenti habeatur. Enim propter istam ipsam ingeniorum tarditatem nec fere habet vulgus ut de causarum perceptione exquirat, neque illam minime calleat: quae ante pedes sunt nec videt cetera negligat cum perceptum nullum ex philosophando veram nullum percipit emolumentum. Itaque non solum indocti a reconditis quaestionibus causarum qui abhorrent nimis abundare obiciunt, rident physicos qui in iis explorandis tamdiu immorentur quod si ad aliquam causam attingere velint et minime perspicaces ipsos effectus pro causis ponunt ex quibus quaeras cur aut corpora deorsum ferantur aut a magnete ferrum attrahatur. Illud unum afferunt hanc rerum esse vim hanc naturam, nihil amplius quaeri oportere. Proh Deum immortalem. in tanta ingeniorum hebetudine ac tarditate atque in tanta philosophandi quae in vulgo est incuria et fastidio vulgus tamen ipsum de Deo cogitavit: quique homines ne proximiores quidem causas sive rerum ad omnium altissimam et principem ascenderunt, neque quod rerum imperitia erat maxime consentaneum, contenti sunt ut fato temperarentur aut casu mundum sua natura constare atque id ad summa quadam virtute et providentia effici videmus intellexerunt et unde hoc insolens philosophandi studium, hic subitus et insuetus causarum inquirendarum amor in iis ipsis extiterit non videbimus? Num quod dicunt nihil tam credulum esse quam multitudinem, et propterea eidem posse imponi facillime? mihi vero numquam id dicerent si paulo magis hominum naturam attenderent. Etenim praeter causam religionis aut alias res in quibus ad credendum aliqua cupiditas flectat, nihil est tam indocile, nihil quam tam incredulum quam indoles popularis. Nam si quid ex historiis gesta aliqua vera quidem, sed admirabilia afferantur statim id comperies evenire apud vulgus, quod acerrimus naturae notator Ariostus cecinit

Che narrandole poi non se gli crede
E stimato bugiardo ne rimane,
Che 'l volgo sciocco non gli vuol dar fede
Se non le vede e tocca chiare e piane.

Quid de his physicis dicam? quam multa sunt in eo genere a doctissimis viris partim inventa, partim etiam summa existimata, quae vulgus arrigit quae irridet quae incredulus odit: velut terram moveri non solem; minimam stellam multo hoc globo esse maiorem, atque alia eiusmodi! una res est, in qua nimirum etiam sit credula multitudo, religio, cuius quidem nomen tantum apud eam habet ponderis ut simul ac iniectum fuerit, nihil non ipsi persuaderi posse videatur. Unde autem tanta haec in re docilitas? an quod disciplina religionum nihil admirabile habeat, nihil abhorrens a sensibus, et nihil ex

obscuris

[illegible] nihil magis imperium. An igitur cupiditati ... et quaedam ipsa voluptati aut [illegible] sane aberit ad [illegible]? quid tam cupiditatibus infensius infensiumque quam religio? [illegible] naturam mihi [illegible] opera mollivit ingenia et flexit illaque effecit et efficit ut ubi de Deo agitur plena etiamnum [illegible] quamquam hac [illegible] temere naturae impulsibus [illegible] ipse etiam in falsa iudicia praecipitat.

Quoniam Quibus rebus quamquam satis explosum sit quod Athei dictitant hanc opinionem calliditate quorundam inventam quo homines facilius in officio continerentur tanto iudicio exposito, tamen aliis etiam argumentis id convellamus. Igitur Critias unus ex triginta Tyrannis, qui Athenas oppressere, ut refert Sextus Empiricus id populo persuadere conatus omnem opinionem de Diis [illegible] esse figmentum [illegible], et [illegible] iampridem [illegible] sum in quo primum [illegible] evenerit. Si nesciunt quo ex commento [illegible], cur compertum habent cur aetatem non designant? cur non ostendunt aliqua tum tempora quibus omnes mortales erant Athei? Ego autem contra planum faciam innumerabilibus omnis aetatis testimoniis, hanc persuasionem omnibus institutis et legibus antiquiorem fuisse, eamque naturalem existimatam. Ceterum ne longior sim paucos seligam. Iamblichus de mysteriis sect. pr. cap. 2. Dio Chrysostomus orat. XII. [illegible] Diss. VII graeca scripta. In Latinis Gellius id confirmat et Cicero, quorum alter Epicuri auctoritatem allegans [illegible] negat hanc opinionem instituto aliquo aut more, aut lege esse constitutam. Alter in Tusculana Pr.ª idem scribit. nec vero id collocutio hominum aut consensus efficit, non institutis opinio est confirmata, non legibus. Quid multa? ii ipsi qui de rebus omnibus dubitant hanc unam mirabiliter concessere de quibus [illegible] Bayleus in Spinozam « Les plus grans sceptiques de l'antiquité ont dit que tous les hommes ont une » idée de Dieu selon laquelle il est une nature vivante heureuse incorruptible, parfaite » dans la felicité » [illegible] Pyrrhoniorum principem Sextum Empiricum adversus Mathematicos lib. VIII sect. II ita loquentem: communem anticipationem omnes homines habent de Deo notionem ex qua est beatum animal et interitu [illegible] in felicitate perfectum in quo nullum possit malum cadere. Iam quod ad Critiam attinet vincat tanta [illegible] Tyranni auctoritas, ut eam consentientibus tot [illegible] testimoniis anteponamus qui tamen [illegible] ex historia aliqua aut sana coniectura [illegible] ceteros? Quid enim tam inverisimile quam si aliquo tempore nulla fuisset in orbe terrarum religio aut eius rei memoria intercidisse, aut si adhuc extiterit neminem [illegible] id commemorasse ne eorum quidem qui ab omni religione abhorrebant! At enim intererat ad metu continere in officio mortales. Quid enim dicunt illud dicunt. Rempublicam recte constitutam esse non posse sine religione qui conantur tollere. Quid si veteres fere omnes [illegible] contrarium dicuntur [illegible]? [illegible] tam [illegible] Deos populis colendos proponuissent unusmodi sunt ii qui sunt ii qui tum Graecorum tum Romanorum tum aliarum gentium leges continentur, religione homines ad virtutem potius quam ad vitia incitare voluerint. Quare tantum abest ut numina ~~ad~~ ~~[illegible]~~ inhibita Deum metum auxerint quin potius sustulere. et illud ipsum, quod in tanta religionum perversitate integrum incorruptumque permansit non mortalium studiis, sed naturae unius vi magnae est accepti referre debeamus. Caeterum si haec tota res a calliditate quorundam ortum traxisset procul dubio neque tam cito constitui neque tam late propagari neque a doctis aeque atque indoctis approbari, neque tam longo temporum spatio conservari potuisset praesertim tam variis hominum studiis cupiditatibusque repugnantibus.

Tertio huc confugiunt ut negent hanc universorum hominum vel antea fuisse, vel nunc esse sententiam; itaque non paucos recensent, et philosophos et populos tum veteres tum recentiores quos volunt omnino esse Atheos: in quo etiam partim eorum imperitia partim aliorum scriptorum malignitate iis suffragatur, et Baylii ingenium. Cui ut simpliciter respondeo primum enim plerumque faciam plerosque eorum quos illi asserunt minime fuisse Atheos, tum qui etiam tales fuerant nihilo magis naturae argumentum in consensione religionis positum. Quod igitur ad antiquos spectat primum satis constat non paucos atheismi nota inustos eo uno nomine quod persuasi quibus Deos repudiarent. Quod vidit ipse historiae auctor Gallus historiae Ethnicorum ~~Philosophicae~~ parte pr. cap. 3.
cujus locum ita latine reddidi: fatendum est saepe antiquitatis Atheismi insimulatos, qui quod caeteris ingenio et doctrina praestarent vulgi superstitiones constanti ira contempserunt quam calumniam incurrit tum Anaxagoras teste Diodoro Siculo lib. XII. cum tamen perspicue docuisset mundum esse fabricatum a Deo; tum Hippocrates, qui tamen strenue defensus est a Cudworthio; tum Aristoteles qui Deum esse tam multis in locis scripsit. Testatur ille. Quae res vel ex Cicerone ipso constat a quo quaedam pr. de Nat. Deorum recensentur a Cotta inter Atheos tum Theodorus tum Diagoras [illegible]. Evemerum: quia ille docuerat ho-mines fortes et claros post mortem inter Deos relatos: itaque ex eorum [illegible] pronunciat: utrum igitur hic confirmasse religionem videtur an penitus totam sustulisse? De altero autem ita addit: Quid Prodicus Cius, qui ea quae prodessent hominum vitae Deorum in numero habita esse dixit quam religionem reliquit. Quo modo nominat etiam cognomento [illegible] vulgo Diagoram Atheum Socrates Aristophanes, quod Sophocem quod is Deos populares tolleret nova daemonia induceret. quod quale sit ex libris Xenophontis intelligimus, ubi legitur. Apo-stoli ab ethnicis existimati novorum Daemoniorum auctores, h. e. novae religionis. Quid multa? ex Ecclesiastica historia, quot etiam Christiano Atheismi accusati, ob nimium neque id [illegible]. Cum enim Ethnici immani Deorum multitudine mentem refertam haberent qui reliquos tenerent relinquerent unum ita non videbatur nomi-nare et prope ad nihilum redigeret. Cujus etiam te fiat difficile et ex uno quidem veterum testimonio affirmare quempiam esse (?) Atheum, quorum opera in manibus non habemus, aut quorum apud alios [illegible] non legimus.

legimus. At enim de aliquibus ne constat quidem communibus Dii sublatis, unum quendam relictum. Ideo: ve-rum non quid senserint credendum arbitror sed quid dixerint. Cum fieri potuerit, ut consilio quodam, aut metu id nollent evulgare [illegible] multitudinem praejudicatis opinionibus ductae aut si quid etiam significarunt de vero Deo, id notescere [illegible] vel nostra vel negligentia. Praeterea ut aliqui proprie appelletur Atheus, non satis est eundem male de divina natura sentire. Isto enim modo omnes Idololatrae fuerunt Athei; ... oportet ab eo judicari nullum esse Deum, aut nullum erga eam rem, quam nominat, exhiberi signum religionis [illegible] ec duntaxat consilio hominum judicium requiritur ut naturali vero internus sit. Jam quemadmodum non minus qui maria divina consectantur, quae etiam ipsi metipsi manus afferunt, plagas imponunt necemque conscis-sunt communem appetitionem vitae beatae significant, quam qui solida bona appetunt; similiter eque a quovis vota Dei et eo qui [illegible] divinam vim attribuit divinosque honores habet, atque ex illis qui de illa praestantissima natura recte judicant. Itaque non video cur Atheum habeamus Democritum quamquam et imagines in ... referret numerum, et negaret quidquam esse sempiternum. Etsi enim hi errores cum recta Dei notione con-stare non possunt tamen reipsa non solum verbo aliquid admittit quod diceretur divinum scilicet naturam [illegible], quae has imagines fundat et mittat teste Cicerone in pr. de Nat. Deor. At Chrysippum [illegible] Deo. Quid? nonne et praedicatam Cicero dicit in libro de Fato in quo tamen fatetur esse Deum? Num igitur magis Deo illa quam haec convenit! Quid? nonne Epicurus qui Deum esse non concedit modo sed confirmat aliud tamen omni potentia [illegible] sic enim illum appellat Seneca lib. IV de Beneficiis. Tu Epicure Deum inermem facis; omnem illi [illegible] potentiam: quod idem facit [illegible] initio primi libri de Nat. Deorum. Quemadmodum igitur hi ... tracta [illegible] non sunt Athei, ita nec Democritus ..., hac ratione ab Atheismo ~~ab Atheismo~~ praeter alios multos tum [illegible] tum Sinenses vindicari possunt, de quibus praecipue agam, quod hi populi religio-num gentium maxime eruditi existimantur. Japonenses a nostra aetate Auctore Jullo [illegible] Chrysij memorantur inter Atheos ex Patr. Francisci Xaverii testimonio [illegible] lib. IV. [illegible] perhibeant. Quod
... unum esse omnium principium, profecto Sinas a quibus ipsi religiones acceperunt non fuisse ignoratos, quam responsionem assentit refert Xaverius ubi ex Bonzio sive Dat. Doctoribus Japoniensium ex quo ita con-cludit nome [illegible]. Saint François Xavier rapporte que les Bonzes du Jappon ne vouloient point croire qu'il vient de Dieu parceque s'il vient ici, si en avoit un les Chinois ne l'auroient pas ignoré. Ut hactenum hominum qui ex quo testimonio [illegible] concluditur Japo-nenses aliquem Deum agnovisse, ex eo confici potest eos esse Atheos. Duo enim dicit te [illegible] Xaverius primum Japonenses unum Deum nescire credere propter auctoritatem Sinarum quod cum universis Athaeis habent commune, alterum fatetur eos quoque fuisse religione cum a Sinensibus accepissent

acceperit. Nunc ad eos veniamus, qui a multis censentur vere Athei, quod quam solide dicatur ex ipso liquet Xaverii loco. Caeterum priusquam de ipsa parte dicere incipio videamus quid de duobus celeberrimis Sinarum Philosophis indicandum sit Confucio dico, et Fochio ... nobilium sectarum utrique principe, ambobus Atheismi insimulatis credere oporteat. Et Confucius quidem ut in libro legitur qui inscribitur Scientia Sinica lib. II. ... numera ... et ... tradere, perfectissimam gubernandi rationem assecutus est dicit, ipse qui caelo in patri ac suis progenitoribus suis debitum pietatis officium persolverit, cum omni felicitate imperium sit administraturus. Non disputo quid caeli nomine voluerit significare illud unum Confucium, pietatem erga caelum praecipere. Caelum ipsum corporeum crediderit ac sana Dei notionem habuerit licet, hoc illi cum omnibus fere doctoribus commune est cum Stoicis inprimis, qui quamquam docerent Deum sentire et intelligere, ignem tamen existimabant corporeum. de quibus hoc narrat Augustinus lib. VIII de Civitate Dei cap. V Stoici corpus unum ex his quatuor elementis quibus visibilis mundus hic constat et viventem et sapientem et ipsius mundi fabricatorem atque omnium quae in eo sunt eumque omnino ignem putaverunt. quid tamen Athei Stoici, ideoque nec Confucius quidem eo nomine. At enim caelum cogitatione vocavit et censuit. Tamen non enim pietatis officia caelo decrevisset si nihil ab eo putasset sentiri aut intelligi. Praeterea lib. III ... de caelo loquitur quisquis peccaverit in caelum non habet aliud numen superius a quo peccati veniam petendam. Qui habent in caelum peccari, eorum enim placari posse crediderit precibus, si cum rationis et sensu expertem arbitraretur? caeterum si eam philosophiae ... infinitae eminentiam perfectionis atque et divinitatis. Ipsius enim Confucii verba affert auctor ... in Tinarrarie ... Tomo I quamvis magna virtute praeditus homo sit, semper aliquid supererit quod ... adspirare non possit quamobrem recte summae virtutis magnitudo attenditur neque universitate contineri potest, neque hominum ingenio penitus comprehendi. Si Sinae quidem hanc perfectionis infinitatem eminens caeli, quem alii posuit Deum sive aut eo nomine verum numen designare voluit quemadmodum et in libris Filius Prodigus caelum pro Deo ponebat exclamans pater peccavi in caelum et coram te. quomodo etiam vulgo apud nos usitatur, ut cum Tassus cecinit. Alma favorelle il cielo, accipiendo continentis pro re contenta; sin vero caelum proprie accipit pro eo quod videmus. aut si caeli ipsum corporeum fecit Deum, neque tamen convicit eo nomine atheismi praedictum, sicut non efficitur a Confucio negatum Deum esse sed eius naturam male intellectam et explicatam. quam errorem tum in Epicureis, tum in Stoicis, tum in aliis multis reperimus. Alter est Sinarum quasi Plato Fochius cuius mentionem Baylius faciens faciens in Spinozae articulo [illegible] negant hominem, quae in tota vita in verum crediit, moneas autem reperte fuisse aut Atheos [illegible] timeret, ne quis [illegible] in ea opinione immineret mali. verum [illegible] animadvertisset nimis tu-tam doctrinam, vel, ut melius dicam, quae idem ipse postea scripsit. ea animadversione, quamquam [illegible] quod eum hominem esse Atheum. Is duarum nobilium scitorum Auctor fuit, quarum alteram, quae externa dicitur, quae enunciatur populo, agnoscit aliam vitam post hanc, in qua pro hominum meritis praemia sint aut supplicia constituta, alteram vero quae appellatur interna, quamque doctis tantum prodidit, talia quidem professus, ut pene tenus Atheismum praeseferat. illam in tota vita, hanc iam moriturus indicavisse fertur Foechio. Ut etiam in Jesuitarum prolegomenis de Confucio legitur. Is convocatis auditoribus suis, antequam animam efflaret, dicitur professus esse, se per annos quadraginta non declarasse unquam veritatem, sed ambiguitate et metaphorica doctrina contentum, figuris, similibus et parabolis [illegible] occultasse veritatem: at nunc tamen quando esset morti proximus, arcanum sensum animi sui significare velle. extra vacuum igitur, et inane, primum scilicet rerum omnium principium nihil esse quod quaeramus, nihil in quo collocentur spes nostrae. Quid ibi velit, ille ubi voluerit, ex Philosophis sectam internam profitentibus facilius intelligemus, de quibus ita refert Bibliotheca universalis Tom VII. quem locum latine do [illegible] ex gallico. Eius sectae ratio in eo sita est, ut pro rerum omnium principio ac fine, quoddam constituant inane ac reale nihil. hinc progenitores nostros extitisse, huc reversos ipsos, huc reliquos omnes post interitum reversuros: nos, elementa, quidquid rerum creatarum est eius vacui esse partem, atque unicam eandemque esse substantiam quae in rebus singulis tantum figuris, ac qualitatibus, aut interna configuratione differat, velut aquam, quae semper aqua est, sive nivis formam habeat, sive grandinis, pluviae, aut glaciei informem, profecto quale illud vacuum sit illud nihil, quod causa sit rerum omnium, quas velut oceano res omnes post interitum absorbeantur. Verum si attentius consideraris singula eius doctrinae capita, tandem reperies illud vacuum ac nihil in illorum sententia esse Deum in coelis designatum, quo ab omni re, ab omni re corporea eum [illegible]. mus [illegible] Cognoscite enim quod in libro Auditorum [illegible] anno 1688 de eadem secta memoraverunt principium. Hoc autem principium scilicet inane nihil non cessant esse prorsus admirandum, quod, purum, limpidum, subtilissimum, infinitum, quod nec generari possit nec corrumpi, quod perfectio sit rerum omnium, summeque immane perfectum, et quietum, negent tamen corde [illegible] mente potentia ulla instructum esse, imo hoc esse maxime proprium essentiae ipsius ut nihil agitet, nihil intelligat, appetat nihil." En aenigma, en mysterium, nihil est, inane est, rerum omnium principium, idem infinitum simul et maxime perfectum

est, et potentia

ut et potentia omni careat, quietum est beatumque, neque tamen aut intelligit, aut sentit. Verum mihi credite non opus est Sphinge interprete. scimus enim eam esse communem orientalium nationum [illegible] etiam philosophis perfamiliarem, ut res ad philosophiam pertinentes ne in vulgus exeant, involvant etiam involucris verborum. Itaque quod negant Deum aut quidquam posse, aut sentire nihil aliud volunt, nisi in eo nihil esse simile sensibus et intellectionibus nostris, nam eum non solum intelligere verum etiam infinita intellectione esse praeditum, cum ex superioribus colligitur tum etiam illa aperte indicant, quae in iisdem actis adduntur: quicumque quisquis bene beateque vivendi sit cupidus hunc assidua meditatione, [illegible] victoria sibi oportere, ut principio suo quam simillimus affectus omnes humanos penitus ac prorsus extinguat, neque iam urgeatur aut turbetur re ulla, sed extatici prorsus instar absorptus altissima contemplatione, sine ullo prorsus usu vel ratiocinio intellectus, divina illa quiete, qua nihil sit beatius perfruatur. Quam ubi natus fuerit communem vivendi modum et doctrinam tradet aliis, ipse vero sibi vacat ac veritati et arcana illa parte vitaeque caelestis instituto inserviat. Si igitur eam viam [illegible] philosophi praecipiunt bene beateque vivendi rationem, ut principio illi quod nihil, sive inane vocant quam simillimus efficiatur sapiens, existimant profecto idem principium esse beatum quod sine intellectione [illegible] non potest percipi quale sit. Quod autem volunt ab eodem Sapiente affectus omnes ac perturbationes animi extingui, ea re significant quod superius dixi, non alium re atque nomine [illegible] et humanos. Ceterum iidem cunctis affectibus extinctis, volunt sapientem absorptum fore altissima contemplatione, qua ad divinam illam quietem proxime accedat, ex quo fit ut eam quoque contemplari velint. Ita Phocchiao, qui Baylio nostro visus est Atheus in morte, melius quam multi philosophi de Deo sensit, uti ex ejus institutis cernimus. Quod si in ejus doctrina nonnulla occurrunt expressa durius, aut mitiore interpretatione indigent aut eo nomine argumento erunt [illegible] in multis errasse non autem Deum penitus sustulisse, dum principium rerum appellavit inane nihil; quo modo etiam populus saepe loquitur dum ad significandum animos nostros non esse quidquam corporeum, eos dicit veluti nihil esse, quod ego hisce auribus audivi.

Sed iam ad Sinenses reliquos veniamus qui contendunt esse Atheos quia substantiam spiritualem ignorent: atqui non enim vocant haec omnia ignorare, attamen habent suas religiones, caeremonias, sacrificia coelo, terrae etc. et incorporeo hos honores tribuunt. non pugno meo concedo [illegible] sacrificare: ergo adhuc non magis Athei Sinenses, quam Idololatrae. hi autem non sunt Athei, igitur nec illi quidem. nam si coelum nihil sentire crederent, nunquam illi haec pietatis officia persolverent. At enim secta quae dicitur literatorum, ob auctoritatem

ab auctoribus proditur athea esse societas de qua ita Pater [illegible] Gaslonius: Litteratorum secta, quæ cultum condemnat idolorum nihil aliud est, si vere loqui volumus, quam Atheorum societas, atque hæc et imperii legibus approbata. [illegible] si re antiqua nomine est, ea certe religionis coluit, teste Patre Sharre qui totius Christianæ missionis nomine sic de eadem loquitur apud [illegible].

§ I. Maiores [illegible] sectæ litteratorum totam institutam in naturalis legis observantia esse positam, quæ est prima eius ratio atque apud antiquos unus hujusmodi perpetuo fuit, varie etatum flumine ita corrupta est ut nunc quidem partem Atheismum complectatur, cui quidem nonnulli idololatriam admiscent. Invenies etiam qui negant de hac recentiore, ita propter distantiam locorum nihil certi hac de re potest statui, quod notat etiam Pater Tournemine Reflection sur l'Athéisme.

Verum utut se res habeat unde erit quam mox afferam, proin qui vere Athei sint respondeo. Ceterum illos homines in hunc errorem induxit, ut hos Atheos aliquos putarent, quod nonnulli scriptores minus recte locuti, propter cultum civilia gente rebus corporeis exhibitum eandem passim nominant Atheam, hoc est veri Dei cognitione carentem quo modo etiam Paulus Apostolus ad Christianos illos qui ethnica superstitione inquinati fuerant scribit... Eratis aliquando sine Deo in hoc Mundo. Itaque Maigrottus Episcopus Cononensis in Epistola ad Carmelitam in qua reprehendit [illegible] Confucianum [illegible] ab eoque [illegible] in [illegible], simul addit illius Atheismum in eo situm fuisse, ut res creatas coleret. Athée sont ceux qui n'adorent que le ciel et la terre le Soleil et la Lune.

[illegible] ut hominem aut populum [illegible] atheum non est [illegible] nullam Religionem colat, ac ne nomen quidem habet ullum, quo Deum significet. [illegible] ut omnes fere [illegible] qui in eas regiones profecti sunt Madagascarenses norunt Deum, quem tamen nullo cultu et honore prosequuntur: nec templa habent nec sacerdotes teste Flacourtius tomo I pag 62. quare hos quidem nomine immerito inter Atheos annumerantur Caaiguæ, quamquam Nicolaus de Techo in relatione triplici de rebus Indicis Caaiguarum [illegible] tradident, [illegible] eam gentem nullum Numen habere quod Deum et hominem [illegible] significet, nullo [illegible] habent nulla Idola. Quod si hos idcirco Atheos [illegible] quod nomine careant Dei, similiter concluditur eos negare se animam habere, se sentire [illegible], ne vocabulum quidem habent, quo animam significent. At profecto aliud est naturæ vocem audire, aliud [illegible]. Quod si inter eos quos qui Deum esse credunt acerrimum [illegible] ultorem, tam multi inveniuntur, qui non [illegible] minime [illegible], si diligant, verum

etiam

etiam per summam impudentiam contemnunt, atque lacessunt, ut tandem mirum videatur, aliquas gentes extitisse tam multas et barbaras, quæ quanquam naturæ admonitæ, nunquam se religione liberarunt? Quod si etiam ejusmodi fuerint homines tam vecordes, qui nullum unquam agnoverint numen, a proinde nos eorum commoveat auctoritas? qui primum si fuere, ac sunt, certe cum reliqua multitudine collata sunt, perpauci. ego autem multo ostendi, naturæ sensum ac maxima certe esse numerosum, id constat exemplo universitatis aut etiam immortalitatis, quam tamen nullam esse quidam philosophi contendunt. Quod si magis nos movet opinio multitudinis, etiam nonnulli populi afferuntur ab Huetio, qui omnia profitentur esse dubia et incerta: audiamus hac de re Huetium lib. II. de imbecillitate mentis humanæ num. LIX Si decurramus ad exoticas gentes, pleraque comperiemus (impudentius id dictum quam verius, non enim duæ aut tres sunt pleræque) in hæresi fuisse, quæ acatalepsiam continere videtur. Scribit Diogenes Laertius Anaxarchum et Pyrrhonem cum Magis et Indis Gymnosophistis congressos ab his præclaram hanc philosophandi artem accepisse, quæ nihil dicit comprehendi posse. Bracmanum sententia fuit, ut Strabo ex Megasthene, nihil esse bonum vel malum, quippe hinc videri somnia quæ ibi malum.... Et apud Turcas philosophorum secta quædam, quos Haireti appellant, quasi dicas attonitos, qui de rebus omnibus dubitare se profitentur ... verum in eo Sceptici, quod in communes usus vitæ ... hunc dubitandi morem transferunt. ... Sceptici fuerunt, atque dubitandi artem tenuerunt: ... autem ... Essenos et Saraceos, tum perrexit etiam inter Arabes fuisse Scepticos, eos scilicet, quos ... appellant Mu... hoc est sequentes, quod ipsi quoque præferant se omnibus dubitare. Quemadmodum ... non ... nec Atheorum ... totius humani generis Deum confitentis auctoritatem et pondus potest deprimere. Ad hæc si consideremus ingenia et mores earum gentium quæ ... quarum plerique ita rudes atque immanes sunt ut nihil aliud hominis, ~~præter~~ præter formam habere videantur ... vitæ ... nulli legum nulli ... societate ... ut ... ac humanitate ut humana ... non tam miramur ... de contemplatione aut ignoratione aliquando ... esse quæ ... cito ac libenter eius ... admonitus suscipere. Præterea si qui etiam fuerint Athei, cujusmodi ... a Baylio ... probitate ... et non tam propter vivendi licentiam, quam judicio videantur negavisse esse Deum, jam de illis quoque in posterum et quid respondeam. Ac primum nemini mirum videri debet studium opinionis impiæ quam ... tantum ... voluisse et simulatione ... quandam hunc ... existimationem et famam aucupari conarentur: ... commoverent ... Athei, ... ~~...~~ istorum quasi tum fuerint cum nullus adesset aliter ac tali eundem ex Paulo Apostolo semper cognoscere in Epist.ª ad Rom. cap. I.º loquente: quod notum est Dei manifestum est in illis .... invisibilia enim ipsius a creatura mundi per ea quæ facta sunt intellecta conspiciuntur .... ita ut sint inexcusabiles. Quia cum cognovissent Deum non sicut Deum glorificaverunt ... Propter quod tradidit illos Deus in desideria cordis eorum in immunditiam, ut contumeliis afficiant corpora sua [illegible] ... [illegible] tradidit illos Deus in passiones ignominiæ.* et post pauca iterum: tradidit illos Deus in reprobum sensum ... repletos omni iniquitate, [illegible]

*nam feminæ eorum immutaverunt naturalem usum ... similiter autem et masculi exarserunt in desideriis suis in invicem et [illegible] laudatio [illegible] dicta, quam Bayleanæ laudationi opponimus. Si enim tanta est cupiditatum vis ut ægre etiam religionis præsidio obtineamus quo tandem earum tyrannidem ac furorem superare potuerit ac [illegible] omni metu numinis exterminato. Etiam quod dicit Bayleus [illegible], aut infamiæ metum aut suppliciorum quæ legibus constituta sunt plus valere ad homines a sceleribus deterrendos quam religionem, primum ea re admonet quid de Atheis cogitare oporteat, ubi soli sint, ubi clanculum possint agere ubi neque gloriæ spes neque infamiæ aut mali timor sit propositus. Cæterum ne singulorum [illegible] veritatem noscemus [illegible] Spinoza etiam pro [illegible] conjecturam facere possemus [illegible] [illegible] postremo factus est Atheus [illegible] commendat Bayleus quæ [illegible] vel ex eo possemus intelligere quod cum religiones omnes contemneret apud eum tamen teste Baylaeo non solum cæteros [illegible] et templa crebro inviseret ad ipse etiam [illegible] concionibus frequens interesset. [illegible] et [illegible] fictus. [illegible] eo aliqui fuerint qui [illegible] religione mediocritatem tamen quandam officiorum tenerentur, ea sunt non Atheismo tribuenda est sed Religioni. Insperata enim honestati et virtuti [illegible], quod eos ex pluribus [illegible] viverent a [illegible] quorum [illegible] erat. Cæterum et intelligatur quantum, [illegible] disciplinæ atque morum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deus omnem [illegible] maximam partem humani generis [illegible] atheam, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] admiratione [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] illa [illegible] est quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Dei notione [illegible] [illegible] repentinus terror in occultissimis etiam sceleribus, cum in calamitate in maximis quidem malis atque in [illegible] animorum [illegible] aut capacitas [illegible] immensa [illegible] non minus [illegible] nostræ naturæ sint insita, quam ratio, quam veri studium, quam finis alicujus appetentia, ejusque præstantissimæ optimæ [illegible] certissima indicia sint. propterea etiamsi plures judicio et voluntate Athei fuerint, nullus tamen mortalium semper talis ac natura esse potest.

[illegible]

Sed iam his omissis ad eam argumentationem progrediamur, quae de rebus efficientibus, quarum et ubi [illegible], vel in commemorant et prinicipium, et nullo ingenii vi [illegible] unquam retenit. Primum autem non magnopere per: tinere arbitror quemadmodum in [illegible] sic in hac quaestione an [illegible] ratio [illegible] [illegible] continuationem pariat, nisi quae illas unum [illegible] fuerit tam certe constare [illegible], ut [illegible] omnino [illegible] dissentire.

[illegible] constituenda esse ut principia quaedam ~~[illegible]~~, ex quibus quoniam omnes [illegible], atque ipsi [illegible] reliqua ut [illegible] conveniunt, quo eadem [illegible] de quo quaestiones explicentur.

Decretum primum. Ubi eadem ratio valet eadem debet esse conclusio. [illegible] [illegible] omnes illud constat [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] est similiter se habere in omnibus. ~~[illegible]~~, item [illegible] [illegible] quod semper ut [illegible] reliqua humana corpora animata esse, [illegible] nostra [illegible]. [illegible] quid [illegible] esset eo, qui [illegible] motum [illegible] certis causis [illegible] affirmaret, negaret autem [illegible], et qui unum simulacrum [illegible] [illegible] vero nihilo nihilo minus [illegible] [illegible].

Decretum secundum. [illegible] causa externa [illegible] [illegible] est quod [illegible] causa esse non possit. Quod quoniam est perspicuum magis admonitione quam explicatione indiget.

Decretum tertium. Res omnis partim bona partim imperfecta ac deficiens, nullo pacto sui causa esse potuit [illegible] in decreto primo et secundo, conservanda est universim analogia. At infinitis [illegible] constat res imperfectas et deficientes, sibi metipsis causam non esse, ergo id in universum statuere oportet. [illegible] enim [illegible] [illegible] quae natura, an quae arte efficiuntur: si hoc placet, quam multa in omni [illegible] genere, [illegible] [illegible] videmus in pictura in statuis, in aliis rebus hominum industria comparatis, [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible], quae non aliquo nomine deficiat. At enim nihil aliud dicam carent ratione [illegible] cogitatione [illegible] [illegible] atque impendit nullo negotio colligunt, singulas [illegible] causas, [illegible] in quibus, id quod [illegible] [illegible] reperiatur. [illegible] autem res naturales consideramus hae quamquam pulcherrime [illegible], et optime, tamen cum non insit [illegible] [illegible] tota vis, ac per certo [illegible] ex aliis causis oriantur necesse est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et stirpes semine tellure calore indigent, ac imbribus, nec animantia ulla [illegible] ipsa existunt [illegible] singula ex parentibus procre: antur atque gignuntur. Quibus exemplis vel tardiora ingenia ad eius rationis intelligentiam natura [illegible] producit quam omnes fere philosophi afferunt, nihil quod idem non sit omnino [illegible] a se esse [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] id [illegible] etiam vim illam, qua caret [illegible] eodem pacto [illegible] [illegible].

Decretum quartum. Quidquid ea vi ac perfectione caret, quam vel in aliis [illegible] videmus, vel alteram cogitando [illegible] possumus, illud tandem imperfectum habendum est ac deficiens.

Decretum quintum. A notis ad ignota progressio esse debet

Decretum sextum. Quod nullo modo in causa est, id ne in [illegible] quidem [illegible] esse potest.

[illegible] principii quae etiam apud adversarios [illegible] sunt, constitutis ad eam [illegible] facile perveniemus quae sapienti debet sufficere.

quæ sapienti debet sufficere. Etenim quæcumque ad tollendum e medio Deum, aut excogitata sunt hactenus, aut excogitari possint, omnino ad hanc summam revocantur: aut enim dici oportet universitatem rerum ipsam per se ex nihilo extitisse, aut materiam quidem, ex qua omnia constant semper fuisse, eius autem adhæsionem et fabricationem vel casu, vel ab aliqua mente non infinita esse factam, aut utrumque ab æternitate fuisse; aut denique mundum omnino non esse. quod si nullam harum constitutionum cum superioribus principiis constare, contra earum singulas cum omni sensu ac ratione pugnare planum fecero, illud simul ostensum fuerit ab uno Deo Opt. Max. creata esse atque effecta. Quod ad primam et postremam opinionem attinet, ineptissimum est eas refellere. Nam aliquid ex nihilo per se fieri, aut nemo somniavit hactenus aut certe nemini probari potuit. Nam quæcumque egeant causa ea sine causa esse non posse in superiore decreto est notatum. Quid autem causa indigebit si quid per se omni possit ex nihilo. Deinde si quod nihil est ne agere quidem potest ut patet omnibus. propterea ne sibi quidem afferre potuit ut esset. atque si mundus ex nihilo cœpit quid causæ afferri potest, cur non iam aliquando accidat etiam nostra cum non essent modo montes animantia repente prodeunt?

Quod autem spectat ad eorum amentiam qui nulla corpora esse dixerunt et nimis multa sunt a nobis alias contra eos disputata etiam illud iis demum pene concedam ut quemadmodum negant esse mundum eo etiam negant esse Deum nam si nihilominus perinde se gerunt in vita ac cæteri homines quibus necessarium est ea extare quæ vident, cur non erga Deum quoque eodem pacto se habeant? non est mundus attamen ita vivis ac si esset: ergo ista insania nihil te adiuvat quominus numen ipsum colas perinde ac si id revera esse credas. Ac quemadmodum quæ corpori periculosa videntur et noxia fugis sedulo et aspernaris, ita cum in simulatione ista immineat tibi gravius etiam discrimen sempiternarum calamitatum infinitorumque cruciatuum ac suppliciorum tuis ipsi decretis cogeris a tua quoque nefaria simulatione abhorrere secus ac ea ipsa factis insignis in horrendo illo iudicio a supremo Domino convictus exterminaberis.

Jam ergo quasi desperatis rebus ad eos convertimur qui rerum materiam æternam esse voluerunt. Ac quod ad illos quidem spectat qui simul cum mundi opificio docuere esse Deum simul materiam Mundi ingenitam putarunt atque omnino increatam. nescio quomodo (ut enim auctore Lactantius lib. II Divinarum Instit. cap. 2.) nescio quomodo tanti ac tales viri ingenitam materiam, id est non a summo Deo factam conditore omnium putaverunt sed fortuitam quandam eius naturam, virtutemque dixerunt, et miror quomodo accipiant eos, qui vel opificem Deum, vel providentiam huius universitatis negant et impie eos sentire arguunt quod tantum mundi opus arbitrentur sine opifice vel provisore constare. cum ipsi quoque similem culpam immortalitatis incurrant ingenitam esse dicentes esse materiam Deoque ingenito coæternam. Certe hac reprehensione certus cum enim Moises sit rem esse quam tuam esse quid terra ... potentia, sit quam id quod omnium est omnipotentem ... ... easdem ab eo ... Moises esset repellere! Quod si materiam quia imperfecta sit

quia imperfecta sit, prae Deo tam mirabiliter disponi non potuisse intelligebant, illud multo magis debebant assequi, ne una vi divina quidem eandem unquam aeternam potuisse. Sic si rei [illegible] atque [illegible] tantum dares concederent, ut originem suam nulli referret acceptam, iam nihil erat quod Athei incusarent, quibus idem licebat referre quemadmodum illi nullam afferebant causam a qua materies procreata esset, ita in quoque esse fas eiusdem vi ac naturae etiam hanc dispositionem tribuere. Sed hac omissa disputatione quae contra horum inconstantiam facit rem ipsam consideremus. Cum igitur, ut ante constitutum est, nihil absque causa externa fieri iudicare oporteat quod in causa esse nequeat, cumque, ut ibidem docui, quaecumque res aliquo nomine imperfecta est ac deficiens, eadem a causa majore omnino [illegible], videndum iam superest, qualis sit materies rerum, quam primum ipsam per se constitisse Athei volunt, aut alii Philosophi hac in re cum Atheis consentientes. Ac Democrito quidem et Epicuro, qui materiam rerum censuerunt esse multitudinem athomorum, sive corpusculorum, per infinitum inane ab omni aeternitate vo: litantium, iam non est integrum comminisci materiam summa omni perfectione esse praeditam. Primum enim cum athomos non ratione regi volunt, ex quo fit ut intelligentia et ratione careant, quare perfectione non exigua. Deinde cum eiusdem athomi plurimae sint, singulis earum deest quidquid in aliis reperitur. Ad haec quis dubitet quin illud quoque magnae perfectionis sit in hunc admirabilem ordinem coivisse, ergo hoc quoque laude caruerunt antequam efficerent mundum. Quae cum ita sint non minus ista corpuscula perfectiore causa eguerunt quam haec quae quotidie esse videmus a causis aliis deducta omnia. Sed videamus an alii meliore conditione pugnare possint. Atque illi quidem qui universitatem rerum semper modo fuisse dicunt, neque de [illegible] contra omnium testimonium affirmare audent, nisi fateantur oportet cum mundus constet partibus singulis, ut ita dicam, eius membra finita esse, tum [illegible] atque interire [illegible], ac respectu mutationi omnia esse conversa, quarum rerum nulla in praestantissimam perfectissimamque naturam potest cadere. Praeterea non dicam reliqua materia cogitationis et sensus expers hoc ipso nomine est imperfecta, verum animi ipsi [illegible] nihil [illegible] quod cognoscimus, [illegible] et ignorantia maxima [illegible] in inconstantia versantur: quae omnia profecto [illegible] sunt. Ex quo necessario consequitur externa causa opus fuisse unde efficerentur quaeque omnia in suo genere [illegible]. Quid enim respondere possunt Athei an principia illa unde res manant talia esse? atqui in aliis causis conjiciendis [illegible] ut cogantur. An vero eadem in caelum concedent valere, negabunt autem ubi ad materiam rerum perventum fuerit? Doceant igitur [illegible] incipiant cum non minus imperfecta sit illa quam causae reliquae materiae [illegible] non est facta. Sin praeclaram defensionem [illegible] in respondendo [illegible] quasi [illegible], quod de quaeritur, quae res est in omni disputatione vitiosissima.

Ego autem

Ego autem vicissim insto, atque flagito ut mihi causam afferas cur materia quamquam imperfecta sit a se met, prae omni perfectione cum reliqua res nulla sit sine causis antecedentibus, et propterea hic maxime valere debeat analogia aut si eadem utrobique occurrit ratio in ipsa argumentando constes. Quid enim? num forte illud omnes ceteras affectiones non idcirco egere causa quod non sint omnino perfectae? quid igitur aliud comminisci potes cur causa egeant? Praeterea ultra quaero cur si materia hoc sibi afferre potuit, ut esset eadem, si non acceperit infinitam perfectionem in omni enim constitutione aut ratio afferenda est, aut certe causa [illegible] esse eiusmodi ut aliquam esse posse intelligam. Tu qui materiam vis partim bonam partim deficientem nihil aliud dicere potes, cur non perfectior fuerit nisi quod imperfecta ut natura, perinde ac si dicas tanta est quia tanta est, et sic his quidem institutis, nihil aveat [illegible] cur non potuerit esse melior quod cum per se est ineptissimum tum ab omni recta argumentandi ratione abhorret. Si enim affectiones singulas quae in universitate sunt, persequare, nulla caussa erit, quae ita modo explicetur: neque e.g. dices aut negabis hoc anno uberiores fuisse quia uberiores fuerunt ideo quod caeli temperies melior erat sint. aut hanc dictam [illegible] aut statuam minus pulchram esse quam alteram quod eiusmodi sit eius natura sed quod artifex aut requiverit aut noluerit facere pulchriorem, eademque ratio afferatur in tota physica ut in causa [illegible] vim aut voluntatem maior aut minor affectionis perfectio comparatur: quo iure igitur quo instituto, qua exemplo naturam principiorum nostrorum, cum ad materiam venimus, ut eam talem esse quia talis sit responderes? Age vero constitutionem nostram cum tua conferamus. nos statuimus [illegible] causam quae causa sit rerum omnium: neque hoc nec negare, ut [illegible] ut [illegible]; ratio enim quae in ceteris valet [illegible] inquirendi dispensationi ad hanc quae perfectissima et [illegible] extendi non potest: tu materiam docens imperfectam, quia est eiusmodi; ego contra rem totam explico dicendo eam non esse meliorem quia ab externa et [illegible] causa dicens est natura imitata. utra tandem harum constitutionum magis est et principiis communibus et quotidianae argumentandi consuetudini consentanea?

[illegible] nescio qui cum rerum rationes vim intelligerent, nollentque per summas res omnia in eaque minore quam illos [illegible] quod implere erat accipere [illegible] illi iam [illegible] ut alter quem [illegible] dictum est, negarent esse materiam ingenitam, alter vero non ideo eandem esse affirmavit, sed [illegible] infinita atque omnino [illegible] in quibus duo divina illa monita, quae quamquam inter se contraria [illegible] mea consentiunt maxime sequenda nobis sunt. ut eundem priores [illegible] [illegible] ne sibi [illegible] quidem unquam persuaderent quod [illegible] (non enim [illegible] vasta [illegible] attendendum sunt) ne si [illegible] [illegible] nam respondeamus alter vero cum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] regionibus [illegible] quo tanto maior [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Boethius [illegible], qui [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible]

ex antiquis quiddam [illegible] similitudinis patente et monstra collegit, primusque omnium, ut Baileo fides est, quamdam Atheismi formam concinnavit. cum sentiret, simul ac concessum fuisset materiam esse imperfectam, necessario consequi ne esse quidem eam potuisse, maluit eam plagam accipere, ut ubi constituendum esset, nihil ea esse melius, nihil praestantius: itaque coepit cogitare quemadmodum res corporeas purgaret a vitiis omnibus quibus laborat, ac omnia quae sunt in illa atque [illegible] Deo erepta ad [illegible], luteumque transferret. verum illud occurrerat mens quod nullo modo videretur evitari [illegible], quod cum corpora omnia sint concreta ex partibus simplicitate carentes quae cum ipsa perfectio est, tum reliquarum etiam perfectionum initium et quasi radix. Quid in re tam [illegible], ac cum [illegible] oculorum [illegible] communi hominum [illegible] confirmata [illegible] non haberet, nisi illud unum ut contra [illegible] et [illegible] humani generis auctoritatem ire decerneret: itaque fecit. constituit nullam esse [illegible] in corporibus nihil admirandum, contendit [illegible] universitatem rerum esse unam naturam sive substantiam unicam non genere sed numero, omnia [illegible] [illegible] omnia; quae autem diversa dicerentur [illegible] e [illegible] [illegible] unam [illegible] [illegible] varia [illegible] eiusdem rei nominavit. De qua constitutione ab illo in Ethica proposita imprimis [illegible] cognoscere quid praeter monstruosa reliquos iudicaverit ipse Baileus homo certe acutus, et Pirrhonius neque, ut [illegible] dicam, religionis cupidissimus. [illegible] verba Gallice, ut [illegible] quoniam [illegible] intellectu sunt afferam: "C'est à mon avis la plus monstrueuse hypothèse qui se puisse imaginer, la plus absurde, et la plus diamétralement opposée aux notions les plus évidentes de notre esprit." Contra Spinozam conscripsere Auctores sane innumeri. Baileus quoque summa contentione in eodem dictionario disciplinam istam oppugnavit. verum, ut ingenue fatear haud equidem scio an omnes eo consilio in hac confutatione usi sint quod prudentia [illegible]. Quod enim Spinoziana ratio ab omni hominum sensu abhorreat, atque innumerabilia complectatur, quae absurda sint, ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Spinozam ex capite pugnantium, in quo omnia metaphysicorum arma adhibuere, neque providerunt, ei homini, qui statuere [illegible] sit calumniari, et sophisticas agere, semper distinctiunculas in promptu esse ex medio scholarum pulvere receptam, atque proposito accomodatam, qua semper velificetur, atque omnia [illegible] [illegible] eludat. Praeterea postquam ad summum illud pugnantium [illegible] cepere, ut [illegible] [illegible] affirmatur et negatur ut aiunt, non ce eodem secundum idem, omnia statim caligare, [illegible] vertigine quadam corripi ingenia, mentem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ab adversario et [illegible] exempla quaedam ex intimis religionis mysteriis assumpta, ut ex Trinitate, ex Eucharistia, tum ex his [illegible], quae minime negare inter se quadam [illegible] subtilitate quae omnem mentis vim effugiat [illegible] necesse sit tum demum [illegible] possent et quasi noctis [illegible] [illegible] aut certe [illegible] manibus. quis autem illi persuadeat, hoc a nobis naturam Deumque ponere, ut [illegible] [illegible] opinionem convellamus [illegible] [illegible], quae nobis omnibus necessaria est, tanta [illegible] [illegible] argumentorum [illegible] [illegible]?

Una, mihi crede,

[illegible] mihi crede propter et [illegible], eaque ita simplex et expedita, ut vel imperitissimus quisque [illegible] eadem possit centum Spinozianorum millia profligare, videlicet sensus intimus, naturae vox, mortalium omnium consensio, oculorum aurium caeterorumque sensuum consentiens [illegible] testimonium, quo non minus intelligamus res in natura esse plures distinctas inter se non modo [illegible], verum etiam substantia, quam nos esse. Quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Spinozae [illegible] non [illegible] caeteris constitutione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Ego enim [illegible], aut aliquem ejus [illegible] hic fingamus existere cum eoque ita sermonem instituamus: negas [illegible] substantias esse plures? ita inquit. Tum ego illam extare ais ne? maxime vero inquiet. Iste ne [illegible] [illegible] ratio [illegible] nihil minus. extra me eandem [illegible] volo, eandem in [illegible] [illegible] quaero [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], eandem hanc substantiam extra te reperiri? ex oculis inquiet caeterisque sensibus. Putaresne ab [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tantum sensus? nescio, inquit. atqui aut etiam hoc quod ex te [illegible] [illegible] dubitas, aut etiam illa in[illegible] [illegible] quae neque [illegible] a te affirmata [illegible] utrum enim magis oculi te admonent esse corpora quam ea esse [illegible]? videntur inquit plura neque tamen sunt: quid ipsa ex [illegible] extra te posita nonne videtur? non enim [illegible], aut [illegible] [illegible] quippiam affirmare. [illegible] vera non [illegible]. [illegible] aut utrumque [illegible] credendum est aut neutrum. Pertinet inquit ad mentem a falsis vera discernere. [illegible] Spinoza si rectius te [illegible] [illegible], negnare [illegible] quam cum Pyrrhonidis. Si enim aut Berkeleius aut alius homo [illegible] [illegible] ex te percunctari incipiat [illegible] credas universitatem esse quae videtur quando res omnia [illegible] [illegible] esse [illegible] quid aliud tibi erit reliquum nisi ut sensum illum intimum appelles cui repugnare non [illegible], quo necessario adducimur [illegible] [illegible] esse quae cernimus quae audimus [illegible] tangimus? At profecto [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] eundem sensum reperies in hac causa: quo enim affirmes ea esse extra te quae videntur [illegible], hoc sensu auctore uti potes ne [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] consensione [illegible] [illegible] esse homines quam [illegible] potuerit [illegible] [illegible] ratio est humanum genus extare, non solum tuum, et reliquorum etiam judicium [illegible] eadem constantia affirmantium vocis naturalem diversitatem ac multiplicitatem individuorum, qua [illegible] [illegible] est mundi esse. Finge enim hic [illegible] [illegible] quem in concione, atque [illegible] omnium hominum multitudinem in unum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], convocatam ita dicere. [illegible] homo homines est, nullas tellus [illegible] nullus [illegible] sensus, aut certe falluntur, somniamus omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] altera vero parte [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quasi mortale. homini [illegible] [illegible], ac [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] habere [illegible] aures omnino praebere omnia [illegible] testimonia tollenti [illegible] naturae [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] mihi [illegible] auscultate [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] ea omnia quae cernimus [illegible] esse, qui [illegible], neque quam universitas [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] potest caeterum vos, quos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] esse [illegible] ego vos, vosque ego, nempe omne genus humanum est, [illegible] tellus [illegible] est omnino [illegible] omne [illegible]

genus

genus, et unus asinus, omnes belluae nos sumus et illae nos, tum caelum, astra, et uno verbo caetera omnia nos sumus, velut verius eloquar, ego sum. Per Deum immortalem, utrum tandem vestram amentiam ac stultitiam maiorem in multitudini putas? atque ille forte constantior, quod eodem modo usque credat intimo sensu; tu autem vel eo nomine stultior quod, cum ex variis, atque ex communi naturae voce statuas id esse quod appareat, sensum et communem et naturae [illegible] repudias in identitate rerum affirmanda. Quod si etiam analogiae [illegible] tute tuas, et propter actionum similitudinem reliqua humana corpora uno et cogitatione praedita existimas, quod in te esse sentis; non enim, opinor, libros conscribis qui ab arboribus aut ab horologiis legantur; cur eodem argumento non intelligis [illegible] diversitatem? quod enim tu idem is qui heri qui superioribus mensibus, atque annis, fuisti, praeterea conscius es te illum esse, ac multarum rerum quae [illegible] toto elapso tempore acciderunt, recordaris: neque te latent eae (utar enim tua voce) modificationes quae tu ante vidisti rursusque. ergo propter rationis similitudinem si tu unus ego, aut ego tu, neuter ignorare omnino deberet eas modificationes, quas haret in altero loco constitutus. Quae cum ita sint umquam una turpissima amentiae nota, ac quia omnem naturae sensum evertamus, etiam illum in quo Spinoziana ratio velut fundata est, ostendi non potest [illegible] materiae [illegible], unitas, impiae, etiam contra illas valet argumentatio superior, quam ex materiae imperfectione duximus. Caeterum praestat audire praeclaram Spinozae rationem: non possunt inquit, duae substantiae idem habere et commune attributum. O capitulum [illegible] simum qui risum et cachinnos etiam Baylio movebit! Putat hic Philosopho opus esse ut tam insulsae rationi respondeatur vel infimum quemque puerum, qui vel primoribus labris metaphysicam attigerit, [illegible] [illegible] ad confutandum istud Spinozianum sophisma si ita disserere non possunt plures [illegible] esse genera, quae habeant idem attributum concedo, non possunt plures esse numero nego antecedens et consequentiam in una distinctione totius [illegible] Spinozianae disciplinae [illegible] et [illegible] omnia omittam quae [illegible] portentum faciunt illud nullo modo dissimulandum quod cum Spinoza [illegible] [illegible] substantiam faciunt Deum, simul [illegible] tribuendum fuit, Deum esse eundem optimum, atque pessimum, [illegible] ac sceleratissimum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] etenim cum una sit substantia omnino ipsa universitas, in eaque tot mala operentur, [illegible] necesse erat haec omnia eidem attribuere Deo, quo nihil absurdius nihil horribilius commemorari potest aut fingi. Itaque [illegible], per tam nefaria propositione commotus atque portentis [illegible] omnibus Deum [illegible] negatque omnino [illegible] [illegible] quamquam tam multa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fuerint . . . [illegible], tamen venit in mentem [illegible] [illegible] Academicos semper dixisse, ex Empyrico, Deum esse opt. max. in quod nullum malum possit cadere: Stoicos qui Deum esse negarint, aut aliquod principium mali invenerint; qui autem in eadem divina natura, quod Spinoza facit, cum omnibus bonis omnia mala congregavit inventus adhuc neminem. Adeo sententia ista impia est, absurda atque immanis. [illegible] quod dicunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

multa cum

multa credi quae cum sensu communi pugnent, ut propterea ipsi [illegible] fingere [illegible] arbitrentur. Sunt quidem nostra mysteria arcana et recondita, sed ut haec credibilia habeamus, [illegible] ipse communis effecit. Utimur enim multis aliis rebus tum miraculis, tum oraculis, quae nonnisi a Deo, atque ad significationem veri fieri posse mortales plerique omnes intelligunt naturam [illegible] contra ubi nullum aliud prodigium afferre possunt, quod sua non [illegible], sed portenta confirment, nisi unum [illegible] tam turpe importunissimae amentiae et stoliditatem.

Nunc ad ea argumenta progrediamur, quae universa mundi materiae dispositio suppeditat, quaeque licet ex iis[illegible] deinde ex initiis ducantur unde superiora habent tamen aliquid magis populare, atque servicium ingenii etiam opportunum. In quo utinam mihi esset concessum ut uno veluti conspectu vobis ante oculos ponerem auditores universam [illegible] tot tantarumque rerum quae terrarum caelorumque ambitu continentur, earumque cum numerum tum magnitudinem, cum varietatem incredibilem tum admirabilem ordinem, artemque plane divinam quae nedum in maximis sed in minutissimis [illegible] maxime [illegible] eminet, atque liceret exponere atque explicare liceret, mihi credite haec una species, nulla argumentatione adhibita, tantum valeret ad vestros animos commovendos, ut [illegible] videretis quemquam aut adeo vecordem et stolidum, aut ita ingratum impiumque existere, qui tantae rerum ac tam [illegible] molitionis auctorem [illegible] causam, [illegible] infinitae sapientiae potestatisque [illegible] esse existimaret. [illegible] neque [illegible] tanto mihi tempore neque temporis angustia [illegible] copia, quae [illegible] copiosissime sunt ea de re scripta, illa me in hanc [illegible] trahere retrahatur. Cumque vos metipsi videatis non solum in terris [illegible] sed etiam in hoc rerum admirabilium quasi theatro posita spectare ac perspicere, [illegible] ac nemo est qui in [illegible] partem [illegible] non et in immensitate caelorum et [illegible] astrorum conversionibus, et in [illegible] pulcherrima [illegible] ac temporum vicissitudine, tum in stirpium atque [illegible] ortu incremento, forma, varietate, usu, tum in animantium procreatione, multitudine, conformatione motu, sensu, [illegible] autem in humano vel corpore vel animo, infinita omnique humana cogitatione et consilio superiora miracula sit inventurus, idcirco hanc rem totam vestris ingeniis studiisque permittam. Ipse autem id unum [illegible] quod nemo unquam negare ausus est, in rerum universitate summam rationem, providentiam [illegible] et consilium [illegible], [illegible] vel ratione [illegible] quamquam [illegible] quantum [illegible] valent [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible], adversarios multos ac pertinaciam non parum et subtilitatis et contentionis est habitura.

Quid igitur ait Democritus, quid Epicurus? Scilicet fortuita atomorum concursione omnia [illegible] quae [illegible], quae admiramur, quae quanto consilio constructa et parata sint nullo consilio [illegible] possumus. Non jam quaero unde istae atomi extiterint [illegible] de re [illegible], illud quaero unde iste atomorum motus oriatur? Ex earum, inquit, natura; ego autem rursus percontor, quid sit, quae vis, qui [illegible] istis atomis omnia explicari [illegible], in qua causa [illegible] causa assignanda ita haeretis ut nihil praeter inanem naturae vocem afferre possitis, quod quale sit omnino [illegible] sit intelligi.

possit intelligi. Et tamen obscuritatem nobis objicere audetis. Dicite porro utrum certus et ratus est iste motus an vagus utrum ad unum locum corpuscula ista feruntur, an pro libidine huc illuc cursitant? si unus motus eisdem legibus, vestra tota species ut sublata: etenim per unum motum nonnisi ad unum una effici potest adhæsionis species, tu autem illas vis esse innumeras ex omni æternitate: si enim una duntaxat fuisset facta intelligis Democrite, nunquam hanc cultoram rerum pulchritudinem et varietatem. Deinde illud quoque palmare quod cum par sit omnium athomorum motus, non fiebit nunquam [illegible] ut una alteram attingat. Vidit hoc incommodum Epicurus ut ostat [illegible] se fingere, atque attulit rem commentitiam declinare dixit athomum perpaulum ita effici complexiones, et copulationes et adhæsiones athomorum inter se, ex quo efficeretur mundus. [illegible] [illegible] avit hoc pacto idem Cicero: quæ res cum tota ficta sit pueriliter, tum ne efficit quidem quod vult. Nam et ipsa declinatio ad libidinem fingitur, ait enim declinare athomum sine causa quo nihil turpius [illegible] motum naturalem omnium ponderum, ut ipse constituit, e regione inferiorem locum [illegible] sine causa eripuit athomis, nec tamen id, cujus causa hæc finxerat assecutus est; nam si omnes athomi declinabunt, nullæ unquam cohærescent, sin aliæ declinabunt aliæ suo nutu rectæ ferentur, primum erit hoc quasi provincias athomis dare quæ recte, quæ oblique ferantur. Deinde eadem illa athomorum in quo etiam Democritus [illegible], turbulenta concursio, hunc mundi ornatum efficere non poterit. [illegible] [illegible], cujus quidam reprehensioni aliud argumentum adjungi potest aeque validum. Cum enim Democritus atque Epicurus nihil cogitarent de Antipodis, ambo statuerunt istas athomos ferri deorsum, quorum hic dicebat declinare paululum, deorsum autem ita numerabant, ut vulgus solet, pro omni loco qui nobis inferior sit. Nunc autem multo magis commentum illud explosum est, postquam non solum ratione, verum etiam experientia ac conspectu, ex altera parte mundi, sive adversos nos ferri corpora, ex quo fit [illegible] in infinito illo inani ante cohæsionem [illegible] athomi, propter hanc naturalem vim ponderum obviam sibi versus terræ centrum cuicumque venire debuisse, atque ad eum locum, qui medius in terra est, repente consistere aliam super alii conservatam atque ad perpendiculum, itaque efficere potius repugnasse hunc mundi ornatum, atque hanc admirabilem ordinem rerum et varietatem. Cum omnis ille motus corpusculorum, cum non solum ad libidinem fictus sit verum etiam contra naturam ponderum, contraque experientiam, inter somnia amandandus est a Philosophia.

Restat ergo ut melius non esse certum et ratum motum athomorum, sed easdem huc illuc perferri et volitare fortuito. Huc denique confugisse videntur Athei novi cum in superiora constitutione ubi pedem figerent non haberent. [illegible] in tantam ne non solum tui, verum etiam sui ipsorum obliviscuntur summi homines, ut ineptissima quæque et fingere et approbare parati sint, ne hanc summam majestatem colere ac diligere cogantur? Quid enim tam monstri simile, quam iste motus athomorum temere errantium? quibus si ea inesset natura, [illegible] ea vis, ut necessario moverentur ipsæ per se, quamquam, ut ante diximus hæc quoque res cum causa careat, tota est commentitia ac ridicula; [illegible] si concederetur ejusmodi necessitas, quis non intelligit hanc unam ultro ac constantem esse oportere? Quod si ea est Physicorum lex, ut a notis ad ignota progrediamur, num vel una res inveniri in Universitate potest, quæ

motum [illegible]

motu illud habeat multiplicem atque instabilem; non contra omnia certum locum petere videmus? Qui fieret porro ut ejusmodi licentiae athomorum nullum usquam extaret vestigium? nisi vero quod innatum est ac naturale, idem amitti nunquam potest. Verum cur nunc demum constanter fieri didicerint quid antequam adhaeserint, olim omnes temere errabant, an alii certum erat motus, alii vero exleges erant et vagi? Si omnes ferebantur similiter nullo consilio, cur nunc denique ne unum quidem corpus temere fertur? cur omnia ad unum contendunt centrum? Deinde quonam modo res nulla ratione utentes, tanta cum ratione potuerunt Mundum efficere? Cui quaeso prudentiae consilii, ordinis auctor esse potest, casus, fortuna, temeritas? nimirum inquiunt. nam inter infinitas conjunctiones athomorum, quae tota aeternitate factae sunt, etiam illa necessario continebatur, quam nunc cernimus, infinitas enim omnia complectitur. Et se intelligunt, et magnifice circumspiciunt, hac denique responsione se se putant ea similia eludere, quae afferantur a nostris, ut domus, aut urbis, aut pictae tabulae, aut poematis, quarum rerum nulla cum necesse sit effectus stultissimi sit iudicare casu fieri potuisse mundum, qui rebus omnibus humana industria comparatis tanto antecellat. Isti enim negant aliquid in his collectionibus esse simile propterea quod infinitatem quanti temporis ipsi constituunt in quo omnis effici debuerit conversionis varietas. Ergo et tempus aliquod fuisse necesse est, cum sine architectis orirentur domus urbes, etiam multo magis sine artificibus pictae tabulae aut statuae, quae nihilo illis Apellis aut Phidiae concederent. atque in illa aggressione infinita multitudine orationes etiam extiterint et poemata, tum haec quae admirantes legimus, Ciceronis, Demosthenis, Homeri tum alia etiam potiora: postremo quoniam infinitas omnia continet, tempus etiam fuisse oportet, in quo ita copularentur corpuscula, ut et signa et libri et horologii ex agris effoderentur, penderent etiam ex arboribus instar pomorum et frondium. O felicem illam aetatem ac vere auream [illegible] ex agris et nemoribus a bobus, naves plena librorum pulcherrimorum, aut instar segetum collectorum, aut fimum more decorporum domum a rusticis comportabantur. Restat etiam ut illud dicam pro bibliothecariis, ovas aut asinos eligi consuevisse: erit enim etiam ista ~~concopio~~ cursio et copulatio athomorum, praesertim cum ejusmodi nostra saepe etiam aetate praeficiantur Bibliothecis. Quae quidem non cachinnos movere deberent, sed lacrymas: quis enim miserandius quam humana ingenia extitisse quae ne unam naturam crederent optimam atque perfectam, quae res quoniam ab omnibus semper est credita maxime credibilis est habenda, tam absurdis deliriis deliramentis, Item habuisse? Non desunt qui philosophi nomine glorientur, qui eae portenta adeo approbent, ut in iis quasi in firmissimo munimento totam constituant vivendi tranquillitatem. Quare sane nihil suscipiamus molestiae ut hujus fictionis vanitatem et absurditatem penitus consideremus. Cur igitur infinitas athomorum conversiones tota aeternitate [illegible] perspicue [illegible], ut etiam quorum athomorum motus fuerint, pectus tamen esse [illegible] non [illegible] aut se con-loca ferantur itaque ubi se primum attigerint, ultra progredi non potuerunt, aut unam quidem habebunt directionem ad nullum ait propositum terminum, itaque primum se se omnino abjungere non potuerunt, atque et etiam maxime id prnonnisi uno

nonnisi unam efficiant copulationem. Quare ut istam infinitatem tuearis, omnino tibi necesse est singulis athomis multiplicem assignare vim motus. Quo quid magis fatuum dici, aut cogitari potest! Quo enim exemplo qua periclitatione comperisti dissimilem naturam motus in corporibus? nisi vero Epicurum iure irridemus, qui unam adiunxit declinationem athomis, te autem audiemus, qui infinitas. itaque non solum aliae alio modo ferri debuerunt, ut infinitae concursiones fiant, verum aeque prorsus ante retro, sursum deorsumque, dextra et laeva instar manipulorum militum, atque acierum, ac tum gradiuntur, tum currunt modo volitant, ac festivo sane spectaculo omne genus agant saltationum et chorearum. quibus quidem erat aliquando, erat tempus quietis, concedi aequum est, praesertim tot circuitionibus fessis, et fatigatis: et adhuc doles te non a nobis, sed a Deo ipso vocari in libris amentem, et fatuum, a quo ea defendantur portenta, quae nulli aegrotorum, aut furiosorum in mentem venerint! Nam per Deum immortalem, quid ad haec responsurus es, utrum hanc multiplicitatem motionum minime tibi necessariam esse? at qui tandem ex simplici et recto motu tanta poterit concursionum dissimilitudo conflari et varietas? an igitur alias dices uno modo moveri, alias alio, ut tamen suus singulis athomis motus perpetuo constet? cur, si ita est, non eandem quoque in tanta varietate corporum motuum naturam nunc deprehendimus? Deinde postquam aliae aliis, quae alio ferantur complexae fuerint, aut vim utriusque partis quae concurrerint parem vis, itaque consistunt omnes; aut imparem, sicque illae vincent, quae plus valent neque eae quae victae sunt sese commovere amplius poterunt. Nisi forte, quemadmodum in exercitum, sic in concursione athomorum et pugna, novas copias perpetuo submitti putas, ut in acie militum, ita hic corpusculorum errantium, quae cadentibus subsidio sint. quae tamen numquam efficient, ut certamen semper instauretur, nisi sint infinitae, quod tibi fingere non est integrum, ne totam impleant inanitatem. Quamobrem postquam pars fortiorum superior fuerit, aliae victae cedent, trahentur, quasi in triumphum catenatae. Victorum igitur illud unum perfugium superest, ut victarum vires renoventur, quo novos motus, et quasi bella ciere possint. Oh rem ridiculam dignamque cachinno vel Catoniano, ut athomus eadem modo victa sit, modo victrix, aegrotet aliquando, tum convalescat: restat etiam ut his, quasi militibus vulneratis assignes medicos, quo sese possint ad novas concursiones comparare. Oh vere admirabiles perturbationes et confusiones non athomorum, quae nullae esse possunt, sed ingeniorum et hominum ob eam sapientiam a qua conciti sunt aberrantium, in quos propterea illud Davidicum conferas erraverunt, et moti sunt sicut ebrius, et omnis sapientia eorum devorata est. Et adhuc istius infinitatis mentionem facere audebunt, quae cum tot absurda, pugnantia, ridicula, incredibilia continet, tum talis est, ut nihilo plus eos adiuvet, quam si omnino excogitata non fuisset. Si enim tanta licentia sit in isto athomorum regno ut singulis pro libidine vagari liceat, quis non intelligat, cum earum numerum definitum esse oporteat, in aeterno illo tempore alias ab aliis aliquando discedere debuisse, et infinitis illis spatiis dispersas vagari, neque sese iam vel opificis, vel numinis revocare potuerint, neque enim verisimile est ita sociatas esse cupidas, ut non multae etiam solitudine delectentur, studeant etiam aliquae quaedam itinera facere praesertim in tanta immensitate regionum, sicque segregatae a ceteris tranquille philosophari

Videre antiqui

Videre antiqui non pauci Democritianae fictionis inanitatem, cumque nihilominus in physica peritare vellent explere ausi sufficere pro causa rerum omnium necessitatem quandam naturalem, quod profecto amplexatus in primis est Lampsacenus Strato de quo Cic. l. IV Accademicarum quaestionum ita scribit. Lampsacenus Strato negat opera deorum se uti ad fabricandum Mundum. Quaecumque sint docet omnia effecta esse natura, nec ut ille qui asperis et levibus hamatis uncinatisque corporibus concreta haec esse dicat interiecto inani, somnia censet haec esse Democriti non docentis sed optantis, ipse autem singulas mundi partes persequens quidquid aut sit aut fiat, naturalibus fieri aut factum esse docet ponderibus et motibus. Quae constitutio videtur arrisisse Cottae apud Cic. l. III de Nat. Deor. qui respondens ad Balbi Stoici argumenta ex Mundi fabricatione inepta inquit: natura ista sunt Balbe, naturae non artificiose ambulantis ut ait Zeno, quod quidem quale sit iam videbimus, sed omnia cientis et agitantis motibus et mutationibus suis. Itaque illa mihi placebat oratio de convenientia consensuque naturae ..... illud non probabam quod negabas id accidere potuisse nisi ea uno divino spiritu continerentur. Quoniam igitur isti quoque putant Democritum somniare, cognoscamus quid ipsi vigilantes videant melius. Ac ille quidem inter multas ineptias illud etiam boni habuit quod causas antecedentes intellexit [illegible] oportere tantae concretioni rerum ineptam attulit, nihil ad rem; illud certe philosophi fuit aliquas requirere. Contra isti callidiores, ut sibi videntur, ne id quidem videre quod ille somniavit, seu quod pinguioris ingenii fuit, ipsam rerum effectionem, rerum sine causa affirmant inquiunt causam esse ipsam naturam. Qui cum dicunt perinde faciunt ac si quis, ubi de auctore rerum aut horologii esset quaestio, rideret quidem eum qui ea diceret facta esse casu, ipse autem responderet, ne facta quidem illa esse sed natura constare. Ut paucis rerum explicandarum rationem ac physico dignam, cum hac una voce expediant, quam neque alter, ac ne tu quidem quales sit intelligere possis. Quid enim est ista natura? ubi res ipsae effectae? isto modo igitur fiunt omnia quia fiunt. Minime inquiunt naturali est necessitate quadam atque in ponderibus ita atque motibus quasi vero nonnisi quoque causa quaerenda sit ponderum et motuum. Quid enim Epicuro et Democrito non ignoscis qui vim illam attribuerint athomis quae ad concretiones efficiendas accommodata videretur, eaque appellas somnia hominum non docentium sed optantium, tu vero te diligis et magnifice [illegible], cum quod illi in corpusculis segregatis, idem tu facias in concretis et cohaerentibus? non enim quaeritur utrum ista pondera quae cernimus. Illud quaerimus unde in res quas carent ex natura inquiunt. Nimirum igitur revolvimur eodem, neque naturam ex ponderibus ut ante pollicebare sed pondera ipsa ex natura repetis, h. e. ex cassa voce, somno atque inani. Quis enim causa est cur corpora sine ponderibus moveri nequeant, possunt autem corporibus inesse pondera sine causa? Igitur quod in physica a Cicerone existimatum est turpissimum quicquam fieri dicere sine causa, in eo sudabat et haec peccaret Stratonis constitutio atque Cottae. Profecto enim addenda esse causa debet Democrito ut naturali eadem vi suas athomos ferri dicat per inane intersectum. Neque iam erit cur Epicuri illa declinatio irrideatur ac ne mille quidem in [illegible] illi premunt, utraque enim in promptu erunt ad omnia illa verborum ratione, [illegible] ratione natura necessitas. Nihilominus inquiunt illa enim commentitia atque [illegible], haec autem nostra ex pensi ratione

periclitatione ducta, atque in ipsa rerum notatione posita: non quaero, inquam, quid videat, sed quid explicet, illiforte viri, provocatae videre barbarorum quorumdam, qui cum primum horarii machinationem inspexissent ac re-serata arcula interiores motus ac [illegible] vim omnesque eius operis, ut ita dicam, monstra, patefacta vidissent, tum demum quod Strato vester in hac causa fecit, negarent id sine opera hominis, alicuius ad fabricandum id opus, totum ad rem naturalibus fieri ponderibus atque motibus? Ita inquit si haec quoque aedificata cuncta [illegible], non confir-mata a natura cur tandem aedificata esse negas? an quia cum fierent efficerentur non interfuisti? Quid valet nisi ut quoniam negas te somniare, ego te delirare dicam et furere? quis enim non intelligit, isto modo, qui nunquam ullum opus vidisset cum arte efficeretur, sed apertis repente oculis domos urbes, signa, libros intueretur, eum quoque clamare debere nihil istorum opificis manu indiguisse, sed per se omnia sua natura constare?
Quod si ratio et consilium quod in rebus omnibus arte humana comparatis, non oculorum testimonium nos adducit ut ea fabricata esse credamus, propterea quod omnes compertum habent natura duce, materiam informem atque imperfectam nec formam illam pulcram et admirabilem adsciscere potuisse, cum tanto major prudentia, tantoque admirabilius artificium in mundo emineat, non hoc tandem efficere debebit, ut eum quoque conditum et fabricatum iudicemus? At enim, inquit idem Cotta, est in natura rerum quasi consensus, quam sympathian Graeci vocant, sed ea quo sua sponte major est eo minus divina ratione fieri existimanda est. In quo non videt, cum idem consensus et sympathia etiam in rebus appareat humana arte effectis, sine illud consequi, quo nihil absurdius est, ne haec quidem humana ratione fieri existimandum.
Illud quod tenent, Stratonem omnes mundi partes persecutum esse, ut propterea singulari connexione et [illegible] ordinem ex-tare [illegible] explicaret et ostenderet, nemini unquam dubium fuit, quin omnia sint, ut in sapientia legitur, constituta in pondere numero et mensura. Sed [illegible] et a Stratone [illegible], quanam a causa ita fierent omnia inter se cognata quaeque ergo esse naturam ac ponderum itaque tam admirabilis consensus et sympathiae. Quare cum [illegible], tum nos [illegible] ille fuit ineptus ac plumbeus, quod ne viderit [illegible] quaestio. Cum enim [illegible] an sine divina opera et vi potuerit esse mundus ortus, [illegible] omnes mundi partes optime esse dispositas, [illegible] quo magis [illegible] opus, hisce ea causa quod requirat. Itaque quod nemini Baco unquam in mentem venit, ut [illegible] nullus fuisse [illegible] horologii opificem pulcherrimam eius structuram explicandam susceperat fuit [illegible] mira videbantur. Sed Plutarchus multo gravioribus eundem nihilominus Democrito [illegible] una ratione et mente sublata e medio, rerum omnium gubernationem liberit caecam quandam [illegible] temeritatem et [illegible] necessitatem. Ita enim de eodem in lib. scribit adversus Coloten. Denique mundum ipsum animal negat esse Strato [illegible] naturam [illegible] temerariis fortunae impetus. [illegible] quod [illegible] omnia fieri defendere [illegible] quantum [illegible] errata atque somnia [illegible] eadem atomorum multiplicis et [illegible] motu posse [illegible] tenebantur, quod [illegible] et [illegible] necesse est [illegible] corpora ad

certum

-cetur quando ecce feruntur quaeque omnium sunt aliquando ex in infinitum? haec nullo modo respondere possunt cum experientia doceat corpora [illegible] terrestria centrum telluris petere, cetera quae praeterea non constat, ita propter analogiam [illegible] de reliquis quae extra terrae atmosphaeram sunt posita concludendum est certum locum singulis esse statutum et finem quo contendant omnia. quae cum ita sint [illegible] mihi vel vetita vel [illegible] quemadmodum nostra suum locum obtinue-runt [illegible], in eaque motus perennitate variantur quae cernimus. [illegible] enim nondum locum suum attigere? at et infinito tempore potius [illegible] et certum motui propositum terminum. an nova perpetuo incitant corpora quae propellant cetera: at ergo quamquam haec infinitas corporum non minus est ad [illegible] quam immensum [illegible], ne isto quidem modo quidquam profecit. terra enim aliud est centrum corporum caelestium, aliud terrestrium, [illegible] infinite tollis. nec unum est omnium punctum et centrum [illegible], quemadmodum non aliquando movendi finem faciant. motus enim extrimus non potest quae priora ad centrum convenere depellere. magis [illegible] compellere [illegible] omnia [illegible] crescere. restat ergo, ut eadem sui loci tandem perveniat, deorsum ascendant et convertantur, aliud in eadem [illegible] quod Epicurus athomis [illegible] in [illegible] loquens. [illegible] haec subita vis et impetus qua revellantur ex centro tam eadem materia cum contrariis [illegible] motus contraria etiam [illegible] vim [illegible] ac tam hanc plus valere, tam illam superiorem esse [illegible] [illegible] cum [illegible] experientia repugnantius [illegible] non intelligo [illegible] motus perseverantia necessario consequatur requirendum infinitum motum, [illegible] a Stratone [illegible] et quod in [illegible] machinationibus fieri necesse est, ut [illegible] retractione [illegible], aut contorsione [illegible] motus restituatur, [illegible] in universitate divina vi perpetuo praestet, ne impetu [illegible] omnia.

Atque his argumentis [illegible] refutatur esset ille in infinitum regressus quo putant se ea omnia posse eludere, quae ex necessitate [illegible] petuntur, ex [illegible] res omnes mutabiles effici oportuerit. [illegible] singularum effectionem [illegible], si statutum fuerit mundum ab omni aeternitate fuisse, propterea quod quaeque res aliam efficiat, eamque ab alia [illegible], hanc [illegible] ab alia quam unquam [illegible] ad primam pervenire. sic et arbores ex seminibus, quae semina ab arboribus, et animalia ex animalibus semper procreata esse eo modo quo nunc contingit. [illegible] funditus convulsa est. attamen alia [illegible] existimo, ne quid ad [illegible] et [illegible] confutationem defuisse videatur. Ac primum ut praeteream aeternitatem mundi cum omni fere humani generis narratione et litterarum antiquissimarum monumentis, tum praecipue [illegible] repugnare; vel illud et maxime istius opinionis [illegible], quod quae res in omni argumentatione existimatur turpissima, [illegible] pro principio, ex [illegible] ponunt. Quicumque enim [illegible] regressus in infinitum nunquam ille concesserit, quod [illegible] non videt [illegible] absurdum. [illegible] non [illegible] cum interrogatur de [illegible] memoriis [illegible], cum fama a nemine initio [illegible], et [illegible] ab alio accepisse, quin aliquis fuerit [illegible] et [illegible]

caput et toni? Quid quod ne isto quidem modo effugere possunt rationem a rerum mundanarum artificio depromptam? Quemadmodum enim si fingeretur alicuius praestantissimi poematis infinitas editiones esse renovatas, non minus aliquo auctore opus esset, a quo poema ipsum fuerit concinnatum; propterea quod Typographorum aut Librariorum opera ad idem reddendum, aut describendum apta, ad conficiendum vero minime idonea intelligitur: ... ejusque operis egregium artificium alius requirat aliquem constituere qui eo ingenio ac peritia esset praeditus, quae ad inventionis, dispositionis, ac sententiarum et verborum pulchritudinem necessaria est; quamque tamen Librariorum imperitorum manus afferre non potest: sic tametsi fingatur, quod penitus inverisimile est, series aeterna et infinita causarum; nihilominus, cum satis constet nullam ex hisce causis ea vi et cognitione pollere, quae ad admirabilem efficiendam dispositionem requiritur, jam omnino opus erit alia causa absoluta et perfecta, a qua praeclara singularum rerum molitio veniat. Quare conjicias te licet in spatium illud immensum saeculorum, refugias in aetates, ab omni non modo memoria verum etiam cogitatione remotissimas; finge, si, nusquam primum v. g. hominem inveniri posse, a quo ceteri sint orti, sed alios semper ex aliis esse progenitos, usque tibi arbitratus alicubi itaque interrogabit: unde quaeso tibi homo nec tantum, verum reliquis ceteris, tum humano corpori accessit, tamque insigne artificium? ab alio, inquies, homine; vide ne fugeres: non enim id rogo, unde hoc praeclarum opus quale est propagatum fuerit, illud quaero quemadmodum tale extiterit istud corpus, quis in ejus machinatione tantum artis et rationis expromserit. Nam parentes quidem gignere possunt homines, ceterum tute parce nosti a nemine considerationem in gignendo, quemadmodum nec a ceteris animalibus adhiberi, ut vere omnibus liceat dicere, quod illa nobilis ~~Mater~~ Machabaeorum mater ad suos, nescio quomodo in utero meo apparuistis, nec vestra ego membra compegi. Itaque ne ullus quidem hominum nisi dissecto corpore, ac visceribus patefactis, novit quaenam sit ejusdem informatio, quae res perinde valet in caeteris rebus.

Itaque fateri oportet, nomine istius infinitae generationum nihil te ad eas quidem rem, quae de quaerimus adjuvare; cum enim duo quaeri possint, tum aliquisne fuerit primus omnium parens, quod etiam ad ceteras aetates servet, tum unde singulae res tam excellentem formam acceperint, atque hoc non illud in praesenti quaeratur, ad id quod ad res est dicis aliquo cum seriem generationum infinitam ponis; ad alterum vero, quod rem maxime continet nihil affers praeter, cum in tanto rerum, aeternoque numero nullum constituas, nullum invenire possis, qui primus in fingendis tam praeclaris membris, et artibus usus fuerit judicio et arte admirabili.

Nunc ad Sinarum Atheismum veniamus, quem idcirco postremo loco reservavi, quod ejus refutationem putat Baelius difficilem. Is enim Spinozam putavit fuisse formidabiliorem, ... constitutione repugnaret ... ... , quae apud Sinas viget opinantes mundum animis esse plenum ... consilio ... et ... fuerit minores, eas autem mentes ... aeternas, ... quasi una principes quae regantur omnes, ne illa ... ... proposita mox ... ... est ... ... aeternis in ... generant indépendans les uns des autres. Ob formidabilem disciplinam, quam qui pertimuerit absurdis fatetur [illegible] nihil [illegible] rem attentius consideravi, non solum nihil in ea reperio quod timeamus, verum multa etiam pene absurdiora quam in superioribus. Chi enim [illegible] vitat [illegible] qui hoc aut casu aut nulla causa effecta ... sunt neque [illegible] potentia, [illegible] quae vulgo [illegible] [illegible] qui vult vitare [illegible] [illegible] et isti et majores qui [illegible] veritate despiciunt. [illegible] enim illa omitto quae ceteris sunt communia, [illegible] mentium natura [illegible] sit, non minus easdem infinita causa egere [illegible] et [illegible] ut tam apte [illegible] atque ut [illegible] illud [illegible] quod Baileo [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible] aeterna [illegible] ab altero minime pen[illegible], imprimis [illegible] [illegible] quemadmodum materiam, quam [illegible] faciunt [illegible], mentium [illegible] quidem ut conformaretur non autem ut esset. [illegible] enim major [illegible] longa est [illegible] quid [illegible] inconstantius atque inepti, quam [illegible] formam mundi quae minus est, quam ... sine aliqua mente esse non posse; posse autem materiam quae est [illegible] ? [illegible] vero ex dispositione Universitatis, [illegible] causa intelligere possumus, an [illegible] autem [illegible] causa non [illegible] possumus. [illegible] quoque [illegible] intelligentias [illegible] esse [illegible], [illegible] esse potuit, aut si materiam [illegible] ex nihilo [illegible] eidem [illegible] necesse est infinitas [illegible] finitum est [illegible] constat nihil ex nihilo posse effici, quod [illegible] infinita potestate cogitare possumus quale sit. [illegible] ex nihilo [illegible] valeat efficere [illegible] est, [illegible] non egere quo id conformet atque [illegible]: isti autem volunt illas intelligentias [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] minime. Ad haec aut istae mentes simplices sunt aut concretae [illegible] aut individuae aut dividuae [illegible] quod [illegible] constat [illegible] potest [illegible] singulae partes [illegible] natura [illegible] in [illegible] potestate et dissociari ab alteris: [illegible] autem volunt [illegible] esse [illegible] [illegible] animi humani unde sunt orti? [illegible] dixeris, atque a se [illegible], primum [illegible] [illegible] quam quod a se [illegible] [illegible] aeternam atque [illegible] esse [illegible]. [illegible] ingeniti sunt [illegible] habent [illegible], quam [illegible] habent, proprium et nulla re carent quam [illegible]: animi autem nostri [illegible] sunt. non igitur ingeniti. [illegible] nunc ex [illegible] principiis intelligentiis [illegible] [illegible] ex nihilo [illegible] infinitae [illegible] [illegible] quidem, [illegible] ad [illegible] omnia ex nihilo efficere. [illegible] [illegible] animos nostros [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nam [illegible] intelligentiae [illegible] composita, et [illegible] a quibus aliquid [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] et mortales. Atque haec [illegible] Atheorum, quam [illegible] intentavit Baileus, quae non solum principiis omnibus oppugnatur, sed re ipsa etiam evertitur.

Sed aliquando nostra [illegible] dispute[illegible]

aliquando nostrę vela disputationi colligamus. Cum igitur, ut a me initio est propositum, ex iisdem deinde, ex quibus omnes ejusdem concludunt quę sunt certissima, atque eodem argumentandi ordine consequatur esse [necessario] Deum, cum id et communis naturę sensus, quem in hac vita ducem necessario sequimur, quique in hoc praecipue venimus vivere debet, non propter summam rei necessitatem, tum propter adversantium cupiditates, a quibus nunquam penitus evelli potuerit. Deinde cum ipsa et materię et dispositionis ratio ad inquisitionem ejus causę nos impellat, et stimulet, in qua tandem aliquando finem inquirendi faciamus. Cumque constitutiones omnes ab hominum malitia contra Deum excogitatę, et in hanc argumentationem impingant, quę in medio posita, ac in quibusque rebus ab ipsis adversariis usurpata est, qui rerum imperfectarum causam aliquam esse oportere fatentur, ut propterea in materia ac natura quę per se limitata, imperfecta, inersque et iners non sinitur quin et praecipue rationi et communi consuetudini, et simetipsis adversentur, simulque commenta propriis ut ita dicam telis conficiantur. Concluserim aliquando, Illustrissime, non quidem esse Deum, quę res multo ante unicuique nostrum certissima fuit, verum illud quod non omnes ejusque cogitant, eundem summo cum studio pietate ac religione esse colendum, metuendum, diligendum, ut auctorem et dominum et parentem omnium.

Cęterum recte existimare nihil esse praestantius eorum quę pro hac causa dici solent ac possent. Ego enim est denuo viam mihi constitueram quę cum certissima tum humanę etiam imbecillitati esset accomodata, quamque et divina oracula nobis praecipue indigitaverunt, neque ab ullo negari posset cum ea communis et argumentandi et ... recte reputaretur, quę iisdem fere principiis nititur. Hęc argumenta illa quidem quę ex ipsis abstrusissimis ... naturę visceribus, atque ex abditissimis disciplinarum fontibus peti consueverunt, cum habeant fere aliquid ... ut prius fateri cogant quam assentiri; tum nunquam interveniunt e fuga victoriam et profuerunt propter magnam subtilitatem nostrę conditioni, saepe plus periculosa esse, quam utilia. Contra ubi Athenam his rationes momenta ac gradum, quę in communi quodam sensu insitę sunt, ac deficiunt unumque tunc perducas ut aut etiam cętera invic... efficiat quę ipsi quoque necesse est convictum aut stare suo ... fateri debeat quod similiter consequitur; disputatio ... minus calumniis objecta est, eo est et brevior et efficacior. Cęterum illa ex recondita Metaphysica ... vel hanc unum habere possunt, ut si quę ejusdem generis opponantur obscura, et difficilia, hę contra similem ... generis ac par pari referas, ut ... eo loco gerenda res sit, e quo saltem magis certare videamur. Nunc ... nostrę quęstionis dispensionem nonnullos eosque ... actiones, proponendos arbitror. Primum ... hoc cogitare debemus quotquot Deum esse credimus, cum ejus cognitio omnibus insita atque ... necessaria sit, ... libri hubitus, qui eam ignorant accusatione omni carebant non minus facilem esse debere ratione huiusce ... quae inveniendę. — Etenim si nullam viam Deus ipse suppeditaret imperitis, qua contraria argumenta diluerent, inhaererent iisdem imprudenter assentiri, aut certe rem difficillimam putaverant, absque metaphysicę studio neminem ... dubitationem abjicere. Quare nunquam quidem adduci possim tanto speculationum abstractionumque apparatu, tantaque ingenii contentione opus esse, quo totius vitę fundamentum in Dei cognitione ... natura duce vel rudes vel rudes apta dependere possint esse mundi, quam cum necesse sit Pirrhonicorum schismata diluere, quod ne fieri quidem possunt; ita cum divinae litterae testentur Dei nihil usquam esse perviam nec tam perspicuam facile etiam defensio esse valeat. Secundo magna fiducia Deum precari oportet, ut quod in Evangelio est pollicitus, nobis in re tanta praestet, scilicet eam rationem, cui non possint adversarii omnino resistere inquit enim. Dabo vobis verbum cui non poterunt resistere omnes adversarii vestri. — Tertio cavere sedulo oportet ne studio quodam inhaerendi, eam animi naturalem rectitudinem amittamus, qua perturbata, non plus in hac, quam in aliis quidem quaestionibus minime evidentibus verum unquam inveniri potest. Quamquam enim, ut dixi, defensio in promptu debeat esse omnibus; tamen quemadmodum aliquo humore aut alia re offusis, oculis visus imminuitur, ita ne mentis quidem acies ad cernenda ea quae obversantur ullo modo est apta simul ac aliquo offusa fuerit. Itaque eandem aequitatem animi hic tenere oportet quam in rebus ceteris admonemus, de quibus vel Atheus nihil dubitare [illegible].

Nunc ad ipsum argumenta veniamus quae perspicuitatis gratia iterum divido alia enim contra argumentationem nostram afferri possunt alia sunt ex divinae naturae obscuritate deprompta. Primum autem, ne refutatione quidem digna solitos sophismata illa paene puerilia, quibus contendunt, ii Deus maxime sit, tamen propter summam rerum naturalium eiusque dissimilitudinem ex his quidem nullo pacto eundem intelligi posse. Qui enim ignorat ad aliud ex alio colligendum nullam naturae proportione ac similitudine requiri sed connexionem habere rationis. Quid tam dispares quam verba, et cogitationes, atque ex illis hae perspiciuntur. Quis autem non simile domus cum architecti idea! et tamen ipse qualis sit argumentamur ex opere. Quod enim dicunt utraque eo nomine convenire quod ficta sint, ne quid dicam quidem attendunt. neque enim ideam, aut cogitationem quamvis, ut fictae sunt ex iis ignis intelligimus, et effectis, sed illud quod ipsis est omnino dissimile. quocirca haec nec animo [illegible] proponamus. [illegible]

Dicunt igitur totam argumentationem nostram nihil valere; propterea quod nimium ex ea efficiatur. Si enim ex rebus effectis infinita causa adstruenda sit, cum in universitate mala ac bona reperiantur non minus ex malis summam quandam eius causae malitiam colligendam esse quam ex bonis bonitatem. Itaque aut cum Spinoza Deus quidam admittendus erit idem optimus ac pessimus, aut cum Manichaeis aliisque philosophis antiquioribus duo principia inter se contraria alterum bonum alterum malum; itaque reperiuntur porta contra argumentationem nostram claudiere, neque constare sibi. In quo nimium magnopere admonendos mihi adversarios existimo, argumentationem nostram quam oppugnant, aliis principiis innixam esse quae possunt nequeant commovere non enim nos in una argumentandi forma rationem assentiendi constituimus, sed in ipsa naturae voce, atque sensu quo quasi [illegible] quodam [illegible] conclusionem [illegible], aut [illegible] diiudicatur quod ne ipsi quidem aut Pirrhonii ullo modo recusare possunt. Quam multa enim sunt quae non minus recte concluduntur in speciem, quamquam falsa sint, ac ne per Sorites, quidem apparentia! quomodo autem recte intelligemus ea esse captiosa et fallacia, cum Dialecticae regulis? vide ne isto modo tot multitudinem omnem inopiis occasionem [illegible] Pirrhonio, cum argumenta [illegible] crederant nunquam invenisse agrestes, si quidem ad Dialecticam debeant confugere. Ita ne poterant quidem affirmari

esse mundi

esse Stoicorum. Procul dubio enim multa afferri possunt contra [illegible] tam delicata et contorta, ut indocto alteram nihilo a bonis syllogismis videantur differre. Quid Philosophi, qui quam multi in rebus haesitare et cespitare coguntur, [illegible] ac erroribus [illegible] ex omnium rerum explicatione [illegible]. [illegible] cum alia multa tum hoc [illegible] [illegible] sapientissime a natura comparatum est, ut quemadmodum pueri adducuntur pedagogis et magistri comitibus, qui quae illi propter aetatis infirmitatem discernere non possunt illi admoneant, [illegible], non ratione afferenda, cui percipiendae illi non sint idonei, sed simplici voce atque nutu, sic quasi a lateribus nostris nunquam discederent, atque in plurimis rebus [illegible] ac difficilibus, in quibus omnes nihilo praestamus pueris, vereque pueri sumus, non expectarent dum nos omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], expediremus quod nimis imbecillitatem communem superat, sed quasi praesto essent, et impulsu atque instinctu quodam ad alia approbanda, alia vero aspernenda moveret, ac flecteret. Et quamvis duarum similium [illegible] videantur, ipsa alteram commonefaceret alterum esse verum, alterum falsum, neque tamen, quod ad usum vitae minime necessarium erat, ac ne facultati quidem hominum [illegible] doceret cur, et quonam modo utrumque [illegible].

Hoc principio constituto nihil tam inane esse ostenditur quam ista Atheorum ratio dicentium, si ex bonis, quae videmus summa arguenda sit causae bonitas, ex malis quoque summam quandam eiusdem malitiam consectarium. Nihil minus. Illud enim, ut in prima praelectione copiosissime disputatum et recte conclusum, natura ipsa docet, quae non ideo a privato, sed ex communi hominum sensu intelligitur, et quique Deum esse optimum, in quem nullum possit malum cadere, ne Sceptici quidem negare potuerunt, ut ex Sexto Empirico antea [illegible], quare [illegible] quidem [illegible] quae in naturae persuasione posita est [illegible] nullo modo potest; tametsi altera esset obvium quae non contra Atheos sed contra Manichaeos [illegible] esset nobiscum, ac cum reliquis hominibus consentientes esse [illegible] [illegible] licet qui alterum malum [illegible].

[illegible] nihil [illegible] potest, quam illa Atheorum calumnia. [illegible] enim ex bonitate [illegible] summam Dei bonitatem arguamus, non solum naturae sensus, verum etiam ipsa ratio [illegible]. [illegible] autem unum Deum et optimum faciamus et pessimum, aut alterum, communis notio mali prohibet. Sive enim hoc aliquid revera sit, sive quaedam tantum boni carentia, neminem mortalium latet, malum semper [illegible] ea carentia boni [illegible]; neque enim dolor est [illegible] [illegible] et naturalis corporis constitutio perturbatur, ex quo perspicuum fit, neque qui omni bonorum copia affluat eundem dolere posse, quod non minus stulte quam impie affirmaverit Spinoza. Deum autem omnino malum esse non posse; si enim esset eiusmodi natura sua tali esset necessariis [illegible], itaque eius natura nihil boni exigeret, imo ab hoc abhorreret quammaxime; quippe ut [illegible] contrario, quare nec dolere possit maxime, [illegible] [illegible]. Quod si nuper quaerant, quemadmodum Deus qui [illegible] omni caret [illegible] potuerit efficere; iam [illegible] [illegible], ut et alia similes [illegible] refutabitur.

[illegible] [illegible] nos [illegible] agere, quod quaedam in nostro instituto obscura atque incredibilia occurrant [illegible] nobis quoque, postquam statuimus esse Deum tam multa affirmanda sint, quae penitus nequeunt explicari, aut intelligi. Primum enim si Mundus per se non fuerit ex nihilo igitur effectus est a Deo quod et [illegible] communi sensu antiquorum, et cum Physico illo principio pugnat ex nihilo nihil fieri. Quis autem intelligere aut cogitare possit, quemadmodum uno imperio, vel omnipotenti etiam ea parere potuerint quae essent nusquam? Pergunt etiam commemorando quae absurda videantur in ista natura aliquid creari quod eo tandem [illegible] continuerit, ut materiam et dolores, quarum rerum nulla cadit in Deo, ne possit quidem esse notio? Ad haec adjungunt mysteria illa atque imperscrutabilia de scientia Dei, de Trinitate aliaque ejusmodi quae Theologorum ingenia defatigant, quaeque defenduntur, ut ipsi existimant, nulla alia re quam involucris ac portentis verborum. Quae cum ita sint, iniquum esse eos qui [illegible] et [illegible] constitutioni [illegible] explicationem afferant cum ne nos quidem id assequamur in nostra.

antiquorum

Ego autem in primis interrogandos mihi arbitror adversarios, aequo sitne in tota ista argumentatione id propositum. Utrum enim volunt quaecumque obscura sint et recondita ea esse falsa aut dubia, an aliquid fatentur certum esse et exploratum quod tamen quale sit comprehendi non possit? Si illud dicerent, non non modo sacra verum omnem prope humanam cognitionem tollant e medio. Quid enim est in philosophia tam perspicuum quod simul ac [illegible] caperis non aliquid obscuri invenias? Quid difficilius explicatu quam naturam corporum extremaque principia, quae sive dividua, sive individua dicaris, undique tibi occurrunt pugnantia, quae nulla vi penitus extricare unquam valeas? Quid dicas de motu quo quamquam nihil certius constat tamen ut intelligas quale sit omnino non intelliges, velut ei Berkeley [illegible] sicut in Zenonis articulo. Quamquam quid opus est aliena inquirere, cum nos, qui intellectione utimur neque ipsam quidem sit intellectio ullo pacto intelligimus. Si enim animum ullam ideam esse speciem per se res intelligendi ac videre statueris quae tendens expedies quemadmodum in sua tibi [illegible], possit cernendo agere. Dicis quo is quod intuetur, cum clausis oculis rursum sibi plurimarum imagines exhibeat, aut cum eas cogitat quae tibi non adsunt amplius? Sin ideas rerum vice fungi dicere nequeas, nonne quae nuper a te contra creationem afferebantur, eadem argumenta contra illas valent? Sicut neque has rerum exhibitas, persimiles potes dicere, ne easdem tam diversas alias tam quadratas aut rotundas, tam tantas quantus est Mundus, quem in iis contemplamur. Infinita sunt his similia quae afferri possent, mihi autem satis est vos primis principio hoc constituisse, nullum esse tam parvum argumentationis genus, quo cum in summa etiam rerum obscuritate argumentari [illegible] ista, inquies et [illegible] ex utraque parte magna occurrit obscuritas utram tandem viam sibi dicas retinemus? Id si vero et certa regula est, neque enim si ea careremus ulla amplius erit perspicuitas, ullus assensus, approbatio ulla, quando, ut dixi, nihil est quod non quodammodo pertinet incertum videatur. Dicam igitur (quoniam hic non agimus contra Academicos et hi quoque videndum est quemadmodum suam probabilitatem retineant) res quae ex iisdem principiis manant ex quibus aliae concluduntur ac omnino certae et immutabiles, eas res quamvis ceteroqui implicatae sint atque obscurae, tamen eas pro certis habere oportet. Contra quae neque intelligi possunt, simul ex hoc modo concluduntur, ut falsae repudiandae sunt. Quemadmodum possint esse vere Antipodes, qui adversa nobis figant vestigia, neque ambulent capite deorsum verso vix cogitare esse qui possumus, id cum ex hominum narratione id accepimus, et cum tam multa alia fluxerit, quae verissima credimus, dicere esse Antipodes tam constanter affirmamus ut insanum esse

verum

[illegible] qui ex ea intelligendi difficultate rem ducant in controversiam adducere. Quod si fingatur, eandem hominum multitudinem alia testari, esse ista, quae magis etiam videantur incredibilia, tamen ea consensio adeo valeret, ut nihil fieri efficere posset obviantes. Num ergo dubium est utris in hac causa principia certa faveant, utris adversentur? Certissima argumentandi norma est analogia; ea una ducimus alios homines constare animo quem non videmus, atque innumera alia per eam statuimus. Utrum igitur ex analogia concludit, qui, postquam vidit res imperfectas alias causis egere, ita progreditur, ut etiam illas, quarum causam non potest cernere, tamen a causa effectas esse videat, atque aeternam et nulla alia indigeat, an qui in media via consistit, et rationes manus sibi, ut ita dicam, pungentem repente deserit? Non intelligo quemadmodum ea causa ex nihilo efficere potuerit ea omnia; atqui ex eodem principio, ex quo ceteri concludit, omnino sequitur, ex nihilo ea effecta esse debere. Aliud est quod certe assumptum ex arbitrio: nam ex ratione et prudentia, quae in domo aut in poemate elucet quisque colligit horum operum causam mente et ratione esse praeditam. nec tum quaeri, quemadmodum artifex tam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et illa efficeret, quae tu nunquam posses: cur ergo non idem facies, ut ex summa prudentia et consilio quod in mundi ordine admiraris eius opificem sapientissimum fuisse affirmes et ea conclusione conquiescas! quod si haec vel casui, quo nihil imprudentius est, vel necessitati cuidam naturali quae nihilo [illegible] est casu tribuere malueris, non illud testimonium conspicuitatem, verum etiam contra ea principia [illegible], quae in rebus similibus perpetuo [illegible] [illegible] - sic multa [illegible] in tota superiore oratione ostenderimus ex omnium communibus argumentandi regulis abhorrere qui tollunt Deum. ex [illegible] autem consequentes [illegible] qui defendunt, quid aliud est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quam omnem rem naturam, omnes assertiones evertere atque delere! Quod enim quemadmodum statuunt, fieri nec ne aliquid possit, antequam ascendamus esse factum, quid ex ea re consequatur non vident. quamquam enim rem esse, sive quam nevera esse natura prius est, cognitione tamen et usu est posterius. Si enim ex eo quod fieri possit quaestiones initia essent sumenda, nihil esset in quo finem faceremus philosophandi. Etenim in omni scientia ex cuius cognitione statuendum est an possit fieri, summa quaestio [illegible] [illegible] reperitur: ac ridiculus quidem sit popularis [illegible], [illegible] non [illegible] affirmet esse materiam [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] [illegible] naturam comprehenderit, et propterea in iis non contineantur repugnantia. Una igitur in proposito est via, ut quemadmodum [illegible] [illegible], quo intellecto statim etiam agnoscimus esse posse. nihil enim evidentius, quam illud [illegible]: a facto ad potentiam valet illatio. ad eamque rem eadem principii [illegible], ex quibus alia certe colligimus. velut in hac quaestione [illegible] Deus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] necessario concluseris aut esse [illegible] omnia esse facta, quisquis [illegible] ea [illegible] [illegible] id est vestri philosophi officium est et supra hominis facultatem. Nam quod opponunt, ex nihilo nihil fieri est illud quidem principium physicum sed non eiusmodi ut illa a nobis posita nulla sint; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nequeat, illud ita est limitandum, ut in eam tantum valeat quas secundas vocant: nam ne ad summam illam et primam [illegible] extenderetur ratio prohiberet quae quidquid initium cepit, imperfectum sit summa [illegible] infinita perfectaque causa omni carere. Ut enim idem quoque principium veritatis [illegible]. quasi vero non multa sint quae quamquam in medio posita tamen [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

tamen multi animadversionem effugiunt, quam incidebant esse Antipodes, plurimi ne cogitarunt quidem tan... ...tum ut soli motus et motio terrae, quod plane comprobarant. Quid vero multi e veterum Philosophis, iisque illustres creationis notitiam habuere? Quid enim nulli ne ii sunt, quos refellerat Empedocles teste Plutarcho in Adversus Coloten, quippe propugnarent effectionem rerum a nihilo? Quid nonne Aristoteles de Zenone Xenophane et Gorgia agens ...ap. I perhibet eos Philosophos credidisse quidquid usque sit, id ex nihilo divinitus fuisse conditum? nisi vero nullo ac non etiam multorum instar existimemus Platonem de quo egregie quid scribat Hierocles in libro de Providentia et Fato, cujus epilogum nobis reliquit Photius. Inquit enim: ex Platonis sententia supponit haec disputatio Deum esse velut universi simul visibilis et invisibilis hujus molitionis opificem, quem ex nulla re subjecta vult a suo Artifice inductum, ut ex illa sufficeret voluntas, quo rerum natura subsisteret. Quod tradit ipse Plato in Timaeo docens, mundum idcirco genitum quia corporeum, quae ratio cum in omni materia valeat, illam etiam necessario genitam existimavit. Accedit antiquus auctor operis de secretiore parte divinae sapientiae secundum Egyptios, olim Aristoteli attributi, cujus haec sunt verba: Deus causarum omnium Auctor est, utpote qui eas ex nihilo procreaverit.... Deus igitur omnibus causis hoc praestat ut et sint etiam ne alios procreent, tantumque in procreando hoc differunt quod ipse divinus causae Auctor est sine ulla materia interjecta. Quid de Proclo dicam, qui in institutionibus Theologicis cap LXXII ita scribit: materia cum sit subjectum omnium ex omnium causa prodiit quod in mysteriis confirmat Jamblicus. nam quantopere de hac re disputaretur in Scholis Philosophorum ostendit Seneca — — —

Puta utile existimas ista cognoscere ..... quantum Deus possit; materiam ipse sibi formet, an data utatur. utrum idea prior sit, an materia idea. Sed ex nullo melius id intelligere possumus quam ex Lucretio. .. lib. I de Rerum Natura plurimis, sed plane puerilibus argumentis conatur docere, ne Deum quidem posse quidquam efficere ex nihilo, in cujus maxime consensit opinionem; cujus autem ... ... ex eadem ...: ‡

Principium hinc, cujus nobis exordia sumet
Nullam rem e nihilo fieri divinitus unquam
Quippe ita formido mortales continet omnes,
Quod multa in terris fieri caeloq. tuentur,
Quorum operum causas nulla ratione videre
Possunt, ac fieri divino numine rentur
Quas ob res ubi viderimus nil posse creari
De nihilo, tum quod sequimur iam rectius inde Perspiciemus.

Qui bene si paululum consideratur, nemo non intelliget creationis notitiam ad plures iam tum pertinuisse, quam vulgus existimat. Lucretius enim praemonet ea opinione esse formidinem omnium mortalium comprimendam aggredi. quaenam autem? quod operum causas non videant, ac fieri divino numine rentur. quonam autem pacto? nempe ex nihilo. Quae hujusmodi enim effectione sit, ... propterea profitetur, patefacturum causas, ex quibus cuncta fiant quarum generatione homines putarent fieri ex nihilo. At eo rei tam obscurae cognitio semper fuit in omnium animis impressa a natura. Quod si Philosophi non pauci eam everterint, idcirco evenit, quod hanc rem quemadmodum alias exquisiverunt praepostere. Cum enim ex quibus principiis concluserant esse Deum, quod res imperfectae tam praeclare disponi non potuerint sponte, simul oportebat colligere etiam earum materiam, multoque magis quam formam omnipotenti causae tribuisse. Illi summa rei obscuritate commoti coeperunt indagare num id fieri potuerit neque viderunt, si ista via erat ingrediendum, non solum effectiones e nihilo verum omnia prope, quae certa sunt, esse neganda, quod comprehendi non possint. Omnino ad absolutam tantae rei definitionem bina mihi postremo notanda sunt, quae si prae oculis semper habuerint, captiosas Atheorum rationes evitabunt facillime. Primum autem cum duplex genus sit principiorum ex quibus argumentamur, unum alterum quia ad persuadendas existentias pertinent moralia appellamus, alterum vero quae ad mentem, ut loquuntur, possibilitatem spectant, quaeque idcirco metaphysica haec et transnaturalia dicuntur, priora ea esse quibus nos in hac demonstratione usi sumus. Secundo ubi utrumque genus in contentionem veniat, moralia Metaphysicis esse anteponenda. Quamquam enim haec, si per se spectantur, videantur firmiora, tamen cum ex rerum essentia, quae humanae menti inexplorata est, ducantur, ex moralibus in quibus natura maxime valet, interpretanda sunt. Sic, ut superiori exemplo utar, cum ex principio morali, videlicet ex constanti hominum testimonio compertum sit esse Antipodas, quaecumque ex Metaphysica afferuntur ad docendas eas esse non posse, falsa ducenda sunt, tametsi etiam viderentur inextricabilia, atque una adhibenda erat defensio, Antipodas, quoniam sunt, et esse posse. Si autem metaphysica conveniunt ultro cum moralibus, tum negligenda non sunt, quippe a natura esse confirmata, quod et nos in Atheis confutandis praestitimus, ut utraque coniungeremus. Tertio ubi plura moralia principia inter se contraria videantur, ita demum concilianda sunt invicem, ut singularia et vi severius et ordo, quae singulis facile ad rem praesentem applicare possumus. Quoniam omnia imperfecta a suis causis oriuntur, ostendi etiam materiam ab alia causa non debuisse neque regressum in infinitum in illa re ab hominibus approbari, ita necessario esse causam perfectam, in qua tandem argumentatio desinat. Hae rationes ex more communi haustae sunt, neque tam declarant quid fieri possit quam quid factum sit. Tu mihi quid contra obiicis? scilicet non potuisse res fieri ex nihilo, male agi et praepostere, neque quicquam animus certi retinquis, si quid fieri possit quam quid factum sit mens quaerere. Non intelligo, inquis, quemadmodum Deus effecerit aut corpus aut dolorem quibus rerum nihil eius naturae habet simile: atqui illud intelligis, ita esse factum; cetera non modo tibi incredibilia videri non debent, verum ex ratione ipsa, quae te ad omnipotentem causam adducit, hoc addiscis quoniam omnipotens et infinita sit, plurima debere posse efficere quae finita mens atque imbecilla non possit capere. Ceterum eo minus tibi id fidem abnuere ignoscendum est, quod multa vicissim quotidie fieri cernis ac tute experiris, quae non minus illis sunt in speciem repugnantia. Etenim quid habet idea rerum simile, per quam tamen eas ipsas intuemur? quid in mente Architecti est simile quod artifici adsimile? atqui cum idea quae neque generata est, nec rotunda atque universo centro, spatio vel ut melius dicam puncto circumscribitur eadem et rerum quadratarum, rotundarum et immanium exemplar.

Sed de iis hactenus

Cap. II

Qualis sit Deus

Sicut est in Philosophia utilius, nihil periculosius nihil quod ad divinas leges quae Ethica continentur exequendos incendat animos vehementius nihil simul quod eosdem in majus discrimen adducat, quam haec quaestio; neque ad ullam rem divinae litterae crebrius excitant, neque ab ulla deterrent gravius: etenim modo in divinae naturae cognitione collocant vitam beatam: haec est vita aeterna, ut cognoscant te solum verum Deum: modo fatalis cujusdam injectae caliginem minitantur iis, qui divinam majestatem propius speculari ausi fuerint: scrutator majestatis opprimetur a gloria. Ex quo intelligendum est medium quoddam iter esse tenendum, ut neque praestantissimae illius naturae cognitionem, quae mortalibus proposita est, per turpissimam negligentiam praetereamus, neque nostrae imbecillitatis obliti, ita ad lucem illam immensam appropinquemus, ut visum amittentes ac velut vestigio abrupti in gravissimos errores haereticorum, quod plerisque accidit, corruamus. Quorum utrumque vel Ethnicus homo Plutarchus vidit. Nam initio libri de Iside, et Osiride. maxime, inquit, cognitionem Deorum pro facultate humani ingenii consectantes, ab ipsis petamus nobis eam concedi, qua neque majus homo accipere, neque dignius dare munus homini potest Deus. Quanta vero hac in re temperantia ac pudore opus sit ostendit in tractatione de his qui sero a Numine puniuntur, ubi ostendit hoc fuisse praeceptum veterum Academicorum, ut in disserendo de divinis rebus maxima cautio et modestia adhiberetur: quorum utrumque ita praestabimus si cogitemus Deum et maxime notum esse, et maxime ignotum, quorum alterum comprobant testimonia librorum Paulli praesertim ad Rom. I docentis non modo Deum, sed sempiternam etiam ejus virtutem ac divinitatem ex rebus effectis intelligi, ac conspici: alterum vero confirmant reliqua loca, quibus Deum nec videri, nec percipi significatur. hinc idem propheta de se apud Isaiam: ego sum Deus absconditus. Licet autem multa impervia per Christianam fidem patefacta sint, nos tamen hanc mysteriorum partem ceteris Theologis permittentes, in his tantum versabimur, quae humana ratione deprehenduntur, hoc est, quae idem Deus afflatu quodam naturali universos mortales docet, Apostolo attestante de Philosophis naturalibus iisdem. quod notum est Dei manifestum est illis. Deus enim illis manifestavit. Cum autem hic communis afflatus, per quem Deus et se et ceteras manifestat, sit illa naturae vox, sensusque ille congenitus, quem omnium consensionem ducem certissimum habemus, quique non tam arduis speculationibus neque iis quibus a nostra facultate abhorrentibus quam simplicissima quadam veri notatione excitatur; quoque non minus propter rerum intelligendarum difficultatem, ingeniorumque communem imbecillitatem ad naturales assensiones necessarius est, quam propterea illa divina motio ad Christianam fidem; in hoc instinctu tamquam in arce, quemadmodum ante fecimus, doctrinam nostram constituemus; hinc denique incredulos, hinc pertinaces revocabimus, ut, juxta testimonium Apostoli, voce testimonium perhibente conscientiae illorum intelligant intelligant se non posse a rebus tam compertis dissidere, quin una stare ipsi, et ab omni humanitate dissentiant. Primum autem universim statuam, quam perfecta sit Dei natura; quod quamquam ex superiori capite satis concludi posset, tamen hic nobis est pertractandum uberius: tum quænam præcipue ex hac infinita perfectione attributa consequantur ostendam.

Primo loco Deus est Optimus.

Ne autem repetam argumenta illa, quibus ita effectum est esse Deum, et simul consequenter eumdem esse perfectum, hic unum addam ea de re consensum tum Philosophorum, ac plane totius generis humani. Clarissime est ac rectissime dixit apud Tullium Stoicus Balbus II de Nat. Deorum: talem esse Deum certa ratione animi præsentimus, primum ut sit animans, deinde ut in omni natura nihil eo sit præstantius. ubi affert etiam Epicurum, qui etsi multa de Deo absurda et nefaria effutierit, tamen ultro sensit: esse Deum, quia necesse sit præstantem esse naturam, qua nihil sit melius. Neque minus recte ea de re senserunt Academici et Sceptici, quos supra allegavimus ex Empirico; atque eadem fuit perpetua existimatio generis humani, de qua infra commodiori loco agemus. Unde autem amabo hæc notitia, quæ præjudicata opinio, quod institutum eiusmodi esse potuit, ut homines rebus imperfectis videndis assueti, de Deo tantum hoc judicium haberent, ut nihil eo posset cogitari præstantius; atque ea res in omni quæstione poneretur, quasi principium, et anticipata notio, quæ probatione minime egeret? Quid autem fecit, quod qui nihil in Philosophia non commovere, quibus solemne erat contra omnia disputare, hoc tamen ultro semper confessi fuerint? nonne id ea natura, quæ nihil est, tot res, omnium et dociuri necesse est? Neque vero inficior a nonnullis pessime de Dei natura esse existimatum, cum diserte aut detraherent ea, quæ bonitati infinitæ essent propria, aut quæ cum ea repugnarent eidem attribuerent. Verum si ate eum quoque erroris causam perpenderimus, non modo hic naturæ sensus non labefactatur ea re, verum etiam confirmatur. Propterea enim isti illi opinati sunt, quod ea divinæ perfectioni convenire arbitrarentur, ut error quidem fuerit in indicando de attributis peculiaribus, semper autem inter omnes constiterit quæcumque essent præclara assignanda esse Deo. Negabat Epicurus Deum humana curare, propterea quod neque tantas occupationes eius majestate dignas crederet, neque cum eiusdem beatitate cohærere. Sic si legimus eius sectatoris Velleii disputationem apud Tullium primo de Nat. Deor. quæ sunt vera dicit aut falsa effutiat reperiemus ea omnia ex firma divinæ excellentiæ notione ab eo auctore esse ducta: negat a Deo Mundum ædificatum, id est ideirco negat, quod id a recta ratione commentique abhorrere censeat. crasse istud quidem ita agit, ut nunquam hanc laudem Deo ademptum, nisi existimaret absurdam: item negat, ne mentis Mundum esse Deum, quod tenebant Stoici, quia cum iuxta eorum, incredibili celeritate torqueatur mundus, in ea inquit, non video ubi nam mens constans, et vita beata possit insistere tum enumerat Mundi vitia, quodque eius partes aliæ habitabiles sint aliæ inhabitabiles quod aut rigeant nivibus, aut calore flagrant, hinc concludit, quæ si mundus est Deus, quoniam partes Mundi sunt, Dei membra partim ardentia, partim refrigerata dicenda sunt dem repellens Maximinum, qui aerem fecerat Deum. quasi, inquit, aer sine ulla forma Deus esse possit, cum praesertim Deum non modo aliqua sed pulcherrima specie esse deceat. Quod si Tullius reprehendit Anaxagoram recte docentem Deum esse mentem infinitam, simul ratus est cum Dei simplicitate et natura pugnare infinitatem. ait enim: in quo non vidit neque motum sensui conjunctum et continentem in infinito ullum esse posse, neque sensum omnino, quo non ipsa natura pulsa sentiret. Quod si Stoicorum aliud considerentur placita, eorum reperiemus errorum fontem, quod quamquam Deum statuerent esse optimum non recte intelligebant omnis perfectionis aut imperfectionis naturam. Volebant enim v.c. Deum esse rotundum, quod ea forma nulla esset pulchrior; eundem esse mundum quo nihil cogitari possit mundo melius, alia [illegible] similia errorum [illegible], que tamen documento sint semper illud mansisse firmum, etiam inconcussum, de quo litigaret nemo, Deum esse optimum, et vix quemquam alicujus nominis reperias, qui sciens imperfectionem aut vitiorum quid attribueret Deo. nisi vero aliquem putare volumus Sinensem literatorem, neque quem cuius Trigaltius De Christiana expeditione lib. I cap. X refert eam fuisse amentiam et furorem, ut cum fateretur ultro esse Deum Universi opificem, eundem nihilo se majorem faceret homo superbissimus. cum enim P. Matthaeus Riccius in disputatione ex eo quaesivisset, crederetne aliquid esse rerum principium et causam, annuisse illum, atque addidisse, hominem illi vi et magnitudine parem esse, se ne tantillo quidem concedere. cum autem rursus ex eo percunctatus esset an crederet ne se idem posse facere, quod ille fecisset, tum inverecunde respondisse, ut illi, si placeat, alium coelum terramque efficiam. Cum autem retorsisset Riccius, sibi satis futurum si vel ignem similem ad quem sedebant exemplo faceret, illum id se non expedivisse et dixisse, rem nimis exiguam a se postulari. Atque hi sunt primi literati, hi Philosophi, e quorum sententiis [illegible] quaerere, novorum [illegible] fabricatores. Neque minus contungendum fratribus est etiam [illegible] Alphonsum illum Neapolitanum Regem qui affirmare non dubitavit, si secum fuisse ut Deus melius Mundum efficeret si suo consilio usus esset [illegible] in Astronomia [illegible], nam [illegible] quidem [illegible]. Ceterum nulla re melius natura sentit de summa Dei perfectione [illegible] quod si ad quaedam eius praecipua attributa veniamus, multasque de ceteris praesertim Ethnicis falsas [illegible] opiniones refutemus. Prima autem de unitate Dei quaestio erit, nec tam ut rem comprobemus, [illegible] ab omnibus confirmatam qui Deum esse crediderunt, quam ut humani generis auctoritatem vindicemus quae prorsus Polytheismum [illegible] nos pervulgatum [illegible] videatur ...

Idem

Prop. II Deum proprie dictum unum esse, nec esse plures, plena hominum multitudo consensit semper.

Deum proprie dictum intelligo ex omnium antiquorum et recentiorum definitione ens [illegible] omnino perfectum, cui nihil neque detrahi possit neque addi, qui causa sit rerum omnium. In hac autem argumentatione eo utar ordine, ut primum communem Ethnicorum doctrinam afferam pro [illegible], deinde ut explicem quid fuerit Polytheismus, seu numerus Deorum, quo Idololatria continetur; postremo sigillatim dicam de iis qui duo principia rerum inter se contraria posuerunt. Quae ubi exposuero, tum demum duo ab adversariis [illegible] erunt

ut et ipsi

ut et ipsi testes contrarios adducant, singuli doceant si qui fuerint, qui plures proprie crediderint Deos huiusmodi tot fuisse, ut vere dici nequeat, maximam mortalium partem unum agnovisse.

Ordiamur a Philosophis, iisque senioribus. Pitagoras apud Justinum Martyrem in cohortatione ad graecos allegatus ita docuit: Deus quidem unus . . . principium omnium, unus in quo omnia, et omnium Pater, mens et animatio omnium. Xenophanes citatus a Clemente Alexandrino lib. V. Stromatum, eandem rem multis complexus est versibus, quorum paucos brevitatis gratia afferam e graeco conversos apud Cotvortium

Magne Pater Divum, cui nomina multa, sed unum
Omnipotens semper virtus; tu Jupiter auctor
Naturae, certa qui singula lege gubernas

Etiam Plato tam perspicue sententiam suam explicavit ut dubitare nemo possit. Nam et Deum Patrem et opificem omnium appellat, ut notat Plutarchus in quaestionibus Platonicis; tum unum dicit aeternum Deum, qui et caetera fecerit, et illos quos ipse appellat Deos. Atque in Epistola ad Dionysium monet, se cum unum dicit Deum serio agere, secus cum plures. Neque sui mentem dissimiles extitere Platonici, quorum constans sententia fuit unum esse Deum ut in mysteriis ostendit Jamblicus. Sic Alcinous de doctrina Platonica cap. IX: Principem Deum appellat, aeternum, infallibilem, perfectum, bonorum omnium auctorem. cap. XIII Deus qui universum condidit fecit deinde Deos et daemonia. Hierocles in carminibus Pitagoricis scribit Deos inferiores ab uno ortos, qui dici possit Deus Deorum. Plotinus quoque et caeteri negarunt nonnisi unum esse Deum. cap. autem noni libri Enneadis unum demonstrat principium infinita perfectione praeditum esse posse. Jamblicus de myst. Sect. VIII. cap. II unum ponit principium, qui sit Deus Deorum; Quibus accedit Porphirius apud Cyrillum lib. I in Julianum; nec non Proclus in Theologia Platonis, ubi Archidas summam statuit esse naturam quam omnes mentes colere debent, quaeque Deus omnium vim ac perfectionem una continet. Nam Aristoteles de Mundo lib. VII dicitur confirmat unum tantum esse Deum qui pluribus significatur nominibus. Eiusque in ea sententia fuerunt omnes antiqui Peripatetici ab Aristotele et Platone orti. Simplicius in Epictetum declarat unum esse summum Deum, qui causarum causa sit, et Deorum Deus. Antisthenes apud Tullium I de Nat. deor. Populares Deos multos, naturalem unum esse dixit. Neque aliter censere Pitagorei, quorum duos afferam Onatum et Philolaum. Ille lib. de Mundi opificio ita scribit: Deus est rerum omnium caput et fons immutabilis, nulli rei praeterquam sibi uni similis. Alter autem apud Stobaeum lib. I Neque unus mihi videtur esse Deus, verum unus quidem maximus ac summus et universum gubernans, alii etiam multi diversis praediti viribus. imperat autem omnibus, qui robore magnitudine ac virtute praestat. Plutarchus autem de Oraculorum defectu contra Stoicos agens qui plures negabant esse mundos; Quod si essent plures, ponendi essent Joves, inquit. Quae necessitas cogit multos esse Joves, si plures sint Mundi, quando singulis praeesse potest princeps Universi cum mente ac ratione, ejusmodi qualis est qui a nobis Dominus omnium ac Pater cognominatur? Caeterum vel ex hoc loco satis liquet nec longiore mora, qualis etiam fuerit toties nobilis Stoicorum Secta hoc decore per marmo, qui ita absurdum putarent plures esse Joves h.e. Deos opt. max. et eo principio

tanquam

... certo et indubitato averterentur, quo asseverent plures non esse mundos: hi enim, te teste, antea scripserant quaerunt quonam modo unus ubi una prove enim maneat, ac non plures Joves fiant, si plures sint Mundi. Ad Latinos vero laudare sufficiat Marcum Tullium qui in somnio Scipionis Coelorum Principem nominat, qui universum hunc Mundum regit. In Disput. autem Tusculanis Lib. I. eius naturam praeclare ita exponit: nec vero Deus ipse, qui intelligitur a nobis, alio modo intelligi potest, nisi mens soluta quaedam et libera, segregata ab omni concretione mortali, omnia sentiens et movens, ipsaque praedita motu sempiterno. Ex quibus testimoniis antequam ad sacra populorum veniamus quid principio efficiatur videndum est. Cum enim in superiore Libro ex communi Philosophorum Ethnicorum auctoritate planum fecerim Deum esse naturam quandam praestantissimam, qua nihil esse aut cogitari possit melius, eamque notionem ut anticipatam et a natura insitam, ut firmam et perspicuam a certis maxime contrariis in omni disputatione habitam fuisse, statim liquet, hos, qui nuper allati sunt, cum unum affirmaverint esse principium omnium, unum fabrum et hominum et deorum, illumque ceteros condidisse qui dii nominarentur, eosdem Minores in eius ditione positos, eique obtemperantes, ac veluti quosdam vicarios et administros in Mundi gubernatione, hinc inquam, constat numquam proprie, ac iuxta definitionem Dei quam tradebant, reliquos potuisse nominari Deos, cum quia Princeps Deus ceteris erat major et melior. Ac cum Cicero doceat Deum qui hoc tempore intelligeretur non alio modo intelligi posse, nisi mentem omnia sentientem et moventem, hinc fit, ut quoniam ceteri ab uno moveri solerent movente omnia, ne intelligi quidem poterint Dii.

Age dum cognoscamus etiam opinionem gentium imperitarum ac inprimis Graecorum et Romanorum, quarum nationum cultus ceteris videtur antecellere. Nullo autem modo id planius cognoscemus, quam si Poetarum testimonia afferemus, qui tum popularem sensum in carmina transferebant, tum ipsi populorum magistri habebantur. Quorum primus erit Orpheus ab Aristotele allegatus in lib. de Mundo Cap. VII, cuius versus e Graeco converso ante attulimus, ceteros nunc addo.

Jupiter est Terrae, Caeli et stellantis Olympi, Jupiter et mas est, atque idem Nympha perennis, Spiritus est cunctis, validusque est Jupiter ignis,
Jupiter est pelagi radix, est Luna Solque
Cunctorum rex est, princeps, et originis auctor
Namque sinu occultans dulces in luminis auras
Cuncta tulit, sacro versans sub pectore curas.

In quo miror Auctorem Historiae Philosophiae Ethnicae scripsisse horum versuum sententiam ita esse ambiguam, ut vel a Spinoza afferri possint, quod videantur significare Deum unum esse omnia, ac totum esse, quod numquam effudisset imprudens scriptor, si quo deinde habet Orpheus versus consideravisset, resolute enim eum regem esse cunctorum, et auctorem omnis originis, diserte canat Orpheus, qui non videt non alio modo eum scripsisse Jovem esse Lunam, Solem ac reliqua, nisi quod omnium efficiendorum ideam et vim in se contineat, quemadmodum

quemadmodum artifex apte dicitur mente complecti opus quod molitur; quod esse Poetæ sententiam extremi ostendunt versus, quibus prædicat Deum auctorem inter omnia postquam molitus fuerit in lucem cuncta tulisse, et edidisse

Ceterum, ne plura adducam, duobus contentus ero Principibus Poetarum: Græcorum quidem Homero, Latinorum autem Virgilio. Ille Iliad. V. facit Deos ita alloquentes Iovem.

Alii enim omnes, quotquot Dii sunt in Olympo Tibi obediunt et tibi subiecti sumus unusquisque.

Tum in VIII

Cognoscet deinde quanto sum Deorum potentissimus omnium

Neptunus in eodem

Non ego velim cum Jove Saturnio pugnare Quandoquidem nobis aliis longe potentior est.

In XII eiusdem Iliadis

Nos vero magni Dei pareamus voluntati,
Qui omnibus mortalibus et immortalibus imperat.

Sic ibidem appellatur rector Deorum omnium, ut omittam Aeschilum, Euripidem, Theogniden eandem doctrinam tuentium. Ex Latinis, Virgilius sæpe Iovem sæpe patrem omnipotentem hominum ac divum, Patrem ac regem utrique tremendum nominat velut Æneidos, I.

O qui res hominumque deumque
Æternis regis imperiis et fulmine terres

Lib. X O Pater o hominumque divumque æterna potestas

Neque secus Latini ceteri. Nam Plautus iuxta Populi consuetudinem loquens maxime: Qui est Imperator Divum atque hominum Jupiter. Et Horat. Odarum Lib. I. Od. XII

Quid prius dicam solitis Parentis Laudibus, qui res hominum ac Deorum,
Qui mare et terras variisque Mundum Temperat horis?
Unde nil majus generatur ipso
Nec viget quidquam simile aut secundum

Tum lib. III Ode IV

Qui terram inertem, qui mare temperat
Ventosum et Urbes, regnaque tristia
Divosque mortalesque turmas Imperio regit unus æquo.

Ovid. autem in Metamorphosis

Ille Pater rectorque Deum, cui dextra trisulcis Ignibus armata est, qui nutu concutit orbem.

Ceterum

Caeterum vel ex ipso Romanorum Religionis institutore Numa liquido apparet quam sinceram numinis notionem Rex ille pro inspexit. Nam ut Plutarchus in ejus vita testatur, et Varro apud Augustinum de Civit. Dei notaverat, nulla Dei simulacra fierent, quod negaret principium rerum sub sensus posse cadere: quod si adhuc mansisset inquit Varro castius Dii colerentur. Ac quam familiare esset Rom. Populo Deum appellare Opt. Maximum, ex orationibus [illegible] constat praesertim ex Tullio.

Caeterae Gentes cultu et humanitate caeterarum facile principes tum ex Philosophis, quorum doctrina imbuebantur tum ex Poetis, qui communes notiones secuti sunt, sententia de unius Dei principatu externa quae propter ipsam communem divinae naturae intelligentiam locum non relinquent opinioni [illegible] minorum; ac alias veniamus nationes. Primum autem Judaeos, Samaritanos, aliasque gentes finitimas, quarum ex sacris litteris cognoscitur pura religio, veluti carum in quibus [illegible] eius amici vixere, quod ea res constat omnibus praetermittam. De Aegyptiis narrat Plutarchus in Iside et Osiride fuisse apud eos Fanum, in quo ea inscriptio legeretur Ego sum quidquid fuit est et erit meumque peplum nemo adhuc mortalium detexit. Quo nihil magnificentius dici potest ad summam Dei naturam exprimendam quae verba illi Exodi loco respondent cum Deus se Mosi indicans ait: Ego sum qui sum; quem etiam iubet ita Aegypti Regem, cum sua mandata exponeret, affari qui est misit me ad te. Nam quod in ea descriptione addit, esse quidquid est aut fuerit, non Deum cum mundo confundebant, neque non eundem ignotum, occultumque dixissent. (Quid enim apertius mundo, atque notius omnibus?) sed significabant Deum res omnis vim mirabili quadam ratione continere quod simile est illi Joannis verbis in Evangelii initio: quod factum est, in ipso vita erat. Hunc Deum Aegyptii appellabant Amun, quod Graeci, Jovem productiori vocabulo Ammonem dicunt ex eodem Plutarcho, Amun autem Manethos Sebennyta dialectus eam vocem interpretabatur occultationem. Itaque de se ipso dicit apud [illegible] ego sum Deus absconditus.

Aliud est in Oriente florentissimum Persarum regnum de quibus etsi multa imperite cum magna eius gentis injuria tradita sint in hac re a priscis ac recentioribus [illegible] ob eam causam quod cum [illegible] [illegible] Persae alienis litteris ac vel ignorantia prodere et propterea [illegible] moribus [illegible] [illegible] potuerint; nuper tamen Thomas Hyde Britannus acerrimo judicio vir, qui diu in illo regno versatus, ex certis testibus ac [illegible] ex compendio legum Zoroastris, quod inscribitur Sad-der, alijsque ex Archivio quo Persique nunc utuntur eius gentis instituta [illegible] accuratissime, caeterorum patefecit errata et calumnias. Itaque Britanni Auctores Historiae Universalis, omni eruditione, ac judicio [illegible] cum [illegible] sententia [illegible] cap. XI [illegible] unius Dei, quem [illegible] omnipotentem, infinitum ubique praesentem credunt religiosissimi perpetuo cultores fuere, neque unquam [illegible] sunt simulacra ulla fieri, aut Universi creatorem angustiis templorum circumscriptum putari: itaque cum Xerxe Rege in Graeciam transgressi omnia everterent Deorum templa, non quo abhorrerent a religionibus, sed, quod simulacra omnia Deo indigna esse arbitrabantur ac cum a quodam principe inducta esset [illegible] superstitio, Regem eum aversati impietatis auctorem morte paene affecerunt. Illud semper tuentes unum esse Deum, quod [illegible] potenter [illegible] [illegible]. Hactenus Britanni Scriptores, qui etiam eam gentem vindicant ab idololatria, in cuius opinionem vulgo venit propter quod propria quoddam in Ignem, Solem, ac Lunam insigne obsequium. Docent enim ignem a Persis sanctum haberi, quod eum ducant signum aliquod divinae Sapientiae illustrius, itaque et Moisi in igne apparuisse, et toti Hebraeorum populo per noctes singulas in columna ignea visum in Eremo. Solem autem ibi in magna reverentia esse quasi quasi thronus divinae majestatis ~~tenetur~~ judicatur. Caeterum Persas nihil divinitatis putare hisce rebus inesse, ut alia omittam clare comprobant ea verba, quibus Sacerdotes apud ignem orantes populum ita praemonent: ~~[illegible]~~ cum ignis Zoroastro fuerit demonstratus ab Altissimo, quasi majestatis suae symbolum, fas est sanctum habere, omnique honore prosequi quae huic persimilia sunt, et Solem ac Lunam clarissimos divinitatis testes, atque ad infinitae Creatoris Sapientiae notionem in animis nostris excitandam aptissimos, atque absque superstitione praeceptum quod accepimus tueamur, Deoque gratias perpetuo agamus propter hujus elementi utilitatem.

Alia est vastissima Tibeti regio in Sinensis Regis ditione posita cui Magnus Lama praesidet; is est veluti Pontifex Maximus, in cujus templo magna antiquorum codicum vis asservatur. Paucis abhinc annis missus ad Lamam fuit a Sinensi Rege Legatus vir doctissimus cum litteris, quibus rogaret Lamam, ut ab eo Legato tabularium inspici, ac quae essent maxime luce digna volumina describi et in Sinensem linguam pateretur converti. Re impetrata, in manus venit ejus literati hominis, libellus ignoti auctoris quem tamen certis conjecturis Christo multo antiquiorem ducunt, in quo continentur Morales institutiones certe praeclarae. Is libellus primum in Sinensem deinde in Britannicam linguam a Britanno quodam apud Sinas diversante translatus, nunc etiam Italice [illegible]. In eo disertissime praecipitur unius Dei cultus veri omnium creatoris, caveturque ne ulla religionis species [illegible] Lunae, caeterisque creatis rebus adhibeatur.

Nunc de religione agam et in ea reperiemus harmoniam admirabilem. Procopius de Bello Gotico cap. 14 affirmat Sclavenos et Antios unum Deum coluisse. Deinde, ut omittam in volumine Gallice inscripto Jesu Chisanties, tum ex epistolis D. Francisci Xaverii apud Historicum Philosophiae Ethnicae maxima Indorum pars tenet esse unum Deum infinitum, perfectum, sempiternum. De caeteris autem Diis, qui ibi coluntur ita scribit P. Bouchet: la plus part des Indiens assurent que ce grand nombre des divinités qu'ils adorent, ne sont que des Dieux subalternes, et soumis ont souverain etre qui est egalement le Seigneur des Dieux, et des hommes. Guzaratenses, teste Mandeslo, credunt unum esse Deum creatorem, et conservatorem Universi. Japonenses itidem unum Deum cui plures Dii subsint summum omnium auctorem. Formosae insulae populi tenent unum esse Deum sanctissimum quem appellant Ishia. Tartari ut fert Joannes de Plano Carpini affirmant unum Deum visibilium ac invisibilium omnium conditorem. De Indis occidentalibus ita Ramusius Tomo III. Appresso questi Popoli è opinione, che sia un primo Motore onnipotente eterno, et invisibile, qual ha due nomi Jochauna, e Guamaonocon. Boterus Relazioni universali Parte IV libro I. inquit: vegnendo a Popoli alquanto più civili e politi, Cuscani e gli abitatori del Perù confessavano un fattore dell'Universo un supremo Principe, e lo chiamavano Viracochea e Pachacamac.

Lacacamar, cioè creatore del cielo e della Terra l'adoravano alzando gli occhi al cielo. Demum ut scribunt [illegible] Scantan, Lahontan, Madagascarenses, Maiabongi, aliquot Canadani supremi numinis habent notitiam, cui subjecta sunt omnia.

Demum, quia totum terrarum orbem peragravimus, afferre rursus auctoritatem similem iis testimoniis quibus omnes probant universum fere genus hominum aliquem Deum cognovisse. Tertullianus Apologetici cap. XXIV ita alloquitur Ethnicos, "nonne concedimus de aestimatione communi aliquem esse sublimiorem et potentiorem velut principem Mundi, perfectae potentiae et majestatis? nam et sic plerique disponunt divinitatem ut imperium dominationis summae esse penes unum, officia ejus penes multos velint." Maximus autem Paganus ad S. Augustinum scribens Epist. XV tom. II ita loquitur: "equidem unum esse Deum summum sine initio sine prole naturae, seu patrem magnum quis tam demens tam mente captus neget esse certissimum? hujus nos virtutes per mundanum opus diffusas multis vocabulis invocamus, quoniam nomen ejus cuncti proprium ignoramus. Nam Deus omnibus religionibus commune nomen est. Ita fit, ut dum ejus quasi quaedam membra carptim variis supplicationibus prosequimur totum colere profecto videamur." Quod confirmat Seneca de Beneficiis, et Chrysostomus Orat. XXXI de Diis. Maximus Tyrius dissertatione prima haec habet verba quibus nihil luculentius desiderari potest. "quamvis diversae sint opiniones populorum, omnes in eo conveniunt Deum esse Principem atque Imperatorem summum, cui dii minores pareant. addit eandem esse [illegible] Graecorum Barbarorum, sive continenti sive insularum incolas doctos indoctos iuxta in eam rem conspirare; cui posset igitur iam esse dubium quin ea sit et fuerit maxima hominum partis sententia, quam diximus, ut ne in hoc quidem [illegible] gentium universam liceat objicere?

Verumtamen, ut ea tamen [illegible] commutationi [illegible] [illegible] explicanda videlicet quid fuerit Idololatria [illegible] Polytheismus [illegible] opinio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] principium [illegible] et malo, quae et Plutarchus et nonnulli alii tam commune inter gentes putant ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] animum attulit, equidem [illegible] quam immani [illegible] [illegible] esset [illegible], [illegible] Mythologia dii quaerunt [illegible] vellemus. Quare commentitias fabulas intermittentes, ac Poetarum omnia [illegible] [illegible] credita in [illegible] numerabimus ut communes antiquorum sententias de Diis satisfaciamus, postea ostensuri nullam in falsitate consensionem fuisse, quae argumentum a generis humani auctoritate ducto infirmet.

[illegible], [illegible] animadvertendum aliqua supra naturam nobis ad initia [illegible], quibus homines deceptos in Idololatriam [illegible]. [illegible] enim cum [illegible] Dei notionem sinceram et puram, tum infinitas eiusdem magnitudinis insignem [illegible] formam in animo omnium [illegible] cum [illegible] mentis intuitu comprehenderent, neque uno nomine nominare possent, [illegible] gratia in [illegible] [illegible] partes distinxere, quod etiam nunc a Theologis [illegible] [illegible] et divinae [illegible] [illegible] attributa, [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] diversas induerunt veluti in Psalmis: Justitia et pax osculatae sunt. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facti paulatim [illegible] ingenia ad [illegible] ut ex [illegible] personis nominibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Poetae, qui ad omnem [illegible] licentiam liberi ipsa Dei attributa instar personarum proponerent, quodque [illegible] a concionatoribus etiam hodie fit, ut hinc [illegible] hominibus hominibus infensa dicatur, illius misericordia iisdem [illegible] ... [illegible] comminiscentes, audacius Sapientiam Minervam nominarunt, Iustitiam Astream et alia similiter [illegible] Dei [illegible] inter se concertare finxerunt ex quo fortasse illa fluxerunt Deorum ab Homero descripta dissidia ab Ovidio uno disticho comprehensa.

[illegible] in Troiam pro Troia stabat [illegible] Æqua Venus Teucris, Pallas iniqua fuit.

[illegible] qui paululum [illegible] [illegible] qui [illegible] [illegible] paganis [illegible] teste Iulio II [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad errorem tam pingui [illegible] [illegible] Maximus Paganus Augustino [illegible] neq. non modo [illegible] communem Paganorum sententiam exponens loco nuper citato dicebat. neq. ullum esse tam [illegible] qui unum summum Deum esse negaret, neque tamen [illegible] plures [illegible] [illegible] quæ [illegible] virtutes multis vocabulis nuncupari consuevisse, ac quo [illegible] colerent, eius quasi membra [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] testimonium afferre [illegible], fuerunt, qui apud Iulium [illegible] de Nat. Deorum eodem modo rem explicat [illegible] commentitiis fabulis [illegible], Deus pertinens per naturam cuiusque rei, per Terras Ceres, per maria Neptunus alii per alia poterunt intelligi, quoq. eos nomine consuetudo nuncupaverit quos Deos [illegible] [illegible] debemus. [illegible] unum Deum ex variis locis, atq. officiis variis nuncupatum nominibus [illegible] autem [illegible] in [illegible] Diis, tamen [illegible] [illegible] unum esse Deum per maria, per terras, per alia loca pertinentem [illegible] adhuc retinet [illegible] [illegible] appellationem [illegible] vitiosa consuetudine id fuit non [illegible], aut quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nomina, et loca eundem inter [illegible] nominari posse. Quod eo minus nos commovebit, si animadverterimus, id etiam [illegible] [illegible] evenisse, ex quibus unum Plutarchi exemplum in [illegible], qui cum in libro de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum Stoico unum Deum plures mundos regere posse, itaq. [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] mundos decem, quinquaginta, aut centum, qui omnes una regantur mente et ab uno pendeant principio, [illegible] adiicit. [illegible] Deos magnopere decet talis dispositio. ita ne hominem certe prudentem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut cum de uno numine loqueretur intra eandem periodum [illegible] [illegible] admiserit. [illegible] [illegible] et Plutarchum et alios Philosophos tam [illegible] [illegible] regnante [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], multos antiquorum plurali numero usos fuisse cum de Deo agerent, scilicet ut [illegible] [illegible] unius cuiuscumq. naturæ vim et excellentiam exprimerent [illegible]; veluti cum singulos homines significare volentes, eos tamen cum plures appellamus [illegible] Alexandros, Scipiones, Cæsares, Cicerones quæ dicendi forma multum valet ad augendum. Quæ cum ita sint, in principio magna ex Ethnicorum multitudine [illegible] est [illegible]. [illegible] isto modo nominabant Deos, illi non [illegible] [illegible]; eos autem fuisse plurimos, [illegible] [illegible] hac ex maximo intelligimus, qui Ethnicos defendens non privatam [illegible] sed communem exponebat. [illegible] [illegible] fons ex [illegible] [illegible] influxit, ex quo praestat in [illegible] cognoscere Plutarchi opinionem [illegible] [illegible] et Osiride [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et Plato et Pythagoras et Xenocrates et Chrysippus

[illegible]

[illegible] Theogoniam in [illegible] hominibus praestantiores exhibuisse sunt et potentia nostrae naturae longe superiores: divina autem natura et corporis [illegible] compositione [illegible] esset denique capace, utique id genus omnia [illegible]: [illegible] ac multis hominibus [illegible], et in hominibus [illegible] inter Daemones [illegible], ut ac virtutis discrimina [illegible] Daemones dividit in bonos et malos, tum pergit explicando quemadmodum Dii populares nihil aliud esse [illegible] nisi eiusmodi Genii. [illegible] quo [illegible] patet et videre quid veritas habeat. nam idem Plutarchus antea dixerat opinionem de numero Daemonum perpetuo dedit hominibus ab ipso ortu ingeneratam. quod confirmat et temporis diuturnitate et persuasione populorum; ego autem sic existimo, [illegible] a Noe, eiusque filiis notitiam Angelorum (ii enim sunt quos prisci Genios et Daemones vocabant) tradi et propagari potuisse, tum [illegible] per visum [illegible] confirmata neque vero dissimile est ab ipso Deo quandam eorum cognitionem in omnium animis impressam fuisse. Nam quod ad bonos [illegible] hominum utile erat eos nosse, quorum in tutela essent positi ac profecto ex aliquo fonte [illegible] derivarat Heraclitus [illegible] eius [illegible] appellari —— [illegible] custodes hominum [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] Plato, qui inter Deum et homines fungi illos docet interpretis munere, ut et [illegible] divina mandata perferant, preces autem ac vota mortalium ad Superos. [illegible] autem Daemonum notio cum prope necessaria hominibus erat, ut cognoscerent eorum insidias [illegible] verba illa ad serpentem deceptorem a Deo facta in Genesi: inimicitias ponam inter te et mulierem et semen tuum et semen illius significant aliquam huiusmodi notionem in humana natura [illegible] impressam adversus Daemonia. Neque vero [illegible] Empedocles, cum malos Daemones poenas peccatorum [illegible] [illegible]. Atque ea opinio non [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible] Britanniam implevit, ut ex antiquis, et recentioribus constat. [illegible] haec [illegible] opinio spirituum [illegible] in rebus religioni nostrae consentanea est: quod autem eis naturam [illegible] divinam [illegible] putaverunt, [illegible] examinabimus cum de errore Ethnicorum agemus.

[illegible] Idololatriae origo fuit [illegible] aut [illegible] [illegible] homines. Primum enim Sapientiae XIV [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] luctu dolens pater [illegible] fecit imaginem, et illum qui tunc quasi homo mortuus fuerat nunc tanquam Deum colere coepit, et constituit inter servos suos sacra et sacrificia. [illegible] interveniente tempore, convalescente iniqua consuetudine, hic error tanquam lex custoditus est, et Tyrannorum imperio colebantur figmenta [illegible] Romanorum [illegible] exemplum [illegible] Tullius filiae [illegible] et de eius morte apotheosi cogitabat [illegible], facere omnino decreverit et ipse [illegible] ad Atticum, quem [illegible] compressissent animo, et Attico magnopere [illegible] [illegible] omnino non posse. [illegible] magna [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] in [illegible] disciplina [illegible] notanda sunt Evander et [illegible] [illegible] qui tum Deorum nomine vulgo colerentur omnes fuisse viros claros populari opinione consecratos, quod aperte pugnat cum doctrina aliorum Ethnicorum, quorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nomina [illegible] [illegible] Genios [illegible] natura [illegible] inter Deum et homines

media

medico : alter autem Jupiter allucinatus est in libro de Iside et Osiride affirmans eos omnes quorum cultus dicuntur esset et communis esse genios non homines quandoquidem ut docet Cicero 3 de Nat. Deorum plurimi essent mortales in Deorum numerum translati jamq. ut Hercules, Aesculapius, Romulus, aliiq. non pauci in hoc quoq. motus reverentiae erga eos atq. admirationis erga virtutem a natura totus oritur quos autem expiravit et ... fuit, id sine divinitatis persuasione fuisse, infra videbimus.

Prodicus ... caeterum ait quae hominum vitae utilia essent ea ut divina esse habita, velut Solem, Lunam, Tellurem, Aquas, aerem eiusmodi id ne ii quidem universim est verum, ut constat ex expositione.

Nunc causis Idololatriae expositis facile mihi videor demonstraturus, quod erat propositum nunquam a majore hominum parte plures fuisse proprie Deos creditos. Primum enim tota ea multitudo quae Deum unum per omnia pertinentem, eum esse qui multis invocatur nominibus docuit, profecto a Politheismo aliena est. Atqui magnum hunc fuisse numerum intelligemus, si primum meminerimus, et eam opinionem fuisse antiquissimam, ut constat ex Ditalis libris veteris, qui primus cum homines in societatem vitae congregavit eisq. ut ceteras leges, ita disciplinam religionis tradiderit, non sine causa id apud majorem partem obtinuisse existimamus. Deinde eandem doctrinam tradiunt, ut vidimus Xenophanes, Pitagoras, Aristoteles, cum et ipsi antiqui, tum magnarum Sectarum principes; idem perpetuo professi sunt Stoici, quorum institutum latissime floruit; postremo id respondebant Pagani Christianis Patribus, cum non privatam sed communiorem illam doctrinam esse exponerent. De Egyptiis quoq. idem facit Plutarchus in Iside et Osiride, quamquam eos diversissimas veneratos et feles canes, plures tamen ea quasi signa considerasse multiplicis virtutis eiusdem Dei. Horum numero si addantur et illi populi qui penitus Deum omnino coluerunt, et ii Philosophi qui populares Deos contempsere, Plato in primis, eiusque innumerabiles sane asseclae, magna profecto erit Politheismi facta detractio: in quo ne ii quidem ... sunt, qui, ut ante vidimus cum sentirent unum esse Deum emphasis causa pluraliter appellarunt.

Quid nunc dicemus de reliquis qui diserte plures numerabant Deos pluresq. adorabant? Ego vero audacter dico maximam eorum partem id externe atque in speciem, non ex animi assensione fecisse: quod antequam planum facio, breviter oculis proponam eorum temporum conditionem: quod enim maxime movet homines, ut credant plerosq. Ethnicorum in Politheismum consensisse illud est, quod apud antiquos non verba illum quae praeferrent verum etiam ritus, ceremoniae, templa inveniuntur multorum Deorum adorationi assignata. Atqui priusquam doceam unde id ortum fuerit illud ostendam cum summa incredulitate hec omnia fuisse coniuncta. Primum enim nemo inficiabitur, et plurimos extitisse qui cum ab ... religionibus omnino diverterent iis tamen temporis causa uterentur. certe enim Philosophi quos supra nominavimus Deorum contemptores

tum

tamen iis cum populo rem divinam faciebant quod Cotta et Cicero de se perhibent III de Natura deorum.
[illegible] inde multi erant Dii eiusmodi [illegible] ne stulti [illegible] quidem Deos ponerent [illegible]. Erant enim apud Romanos simulacra ac templa Menti Fidei Spei Virtuti Honori Victoriae Saluti Concordiae quarum nullam esse deum Cotta negat subtiliore ratione opus esse ut intelligatur. Inquit in lib. III de Nat. Deor.: num censes subtiliore ratione opus esse ad haec refellenda? Monetae quoque templum erat et Febri. Quis sibi persuadeat maxime romanos [illegible] haec portenta probari potuisse? cur igitur coluerunt? Nihil ad haec respondeo, illud unum quod et si [illegible] res tam inanes divinis honoribus affectas esse ab iis ipsis qui [illegible] viderent ne amplius mihi usu anti-quorum [illegible] ad [illegible] videtur. Idem autem in ceteris Diis evenisse ut et adorarentur tamquam Dii, neque tamen Dii haberentur [illegible] demonstro. Primo enim quamquam pauci sint qui ingenio praestant, tamen in rebus usitatis atque evidentibus pauci decipiuntur. Itaque licet major mortalium pars ad vitia prona sit, pauci tamen sunt qui vitia honesta esse iudicent; et quamquam cuncti omni appetitione alii ad [illegible] gloriam, alii ad voluptatem, alii ad aurum [illegible], nullum tempus fuit, in quo plerique [illegible] propria iudicarent [illegible] in rebus positum esse summum bonum. Interim omni aetate magna fuit existimatio virtutis, quique haec in [illegible] ludicra et inania laudari consueverunt ab iis ipsis qui [illegible] cupiditate ducebantur, quam numquam [illegible] esse [illegible] bona existimaverunt. Cur id tamen? quia innata et [illegible] ratio prohibebat ea summa bona iudicare. Non enim summum bonum omnes intelligunt esse [illegible]; experientia contra [illegible] semper multi [illegible] perfectionem in divitiis ac voluptatibus reperiri. Atque dum haec illa revocato, quae supra [illegible]
[illegible], recordare [illegible] conversione Philosophorum et Gentium Deum esse optimum, nihil melius [illegible] posse percipi [illegible] ratione anticipata et naturalem hanc [illegible] in omni disputatione [illegible], neminem [illegible] ex altera vero parte [illegible] quae omnes Ethnici confessi sunt ac fatentur hodie [illegible] omnium Principes, religionis [illegible] tum ac te quaeram num [illegible] patam apertam tam perspicuam repugnantiam in maxima hominum partem cadere potuisse ut in [illegible] natura [illegible] simul docerent aut nisi optimum intelligi non posse, simul rerum [illegible] esse fateremur [illegible] et omnis in disputatione tollatur ambiguitas cogitandum est aliud esse iudicium, aliud assensionem mentis, alia [illegible] et [illegible] voluntatis. Nam homines multa valde speciosa [illegible] alliciunt, quae simul falsa esse iudicant quotidiano usu est compertum. [illegible] ut nihil gloriam [illegible] delectantur in [illegible] et laudibus, quas sibi nequaquam convenire intelligunt et iudicant? Atque ne ulterius progrediar, quotquot Christiani sunt qui peccant in bona cupiditatum [illegible], quae [illegible] bona esse non credunt. Iudicium autem [illegible] ad intellectionem [illegible] et affirmatio quaedam rei ut [illegible] quae [illegible] fit cum duae [illegible] inter se coniunguntur. Hoc autem [illegible] neque [illegible] omnes qui [illegible] constantissimam esse naturam

cui

cui nihil [illegible] omni deest, qui quae multa fecerint antea vidimus, eorum nego unum et plures affirmare, maxime valent, aliquid esse minus perfectum, cum eorum ideam perfectae naturae coniungere quo enim etiam indicarent id esse plures necesse omnino fuit, et censerent plures esse naturas aeque praestantes quae quamquam esse nequeant, tamen cum ea repugnantia aliqua argumentatione ostendenda sit [illegible] negare potuerunt. At haec ita que loquimur et eiusmodi ut neque plures [illegible] esse possit neque propterea ullo modo in iudicium adducere hominum. Num omnis ullus qui tenent hominem esse animal rationis particeps, tum dicat lapidem ratione et sensu carere, poterit lapidem proprie appellare hominem? hoc profecto a natura ingenii ita abhorret ut nullo conatu. nos et fieri sic postquam gentes hanc vocem Deum notioni rei praestantissimae et omnino perfectae [illegible], nu[llo] pacto valebant, hac propria significatione servata, eandem vocem rei, quam scirent minus perfectam esse acco-modare: ita alteratio fieri debuit, ut aut ei maiorem ideam quod neque unquam factum est, nec fieri potuit repugnante natura, aut ceteros quos dicebant Deos neque magnitudine obstruerentur quae res nunquam accidit.
Si enim de Geniis loqui volumus, eos Plutarchus cum reliquis Philosophis non solum minores Deo summo facit, sed perturbationibus obnoxios mortales esse ac vitiosos ita ut iis Dei nullo conatu potuit applicari Geniis, cum eundem non solum maximum sed immutabilem [illegible] structurae ac naturae, in quod nullum possit malum adesse, praeter ceteros, etiam Pyrrhonii fecerint. [illegible] enim [illegible] ceteri Philosophi fateantur affirment, nunquam maiorem partem mortalium omni Dei cognitione caruisse, vitabunt quod eandem [illegible] explorata est facile [illegible] grada argumentatione [illegible] esse [illegible], tamen ea ratio nihil habet adhuc, nihil quod facultatem superet [illegible]. Immo ea de causa nec omnino quidem solet ullos vere esse Atheos, h[ic] [illegible] proprie et constanter [illegible] Deum, quia natura quia sensus intimus quia communis [illegible] isti [illegible] semper obstitit. Quanto minus [illegible] credibile est, plerosque mortalium, cum non solum faterentur esse Deum, sed etiam eundem esse talem, ut neque vitio ullo labo-ret neque ulla perfectione careat quae esse aut cogitari possit, hos ipsos non modo contra naturam, sed etiam contra confessionem propriam aliquando [illegible], res ortus imperfectas, ac alterius potestati constitutas, [illegible] etiam [illegible] esse Deos [illegible] considerans quid adversarii nostri possint respondere [illegible], quod quamquam frivolum sit, atque ineptum tamen quoniam aliud [illegible] non possum nihil praetermittendum non videtur. Dicent igitur Athaei, cum Deorum Dei naturam esse perfectam, id in genere dici non de singulis individuis intellexisse. atque Deum esse optimum, quod in universitate nullum aliud sit genus rerum eo genere praestantius, non quod in eorum Deorum genere alius alio nequeat major esse atque melior, quemad-modum etiam genus hominum vere dici potest optimum omnium generum quae in Terra sunt, et [illegible] [illegible] homo homini praestat, ita apte veterum testimonia conciliari, quae pugnantia videntur. Sed mehe-
[rc]ules qui [illegible] ad non legisse quidam [illegible] ea loca, quibus responde[re] nostra conclusio nititur

Nihil enim evidentius est cuivis consideranti, quam Veteres, ita ad definitionem Dei maximam perfectionem postulasse, ut si vel unus gradus bonitatis et magnitudinis, qui fieri possit, deesset, is continuo nullo pacto sit Deus. Primum enim negant illud vitium esse in Deo ob eam unam causam quod sit Deus, quae res non constaret si tantum voluissent, eius genus caeteris generibus praestare; etenim homo adhuc praestat belluis, et lapidibus, qui tamen v. c. calamitatibus sit obnoxius, itaque ex ipsa Dei natura concludebant, nullum in eum malum cadere quia ille sit optimus. Recolite loca Vellei et Balbi ac reliquorum quae iterare non est necesse, illud semper animadvertentes a nemine antiquorum concessam fuisse hanc enunciationem aut aliam huic similem: Deus potest esse imperfectus. — Praeterea notanda est ratio cur quaedam Deo attribuerint. Nam vel Epicurei qui ex luto ficti et plane porci tamen hac in re minime cespitabant. Itaque Velleius reprehendit Anaximenem, quod Deos ortos putasset statim communem obiiciens notionem generis humani: nos Deum nisi sempiternum intelligere qui possumus? ex quo necessario efficitur, quum reliqui Dii ab uno Patre orti putarentur, Deos proprie dici nequivisse: ita negat Deum esse aerem, quod aer non sit formosus, additque, cum praesertim Deum non modo aliqua, sed pulcherrima specie esse deceat. Quid Cicero qui universam Dei naturam explicans quantum omnes intelligerent, affirmat Deum omnia movere, et qui ab alio moveatur aut non omnia moveat in notione Dei comprehendi non posse. Inquit enim: Nec vero Deus ipse qui intelligitur a nobis alio modo intelligi potest nisi mens soluta quaedam et libera, omnia sentiens, omnia movens. Atqui caeteri praeter Iovem non erant soluti et liberi, quia enim imperio erant subditi et in famulatu constituti, sentiebant quidem omnia nisi Jupiter significaret, multo minus omnia movebant. unus enim ut ex ipsis testimoniis ostendimus, erat Universitatis motor, ergo ne Dii quidem intelligi poterant, itaque ne dicti quidem proprie Dii. Eorum haec maxima perfectionis divinae consentiens notio fuit etiam et plerique, quemadmodum dictum est, affirmarent unum Deum esse, quamquam nominibus variis et pluribus [illegible].

Quod si quis obiiciat ea omnia vitia atque scelera quae ipsis Diis tum temporis tribuebantur, [illegible] ne quidem optimum aestimasse videantur, ille plane se ostendat veteris antiquitatis cognitione peregrinum et hospitem. Nam ab ipsis Ethnicis semper distincta fuit inter cognitionem Dei a natura profectam, atque fabulas et mendacia quae a Poetis per poeticam licentiam efficta fuerant. Deorum [illegible] quidem perpetuo conati sunt omnia, quae inventa fuerant a Poetis, alio modo explicare, et ea quidem allegorias [illegible], quod sentirent si litteraliter intelligerentur absurda esse nimis, atque impia. Itaque Balbus II de Nat. Deorum ita: Videtis ne igitur ut a Physicis rebus bene atque utiliter inventis tracta ratio sit ad commentitios et fictos Deos? quae res genuit falsas opiniones, erroresque turbulentos, et superstitiones paene aniles. Et formae enim nobis Deorum, et aetates, et vestitus, ornatusque noti sunt; genera praeterea, coniugia, cognationes, omniaque traducta ad similitudinem imbecillitatis humanae; nam et perturbatis animis inducuntur, accepimus enim Deorum cupiditates, aegritudines, iracundias; nec vero, ut fabulae ferunt, Dii bellis proeliisque caruerunt. ne et q.

„ut quid timerent, cum duos exercitus contrarios alii Dii ex alia parte defenderent, sed etiam ut cum „Titanis, ut cum Gigantibus propria bella gesserunt. Haec et dicuntur et creduntur stultissime et plena sunt „futilitatis, summaeq. levitatis.“ Atq. his subjicit quod antea attulimus Deum unum e. credendum, qui per omnia pertineat loca, omniaque moveat. Caeterum Cotta lib. III. ob eandem causam, quod haec a nemine nisi stultissimo crederentur, ridet simplicitatem Stoicorum, qui hujusmodi fabularum vim explicare conarentur: magnam, inquit molestiam suscepit et minime necessariam primus Zeno, post Cleanthes, deinde Chrysippus, commenticiarum fa:
bularum reddere rationem. Tum addit: Qui tantus error fuit, ut perniciosis etiam rebus non modo nomen deorum tri:
bueretur, sed etiam sacra constituerentur. Febris enim fanum in Palatio, et Orbonae ad aedem Larum, et aram Malae Fortunae Esquiliis consecratam videmus. Itaq. praeter pueros et aniculas, neque multitudinem me:
diocri judicio praeditam istis fabellis fidem ullam habuisse. Ac si ipsi qui crederent, non ita potuerunt [illegible], ut simul haec Deo indigna esse viderent, simul eidem contraria fuisse assentirentur: pugnant haec enim inter se: pugnantibus autem cognitis assentiri non potest animus: sed si v.g. Jovem adulterio per:
petrasse censuerint, necesse erat, ut haec illi tanquam Domino licere putarent. itaq. perinde fecerit vulgus in rebus tam futilibus, absurdisq. assignandis Deo, ut fecerunt alii Philosophi, cum Deum v.g. [illegible] esse ostenderent. Caeterum quae nos ex Poetis de Dei perfectione attulimus, ea propterea firma sunt, quod etiam a Philosophis approbata erant, et idcirco non ad id genus pertineant quod censetur fabulosum. Similiter quod probatur apud veteres plures fuisse Joves hominibus natos, id infirmare nequit conversionem in unum Jovem, quem omnium Dominum ac motorem volebant omnes: hic enim dicebatur a cunctis Divum Pater, atq. hominum procreator, et omnino ab alio oriri non potuerit. teste idem Plutarcho [illegible] erat Deus ille, qui nominabatur ab Aegyptiis Ammon autem quia occultus et invisibili[s].
Sed cum homines fuerint quidam illustres, qui essent nominati Joves, tum populari opinione in coelum transla ti, hinc poetae occasionem sumpserunt istos cum supremo illo Jove confundendi. Ut ut res se se habent, adscititiae opiniones nunquam potuerunt efficere ut animus indicaret et unum Jovem a nemine ortum esse, et eundem esse ortum: prima autem notio naturalis erat quippe a doctis aeque ac indoctis confir:
mata, eandem in reliquis gentibus maxime efferatis, et barbaris invenimus.
Restat jam, ut eas causas exponamus, quibus fieri fiat, tandem tantam hominum multitudinem divinos honores potuisse tribuere iis rebus quas omnino credere non possent Deos. Sed nemo mirabitur, id evenisse, cum cognoverit cupiditates, quae in omni re dominantur, easdem incitantes [illegible] impulisse mortales. ac de ho:
minibus quidem divinis honoribus affectis, idoneas assignavit causas Salomo loco ante allato. Primum enim immodicum Parentum amorem in liberos, ac doloris vehementiam ex eorum obitu, scilicet adeo valuisse, ut pro solamine filios quasi Deos coli imperaverint: illum qui tunc quasi homo mortuus fuerat, nunc tanquam Deum colere coepit, et constituit inter servos suos sacra et sacrificia. Quod si ea perturbatio animi sapien:
tissimum

hinc in Romanorum Tullium ad hanc insaniam potuit adigere, quis jam miretur alios minus prudentes fuisse superstitiosos. Secundam affert causam consuetudinem temporis diuturnitate firmatam: deinde interveniente tempore convalescente iniqua consuetudine, hic error tanquam lex custoditus est. Quantopere autem haec valeat etiam in iis rebus quae ab omnibus falsae et iniquae [illegible] vel nos Christiani experimur [illegible] adventantibus festis Baccanalibus. Tertio adiungit vim Tyrannorum populo ad impium cultum impellentium: et Tyrannorum in [illegible] colebantur figmenta. Quare de ista Idololatriae parte, quae ad honorem hominum [illegible] spectavit, quivis intelligit etiam istam per rationem [illegible] civitatis, partim errorem, partim imitationis studium, partim metum valuisse. Quod autem ad eos homines pertinet qui propter insignem quandam virtutem, celebrabantur quasi Dii, Cotta, qui, et Pontifex Max. [illegible] omni causa Religionis disciplinam erat exprimere conatus, fieri putat, non illorum dumtaxat opinione, quae esse non poterat, sed quia utilitatis ~~divinitatis~~ studium effecisse, ut initio clarorum hominum memoria consecraretur. inquit enim [illegible]: atque in plerisque Civitatibus intelligi potest augendae virtutis gratia, quo libentius Reip. causa periculum adiret optimus quisque, virorum fortium memoriam honore Deorum immortalium consecratam. Ob eam enim ipsam causam Erechtheus Athenis filiique eius in numero Deorum sunt. Itemque [illegible] et [illegible] Atheniquem [illegible] nominatur. Alabandum quidem sanctius Alabandi colunt, a quo est urbs illa condita quam quemquam nobilium Deorum. Ex quo comperi licet causam maxime probabilem [illegible] communis superstitionis in viris illustribus adorandis. Cum enim universi homines intelligerent, [illegible] carere initio, neque interire unquam posse, itaque eum [illegible] nulli homini esse applicabilem, tamen invita conscientia ac natura honorem omnium maximum, templorum [illegible] sacrificiorum [illegible] praestantissimis [illegible] mortuis et mortuo per summam perversitatem, utilitatis specie [illegible] cogitantes nullum [illegible] communi superstitioni adjici posse quam [illegible]. Quin qui immoderata flagrabant gloriae cupidine, ipsi animo instituti huiusmodi [illegible] sperantes sibi [illegible] a posteris, ac se eosdem honores [illegible] quos ipsi superioribus [illegible] qui vero [illegible], alios ita [illegible] sequebantur, consuetudinem perspicuae veritati anteponentes. Saepe etiam [illegible] nam Augusto Caligulae, aliisque imperatoribus adhuc viventibus Dei nomen ac [illegible], [illegible] alii que Scriptores. Virgilius quidem in [illegible] ad Augustum [illegible] cum Deum ac [illegible] appellat qui [illegible] magis quam adulatione [illegible]?

Similis etiam causa fuit superstitionis in Geniis. Ut enim [illegible] ingenia mali moribus ad honorem divinum [illegible] prohibendum iam [illegible] facillime [illegible] potuisse fuerit erga eas naturas praestantiores humana [illegible]; ut propterea [illegible] operam promerendi in hoc [illegible] male [illegible] animos impulisse, ut plus Demoniis tribuerent quam [illegible]; illa, illa inquam, infausta Demonum [illegible] cum summa calliditate coniuncta, ita rei disposuerat ut tametsi naturae non paterentur eos Deos, quos [illegible] quos malos etiam esse [illegible], tamen iisdem populi summae [illegible] honorem [illegible]. Cum [illegible] maligni illi [illegible] intelligerent duobus inter se contrariis impulsibus [illegible] homines, altero ad Religionem, altero ad vivendi licentiam, [illegible] quos maxime [illegible] ita utramque [illegible] consociarent, ut iam nec [illegible] cupiditatibus impedimento esset, nec cupiditates Religioni. Quare ea cogitatione nefaria quidem [illegible] commodo mortalium [illegible], ut talis forma [illegible] Sacrorum que cum omni licentia esset conjuncta: ubi modo ut Diis litaretur e[illegible] proh[illegible] que homines [illegible].

imo non [illegible] grata factum iri si [illegible] impudicitiis [illegible] sacra fierent. — Quid credibilius, quam universam multitudinem eos ritus cupidissime suscepisse, quibus ultra non modo pectus [illegible] non essent cum alia consuetudo [illegible] nihili penderi habitus, quod nomen Dei, quod honos, [illegible] rebus quas unusquisque Deos non esse intelligeret, venderetur, tanto premio voluptatis proposito, quod princeps ille Deus nunquam esset concessurus? Ceterum ne putetis hec a me esse conficta Salomo Sap. XIV cap. Idololatrie causam precipuam at-tulit: initium fornicationis est exquisitio Idolorum, et adinventio illorum corruptio vite est. Ad hec pene omnes sacre pagine hujus rei documento erunt, omne turpitudinis genus Idololatrie exprobrantes. Illi docebunt quid diebus festis in delubris ac pr[illegible] in lucis Religionis specie agitarent Ethnici; tum SS. Patres accedent testes, demum ipsi Pagani Scriptores, qui ac [illegible] fidem fecerunt: me enim non solum angustie temporis, sed pudor etiam prohibent totam istius superstitionis obscenitatem explicare. Ex quibus omnibus unum sufficiat proferre Divum Jo. Chrysostomum, de cujus fide eo minus est dubitandum quod hec Ethnicis objiciebat presentibus: inquit enim in libro de S. Babila contra Gentiles: Demonibus sacrificia fiunt, et feda celebrantur mysteria, que ipsa nihil certe aliud sunt quam amores quidam obsceni, quam puerorum contumelie, quam adulteria, quam domorum subversiones, ut nihil dicam de inhumanis cedibus generis, deque immanioribus quam cedes ipse sint illorum ce-
nis. - Quis id miretur his artibus malos Demones et initio capere et diuturno tempore in ea superstitione retinere potuisse mortales, qua simul et religioso instinctui, et fedis cupiditatibus [illegible] [illegible]! Quod si nec semper, nec ubique ista Sacrorum licentia dominabatur, id non illi instituto quod per se huc spectabat, sed Deo Opt. Max. acceptum referri oportet, qui ad conservandam hominum societatem, ac ne omnis honesti forma deleretur, non omnino frena laxaverit furori Demoniorum; ex quo etiam factum est ut multi ea flagitia improbarent ac naturali pudore detenti non eousque prorumperent, quo pessimi ritus aditum aperuerant. Quid quod ipsi Demones vaferrimi inter tam multa scelera quoddam etiam virtutis fuco religiones suas ornare voluerunt; veluti cum sibi virginitatis voto tum viros, tum mulieres obstringere, ne si omnia impura et feda fuissent, aliquando mortales excitati ea instituta perspexerint?
Hinc etiam intelligi potest nos non immminuere Ethnicorum culpas sed augere. Quamquam enim propter claras et [illegible] quas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deos; tamen eo sceleris processere, ut sanctis-simos Religionis ritus inanibus prostituerent, ac vel turpi assentatione, vel vituperando metu, vel servili sequendae consuetudinis studio, vel licentie cupiditate honorem summum per insanum latrocinium Numini ereptum, tum hominibus, tum Demoniis, tum aliis rebus, brutisque simulacris venditarent. Quo quid magis impium dici aut cogitari potest? Nam si vere Deos putavissent, haberet id piaculum quandam inscitie excusationem:
nunc autem, quod ipse sibi dicis enunciant, profecto sunt inexcusabiles quippe veritatem [illegible] [illegible]. Quo quod sententia nostra Divine providentie magis etiam illustrat atque defendit, que nunquam in [illegible] animo per[illegible] divinitatis formam obscurari passa est, ut propterea eam cum rerum [illegible] notione, ne si vel-lent quidem, possent confundere? Neque tamen hinc sequitur Idololatras non fuisse infideles.
ind.

Quid enim? nonne infideles adhuc censendi sunt tot Philosophi, qui diserte affirmarunt unum esse Deum, cum tamen colerent plures? Cæterum cum Fides, ut Theologi docent, non solum in iudicio, quod perquam necessarium est, sed etiam in pia quadam animi affectione posita sit, qua libenter credimus, hinc, cum, ut aiunt, malum ex singulis defectibus oriatur, omnes Ethnici infideles vel eo nomine fuerint, quod ea affectione procul dubio caruerunt, atque omnem cultum vero Deo ademptum, quo præcipue constat Religio ad indigna transtulere: atque ne illi quidem a me hoc scelere liberantur, qui se testati sunt unum sub variis nominibus coluisse. Nam ut alia omittam, neque ea colendi ratio legitima erat cum tanta turpitudine admixta, ritibus enim communibus utebantur; neque tum illum Deum colebant qui per omnia pertinet, cum aliis personis ab eo seiunctis, veluti Dæmoniis, et hominibus immolabant. Ac nisi me mea fallit opinio, eandem istis, non etiam Idololatriæ, communisque culpæ rationem proposuit Paulus Apostolus cap. I ad Rom. de tota Ethnicorum multitudine ita pronuncians: revelatur ira Dei de cælo super omnem impietatem et iniustitiam hominum eorum, qui veritatem Dei in iniustitia detinent, quia quod notum est Dei manifestum est illis; Deus enim illis manifestavit. Et autem intelligamus evidentem hanc Dei cognitionem ad omnes pertinuisse, quæ iudicium omne contrarium tolleret, ea ratione declarat, quæ doctis indoctisque est communis, pergit enim: invisibilia enim ipsius a creatura mundi per ea quæ facta sunt intellecta conspiciuntur, sempiterna quoque eius virtus, et divinitas, ita ut sint inexcusabiles. Animadverte quæso Paulo iudice, ex rebus creatis omnes mortales, non confusam quandam, sed claram et expressam veri Dei notitiam colligere, ac quæ sequuntur plane faciunt cur excusationem non habuerint, scilicet, non quod ignoraverint Deum, cum cognoscere potuissent, sed quod cognitum non, ut par fuisset, adoraverint: quia cum cognovissent Deum, non sicut Deum glorificaverunt, aut gratias egerunt, sed evanuerunt in cogitationibus suis . . . . et mutaverunt gloriam incorruptibilis Dei in similitudinem imaginis corruptibilis hominis, et volucrum et quadrupedum et serpentium: Ubi autem ibi præsertim Philosophorum mentionem, cum videtur in verbis dicentes se esse sapientes stulti facti sunt, tamen Thomas in eum locum ad cæteros spectat: Primum enim id Argumentum cepit Ecclesia probata per finem diserte declarat his verbis: Paulus ostendit Ethnicos, qui ex creaturis Deum cognoscentes illum cultu suo deiecerunt, colendo creaturarum imagines merito a Deo desertos. Deinde scelera, in quæ illos prolapsos, Deo permittente, significat, omnibus Paganis conveniunt. ait enim: repletos omni iniquitate malitia fornicatione, avaritia, nequitia, plenos invidia, homicidio, contentione, dolo, malignitate &c. Denuum illa Job verba Quis ignorat quod hæc omnia manus Domini fecerit? ostendunt, omnes Idololatras hac ratione a Paulo comprehensos, ut eorum malitia et infidelitas non in ignoratione Dei, sed in eius contemptione sita fuerit.

Huic sententiæ triplex testimoniorum genus potest addici primum divinarum literarum, ex quibus illud præcipue Sap. XIII ubi legitur: Vani sunt omnes homines in quibus non subest scientia Dei, et de his quæ videntur bona non potuerunt intelligere eum qui est, neque operibus attendentes agnoverunt quis esset Artifex, sed aut ignem, aut spiritum . . . aut Solem et Lunam rectores Orbis terrarum Deos putaverunt. Ubi duo statuit Salomon, et aliquos scientia veri Dei caruisse, et eosdem venerato, rectores mundi, Deosque existimasse. Deinde postquam docuit, hos voluisse tum veri Dei notitiam comparare potuisse, concludit: si tantum potuerunt scire, ut possent æstimare sæculum quomodo quomodo hujus dominum non facilius invenerunt! tum cap.º sequenti. omnes insipientes sunt et infelices, sunt inimici populi .... tum: quoniam omnia idola nationum Deos æstimaverunt. Verum hæc necessario explicanda sunt omnibus, ne dum nobis [illegible] primum ex veris præsertim ad Philosophos spectant, quorum etiam sententias complectitur, videlicet quod alii ignem alii spiritum sive aerem alii stellas, aut aquas aut Solem aut Lunam Deos vocarunt, quorum autem ii fuerint [illegible] [illegible] in libris de Nat. Deorum presertim in [illegible] Athei, et nuper vidimus Paullus omnino affirmat saltem Philosophos veri Deum cognovisse ... si ... loca etiam ad imperitam multitudinem referantur nonne Jobus c. 12 diserte negat ullum mortalium esse qui ignoret Dominum rerum omnium Auctorem? Quis ignorat quod hæc omnia manus Domini fuerit? Postremo innumera ex historiis [illegible] testimonia a nobis [illegible] [illegible] evidenter declarant maximam partem Populorum [illegible] [illegible] cognovisse!

Quod igitur negat sapiens in hominibus scientiam Dei esse [illegible] de ea scientia loquitur quam homo [illegible] [illegible]:
modum idem Proverbiorum 29 ait universim: impios carere scientia [illegible] . impius [illegible] scientiam, cum tamen certo constet plurimos impios vel et melius aliis [illegible] [illegible] quid agendum sit; sed quia, ut David dixit, noluerunt intelligere ut bene agerent. ideirco scientia ignorare dicuntur. quo modo [illegible] et Oseas quoq. cap. 4.
non est scientia Dei in terra. quod si de communi Dei scientia intelligimus Paullum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod notum est Dei manifestum est illis: quam etiam Actorum VIII cum Aram invenisset Atheniis dicatam Ignoto Deo sic Athenienses affatus est: quod ergo ignorantes colitis, hoc ego annuntio vobis. [illegible] [illegible] dicit eos ignorare Deum, simul scire, laudatq. testimonia Poetarum originem nostram in Deum referentium. [illegible] autem illegitimo cultu [illegible] ipsi simulacris tribuebant, inquit. et tempora quidem hujus ignorantiæ despiciens Deus nunc annuntiat homi= nibus, ut omnes penitentiam agant. quemadmodum igitur Paulus arguit Athenienses ignorantiæ [illegible], [illegible] utpote superstitiosos, quos tamen alias, et ut ostenderet, testatur Deum cognovisse. ita et Salomon non aliud [illegible], [illegible]= rantiæ hominibus, quam quæ in perversa voluntate sita esset Nam profecto etiam si qui credunt cum tamen contra Religionem vivant, summa ignorantia laborare dicuntur in libris [illegible]. atq. a Paullo de fideli qui suis non opitulatur, pronunciat, eum fidem negasse: si quis suorum curam non habet fidem negavit et est infideli deterior.
[illegible] omnes [illegible] veram fidem cum hoc etiam scelere consistere posse; quanto magis [illegible] [illegible] Salomoni dicere, Gentes ignorare Deum, quia nullum ei cultum tribuebant. Nam si vis [illegible] movere nos debet etiam [illegible] docet esse Atheos: dixit insipiens in corde suo, non est Deus; quos etiam non, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quæ sequuntur: corrupti sunt et abominabiles facti sunt etc. Nihilominus Philosophi fere omnes negant quemquam posse judicio ac persuasione esse Atheum. Quod autem adjungit Deos æstimatos ista, atque alia ejusmodi loca, non ad judicium mentis, sed ad cultum referenda sunt, perinde enim eos colebant ac si Deos veros æstimarent. Ac si Apostolus pronunciat ex intemperantibus, eorum Deum esse ventrem quo= rum Deus venter est, et avaritiam universim declarat esse idolorum servitutem: Philargiria quæ est idolorum servitus; et Augustinus in Confessionibus illum statuit quicquid in dilectionis lance præpondent Deum esse; ex quo etiam Christiani moribus [illegible] viventes dicuntur in libris negare Deum. qui confitentur [illegible] nosse Deum, factis autem negant: desinamus aliquando mirari quod Salomoni visi sint Ethnici æstimare

[illegible] illos [illegible] divinis honoribus prosequebantur. Nam [illegible] indue intelligi volunt [illegible] [illegible] acquirenda super [illegible], in quibus aequè non minus [illegible] quam [illegible] cum communiter nobis [illegible] pugnare. Quod ignorant quali Ethnicorum fuerit ignorantia [illegible] in re [illegible] nit que [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adversantur [illegible] [illegible] infert non tollit sed minuit quae [illegible] etiam in Christianis reperitur; et propterea communi more loquendi peccatores [illegible] dicuntur juxta illud [illegible]: omnis peccans est ignorans.

[illegible] ponunt Ecclesiastici Scriptores, et [illegible], qui in Ethnicis confutandis probant unum esse Deum, quoque [illegible] colebantur tales omnino non esse. Huic rationi opponitur exemplum non modo [illegible] [illegible], qui [illegible] ita [illegible] ut doceant esse verum tamen [illegible] [illegible], paucos, vel fortasse neminem [illegible] [illegible] ne [illegible] verum etiam eorum qui [illegible] Pirrhonios, et Academicos [illegible] [illegible] esse [illegible] cum tamen constet nullum posse de rerum [illegible] dubitare. Quod si ita [illegible] agimus, non [illegible] [illegible] persuasionem, sed quo veritate [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] ad [illegible], ac facto [illegible] indicio [illegible] [illegible] adducamus; ea propter maxime interfuit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vanitatem ut tandem [illegible] [illegible] atque omni injuria [illegible] que in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], [illegible] omnium creatori [illegible] [illegible] etiam apud Christiano [illegible] a [illegible], ut quamvis multorum [illegible] [illegible] ne [illegible] [illegible] assentiant, veritas tamen [illegible] ac si [illegible] negatur, cum omni ratione atque eloquentia [illegible] exponatur.

[illegible] Auctores iidem Ethnici qui dicuntur agnovisse plures Deos; [illegible] [illegible] Stoicos et Pirrhonios [illegible] [illegible] minime sentiunt, ut idcirco in rebus [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] dicat, [illegible] dicere [illegible] ostendendum sit: Deinde in communi more loquendi [illegible] [illegible] judicium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sic [illegible] dicimus Avarum judicare pecuniam Deo [illegible] [illegible], nihil [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] omnis [illegible], que ad agendum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] partem animi spectat, [illegible] est a [illegible] [illegible] discernere verum ad illam que appetit et vult, itaque [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] judicium speculativum [illegible] [illegible]. Quam [illegible] autem [illegible] [illegible] inter [illegible] [illegible] quotidianae [illegible] est compertum juxta illud Poetae — — Video meliora proboque, deteriora sequor.

[illegible] omnia Ethnicorum [illegible] commode explicabitis dicentes, eos non de judicio speculativo [illegible] [illegible] practico significasse cum [illegible] plures [illegible]. Nam postquam constitit apud omnes gentes Deos [illegible] [illegible] esse [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fuit communis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] qui Dii nuncupabantur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Ethnici [illegible] Dei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ac [illegible], proprie [illegible] [illegible] Daemones; ne [illegible] quidem Auctores [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vera, et proprie Deos [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] enim [illegible] mentem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intelligimus. Hac sententia nos committimus periculo dubitandi de iis rebus, de quibus nefas sit dubitare, ergo non in omnibus rebus, quae ad argumentationem pertinent retinenda est assensio. Directo nego antec. ad vim probationis distinguo. Potest latere falsum cui sensus intimus idem facit non latere nego, sensus conc. ant. et nego consequentiam. Potestne latere [illegible], ubi quis primum audit Romam Bruxellis esse, aliq. ejusmodi [illegible] id est nisi in tota vita [illegible]?

Inst. Hic sensus intimus, ex quo vim rationum uno temporis momento dijudicamus potest esse quaedam vis praejudicatae opinioni, aut ignorantiae; ergo non huic uni [illegible] et fidendum. Probo Antec. Multa, immo [illegible] vera videntur, quae postea deprehenduntur falsa; ergo hic sensus intimus [illegible]

Resp. nego antec. Etenim sensus intimus non minus a vi praejudicatae opinionis dignoscitur quam vigilia a somno. Habet enim illa quandam formam et speciem, quae nunquam falso est communis. Quemadmodum igitur qui experrectus fuerit nullo examine indiget quo percipiat se non dormire, ita qui sensu intimo afficitur, nulla ei consideratione opus est ut discernat sitne ille sensus intimus. Nam quod nunc deprehenduntur falsa quae prius vera visa sunt, etiam post longas animadversiones plura existimantur evidentia, quae deinde aut vana aut incerta cognoscuntur; an propterea sit ut etiam post attentam rei cognitionem semper animis pendere debeamus. Qui id approbant non propositionem nostram, sed et religionem et philosophiam omnem evellunt funditus.

Inst. 2o Saltem quaedam attentio est perfecte necessaria, ut certiores fiamus de hoc sensu intimo, ergo saltem tantisper expectandum est, atq. assensio sustinenda donec eam attentionem adhibuerimus.

Resp. Conc. necessariam esse attentionem ad sensum intimum agnoscendum, sed hanc ab ipso sensu intimo statim ac [illegible] animus est continuo afferri quemadmodum licet necessaria sit aliqua attentio ad vigiliam a somno distinguendam, tamen eadem vigilia hanc attentionem semper habet adjunctam.

De regulis ad Essentiarum cognitionem pertinentibus

Essentia quandoque pro substantia accipitur, veluti cum dicitur essentiam corporis esse materiam extensam, tanquam [illegible] in ea velut [illegible] consideratur, et in posita altera; ceterum nos hoc loco essentiae nomine [illegible] quidquid esse concipitur.

Idea autem essentiae est multiplex, rem aut sic ita esse concipimus quemadmodum eam nos revera extant, aut tantum quemadmodum esse possunt: rursus alia est essentia rerum simplicium, et indivisibilium et spiritus, alia compositarum et corporum.

Jam e. g. essentiis, hæc primum regula tradi solet: quidquid in idea clara et distincta alicujus rei elucet id de eadem potest certissime affirmari: cujus principii veritatem facile percipies si memineris quid sibi velit idea clara et distincta. Hæc enim nihil aliud demum est, quam idea, in qua mens intelligit se idem bis concipere, quod dupliciter evenit. Primum cum idem prorsus bis percipitur, aut iisdem verbis, ut Petrus est Petrus, aut sub uniformi plane conceptione, ut cum dico: triangulus est figura constans tribus angulis: dum enim triangulum cogito idem concipio quod cum cogito figuram ex tribus angulis constantem. Altero modo idem bis concipio cum in secunda conceptionis parte comprehenso vel explicitum quod in prima tanquam implicite ~~comprehendebatur~~ includebatur, ita ut mens identitatem non animadverteret ut si dicas Deus est justus; prima enim conceptione evoluta atque enucleanda, idem in ea invenio quod in secunda. Porro primum idearum genus a Lockio nugatorium dicitur, quippe quod nihil novæ cognitionis menti afferat: alterum vero est utillimum: in eo enim sita est omnis progressio cognitionum, quæ argumentatione comparantur. Ut autem sint ejusmodi ideæ claræ et distinctæ, in quibus non idem prorsus repetitur, prima debet semper magis late patere, quam secunda; quæ enim magis extenduntur continent quidem alias minores, sed mens non ita clare eas in tali latitudine percipiens novas conceptiones addit, quæ ad comprehendendas eas [illegible] contineri excitatur. Hinc autem constat quod verum sit regula dicta: affirmare enim de re quod in ejus idea distincta percipitur, nihil aliud est quam affirmare idem esse idem, quo nihil verius dici potest.

Jam nunc autem alia res magni momenti quæstio occurrit, videlicet an, quemadmodum diximus posse de aliqua essentia affirmari, quod in ejus clara et distincta idea intuemur, ita e converso non possit affirmari aut negari de essentia, quod in ejus clara et distincta idea non elucet. Ab hujus controversiæ cognitione pendere potest plurimarum rerum decisio, quæ in philosophia sunt gravissimæ. Exinde et oppugnatores Dei Providentiæ, considerant Philosophi essentiam corporis, in cujus idea cum nullum eluceat principium internum motus, propterea naturam corpoream in supremam omnium causam necessario esse conferendam. Respondent Providentiæ oppugnatores, licet id in idea corporis non eluceat, non eo tamen fieri ut fortasse non insit; neque enim a nobis rerum essentiæ penitus comprehendi. Quod autem in idea rei non percipitur id de eadem certo nec affirmari posse nec negari. Similis est locus de essentia animorum, quorum spiritualitatem demonstrare conantur, propterea quod in re corporea nulla cogitandi facultas intelligatur, quæ tamen in animo reperitur, itaque eum non esse corpo-

ream

rem. Adversarii contra ideam referunt: quamquam nos in corpore vim non percipiamus, tamen forte inesse; itaque rem in dubio relinquendam. Neque me latet quemadmodum nostri se se defendant contendentes ita claram et distinctam ideam utriusque rei haberi ut simul clare comprehendatur neque vim sese movendi repraesentandi posse esse corpori [Verum de his suo loco ubi de Anima et de Deo agemus, fusius pertractabimus] Ista quamquam non aspernor, quis tamen non intelligit multum ad utramque rem addita iri praesidii si illud ipsum ex adversariorum maxime extra [illegible] principia: Sit igitur [illegible]

Propositio. [illegible]

Per unum sensum intimum potest de aliis singularibus prudenter affirmari, de aliis vero negari, etiam id quod in eorum clara et distincta idea non exstat.

Sic ostendo. Sine claritate et distinctione idearum potest per unum sensum intimum recte affirmari aut negari rerum existentia; ergo sine claritate et distinctione idearum poterit etiam eodem intimo sensu duce aliquid de earum essentia affirmari aut negari. Pr. Ant. Clara et distincta idea, ut vulgo definiunt ea est, in qua attributi cum subjecto identitas deprehenditur; at potest rerum existentia affirmari, quin existentiae identitatem cum ipsa rei notione aut imagine unquam reperiamus. Nonne enim affirmandum in ceteris corporibus humanis, quae videmus, naturae animum, et principium cogitandi simile nostro? procul dubio. Ubinam vero invenies connexionem necessariam inter existentiam corporis et animi? nusquam plane. Analogia ducimur, ut cum videas eadem motione incitari humani corporis quae in meo, a simili causa utrumque proficisci concludas. Optima vero argumentandi ratio, si quidem sensu intimo nititur sine clara et distincta idea prorsus futilis. Quis enim Deum nonne potuit ita comparare, ut in te animus esset causa horum omnium motionum in ceteris autem corporibus quamquam similibus ex mera organorum dispositione orti existerent, id quod in brutis fieri existimant Cartesiani? Potuit equidem vere tamen nulla ratio occurrit cur Deum ita fecisse putem, plurima vero [illegible] eadem nam si omnes eas rationes non efficiunt, ut Deus animam quoque ceteris indere corporibus fuerit, nusquam connexionem in qua clara et distincta idea posita est reperire poteris, nusquam necessariam coexistentiam corporis humani atque animi. Atqui id Deus pro certissimo affirmare ceteros quoque non minus animo constare quam corpore ergo quarundam rerum existentia prudenter affirmari potest, et debet, sine claritate et distinctione idearum.

idearum, cur non igitur et essentia? nisi vero graviora argumenta sapienter potuerit ubi de essentiis iudicandum est quam ubi de existentiis. Age nunc videamus etiam alterum: quemadmodum rerum existentia negari potest etiam sine claris et distinctis ideis, ergo et essentia. Quaero enim negari ne sapienter potest v. c. plures animos in aliis huma-nis corporibus reperiri? sine controversia neque minus insaniat qui contra animos in re-liquis hominibus fortasse esse suspicatur, quam qui nullos. At quamnam habes rei claram et distinctam ideam? nonne similiter potuit naturae auctor plures caeteris impertiri animos, et potuit nullos?
quis dubitat: nam quod ad coniecturas attinet illas ex congenito sensu, ex naturae impulsione et instinctu vis, expendere gravissimae quidem sunt, sin cum idearum ratione et vi comparare omnino fluxae. Quae cum ita sint quid prohibet quominus eadem assentiendi necessitas nos adducat ad aliquid attribuendum de quadam essentia negandum, v. g. de materia cogitationem et motum? Hoc enimvero inquies semper negari potest ad id indicandum rationem a natura moveri: proinde ac si eodem modo ab homine imprudenti et pertinaci non illa quoque negari possint quae [illegible] commemoravimus de existentiis. Caeterum non huius loci est ostendere [illegible] in rebus instinctu reperiri, quo duce affirmemus aut negemus vim se se movendi aut cogitandi ad essentiam corporum pertinere. Illud nobis erat quod proposi-tum erat planum fecimus: tametsi in idea corporis nulla ratio necessaria affulgeret cur has facultates ab eius natura rescinderemus tamen ex alio fonte argumentum duci posse, quibus id efficiatur, ex eodem, inquam, intimo sensu qui etiam idearum claritate, et distincti-one sublata, nos tamen ad quasdam existentias modo affirmandas modo negandas impellit.
Obiic. p.o sine clara et distincta idea non potest rerum essentia demonstrari ergo nec affirmari.
Resp.o Concesso ant. nego consequentiam. Demonstratio enim, ut a Philosophis, accipitur ea est in qua idearum rerum, sive idearum connexio, et identitas ex identitate quam habent cum una tertia idea distincte et aperte distingui ostenditur: quae profecto locum non habet ubi idea essentiae et substantiae [illegible] demonstratio minime necessaria est ad fir-mam et constantem assensionem, atq. adeo ad certitudinem quae vita regitur, aliter ne af-firmandum quidem esset corpora exstare, quandoquidem id more Geometrico demonstrari non potest. Hoc autem nimium est, in quo plerique falluntur cum de rerum evidentia, quae in demonstratione ita et tantopere laborant, ut interim cum Mathematicam ad caelum efferant, quae tanta perspicuitate gloriatur, quasi ea ubi illa desit, animus acquiescere non possit, ne docente quidem ipsa voce naturae. Ita inde quaesita est demonstratio im-mortalitatis

immortalitati animorum amplissimis etiam propositis praemiis, neque tamen adhuc quidquam afferri potuit in ea re, quod omnibus satisfaceret. Nec mirum. Etenim cum ipsa creationis obscuritas efficit tum illud potissimum quod in Dei potestate est animos in nihilum redigere quod non esse facturum non per ullam ideam nobis necessario innotescit. Verum non hac via mihi incedendum videtur, sed illud potius semper videndum, an quae in hac obscuritas reperitur eadem inveniatur in rebus aliis, quae tamen ab omnibus pro certis habendae sunt; tum attendendum eodem intimo sensu, quo ad cetera quae obscura sunt affirmanda ducimur, etiam inducamur numquam fore ut animi destruantur. Tum enim adversarii aut illa etiam negare debebunt, quae semper sunt certissima existimata, aut hoc etiam quod illis iuncta est ultro concedere.

Obiic. 2°. Ita sensu intimo abutendum fiet, ut aut nemo unquam de ulla assertione convinci possit, quippe negabit se cogi ad id quod volumus affirmandum, aut etiam unique quidlibet comminiscenti ea defensio in promptu sit sibi ita per sensum intimum persuaderi, quo modo invehitur privatus ille spiritus Protestantium ab Ecclesia condemnatus.

Respondeo nullum incommodum ex nostra sententia consequi, aut etiam ubicunque ex adversariorum. Aut enim homines quibuscum disputabitur ex animo loqui volent, aut simulatione uti. Si ex animo: quemadmodum in multis rebus, quarum demonstratio fieri nequit, fatentur se quodam instinctu duci ad firmam assertionem, velut in iis exemplis, quae in probatione attulimus, ita facient etiam in reliquis: sin in impudentissima simulatione perstare, non minus negare poterunt demonstrationem atque ideas quamvis perspicuas, quam sensum intimum: praesertim cum per eum unum dicamus, quasnam ideae clarae et distinctae sint, quaenam secus. Similiter quidquid negari placuerit, somniari, delirare, repugnare poterunt, ac testari id sibi esse evidens ac perspicuum, quod Stoici, teste Cicerone, faciebant, sua omnia placita atque commenta tam certa esse contendentes, quam ipsa principia cognitionum. Nam quod attinet ad spiritum illum privatum, haereticorum non minus condemnati sunt, quod per humanam rationem divinos libros explicari posse tanta cum evidentia contenderent ut nihil supremo Ecclesiae iudicio atque auctoritate opus sit: an propterea ne ratio quidem humana in philosophando est adhibenda? quis autem non intelligit istos turpissime errare quod cum ad dirimendas lites de religione, atque ad unitatem Fidei retinendam ea librorum interpretatio necessaria esset, quae nullum dubitationi locum relinqueret, quaeque in Ecclesia posita est, ipsi hanc repudiantes privatam rationem et ingenium suffecerunt.

[illegible] illa [illegible] in [illegible] rerum [illegible], quarum clara et distincta idea non habetur nunquam potest, aut [illegible] potuit [illegible] natura nos aliquid de [illegible] affirmare cogeret, non tantopere de iisdem Philosophi dissiderent, velut in quaestione de essentia corporum et spirituum, qua de re magnae semper dissensiones fuerunt.

Resp. [illegible], si quid valet, etiam contra ideas perspicuas [illegible] quas non pauci auctores illas esse negarunt, Academici, Pyrrhonii, Sceptici [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel insania [illegible] impudentia faciat, ut ne perspicuitas quidem pro certa regula [illegible] possit! Caeterum [illegible] et negare certum, [illegible] ex animo, [illegible] in omnium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adest in nullius potestate est. Quod autem aliquid [illegible] [illegible] dicunt in quaestione de [illegible] aut alia ejusmodi re nonnihil reperiri obscuritatis [illegible] [illegible], causa non [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] non habent quare nec demonstratione possunt confici [illegible] [illegible] in existentia corporum [illegible] neque tamen ea [illegible] [illegible], quo praedictam affirmet, modo ostenditur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quia quoniam non semper quo fuerit intelligitur [illegible] [illegible] argu-mentatione [illegible] est, tum [illegible] [illegible] explicationis. Quemadmodum [illegible] [illegible] omnes homines natura duci ad affirmandum esse Deum, non tamen [illegible] est quod omnes populi dicant nullum enim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negent, [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] motiones animorum atque affectiones [illegible] [illegible] necessario trahuntur ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quidam infinitae appetitioni atque alia ejusmodi.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in universum [illegible] [illegible] singulos [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible]
tempus est Logicam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ~~[illegible] [illegible]~~ [illegible] [illegible] ~~[illegible] quaedam~~
~~[illegible]~~

Quarta [illegible] [illegible] Dialecticae.

De Methodo

Ut rem totam quam paucissimis expediam, utque quam planissimam meam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ab metaphysica [illegible], opera [illegible] me [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Francisci Jaquier [illegible] [illegible] nostrae Philosophi exemplum, cujus totam hanc de methodo tractationem ex [illegible] [illegible] desumptam [illegible] nihil enim in eo genere perfectius fieri posse [illegible]. Ea autem, in quatuor partes distribuitur: [illegible] prima est de Methodo Analytica, altera de usu Hypotheseon, tertia de Methodo Synthetica et postrema de methodo doctrinae. Atque ut singulas explicemus anianimadvertendum est quid Methodi nomine veniat. Methodus enim generatim definitur via et ratio inveniendi veri, quod adhuc latet, et aliis explicandi cum iam inventum est, seu est actus mentis ideas suas, iudicia, et ratiocinationes ordinandi, sive ad inveniendum quod ignotum est, sive ad id quod est compertum exponendum. Ratio ergo qua aliquam veritatem latentem proprio marte detegimus ea est quae graeca voce Methodus analytica dicitur, latine resolutio, hoc est, rei cuiuspiam in suas causas aut principia aut partes reductio: per hanc enim a compositis ad simplicia continua resolutione quasi per gradus descendimus. Methodo hac utimur tum in examinanda propositione aliqua ut determinemus an vera sit, tum in solvenda aliqua quaestione. In utroque casu eadem via tenenda est. Itaque debemus ab eo, quod proponitur per gradus descendere ad propositionem nobis planissime notam, ut pateat utrum illud quod examinamus, aut detegimus cum hac propositione perspicua cohaereat an non, etc. cum ex huius propositionis perspicuae evidentia colligi poterit an id quod proponitur admitti, aut reiici debeat. Maxima autem cura peragi debemus ratiocinatio, donec perveniatur ad propositionem planissime notam, ita ut de eius veritate nullum supersit dubium. Ubi eo pervenimus proposito satisfactum est. In omni vero examine debemus ordine procedere, quare iuxta certas regulas cogitationes dirigendae sunt: hoc autem praemonere debemus inutiliter tentari examen quaestionis cuiusvis, nisi plane de ipsis rebus, circa quas versatur quaestio nobis nota fuerint. Iam sit ...

Regula 1. Status quaestionis bene intelligendus et determinandus est.

Quod ut fiat necessarium est singulas voces quibus quaestio continetur probe intelligi eo sensu quo in proposita quaestione adhibentur. Ex. gr. quaeritur in Physicis causa soni: haec quaestio ut intelligatur sensus vocis expendendus, et accurate is determinandus est. Quaeritur quomodo ego percipiam sonum quem campana percussa emittit? nulla in voce reperitur difficultas si vocem hanc sonus definiamus, ita autem sensus determinari potest, vel agitur de sono quem campana emittit vel de sono quem ego audio; hic autem ultimus est perceptio mentis, et nihil simile in campana existit. non ergo eodem sensu vox haec in utroque casu adhibetur. Satis nunc notum est quid sit sonus, intelligamus quando de sensatione agitur, facile proinde istaec per sonum in campana intelligi illum quod in campana datur dum ego audio et quo mediante sonum [illegible] est: quod hoc sit in [illegible] proposita quaestione quaerendum erit. [illegible] video me [illegible] examen huius quaestionis inutiliter incipere, nisi quaedam mihi sint perspecta, quae [illegible] pertinent, satis autem est novisse sensationem soni pendere a nervi audi: torii agitatione, et cum auris sit auditus organum, nervus hic in illo ipso organo [illegible] est: quaestione ita bene intellecta, ad secunda regula transeundum est.

Regula II Quaestio est [illegible] et [illegible] et quam simplicissime exprimenda.

Quod ut fiat a quaestione removendum est id omne quod a simplici et abstracta propo: sitionis consideratione abducere potest; et supplendum illud est, quod non satis clare exprimitur. V. G. in quaestione proposita de sono, negligere debemus ideam [illegible], quam in sa locum habere supra vidimus; removenda autem idea [illegible], qui in ipsa cam: pana concipitur et [illegible] ut ad eandem ipsius quod quaeritur [illegible], ita quaestionem exprimimus. Quaeritur quomodo in [illegible] campanae motus [illegible] in aure talis, qui sonus [illegible] possit?

Regula III Ideae diversae in quaestione [illegible], quantum fieri potest separandae sunt, et quaestio in plures partes [illegible]

[illegible] haec magnam habet utilitatem, huius ope difficultas semper minuitur et saepe omni: no tollitur, si modo talis adhibeatur resolutio quae ex natura subjecti quaestionis [illegible] tamen id necesse omnino esse, ut totam quaestionem propositam contineant quaestiones peculi: ares simul sumptae, in quas ipsa quaestio tota resolvitur. Divisio omnium maxime perfecta est quae fit in duo membra affirmando et negando: talis est divisio: omne quod est habet initium, aut non habet initium, quae quidem regula ad subdivisiones etiam transferri potest. [illegible] dubium nullum esse potest circa divisionem cuius membra conjuncta rem integram dividendam componunt. Haec tamen divisio a naturali divisione quae res ipsa indicat aliquando [illegible], ut statim in exemplo de sono videbimus. Cavendum in divisione ne membrum unum in alio contineatur, quod quidem id monuimus ubi explicatae sunt divisi: onis leges [illegible] cavendum quoque ne in subdivisionum multiplicatione oriatur confusio major quam si omnis partitio neglecta fuisset. In exemplo de sono quod examinare [illegible] quaestionem in tres partes resolvimus. 1 quid contingat campanae, et quid [illegible] 2 [illegible] et communicatio inter campanam et aurem, et quomodo 3 quid in ipsa aure contingat.

Regula IV Ideae mediae quaerendae sunt quibus peculiares quaestiones solvi possint, et singulae ad determinatam propositionem [illegible].

In hunc finem debemus in memoriam revocare quae scimus de argumento quod tractatur, nota sunt, ne iis quidem praetermissis quae ad hoc relationem quamminimam habent, ut ex iis mutuemur ideas quae in praesenti examine occurrere possunt. ita in exemplo praecedenti primum examinavimus quae ad campanam pertinent, et detegimus corpora elastica, et quidem [illegible] sonum emittere, itaut semper necessarius sit tremulus partium motus.

In examine autem eiusdem quaestionis de communicatione inter campanam et aurem observandum est an hoc ipsum, cui communicatio quam quaerimus tribuenda est, sub sensus cadere possit, aut non: si non cadit sub sensus, a nobis detegi non potest, et quaestionis solutio frustra tentatur. examinandum igitur quomodo sub sensus cadat. [illegible] constat campanam nihil sensibile emittere, quare nihil praeter lumen et aerem superest examinandum: nihil enim inter campanam et aurem, praeter haec duo detegimus, quod sub sensus cadat. Sed sonus in tenebris non tollitur ne debilitatur quidem, ergo solus aer examinandus nunc est. Si autem in machina pneumatica tollatur aer, sonus evanescit [illegible] causa soli dictam communicationem esse tribuendam manifestum nunc est. Sed quomodo hoc fit, vel translato ipso aere, vel hoc non translato? primum falsum esse facile probatur, ergo per aerem, et quidem per hunc non translatum communicatio datur inter aurem et campanam.

Nunc de aure agendum est. in hac detegimus cavitatem externam apertam aere repletam, interne canaliculi cuius extremum interius clauditur membrana tympanum dicta, atque postea separat hanc anteriorem auris cavitatem ab interiori, quae erat aerem continet. Per hoc reperiuntur canales [illegible], modo peculiari dispositi ex materia elastica [illegible] [illegible] quoque [illegible] occurrunt quae agitantur ubi tympanum percussum motu tremulo afficitur. Tandem in interiori hoc cavo terminari et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] observe [illegible] ramos nervorum, cuius agitationi perceptionem soni tribuimus.

Regula V. Singularum propositionum facta collatione, debemus harum numerum minuere donec ad unicam perveniamus quae contineat id quod de quaestione proposita inquirere possumus.

Sic in quaestione de [illegible] agitur de motu nervi in prima propositione habemus motum tremulo partium corporis percussi [illegible] tribui debere. ergo in hoc motu requiritur motus nervi. in secunda propositione habemus communicationem inter corpus percussum et aurem dari mediante aere, id est motum per aerem transferri ad aurem et quidem non translato aere. Iste propositiones nunc coniungendae sunt determinando quomodo motus per aerem non translatum propagari possit. Aurem attentius considerando detegimus huic per motum corporis sonori communicari motum analogum cum motu undulatorio qui in superficie fluidi injecto corpore generatur: hic aeris motus quaquaversum se se expandit per lineas rectas in quibus singulae particulae per breve spatium eunt, et ad pristinum locum redeunt ibique quiescunt; haec si conjungantur cum iis, quae de campana jam determinata sunt facile percipitur continuari per elasticitatem partium motum in aere produci repetitas undas, ita ut singulae particulae variis vicibus eant et redeant, motumque hunc propagari quaquaversum et sic ad aurem pervenire. Jam vero duae antea fuerant propositiones. 1. Quod cum auditur sonus semper adest tremulus partium motus, hoc motu sublato sonus non auditur. Secunda propositio fuit: per aerem, et quidem per hunc non translatum fit communicatio inter aurem et campanam: duas illas propositiones ad hanc unicam reductas nunc habemus. quando campana percutitur, eo ipso particulae aereae, quae in cavo interiori auris continentur, et quae ipsi tympano adjacent, agitantur, variisque vicibus eunt et redeunt, et tympanum percutiunt.

Ulterius progrediendum est et haec propositio cum tertia propositione de aure nunc conferri debet, ita ut propositiones omnes ad unicam reductas habeamus. Hoc igitur modo pergere debemus. Quando tympanum motu tremulo afficitur, minora quaedam ossa agitantur, ipsius aeris interiori auris cavo contentae particulae eunt, et redeunt, et motus aeris undulatorius, mediante agitatione tympani ulterius propagatur etiam in canales penetrat, ita ut superficies interna totius cavi, et omnium canalium in singulis punctis ab adjacente aere singulis vicibus percutiatur, et propter materiae osseae elasticitatem omnia in aure motu tremulo afficiantur, quem quidem motum ipsi nervo cohaerenti communicari necesse est. Ad illustrandas Methodi analyticae regulas accommodatissimum est exemplum illud, et ex hoc ipso manifestum est regulas inutiles esse, nisi materia ipsa probe nota sit. Illae enim indicant cui potissimum quaestionis parti animus sit applicandus, quid recte consideretur, et quo ordine ratiocinia sint dirigenda, ut quaestionem solvamus, aut determinemus quousque penetrare concedatur, ne inutilem operam impendamus tentando quae vires superant nostras. Ita quando ea quorum materia probe nota est, dicta sunt satis. Quum non desint ex plurimis quae dum eas examinare suscipimus nullam spem [illegible] viam, qua directe ad certitudinem pervenire possumus, nec etiam ad

probabilitatem

probabilitatem, nisi adhibeamus hypotheses, quae quidem ad talem deducunt probabilitatem, quae pro certitudine habenda sit, quomodo ergo hinc procedendum sit nunc dicemus, ne abusu hypotheseon pro ipso usu habeatur.

De usu Hypotheseon

Per hypothesin intelligimus figmentum aliquod quo quaestioni propositae respondetur. Deinde fictum illud responsum tractari debet quasi verum esset, et ratiocinia ita dirigenda sunt, ut occasio detur explorandi an hypothesis vera sit; nunquam enim huic assensum dare debemus, nisi plenissime de veritate constiterit. Magnum usum haec ratiocinandi methodus habere potest, sed, ut nunquam ea abutantur homines

Regula I. Accurate examinandum est argumentum, circa quod versatur Quaestio, cujusque cognitio satis ampla desideratur.

Omne quod per Hypothesin detegimus probabile tantum est. magnitudo autem probabilitatis pendet a numero circumstantiarum quae exponi possunt. ita ut, nisi plures dentur probabilitas nunquam magna sit. posito autem majori harum numero, omne dubium removeri potest

Regula II. Inter circumstantias debemus quasdam seligere principuas, quae nempe per se aliquid notabile habent et tales circumstantiae ante alias examinari debent. Ex his iterum una separatur, et quaerimus quasdam causas ex quibus haec circumstantia deduci queat. In seligendis autem quaestionis explicandae circumstantiis summa attentione opus est. Enim si quaestioni satisfaciant plures hypotheses, ita ut una magis quam altera vera non videatur, in dubio relinquimur. Hoc vero incommode magis est metuendum si considerentur circumstantiae, quae multas hypotheses admittunt, tum enim difficilius enumerantur hypotheses omnes, et explicatio vera facilius praetermittitur. Quamobrem ejusmodi circumstantias perspicere expedit, quae paucissimis modis se explicari patiantur ne in difficiles variarum hypotheseon ambages incurramus, certissima autem via ad veritatem perveniemus si tales circumstantias seligere contigerit, quae unico modo explicari possint. &c

Regula III. Examinandum an inter has causas quaedam detur, ex qua reliquae circumstantiae, ex praecepto regulae secundae, sequuntur si talis datur, operam afficit hypothesin explorandi

Exemplum.

Exemplum. Hugenius cum planetam Saturnum saepius observasset, et vidisset eum nunc aliquando rotundum, saepius ansis munitum apparere, latitudinemque ansarum variari, aliasque peculiares horum phenomenorum circumstantias notasset, horum omnium quaesivit causam, examinando modos quibus hae ansae explicari possint, detexit, globum in aliqua distantia circumdatum annulo, commune centrum habente cum globo ansis ornatum apparere, quarum latitudo major aut minor est pro diverso oculi situ, et inde reliquas perpendendo circumstantias percepit globum talem rotundum apparere, id est ansas evanescere, si planum annuli tenue sit, et ita positum ut continuatum per oculum transiret, aut si non illuminetur superficies supra quam oculus elevatur. Potuit tunc vir doctissimus hypothesim hanc explorandam, annulo tali Saturnum circumdari.

Saepe contingit inter causas quas perpendendas suscepimus nullam dari, quae reliquis circumstantiis separatim satisfaciat, tunc aliae causae quaerendae sunt, et quidem successive omnes causae, quas singulae circumstantiae suppeditare possunt considerandae sunt, donec una detegatur quae circumstantiis omnibus satisfaciat. Summa sagacitas hic desideratur quamvis aliquando felici casu sponte quasi nobis occurrat illud quod quaerimus.

Reg. IV Exploratur hypothesis, hanc transferendo ad omnes alias circumstantias cognitas, ut constet an omnibus satisfaciat.

Satis non est hypothesim aliis satisfacere circumstantiis separatis, si non quoque omnibus reliquis conveniat rejicienda est. Si vero et his satisfaciat a numero circumstantiarum pendebit judicium de ipsa hypothesi. Si enim minor sit hic numerus suspicio dari poterit aliam forte dari posse hypothesim, quae eodem modo phenomenis respondeat; crescente autem phenomenorum numero, suspicio omnis saepe evanescit. acquiescendum hinc erit, et quod nihil ut fides tantum considerari poterit nunc pro plenissima probato habendum erit. Si minor sit circumstantiarum numerus, indicata suspicio ope regulae sequentis saepe removetur.

Reg. V Ipsa hypothesis est examinanda et ex hac consequentiae deducendae sunt, ut nova phenomena detegantur, et explorandum an hae revera locum habeant.

Hypothesis de annulo Saturni non tantum explicavit phenomena jam observata, et cum minimis circumstantiis convenit, at et phenomena ex hacce hypothesi venientia in caelis postea fuere observata, ita ut Hugenius apparentias Saturni praedixerit, horum singularum tempora determinaverit quibus omnibus extra dubium posuit quæ de annulo ipse primum finxerat. Si autem neque auxilio regulæ alterius numerus phenomenorum satis augeri possit, ut omnis scrupulus removeatur, hypothesis inter incerta, aut verisimilia relinqui debet, prout probabilitas eius minor aut maior est; quod ex ipsis phenomenis, et ab horum numero pendet. Ex his patet ratiocinium hypotheticum ad certitudinem deduci posse, et illos errare qui ea omnia ad probabilitatem referunt; magis autem errant qui ratiocinia ex observatis phænomenis immediate deducta ad hypotheses referunt, et probabilitatem tantum continere dicunt. — Ars ratiocinandi per hypotheses præcipue conducit ubi determinare incipimus, quid homines in mente habeant, et quid eos ad agendum impellat. Circa quod tamen observandum est, non tale quid tentare debere illum, qui ab hominum cœtu et conversatione remotus vivit, aut qui cum paucis tantum hominibus res gerendas habuit; licet enim de generum hominum factis quæ scripto consignata sunt, tota vitam consumpserit ad hoc quoque serio attendendum est, nunquam nisi ex circumstantiis notis esse ratiocinandum, minimasque circumstantias, quæ hisce ratiociniis maximum lumen afferunt, attendere.

De Methodo Synthetica

Synthetica methodus usu venit, quoties ea quæ in mente habemus aliis explicare incipimus; vulgo notum est quantum eiusdem rei explicationes varias auditores aut lectores diverse afficiant; cum clare unam perspiciant et aliam non intelligant, quamvis iisdem nominibus res eædem designentur, et nihil in una detur quod non in alia reperiatur; differentia in ipsa methodo quærenda est. Methodus autem synthetica in hoc ab Analytica differt, quod quamvis in utraque fiat semper a notioribus ad minus nota progressus, in analysi tamen res primo specialim expenditur, ut ad communes notiones fiat gradus, in synthesi vero generalim primum, deinde specialim res considerantur. Si enim de speciebus sermo haberetur priusquam esset de genere disputatum, cum speciei natura ultra generis notitiam intelligi nequeat, sæpius de eadem re nempe de genere foret dicendum, quod molestiam et confusionem pareret, et id quod ubique quærimus, ordinem, penitus adversaretur. Quamobrem a simplicioribus et communioribus initium semper ducendum est, tum ad specialia magisque composita veniendum.

Verum ut perfectum exemplar syntheticae methodi ob oculos ponatur, ea Geometris est repetendum: nam nullibi res majori ordine pertractantur, nec accuratioribus demonstrationibus muniuntur quam in Geometricis. — Tria vero praestare solent Geometrae, ut accurate obtineant. 1° nomina omnia quibus utuntur definiunt, ne ulla in iis ambiguitas relinquatur. 2° quaedam axiomata seu notiones communes, quas nemo in dubium revocare possit, adhibent. 3° propositiones omnes demonstrant, vel ope definitionum et axiomatum, quae illo lumine naturali percipiuntur; vel aliarum propositionum, quae per istas definitiones et axiomata fuerunt comprobatae, ex quibus ope consectaria, seu corollaria ut vocant, deducunt. His proinde tribus continetur perfectissima demonstrandi ratio. Demonstratio enim ut vulgo definiunt, est ratiocinatio vel ratiocinationum series constans ex praemissis necessario veris, hoc est vel per se evidentibus, vel per alias propositiones jam probatis, ex quibus necessario verum infertur conclusio. — Duplex autem praecipue assignari solet demonstrationis species altera a priori et per causam, altera a posteriori et per effectum. Demonstratio a priori est ea, qua effectus per causam, proprietas per essentiam seu naturam, denique consequens per antecedens clare ostenditur. Demonstratio a posteriori est ea, qua causa per effectus, natura per proprietates, aut functiones: antecedens demum probatur per id quod ex ipso consequitur. Ad hanc speciem demonstrationis revocari potest demonstratio per absurdum seu impossibile. Ut igitur argumentum aliquod, seu materia vel scientia accurate et secundum syntheticae methodi regulas aeque pertractetur, plures praescribuntur regulae, quarum cum aliquae ad definitiones, aliae ad axiomata, et aliae ad argumentationem aut methodum ita pertineant ut eaedem prope sint cum illis quas suis locis attulimus quum de illis ageremus, pateat eas denuo, ac id quod est quarti hujus, ad agendum scilicet

De Methodo discendi.

Si credi possit dari homines, qui exacte easdem ideas haberent, ut hic omne credibile est: ii utique de omnibus eodem modo sentirent. Nemo inter ideas, quas ipse habet, illas discernere potest, quas alii homines conspiciunt. Usus tamen indicare

-tionem debet, qui rem alii explicare suscipit. Non enim ille omnes ideas potest memorare, ad quas attendit; innumerae vulgares sunt quas ideo ponit aliis quoque praesentes, fieri ubi occasio datur. In facile viam hac error dari potest, quia frequenter homines sibi persuadent alios non ignorare, quae ipsis quotidiana sunt. Haec est causa quare illa quae exponuntur, quamvis hoc clare et distincte fiat, non semper eodem sensu, quo traduntur, recipiantur ab iis, quibus explicantur, qui hi non semper integram vim argumentorum percipiunt: et quis determinavit ubi defectus detur? Hac de causa saepius cognitionem nobis tradi acquirimus, repetitis examinibus, et inter se comparare variorum auctorum nec concurrentium, seu dissentientium opiniones. Singuli quidem quasdam ideas negligunt, quas notas ponunt; sed non easdem omnes negligunt, ita ut tali collatione, tandem acquiramus omnes ideas, quae ad perfectam subjecti intelligentiam necessariae sunt.

Non autem satis est, quae ab aliis nobis explicantur intelligimus; proposita argumenta meditatione nobis quasi propria fieri debent; et quas acquirimus cognitiones cum iis, quae nobis aliunde nota sunt, cohaereant. — Propositio mihi proponitur, argumenta mihi valida apparent, ipsam admitto; sed non percipio hanc cum alia pugnare, quam pro vera habeo. Novam tamen admittere non possum nisi antiquam cum omnibus consequentiis iterum examinaverim. error datur. sed ubi? hoc determinandum, aut in dubio haerendum est. Si ad haec homines attenderent, non tot opiniones inter se pugnantes admitterent. Multi memoriae tantum imprimunt quae audiunt, aut legunt. Argumentis saepius utuntur, quorum debilitatem in aliis occasionibus agnoscunt, dum argumenta omnino similia, sed alii subjecto applicata rejiciunt.

Sequentes autem regulae illum adjuvare possunt, qui veram rerum cognitionem acquirere serio sibi proponit.

Regula 1.a Ut scientiae alicui animum applicamus, laborare debemus, ut acquiramus ideas quae ad hanc pertinent, et quidem quo possumus meliori ordine dispositas, ita ut generalem quandam ideam totius scientiae habeamus.

Haec prima cognitio propria memoriae spectat, de ratiociniorum firmitate nondum agitur. Facillime hanc cognitionem acquirimus, dum audiendo Magistrum. Et tantum historica est; nullam autem veram possumus sperare scientiam, antequam tale generale systema memoriae impressum sit. Id serio curare debemus, ut mentem acquiramus illius, qui scientiam nobis explicat. Qui [illegible] antequam sibi proponit, in alterationem materiae paratam habere debet.

Reg. II Post inventis primis, secundis Scientiæ ineundum est examen, ipsius fundamenta perpendendo, et eius argumentorum examinando, etiamsi perquirere quid his opponi possit, et quo ipsis major vis communicetur; nullumque in hoc secundo examine admittendum argumentum, nisi quod non clare percipiatur.

Qui has adhibet cautelas, numquam argumentum in una causa admittit, quod simile in alio rejicit.

Reg. III. Ubi iam quis certas quæ ad propositam Scientiam pertinent, acquisivit ideas, ad rerum relationes, et ad Propositionum connexiones, peculiari modo attendere debet ut ordine hæc omnia disponat, et ibi, quasi perspicue sistat Scientiæ Systema. Ad hoc cum nos a ordinatione regulæ in capite præcedenti explicatæ magnum usum habent. Qui hanc tandem ingenii acquirit, facile determinabit, quid certum, quid incertum in Scientia detur, quod clarum est facile separabit ab obscuro. Qui ex rerum cum studio litterarum mentem habet facile diversarum scientiarum relationes percipit, et omnia quæ novit cohærent inter se.

Reg. IV Quando quis postea novas acquirit circa hanc scientiam ideas, has referre debet ad illas cum quibus relationem habent.

Non satis est novas acquirere ideas, quæ ad scientiam, cui animum applicavimus, pertinent; cavere debemus ne cum his confusio oriatur, dum iis quas ante acquisivimus iunguntur. Ad Systema, quod iam in mente habemus, novæ ideæ referri debent, et singulis proprius quasi locus est assignandus quod attente evidentissime fieri debet, quia ipsis frequenter alia nova deteguntur [illegible]

Reg. V. Paratus ad corrigendos errores animus servandus est

Quamcumque cum cura rerum examini animum applicemus, ubi agitur de integra Scientia vix possibile est omnia, eadem attentione perpendere, et errores omnino omnes effugere supra humanas est. Continua igitur idea, ad corrigendos errores, residentur attentio. Numquam examen illorum declinare debemus, quæ ad evertendas opiniones nostras, aut contrarias defendendas, proponuntur. Numquam quando contrariam sententiam reperimus, propositionem rejicere debemus hac sola de causa, quia cum nostro Systemate non congruit sed ipsius Systematis contrarii fundamenta examinanda sunt; si enim valida sint et nostri systematis debilitatem demonstrarent, hoc ipsum rejiciendum fuit

Ad Methaphysicam

Praefatio

[illegible] cogitandi tradita, iam cogitationes [illegible] ad eam disciplinam, quae [illegible] inter ceteras principem locum tenet, nempe ad Methaphisicam convertamus ut qui perceptiones, iudicione, ratiocinationes, atque methodo [illegible] sit quam primum appareat.
Methaphisica enim prima Philosophia a nonnullis, ab aliis Scientia generalis apellata est atque ita communiter definitur: Sapientia vel scientia speculativa quae circa ens generatim, illiusque affectiones per mentem abstractas; specialim vero circa substantias spirituales, prout naturali ratione cognosci possunt occupatur. et merito quidem Sapientiae nomine definitur. Nam illa Sapientia dici debet, quae superior quaedam scientia est et circa ultimas, hoc est generalissimas vel excellentissimas perfectissima principia, aut ratione occupatur, ea est Methaphysica [illegible] tractatio in ente generatim sumpto, quo nihil est [illegible] inter [illegible], et in omnis rebus explicandis quibus nihil est excellentius versatur. Cum vero res eiusmodi immutabiles sint et immutabilibus rationibus innixa, cognitio quoque earum certa et evidens sit necesse est, adeoque vera et perfecta Scientia optime apellatur. Neque minus primae philosophiae, generalis scientiae, et ceterarum disciplinarum parentinomen ei convenit, cum ea sit quae primas [illegible] mentis notiones ac principia percipiat, quaeque primo ceteris omnibus principia [illegible] axiomata [illegible] [illegible] sunt, unde suas petunt demonstrationes, suppeditat et [illegible] adeoque universis [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] singulis [illegible] suppeditat. Cum his autem [illegible] est [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] quanto [illegible] quamque [illegible] [illegible] connexio, [illegible] prima, [illegible] est
[illegible] prima [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] enim circa mentis [illegible], primasque [illegible] notiones aut perceptiones est occupata [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] institutum est, et Logicae statim Methaphisica [illegible] [illegible] quae natura con-[illegible] Methodo [illegible]. Cum autem Metaphisica in [illegible] [illegible] sunt, [illegible] distributa sit quarum altera Ontologia, hoc est de entibus altera partes [illegible] de spiritibus tractatus, vocatur. [illegible] Ontologiam in Pneumatica [illegible] [illegible] tum quia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a communis [illegible] [illegible] tum quia [illegible] hanc [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad Pneumaticam quae [illegible] est [illegible], quanto [illegible] [illegible]

Metaphysica seu Prima, sive Ontologia.

Ontologia, quam philosophiae primam vel scientiam generalem, vel intelligentiam etiam apellamus, ea est quae prima principia, primasque humanae mentis notiones circa ens generatim tradit, quibus in omni ratiocinatione utimur, eaque [illegible] naturalis dici potest vel artificialis. Quemadmodum enim Dialectica illa quam a natura omnes accepere quaeque [illegible] humana industria atque labore [illegible] homini, naturalis vocatur; artificialis vero, illa in qua animae vario et diligentia quaedam adhibetur: ita Ontologia naturalis illa dici potest qua ontologicis vocabulis in sermone familiari et usu communi homines utuntur, quorum vocabulorum confusas tantum leges retinent, neque accuratam possunt definitionem afferre: contraria vero artificialis illa quae notiones confusas ad distinctas revocat et propositiones vagas ad determinatas reducit. Quae si notiones distinctas et propositiones determinatas quanta conferant ad omnem scientiam quam nihil [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ Ontologiae artificialis nihil opus est quod pluribus demonstretur, cum plane constet utilitas, vel primoribus labris, ut aiunt, res philosophicas attingenti. Sit igitur

Caput I. De Ente generatim

Ens generatim spectatum illud definitur quod est res aliqua, vel substantia: sive id quod per se subsistit. Res enim omnes nec nobis cognitae fuerint, aut ignotae hoc commune habent quod ipsae sint. Hoc existentiam hoc ipsum esse existere vocant Philosophi; et entis nomine designant illud quod est. Qua ratione entis generatim sumpti ideam acquirimus per abstractionem iam in propositione II in qua de primis intelligentiis agitur satis est explicatum. Diximus enim nos alicuius rei ideam per abstractionem acquirere, quando non ad omnia quae necessario ad eam rem pertinent, de qua cogitamus attendimus, sed ad aliquid attentionem, quod a ceteris sejungimus et abstrahimus. Quemadmodum e. gr. ideas mihi comparo, non ad materiam aut magnitudinem, sed ad idem [illegible] figuram attendendo. Eoque pacto illud idem considerando quod commune est omnibus rebus quae sunt non ad singulas earum communes affectiones attendendo ideam comparo entis in genere. Ex hac entis generatim sumpti notione facile intelligitur quid valeat nomen essentiae. Cum enim res aliquas consideramus videmus has distinctas esse inter se, et unamquamque aliquid peculiare naturae quo ab aliis distinguitur: hoc illud est quod essentia vocabulo: illud nempe per quod res est id quod est. Circuli essentia v. g. est harum linearum circumferentiae punctorum aequaliter a centro distantia. Non si tollas hanc aequalem punctorum distantiam tolli naturam circuli et circulus ipse evanescit. Hae rerum essentiae æternæ vocantur hoc est naturam suam immutabilem habent. Nam vero quando circulum considero hanc veram ejus essentiam video, et singula ejus peripheriæ puncta æqualiter a centro remota: si quæ hujus peripheriæ puncta inæqualiter ab eo, vel propius [illegible] circuli figuram atque adeo essentiam [illegible] appareant meæ claram habeo et distinctam ideam de qua intimus sensus testatur hoc quod est criterium veritatis. Ergo habere singula peripheriæ puncta æqualiter a centro remota et esse circulum est unum et idem. Quare ne Deus quidem potest efficere ut circulus sit et habeat minus puncta singula æquidistantia a centro, et simul habeat æquidistantia a centro et circulus — non sit. Esse enim et non esse eodem tempore repugnat in divinis naturis ut in humanis. Atque asserere divinam potentiam ad talia se extendere idem est ac dicere: omnia posse et nihil posse esse unum et idem.

Cap. II De Non Ente et vocabulo Nihil.

Cum de diversa differentia pro rerum natura quas existunt egerimus in prima Dialecticæ parte Sectione IIIiam observavimus, quidquid mente concipitur, aut per se constans intelligi aut in alio, illud substantiam dici, hoc vero modum; et simul quænam vera substantia sit quænam commentitia et ipsius aliter de modis definivimus: nunc de relationibus dicendum est quæ substantiæ et modo superveniunt. Harum relationum imprimis observamus nos ideas acquirere comparatione duarum idearum atque ad has referimus modos externos dictos, illud nimirum quod in subjecto aliquo videmus, quando ad actionem alius attendimus, ut amari desiderari. Hos enim hic esse necesse et qui amet et qui amaturus. Negationes item et privationes ad relationes revocamus. Negatio enim dicitur absentia attributi quod non potest subjecto inesse sive nequit, ut de lapide negamus cogitationem quia fieri non potest nisi conferendo lapidem cum cogitante substantia. Privatio vero est absentia attributi quod non natum potest, id et solet adesse. Sic ut privatio auditus quam ideam acquirimus conferendo ideam surdi cum idea hominis qui audiendi facultate gaudet. Relationes innumeræ aliæ dantur de quibus jam egimus in prima parte Dialecticæ Sectione III. Quod hoc loco examinandum occurrit est, ad quamnam classem rerum debeamus Relationes referre. Etsi non sunt nihil, habent tamen ideæ nihil extra mentem ipsi et ab idea diversum nobis repræsentant. Licet ideæ hæ non ideæ abstractæ non habent Prototypa extra mentem, quem ideæ substantiarum et modorum habent. Relationes ergo non existunt ut substantiæ et modi. Quæri ergo potest an ad entia referri debeant. Solutio quæstionis a definitione entis pendet.

[illegible] Ergo cum omne quod est quomodocumque sit, id est si enti nihilo opponatur, relationes omnes erunt entia, si vero entia tantum referamus substantias et modos, tum medium quid datur inter ens et Nihil; non entis nomen huic medio dant, qui hoc admittunt et ab ipso nihilo distinguunt. Dicimus relationes non esse nihil hac voce exprimentes illud quod [illegible] vocatur merum nihil. Huius nullae sunt affectiones et tale non est id de quo aliquid affirmari aut negari potest. Circa nihil duo cavenda sunt 1 ne nihil habeatur pro aliquo, ut fit quando quis affirmat contraria simul esse posse 2 ne aliquid habeatur pro nihilo, ut illi faciunt, qui dum vacuum admittunt, hoc tamen nihil esse affirmant. Quare istud statuendum est vocabulo nihil duas excitari notiones unam entis, alteram privationis rei alicuius in ente illo. Vocabulum enim nihil negativum est. vocabula autem negativa absentiam idearum positivarum explicant velut [illegible], silentium, nihil, inquit perspecte Lockius+. Qui enim v. gr. dicit ante creationem mundum erat nihil, notiones duas percipit, mundi et absentiae mundi. Ineptiunt igitur qui definiunt nihilum per vocabulum cui nulla respondeat notio, aut qui nihil vocant cum nihil cogitamus [illegible]

+ lib. 2. cap. [illegible] § 5

Cap. III De Possibili et impossibili

Possibile vocamus id quod esse potest, vel quod non repugnat existere: impossibile id quod esse non potest, seu quod repugnat existere. Non repugnare dicimus ea quae simul esse possunt veluti animal et ratiocinandi potestatem: repugnare autem dicimus quae simul esse non possunt, veluti circumferentiam circuli cum lateribus quadrati convenire. Hinc duo Possibilium seu impossibilium genera statuuntur. Nam alia quidem absolute et intrinsece talia sunt, alia relative et extrinsece. Ad prius genus referimus ea quorum [illegible] esse simul possunt aut non possunt. Ad posterius referimus quae non tantum intrinsece possibilia sunt aut impossibilia, sed etiam extrinsece, id est in relatione ad certas causas a quibus effici possunt. [illegible] intelligatur [illegible] possibilitatis vel impossibilitatis a talis notione [illegible] ex inspectione [illegible] posse et potentiae quae uniri possunt illa possibilitas aut impossibilitas [illegible] haec extrinseca [illegible] aut impossibile primum intrinsecum pervestigandum est, deinde extrinsecum. Nisi enim sciatur aliquid intrinsece possibile esse, ignoratur oportet an tanta sit potentia ut effici possit. [illegible] id autem [illegible] ne hallucinemur in impossibilibus statuendis. Nam quoniam mentes nostrae finitae sunt et [illegible] non possunt [illegible] et relationes [illegible] requirunt [illegible] potentias [illegible] ut certae notiones notiones impossibilitatis cum intimae hominis ... Sed non dubito, debemus ab altero extremo deflectere, et meminerimus nullas esse, quae nos impossibi-lia putamus, ne hoc quidem, idem posse simul esse et non esse, impossibile esse, quod scilicet Deus, qui infinita scientia et potentia praeditus est, fortasse tanquam possibile spectat, atque habet, quod Cartesii sententia fuit. Qui enim sic ratiocinatur pene in Pyrrhonis Scepticismum inducit quum prima cognitionis humanae fundamenta subvertat. Neque vero huius sententiae opinionis inepta est:

quippe, ut observatum est Nicolao Malebranchio acutissimo viro, quanquam Deus in eo infinite mentibus nostris praestat, quod ille omnia possibilia et simul, clare atque distincte intueatur, nos pauca clare atque distincte nec simul, plura
(2. Cap. § 5 autem obscure et confuse; at in quibus ea quae nos clare et distincte percipimus, veluti non contere idem simul esse et non esse, totum esse majus sua parte, nullo is pacto nos superat quia cum claritas et distinctio gradus non habeat, utrimque est eadem est: et sic eadem manifesta certitudo quae et ipsa gradus non recipit: itaque si in his cognitionibus in Deo certitudo sit major, nostra certitudo non erit, quod nescio an Dei sapientiae et providentiae congruat qui nos, secundum illum philosophum cretaverit, ita fecerit, ut nihil certi scire possemus. Possibile ergo est, ut nunc non totum ~~...~~ complectamur, quicquid omnipotenti virtute fieri potest quod autem extra vis potestatis fines est, impossibile dicitur. Deus autem facere potest omnia quae pugnantia non sunt, quae autem contradictionem pugnantia ~~re...~~ quidem facere potest, quod Hebr. 6:18
sacri libri significant in Epistola ad Hebraeos: Deum mentiri ipsum non posse. Quid enim aliud esset pugnantia facere quam ipsum mentiri, sibi adversari! Ex quo constat id non imbecillitatis, sed virtutis esse ac potestatis, verbi absurdum ... esse non posse.
Verum quod maxime refert illud est, ut quando tutissimam regulam proponamus ad errores perniciosissimos effugiendos in iudicando quod Deus possit facere quidam, in quo nihil tam verendum est quam ne lunatis ... ingeniosi libidini se nobis reliqui-ore certissimis nimis audacter inquirentes in extremum impietatis barathrum praecipi-temus, quod innumeris infidelibus accidit, qui non id negare audent, Deum esse omnipotentem, sed haec somnia confingunt, quae ipsi volunt credere esse pugnantia itaque non divinae potestati, sed rerum ipsarum vitio fieri, ut ea esse non possint. Recentes H mihi

mihi videtur regula tutissima, ut, ubi argumentorum natura id patitur, ut prius quæra= mus, sit ne res, antequam, cuiusnam generis esse possit. nam neque ulla certior ra= tio est intelligendi fieri ne possit aliquid, quam si, cum factum habeamus, id revera esse factum iuxta illud scholasticorum axioma: a facto ad potentiam valet illatio; itaque is ordo inquirendi mentis humanæ imbecillitati est maxime accomodatus. si enim a quæ= stione possibilitatis exordiri maluerimus, statim magna cum tot absurditates hæsimus, cessi= tabimus, semperque erit verendum, ne quod a nobis minime possit percipi, id ne a Deo quidem fieri posse existimemus. Atqui illud valet: si [illegible] valet, non solum quæ a nobis minime fieri possunt, sed etiam ea quæ non possunt percipi efficere posse Deum.
iusta enim infinita est eius sapientia, ac potestas, quas inter et humilitatem nostram immensum quoddam spatium interiacet. Nam quod dicunt, minime ad eum pertinere pugnantia, fateor: verum id quum divinæ intelligentiæ non humanæ est universim [illegible] quid pugnet. Ut enim res sit eiusmodi debet idem ita esse, ac non esse, et nihil sit tertium nihil interpositum, quod in paucis enunciationibus licet contradictionem affir= mare: aliud enim est id a nobis non explorari, aliud in re non inesse. Vere hoc dicam, via [illegible] res est, quam si primus ex [illegible] sermone acciperem, quam ex nostro sensu compe= rire potuissemus, non solum absurda videretur et pugnans: multæ enim res difficiles, et non potest eas homo explicare sermone? Quid, ut vel uno notissimo exemplo utar, quis, inquam, specie pugnantius quam, ipsæ ideæ, quæ similes externis similes dicuntur, tam corporeæ esse debent tam tanta magnitudine et mole quanta in rebus est, quas exhibeant, ut omnino eas neque cerebrum capere, neque animus natura [illegible] sentire possit. in vel natura, vel figura dissimiles [illegible] nullo pacto res quales sunt amplius expresserint. itaque pugnantes probarentur facillime ea ratione: ideæ sunt, et omnino similes, et non omnino similes. quod si explicare conemur idem pene eve= niat quod in mysteriis religionis christianis incredulis semper [illegible] et nihil [illegible] quam verba et sonos inanes referre videamur! Sunt tamen ideæ; aliquid est, quod animus intuetur dum cogitat; velut in quodam speculo expressa cernit omnia quæ intelligit, quam una experientia docet negamus esse pugnantes.
Cur non igitur idem faciamus etiam in reliquis, ut non a priori quemadmodum [illegible], sed a posteriori quid fieri possit inquiramus a facto ad potentiam gradum facientes?

-spiciantur? Nam ut eo oculos in toto sidera figamus, in [illegible] ipsa [illegible] tamquam a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cadem

[illegible] oculi propter altitudinem, [illegible] profunditatem, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Ut autem ad ea quae maximi momenti sunt hanc doctrinam revocemus, [illegible] rebus ad religionem spectantibus, primum omnium illud videndum aliquid nobis Deus proposuit ac dicto significavit aut in libris aut in traditione majorum aut per Ecclesiam illam quae teste

Paulo est columna et firmamentum Veritatis. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

universitatem ex nihilo fuisse effectam a Deo. [illegible] animus [illegible] neque [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] posset fieri postquam [illegible] [illegible] auctoritate comprobatum.

Tum e Sacris litteris [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Accipimus in una divinitate tres esse personas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quando [illegible] [illegible] divino [illegible] intelligimus.

Nec potes multiplicitatem [illegible] in quibus Christus sub specie panis uno tempore [illegible]

[illegible] cum unius individui ratione [illegible] [illegible] at illud ratione [illegible] potes facillime id fieri posse oportere ubi Deus [illegible] luculentissime testatur. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]: tum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in mentem veniant [illegible] quotidiano usu comperis certe obscurissima, quaeque nisi experiremur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] de qualitate [illegible]

[illegible], de natura corporis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: ac [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mysteriis religionum [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible], ut ipsa alta et recondita videantur; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in his quae [illegible]

[illegible] sunt victum [illegible] necessario concludendum [illegible] alia quoque [illegible] [illegible] posse ac [illegible] [illegible] quonam pacto fieri possint nobis nefas sit explorare. Profecto si hanc viam mortales inirent non tot a recto [illegible] tramite [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] agere et non quae Deus [illegible] tradidissent [illegible] quid ipsi [illegible]

[illegible] possint [illegible] quaerant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pertinacia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Atque ut haec unique [illegible] ipso [illegible], [illegible] est, ac [illegible] [illegible] in adversariis religionis confutandis [illegible] [illegible], atque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Dominus [illegible] videtur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Joannis VI. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] ac plane divinum Eucharistiae mysterium coepisset Judaeis exponere, [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] est, statim exclamarunt: quomodo potest [illegible] [illegible] carnem [illegible]

manducandam? [illegible] Praeceptor non [illegible] docere [illegible] est [illegible] [illegible]

neque rationem quae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] dixerat: amen

amen dico vobis nisi manducaveritis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

tritae in vobis nostis, caeterum periculosum si dixerit nihil et cum quemadmodum [illegible] :
rati, ubi [illegible] tantaque prodigia ii Deum esse ostendit, [illegible] in sui perspicua [illegible] [illegible] divina sapientia tam [illegible] potest, [illegible] possit indicare quanto minus ii nobis humanae [illegible] concedetur, ut per divina oracula, [illegible] rationem aut quemadmodum illa non pugnent, investigemus? Egregie, ut caetera, hoc de re Chrysostomus [illegible] II de Incomprehensibili Dei natura. Quum [illegible] sit Deus, nemo suas rationes debet movere, [illegible] consequenter, aut natura [illegible]
[illegible] locus relinquitur, nil penitus hujusmodi est objiciendum [illegible] divina [illegible]
[illegible] longe iis omnibus est superior. Rideant [illegible] simplicitatem nostram quam [illegible] [illegible] nominant. verum quam praeclare nobiscum agatur quod pro Deo, pro sanctissima religione [illegible] his contumeliis appetimur, luculenter ostendit [illegible] divinarum scriptor eloquentissimus: quippe in eadem oratione illud Pauli afferens I Corinth. IV. nos stulti propter Christum ita scribit: Vere nec [illegible] omni sapientia est.
[illegible] enim aeterna illa sapientia comperire non potuit, nec [illegible] secundum [illegible] nimirum [illegible] potuit. [illegible] [illegible], hac lucem cognoscendi revocavit. Quid [illegible] Christum, [illegible] est [illegible] audire? cum nostras [illegible] cogitationes non [illegible] .... [illegible] [illegible] aeternam disciplinam et [illegible] ....
[illegible] quod [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] et admittendum est. Nam verum hujusmodi causas pertinacius quaerere, et rationes exigere, et modum [illegible] animi certe est nimium audaci et temerarii. Neque [illegible] idcirco reprehenderim, quorum [illegible] optima voluntas [illegible] est lau-[illegible], qui in [illegible] cavillationibus [illegible], etiam hanc molestiam suscipiunt, ut in nostris mysteriis nihil esse pugnans nihil absonum docere satagant [illegible] illud [illegible] non [illegible] esse quod [illegible] illa [illegible], quid sit pugnans quid non, mens humana perspectum vero multitudinis [illegible] [illegible] offunditur, tum etiam esse minime necessarium. [illegible] postquam [illegible] [illegible] significatur divinitus [illegible] fuerit id re[illegible] non posse, quae ratio omnium hominum facultati est maxime accommodata.
[illegible] potuit [illegible] Bossuetus:
[illegible] quam multa [illegible] profecerit ejus doctrina, hanc tamen ille perpetuo rationem

sentus est ut quid cuique in illis perspicue significarit, nec quemadmodum quisquid fieri possit exponat. Ideo magnam vim ad impudentiam adversarioni propugandam librorum quibus illi ipsi fidem habent rates habere auctoritatem. Nam quod dicunt, non prius nisi pariter quam propria librorum tractatio sit nisi ante constiterit eam non repugnare, id fortasse valeat in quibusdam locis obscurioribus, at plurima sunt ita aperta et plana, ut ne tantillum quidem ad eorum intelligentiam isto examine indigeamus. Sic ut alia omittam, quae sunt innumerabilia, multifariam utique perspicue Deus nos docet in sacris litteris, et curam esse omnium bonorum auctorem, ideoque nisi in recte factis totam gloriam acceptam esse referendam; nec et nostram voluntatem liberam, atque eam agere quidquid nisi agit: quae quemadmodum cohaereant difficillimum est explicari, attamen cohaerere satis certo constat postquam ea esse ambo vera divina oracula tradiderunt. Sed satis de genere hoc, adeo enim sunt multa quae dici possent ut si ulterius progrediamur difficile nimium sit exitum invenire, atque ad rem revertamur, et videamus quid philosophi de impossibili morali dicant. Impossibile morale illud appellant, quod possibile quidem est intrinsece sed tamen vel nunquam aut difficillime evenerit, aut contrarium naturae moralis ..., ut ... hominem sanae mentis ... gladium inferre, a filio probo patrem carissimum occidi. Iam patet hanc impossibilitatem non esse intrinsecam aut physicam rei naturae esse repugnantem, sed ad intelligentiam illam quae impossibile id esse docet si ille sana mente ... circo, ne ... privatim potius ... pertinere.

Cap. IV
De Necessario et Contingenti.

Necessarium dicitur id cuius oppositum impossibile est seu contradictionem involvit. Cum autem tria sint ut innuimus impossibilitatis genera, tria item sunt Necessitatis. Nam alia necessitas est absoluta, cuius nempe contrarium absolute impossibile est, alia hypothetica quando ... contrarium ... est non sua natura sed ... alia denique moralis cuius impossibilitas opposita moralis est. Exempla ... ad explicationem impossibilitatis ... pro necessariis ... De necessario tradita doctrina, et fit distinctio inter necessarium existentiae et necessarium essentiae, illud est quod existentiae suae causas non habet, cuiusmodi est solus Deus aeternus; hoc autem quod creationem habet immutabilem, quod idem item aeternum est.

Contingens dicitur id quod potest esse aut non esse id est quod ex propria natura non determinatur, sed ab alio dependet qualia sunt omnia facta et conditiones quae non sunt [illegible], it aiunt necessitate naturae. Hinc patet contingens opponi necessario [illegible] quod absolute necessarium est non autem necessario hypothetico neque moraliter. Necessitas enim hypothetica in re contingenti est, cum ejus oppositum contradictionem [illegible] [illegible] in data hypothesi, adeoque aliunde pendeat, non est ab eo ipso quod in hypothesi ponitur. Quod idem dicendum est de necessario morali, cujus item oppositum in morali possibilitate continet contradictionem [illegible]. [illegible] ergo [illegible] est ne hypotheticam et moralem necessitatem cum absoluta confundamus, quod aliqui tum Philosophi, tum Theologi faciunt, magnamque in [illegible] in rerum [illegible] explicatione difficultatem.

Cap. V. De [illegible] Duratione, et Tempore

Durationis nomine intelligimus id quod initium habet et finem. Nam simul ac ideam alicujus rei existentis acquirimus, simul ideam acquirimus durationis, eique vel initium et finem tribuimus; si initium et finem adimimus Aeternitatem intelligimus: si tantum initium removemus Aeternitatem dicimus a parte ante: si initium admittimus, et finem negamus Aeternitatem concipimus quam vocamus a parte post, seu Perpetuitatem.

Prima quaestio quae examinanda occurrit est utrum durationis nomen aeternitati possit convenire: quae ut solvatur quaestio videndum est quaenam notio huic vocabulo subjiciatur. Cum enim Durationis notio, successionis quaedam notio sit, duas in duratione Successiones distinguere possumus, Metaphysicam et Physicam. Haec est successio statuum in re durante qualis cernitur in hoc universo, in quo alia generantur alia intereunt et [illegible] [illegible] nullo modo non esse in aeternitate [illegible]. Illa est ipsa continuata existentia quae per abstractionem concipitur, eaque per [illegible] corporum quodammodo dimetitur et in aeternitate esse posse nihil [illegible] imo necesse est. [illegible] ergo durationis nomen [illegible] successionis aeternitati conveniat, ex una vocabuli definitione satis apparet.

Secunda quaestio est de [illegible] num dentur scilicet in duratione momenta indivisibilia, an infinite minima? Haec quaestio eadem est cum illa quae de quantitatis [illegible] divisibilitate agitatur, et eodem modo solvitur. Si enim ideam Durationis [illegible] ad initium et finem extendendo in quovis momento quod initium et finem habet [illegible] minus momentum esse posse semper [illegible] concipere. [illegible] in duratione nihil indivisibile dari potest intelligimus. Si vero [illegible] sit, sive aeternum in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non neque ... dicimus, in hunc quoque de duratione dicimus, utique quid de tempore sit dicendum. Nihil enim aliud nisi est quam idea abstracta durationi. Si ergo durationem a hic princ. et fine metaphysicas ulteriori successiones consideremus, tempus dicitur verum: si ad phisicas successiones attendamus, Tempus est scilicet et successione ipsa dimetiri potest. Partes ita dimetitae vocantur momenta.

Cap. VI De Identitate.

Dum ad res quae durant attendimus, ipse nos mutari percipimus, aliquando res in se ... immutata manere. Quamdiu res non mutatur eandem hanc dicimus ab omni alia distinctam. Unitatem et identitatem ipsius rei hoc vocant. Hanc ego quaestionem nunquam attigissem nisi cum religione esset coniuncta. Fide ... docemur Christi Corpus eodem tempore tum in Caelo tum in Venerabili Eucharistiae Sacramento vere adesse: Calviniani aliique Haeretici hanc in Philosophia occasionem arripuerunt tanti mysterii oppugnandi. Atque ipsi conantur, hanc esse identitatis naturam ut eadem res nonnisi uno in loco eodem tempore esse possit, quae autem in diversis locis eodem tempore extent eas necessario esse diversa: quare nec duas res in eodem loco simul uno temporis puncto esse posse, nec unam in pluribus. Joannes Clericus, ut est, ingenio ad omne genus imprudentiae proclivi, invehit in arte Critica Catholicos, qui Christi unum et eundem in locis tam multis eodem instanti venerantur, negatque ipsi omnipotentiae illo modo id posse efficere quoniam cum essentia identitatis omnino pugnet. Joannes autem Lockius De Intellectu Humano similem viam ... munit ... ad nos Fidei ... evertendam. Quare si Philosophia debet Religioni servire ut certe debet, his novis totis viribus est ... ut eius hostes ab hoc primo loco repellamus, ne minus nos in veritate defendenda mediori videamur quam illi audaces in oppugnanda.

Prop. I

Eadem numero res uno tempore pluribus in locis quod ad essentiam identitatis attinet, esse potest.

Constat primo Caelum unum et eundem esse, nihilominus in his omnibus semper esse et quamquam tanto caelum terra distant intervallo tamen ... vicinam ... loci ita esse ... ut idem omnino, qui in caelo est etiam in terris ... identitatis ... non ... loci diversitas. Ad haec supra ostendimus, eandem numero athomum diversis locis ambientibus respondere, atque id praecavi tenent Philosophi de ceteris Spiritibus praeter Deum; inter omnes convenit licet tot [illegible] quamquam divino [illegible] idem [illegible] negatur autem eum eodem tempore in pluribus locis, a deo, constitui posse per replicationem, quia id Phantasia nostra penitus repugnare videtur; sed phantasia ipsa ne conijcere quidem possumus, superiora quae certa sunt, praesertim Dei simplicitatem cum immensitate constare; atqui haec vel invita phantasia affirmantur; ergo ne alia quidem, quae sunt similia hoc nomine debent repudiari.

Praeterea eadem res successione temporis potest esse in locis pluribus ergo etiam eodem tempore. Probo consequentiam. Propterea negant adversarii fieri posse quod contigimus, quia multiplicata praesentia in loco deberet etiam multiplicari ipsum individuum quod est praesens itaque tolli identitas; atqui haec ratio vel valere debet etiam in successione loci, i.e. valere non potest ullo modo; ergo si eadem omnino res potest esse diverso tempore in locis pluribus, potest etiam eodem tempore. Probo minorem: cum res diverso tempore mutat loca et multiplicat etiam diverso tempore [illegible] ad loca; atqui nihilominus non multiplicatur ipsa res, quamvis multiplicentur praesentiae, ergo cum eodem tempore multiplicentur praesentiae, non [illegible] necessario multiplicentur. Probo consequentiam. Ita est connexa praesentia in uno exemplo, ac in alio; atqui multiplicitas praesentiarum sibi succedens non multiplicat individua, ergo successio ergo multiplicitas praesentiarum eodem tempore non multiplicant necessario individua eodem tempore. Aliud simile afferri potest de duratione, quae quamquam per numerum momentorum temporis multiplex sit, non efficit tamen, ut rerum multiplicetur substantia diversa.

Sed video solutum, ad quam decursum sit: nimirum [illegible] has duas esse valde dissimiles, nam [illegible] singulis momentis temporis sibi succedunt praesentiae in loco, in uno quoque momento una est praesentia, quare et unum individuum, hoc autem loco quaeri an eodem tempore multiplicari praesentia, [illegible] individui permanente. Sed parum [illegible]. [illegible] enim dico cum [illegible] argumentor in unoquoque momento ratio [illegible] multiplicari debere individua nam profecto una praesentia uni contenta est individuo, verum illud dico: ita tanta est connexio praesentiae cum individuo quantam adversarii esse volunt, fieri debere, ut quemadmodum [illegible] ipsos eodem tempore non possunt multiplicari praesentiae, [illegible] eodem tempore multiplicetur res praesens, ita necessario consequi, ut multiplicatis diversis temporis praesentiis, etiam diversa temporis multiplicanda sint individua. Sicut igitur de homine, qui decem in locis fuerit dicunt ipsi, eum hominem decem habuisse relationes ad locum, non tamen decem homines fuisse successive, sed unum duntaxat extitisse, atque successivas, ut aiunt, multiplicant praesentias quin successive multiplicent individuum; ita et nos dictato scholarium verbo dicemus multiplicari praesentias simultanee, quin simultanee multiplicetur individuum. Sane ad hoc nihil unquam respondere poterunt, quod nobis pari iure contra ipsos referre non liceat: dicunt scilicet eundem hominem fuisse in locis illis diversis successive nos contra eundem hominem esse diversis in locis simultanee, dicunt inquiunt plura individua eodem tempore si plures sint eodem tempore praesentiae: at ego statim dicam etiam plura individua successiva quoniam plures fateris esse praesentias successivas. Hoc, inquiunt fieri potest, doce illud etiam non posse fieri, si quemadmodum Deus conservat individuum idem in pluribus locis successive, conservet etiam pluribus locis simultanee.

Prop. II

Plures res eodem tempore eodem omnino in loco divina vi esse possunt: quare nec ex identitate loci pendet essentia identitatis individui, nec ex diversitate loci diversitatis individui essentia.

Est maxima Philosophorum ac Theologorum pars docet, Dei substantiam esse ubique atqui in iis locis, in quibus Deus est, sunt etiam res creatae a Deo productae, ergo ex identitate loci non pendet identitas individui nisi forte in impiam Spinozae etiam doctrinam incidamus, qui res omnes a Deo per essentiam distingui negavit. Praeterea plures substantiae in eodem omnino puncto temporis esse possunt ergo etiam in eodem loco. Probo consequentiam. Unum punctum temporis continere potest et continet diversas rerum durationes ergo etiam unum punctum loci continere potest diversarum rerum praesentias. Probo consequentiam. Quamquam unum punctum temporis concipitur indivisibile, tamen respondet durationibus substantiarum temporis divisibilis, ergo etiam quamvis indivisibilis concipiatur locus, is quidem unus, si Deus velit, aequipollere potest diversis locis per se.

Prop. III

Joannis Lockii doctrina de identitate ac diversitate rerum, si non ubique sana fuerit, lectoris qui quasi Lockii, quidam Philosophiae amanti, excitavit me docuit ut ad hoc examen eius, in hoc genere doctrinae accederem, pro-

tinus

ratio cum ea animadversio magni pendendum faciat iis, qui venerata eius opera studiosissime solent legere. Primus igitur constantiam Lockii requiro, qui cum in libro de Intellectu humano neget ea quae per se clara sunt depingi oportere, eosque irrideat qui explicare conantur quid sit motus, quid soliditas, quae huiusmodi res satis per se perspicuae videantur, idem tam multa verba fecerit de Identitate ac diversitate, quae eadem ratione nihilominus clara, atque aperta censenda sunt. Deinde inquirentes conferamus Lockiana capita nihilo reperiebar minus constans. Is igitur lib. II cap. XXVII § 1 sic scribit: impossibile est, ut eodem tempore una eademque res in diversis locis existat. Haec universim pronunciata de quacumque substantia; mox post paucos versiculos ponit trinam substantiarum divisionem, scilicet Dei, Creaturarum Intelligentium finitorum et corporum: de Deo autem sic scribit: Deus est ubique: qui tandem haec sibi constant ut nulla substantia eodem tempore in diversis locis extare possit, tum, ut Deus qui in divisione substantiae primum tenet non solum in diversis locis sit, sed in omnibus † Deus est ubique! Tertio scribit: impossibile est, ut duae res eiusdem generis eodem tempore in eodem simul loco existant; [illegible] ex eo consequitur, ut plures spiritus penetrari non possint, quae res non solum ceteris philosophis, verum etiam ipsi Lockio adversatur. Nam lib. II. cap. IV. § 1. tradit, ideirco corpora se invicem a loco [illegible] quod soliditatem habeant, quae, inquit, oritur a repugnantia ista qua unum corpus alterius ab aditu in locum suum tantisper prohibet, dum ipsum [illegible] deseruerit . . . . . quod omnis corporis contactu impellit cum hoc modo [illegible] se invicem moventur soliditatem appello . . . . . si quis autem dixerit id impenetrabilitatem rectius dici haud repugnabo. Mihi quidem vox soliditas [illegible] est magis idonea ad ideam hanc signandam, non solum quia ita [illegible] usurpatur vocabulo, quia vocabulum istud positivam entitatem magis proprie denotat quam impenetrabilitas, quae est mera negatio, et [illegible] soliditatem [illegible] sua soliditas [illegible] ille. [illegible] quomodo cum his cohaereant ea verba, scilicet duos spiritus qui [illegible] penetrari non posse! nam ut penetrari nequeant, [illegible] se invicem loco [illegible], ergo [illegible] oportet soliditatem [illegible] a repugnantia ista qua unum corpus alterum ab aditu in locum suum tantisper, [illegible] dum [illegible] deseruerit [illegible] soliditatem esse propriam solius corporis loco [illegible] citato: [illegible] inquit ex omnibus [illegible] corpori maxime essentiali, et arctissimam cum eo connexionem habere [illegible] sequentia, adeo ut [illegible] materia reperiatur. Nunc ita Lockio tecum ago: si soliditas in sola materia reperitur, ergo ea caret spiritus, quem tu quoque a materia genere distinguis; ergo duae substantiae spirituales eiusdem generis in eodem loco, eodem tempore possunt esse, quoniam in iis non reperitur impenetrabilitas, quam tu quoque cum soliditate confundis. an dices etiam iis inesse impenetrabilitatem? at id tibi iam non est integrum. statuisti enim impenetrabilitatem esse puram negationem ac si pro=prie loqui velimus ex soliditate consequi. Qui haec cum fateatur illam esse utique, negare non potest, in eodem loco possim et illam esse et alios spiritus. At enim Deus facit alterius generis: facit verbo, non tamen re. quare nihilo= minus secum pugnat. Idem enim lib. II cap. XXIII. § 31 infinitate ex= cepta, inquit, nihil a nobis ideae Deo tribui, quae non etiam aliorum Spirituum idea sit. ex quo consequitur mentes creatas cum Deo in genere spiritus convenire. Itaque duas substantias eiusdem generis in eodem loco simul reperiri. quibus om= nibus consideratis, Lockii doctrina plena pugnantiae est.

Obiicies: Si eadem res eodem tempore posset esse in locis diversis nullum super= est signum ad discernendam rerum diversitatem, quemadmodum e contrario nulla certum haberemus identitatis notam si duae res in uno eodemque loco simul penetrari possent.

Respondeo omittendo enunciationem, ac utraque a simili. Si tria grana tritici, aut ova existant omnino inter se similia, postquam confusa fuerint, iam nullum tibi suppetit signum internoscendi quod primum numeraveris quod secundum an propte= rea fiet, ut ea inter se prorsus similia esse non possint? Ahem etsi deficiant nobis signum dignoscendae vel identitatis, vel diversitatis, tamen adhuc in re ipsa cuique rei constaret identitas, quae ab alieno usu minime pendet: nempe hoc adhuc esset hoc, illud illud; quemadmodum in allato exemplo ex granis confusis non possim quodnam in numerando prius fuerit discerna posterius tamen non eadem confusio granis prius inesset; Deus enim, si nemo alius, adhuc videret, num hoc granum esset idem, quod prius fuerat numeratum, illud, quod secundo.

Instabis. Si ita est nequicquam dicemus totus mundus una eademque sit atho= mus in diversos locos replicata. Deinde si plures ex diversis athomis totus constet, possent in uno loco compenetrari, ac prope ad unum punctum redigi.

(Respondeo.

Respondeo ad primum, praeter diversitatem loci, alia argumenta nos cogere ut numerum diversum atque innumerabilem ~~atomorum~~ materiae mundi esse videamus. Primum enim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible]: [illegible] non una res utique replicata, sed omne [illegible] a [illegible], neque eadem in pluribus locis collocata, sed alia ab aliis [illegible], veluti [illegible] aquas ab aquis. [illegible] si est communis hominum sensus a natura inditus, tibi iam esse [illegible] in [illegible], quot [illegible] partes. Ex quo fit replicationem praeter leges naturae esse atque inter miracula recensendam. — Respondeo ad secundum distinguendo enunciationem. Totus [illegible] compenetrari possit in uno puncto, si soliditas, ex qua impenetrabilitas oritur, sit essentialis, ut dicunt, corpori nego. Deus enim non potest rerum essentias mutare; sin minime sit essentialis, concedo id quoque fieri posse divinitus: ac quid tandem in ea re esset absurdi? miror quidem [illegible] hoc argumento esse usum ad comprobandam sententiam suam, quae censet nullas substantias ejusdem generis posse compenetrari perinde ac si eadem esset spirituum, ac corporum ratio. Caeterum alias examinabimus quid sit [illegible] [illegible] quod replicatione non egere putat Lockius, mihi [illegible] perobscura videtur ac minime ab ipso Lockio intellecta

[illegible] 2.° Replicatio ideae communi adversatur, ergo est rejicienda. [illegible] [illegible]. Concipere omnino non possumus quamcumque vim nostro sensui afferamus quomodo [illegible] sint eodem tempore praesentia in loco quam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] res praesentes ac [illegible] numerus [illegible] [illegible] numero [illegible] ergo [illegible] ideae communi adversatur

Resp.° distinguo antecedens, adversatur ideae ex phantasmatis [illegible], [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] nego antec. et consequentiam. [illegible] phantasiae [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quarum ipsa nullum habet prope hi exemplum nunquam assequemur cogitando quomodo eadem res in diversis locis eodem tempore extare possit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] comperta habeamus necessitatem, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] necessitatem afferre. [illegible] modo ne [illegible] quidem percipimus unquam [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] atque certa quomodo [illegible] item [illegible] et [illegible] in omnibus [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] enim in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] intuitur imagines [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporeas [illegible] [illegible] ratio immensitatem et [illegible] [illegible] ostendit itaque [illegible] [illegible] intelligebam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] accommodare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] atque [illegible] movet [illegible] obscuritas imprimis videant, quid statuant, si quaecumque obscura sunt ea non posse a Deo fieri existimant. An creationis notionem claram, et aperte aliud mortalium teneat? Quid tam impervium humano ingenio, quam modus, quo Deus ex nihilo cuncta effecerit verbo voluntatis suae? Atqui illud quoque ab Adversariis pro certissimo habetur, cur non ergo et aliud nihilo magis obscurum? Quare illud Divi Augustini effatum semper prae oculis est habendum: Fateamur Deum aliquid posse, quod nos fateamur investigare non posse. Etenim nimis pauca posset Deus si tantum illa posset efficere, quae ab homine intelliguntur, neque infinita esset eius vis si brevissimis mentis humanae terminis definiretur.

[illegible]

Obiicies 3.° contra ultimam Propositionem. Lockius negat duas res diversi generis compenetrari posse; Deum autem collocat in genere diverso a caeteris spiritibus; ergo etiamsi ponat Deum in iis locis, ubi simul cum ipso sunt alii spiritus, nihil sibi contrarium dicit, praesertim cum tantum inter ipsum, et caeteros spiritus constituat diversitatem, quanta est infinitas, quam Deo soli assignat.

Resp. 1.° quando quaeritur discrimen Auctoris, constantia non tam vera quae res attendenda est; Lockium autem secum pugnare, si minus vero, rebus certe tum ob alia quae antea invenimus, tum hoc etiam nomine, quod cum omnia quae a nobis, ideae Dei tribuuntur ex ideis Spirituum reliquorum assumpta esse scripserit, Deum tamen in diverso genere posuerit. Siquam infinitas, quam una Deo peculiarem facit augeat quidem easdem perfectiones quas Deus cum spiritibus creatis minoribus habet communes, non tamen est eiusmodi, ut possit genus mutare iuxta illud celebre philosophorum principium: Plus, et minus non variat speciem. Quid enim si corpus extensum infinitum posset an propterea generis esset diversi a caeteris corporibus? An incommensurata cum linea infinita genere non conveniret? Atque id multo magis contra Lockium valere debet, qui censet nullam habere positivam, ut aiunt, ideam infinitatis, sed tantum negativam ... ita carens fine. Ita lib. II. cap. XVII § XVII inquit. nam positiva est idea infiniti. Quomodo ergo mera negatio quam ille Deo tribuit efficiet diversum genus diversi a spiritibus? Quae cum ita sint, Lockius secum[^] pugnat.

[^] interlinear: Eccemira

Quaeres Quid sit igitur haec identitas, ac diversitas. hactenus enim magis quid non sit diximus, quam quid sit — Respondeo rationem ac explicationem nostram, eius natura, ea removeamus, quae confusionem afferre solent. Illam autem identitatem quam vocant rata substantiae [illegible] substantiæ non confunduntur ac simul cognitum fuerit unam eandemque substantiam diverso mo-dos ac relationes ad [illegible] habere posse, nemo adeo [illegible] in terris est qui non teneat quid sit idem quid diversum ac si etiam hujusmodi res tam evidentes Philosophi [illegible] tradere, ac elucidare, jam in Philosophia [illegible] etiam docere, quid sit dies quid nox quicunque signi-ficent a luce discerni possint. Mittamus igitur ista, atque aliis relinquamus, neque vero utraque modo [illegible] alia plurima, quæ in nunc [illegible] inculcari solent a multis, quæ ut [illegible] cogitanti animadvertit nihil aliud fere habent præter inutilem verbo-rum cognitionem.

Cap. VII.

De Causa et Effectu.

[illegible] res quotidie e nihilo [illegible], et has initium habuisse consideramus, [illegible] causæ et effectus. Causam vocamus illud omne [illegible] res est, illud autem quod [illegible] causæ et voca-mus effectum. Omne quod est quomodocunque hoc sit sive substantia sive modus sive relatio in genere quod non est nihil aut habuit initium aut initium non habuit. [illegible] non habuit initium est a se aut ab alio est effectum [illegible] ab alio [illegible] est ab alio habere initium ergo quod non habet initium est a se [illegible] in se proprie [illegible] principium habet et est quia non potest non esse. [illegible] propositio [illegible] vera est. [illegible] quod in se suæ existentiæ principium habet est sine initio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nihil [illegible] effectum. Id est nihil [illegible] aliquid. Ex his deducimus omne quod initium habet a causa externa originem accepisse. Causarum classes varias ponunt Metaphysici, easque distinguunt in Materiales et Formales Principales et instrumentales; [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] etiam est Proxima vel remota prima vel [illegible], interna vel externa; imma-nens vel transiens, [illegible] per accidens [illegible] vel æquivoca; creans vel conservans, [illegible] etc. Inutile est plures distinctiones memorare et [illegible] utile mihi videtur [illegible], quæ de his omnibus [illegible] Causæ generalia [illegible] exponant quæ in [illegible] quæstionibus [illegible] usum habent.
Causam distinguunt a [illegible] conditione [illegible] efficacia, quæ effectum producit. Conditionem autem, [illegible] requisitum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in ipsa conditione [illegible] Ex gr.
F [illegible]

lapis gravitate cadit, gravitas est causa descensus; descendere tamen non potest nisi ille permittatur; et hæc est conditio. Verum hæc distinctio implicat potius quam explicat causæ conceptum; [illegible] enim non est ita facile quid sit causa quid conditio determinari potest, atque [illegible] conditionem distinctione à causa Causa dependente conditione invalida est et [illegible] inconspicue pro causa [illegible] non potest.

Ideo, ubi clare distingui poterit conditio, ab eo in quo efficacia residet, hoc ultimum agens vocatur. Patiens vero omne a causa mutatur dum effectus producitur, aut circa quod occupatur agentis efficacia. Potest dicitur agens quando est effectus ab agente [illegible], conditio tantum deficit. Pro causa autem [illegible] omnia quæ requiruntur ad effectum præstandum, quare illa necessario hunc producunt; nam si non producerent, aliquid [illegible] foret ut effectus [illegible] est requisitum quod non deficeret; [illegible] vocamus causam omnia requisita conjunctim. [illegible] etiam non dari nisi positis omnibus ad hunc producendum requisitis manifestum est. [illegible] enim causa [illegible] effectus [illegible] potest non omnia adesse. Omnis ergo effectus habet causam, a qua necessario pendet [illegible] necessitas diversa est pro diversa natura subjecti. Hæc demonstratio clara est et simplex; et inde sequitur non dari causam indifferentem quæ potest aut non potest effectum præstare: nam præstare et non præstare effectum opponunt, et causa [illegible] potius unum quam alterum [illegible]. [illegible] tamen esse multi [illegible]nt, sed causam non distinguunt a potentia: in causa autem continentur omnia requisita quibus positis effectus sequitur. [illegible] causa liberat dictum [illegible] sunt alibi tractanda erunt [illegible] illa memoramus, quæ [illegible] causa affirmari possunt. [illegible] quæ [illegible], ut a sorte pendere dicuntur [illegible] dici potest [illegible] est [illegible] ignorantiam nostram. Non etiam ex iis quæ diximus universaliter concludendum est, causam esse illud, quo posito ponitur effectus. Si duo effectus ex eadem causa [illegible], uno posito ponitur alterum, unus tamen non est causa alterius, ut in sclopeto pulverem pyrium cum globo plumbeo continente accenso pulvere violenter globus movetur et strepitus auditur, [illegible] uno [illegible] et alterum. In tali casu tamen aliquando unum pro causa alterius habetur, sed minus proprie, ut in æquilibrio libræ descensus unius brachii pro causa ascensus alterius [illegible] est in casu æquilibrii.

[illegible] quæ exprimet requisita causæ causam esse [illegible] ipsius effectus. A est causa B, effectus; B. item est causa et effectus C. dico A causam esse ipsius C. nam posito A, hoc necessario producit B, [illegible] posito A, [illegible] ea que requiruntur, ut C necessario producatur: et est hujus causa. Unica nota de causis regula est, non dari causarum progressum in infinitum: [illegible] innumeras norint Mathematici series [illegible] termini, [illegible] quorum [illegible] certa regula ex præcedentibus [illegible]. Sed non eodem modo infinitum describunt Mathematici et Metaphysici: ab his enim [illegible] infinitum vocatur, quo non datur majus [illegible] quod augeri non potest: [illegible] autem non posse dari causarum seriem manifestum est, ultima enim [illegible] effectus [illegible] seriem augeret. Mathematici autem infinitum vocant id quod [illegible] seu quod superat id quod numeris [illegible] exprimi potest.

Sed qui regulam hanc proponunt, et qui contrariam tuentur sententiam, ad [illegible] seriei attendunt et eo respectu sensu Metaphysico progressum in infinitum non dari est [illegible] regulæ propositæ. Id est ita hæc exprimi potest: nullam dari causarum seriem sine initio, [illegible] quod de natura [illegible] seriei deducimus. Omne quod est in modo quocunque consideretur est definitum illud quod est: non est [illegible] aut alterum; ergo illud quod est a se [illegible] determinate [illegible] et [illegible] eodem [illegible] est quia non potest non esse, si mutetur non amplius est idem determinatum quod: hoc [illegible] autem non potest non esse, et [illegible] impossibilis. Id ergo quod est a se est immutabile; [illegible] hoc mutatum conspiciamus [illegible] mutatio convenit, illud [illegible] quod mutatur et [illegible] quod mutatur: [illegible] non potest quod non potest non esse. In omni [illegible] progressu continua datur mutatio; ergo [illegible] series non [illegible]. Reg. [illegible] non minus vera hæc est: [illegible] in effectu quidnam fuerit in causa; quod non ita intelligi [illegible] quod [illegible] effectu habetur, eodem modo in causa contineri [illegible] in causa esse illud, quod ad effectum producendum requiritur. Hoc [illegible] regula hæc universaliter vera est: [illegible] quis enim [illegible] causam esse causam?

Ex his omnibus facile [illegible] colliges quid illud sit quod [illegible] ratio sufficiens [illegible] modo [illegible] intelligi [illegible] et [illegible] fortassis de ea [illegible] quærentes, [illegible] tanquam [illegible] in philosophiam [illegible] vel [illegible] deceptos vel veterum philosophorum Platonis [illegible] et Aristotelis [illegible] ignorantia monstrant. Rationis ergo sufficientis nomine illud designatur, unde intelligi-intelligimus, cur aliquid sit aut non sit, sive de essentia, sive de existentia, sive de relatione loquamur, sive de alio quocunque quod aliquo modo est. Quod licet idem Deum sit atque illud quod nos Causam vocamus, volunt tamen nonnulli causam a ratione sufficiente distingui, quod causa sit principium (vel seu) actuale existentiae alicuius rei: ratio vero sufficiens [illegible] unde intelligitur cur aliquid sit. Quae nimis accurata et exquisita recentiorum distinctio cum non tanti sit usus in philosophia quanti ipsi a [illegible] philosophis aestimatur, nos eam non secus ac plurimas Veterum distinctiones [illegible] missas facimus, unam propterea et eandem rationi sufficienti, ac causae vocabulo significationem tribuentes.

Cap. VIII
De Perfectione, Veritate, Bonitate, Pulcritudine

Res perfecta dicitur aut [illegible] numero et praestantia aut unitate [illegible] ita, aut quod [illegible] est, aut [illegible] ideae [illegible] significat. Perfectio ergo est, aut [illegible] copia et praestantia, aut unitas et simplicitas aut congruentia rei cum idea sua, aut [illegible] ad finem recte [illegible] est. [illegible] et [illegible]. [illegible] nulla est possibilis perfectio quae in re illa non insit, intensive autem ita ut nulla eius perfectio ingenio nostro augeri amplius possit.

[illegible] ut alias etiam [illegible] vel est [illegible] vel moralis, vel logica, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] congruens. Moralis est congruentia externorum signorum cum [illegible] animi [illegible] [illegible] tandem est congruentia [illegible] notionalis, atque nominalis cum realibus.

Bonum [illegible] aut absolute [illegible] hoc vero est id omne, quo bonum rei absolutum aut conservatur aut [illegible], aut [illegible] potest. [illegible] quae fortunae dicuntur [illegible] tota bona absoluta sunt, si vero ad nos referantur bona et mala esse possunt. [illegible] malum absolutum nec est in natura ullum, nec [illegible] potest: ut malum [illegible] quidcunque bono alicui adversatur. Bonum morale est convenientia actionis liberae cum lege: malum vero morale est discrepantia actionis liberae a lege.

Pulcra ea dici solent, quae perfectione unitate ordine et [illegible] constant. Pulcritudo [illegible] [illegible] congruentia. Quocirca [illegible] infinite perfecti [illegible] infinite pulcrum vocari potest [illegible] nostri [illegible] varia quam homines [illegible] Platone melius de hac inquit in tribus dialogis qui inscribuntur Phaedrus, Simposion et Hippias maior. Ex his aliisque Platonis locis apparet ei pulchritudinem puram gratiam quandam quae animum visu auditu aut ratione movet. De origine vero [illegible] putabat Socrates, res pulchras dici participatione ideae aeternae et pulcherrimae. Eleganter eadem de re dicit Ficinus in Hippiam majorem. Pulchritudo, inquit, nihil aliud est, quam summi boni splendor fulgens in iis, quae oculis, auribus, mente percipimus, perque illa ad ipsum bonum visum, auditum mentemque convertens. Quo fit ut [illegible] divinae lucis a bono manans, in [illegible], [illegible] ratione.

Congenitam porro mentibus nostris pulchritudinis esse notionem [illegible] est in Platonicorum scholis. Audiamus Ciceronem in Oratore. Sed ego sic, inquit, statuo nihil esse in ullo genere tam pulchrum, quo non pulchrius id sit, unde illud, ut ex ore aliquo quasi imago, exprimatur, quod neque oculis, neque auribus, neque ullo sensu percipi potest, cogitatione tantum et mente complectimur . . . Has rerum formas appellat ideas ille non intelligendi solum sed etiam dicendi gravissimus auctor Plato, easque gigni negat, et ait semper esse ac ratione et intelligentia contineri; cetera nasci, occidere, fluere, labi, nec diutius esse uno et eodem statu. De ipsa pariter re sunt loquuti. [illegible] Cartesio, qui idea Dei existentiam probare conatus est. Verum quod de pulchro tot sint hominum sententiae non quot nationes sed quot capita qui putaverit unam [illegible] esse nullam apud omnes notionem? Profecto idea pulchri vel est forma quaedam animo inscripta tanquam in cera sigillum, vel est ipsa perceptio. Nequit hoc ultimum dici postquam constitit perceptiones pulchri varias esse et incontrarias; primum vero tam est absurdum quam illud, unde hoc consequitur, nimirum nostras animas [illegible] et natas, nec in corpora delatas [illegible] nescio quae in altera vita [illegible]

Psicologia seu tractatio de Anima humana

Postquam ea quae ad Ens generatim sumptum pertinent, [illegible] angustiis et disputationi [illegible], rectus ordo et iam recepta in scholis consuetudo postulant ut ad ea expendenda [illegible] quae Spiritus spectant, [illegible] Anima, quae altera [illegible] humana mente [illegible] est et Psicologia appellatur. Non uno [illegible] vox haec est a veteribus usurpata. [illegible] enim Psicologiae nomine tractationem de respiratione, alii de ipsa animi institutione, alii de humana mente disputationem significarunt. Hoc postremo sensu accipitur a nobis quoque. Et quoniam [illegible] nomine suam praestantiam demonstrat [illegible] utilitatem [illegible] nihil magis utile [illegible] Quis enim non videt [illegible] mortalibus [illegible] quam illius [illegible] Opera ergo ~~studia nostra~~ [illegible]

~~dum existere conamur~~ Jam ergo ad propositum veniamus, nec amplius nostra studia [illegible] moremur.

De Natura Mentis humanae

Tria in hac Tractatione quaerenda sunt. Primum utrum mens humana Spiritualis sit; [illegible] de utrum immortalis; denique utrum semper cogitet aut percipiat. Mentem Spiritualem esse negarunt ~~inter~~ cum veteribus philosophis Epicurei quorum deliramenta elegantissimis versibus ad nos transmisit Lucretius: ex recentioribus vero Spinosa et Tolandus, a quibus alii [illegible] non abhorrent; contra hos omnes semper pugnarunt et pugnant meliores nostri philosophi qui non ad veritatem sed ad [illegible] opere volunt. [illegible] vero [illegible] quantis viribus pugnant ex tota hac tractatione constabit.

§. 1.

Mens humana est principium cogitans, adeoque a materia vel corpore distinctum atque diversum.

Illud inprimis observo principium aliquod esse in nobis quo intelligimus, judicamus, ratiocinamur. Cum enim nos cogitare intimus clamet sensus, cogitatione vero in tribus illis actionibus, perceptione, judicio, ratiocinatione contineri manifestum sit, dearum actionum causam affirmare non possumus quia ideam alicujus [illegible] cogitantem [illegible] hoc agens [illegible] est [illegible] illa substantia quam nos mentem humanam appellamus. [illegible] itaque habemus existere mentem humanam seu principium illud quo homo percipit, judicat, ratiocinatur, neque aliud restat quam [illegible] quaestionem [illegible] nisi ut [illegible] ejus principii naturam. [illegible] ergo primo naturam ejus esse a materia vel corpore natura [illegible] distinctam atque diversam. Si enim non esset distincta [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] corpus est vel corporis propria [illegible] qualitas [illegible] [illegible] non potest esse corpus vel corporis propria qualitas; ergo natura est [illegible] natura penitus distincta atque diversa. Propositio major [illegible] per se patet. Tota ergo difficultas est in propositione minori [illegible] probatur. [illegible] cogitandi est corpus vel corporis propria qualitas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] corpus cogitare, aut naturam corporis [illegible] [illegible] hominis corpus cogitare [illegible] [illegible] Si enim [illegible] corpori proprium esset cogitare [illegible] vel [illegible], vel alia quavis corporis parte, cogitatio esset imperfecta [illegible] perfectione [illegible] signo [illegible] cogitat pars corporis duntaxat. pars autem haec aut est composita et divisibilis aut simplex et indivisibilis. Simplex et indivisibilis esse non potest, nam corpus et corporis pars quaelibet stabilis natura sua et essentialiter composita et divisibilis. Deinde pars ista simplex et indivisibilis vel in corpore [illegible] vel non. Si primum nulla est ratio cur hanc potius cogitare dicamus quam aliam quam omnes. Si secundo [illegible] erit aliquid a corpore diversum, atque diversum quod volunt illa [illegible]. Erit ergo pars corporis, quae cogitat, composita et divisibilis. Si autem composita et divisibilis est, quaelibet integrantium ejus partium [illegible] sive partium divisibilium vel adaequata et totalis cogitationis [illegible] est, vel inadaequata et partialis, vel nulla. Si primum ergo plura cogitandi principia in nobis erunt, quod est contra experientiam et sensum intimum. [illegible] ergo [illegible] perceptio ex pluribus partialibus perceptionibus constat et una fiet adeo. nulla a nobis percipi poterit ratio simplex ex. ca. veri boni aut spiritus quod pariter rationi adversatur. Si denique tertium ergo tota pars illa quae dicitur cogitans cogitare [illegible] tota cum ex partibus non cogitantibus per neq[ue] erit totum cogitans. Cum igitur neque totum corpus, neque pars corporis cogitare possit, sequitur principium cogitandi neque corpus neque corporis proprietatem quantitatem motionem esse posse adeoque nec corporeum.

[illegible]

Probatur 2° principium cogitandi non esse corporeum. Si enim esset [illegible] est corporeum; primo eius actiones perceptio judicium, ratiocinatio non aliter fieri possunt quam motionibus partium corporis. Secundo principium esse debet mens [illegible] divisibile utrumque est falsum ergo [illegible] cogitandi non est corporeum. Probatio utriusque [illegible] debent [illegible] quorum alterum est contra Epicureos [illegible] omnes alterum contra [illegible]. Itaque, a prima ut incipiamus, convenit inter partes perceptionem judicium fieri non aliter posse quam motionibus, si mens principium corporeum statuatur, hae autem ratione non fieri perceptiones judicia ratiocinationes ut [illegible] duntaxat ratione instituo. Judicium est plurium idearum comparatio [illegible], sint ergo [illegible] contenti [illegible] singulae perceptiones et singulis motionibus fiant ut existant duae ideae, quae duo repraesentant distincta obiecta [illegible], has motiones voco B et C [illegible] requiritur nova motio [illegible] B et C diversa atque distincta. Duae enim [illegible] distinctae sint una altera [illegible] non potest [illegible] ut ergo conferantur inter se nova requiritur motio: hanc motionem voco A [illegible] duae priores, [illegible] motiones A. B. C. Jam motiones istae aut fiunt in eadem parte indivisibili [illegible] divisibili sive parte indivisibili, aut fiunt eodem tempore, aut [illegible] temporibus: non eodem tempore [illegible]

quod

quod vero fieri possit in indivisibili unus erit semper et singularis, ut patet; tres ergo distinctae motiones fieri nequeunt in parte indivisibili eodem tempore: dixi dato quod motus fieri possit in indivisibili: cum enim motus sit actio qua ens de loco in locum transfertur in indivisibili nullum fieri [illegible] motus videtur. Sed neque in eadem parte indivisibili fiunt tres illae motiones diversis temporibus, adeo ut motioni primae succedat secunda, secundae tertia: ut enim comparatio fiat, eidem tempori coexistere debent tres illae motiones quod ut intelligas, finge dari duo tempora quorum primo [illegible] mens B secundo percipiat C [illegible] est eo non esse percipere relationem, quae inter B et C intercedit; nam tempore primo obversatur menti idea B non [illegible] idea C tempore vero secundo menti obversatur idea C non [illegible] idea B, adeoque earum relationem non videt tempore primo, non secundo et multo minus tertio quo neutra idearum menti obversatur. [illegible] ergo comparatio fiat, coexistere debent eidem tempori tres illae motiones adeoque diversis temporibus non fiunt in parte indivisibili. quare cum hae motiones B C neque eodem tempore fieri possint, neque diversis temporibus fiant in eadem parte indivisibili, necessum est ut dicamus fieri in parte divisibili. In parte autem divisibili si fiunt, aut fiunt eodem tempore aut [illegible] non diversis temporibus ex dictis cum coexistere debeant eidem tempori: sed neque eodem tempore in parte enim divisibili tres motus eodem tempore fieri possunt duobus modis, [illegible] quatenus tres distinctae particulae [illegible] distinctis motibus [illegible] agitantur, secundo quatenus [illegible] compenetrantur, unumque efficiant motum. Si posterius, ergo nullae sunt ideae [illegible] conferri possint inter se ut enim ideae conferri possint inter se distincta obiecta debent repraesentare, adeoque una extra alteram existere; una autem extra alteram non existit, si motiones, ex quibus fieri supponuntur ideae compenetrantur, unumque efficiunt motionem. Si prius ergo ea motio, ex qua fit comparatio existit extra motiones ex quibus fiunt ideae [illegible] ergo hae non continet, [illegible] neque nec conferre potest inter se [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] relationem [illegible] consequitur [illegible] [illegible] particulam [illegible] principii quod corporeum [illegible].

[illegible] parte ad secundam transeamus, in qua probandum est [illegible] cogitandi non esse [illegible], divisibile, [illegible] non corporeum [illegible] enim corporeum est [illegible] [illegible] proprietates corpori essentiales quae quidem [illegible] inter et Lockium convenit. Itaque inertia est proprietas illa, qua corpus [illegible] sui status mutationi [illegible], sive status ille sit quietis sive motus. [illegible] corpus in quiete positum

[illegible] tatu quaer[illegible]

in statu quietis perseverant: in motu vero posita, eadem velocitate, eademque directione moveri pergunt, nisi vi aliqua mutationem status inducant. At principium, quod in nobis cogitat, inertiae [illegible] nemo dixerit. ex ipsa siquidem [illegible] sine ulla actione causae externae, ex infinitis rebus, de quibus antea non cogitavit, cogitare potest, ac potest cogitationem interrumpere, atque alia omnino diversa aggredi, ac [illegible] et [illegible] repetere, ac remittere [illegible] quidem intensius, aut remissius. Haec quae quisque in semetipso experitur aperte ostendunt, principium cogitandi [illegible] adeoque non iners. Secundo et [illegible] est enim soliditas ea corporis proprietas, qua fit, ut una corporis pars resistat, ne altera eundem locum occupet. Soliditas autem pugnat cum cogitatione; [illegible] est [illegible], si solidum esset, non cogitaret: atqui cogitat, non est igitur solidum. — Soliditatem porro cum cogitatione pugnare sic ostendo. Cogitatio est judicium, seu ea mentis humanae actio, qua plures ideae comparantur: vocetur haec actio A. ideae quae comparantur B. C. C. C. Quoniam ideae sunt motiones, aut ex motionibus efformata phantasmata, sint motiones, aut phantasmata subjecti G quod dicitur solidum. quatuor hujusmodi motiones, aut phantasmata conferri non possunt nisi in uno A conveniant quemadmodum est manifestum; [illegible] quae sunt subjecti quatuor motionem vel [illegible] aut actiones tantum, vel phantasmata sine nisi subjecti in unum conjungant. Posterius esse nequit, quia modificationes nequeunt [illegible]; superest prius: at id soliditatem evertit. pugnat ergo cum soliditate cogitatio seu judicium. — Reliquum est ut ostendam principium quod in nobis cogitat esse minime divisibile. Sint igitur principium [illegible] BC DC. sunt respon- [illegible] et cogitatio et judicium seu actio A [illegible] aut contenditur quantum [illegible], aut non: si non contenditur [illegible] non potest comparatio [illegible] aut contenditur ergo contentum [illegible] et divisibile, nempe divisibiles sunt partes quibus contenditur. dividatur ergo A in quatuor partes S, Q, R, S. quae respondeant partibus illis quibus contenditur. [illegible] non complectuntur partes omnes B C D E [illegible] adeoque actio A non est [illegible] quatuor ideam comparatio [illegible] fiat debet in uno impartibili [illegible] omnes quarum fit comparatio: cogitatio ergo, seu judicium pugnat cum divisibilitate, adeoque principium, de quo est sermo, [illegible] divisibile non cogitaret, atqui cogitat ergo non est divisibile.

Ex his quae dicta sunt deduci potest solutio omnium quae a materialistis afferri solent, quod ut vero manifestum fiat breviter exponere juvabit rationes quibus conantur materialistae corpori tribuere cogitationem. Omnes isti nihil in mundo agnoscunt praeter materiam, seu substantiam corpoream: hinc substantiae corporeae seu materiae cogitationem propriam esse dicant necesse est.
Ut autem ostendant quomodo materia possit cogitare non una incedunt via.
Hobbesius cogitationem explicat actione et reactione partium certo modo. Organa quae [illegible] sensoria objectis tanguntur, atque premuntur; agitur deinde pressio sive motus usque ad partem cerebri intimam, quae sensus communis dicitur. pars haec intima a particula proxima prementem sive moventem reagit ex qua reactione aliquamdiu durante existit phantasma. Hoc phantasma est sensatio seu simplex perceptio quae [illegible] extra organum [illegible], quia pars intima re-agit in proximam haec in sequentem et sic perpetuo donec veniat usque ad id a quo phantasma tanquam a primo fonte derivari judicamus. Affirmationem ad judicium et ratiocinium explicandum pergit hac ratione. [illegible] [illegible] Id est quod generatim animi discursus. phantasmata enim motus sunt interni nempe motuum in sensatione factorum reliquiae, motuum autem eorum qui alii aliis immediate successerunt in sensatione remanet simul aliquid post sensationem. Hinc unus motus unum phantasma seu cogitatio subsequitur seu alius copulatur alteri propter cohaesionem materiae motae, quemadmodum aqua super planam [illegible] trahitur per viam quam ducit digitus, ex quo oritur phantasmatum comparatio, seu judicium et ratiocinatio. Ita cogita-tionem explicat Hobbius.
Tota haec Hobbii doctrina, seu potius explicatio [illegible] cogitationis in homine non aliud [illegible] quam motione elementi corporeae ab externis objectis, circa quae [illegible] versatur, per [illegible] na in cerebro excitatam. [illegible] nomine cogitationis [illegible] in [illegible] attentionem nostri [illegible] sensus [illegible] [illegible] cogitationis intelligatur simplex perceptio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quid [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est, quae neque [illegible] afferi Augustinus lib: 2°. de libero arbitrio cap. 3°. Sensus et phantasia fal-luntur. Hinc [illegible] [illegible] divisio per aquam [illegible] est curvum exhibent, ratio-ratio autem perspicue detegit, et perpetuo contradicit etiam perdurante sensu et phantasia errore. [illegible] [illegible] quae [illegible] errorem non [illegible]. si enim corrigeret non idem referret phantasma, nec idem esset conflictus: atqui idem refert phantas-ma et idem perstat conflictus, errorem tamen nunquam corrigeret. [illegible] tinae [illegible] penitus [illegible] [illegible] quaedam experimur, nos distincte percipere [illegible] rationem entis, possibilitatis, essentiae, existentiae, causae, effectus, aliisabstracti,

obstrahi sui notionibus, eiusmodi quas notiones, formaliter spectatae, nullimode sensus externo, commovent quia propterea nasci non possunt si nervi uno esset motio in fibrillis primis aut nervi, aut aliis nostri corporis partibus, ac in cerebro demum excitata. Res enim extra nos positae eatenus illos dictos motiones producere possunt, quatenus exteriores sensus afficere queunt, seu quatenus aut coloratae sunt, aut sapidae, aut odorae, aut solidae, aut sonorae. Haec adeo clara sunt, ut cum ipsa simulata sicuti res est ignara, impurus Lucretius ipse sui immemor systematis dicat: quis igitur sibi persuadeat motione externorum obiectorum, non tantum motus sed et perceptiones produci?

Epicurus putat a sanguine, aeris partibus et subtili flamma nasci quod in nobis cogitat; Hinc reliquum ei erat, ut ex varia particularum ad se invicem positione, aut motu, aut earum figura et magnitudine cogitationem oriri diceret.

Haec Epicuri sententia refelli pariter potest ex iis quae iam dicta sunt in praelectionibus. ibi enim ostendimus invictis argumentis, corpus cogitare non posse; nam corpus cuiuscunque figurae, cuiuscunque magnitudinis, quocunque motu donatum, aut quacunque dispositione est semper corpus ergo non potest cogitare. Accedant ergo iam dicta quae si placuerit claudi et adornari poterunt nonnullis versibus desumptis ex Antilucretio Eminentissimi cardinalis de Polignac. Postquam enim is docuerat ex varia particularum combinatione motu et figura posse explicari phaenomena quae in natura accidunt, ad mentem tandem mentisque operationes deveniens ita concludit

.... Ex variis quae motibus atque figuris
Consequitur corpus, mutatas saepe figuras
Mutatos et saepe situs intelligo, verum
Non video mentes, atque mentis opus.
Mens etenim haec si membrum est, ut caetera membra
Corporis humani proprium quoque suscipit escam.
Ergo particulas panis quem fecit vorantem
Digestumque suo suscepit sanguis in alveo,
Si petimus cessere his ratione carentes!
Partis at mediata regione sibi tulit ...
Quae nostrae placuit tibi mentis templa vocari
Tum disceptabunt de fluxu et origine rerum
At de sorte sua, sint corpora dedita letho, nunc

Necne, quid ad vitam possit conferre beatam Indica quam natura negat, nequiter dabit vim?
Proh pudor! haec autem est docta sapientia sectae!

Lucretius vir non omnino stupidus cum intelligeret sensus, motus, vim cogitationis et ratiocinii per quam minutis illis seminibus sanguinis, aeris atque ignis gigni non posse, cumque nihil aliud quod diceret reperisset, quartam quandam invexit substantiam corpoream, et ne dolus apertius intelligeretur innominatam esse voluit. De ea enim ita cecinit . . . . Ea est omnino nominis expers

Qua neque mobilius quicquam, neque tenuius extat

Haec autem substantia quam invexit Lucretius corporea dicitur, ergo erit ipsa etiam divisibilis; ergo eius actiones non aliter fieri possunt quam motione partium eiusdem substantiae, quod absurdum esse videri potest in propositione. Quod si Lucretius dicat substantiam de qua loquitur neque esse materiam neque extensam neque divisibilem; itemque si contendat eius substantiae actiones non fieri motione partium eiusdem, negabo eam substantiam esse corpoream, uti ex dictis patet, et ex dicendis infra constabit magis.

Superest ut de Lockio dicamus. Is non ausus est animam esse corpoream, contendit vero nulla naturali ratione ostendi posse eam non esse corpoream. Totus igitur in eo est, ut rationes, quibus animam non esse corpoream ostendi solet, vim ac pondus imminuat, atque infringat. Quod quo ordine vir auctor praestet videre est in eius libro IV de Intellectu humano. Nos in hac disputatione eum ordinem sequemur qui claritati magis inservire videbitur neque ea omittemus quae ab aliis item qui Lockio favent afferuntur.

Quod igitur primum contendit, est, quod esse possit in corpore seu in materiae parte aliqua vis a motrice distincta quae sit vis cogitandi.

Propositio explicanda est distinctione. Si per vim cogitandi intelligant eam quae materiae sociatur, sed ab ea distincta, et intrinsece independens non repugnamus: si per vim cogitandi intelligatur materiae quaedam proprietas attributum, negamus posse esse in corpore, seu in materiae parte aliqua vim cogitandi percipientem sentientem et ratiocinantem. Cur hanc distinctionem adhibeam, ea causa sunt locutiones quaedam implexae quibus innuere solent aliqui cogitandi vim quam corpori superaddi volunt. Ut igitur quaestio procedat clarius ita locutiones meas explico. Si per vim cogitandi intelligatur.

intelligatur ens reale a corpore independens intrinsecus, atque distinctum non repugno ens hujusmodi corpori inesse posse, hoc est, esse corpori esse sociatum; ens enim hujusmodi sua natura erit essentia et existentia, sine corpore esse et conservari poterit, atq. ideo erit vera substantia quae substantia cum sit cogitans, neque iners erit, neq. composita, sed libera, simplex, uno verbo erit substantia penitus immaterialis, quam corpori sociatam esse non negamus: efficit quippe una cum corpore compositum illud quod vocatur homo.

Nego autem vim cogitandi in corpore, seu in materia parte aliqua esse posse, si per vim hujusmodi intelligatur materiae qualitas, proprietas, attributum: nam pars haec materiae quae proprietatem seu vim cogitandi habere dicitur, aliis proprietatibus inertia, soliditate, divisibilitate, vel simul donata est vel destituta: primum dici non potest: res enim nulla constare potest ex his, quae se mutuo destruunt. vis autem cogitandi destruit soliditatem inertiam divisibilitatem. Sed neque secundum dici potest: materia enim et ejus pars quaecumque illis carere non potest proprietatibus, quae ei sunt essentiales cujusmodi sunt inertia soliditas, divisibilitas: nam si proprietatibus illis destituta fingatur substantia ea non erit corpus, neq. materia, aut materiae pars.

Reponunt: intelligi utique non potest quomodo cogitare possit materia, quae sit iners solida et divisibilis: at velle inde concludere idem Deum efficere non posse est vel omnem potentiae tribuere extensionem quae aequalis sit capacitati mentis humanae. Quod si haec ratiocinandi regula vim ullam haberet concedendum esset, corpora a corporibus non attrahi; neq. substantiam quae sit incorporea cogitare posse, quod haec intelligi nequeant.

Resp.° Utique Dei potentia extenditur ad ea, quae nos intelligere non possumus: at ea quae intrinsecus repugnant efficere nullo modo potest: repugnat autem intrinsecus idem constare ex iis quae se mutuo destruunt; ergo Deus efficere nullo modo potest, ut idem constet ex his, quae se mutuo destruunt. Sed cogitatio destruit inertiam, soliditatem, et divisibilitatem; ergo Dei potentia efficere non potest, ut cogitet materia, quae est iners solida, divisibilis. Haec est ratiocinandi regula, qua si quis uti velit, ad concludendum corpora a corporibus non attrahi, neque substantiam quae sit incorporea cogitare posse, debet ostendere non solum haec intelligi non posse, sed etiam intrinsecus repugnare.

Atqui instant, intrinsecus non repugnat materiam cogitare: materiae enim essentia ignoratur, ac propterea fieri potest, ut inter ignotas ejus proprietates sit etiam haec, qua possit cogitare.

Resp.° [illegible]

respondeo ineptam prorsus esse argumentationem. Ut enim cognoscam, licet ignorem quod triangulus sit quaevis alia figura, non est necesse, ut utriusque proprietates omnes cognoscam, satis est scire in alia figura esse proprietatem aliquam quae destruat hanc trianguli, scilicet tres ejus angulos aequales esse duobus rectis: a pari, ut demonstrem materiae cogitationem repugnare, non est necesse, ut materiae proprietates omnes cognoscam, satis est scire cogitationem destruere notas materiae proprietates. Hanc argumentandi rationem repudiare non potest quisquis [illegible] sibi consentaneus esse velit; etsi enim Dei atque materiae essentiam ignoremus, tamen ex materiae notis proprietatibus materiam Deum esse non posse evidenter demonstrare [illegible].

Sed urgebunt: Hactenus non est probatum cogitationem destruere notas materiae proprietates. Rationes enim quae ad hoc probandum afferri solent supponunt actiones in corpore nullas esse nisi quae fiunt motionibus partium ejusdem idest mutationibus loci situs, figurae; verum cum ignota nobis sit intima corporis essentia, [illegible] nisi quam experientiam sequi nullas esse in corpore alias actiones quam quae motiones dicuntur. Sic tamen magnetismus, et universalis partium materiae attractio, quam tanta contentione Newtoniani tuentur, actiones sunt longe diversae ab iis motionibus, quas ita cogitamus. [illegible] sunt actiones quae consistunt in conatu ad mutandum locum, situs, figuram, ex quibus tamen nulla nascitur [illegible] mutatio, velut gravitationes ponderum in aequilibrio consistentium, atque ceterae virium quas mortuas vocant Philosophi.

Resp. Cum cognitio nostra ideis quas habemus connectatur requiritur ut ex iis quas habemus [illegible]: at actiones in corpore nullas esse nisi quae fiant motionibus partium ejusdem intelligunt omnes homines: hinc in natura corporea nihil per se nisi motum communi[illegible] est necessario. Si ergo hoc tamquam certum concedimus non possumus, id [illegible] primo quia hoc [illegible] consentientem [illegible], cum [illegible] contra quam institutum est [illegible]; secundo quia nullas actiones nisi quae fiant in corpore, ideam habemus. At inquiunt ignota nobis est intima et adaequata corporis essentia non igitur [illegible] esse potest in corpore actio a motione diversa. Nego consequentiam. Etenim ignota mihi sit adaequata corporis essentia intelligo tamen, et mecum una intelligunt omnes corpus agere nonnisi per motum. Ex quo concludo actionem a motione diversam nullam esse in corpore; neque haec ratio infirmatur ex eo quod res aliter esse possit. Si quis enim res certas et omnibus manifestas velit in dubium revocare hoc unico argumento ductus quia res aliter esse possit, is mihi videtur et scepticismum inducere, et omnes philosophandi regulas [illegible] evertere.

Neque pariter quidquam evincunt exempla attractionis aut magnetismi. nomine enim attractionis et magnetismi aut intelligitur causa aut effectus. quemadmodum et attractionis et magnetismi causa [illegible] [illegible] ignota est, adeo ut et obscura et incerta. Quo igitur iure ex re tam obscura, incerta in dubium verti possit res clara aperta manifesta plane non video. Sed ingenue fateamur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] attractionem et magnetismum esse vim corporibus insitam. Demus hoc quamvis id negent Cartesiani neque affirment Newtoniani qui attractionem non pro causa sed pro effectu accipiunt quid inde concludant? Vim attractionis et magnetismi eiusdem generis esse cum vi cogitandi? non sequitur profecto. Attractionis enim et magnetismi effectus sunt motiones, accessus nempe corporum ad se mutuo qui mutuus corporum accessus stat optime cum proprietatibus corporis essentialibus. cogitatio vero quae mentis humanae actio neque est motio, et si motio supponatur cum proprietatibus corporis essentialibus pugnat. Vis ergo attractionis et magnetismi diversi est generis a vi cogitandi.

[illegible] est denique ad [illegible] exemplum [illegible] quas motivas vocant philosophi. [illegible] [illegible] illarum actio vel aliquid producit effectum vel non. Si [illegible] ea non est actio vere et proprie dicta [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: si primum ea actio cum motu coniuncta est: effectus enim quem producit nihil aliud esse potest [illegible] motus, qui motus ex continua obstaculi [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] quae in mentem [illegible] venire possunt, quaeque [illegible] nullam comparationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aut utrique actiones.

[illegible] allatae difficultati occurrendum negando actionem a motione diversam in corpore [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] hoc etiam dato, solvi potest difficultas, et quidem [illegible] negando actionem quae in corpore fieri supponatur esse posse cogitationem. cuiuscumque generis sit enim ea actio, sicut [illegible] capax fieri debet in parte divisibili et solida: est quippe corpus natura sua solidum et divisibile. atqui in parte divisibili et solida fieri non potest cogitatio actio ergo quae in corpore fieri supponatur, cuiuscumque demum generis ea sit, esse nequit cogitatio. [illegible] propositionem probare non erit difficile ex dictis in probatione prima, et in secunda parte probationis eiusdem. Illi enim, quamvis actionis nomine motionem intelligant, argumentationem [illegible] [illegible] omnem [illegible], si actionem, per quam fit cogitatio, accipias generatim pro actione quacumque, uti rem perpendenti facile constabit.

Prop. II

Principium quod in nobis cogitat, est substantia spiritualis.

Prob. Principium quod in nobis cogitat, non est aut corpus, aut corporis proprietas, qualitas, attributum; est igitur aliquid reale quod sine corpore esse et concipi potest, adeoque substantia a substantia corporea distincta: hujus autem substantiae a corporea substantia distinctae essentia omnino diversa est a corporis essentia: ex enim attributa, quae sunt corpori essentialia, huic substantiae nullimodo competunt, quin imo repugnant. ergo substantia illa a substantia corporis distincta, quae in nobis cogitat est spiritualis. substantiae enim spiritualis nomine nihil aliud intelligitur quam substantia cogitans a substantia corporea numero et natura distincta atque diversa. quam quidem spiritualis substantiae notionem nemo repudiaverit qui sciat substantiam spiritualem duplici tantum modo a nobis concipi atque definiri posse; nimirum positive ex illius operationibus nobis notis, ut cogitationibus; et negative, ea scilicet omnia attributa ab ea removendo quae corporeae substantiae inesse cognoscimus. Tota haec probatio emergit ex dictis propositione superiori.

Hujus propositionis veritas confirmari posset ex iis quae ad mentis humanae spiritualitatem persuadendam in medio [illegible] adjecerunt tum veteres tum recentiores Philosophi: sed ne in re minime necessaria diutius immorer venio ad objectiones.

Opponitur Pr.º Lucretius. Animus corpus movet, corpus animum afficit, ita ut nihil animus percipere aut sentire possit nisi per excitatas in cerebro commotiones. Praeterea tanta est corpus inter et animum harmonia, ut quaecumque animo accidunt corpus etiam afficiant, et quae corpori animum. sive ex perceptione objecti pulcri aut inimici, ater excitatur qui rursum aut statim sanguinem confecit, aut effundit; unde irati dicuntur ardere et quo igne corripi amantes. Hinc mentis vires una cum corpore crescit in pueris, viget in juvenibus, languescit in senibus eademque infirmo corpore infirma fit et ebrium comam [illegible] convaluit: haec autem omnia esse non possent nisi anima et corpus similis constarent natura. Licebit igitur, corporea natura animum constare animamque ita concludit Lucretius in tertio de Natura rerum, cui complures et ea omnia, quae adversus mentis humanae spiritualitatem opponenda suppeditat ratio.

Respondeo, Lucretii objectiones omnes esse phaenomena quae ex unione mentis et corporis nascuntur. Scilicet cum Deus voluisset hominem constare corporea et corruptibili substantia ubi concedit [illegible] et item incorruptibili et incorporea, ubi nos evidenter [illegible] existimamus, efficere voluit ut inter utramque substantiam quoddam esset et unio ac commercium mutuum legibus efficeret.

circa modum

Circa modum unionis animae et corporis non conveniunt Philosophi. Alii enim unionem explicant per influxum physicum, alii per harmoniam praestabilitam, alii per causas occasionales. Rem hisce explicatimus inferius. [illegible] modo, quicumque is demum fuerit ea modo, [illegible] quo unio animae inter et corpus perficitur, certae requiruntur unionis leges, quas perpetua experientia veras esse dicimus. Has unionis leges decem constituit Silvanus Regis in suo opere de usu rationis, et [illegible] li. 2°. parte p.ª cap. 3. quas leges [illegible] capite revocare placeat haec duo ponunt. Primo ut mens operando dependeat a corpore cui unita est, secundo ut motibus corporis perceptiones mentis respondeant, et perceptionibus mentis motus corporis.

[illegible] pugnantis animam movere corpus, et a corpore [illegible] requirunt [illegible] quaestio qui unionem animae inter et corpus explicant aut per harmoniam praestabilitam, aut per causas occasionales. Qui vero per influxum physicum unionem explicant respondent, non repugnare animae substantiae nempe spiritualem movere corpus et a corpore [illegible] quacumque [illegible] ratione quae ignorari concedunt. [illegible] occurritur primae difficultati, cui [illegible] possumus respondere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] animam esse spiritualem [illegible] argumentis demonstratum est [illegible] unitas esse corpori intimo sensu persentiscimus: quo modo [illegible] huiusmodi [illegible] adhuc nobis ignotum est. Sed tamen quia hoc persentimus obscurum et ignotum sit, negari non possunt [illegible] duo, quae clara sunt et manifesta. [illegible] nihil animam percipere aut cogitare posse nisi per [illegible] cerebro motiones omitto [illegible] mens facultate [illegible] plures ideas [illegible] potest. [illegible] nego inde concludi posse animam esse corpoream. [illegible] enim requiritur solum animam dependere a corpore in operando et quidem non intrinsece et necessitate absoluta, sed ex lege unionis, et necessitate hypothetica. Mens [illegible] dependet a corpore in operando ex lege unionis et necessitate hypothetica quia pro eo tempore [illegible] quo mens unita est corpori, [illegible], ut actiones corporis indigeant in operando. Non dependet vero intrinsece, et necessitate absoluta quia cum [illegible] probabis ut [illegible] a corpore [illegible] per se et absque corpore [illegible] et operari potest. [illegible] intrinsecus [illegible] natura sua indigeret corpore in operando, cur [illegible] melius ratiocinatur [illegible] [illegible] deserit corpus, nec [illegible] quod [illegible] communicat ut inquit Plato? [illegible] lege itaque unionis requiritur ut mens actione corporis [illegible], agat, et operetur, corporis autem actio non eadem [illegible] et [illegible] in pueris [illegible] in [illegible], in senibus infirmior. mens ergo crescente corpore crescere, vigente vigere, [illegible] videtur. [illegible] tamen mens intrinsece non dependet a corpore, cum sit [illegible] atque distincta [illegible] consequitur [illegible] naturam esse animam et corpus. [illegible] exemplo [illegible] in [illegible] Cardinali de Polignac.

. . . . ita quilibet arte
Strenuus Aonia citharam pulsare sonantem Mobilibus digitis citharoedi [illegible] pendet ab ipso?
Nam si rupta fides, si qua [illegible] [illegible] est
Si chordae nimium [illegible], [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
Aere manet citharoedus [illegible] frustraque [illegible].
Ergo a [illegible] [illegible] ipsa [illegible] pendet?
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] et organorum? talis fit copula [illegible] corporis et mentis.

Ea lege denique unionis fit ut motibus corporis mentis perceptiones, et perceptionibus mentis motus corporis respondeant. Hinc sequitur et ad [illegible] rei amabilis oculi et vultus rideant et in corporis aegritudine mens doleat et aegra sit. Ex hac non consequitur eiusdem naturae esse animam et corpus. neque enim eiusdem [illegible] actiones esse possunt perceptio laetitiae aut doloris et motus qui laetitiae coniunguntur aut doloris. [illegible] [illegible] et ex eo etiam liquet quod dum corpus aliqua aegritudine affligitur mens opposito affectu in se excitare queat, adeoque languente corpore iucunditate atque gaudio perfundatur.

Obj. 2a. Mens humana habet proprietates corporis [illegible], ergo non est spiritualis. prob. antec. Mens humana composita est, extensa, divisibilis [illegible] atqui sunt proprietates corporis [illegible], ergo etc. Prob. maior in singulis partibus. Illud est compositum quod ex rebus inter se distinctis componitur. Atqui mens componitur ex rebus inter se distinctis, intellectu nimirum memoria et voluntate, ergo est composita. Est etiam extensa. [illegible] enim concipit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] denique [illegible]. Plures enim rerum ideas simul habere potest, [illegible] illae [illegible] una existat extra aliam, ergo et [illegible] [illegible] idearum una extra aliam existit, [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] mens plures habere debet partes, quarum una extra aliam [illegible] ergo est divisibilis.

Resp. nego antec. ad probationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quam [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] est compositum quod [illegible] constat inter se distinctis a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] formali aut [illegible] nego maiorem: [illegible] [illegible] minorem nego [illegible]. [illegible] distinctionem explicem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] rebus naturae [illegible] et animi nostri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

distinctio

Distinctio realis est ea, quae datur inter rem et rem veluti inter corporis partes pedes, puta, et manus, sanguinem et ossa. Quidquid constat ex rebus distinctis inter se distinctione reali illud compositum proprie dicitur et est. Distinctio formalis est ea quae datur inter entis essentialia, quas formalitates vocant, veluti inter soliditatem et gravitatem duo corporis essentialia. Distinctio rationis est ea, quae datur inter distinctos mentis nostrae conceptus, cum ea ut distincta percipimus quae distincta non sunt. Quidquid constat ex rebus distinctis inter se distinctione formali aut rationis illud compositum nec est, nec dicitur, si compositionem non logice aut metaphysice intelligas sed physice, sicuti intelligi debet hoc loco. Jam vero distinctio quae datur inter mentis humanae voluntatem, memoriam, intellectum est distinctio rationis; vel si hoc minus placet est distinctio formalis; ergo in mente humana nullum habet locum compositio physica.

Ad secundum. Ex eo quod mens humana concipiat extensum, atque sequeretur eam extensam si eiusdem naturae necessario esse debeat id quod percipit cum eo quod percipitur. Sed hoc tribuere esse facile solvitur: eo enim semel posito sequeretur mentem humanam extensam esse simul et inextensam, quia extensum concipit et inextensum: sequeretur Deum esse corporeum quia corporea intelligit: sequeretur mentem duritie consistere et fluiditate (quaerere) quia in corporibus duritiem percipit et fluiditatem. quae quis serio affirmet?

Ad tertium. Idearum una extra alteram existere debere; atque ideo subiectum cuius sunt eas, partes habere debere, extra quarum una extra alteram existat, atque verum est si ideae sint motiones, aut ex motionibus exsurgentia phantasmata, juxta Lockii doctrinam. Cum vero actio, per quam mens cogitat, sit actio omnino diversa a motu, ideae motiones esse non possunt, aut ex motionibus exsurgentia phantasmata. Hinc idearum una extra alteram aut non existit, aut si existit subiectum cuius sunt ideae plures non habet partes quarum una extra aliam existat.

Neque dicas haec aut similia qua ratione fiant intelligi non posse. Hinc enim sequitur humanae mentis naturam a nobis adaequate non cognosci. at eam esse diversam ab eo quae corporea non sequitur profecto. Quod ut cuique manifestius fiat, scias cognitionem, quae non sit adaequata et perfecta, certam esse posse, sicut certe scimus [illegible], nosse nos de re aliqua plura certo cognoscere, licet non cognoscamus omnia. Sic ut exemplo utar ad rem nostram accommodatis, in corpus esse extensum et solidum certo scio, licet plures alias corporis proprietates nesciam sic Deum esse ens simplicissimum simul

sciere

habere rerum omnium ideas certo intelligo, licet non intelligam quomodo hae duo inter se componi queant. Sic mentem humanam cogitare clare scio; quia vero cogitatio esse non potest actio corporeae substantiae, ratiocinio certissimo deduco, mentem humanam quae cogitat esse substantiam spiritualem. Si quis importune quaerat, cujus naturae sit ea actio, per quam mens cogitat, fateor ingenue aequam mihi hoc esse ignotum: ex quo vero hoc atque omnia quae ad mentis humanae naturam spectant, ignorem, si quis inferre vellet falsa aut incerta esse etiam ea, quae certo a me cognosci probavi, eodem jure inferre possem et ego, corpus non esse iners, aut ipsum quia adaequatam ejus essentiam nescio, Deum aut simplicitate, aut rerum omnium cognitione carere, quia non intelligo qua ratione simplicitas componi possit cum cognitione rerum omnium. Quae argumentandi ratio quam fallax quamque inepta sit nemo non videt.

Opponens 3º mens humana est forma corporis ergo non est substantia spiritualis. Substantia enim sine quovis alio subjecto potest existere, forma vero sine suo subjecto existere nequit; ergo non est substantia: sed neque est spiritualis; siquidem formam inter et subjectum, animam nempe et corpus, debet dari proportio, nulla autem daretur proportio si mens humana esset spiritualis. non est igitur spiritualis

Resp. 1º Explicatis terminis, sane, si quae est, difficultatem solvi. Mens etenim humana corpus informare dicitur, quia ei praeest, ipsum movet, ac veluti moderatrix gubernat et regit; non quia corpori inhaereat, seque eo quasi commisceatur. Mens igitur humana est quidem forma corporis, sed non ea ratione, qua sunt reliquae formae. Ideoque licet formae reliquae quae non sunt substantiae sine suis subjectis existere nequeunt, existere tamen potest sine corpore humana mens, quae est vera et proprie dicta substantia. Neque reponas, nullam dari proportionem corpus inter et animam, si ea est spiritualis. Licet enim desit proportio identitatis, quae resultat ex similitudine in natura, datur tamen proportio habitudinis, quae oritur ex relatione causae ad effectum, formae ad subjectum. non datur prior proportio, neque enim corpus et [illegible] substantiae sunt naturae omnino diversae, datur autem posterior: quamvis enim spiritus sit naturae omnino diversae a natura corporis, attamen corpus perficere potest et unum cum illo componere.

Quaestio 2ª. Utrum humana mens sit immortalis, an vero in morte corporis pereat.

Quemadmodum non una est, uti superiore quaestione diximus, de spiritualitate mentis humanae opinio inter philosophos, ita neque una est de illius immortalitate sententia. Mentem humanam una cum corpore mori docent Epicurei; Lockius etsi mentis humanae immortalitatem non neget, eam tamen naturali ratione probari non posse contendit. Utrosque a veritate aberrare demonstrant saniores philosophi, quibuscum naturali ratione immortalitas animae a nobis est comprobanda. Quod ut rite fiat tria debent ostendi: primo mentem humanam natura sua post mortem corporis superesse, secundo eam a corpore separatam vivere ac cogitare, tertio eandem post mortem corporis a Deo conservari.

Prop. 1. Mens humana ipsa sua natura post mortem corporis superesse debet.

Prob. Mens humana ipsa sua natura primo incorruptibilis est, secundo actione agentis creati perire nequit, tertio a corpore non dependet ut existat; ergo ipsa sua natura post mortem corporis superesse debet. Patebunt autem quoad singulas partes. Illud sua natura incorruptibile est, quod nullas habet partes, in quas dissolvatur, atqui mens humana nullas habet partes, in quas dissolvatur: est enim simplex; ergo ipsa sua natura incorruptibilis est. Quod si incorruptibilis est ipsa sua natura actione agentis creati perire nequit: nam quod est incorruptibile natura sua, ut pereat debet in nihilum redigi; quae vis aliquid in nihilum redigendi creato agenti competere nequit quemadmodum competere nequit vis aliquid efficiendi ex nihilo; ergo actione agentis creati perire nequit mens humana. Denique a corpore non dependet, ut existat mens humana: est enim vera et proprie dicta substantia a corpore distincta, substantia vero est ens per se existens, a quovis alio subiecto independens, ut existat: mens ergo, ut existat non dependet a corpore. Nullum igitur dubium quin mens humana ipsa sua natura post mortem corporis superesse debeat.

Prop. 2a. Mens humana etiam a corpore separata vivere debet ac cogitare potest.

Prob. Mens humana post mortem corporis superesse debet, ergo a corpore separata vivere debet ac cogitare potest. Naturalis enim capacitas existendi sine corpore esset in humana mente prorsus frustranea, si a corpore seiuncta nec vivere nec cogitare posset.

Neque vero

Neque vero puto aliquem esse, qui dicat naturalem existendi capacitatem frustra menti inesse posse, cum Deus et natura nihil frustra operentur. Praeterea si humana mens post mortem corporis superest, superesse debet integra sua essentia; essentialis autem est menti vis cogitandi, ergo cum vi cogitandi superesse debet; adeoque potest a corpore separata cogitare: sed cogitare non posset nisi viveret, debet igitur vivere. Denique res est perspicua, animam non aliunde vitam habere quam a se ipsa: vivit anima, non quia appulsu agitatur externo, sed quia actione ciuitur interiore et sua, et ergo si pereat vi sua et natura perire debet, hoc est sibi ipsi adimere vitam, quam ei indidit et servavit naturae auctor Deus. Sed nulla res vi sua et natura perire potest, quia sibi adimere non potest id, quod a natura inditum habet. Necesse est igitur, ut anima a corpore separata vivat: quod si vivit potest cogitare: vita enim animae, aut in cogitatione est posita, aut saltem cum potentia ad cogitandum conjuncta.

Prop. 3a. Extincto et resoluto corpore mentem humanam debet Deus conservare.

Probatur ex desiderio beatitudinis nobis indito. Omnes homines innata velut propensione feruntur ad beatitudinem: Beati certe, inquit Augustinus, omnes vivere volumus, nec quisquam est in humano genere, qui huic sententiae, antequam plane sit emissa, non consentiat. Jam hoc beatitudinis desiderium debet expleri: nam enim frustra illud nobis indidisset Deus et eo animo et nobis illuxeret quoque nostra turpissime deciperet, quod repugnat. Desiderium autem hujusmodi, cum in hac vita non possit, in altera debet expleri; sed si Deus post mortem corporis mentem in nihilum redigat altera vita nulla est; ergo sit, debet Deus post mortem corporis mentem conservare. — Confirmatur Propositio ratione desumpta ex divina providentia. Constat plerosque viros bonos in praesenti vita perpetuo adversis affligi malis, contra prosperari et in deliciis esse; ergo nisi altera vita sit, in qua bona bonis, mala malis reddantur, videri posset res humanas a Deo negligi; sed res humanas a Deo negligi dici non potest; necesse est igitur ut altera vita sit. Sed, si mortuo et resoluto corpore mentem Deus in nihilum redigeret, altera vita nulla esset; ergo sit debet Deus mortuo et resoluto corpore, mentem humanam conservare.

Corollarium 3um. Mens humana post mortem corporis superesse dicitur, quia est substantia

spiritualis

spiritualis, atqui etiam anima brutorum est substantia spiritualis; ergo post mortem corporis superesse debet: sed non superest: falsa igitur argumentatio. Deinde anima cum corpore nascitur, ergo cum corpore perit. Si enim cum corpore nascitur per generationem existit, sicuti per generationem existit corpus. quidquid autem per generationem existit corrumpitur et perit. si igitur anima cum corpore nascitur perit etiam cum corpore. Denique finis propter quem Deus condidit animam, fuit ut esset forma corporis; qui finis cum cesset quando anima a corpore separatur, videtur etiam ipsam animam deficere debere, juxta axioma illud: cessante fine cessant media.

Resp.º Haec omnia opinioni nostrae nihil omnino refragari: non refragatur primum. brutorum enim anima est substantia spiritualis, atque post mortem corporis superesse debet ipsa sua natura, sed non proinde sequitur eam esse vere, et proprie immortalem, sicuti immortalis, et est, vere et proprie dicitur humana mens. etenim humana immortalis a nobis dicitur non solum quia est substantia spiritualis, sed insuper quia est beatitudinis, ac meriti capax. nam quia est substantia spiritualis ipsa sua natura post mortem corporis superesse debet: quia est beatitudinis, ac meriti capax debet a Deo conservari. Quare cum brutorum anima nec meriti, nec beatitudinis, sit capax, quippe quae a Deo facta est duntaxat propter corpus et vitae functiones, non videtur amplius cur eam debeat Deus conservare? Paucis: Brutorum anima est intrinsece immortalis non extrinsece: humana vero mens est immortalis tum intrinsece, tum extrinsece. Est utraque intrinsece immortalis, quia est substantia spiritualis; non est autem extrinsece immortalis utraque, quia hanc non illam conservare Deus debet.

Non refragatur secundum: animam cum corpore nasci omitto, sed nego hinc deduci posse animam cum eo esse perituram. corpus enim quia ex partibus coalescit gignitur per naturalem generationem, et per corruptionem perit: anima vero quia spiritualis est, et simplex produci nisi potest per creationem et per corruptionem perire non potest. Dixi animam una cum corpore nasci, quia valde probabile est animam a Deo creari eo duntaxat tempore, quo ejus materia ita disposita corpore una cum ipso vitae functiones exercere valet.

Non refragatur denique tertium. Axioma illud: cessante fine cessant media valet cessare media quando cessat finis totalis et adaequatus, finis autem propter quem Deus animam creavit, non fuit solum ut esset forma corporis, sed etiam et praecipue, ut Deum in aeternum

cognosceret

colent, atque ita eam, quam desiderant, beatitudinem obtinerent. Qui finis, praecipuus et nobilior ~~adeo longe~~ esset tantum abest ut in morte corporis cesset, ut videatur, potius tunc illud vere ac proprie posse obtineri.

Opponi hic possent iterum argumenta Lucretii desumpta ex animi curis atq. doloribus. Quoniam vero ea superiori quaestione exposita, atque soluta fuerunt, eadem repetere supervacaneum puto. Satis igitur erit advertere, primo cogitationem esse actionem omnino diversam a motu, qui fit in corpore: secundo, corpus, in quo fit motus partibus constare non constare vero mentem, cuius est cogitatio. Hinc inordinatis motibus in partes dissolvi atq. corrumpi potest corpus. corrumpi vero atque in partes dissolvi non potest mens ingratis cogitationibus. sunt autem animi curae atque dolores nihil aliud, quam ingratae cogitationes; corporis vero aegritudines et mutationes nihil aliud quam motus inordinati. Aegritudines ergo et mutationes ostendunt, corpus esse corruptibile atque mortale: mortalem vero et corruptibilem esse mentem non ostendunt curae, atque dolores.

Opp. 2°. Naturali ratione probari non potest, animam a Deo conservari debere. ergo etc. Prob. antec. Naturali ratione cognoscimus Deum posse id omne, quod intrinsecus non repugnat; atqui intrinsecus non repugnat, animam a Deo in nihilum redigi; ergo potest Deus animam in nihilum redigere: sed si Deus potest animam in nihilum redigere, eam a Deo conservari debere, nobis constare non potest, nisi divina revelatione: non igitur naturali ratione, sed sola revelatione divina, animam a Deo conservari debere probari potest.

Resp. Nego antec. Ad probationem distinguo majorem. potentia absoluta concedo: potentia morali nego; et concessa minore distinguo consequens eodem modo. Duplex itaq. in Deo distingui debet potentia, alia nimirum absoluta, alia moralis. Potentia absoluta Deus potest id omne, quod intrinsecus non repugnat, potentia vero morali potest id omne quod non repugnat eius attributis. Repugnat autem Dei attributis bonitati nempe et providentiae, animam in nihilum redigere. ergo animam in nihilum redigere non potest potentia morali. Quod si Deus animam non potest in nihilum redigere, eam conservare debet necessitate hypothetica, non absoluta. Necessitate inquam absoluta non debet animam conservare, quia eandem efformare potest ut eius conditionis, ut potentia tum absoluta tum morali in nihilum redigi possit: debet vero animam conservare necessitate hypothetica, quia eam meriti capacem esse voluit, eidemque indidit beatitudinis desiderium. Animam igitur a Deo conservari debere, non solum divina revelatione, sed etiam naturali ratione probari potest. Sunt enim revelatio et ratio naturalis duo quasi

radii

radii ejusdem Dei luminis ęterni. unde vulgatum est apud philosophos omnes, et naturę vim, et vim prophetię Deum nos alloqui; et Augustinus elegantissime Philosophos appellat vates naturę.

Atqui inquies, non repugnat divinę bonitati, animam in nihilum redigi: quod ita probo. Ideo divinę bonitati repugnare dicitur animam in nihilum redigi, quia Deus nobis indidit beatitudinis desiderium: hęc autem ratio nihil probat, quia desideria nobis naturalia non necessario debent adimpleri. et sane desiderium sanitatis, divitiarum, voluptatum nonne omnibus est naturale? attamen cum desiderium ejusmodi non adimpleatur, quis inde argumentum deduxerit contra divinam bonitatem? a pari ergo in casu nostro.

Sed contra. Alia sunt desideria quę Deus nobis indidit, alia quę ortum habent ex naturę humanę defectu; illa necessario debent adimpleri; hęc si Deus minime adimpleat, ejus bonitati nihil repugnans sequitur. Jam vero desiderium beatitudinis a Deo inditum habemus. Unde enim, pręterquam a Deo provido, esse potest desiderium illud quod homines a vitiis retrahit, ad virtutem impellit, quo Dei cultus augetur, societas conservatur, quo vita nostra dirigitur, et ad suum finem tendit? Debet ergo beatitudinis desiderium necessario adimpleri. Desiderium autem sanitatis, voluptatum, divitiarum ortum habet ex naturę nostrę defectu. Id ut manifestius fiat observandum est hominis naturam esse finitam, ac propterea leges a Deo pręscriptas violare posse ac potuisse. Hinc fit ut intellectus hebetatus vana sub boni specie concipiamus, ac per consequens sequamur et appetamus, itaque appetimus et sequimur divitias et voluptates, quę noxię ut plurimum nobis sunt. Hinc fit ut pręsentia prę futuris diligamus, et ut leges Dei violando beatitudinis spem amittamus, et supplicii metum concipiamus: qua de causa fit ut anima a corpore separari formidet, ideoque sanitatem etiam perpetuam exoptamus. Desiderium igitur sanitatis, voluptatum, divitiarum, si Deus non adimpleat, nihil ejus bonitati repugnans sequitur; quin imo ejus bonitas, providentia et justitia mirifice ostenditur.

Instabis. Desiderium beatitudinis expleri potest etiamsi animam in perpetuum Deus non conservet, quia desiderium beatitudinis nobis inditum, non est beatitudinis ęternę: quod quidem probari potest duplici ratione. Prima desumitur ex eo quod hominum mentis nullam habeat proportionem cum ęterna beatitudine: adeoque nos eam desiderare non possumus. Ratio altera desumitur ex eo quod plures nullam habent notionem beatitudinis ęternę, sed nemo ignorare potest quod desiderat; ergo desiderium nobis inditum non est beatitudinis ęternę.

Sed contra: nego

Sed contra. Ergo beatitudinis desiderium expleri non posse si beatitudo debeat aliquando desinere; Beatitudo enim cujus Deus desiderium nobis indidit est beatitudo plena atque perfecta. talis autem non esset si aliquando desinere deberet. nam ut inquit Tullius lib 2 de Finibus. Si amitti vita beata potest beata esse non potest; quis enim diffidit perpetuitati eorum timeat necesse est ne aliquando amissis illis sit miser. in maximarum autem rerum timore beatus esse nemo potest. Praeterea fingere Beatitudinem desinere qui omni mox essent haberent certe ulterioris beatitudinis desiderium. ergo beatitudinis exceptione inane reddidit Deus desiderium quod eis indidit imo eos decepit et crudelissime vexavit, velut fame cruciatum desperet et exercuisset ille qui cibum ore degustatum inhumaniter ori subtraheret: sed haec divinae bonitati repugnant, ergo beatitudo nunquam desinere debet

Ratio primo loco adducta nihil probat. Deus enim ex summa sua liberalitate hominum mentes creadens perfectae felicitatis appetitum nobis concessit. cum igitur acceptam possumus ex divinitus acceptam inclinationem, eandemque nobis Deus elargiri debet. Ad Deum enim, ut generalem provisorem spectat naturas dirigere ad eum finem, in quem naturaliter tendunt: naturaliter autem tendit homo ad beatam vitam tanquam ad finem et vita beata esse non potest nisi perennis sit, perennem ergo beatitudinem elargiri nobis Deus debet.

Ratio altera pariter nullius momenti est. Qui enim aliquid ratione probandum assumunt non curant inquirere, utrum ea ratio aliis nota an ignota, sed duntaxat debent videre an ea ratio valida sit, et probet id ad quod probandum assumitur. nos autem ut probemus beatitudinem quam appetimus esse debere aeternam, ratione utimur, igitur sive ea nota, sive ignota fuerit aliis, parum solliciti esse debemus: ex quo autem ea ratio vel ex mentis brevitate vel attentionis defectu non sit nota omnibus, fit ut plures beatitudinis aeternae nullam habeant notionem. hoc igitur transmittimus. At inquis, ergo beatitudinis desiderium nobis inditum non est beatitudinis aeternae quia nemo ignorare potest quod desiderat. Distinguo. nemo totaliter ignorare potest quod desiderat, concedo; nemo ex parte ignorare potest quod desiderat nego. Explico distinctionem. Utique id cujus nullam ideam habemus desiderare non possumus, ut patet: sed desiderare possumus id quod ex parte ignoramus. Ut enim aliquid appetamus, sufficit, quod sub specie boni animae exhibeatur. itaque beatitudinem ut bonum plenum atque perfectum desiderare omnes possunt, immo debent licet ignorent beatitudinem esse non posse bonum plenum atque perfectum nisi sit aeterna. Dixi omnes non posse solum sed debere beatitudinem desiderare. est enim inclinatio versus beatitudinem naturae hominis insita, et naturalis quae perenni ac perpetuo conatu in nos agit omnemque volitionis motum praevertit. Ex quo denique datur apparet cur beatitudinem aeternam omnes appetant, licet id quod appetunt aeternum esse debere non omnes cognoscant. Appetunt enim

inconsulta

inconsulta ratione, et voluntas impetu et vi naturæ, non consilio determinatur. Hæc dicta intelligantur posito quod plures beatitudinis æternæ nullam habeant notionem; quod quidem in dubium revocant illi, qui immortalitatem animæ ex perpetuo ac communi omnium sensu probant. Hos inter sunt Cicero, Seneca, Plutarcus, Strabo, Macrobius, Cælius Rodiginus, Tonius, Grotius, Cudworthus, [illegible], atque alii. Sed si rem fusius prosequi vellem longior quam par est evaderet quæstio. Hoc igitur brevitati consulens id libenter omitto.

[illegible] 3.° Desiderium beatitudinis expleri non debet ergo etc. prob. ante. Si debet expleri omnes qui beatitudinem appetunt eam consequi deberent, id est omnes qui eam appetunt consequuntur ergo etc. [illegible] Deus non solum bonus est sed etiam justus et providus; justus autem et providus non esset si in bonis æque ac malis beatitudinis desiderium expleret: et ergo bonitas cum providentia et justitia componenda [illegible] ut [illegible] esset præmium et merces laboris [illegible] non omnes in eo [illegible] est ut Deo placeamus; sed Deo placere non possunt illi qui leges [illegible] contemnunt et violant, ergo [illegible] beatitudinem consequi non possunt; nec ea [illegible] in illis beatitudinis desiderium explere Deus aut potest aut vellet.

[illegible] At homines [illegible] quotquot virtutes morales colunt et diligenter naturæ leges observant Deo placere [illegible] atque [illegible] debet [illegible] et [illegible] beatitudine æterna [illegible], ergo non omnes qui Deo placent æternam consequuntur beatitudinem.

[illegible] Respondeo primo, hanc instantiam [illegible] immortalitate ex [illegible] [illegible] ad divinæ revelationem nos provocat, [illegible] de immortalitate animæ nullam [illegible] [illegible]. Respondeo [illegible] naturali ratione [illegible], eam virtutem quæ ad [illegible] homines perducat a solo Deo expectandam. [illegible] enim humana [illegible] quisque [illegible] et [illegible] est [illegible], ergo naturæ viribus mores conformare non possumus [illegible], nisi [illegible] et [illegible] intellectus et robur voluntati accedat; sed virtus vera atque perfecta [illegible] nemo [illegible] [illegible] perducat [illegible] non est, qui mores conformare non potest [illegible] [illegible] virtutem quæ ad [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ne [illegible] [illegible] nisi a Deo [illegible] quod [illegible] est [illegible] dogma [illegible] philosophi intellexerunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] inter [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] nec virtutem a natura esse, nec [illegible], [illegible] a Deo [illegible] [illegible] etiam plures [illegible], [illegible] virtutem a Deo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] 4.° ratione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non posse animam [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] Justa enim et [illegible] divina Providentia si dicamus in hac vita esse [illegible] virtutem ipsius præmio, [illegible] malis vitii pœna juxta illud: virtus sibi ipsi præmium est, vitiumque supplicium.

Respondeo, atque in primis moneo me in dubium non revocare ea quæ de vitio et virtute tradunt ab Ethnicis, docent illi nominem virtute beatum esse, nomines posse in hac vita, vitio esse non posse nisi miserum, quam doctrinam ut veram atque utilem agnosco et commendo. Præsentis enim vitæ felicitas in alio esse sita non potest, nisi in eo, ut corpus sine dolore sit animus sine perturbatione: sed in hac vita perfecta beatitudo, idest animus sine perturbatione, corpus sine dolore haberi non potest maxima ergo in hac vita beatitudo est, minimis intensitate, et duratione malis urgeri, idest minima miseria. sed ad hanc beatitudinem comparandam, et conservandam facultates rationales perficit virtus moralis vitium impeditiones reddit, virtus ergo moralis beatos in hac vita homines efficit, vitium miseros. Alii nihilominus positis contendo non satis rationibus bonis virtutis præmio nequaquam malis vitii pœna. Virtus enim ideo sufficiens præmium in hac vita dicitur quia ad præsentis vitæ beatitudinem comparandam et conservandam inservit. atqui præsentis vitæ beatitudo non est sufficiens bonis præmium. Præsentis siquidem vitæ beatitudo est minima miseria; sufficiens vero bonis præmium est vera et perfecta beatitudo, quam ea divinitus accepta inclinatione appetunt ergo virtus non est sufficiens boni præmium. Deinde si virtus esset sufficiens boni præmium, virtutes illæ essent inutiles, aut noxiæ, quæ ad præsentis vitæ felicitatem non inserviunt aut terrenæ felicitatis contemptum redderent: et si qui has virtutes alterius vitæ spe coluerunt, adeo decepti dicendi essent quod an divinæ providentiæ consona sint ejusdem iudicium esto. Item pariter vitium non est sufficiens malis pœna enim esset mali non essent a vitiis cohercendi; inani esset futuri supplicii metus et divini iudicii timor. quæ divinæ providentiæ adeo repugnant, ut nihil magis. De hoc culpa impiorum, si enim ex obiecto, cui iniuria fit, metiri volumus, est malum divinis supernaturale cui nulla, physica pœna correspondet sed physica est impiorum pœna ergo pœna non correspondet impiorum culpæ. Eorum igitur culpa nunquam expiari poterit atque eorum pœna erit æterna

Quæstio III

An humana mens semper aliquid cogitet, aut percipiat

Quæstio hæc de perenni mentis cogitatione inter philosophos nostræ ætatis magna animorum contentione agitatur alii, negativam sententiam, affirmativam alii, propugnantibus: nos quantum de humanæ mentis natura conjectare licet probabiliorem iudicamus affirmativam sententiam: quæ docet mentem humanam dum vivit, semper aliquid cogitare aut percipere. Cogitare, inquam, aut percipere quia perceptionem distinguimus a cogitatione: et perceptionem vocamus eam, quæ cum conscientia non est conjuncta: eam vero quæ conjuncta est

appellamus

appellamus cogitationem: atque hanc distinctionem a Wolfio traditam arbitrariam non esse quisque in se potest experiri. accidit enim persaepe cuique, ut se aliquid percepisse sentiat nec tamen postea attentione adhibita cognoscere possit quid perceperit, non alia certe de causa, nisi quia perceptio illa non erat cum conscientia coniuncta; seu, uti nos dicimus, quia non erat cogitatio. Mentem igitur aliquid semper cogitare, hoc est semper percipere, ~~non semper~~ aut cogitare sequente demonstrabimus Propositione.

Mentem humanam dum vivit semper aliquid cogitare, aut percipere si minus evidens, probabile saltem nobis videtur.

Prob: Mentem humanam inter viventes substantias esse collocandam, probare supervacaneum puto, cum rem per se manifestam fateantur etiam nostrae opinionis adversarii. Vita autem omnis, posita est in actione aliqua quae dum vita durat, perennis esse debet. Quamvis enim plura statui possint vitae genera quae gradibus distinguuntur; cum plantarum vita distet a vita brutorum, et brutorum vitae praestet vita hominum, uti ab hominum vita diversa et generis eminentissimi est vita Dei tamen in eo vitae harum rerum omnium conveniunt, quod esse non possint sine actione aliqua, et quidem perenni. nec si ea actio interrumpatur vivere continuo desinant. Sic plantas, ignem, atque alia hujusmodi solum vivere dicimus, quamdiu actione aliqua vitali agitantur. Haec est vitae notio, quam nos damus, cum aliam non habeant homines notionem, nec meliori innixae possint argumento, quae in scholis traduntur opiniones probabiles quam communibus hominum notionibus. Quod si vita posita est in actione aliqua perenni, actio per quam mens vivit, perennis esse debet: actio autem hujusmodi quae perenniter durat cum vita mentis, non alia a nobis cognoscitur nisi cogitatio. cogitationem igitur esse putamus, ex iis quas habemus ideis philosophantes: quod philosophandi genus optimum esse negabit nemo qui sciat scientiam nostram ideis nostris contineri. Quae cum ita sint opinamur mentem humanam dum vivit semper aliquid cogitare aut percipere: a qua opinione dimoveri nos non sinemus, nisi ostendatur nobis, quomodo mens substantia vivens cum sit, vivere possit sine actione, aut actio, qua vivat, significetur aliqua quae cogitatio non sit aut perceptio. Quod praestari non posse patet ex dictis, et constabit adhuc magis ex solutione objectionum.

Dices pr.° Etiamsi sit mens substantia vivens, satis tamen est ut possit semper agere, quin semper agat actu: sicuti etiam corpus licet sit necessario impenetrabiliter extensum, satis tamen est, ut est ut naturaliter exigat semper impenetrabilitatem quam semper [illegible] donetur impenetrabilitate.

Sed contra; Nego mentem substantiam viventem simul esse posse, et simul cessare ab actione. Ratio per se est manifesta. Si enim viventes non agerent, neque esse possent affirmari, cum entia simplicia nequeant esse et non agere, nec propterea in illis agere et esse distingui valeant, quod Peripatetici nunc nostrae opinioni impugnatores non ignorarunt. Sicuti igitur repugnat mentem modo esse actu modo non esse, ita pariter repugnat eam modo actu agere modo non agere. Praeterea si mens ab actione cessaret, esset substantia vivens et non esset: esset ut supponitur, non esset autem quia destitueretur actione ac propterea etiam vita, quae, ut diximus, in actione posita est. Nec valet reponere corpus licet sit substantia extensa impenetrabiliter, tamen actuali impenetrabilitate posse destitui; si corpus enim [illegible] corpus actuali [illegible] destitueretur, hoc certe non esset [illegible], ergo si non esset mens actuali actione, moveretur, non esset vivens, ac propterea vivere modo posset modo non vivere. Deinde qui corpus actuali impenetrabilitate carere posse volunt, illud sine ea esse posse contendunt; mens vero, cum simplex sit, sine actione actuali esse non potest et sine actuali actione nulla est vita. Atque haec dicta intelligantur in hypothesi qua actualis impenetrabilitas corpori essentialis non statuatur, quod tamen demonstratum non est, imo a pluribus non infimae notae philosophis tamquam omnino [illegible] habetur; secundum opinionem quam qui vellet omnino vertere, expediret dicere mentem ab actuali actione cessare non posse, sicut corpus actuali impenetrabilitate destitui non potest.

Hic locus est adnotandi, Cartesium cum mentis humanae essentiam in actuali cogitatione posuisset, coactum fuisse mentem perenni cogitatione exercitam [illegible], quippe qua sublata, mentis essentia auferretur ex eius doctrina. Respondent propterea recentiores philosophi Cartesio temere illud asseruisse, mentis essentiam in cogitatione esse positam, sicuti ab eorum essentia corporis temere collocatur in actuali extensione, ex quo consequuntur considerare totum illud Renati argumentum. Verum cum idem omnino conficiatur ex eo quod vita mentis ponenda sit in actione perenni, praesertim cum in entibus simplicibus agere et esse semper conjungi debeant. Ideo ex hoc idem dicemus mentem perenniter cogitare, sive actualis cogitatio sit mentis essentia, sive sit duntaxat attributum essentiale, qua in re nostra in praesens disputamus.

Dices 2°. Nulla ratio assignari potest per quam mens vivat praeter cogitationem: ergo ex quo mens semper

mea semper agere [illegible] non sequitur semper cogitare. Prob. Antec. quia agere potest vel corpus movendo, vel volendo: velle autem et corpus movere non est cogitare.

Sed contra: Mentem movere corpus si omnes audias philosophos, non omnes profecto concedent. Verum hoc etiam dato non difficile est demonstrare, actionem qua mens corpus movet, eam esse non posse, per quam vivit. Actio enim illa cessat mortuo et resoluto corpore: ergo etiam mentis vita cessaret. Cui igitur quo tendit objectio, eo nimirum ut ostendat mentem non semper agere [illegible]; quod cum ex dictis solutum sit, solutum est etiam actionem, qua mens vivit, eam esse, qua corpus movet, si cerebrum movet. Actio pariter, qua mens vult, vel ab actione cogitationis distincta est, vel non. Si posterius, ergo ex eo quod mens volendo agat probari non potest actionem qua mens vivit non esse cogitationem. Si prius ergo in actione illa vita mentis non est posita cum perennis non sit. Ea enim actione prior est cogitatio juxta illud: nihil volitum quin praecognitum. Ex his igitur omnibus nihil infirmatur propositio nostra.

Objicies. Si mens humana semper aliquid cogitat, aut percipit, a cogitatione vel perceptione nullo unquam tempore cessaret ac propterea etiam in matris utero, in infantia, in somno, in ebrietate etc. cogitaret aut perciperet atqui hoc ratione [illegible], quod si [illegible] Mens ita a Deo creatur, ut nullam omnino ideam seu cognitionem congenitam habeat ac propterea ab actione corporis, cum corporeo phantasmate pendere debeat in acquisitione omnium idearum ac cognitionum [illegible] pro ideo etiam in quacumque cogitatione ac perceptione. Qui ergo fiet ut mens primo suae creationis momento cogitet aut percipiat? ut cogitet aut percipiat dum unitur corpori quando nimium adeo tenellum est corpus et maxime cerebrum, et nullius motioni [illegible] excipiendae ac proinde phantasmata menti exhibendo [illegible]: [illegible] autem dicitur de statu animae a suae creationis et unionis cum corpore initio, idem servata proportione valet etiam de co[illegible] in quo [illegible] ut dormit, aut ebrius est. Debet in hominibus [illegible] ut spiritus animales adeo languescere et torpere queunt ut nec [illegible] ab extrinseco percipiant motus, nec motus illos cerebro communicent, atque omne tum phantasma extinguatur, omnisque propterea cesset cogitatio ac perceptio: ergo etc.

Resp. 1° in omnium generatim, eum qui perennem cogitationem mentis, ut eius vitam sequi demonstravit non teneri etiam scire unde illi materies suppetat cogitandi, quasi hoc si ignoretur illud quoque ignorari credendum sit. Resp. 2° secundo cum Silvano Regis. Etsi mens humana cum primum corpori unitur nulla omnino idea seu cognitione informata esset, quod tamen non adeo certum est ut velut axiomate de eo sentiant philosophi omnes, nihilominus, haud difficulter

ostendi posset

[illegible] possit [illegible] percipere tamen [illegible] [illegible] siquidem cum anima primum corpori unitur statim [illegible] functiones in eodem corpore [illegible] [illegible] aut [illegible] hujusmodi haberi nequeunt quin motio aliqua in nervulis aut in spiritibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cognoscatur ergo cum motione in [illegible] [illegible] cogitationes [illegible] perceptione in mente [illegible] [illegible] inde fit mentem humanam statim [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cogitare vel percipere. Praeterea [illegible] cum [illegible] animae unitur unionem illico sentit, et [illegible] ad agendum determinatur; cur non eandem unionem animadvertere non potuit, et perceptiones [illegible]? Nulla igitur dubium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a primo [illegible] [illegible] cum corpore [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel in infantia [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] percipiat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vivacitate [illegible] et [illegible] percipiat. Neque video qua ratione probari queat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] opponitur hunc illa languere [illegible] [illegible] posse spiritus animales aut [illegible], et nullum aliquod phantasma in cerebro excitetur [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] functiones in corpore absolvuntur; ac corpus ipsum a circumpositis corporibus aliqua ratione afficitur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] et non est [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] motione in cerebro [illegible] [illegible] ut aliqua in ipso [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facultate easdem illas perceptiones iterum excitare et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] distincte, obscure tantum et confuse. Quod satis est ut dicamus mentem humanam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] infantia [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] semper aliquid cogitare, aut percipere

Dices: si Anima etiam in matris sinu et in infantia, semper aliquid percipit cur earundem perceptionum nemo deinceps recordatur:

[illegible] infantiam [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

non vero

non vero claræ et distinctæ. Nam cum mens melioribus ideis semper rapiatur: dum a statu idearum confusarum ad claras transit nullam iis attentionem præbuit quocirca earum recordari nequit. Illas etiam adiungere possumus, id repetitionem fortasse ex eo quod perceptiones illæ coniunctæ non erant cum conscientia, uti iam observavimus. [illegible] aliquando [illegible] recordamur quod [illegible] est quam [illegible] perceptionum quas satis distinctas habuimus et cum conscientia; quæque maiorem impressionem in cerebro fecerunt. Cæterum si conscientiæ defectus defectum probabat præteritæ cogitationis; cur non dicimus nos vigiles minime cogitare de iis, quorum non raro penitus obliviscimur, ac [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible], [illegible] dormientes cogitant aut percipiunt cogitationes illæ aut perceptiones tamen vel [illegible] esse [illegible], neque [illegible] aut pene capaces, quod est falsum.

Sed [illegible] [illegible] cogitationes illas in mente [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tantum [illegible] ac [illegible] ac propterea capaces non esse, [illegible] vel pene uti vocant

Theoph.

Philal. [illegible] [illegible]. Status cogitationis [illegible] status vigiliæ. Experimur enim nos dormire non posse [illegible] [illegible] quædam cogitatio animum [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] cogitationes semper vigiles [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] mens nostra [illegible] [illegible] personæ, altera dum dormimus altera dum vigilamus: personæ enim identitas iuxta Lockium posita est in identitate conscientiæ cogitationum. At quoniam vigilantibus nobis mens non habet conscientiam earundem cogitationum quas habuit nobis dormientibus, [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] quod illud intolerabile patet absurdum.

[illegible] [illegible] esse quod [illegible] [illegible] Lockius nos non [illegible] cogitare et dormire quippe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], non raro [illegible] [illegible] nec [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] demonstrationes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Metaphysicus: qua [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] Philosophum qui nostra [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] adanime [illegible] persuadeam quam [illegible] mare in [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et omnium [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] nos dormimus non quando nihil cogitamus, sed quando quasi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] motus fit tardior. Quod [illegible] cogitationes quædam, omnes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] agitant. [illegible] Lockii argumentum si nihil aliud [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] conscientiæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] animam [illegible] [illegible] altera dum dormimus [illegible] [illegible] vigilamus, quod tamen [illegible] [illegible] non video. Quod si persona [illegible] [illegible] individuum rationale, quemadmodum

ostri

cæteri omnes philosophi docent anima dum vigilamus et dormimus semper eadem est persona ipsisque semper idem individuum rationale. Ex neutro ergo ex allatis argumentis perennis animi cogitatio everti potest.

Obiicies 3º cum Divo Thoma: Esse semper in actu est proprietas solius intellectus divini; ergo humanus intellectus non semper agit seu cogitat.

Resp. 1º Divum Thomam in Metaphysicis rebus exercitatissimum, asserere quidem esse semper in actu solius intellectus divini proprium esse, sed tamen mitius esse exponendum, ne principiis suis minus consentanea ratiocinatum fuisse dicamus. Cum enim ex [illegible] deduci nequit de potentia in actum nisi per aliquod ens actu, ut ostendat quomodo anima deducatur de non actu in actum confugit ad intellectum agentem: at nisi hic intellectus sit semper in actu necesse est alterum admittere atque in infinitum. Intellectus ergo agens est semper in actu. Si ex Thomæ doctrina intellectus agens non est ab anima distinctus, ergo anima semper erit in actu iuxta Divum Thomam, si ex suis principiis velimus ratiocinari. Exponendus itaque est perinde ac si dicere voluerit esse intellectus divini esse proprium semper in actu perfectissimo esse quo [illegible] excluditur siquidem mens humana a perenni actu perfectissimo et solius Dei proprio; non excluditur vero a perenni quocumque actu etiam minus perfecto: a quo certe excludi non potest, ex eo præcise quia divina mens est semper in actu. Si enim non arguitur quod mens divina infinita sit, et perfectissima, finita vero et imperfecta humana, sequitur inde humanam mentem non semper posse vivere, quod nemo dixerit. Itaque ex quo divina mens sit semper in actu, non inde colligitur repugnare mentem humanam esse semper in actu cum infinitum adhuc discrimen sit inter utramque mentem.

[illegible] dissertationi de natura Animæ [illegible] non erit [illegible] superius naturali ratione contra Epicureos et Materialistas animæ spiritualitatem et immortalitatem, aliquibus etiam scripturæ testimoniis comprobare contra Socinianos qui a naturali ratione ad scripturam sacram nos provocant. Statuitur igitur

Prop. [illegible]

Contra Socinianos utramque [illegible] de spiritualitate et immortalitate mentis humanæ ex pluribus sacræ scripturæ [illegible] contendimus.

Prob. Christus Dominus Matthæi 10. v. 28 [illegible] exhortans [illegible] et martyrium subeundos inquit: nolite timere eos qui occidunt corpus, animam autem non possunt occidere; sed potius timete eum qui potest ~~corpus [illegible] corpus~~ et animam et corpus perdere in gehennam. Et Joannis 12 qui odit animam suam in hoc mundo in vitam æternam custodit eam. [illegible] vero homines corpus tantum occidere possunt, non animam, nisi quia Anima substantia est a Corpore diversa seu spiritualis. Quomodo posset Deus nostro corpore animam mittere in gehennam ignis nisi extincto corpore illa superesset et viveret?

enim seu

Cur hodem qui odit animam suam in hoc mundo in vitam æternam custodit, nisi quia eadem anima in æter- nitate … Christo Domino univit Paulus ad Philippenses ubi ait cupio dissolvi et esse cum Christo

Quod quidem nisi anima a corpore vere dissolvi posset et post mortem corporis superesse ac vivere, quod exigit ut anima sit substantia a corpore distincta et immortalis, nec cupiret a corpore dissolvi, nec esse cum Christo, … … ad catholicam veritatem … omnia alia … testimonia quæ hac de re in divinis litteris occurrunt passim, et quorum textus sunt luculentissimi. Christiani omnes Theologi, et … interpretes, fideliumque cœtus, … … semper fuit unanimis

Dogma de spiritualitate et immortalitate mentis humanæ ex sacra Scriptura manifeste comprobari.

Oppones Pº. contra Spiritualitatem Animæ: Moyses in toto Pentateuco ne verbum quidem habet de animæ spiritualitate, imo vero variis in locis de eadem anima ita dixerit, ut videatur innuere eam esse cor- poream: Primo enim dicit, Deum inspirasse in faciem hominis spiraculum vitæ, id est Animam. Spiraculum autem nihil aliud significare quam halitum, respirationem seu nihil a corpore diversum, patet tum ex quo illud … vertunt … interpretes, tum ex quo … adhibeatur … … quoque animas significandas, quas certe Scriptura Sacra corporeas dicit. Deinde loquens Moyses de formatione hominis inquit formavit Deus hominem ex limo terræ. ergo juxta Mosen homo nonnisi limus et terra est. … autem secundo … … limum et terra non ex limo terræ ut … … tur, demonstrat præpositio hebraica … quæ … terræ non limo. Tandem, … … … animam omnis carnis in sanguine esse positam; ergo hominis anima ut et cæterorum animantium corporea est

Resp. … … quæ … … spiritualitatem … … … … … … argumentum negativum nullam vim habeat … opposita pro- … argumenta … … … … Deinde … Moyses … … … nimæ aperte non … … … anima non … … … … … … … … … … natura … … … … … … … … … … veteres Scriptores … origine, … … Sacri Scripturas; … Spiraculum … vitæ, quod in faciem hominis … corpus humanum e terra formatum … … … … … … substantiam … … … … … … … … … … … … … … … … … … imaginem Dei. cum ergo ad imaginem Dei … … … … … … … … … … intelligentem, spiraculum vitæ, de quo … est sermo … … … … … … … …

incorporeum etiam

[illegible] patet etiam cum agitur de [illegible] animae [illegible] nos movet. Principio enim, si ne-cesse foret, non difficili negotio ostendi posset, animas etiam [illegible] non esse corpoream, [illegible] sacris scripturis non adversari: verum necessitas hujusmodi nulla est. Dato enim quod sensu et litterali [illegible] accipi debeat [illegible] spiraculi [illegible], hoc tamen sensu accipi non potest cum agitur de homine [illegible] [illegible] — Ad secundum [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] non vero ex [illegible] [illegible] nihil tamen inde deducere possunt adversarii pro sua opinione. [illegible] enim ibi nomine [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] utraque substantia corporea et spiritualis; [illegible] est de sola substantia corporea, omnia spiritualis de qua agitur [illegible] [illegible] et inspiravit in faciem ejus spiraculum vitae. ——— Ad postremum ex Levitici decimo septimo desumptum cum ibi loquatur Deus de [illegible] animalibus quorum [illegible] permittebat et [illegible], videtur testimonium illud respicere solas brutorum animas. Quod si ad hominum etiam animas extendatur non ita intelligendum est perinde ac si hominum anima nihil aliud sit quam sanguis; [illegible] est accipiendum, quasi per illud innuatur hominum animam [illegible] a sanguine [illegible] [illegible] quo in sensu illud accipiunt interpretes, [illegible] cum S. Augustino. ——— Ceterum nemini mirum videri debet veteres sacrae scripturae [illegible] [illegible] et nonnulli [illegible] [illegible] animam esse spiritualem. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qui [illegible] [illegible] quod corpoream non [illegible] [illegible] intelligere.
— Opponés 2.° non unum [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] Patrum qui humanae mentis [illegible] [illegible] naturae [illegible], et Augustinus non [illegible] [illegible] libro de [illegible]. S. [illegible] [illegible] et quod non in [illegible] [illegible] et creatione corporeum est . . . . . [illegible] et animarum [illegible]
[illegible], [illegible] [illegible] tamen naturae [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] 8 [illegible]: nihil [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] Hieronymus [illegible] [illegible] et etiam S. Ambrosius non [illegible] de natura mentis humanae [illegible] [illegible] . . .
Respondeo atque in primis [illegible] a [illegible] Tertulliani esse omnino [illegible] cum nimis [illegible] et cum hac in parte [illegible] enim dicit animam substantiam [illegible] [illegible] substantia ab eo [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] substantia [illegible] [illegible] et indivisibilis uti notat ex S. Augustino. [illegible] autem excepto Tertulliano alium nemo est qui animam [illegible], [illegible] Atque in hac [illegible] — nia necessitate auctoritates proferre vellem, de eorum mente dubium, si quod est, prorsus evanesceret. Verum ne nimius evadam, contentus ero ea testimonia explicare, de quibus adversarii gloriantur. Itaque si Patrum laudatorum mens non ex nudo aliquorum verborum cortice, sed ex eorum philosophia aut doctrina investigetur, facile erit cognoscere eos nunquam in ea fuisse opinione, ut crederent animam esse corpoream, non spiritualem. Et quod spectat ad Philosophiam observandum est Patres veteres, Graecorum maxime philosophorum morem sequentes, duo in anima humana distinguere solitos, Animam et Spiritum: uti inter caeteros notant Tatianus et Irenaeus in objectione laudati: Animam autem corpoream aliquam substantiam licet tenuissimam revera putabant, eam esse Spiritus quasi vehiculum quoddam, et sensorium esse dicebant. At Spiritum arbitrati sunt semper esse substantiam simplicem, incorpoream, spiritualem. Quod vero attinet ad eorum doctrinam notandum est, eos cum humanam mentem corpoream esse dicunt naturam materialem substantiam nomine... tenus, pro eo quod temporis, locorumque limitibus circumscribitur, non autem pro ea re, quae natura sua solida est et proprie corporea. Ne vero quis credat hanc interpretationem ad arbitrium esse confictam, audiatur Auctor libri de Spiritu et Anima eodem objecto cap.º 18: Ex eo, inquit intellectuales naturas corporeas esse dicimus, quia loco circumscribuntur sicut et Anima humana. non habet tamen corporalem dimensionem, nec circumscriptionem. Idem eruitur ex S.º Hilario: rationem enim reddens cur dixerit animarum species corpoream substantiam sortiri, inquit: quia omne quod creatum est in aliquo sit necesse est. Neque aliter exponi potest S. Hilarius, nisi dicere velimus eum sibimet contradicere. In Psalmum enim 129 num. 6. docet animam humanam ad imaginem Dei esse factam, adeoque nihil in se habere corporale, nihil grave, nihil caducum.

Hoc loco proferet fortasse quis verba ejusdem Concilii, ni fallor septimi generalis, quorum sententia sensus est, Angelos ac propterea etiam Animas celo corporeo circumvestiri. Verum illius Concilii Patres ea loquendi formula non definiunt angelos corporeae constare natura, dicebat definiunt licere in picturis angelos Fidelibus exhibere corporeo velo circumvestitos, quod alias licere an ne ab ipsis fuerat quaesitum.

Ajunt 3.º contra Animae immortalitatem. Sapientiae 2º Solomon inquit: ex nihilo nati sumus et post erimus tanquam non fuerimus. Ecclesiastes vero cap. 3 haec habet: Dixi in corde meo de filiis hominum, ut probaret eos Deus et ostenderet similes esse bestiis; idcirco unus interitus est hominis et jumentorum, et aequa utriusque conditio, sicut moritur homo, sic et illa moriuntur, et nihil habet jumento homo amplius: cuncta subjacent vanitati: et omnia pergunt ad unum locum: de terra facta sunt et in terram pariter revertuntur. Quis novit si spiritus filiorum Adam

ascendat

ascendat sursum, et si spiritus iumentorum descendat deorsum? Denique cap.° 9 ita concludit:
viventes sciunt se morituros, mortui vero nihil noverunt amplius, nec habent ultra mercedem quia oblivioni tradita est memoria eorum.

Ita [illegible] Salomonem non adversari, sed potius favere animae immortalitati quod clarioribus verbis adstruit tum aliis in libris tum etiam Ecclesiaste, ex quo potissima communiter objectio.
Cap. enim 9. v. 16. et 17 [illegible] clare monet post hanc vitam alteram superesse, in qua Deus et iustis praemium elargitur et iniustis poenam infligit neque dissimilia docet cap. 12. En eius verba: ibit homo in domum aeternitatis suae et, paulo post: revertatur pulvis in terram suam unde erat et spiritus redeat ad illum qui dedit illum, quibus verbis quid clarius proferri posset ad animae immortalitatem persuadendam? Sed ne difficultatem declinare videar venio ad solvendas auctoritates propositas.
Ad textum ex sapientia desumptum dico Salomonem ibi non loqui ex propria doctrina sed ex impiorum hominum falsa opinione, arbitraria haec interpretatio non est sed ex ipso contextu deducta. Scopus enim erat propositus impiorum falsam opinionem [illegible] quam sive in-cipit his verbis: dixerunt cogitantes apud se non recte et alibi consequenter [illegible] [illegible] cogitaverunt et erraverunt. Sapientia [illegible] eosdem impios de immortalitate animae tandem convictos ita loquentes inducit: nos insensati vitam illorum aestimabamus insaniam et finem illorum sine honore: ecce quomodo computati sunt inter filios Dei, et inter sanctos sors illorum est.
Testimonium ex Ecclesiaste tertio non id est sensus in nullo praestare hominem a iumentis [illegible], sed simillimum esse illis in omnibus [illegible] Salomon alibi [illegible] aperte docet.
verum [illegible] vita [illegible] et interitus [illegible] et quod ad corpus pertinet eandem [illegible] [illegible] in eandem redire. [illegible] quis novit utrum spiritus filiorum Adam ascendat sursum et spiritus iumentorum descendat deorsum? vel [illegible] qui naturali ratione non possunt animam immortalem cognoscere vel pervicaces qui nolunt intelligere, vel denique [illegible] mentis [illegible] in Scripturibus [illegible] quam nequeunt homines clare et distincte cognoscere discrimen quod intercedit inter animas hominum et [illegible] expositioni sunt qui alias addunt. Gregorius Magnus et B. Thomas censent Salomonem in hoc etiam loco loqui ex persona impiorum: aliis placet hic narrare Salomonem [illegible] se cogitata cum invenit erat verum cum hos expositiones [illegible] non [illegible] [illegible] ulterius.
[illegible] aliquis paulus explicatur. Dicitur enim mortuos nihil novisse amplius [illegible] dio corpore [illegible] non habere mercedem amplius, quia oblivioni tradita est memoria eorum; quia scilicet homines mortuorum [illegible] oblivisci

Expon. 4°. [illegible]

Ysyon 4° Mose de immortalit.e animae nullibi legitur, immo pluribus in locis videtur innuere eam esse mortalem etenim explicatur nullo animi facta mentione, in Dei minatione: pulvis es et in pulverem reverteris. Gen. 4°. Pactum Deus percutit ne dum cum homine, sed cum omni anima vivente creaturarum: requirit etiam rationem vitae homini de manu hominum et de manu bestiarum. Gen. 37 de Joseph dicitur: ne interficiatis animam eius. Confirmatur haec doctrina ex hoc sententia: lignum habet spem, si praecisum fuerit rursum virescit....... homo vero cum mortuus fuerit atque consumptus ubi quaeso est

Resp. quod Moses non ita aperte de altera vita monuerit Hebraeos in suis legibus, habetur hoc esse ex arcanis Providentiae divinae quae magnum hoc dogma clare explicandum Christo reservaverat ut ratiocinatur Beatus Augustinus. Sane Deus non omnia omnibus hominibus dixit, sed quaedam in certis temporibus explicanda distulit, ubi ex arcani dispensationem oeconomia patet. caeterum non aperte aliqua altera ratione hoc dogma Mosen Hebraeis confirmasse argumento ubi primo est ex historia, quae extat in Levitico contra eos, qui animas mortuorum consulunt: ex qua lege patet communem fuisse Hebraeis eo tempori animas corporibus superesse. Atque huic persuasioni adversatur Moses ad tantum praecipit non licere superstites animas consulere.

Quae autem opposita si attentius examinentur, et cum aliis conferantur ne minimum quidem nobis repugnantur. Cum enim Deus Adae minatur: pulvis es et in pulverem reverteris, corpus respicit non animam. Cum pactum percutit cum homine et cum omni anima vivente etiam diximus non percutere pacto de immortalitate vel mortalitate, sed de non mittendo amplius aquis diluvii. Cum requirit rationem vitae hominis de manu bestiarum respicit legem latam de non comedenda carne bestiarum cum sanguine: cum vero requirit rationem de manu hominum respicit praeceptum de homine non interficiendo. Et tum rationem reddit caput nonum Genesis, in quo [illegible] hominem ad imaginem Dei esse factum, quod de bestiis nullibi dicitur.

Cap. 37 ubi de Joseph legitur ne interficiatis animam eius non intelligitur totus homo anima et corpus sed corpus [illegible] Scripturae [illegible] vivide. Denique locis citata ita accipienda est cum anima a corpore fuerit separata, est [illegible] consumptum, ubi est quaeso corpus? cum nisi per Dei potentiam iterum animae coniungetur? Cum ergo locis [illegible] piciat, cum de altera animae vita non semel dixerat apertissime.

Resp. primo. Paulus pr. ad Corint. cap. 15 ait: in hac tantum vita [illegible] miserrimi omnium hominum sumus. Non est resurrectio [illegible] Sicut dicit Apostolus [illegible] deberemus. Iam si animae superessent, et esse possent beatae sine corpore [illegible]

corpora

corpora, non tamen vanę erant nostrę afflictiones ergo, si Paulo recte vanę erant mortuo, et resoluto corpore non superessent animę nec beatę viverent. Hanc doctrinam confirmat idem Apostolus 1ª ad Timotheum 6 ubi dicit: Deus solus habet immortalitatem.

Resp. 1° Aliquot primos Christianos ita Pauli verba ad Corinth. intellexisse, ut animas separatas usque ad corporum resurrectionem dormirent, seu in statu quodam dormitionis a quo tamen essent excitandę in die extremi iudicii. cum etiam de non [illegible] [illegible] somnum et requiem expectabant. Hęc opinio immortalitati animę non adversatur; sed cum adversetur Scripturę et traditioni relinquenda est et alia responsio afferenda. Hanc itaque responsionem post Chrysostomum afferunt Theologi. Paulus dicit insuper inanes esse labores nostros nisi corporum futura esset resurrectio, quod nullam plenam beatitudinem nemini contingere ante corporum resurrectionem. Quare allata Apostoli verba de plena et completa beatitudine exponi debent hoc modo: si in hac tantum vita sperantes sumus in Christo; id est si corpus affligimus sine ulla spe alicuius premii ad corpus etiam spectantis, miserrimi omnium hominum sumus, id est respectu corporis quod affligimus et cui alii blandiuntur: si non est resurrectio, edamus et bibamus, cras moriemur. Id est nullum est corporis premium. Huic responsioni etiam addo quę est hujusmodi: Si non est resurrectio corporum Deus est mendax qui nobis corporum resurrectionem promisit; aut etiam is qui non credit resurrectionem Deo non credit et est infidelis, sed si Deus esset mendax inanes essent spes nostrę etsi qui Deo non credit nullam post mortem corporis superesset felicitas. Atque ita Paulus persuadet corporum resurrectionem non negat animę immortalitatem quam quidem immortalitatem non unico in loco probat ex verbis ad Philippenses ubi ait: cupio dissolvi et esse cum Christo et 2ª ad Corint. cap. 5 ubi ait: Scimus quoniam si terrestris domus nostra huius habitationis dissolvatur, quod ędificationem ex Deo habemus, domum non manufactam, ęternam in cęlis.

Ex nostris verbis testimonii ad Timotheum res explicatur. Deus solus habet immortalitatem a se ipso et ita ut nec absolute loquendo possit non esse ac mori; sic enim nulla creatura est immortalis.

Eadem ratione explicari debent Patres qui simili modo non semel locuti sunt atque eadem pariter debent explicari verba Sophronii in concilio sexto approbata in quibus dicitur intellectualia et invisibilia immortalia esse non natura sed gratia. Explicari nempe debent de natura improducta non producta et de immortalitate non intrinseca sed extrinseca. Nam licet enim anima ex natura sua [illegible], sed illa tamen et venit a Deo tali natura non producta

Pariter

Pariter intrinsece est immortalis natura sua, sed extrinsece est immortalis ex gratia, quia nimirum a Deo conservatur: uti ergo spiritualitas, ita animae immortalitas a dissimiliori [illegible] [illegible] est vindicata

De Animae Sede.

[illegible] de natura Animae tractatione, ita ratiocinati sumus, quasi pro certo haberemus Animam in corpore [illegible]. restat nunc ut id explicemus clarius et videamus utrum pro: certo habendum est. Sed [illegible] animadvertendum est [illegible] quaestioni [illegible] quaerit. Qui igitur de animae sede quaestionem instituerunt in duas classes diviti [illegible], alii putant Animam esse formam corporis, [illegible], quae toti permeat corpus, totam in toto corpore totam in qualibet corporis parte. [illegible] Peripatetici [illegible] Anima videt [illegible] in oculo non in aure, nec audit [illegible] animis [illegible] ea ratione qua idem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in flore [illegible] in fronde [illegible] in pomo. Alii volunt Animam [illegible] illo cerebro [illegible], seu in co: nario Cartesii, seu in aliquo cerebri ventriculo quod probabilius putarunt alii [illegible] in toto cerebro quod parvi refert. Rem autem explicant hoc modo. Ex intima cerebri substantia [illegible] origi- nem nervi, quibus veluti tela contextum est corpus humanum. [illegible] cerebri parte unde prodierunt nervi est Animae. Hinc si pulsetur aliqua nervorum pars quae extra cerebrum est posita, tunc vel tremore nervorum vel ope spirituum animalium nervos irradiantium [illegible] [illegible] propagatur ad aliam extremitatem nempe ad cerebrum atque inde nascitur Animae perceptio, seu sensatio. [illegible] actione Animae afficiatur vel animae voluntate determinetur ad motum ea nervorum extremitas, quae in cerebro est posita tunc vel tremore nervorum, vel ope spirituum animalium mota illa ad alias corporis partes [illegible] atque inde nascuntur [illegible] motiones variae. Haec est doctrina quae apud omnes hoc tempore viget. non igitur [illegible] [illegible] nec inu- tilem nec [illegible]...

Quaestio Unica

An sensatio in ipso cerebro perficiatur, ope spirituum animalium nervos irradiantium, qui passionem [illegible] immutationem ad cerebrum deferunt.

[illegible] quaestio, quae duplicem partem continet, solvenda est duabus propositionibus, in quarum una probabimus sensationem perfici in ipso cerebro. in altera [illegible] sensationem ad cerebrum deferri ope spirituum animalium. Sit itaque

Prop. Ia

Sensatio perficitur in ipso cerebro.

Sint quamvis ad

Antequam ad probationem venio, duorum sensationem duplicem distingui oportet, aliam formalem, aliam materialem seu causalem. Formalis est mentis perceptio, ad quam ab immutatione sensorii organi determinatur; materialis seu causalis est immutatio sensorii organi in cerebrum usque propagata. In sensatione igitur materiali seu causali tria sunt distinguenda. Primum est actio corporum externorum, quae impelluntur, vellicantur, vel alio quocumque modo moventur partes nervorum externa sensuum constituentes; alterum est actionis propagatio usque ad cerebrum, in quo solum sensationem perfici volumus, et ita nominamus.

Si nisi passiva sensorii immutatio cerebro communicetur nulla in nobis excitatur sensatio; ergo etc.

Prob. antec. Narrat Boerhaavius hominem Parisiis fuisse qui in propriam calvariam stipem vicatim petebat, cum cerebrum sub calvaria dura meninge tectum haberet. Experimenta certis in ejus cerebro facta sunt, quibus nempe dura mater digito levissime comprimebatur, subito mille scintillae ante oculos hominis versabantur; et si fortior fieret compressio, jam caligo oculos occupabat; si demum validiori manu urgeretur, in somnum delabebatur, deinde stertebat donec sublata manus, vivi quam apoplectico fierent simillimus. Sed simul ac malum remota manu non fortius urgebant, omnino primum atque tenebris cessantibus, redita deinde sensuum potestate. Haec Boerhaavius, de cujus fide nemo unquam dubitavit. Allato experimento illud consonat ~~quod~~ experimentum quod in Actis Academiae Parisiensis legitur anno 1741, et alia plurima quibus constat cerebro laborante sensum omnem deleri. Sic si intra cranium alicui hominis arteria rupta fuerit atque extra effluxerit in cerebri medulla una vel altera sanguinis uncia, nemo ibi nullam ab actione vel sensu ... sentiat. Haec experimenta probant valentibus sensorii organis, iisque vehementer immutatis, sed cerebro laborante nullam in nobis sensationem excitari. Ergo nisi passiva sensorii immutatio cerebro communicetur nulla in nobis sensatio excitatur. Praeterea omnium anatomicorum consensione confirmatum est, in omnibus partibus quae humanum corpus constituunt ideo nervos esse ejus naturae, ut si laedantur vel aliquo modo ex sensu externae rei appulsu afficiantur, molestam aut jucundam sensationem in nobis excitent. Atqui nulla sensatio in nobis excitatur ex immutatione eorum nervorum quibus cum cerebro interrupta fuerit communicatio; sic disrupta spina dorsi compertum est animal nihil tactu sentire in iis partibus per quas nervorum filamenta ex inferiori medullae spinalis parte erumpentia disseminantur. Sic experimento a Galeno primum, deinde a ... aliisque tentato constat quod si nervum animalis vivi, v.g. cruralem nervum canis, tendiculo plano ligatum vinculo in nervum constringendo

stringendo

contingendo discindat) perit statim sensus in parte nervi infra ligaturam posita. passiva ergo sensorii immutatio nisi cerebro communicetur nulla in nobis excitatur sensatio. ea igitur in solo cerebro perficitur quod erat probandum.

Oppon. 1° Scholastici, hanc opinionem manifestae experientiae et intimo sensui adversari. nihil enim inquiunt, certius novimus et nihilque constat apertius quam nos videre oculis, audire auribus, dura et mollia tactu sentire: uno verbo, dolere animam cum corpore eo in loco, ubi aliquid contingit ut doleat: ergo etc.

Resp.° intimum sensum non semper esse certam veritatis regulam. ab eo enim pluribus decipimur modis: sic frigus et calorem, aliasque sensibiles qualitates corporibus inesse putamus: attamen in corporibus sunt tantum potentiae in nobis excitandi sensationes frigoris, caloris, atque aliarum qualitatum: sic etiam videmur nobis videre oculis, audire auribus, tactu manuum et pedum sentire, attamen in oculis, in aure, in manu, in pede nihil est aliud quam partium externa illorum sensuum constituentium impulsus, vellicatio, affectio sine sensatione. neque enim nulla fit nobis sensatio, si impulsus vellicatio, affectio sensorum externorum ad cerebrum usque non propagatur, aut cum propagatur si cerebrum morbo aliquo laborat. Sed cur videmur nobis in oculo aut in aure coloris aut soni sensationem experiri? quia nimirum ab oculo vel aure actio ad cerebrum propagatur, seu quia sensatio coloris aut soni immediate pendet ab immutatione cerebri, mediate vero ab immutatione oculi aut auris. sicut eadem ex causa fit, ut sensibiles qualitates inesse corporibus putemus, ut res visa eo loco appareat unde aliis species seu radius rectus ultimo advenit tametsi res illa non sit eo loci veluti dum aliquid intuemur in speculo.

Oppon. 2° Evenit plerumque ut eodem tempore odorem, sonum, saporem, colorem, calorem, frigus, dolorem, laetitiam et voluptatem sentiamus; ergo si sensatio perficitur in solo cerebro, nimirum in conario Cartesii, aut in suo cerebri ventriculo ut aliis placet, in uno conario aut ventriculo componi deberent eodem tempore multiplices variae contrariaeque distinctae affectiones quod repugnare videtur.

Resp.° in qua cerebri parte anima resideat, et perficiatur sensatio incertum est. Cartesius animam collocavit in pineali cerebri glandula conarium dicta. sed minus recte id factum fuisse opinatur Boerhavius, et Soldus medicus et anatomicus Amstelodamensis observavit in glandula pineali lapillos, et aliquando tam multos, ut tota ex lapillis quasi glandula constaret cum tamen in vita mens sana et constans fuisset, sensus et motus integri. Hoc refert Plempius apud clarissimum Lucam Tozzi Tom. 2. Medicinae Artis de Sensibus

alii

Aliis proprius placuit sensationis, sedem et animae collocare in aliis cerebri partibus, id res adhuc incerta, in qua quid affirmare debeamus non habemus. Dicimus ergo generatim in eo cerebri loco sensationis et animae sedem sitam esse ex quo omnes nervi suum principium suum ducunt. Sed quomodo, inquis, in tenuissima cerebri parte tot distinctae affectiones eodem tempore componi possunt, quot requiruntur, ut eodem tempore odorem, sonum et sentiamus? ea nimirum aut simili ratione, qua milleni nervi alii aliis diversis sensationibus et motibus destinati ab exilissima cerebri parte originem ducunt, eo aut simili modo, quo in foetu, exilissima nempe, et diffluenti materiae parte, continentur omnia vasa corporis humani, eo aut simili pacto quo in fundo oculi depingitur imago omnium objectorum, quae uno intuitu conspiciuntur: [illegible] natura in suis operibus utitur tam parvis machinulis, ut nec visu, nec mente possimus illa attingere.

Objicies 3°. Si in solo cerebro perficitur sensatio nullum animal vivere posset sine cerebro aut cerebro vitiato integrum sensuum usum habere: atqui oppositum docet experientia ergo etc. prob. min. In Historia academiae scientiarum narrat Bonius natos esse [illegible] qui ad debitum tempus gestati, et legitimum incrementum nacti sunt, cum tamen in eorum calvaria nullum cerebrum repertum sit: aliquando vero etiam medulla spinalis defuerit, aut ejus partis [illegible] repertae fuerint: addit morbosum [illegible] non semel inventa fuisse cerebra puerorum qui lento morbo extenuati integrum sensuum usum ad mortem usque conservaverint: similia habent alii medici et Anatomici. Sic post magna vulnera cerebri usque ad ventriculos, usque homines non convaluisse solum, sed integris sensibus [illegible] testatur Galenus. Sic ex Historiis quas refert [illegible] constat nonnullorum animalium cerebrum lapidefactum fuisse observatum.

Resp. cum clarissimis viris Galli nostro et Italiae. Primo [illegible] in multis earum historiarum quae narrari solent pro demonstranda absentia cerebri fuisse utique cerebrum et loco tantum mutatum fuisse. tales sunt historiae Pauli Tulpii Bartolini Boneti atque aliorum. addit secundo vices cerebri supplere potuisse spinalem medullam, quae nervis ad cor et pulmones, et vitalia viscera euntibus sufficeret; hinc spinalis medulla in infantibus cerebro major fuisse legitur apud Ritlefum aliosque. Suspicatur tertio [illegible] loco cerebri aut etiam spinalis medullae organum aliud illi analogum [illegible] a natura, in quo

sensatio

sensatio reficeretur: ita Mengelus in fetu a se dimoto loco cerebri observavit carneam massam, que vesiculis et filamentis constabat; his vesiculis ac filamentis licet cerebrum a cerebro figuram alo. item sortitis tantum spirituum vitiori sat. tum modo secerni potuit quantum sufficeret ad nervos irrorandos, et ad tornicam sensationes recaptandas. finimode estit quanto, ...

pene omnes casus ... cerebri cum hydrocephali coniunctos fuisse. in cuius rei confirmationem plures Ana. tomicorum rerunt narrationes. sed ...idem auctor, in hydrocephali, cerebrum ... et ... meningum aque instar vessica exitit. ... fieri potuisse, ut cerebrum aut in humores abiret externos aut re... meatus, ... atque loco observatori ... effugeret. Denique ... concedendo fetus esse ... in quorum calvaria cerebrum aut etiam medulla spinalis defuerat; sed ex hoc nihil aliud ... nisi cerebrum et medullae spinalem morbo aliquo, paulatim contabescere fetus, e proinde tandem ... cerebro vita omnis in fetu perierit. Huic argumento non mediocre pondus accedit ex eo quod cerebri defectus in fetu fuerit observatus (fetus autem vita pene aliqua ... est) ...que motuum auctor sanguis a Matre fetui accedit, nempe sanguis ex Matris placenta per venam umbilicalem ad illius cor defertur atque hinc per universum corpus propellitur, neque ulla in fetu pulmonum ... et respiratio. Denique fetus in matris utero crescit et vivit ... quae quidem ... vivere, atque ... posse fetum ... cerebro paulatim contabescat, ...que ... nuatur ac tandem pereat.

... fetus, in quorum calvaria, nullum cerebrum ... narratur. ... nunc ad eos cerebri morbos ... atque ... nego autem integram ... eos, quorum cerebrum morbo laborant, ... negari ... qui ... tum veteres tum recentiores anatomicos observasse animalia fatua esse, et vertiginosa, quae mali ... generis ... hoc morbo ... et ... constanti ... observationes profert Haller ... laudatus in notis ad insti. tutiones medicas Boerhavii tom. 2º. ubi addit ... cerebri vitio vitae ... quandoque datur cum maximis pulmonum morbis aut cordis vulneribus.

Quam adeo

Cum addo de cerebri concretione in massam lapideam, scilicet aut verum sub massi lapideu, cerebrum latuisse, aut cerebri concretionem in cranio factam fuisse non statim, sed id paulatim:
profecto in istorii lapidefacti cerebri quos memorat Vallisnerius, constat omnes in quibus hoc hae sensim vires ac vitam amisisse vitium repertum est ceteris fuisse stupidiores, pendulo ac quasi semper nutante capite incessisse, manifesto sane indicio eodem pene gradu in illis vitam defecisse quo cerebri concretio augebatur.

Quaeres primo quid dicendum sit de viperis, aliisque id genus animalibus, quae si in plures partes secundum longitudinem secas, singula illorum frustula moventur adhuc, et si pungantur, contrahunt sese veluti in orbes signum, imo uno extremo in caput, altero in caudam mutato, in perfectum completumque animal abeunt. Haec portentosa phaenomena in vermiculis observarunt Templeius, Reaumurius, aliique sicuti testatur Marchio Scipio Maffeius scribens ad Iosephum Tisaninum comitem Ravennatem.

Resp. triplex genus motionis in corpore animalium distingui posse, animales, vitales, naturales.
Animales sunt corporis agitationes variae quae cum sensu sunt coniunctae, vitales quae fiunt sine sensu et ad vitam sunt necessariae, naturales quae fiunt sine sensu et sine vita. Iam vero motus illi, qui in dissectis vermiculis observantur esse possunt primo naturales, quatenus nimirum fluidum elasticum in vasculis nervisque contineatur easque agitet. ita etiam cor hominis a pectore recens avulsum sibi tactum visum est quandoque trepidare moveri sese contrahere. Sed possunt secundo esse vitales. in omnibus enim animalibus eadem non est partium corpus componentium structura neque eisdem legibus eodemque modo vitales motus peragunt: hac de causa factum est, ut ani-malia in imperfecta et perfecta distingui soleant. Dicuntur autem ergo imperfecta ea animalia, de quibus quaestio instituitur: fieri ergo potest, ut in dissectis eorum partibus vitales motus ad aliquod tempus perfici possint, quod non contingit in animalibus perfectis.
Hinc extracto corde et pulmone perfecta animalia vivere non possunt, sicuti vivunt ranae quae innatant aquae si in illas proiiciantur. In his ergo casibus animalium partibus anima-les motus haberi posse negamus, hoc enim semel posito sequeretur eorum animam in plures partes dividi posse. Sed quomodo explicanda erunt phaenomena, quae teste Maffeio in dissectis vermiculis observarunt Templeius, Reaumurius, aliique? Si coniecturis consectari licet, hoc modo ea explicamus: scilicet dissecta animalcula quorum recentia iam maturitatem obti-nentium magnum numerum habeant in tenui corpusculo una cum corporis partibus ova etiam a se invicem disiuncta sunt. (in ovis futuri animalium stamina latent) hae tenues quandoque motu paulatim evoluta novi animalculi speciem aliquorum dierum spatio observatorum oculis exhibuerunt.

Ceterum

Cæterum quoque sit in imperfectis animalibus sedes sensationum, seu in qua omnis ante sensatio perficiatur, determinare non possumus, neque debemus hoc loco, in quo sermonem instituimus duntaxat de perfectis animalibus, ac potissimum de homine.

Quæres 2º qua ratione sensorii passiva immutatio cerebro communicetur.

Resp.º Hujus quæstionis solutionem difficilem esse. Alii enim volunt nervos tensione sua chordarum musicarum instar tremores efficere, sicque sensorii immutationem ad cerebrum deferre. alii fluidum subtilissimum, quod nervos irradiare dicunt, unicum causam esse necessarii sunt. Posteriorum hæc opinio nobis probabilior videtur, sicque constabit ex sequenti Propositione. Sed ad illam antequam veniamus sciendum est nervos esse cerebri veluti propagines quæ in oblongata et spinali medulla tanquam in trunco primum collectæ, tum in plures quasi ramulos divisæ per totum hominis corpus naffanili [?] penitus divinoque artificio dispergantur ac propagantur. Sunt autem nervi chordæ quædam albicantes ex pluribus quamminimis fibrillis cordulis contextæ, quas sibi canum fistularum instar inter cavos esse supponimus, ut spiritus animales in se recipiant et in singulas quasvis corporis partes traducant. Sunt vero spiritus animales fluidum quoddam summe mobile, subtile tenue, clarum, et lucis radiis affine in cerebro separatum, atque inde velut ex fonte suo in omnes nervulos et nervos influens diffusum. Ut quæ ex anatomicis fusius tractari solent breviter adnotabimus.

Prop. 2ª – Passiva sensorii immutatio ad cerebrum deferri non potest per tremorem nervorum, unde ea ad cerebrum propagari putamus ope spirituum animalium nervos irradiantium.

Pro. prima Prop. pars. Experimentis et observationibus constat primo nervos in origine sua molles esse, et flaccidos et similes in fine. origo enim nervorum est tenerrima cerebri substantia, finis vero est nihilominus molli et tenui substantia: ideo in progressu etiam medullosi et deliquescentes sunt nervi. quamvis enim in aliqua a cerebro distantia videantur nervi fieri callosi et valentes, attamen callosum illud ... oritur ex membranis, quæ in cerebri egressu nervos tanquam vaginulæ quædam circumvestiunt et comitantur. Atque res ita esse, tum ex eo pluribus tum ex eo satis manifestum, quod exteriorem et densiorem vaginam nervum unquam deponit quando in proprium munus sui idem se recepit. Id quod in nervis optico, et auditorio se observasse fatentur omni exceptione majores, sicuti testatur Aucteur, ... qui ad majorem rei confirmationem addit nervum resectum longiorem fieri, quam cum integer erat, cum tamen restringi deberet, si tensus et elasticus esset, uti

sin autem

in arteria aut musculo contingit. His positis hoc inclitus argumentum. ut tremor a tremis in corde musice imprimatur, et absque sensibili temporis intervallo ad oppositum cordae finem perambulet, necesse est ut corda tensa sit et elastica. nervi autem a molli initio pinnt, molles progrediuntur in mollis desinunt, ergo sensorii passiva immutatio ad cerebrum deferri non potest per tremorem nervorum, uti in cordis musicis observatur. constat secundo observationibus multos et insignes nervos, ita ad partes alias validiores colligari ut brachione nulla moveri possint nisi totum illud pathon distrahant cui diviaduntur evidenter in pari ... Nervi cordis valide adhaerent membran[ae] arteriarum principum, et nervi alii magis arteriae in plexum pariter inclitas tenent. Adde nervorum varios inter se plexus; sed corda musica difficillime oscillat musice si alii fuerit implicata tremorem deperdit si circumligato gravi pondere interrupta fuerit. ergo sensorii immutatio, quae fit ex levi etiam ictu, cerebro communicari non potest per tremorem nervorum quin quidem quasi cordae musicae supponantur. Observationibus constat tertio nervorum i ... as frequentes inflexione etiam ubi progrediuntur per molles corporis partes sed corda elastica, et in utraque extremitate firmata non potest tremere musice nisi in puncto inflexionis firmata sit ad corpus immobile. ergo nervi haberi non possunt tamquam ... quae sensorii immutationem tremore ad cerebrum deferant.

Prob. ... propositionis pars. Evidens est prius sensorii immutationem ad cerebrum deferri debere per nervos. Sunt enim nervi qui a cerebro per totum corpus dispergantur certum et secundo sensorii immutationem ad cerebrum deferri non posse per tremorem nervorum consequitur ergo tertio in nervis fluidum aliquod contineri cujus ope sensorii immutatio ad cerebrum deferatur. Celeberrima haec opinio est a recentioribus si pauca excipias acceptata. tum enim clarissimo ... ab antiquissimis temporibus perpetua traditione constitit, esse nostrae per nervorum ministerium nervo vero agens per principium fluidissimum quod per nervo ferat et animae cum corpore quoddam quasi vinculum constituat.

Opp. 1. Clarus in arte medica viri ... qui p... animalium existentiam negarunt. primo quia nulli possunt oculis percipere hujusmodi ... secundo ... non ... ... inter cerebrum et ... ligantur. tertio quia nulla in nervis ... distinguitur cavitas, quae fluido ... quarto quia nervi ... non explentur ... etiam maxime.

Resp.o ad pr.m spirituum animalium particulas adeo subtiles esse ut ope sensuum distingui non possint. Sed ex quo oculis exhiberi nequeant non proinde eorum existentia negari potest quae necessaria quasi illatione consequitur ex iam dictis. Exemplis aliquot utemur. Quamquam [illegible] ultra [illegible] inventae fuerint nemo potuit oculis exhibere communicationem arteriae venae cum vena venam; quis tamen inde communicationem arteriae cum venis negavit? Penitus sanguis ex secta vena [illegible] in loco [illegible]; diminuitur perpetuo massa quamquam [illegible] sanguis. Nec microscopio quidem ullam exhalantem particulam vidimus [illegible] ne per totam exhalare dicas! a nari ergo Spiritus animales non videmus utique, sed de eorum existentia audacter [illegible]

Ad secundum resp.o nervorum vascula exigua esse, adeoque non intumescere inter cerebrum et partem si ligentur. hac de causa arteria lymphatica si ligatur non intumescit. Adde nervos a vinculo quandoque destrui non semper in [illegible] integra sua experimenta [illegible] contigisse refert [illegible]. Praeterea tanta est tenuitas liquidi in nervo contenti ut superare non possit resistentiam membranae quae nervum circumvestit dicimus.

Ad tertium eadem est responsio quae ad primum addita ex valde fistulas nerveas [illegible] [illegible] modo a collapsis membranis comprimi posse [illegible] obstrui posse, ut nulla appareat cavitas [illegible] fluido irroratur

Ad quartum respondeo cavitates in [illegible] nervi adeo tenues esse, ut [illegible] oculi distingui nequeant, ita nulla possint injectione repleri quod si replentur alia vasa etiam minima, hoc ideo est quia haec vasa quae minima dicuntur comparata cum vasis grandioribus maxima sunt si cum nervis conferantur. omnis enim magnitudo relativa est, et possunt esse corpora, quae sint ad granum sabuli, ut granum sabuli ad orbem magnum universi.

Sunt qui spirituum animalium existentiam [illegible] ostendere conati sunt quam solent impugnari. Malpighius et Bellinus narrant ex dissectis nervis exstillare fluidum. Anatomici [illegible] injecto per arterias carotides [illegible] atramento [illegible], dissecto deinde nervo auditorio, optico aut alio observarunt in nervis dissecti puncta nigra quo cavitates tubulorum nervearum demonstrari [illegible]erunt. [illegible] nervorum [illegible] diametro, et per longitudinem porrectas fistulas se vidisse persuasus fuit. [illegible] ligato nervo animalis recens nati [illegible] [illegible] intumescere inter cerebrum et vinculum dum. [illegible] observationes et experimenta in dubium revocant Boerhavius, ejusque discipulus Haller. Quare aliis speculationibus res in[illegible] duximus rationes [illegible] appositas.

Quaeres ubi ex quo, et quomodo Spiritus animales [illegible]

Resp.° ibi fabricari Spiritus animales ubi defluere per nervos possunt eosque irrigare - cum ergo nervi omnes ex cerebro tanquam ex radice prodeant, in cerebro fabricantur spiritus animales necesse est. Materia ex qua fabricantur est sanguis vividior, qui per arterias magna in copia a corde ascendit ad cerebrum. Spirituosae itaque sanguinis particulae sicuti in alia corporis fluida secernuntur ita in spiritus animales (perfectiori tamen modo) puro putrique evadunt. Huius secretioni modum assignare difficile nimium est; neque id mirum cuiquam videri debet. natura enim in quo [illegible] nobis ostendit nostrae cognitioni [illegible] effectus produxit.

Opp. 2°. Ex sanguine per arterias ad cerebrum a corde ascendente continua fit spirituum animalium secretio; hoc autem repugnat. Ex continuo siquidem fluxu spirituum deberent nervi paulatim distendi, in unum [illegible] congeri, ac demum effringi, cum [illegible] molles progrediantur, in molli desinant.

Resp.° Spiritus animales qui a cerebro in nervos fluunt triplicem a nervis [illegible] primo spiritus cum ad ultimos nervi ramulos perveniunt transit in vasculos omnium minimos ex vasculo reducem spiritus ineunt ad vasculum proxime maiorem, inde in tertium et sic successive in venas lymphaticas, ipsumque sanguinem et cum eo sanguini convectus nempe cor dextrum. Ita Boerhavius. Secundo ex apertis nervorum poris exhalant spiritus qui vapori similium [illegible] partes contiguas quo deficiente [illegible] ne condensentur revertuntur per minimos venulas et ordine opposito ad sanguinem atque in circulationem redeunt. Ita Haller in Hippocrate. tertio nervi ultimi [illegible] ramuli aperti ex cute exhalare videntur spiritus aliquo. Triplicem [illegible] spirituum animalium ex nervi exitum confirmat triplex arteriae exitus qui a nos quos modo nominavimus [illegible] dividitur.

Opp. si spiritus animales e nervo continuo exeunt, novi semper spiritus a cerebro descendunt ad nervos irrigandos: hoc posito sensorii immutatio ad cerebrum [illegible] deferatur [illegible] celeritate [illegible] non potest ut eodem momento quo sensorii immutatio fit sensatio etiam habeatur. Si enim sensorii immutatio ad cerebrum deferatur necesse est ut spiritus animales versus cerebrum moveantur. at si spiritus continuo fluunt a cerebro [illegible] non possunt versus cerebrum [illegible] moveri [illegible] motus [illegible] a motu contrario.

Resp. contra concesso, motum quo spiritus animales fluunt ex cerebro ad irrigandos nervos esse motum translationis in totam [illegible] quo [illegible] sensorii defertur ad cerebrum esse motum vibrationis [illegible] particulis. Exemplum proferamus. motus quo aer vento agitatur est motus translationis in tota aerea massa motus vero, quo sonus [illegible] aerem, est motus vibrationis in particulis aeris. Sicuti ergo potest aer ab oriente in occidentem agi [illegible] ventis eodem tempore [illegible] sonus [illegible] gatur ab occidente in orientem ita spiritus animales [illegible] a nervo fluere possunt [illegible] tempore quo per ipsa [illegible] immutatio [illegible] ad cerebrum. Explicandum et modo qui fiat ut eodem tempore quo sensorii immutatio fit, sensatio etiam habeatur exemplis hic pariter est opus: Si globuli eburnei in serie ponantur absque sensibili successione videmus moveri ultimum dum primus impellitur. Si canalis utcut inflexus fuerit aqua plenus, [illegible] aqua [illegible] eodem momento quo urgetur embolus. Pulsationes enim arteriae quae per manum pergit sentimus eodem tempore quo cordis contractiones fiunt. Sed igitur ratione motus spirituum animalium, qua nervorum fistulae plenae sunt momento temporis a sensorio immutato ad cerebrum propagari potest. Atque motus hujusmodi debet [illegible] aut retardari sensibiliter a motu quo a cerebro in nervos fluunt spiritus animales. est enim motus hic translationi in toto, ille vero vibrationi in partibus uti vidimus. Alius motus quo in nervos fluunt spiritus animales maxime languidus [illegible], uti ex sequentibus constabit.

Atque unde et quantus sit motus quo spiritus animales in fistulas nerveas propelluntur.

Scimus omnem in corpore fluidorum partium motum pendere a cordis vi propellente et ab elastica indole membranarum. hinc ergo erit aliud motus quo spiritus animales in fistulas nerveas propelluntur: sed motus hujusmodi erit maxime languidus primo quia nervi sunt vasorum minima, adeoque impetum habent a corde remotissimo languidissimum. secundo quia membranae haurent eam renitentiam, qualem a pultacea cortice cerebri et a mollissima medulla accipiunt. molles quippe cum sint membranae languido certe impetu spiritus animales promoverunt.

[illegible] 3°. Cordis motus alternus est cum quiete perpetuis vicibus tempora dispertiens; ergo si spirituum animalium motus a corde pendet non erit eorum propulsio continua, sed alterna quiete intercipietur quoties cor dilatatur relaxatur hoc posito sensus non erit continuus; contra experientiam.

[illegible] paritate. Sicuti arteriarum sanguis a corde impellitur, et [illegible] tamen perpetuo ita quidem ut ex arteria directa sanguis absque intervallo profluat ita sensationes perpetuas esse existimo, licet spirituum animalium motus a motu cordis alterno pendeat.

[illegible] Sicuti sanguis ex arteria directa profluens accelleratur quoties cor contrahitur, ita sensatio major esse [illegible] quoties impetus sanguini in vasa corticalia cerebri major est adeoque nervis sunt [illegible] quod tamen est contra experientiam.

[illegible] contra. Concedo sensationem magis vividam esse debere quoties cor contrahitur, idque observavit [illegible] in [illegible] sensatione, quam magis vividam repetito experimento dixit in cordis contractione. Fateor tamen ejus viri auctoritatem tantam non esse ut omnes ei credere [illegible] quam [illegible] experi[illegible]. Investiganda est igitur causa, qua fiat, ut hanc sensationum inaequalitatem distinguere ipsi nequeamus [illegible] autem ita explico. Impulsiones a corde sanguinis ope in nervo continuas [illegible] sed subinde augeri ob eorum contractionem [illegible] tamen vices distinguere non possumus quia velocitati accessio tum minima est tum consequitur alteri quae reddit deleta est.

Cap. 4°. Nervorum ramuli exiliores in grandiorem nervum desinunt, saepe; imo nervi omnes colliguntur veluti in trunco in medulla oblongata et spinali. Finge nunc in diversis corporis partibus ex. gr. in utraque manu immutationem fieri. immutatio usque ad cerebrum affertur per motus spirituum animalium; ad motus spirituum animalium ex diversis corporis partibus ex. gr. ex utraque manu advenientes, ubi nervi colliguntur vel sibi debent velim unum compositum motum edere: si primum nulla erit sensatio, si secundum ex distincta utriusque manus immutatione distincta non videtur sensatio; quorum utrumque experientiae adversatur

Resp.° cum Boeravio, nervorum structura comperari optime, posse arbori cujus truncus est medulla oblongata, radices cerebri et cerebelli medulla: nervi rami referunt. cum ergo in ramis arboris distincta fibra nulla extat quae non fuerit distincta in trunco neque ulla in trunco distincta est, quae non in radicibus distincta fuerit, ita nervorum ramuscula distincta semper remanent, etiam ubi in grandiorem nervum desinunt aut medulla oblongata et spinali colliguntur. Huic conjecturae vim addunt experimenta quibus constat in plures minores [illegible] fibrillas nervos si in aqua macerentur. quod si ita est, nulla est oblata difficultas. Spiritus enim animales ex utraque manu advenientes, distinctis fibrillis continentur etiam ubi nervi videntur colligi. Cum propterea motus neque sibi debent neque unum compositum motum edere.

Quaeres an motus vitales et contrarii in corpore fiant ope eorundem spirituum animalium quibus sensatio ad cerebrum defertur.

Resp.° motus vitales in corpore fieri ope spirituum quos vitales dicunt. vitales autem [illegible] spiritus ab iis, quos animales appellavimus, distingui debent. animales enim spiritus in cerebro, animales vero in cerebello secernuntur. nervi quidem continentur spiritus animales ex cerebro. [illegible] cerebello ortum habent nervi qui vehunt spiritus vitales. itaque spirituum vitalium ac animalium distinctio quibus [illegible] [illegible] non est [illegible] [illegible]. sufficit enim [illegible] in se communi conservari. sicut vero distincta sunt fibrillae quae spiritus tum animales tum vitales devehunt ita saepe fieri per fibrillas a motoriis diversas nonnumquam [illegible] videbitur. [illegible] neque desunt experimenta quibus haec conjectura potest confirmari. Docet enim experientia apoplectico morbo laborantes, ita [illegible] in aliis corporis partibus quandoque vitiari est [illegible] destituantur motu minime animo et vitali [illegible] aliquando dyscedent semper minime destitutae quod sane explicari non [illegible] spiritus tum motrici, tum [illegible] inservientes eadem fibrillae continerent [illegible] opinionem [illegible] [illegible] quia [illegible] [illegible] quod respondere debeat quaerenti quomodo [illegible] quomodo immutatio facta in parte corporis ad cerebrum deferri queat eodem tempore, quo pars ipsa corporis movetur ex imperio voluntatis.

Antequam vero propositum finem sciamus pauca dicenda essent de illo quo elasticam naturam nervi in meningibus quae nervos comitantur ponunt. Etenim per tremorem meningum, ut ut elasticae sint, sensorii organi immutationem ad cerebrum deferri non posse, constat ex iis quae diximus in probatione. Ne igitur tempus in iis repetendis frustra teramus, transeamus ad alia.

De unione inter mentem humanam et corpus.

Quae de mentis et corporis unione hactenus excogitata fuerant ad tria systemata referuntur, nimirum Assistentiae seu causarum occasionalium, harmoniae praestabilitae, et physici influxus. Nam mens humana et corpus, duae nimirum substantiae, si ita uniantur, ut altera in alteram agat, id erit Systema influxus physici. Si ab eadem causa extrinseca utraque substantia agitur ac determinatur repetita et immediata semper actione, id erit Systema assistentiae seu causarum occasionalium. Si utraque substantia agit viribus sibi peculiariter insitis, sed tamen consonis, id erit Systema harmoniae praestabilitae. Rem simplici exemplo. Finge mentem ac corpus duo esse horologia quae consonent; obtineri id potest triplici modo; primo si fieri ut alterum agat in alterum, atque hanc viam influxus voco; secundo si opificem suum comitem fieri qui horologia sibi mutuo accomodans, alterum ex altero semper dirigat atque hanc viam assistentiae, seu causarum occasionalium appello. Tertio si horologia ita accurate efficeris ut [illegible] in motibus harmonice sibi respondeant, atque hanc viam voco harmoniae praestabilitae. Haec sunt Systemata, de quibus quid iudicandum sit modo investigamus.

Quaestio Prima. De Systemate Harmoniae praestabilitae.

Qui primus Harmoniam praestabilitam excogitavit fuit Leibnitius. Huic postea adhaeserunt [illegible] plures, inter quos celebriores enumerantur Wolffingerus, et [illegible] cuius [illegible] compendium accipite. [illegible] doctrina est omni substantiae tam corporeae quam incorporeae inesse vim quandam activam atque ab ea perenniter actiones suas quasi emanare. Hac vi sua sine ope externae cuiusvis causae omnes suas perceptiones et appetitiones contracta serie producit Anima, et corpus pariter combinata serie ex legibus motus, sine ulla animae ope vi sua producit omnes suos motiones; motionibus corporis harmonice consentiunt animae perceptiones et appetitiones quia nulla in anima datur perceptio vel appetitio, quin aliquis ipsi in serie motuum respondeat motus, et vicissim nullus in serie motuum datur motus quin eidem in serie perceptionum, et appetitionum aliqua respondeat perceptio et appetitio. In systemate igitur harmoniae praestabilitae commercium animae et corporis explicatur primo per seriem perceptionum, et appetitionum in anima, secundo per seriem motuum in corpore, ita ut tertio per naturam animae et corporis series istae harmonice inter se consentiant. Ista est hypothesis Leibnitiana

quae mihi

quæ mihi videtur ab eo admitti non posse qui humanam libertatem ... mei valet uti requiris demonstrabit

Prop.ª Systema harmoniæ præstabilitæ admitti non potest ab eo qui humanæ voluntati libertatem indifferentiæ concedat.

Antequam ad solutionem veniamus, præmittendum est, homini inesse libertatem tum a coactione, tum a ~~[illegible]~~ necessitate naturæ, ex qua ~~[illegible]~~ libertate consequitur ea quæ indifferentiæ solet appellari: libertas a coactione excludit omnem ~~vim~~ necessitatem extrinsecam: intrinsecam excludit libertas a necessitate naturæ. Porro qui ita liber est habet libertatem indifferentiæ quæ est contradictioni et contrarietati: libertas contrarietatis ea est, per quam agens potest contrarios actus producere: contradictioni vero libertas ea est, per quam agens potest agere et non agere. Hisce positis, quæ mihi hoc loco concedi postulo

Probo Propositionem. Inter actus voluntatis humanæ liberos, sunt actus imperati: atqui posito systemate harmoniæ præstabilitæ, humana voluntas in hisce actibus libera non est libertate indifferentiæ ergo etc. prob. min. Actus imperati vocantur illi qui ad nutum voluntatis sunt [illegible] [illegible] ... [illegible], recensentur quorum alii sunt interni cogitationes nempe et reminiscentiæ: alii externi, motiones nempe corporis variæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] systemate harmoniæ præstabilitæ, voluntatem humanam in hisce actibus liberam non esse libertate indifferentiæ sic ostendo. Co in systemate tum interna mentis actiones tum motus corporis [illegible] ... corporis et menti indita manant sic successiva quæro igitur potuerint ne ... voluntatis aut mens ab actione cessare, aut corpus a motu? potuerint necne aut mens aliam actionem producere aut aliud motu corpus creare? Si potuisse affirment [illegible]; ergo [illegible] [illegible] neque enim actiones quæ sive in mente sive in corpore fiunt, [illegible] [illegible] posita est in antecedentibus mentis et corporis actionibus Praeterea actione [illegible] non erat [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] non erat ex natura mentis et corporis: quippe quæ immutari nullo modo potuisset. Sin vero, potuisse negant: ergo in actibus illis nulla erat voluntatis humanæ libertas indifferentiæ neque enim ad nutum voluntatis mens et corpus poterant agere et non agere aut contrarios actus producere. Systema igitur Harmoniæ præstabilitæ etc.

Prop. ... humanam ~~[illegible]~~ voluntatem ... libertate ~~[illegible]~~ indifferentiæ in actus imperatos est vera et [illegible] potest [illegible] si actus possit imperare, et non imperare, aut in genere contrarios [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] respondeant motus corporis, et mentis perceptiones aut cessationes a motibus, et perceptionibus In systemate autem harmoniæ præstabilitæ [illegible] habentur. est enim voluntas [illegible] libera [illegible] [illegible] quam [illegible] imperandi, aut non imperandi et proinde indifferens: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] respondeat actus imperati, quia seriis perceptionum in mente et motuum in corpore praestabilita est, juxta id quod voluntatem esse vel non voliturum praevidit Deus. Rem exornant similitudine: Finge Deum efformasse machinam servi tui prorsus similem, quae famuli vices apud te obire debeat; atque ut haec machina suo munere fungi, et tui imperiis obsecundare possit, finge eam tali artificio fuisse constructam ut eius motus successiva serie futuri respondeant tuis imperiis iam a Deo praevisis. Hac in hypothesi nonne tu in famulum habere liberum imperium? Hominis voluntatem tibi omnino similem puta; famuli actionibus comparari actus imperatos.

Resp. allata objectio si rite examinetur vult actus imperatos liberos esse et dici posse per hoc praecise quia respondent actibus ab humana voluntate elicitis, volitionibus nempe et nolitionibus: per hoc autem praecise actus imperati, motus scilicet corporis et mentis perceptiones, humanae libertati nunquam nullo modo dici possunt. quot enim sunt, quae actibus a voluntate nostra elicitis respondent, quaeque nostrae libertati subesse nemo dixerit? quis unquam libertati nostrae tribuit motus lunae, fluxus, solis quae hanc planetas moveri vult? Ut igitur actus imperati liberi sint, et dici possint, non solum requiritur, ut respondeant actibus ab humana voluntate elicitis: sed insuper requiritur, ut ideo respondeant, quia eorum actuum causa determinans est humana voluntas. motiones autem aut perceptiones, quae in corpore aut mente fiunt humana voluntas nullo modo est causa determinans. Atque ut de motibus corporis primo sermonem instituamus, ea nullo modo est causa determinans quicunque, quae sublata res ipsa ponitur eodem modo, sed motus corporis eodem quo nunc modo adhuc consequerentur etiamsi anima non existeret nam si Wolffio audias Archimedes, tam insignia inventa quibus geometriam ditavit, in libris suis exposuisset, scribique, neque eadem quo conscripti sunt, modo susciperet etiamsi nulla ipsi inesset anima. ergo anima nullo modo est causa determinans motuum qui fiunt in corpore. Praeterea humana voluntas nullo modo est causa determinans eorum motuum qui invita, imo etiam invita anima fiunt in corpore; ergo neque eorum, qui liberi et voluntarii dicuntur utriusque enim generis motus sunt a Deo corpori indita ita ut posterioris motionis ratio sufficiens sit semper in antecedente. Hoc argumento ostenditur etiam voluntatem humanam non esse causam determinantem perceptionum quae fiunt in mente. inter perceptiones enim sunt aliquae quarum causa determinans non est voluntas. Hujus generis sunt illae, quas invita etiam voluntate in nobis excitari sentimus: ergo aliarum omnium perceptionum nullo modo est causa determinans voluntas. omnes enim mentis perceptiones sunt a Deo menti inditae, ita ut posterioris perceptionis ratio sufficiens sit semper in antecedente.

At dicat aliquis

At, dicet aliquis, volitionem animae non quidem ut reipsa existentem sed ut a Deo praevisam esse causam determinantem eorum actuum quos imperatos sive voluntarios dicimus, hoc est motus corporis et mentis perceptiones volitionibus nostris respondentes esse quidem necessarios, quatenus fluunt a vi menti et corpori indita serie praestabilita et immutabili, sed simul liberos dici posse quia series illa praestabilita et [illegible] est, quod nos liberam volituros praescivit Deus.

Huic instantiae in qua vis omnis difficultatis sita est triplici ratione [illegible] primo volitio animae non ut reipsa existens sed ut a Deo praevisa est ratio sufficiens cur actus imperatus ex causa motus linguae voluntarius et liber sit [illegible] voluntarius et liber dici [illegible] quidem actus necessarius [illegible] motus cordis. uterque enim motus fluit a vi corpori indita. Sicut motum linguae volo ita et cordis motum ne velim quid vetabit? [illegible] utrumque motum [illegible] liberum praescivit Deus utrumque igitur motus aut liber aut necessarius est. quod cum dici non possit, fateri debent harmonistae volitionem animae ut reipsa existentem esse causam determinantem motus liberi, hoc est corpus ex imperio voluntatis ita moveri, ut possit hic et nunc non moveri, vel moveri diversimode. sicuti voluntas hunc motum ita imperat, ut possit hic et nunc non imperare, vel imperare diversum.

Secundo ex divina praescientia rerum natura non immutatur atque ideo posita divina praescientia res tales sunt quales essent si divina praescientia minime [illegible]. Ergo sita disputatione rerum ex divina praescientia rerum naturas et proprietates debemus inferre uti inferunt harmonistae, sed ex rerum natura et proprietatibus divinam praescientiam. Tertio si menti perceptiones necessariae sunt quatenus fluunt a vi menti indita serie immutabili non video qua ratione libertatem mentis vindicare possint respectu ad actus etiam elicitos in humana voluntate [illegible] harmonistae quod si interior sunt actus eliciti volitio nempe et nolitio determinationes a perceptionibus promanantes, est enim volitio aut nolitio ultima mentis determinatio qua aliquod eligimus, aut aversamur: ratio autem sufficiens cur eligamus est ratio boni ratio vero mali cur aversamur. sed quoniam ratio omnis mentis perceptiones [illegible]; ideo volitiones et nolitiones seu determinationes a perceptionibus promanantes ergo si perceptiones fluunt immutabili serie [illegible] etiam erunt series volitionum et nolitionum [illegible] si enim series immutabilis est volitionum et nolitionum non est vere et proprie libera. est enim [illegible] voluptate et cum dolore nolit [illegible] et volit et [illegible] potentia ad oppositum, quae potentia ad oppositum nulla est statim ac volitionum et nolitionum series immutabilis statuitur.

Ea quae hactenus

Ex quae huc usque dicta sunt paucis colligo. Humanae voluntatis imperium exercetur supra actus imperatos, puta supra motus corporis voluntarios, ut motus huiusmodi subsint voluntatis imperio debent a voluntate pendere: iam a voluntate non pendent ut a causa immediata et efficiente; id enim esse non potest sine actione mutua animam inter et corpus, quam repugnare dicunt Harmonistae; pendent igitur motus corporis illi ab humana voluntate tamquam a causa determinante. Humana autem voluntas non est causa determinans motuum corporis. voluntas enim quia viget libertate indifferentiae, ita motus corporis determinat ut possit non determinare vel determinare contrarios: ergo motus corporis, si sunt effectus voluntatis humanae tamquam causae determinantis, ita debent produci, ut possint non produci, vel produci contrarii: sed motus corporis immediate fluunt a vi corpori indita quae cum sit causa necessaria, ita motus omnes producit, ut nequeat non producere, vel producere contrarios. Humana igitur voluntas non est causa determinans motuum corporis. Nec confugiant Harmonistae ad divinam praescientiam: nam motuum series talis non est ex vi divinae praescientiae. nam sicut Deo certus sit omnium ordo causarum, nostrae tamen voluntates in causarum ordine sunt; quae duo componi posse clare et breviter pariter explicat Augustinus lib. 3°. de libero arbitrio cap. 4°. quemadmodum memoria tua, inquit, non cogit facta esse, quae praeterierunt sic Deus praescientia sua non cogit facienda quae futura sunt. Quod si motuum series talis non est ex vi divinae praescientiae erit talis ex imperio voluntatis, redit igitur argumentum.

Quaestio 2a. Quid dicendum de systemate assistentiae, seu causarum occasionalium.

Systemati Harmoniae praestabilitae examinando succedit aliud Assistentiae, seu causarum occasionalium. Dicitur assistentiae, quia in eo commercium inter animam et corpus explicatur ope modificationum harmonicarum mentis et corporis, quae immediate a Deo producuntur: modo peculiari quodam homini assistit Deus: appellatur vero causarum occasionalium, quia in eo cogitationes et voluntates animae causae sunt occasionales motionum corporis, ut motiones corporis causae sunt occasionales cogitationum et voluntatum animae. scilicet Deus modificat corpus in gratiam animae, et animam in gratiam corporis, quatenus ex sua generali voluntate et ex suis aeternas et immutabiles leges, certis positis motionibus in corpore, certas excitat cogitationes, et appetitiones in anima; et vicissim positis quibusdam appetitionibus in anima, certi illico motus ab eo in corpore producuntur. Huiusmodi systema prout ab eius auctore Malebranchio exponitur libertati adversatur, quod sequens demonstrabit syllo-

[illegible]

Prop: 2a Systema causarum occasionalium prout ab ejus Auctore Malebranchio proponitur evertit humanam libertatem.

Prob. Humanam libertatem ille evertit, qui animam omni vi activa destitutam ponit. Minor propositionis certa, tum per se manifesta, tum etiam Concilii Tridentini Auctoritate confirmatur. En ejus verba: Si quis dixerit liberum hominis arbitrium a Deo motum et excitatum nihil cooperari, [illegible] animo quidem nihil omnino agere, mereque passive se habere anathema sit. Malebranchius autem causarum occasionalium systema proponens animam omni vi activa destitutam ponit; quod sic probo: Lib. 4o de inquirenda veritate parte 2a cap. 3o inquit: non solum corpora non possunt esse verae causae ullius rei, mentes etiam nobiliores imo in eadem versantur impotentia. [illegible] corpora non possunt esse verae causae ullius rei quia omni vi activa sunt destituta, cum enim Deus omnipotens [illegible] et non corpus movere, ergo mentes etiam nobiliores, quia in eadem qua corpora versantur impotentia, omni vi activa sunt destitutae. Eodem in loco docet [illegible] causas occasionales non agere nisi vi et efficacia voluntatis divinae; quae [illegible] illustrans contendit, [illegible] agere, nec aliquid dicant, qui activam facultatem in creata substantia admittunt. Hanc [illegible] facultatem appellat terminum [illegible] vagum et indeterminatum: ideoque anima hominis non secus ac corpus est causa occasionalis, cum anima non secus ac corpus non agit nisi vi et efficacia divinae voluntatis, hinc est facultate omni activa est destituta. Denique lib. 3o de inquirenda veritate parte 2a cap. 3o docet mentem humanam nullas sibi ideas novas producere quia earum productio est vera creatio, et homines praediti non sunt potentia creandi aliquid. Sed actio quaecumque mentis humanae actio eodem principio [illegible] potest vera creat[illegible]; ergo actio quaecumque menti repugnat. Systema igitur, etc.

Qui Malebranchii causas impugnare vellet ita posset exponere: concedi debet animae vis activa, primo qua sit corpus movere, secundo qua possit novas ideas cudere, tertio qua possit velle. Cum vero vis activa qua corpus moveat nullo modo animae concedi potest; repugnat enim spiritum agere in corpus; sed neque vis qua novas ideas cudat concedi animae potest; [illegible] ideam creare [illegible] mentem [illegible] adaequant. [illegible] Denique qua possit velle concedi animae debet, et conceditur a Malebranchio. Illustrans enim 3um partis 2ae lib. 4i de inquirenda veritate: inter mentes nostras, inquit [illegible] convenit [illegible] et discrimina, mens nostra recte agit, sese aliquo [illegible] determinat [illegible] sensu intimo, quem de nobis metipsis habemus, una conscientia convincimur.

Respondeo.

Cap. 1. [illegible] animæ [illegible], [illegible] vi, qua in corpus agat, et qua [illegible] ideas sibi comparet videlimus infra. hoc loco quæstio [illegible] erit de animæ vi qua vult, [illegible] sequitur. Vim hanc animæ concedere ubique videtur Malebranchius laudatis verbis, quibus mentem nostram velle, agere, atque sese se determinare fatetur. Is enim aperte docet, volitiones ab humana voluntate, tanquam ab activo principio produci: verum hic clarissimus vir asserit ea quæ alibi directe negavit, quæque eius systemati sunt contraria. Vide dicta in prævisione, quibus addi potest, eo hic sensu veritatis regulam quæ causarum occasionalium systema evertit penitus. sensus enim internus seu conscientia tanquam certa veritatis regula ponitur: intima autem animi persuasione, [illegible] sensu [illegible] non apparens, sed reale commercium animæ inter et corpus intercedere: quod si esset corruerit systema causarum occasionalium, neque nulla debet animæ actio in corpus neque corporis in animam. Quid igitur dicendum de Malebranchio? dicendum eum [illegible] neque doctrinæ contradixisse hoc loco, ubi non proponit sententiam suam, sed illustrat [illegible] et occurrit difficultatibus, quibus nec paucis, nec levibus systema suum impugnari videbat.

At dicet Malebranchii patronus, in Systemate causarum occasionalium [illegible] sensu communi posse nihilominus animam [illegible] velle agere, impelli, et se determinare. Agitur enim et impellitur [illegible] a Deo versus bonum in genere, agit vero et se determinat quia est ab hominis voluntate, ut hanc impulsionem determinet, [illegible] ut unum potius quam aliud [illegible] amore [illegible] [illegible] Malebranchius lib. 4. de inquirenda veritate parte 2a cap. 3o [illegible]: nihil possunt animæ velle nisi Deus ipsas versus moveat, [illegible] sed [illegible] determinare impressionem quam Deus ipsas versus se inflectat. Et [illegible] laudati viri [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] minare sunt ea quæ habet cap. 1o libri eiusdem de inquirenda veritate: [illegible] primo necessarios fuisse omnino Spiritibus propensiones et inclinationes [illegible] et quæ [tandem] sunt [illegible] [illegible] inclinationes [illegible] nihil autem aliud sunt quam continuatæ impressiones voluntatis [illegible] a quo Spiritus creati sunt et conservantur. Quocirca oportet ut sint inclinationes istæ similes [illegible] [illegible] Creatoris. Sed velle non potest Deus ut quæ creatæ sunt voluntates in aliud bonum vehementius rapiantur quam in Deum ipsum; nihil igitur impressit in mentibus Deus quam amorem erga Deum, quo et [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] amamus. Sit autem amor, quod principium est ceterorum [illegible] amorum nostrorum [illegible] bonum, seu boni generalim [illegible]. Ista explicant qua ratione [illegible] animos versus se moveat idest impellat versus bonum in genere; qua vero ratione impressionem versus bonum in genere determinari a mente velit, vir clarissimus, difficile est divinare. id enim supponit potius quam explicat.

Sed contra. Inclinationem seu propensionem versus bonum in genere animæ nostræ inesse nemo est qui in dubium revocet. Consentiunt pariter omnes in hanc inclinationem naturalem [illegible] [illegible] impressionem [illegible]. Hæc denique inclinatio sit ne eo modo exponenda quo exponitur a Malebranchio hic non inquiro. Sit enim [illegible] [illegible] satis attendendum unice est, num hæc impressionem [illegible] versus bonum in genere a Deo acceptam determinat non [illegible] quod ita ostendo. Determinatio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et aliud quid [illegible] [illegible]. Volitio vero seu determinatio, aut est [illegible] [illegible], aut passio aut actio: primum nemo dixerit, [illegible] [illegible] enim nihil [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Ergo mens determinando [illegible] [illegible] a Deo acceptam non agit sed [illegible], seu ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] impressionem nullo modo determinat: [illegible] denique [illegible] [illegible] Malebranchii doctrinæ ipse enim passim [illegible] mentes in [illegible] quo corpora [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nisi Deus [illegible] [illegible], nihil [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nisi Deus [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] possunt velle, nisi Deus ipsos versus se moveat. Sed Deus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et modificat, ut [illegible] [illegible] et perceptio non sint actiones sed passiones. Ergo Deus mentes [illegible] [illegible] movet et [illegible] non sit actio sed passio. Præterea [illegible] volitiones [illegible] actiones [illegible] repugnat perceptiones etiam a mente activa produci [illegible] tamen negat Malebranchius. Denique docet idem esse animam nostram [illegible] versus bonum in genere [illegible] divina [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nostram nihil aliud esse dicat quam hanc inclinationem et impressionem divinitus acceptam. Quemadmodum igitur corpus quod externa causa moveatur, atque ab eadem in motu conservetur, dici nequit ullo modo se in motu agere [illegible], [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quicum ab externa causa [illegible] [illegible] conservari corpus [illegible] [illegible] gradum sui motus, quem ipsa externa motioni [illegible]; ita animal, [illegible] movetur versus bonum, [illegible] [illegible] nullo modo agere dici potest et [illegible] docet Malebranchius qui cum ex impressione Dei continua [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], addit animam agere et impressionem illam [illegible] [illegible]. Atque ut [illegible] clarius explicemus, fingamus actionem qua anima versus [illegible] aliquod [illegible] moveatur esse et [illegible] [illegible] animam [illegible] [illegible] actioni [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] concedendam, [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible], necesse [illegible] [illegible] ut [illegible] [illegible] externæ divinæ impulsioni, ope [illegible] anima [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] se movere versus bonum illud [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] Malebranchius [illegible] eo pacto quo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] debeant [illegible] externæ causæ, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] activitati, [illegible] necesse est, corpus [illegible] natura [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ope agitare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: moveri videtur corpus ab

externa causa

externa causa atque ab eadem in motu conservari. [illegible] in eo quo potestis inquiri examine sensit Malebranchius ipse unde se ignorare fatetur an possit determinare divinam impressionem vocat potentiæ nomine designari. ait enim ubi supra memoravi parte 2ª cap. 3º. Possunt equidem creatæ mentes determinare impressionem quam Deus ipsas versus se inflectit, sed non ideo illud, quia id disponit potentia. [illegible]

Quare hac [illegible] difficultate proposita non solum Malebranchium premi, sed alios quoscunque omnes eos qui [illegible] veram notionem agnoscunt in creaturis summam a Deo dependentiam; quæ summa a Deo dependentia in creaturis postulat, ut hominum actio nulla esse possit sine concursu Dei proximo immediato: hoc autem posito patet omnes debere animam cum Deo agi simul et agere: similiter igitur cum doceat Malebranchius, aut libertatem humanam non lædit aut si eam lædit, eiusdem erroris insimulandi sunt omnes.

Id contra concedo summam a Deo dependentiam in creaturis ponendam, ut sine concursu Dei hominum actio nulla esse possit; sed illud etiam mihi concedi debet, libertatem nostram exigere, ut eius volitiones sint actiones vere et proprie dictæ. Id constat ex definitione concilii Tridentini, cui consentit divus Augustinus lib. 7º de civit.º Dei cap. 30º dicens: Deus ita omnia quæ creavit administrat, ut etiam ipsa proprios exercere et agere motus sinat. En itaque discrimen quod inter Malebranchium et aliorum doctrinam versatur. Alii volunt actiones animæ esse actiones veras et proprie dictas, Malebranchius vero id dicere non potest, nisi sibimet contradicat, namque evertat doctrinam de idearum origine. — Alii Deum ad animæ actiones ita concurrere volunt ut eam doceat non rapiat, ut illa ut vera causa suam activitatem sui generis habeat, et exerceat: Malebranchius vero nullam substantiam creatam esse veram causam docet. animæ nullam relinquit activitatem ex qua consequitur, ut ex impressione divinæ voluntatis anima non ducatur, sed rapiatur. Alii summam a Deo dependentiam [illegible] una cum vera libertate componunt: Malebranchius vero summam a Deo dependentiam agnoscit utique, sed veram libertatem negat.

Ex quibus hucusque dicta sunt, [illegible] Malebranchii [illegible] alterutrum [illegible] aut [illegible] a Malebranchio animæ concedi aut sine activitate animæ libertatem humanam constare. Primum qui probare vellet non auctoris verba aliqua seorsim sumpta debet proferre, sed systema omne inspicere. neque enim inquirimus utrum verbis [illegible] aliud se vim activam animæ recognoscit Malebranchius: id autem non relinquens satis luculenter

demonstravi

demonstravi: Alterum, scilicet sine vi activa libertatem humanam contra [illegible] nemo dixerit nam sine ulla vi activa Anima versus [illegible] non movetur, sed rapitur, atque adeo nihil omnino agit, merque passive se habet, quod qui dixerit Anathema est ex definit. Conc. Trid.

Neq. Malebranchio favet communis doctrina, qui Deum immediate et proxime concurrere voluit ad omnes hominis actiones. nam isti quocunque demum modo [illegible] explicent, vim activam animae concedunt, quam ei adimit Malebranchius. Quod si quaeras qua ratione concursus Dei immediatus et omnes hominis actiones explicari debeat, non necessitate, sed eruditionis gratia eam affero explicationem, quam B. Thomas divinitus ut [illegible] pluries adhibet, nempe [illegible] Deus sit infinite

„ potens, et sapiens dubitari non potest, quin tales [illegible] condiderit res, quae causae essent et ipsa

„ et activitatem sui generis haberent, et exercerent. Cujus generis est humana mens. activitatem „ illa sui generis et habet et exercet. Sed cum quae inveniuntur sunt finita conservari non possint, „ conservari ea a Deo debent. Est igitur Dei actio quaedam universalis, qua hujusmodi activitatem

„ causarum et sociat, easdemque conservantem eas constans et perennis. Porro ea actione Deus rerum

„ naturas non evertere, sed continere et conservare vult. eas autem [illegible] non potest nisi naturis illis adaptetur actio Dei. Sunt porro causarum secundarum activitates, non unius generis, quaedam brutae sunt

„ ut vires materiae attractivae, gravitas similes, quaedam vero rationales. Illae agentes mechanice

„ agi possunt et agitantur, hae mechanicas [illegible] [illegible] adaptatur primus Dei actio, „ ut rapiat, his ut ducat. In mentibus etiam cum actione Dei [illegible] constat semper libertas.

Quid dicendum de Systemate Influxus Physici.

Postquam de Systemate causarum occasionalium, quae mens mea [illegible] aperiri [illegible] tertio, at postremo [illegible] physicus. Systema hoc tamquam conscientiae [illegible] et phaenomenis explicandis accomodatum semper propter [illegible] mihi placuit. Sed ne [illegible] ei assensum praeberem prohibebat metus, ne influxum nimium concederet incorporalitati Animae [illegible] aliquid [illegible] erat contra [illegible] philosophorum, sed influxus eum [illegible] Animae comprehendi.

Haec cogitatio animum aliquamdiu tenuit, [illegible] difficultate ad examen revocando, quicunque in rebus difficultatibus [illegible] necessarium, videre mihi visus sum, eas nam [illegible] solutionem, concludo itaque, Systema influxus physici duobus aliis esse anteponendum, et quibus rationibus ductus ita concluderem, sequens demonstrat

Prop. 3a Actionem mutuam Animae inter et Corporis Dei, plures sunt quae probant, neque hactenus demonstratum est eam repugnare.

Prob. pt. 1a. Propositionis. Quaeritur hic quaenam sit causa, cur actionibus mentis motus corporis, et motibus corporis respondeant actiones mentis, causam hanc esse [illegible] corporis in mentem et mentis in corpus dico. Humana enim mens vi sibi congenita actiones suas exerit et ad nullas per suam naturam sit determinata. Veritas hujusce rei jam patet ex iis, quae contra harmonistas disputavimus. Ut ergo humana mens unius potius quam alterius rei perceptionem in se producat, extrinseco indiget determinante: nihil est enim sine ratione sufficienti cur aliquid ponatur potius quam non ponatur. Extrinsecum hujusmodi immediate determinans vel est Deus intime unitus menti, vel est corpus, cui mens unita est intime. Deus non est ut constat ex dictis in superiori quaestione, et inferius innotescet magis. Ergo est corpus. Item de corporis motibus dicimus: corpus per suam structuram aut vim activam et progressivam non est determinatum ad motus voluntarios peragendos: extrinseco indiget determinante: extrinsecum hujusmodi determinans vel est Deus, vel mens. Deum non esse jam constat; ergo est mens. Determinatur igitur ad agendum corpus ab anima, et anima a corpore, seu, quod idem est, causa cur actionibus mentis motus corporis et motibus corporis respondeant actiones mentis est mutua animam inter et corpus actio.

Confirmatur primo Prop. ex eo quod anima sit forma corporis per se et essentialiter quemadmodum Ecclesia definiit in Concil. Viennensi sub Clemente V: Definimus ut si quisquam deinceps asserere, defendere, seu pertinaciter tenere praesumpserit, quod anima rationalis seu intellectiva non sit forma corporis humani per se, et essentialiter, tamquam haereticus sit censendus. Si anima autem sit forma corporis per se et essentialiter debet inter utramque substantiam dari unio intima. Sed unio intima animam inter et corpus negatur a systemate [illegible]. Nam juxta eorum doctrinam Anima est forma corporis, per hoc praecise, quod motibus corporis actiones animae et vicissim actionibus animae motus corporis respondeant. Atqui motuum atque actionum harmonia et conversio sine ulla animae et corporis unione intima haberi potest. Si ergo unio intima servatur, adeoque anima sit forma corporis per se et essentialiter, inter utramque substantiam agnosci debet realis dependentia, quatenus nimirum una in alteram operetur actione mutua et reali.

Confirmatur secundo Prop. Cum causa alicujus effectus investigatur, non ea quaerenda est, quae [illegible] possit, sed quae experientiae conveniat. Hoc docet recta philosophandi regula; sed experientia constat actionem mutuam animam inter et corpus dari. Nam ut motibus corporis primo loquamur, corpus hoc nostrum ad motus voluntarios exequendos, immediate ab anima determinatur:

non a mera

1771 6 août

nisi intima docet animi persuasio: sed ex intima animi persuasione experientia repeti debet; nempe cum anima sit conscia operationum suarum, ea ideo et facile internoscere potest utrum motuum corporis, sit causa physica et realis an occasionalis tantum et apparens. Itaque quisquis est qui contendit, stultus, qui non advertat quid intersit inter movere brachium proprio manum, et praecipere alteri aut eum orare, ut moveat. cum ergo animae intime persuasum sit se causam esse physicam et realem omnium motuum quos voluntarios dicimus, consequitur experientia constare corpus ab Anima immediate determinari ad motus, seu animam agere in corpus: corpus vero agere in animam experientia pariter demonstrat. experimur enim omnem motionem cerebri excitare similem in animo sensationem quae tamdiu perdurat, quamdiu cerebri motio, et quando haec valida est aut debilis aut inordinata tantum illa habeat claritatis, aut obscuritatis, aut confusionis. experimur nullas in Anima esse ideas, earum rerum sensibilium quae sensus non afficiunt adeo ut nulla colorum aut sonorum ideam habeat is in quo visus, vel auditus aliquo impedimento semper fuerit defectus. Quae quidem omnia ostendunt animam a corpore immediate determinari ad nonnullas sensibilium perceptiones, seu corpus agere in animam. Actionem igitur mutuam animam inter et corpus [illegible] experientia constat.

Prob. 2a pars Propositionis. Duae sunt cognoscendi viae quibus ad rerum notitiam pervenire datur hominibus a priori una, altera a posteriori; demonstrare aliquid a priori est demonstrare ex causa: demonstrare a posteriori est demonstrare ex signis et effectibus. Jam mutuam actionem animam inter et corpus repugnare a priori demonstrari non potest. id enim ab eo duntaxat praestari potuisset qui accurate corporis et animae essentiam cognosceret quae incognitae nobis [illegible] omnes, hic quippe solus posset determinare modum, quo corpus in animam et anima in corpus debet agere. A posteriori vero non modo non evincitur mutuam illam actionem repugnare, sed oppositum potius colligitur, ut constat ex iam dictis, atque ex obiectionum solutione constabit magis.

Obj. 1o. [illegible] natura; repugnat igitur actio mutua animae in corpus et corporis in animam.

Resp. [illegible] primo substantiam spiritualem agere [illegible] in substantiam corpoream quis dubitet? [illegible] enim facto comprobatur. Angelus Assyriorum [illegible] plura millia necavit, a spiritu malo compressi vel obstructi sunt nervuli linguae [illegible] qui ejecto spiritu mox locutus est.

locutus est. [illegible] Daemonum porcorum gregem praecipitem in mare dedit his atque aliis pluribus Deus negari non potest. Si ergo angeli in corpora agere, eaque movere potuerunt, quis neget a Deo animae concedi potuisse paucam potentiam qua in corpus agere, illudque movere valeret. Praeterea motus corporum non potest incipere per corpus. Si enim corpus inciperet, corpus moveret etiam non motum quod implicat. Itaque id per quod corpus movetur non est corpus. Si non est corpus vel est Deus ipse, qui immediate agit in corpus, vel est aliquid reale a corpore diversum quod Deus creaverit. Si primum cur Deus potentiae aliquid finitae et limitatae animae communicare non potuit qua et ipsa in corpus ageret: si secundum, quis negabit idipsum praestari posse etiam ab anima quia est incorporea, id est reale aliquid a corpore distinctum atque diversum? Non repugnat igitur animam agere in corpus. Sed neque corpus in animam agere ostendi potest repugnare. Nam si diversitas naturae non impedit quominus anima agat in corpus, neque corpus in animam agere impediet.

Dices primo: si anima agit in corpus anima corpus debet contingere, et corpus in animam reagere; atqui haec intelligi non possunt nisi animae corporea natura tribuatur. Si enim corpus contingit anima contingetur certe in parte divisibili, ergo mens erit divisibilis: si corpus in mentem reagit, mens debet resistere; sed resistere non potest nisi sit iners, est igitur mens iners; sed inertia et divisibilitas nonnisi substantiae corporeae competunt, ergo etc.

[illegible] ad primum respondeo. Si mens agit in corpus a mente corpus contingi debere negare possem, atque exempli loco afferre eorum opinionem qui actionem mutuam corporum sine contactu fieri docent. Sed hoc etiam dato, contingi a mente corpus non posse nisi mens sit divisibilis duplici ex capite negare possum. Primo quia nonnisi in parte divisibili corpus contingi posse, in dubium revocant illi qui corporis [illegible] prima simplicia ponunt. Secundo quia pars corporis divisibilis contingi potest a mente quin haec sit divisibilis. Neque enim mens contingit corpus eo modo, quo corpus contingit aliud corpus, sed modo spiritui proprio, sicuti mens est in loco, sed non eo modo quo corpus, sed modo spiritui proprio. Hanc responsionem praesumo ex iis, quas eo fine attuli, ut ostenderem quanta esse possit in re [illegible] opinionum varietas. Ad alterum eadem est responsio. Corpus enim in corpus reagit et resistit quia iners est. Sed mens non est iners, libertate quippe donatur; ergo actio mutua animam inter et corpus omnino diversa est ab ea quae est inter corpus et corpus atque adeo ex modo quo corpus agit in corpus nullum deduci potest argumentum, quo probetur repugnare actionem mutuam animam inter et corpus.

Dices secundo

Dices. 2°. Quo igitur modo actio hæc mutua animæ et corporis perficitur?

Resp.° Modus, inquit Augustinus lib. 21 de Civ. Dei cap. 10. quo corporibus adhærent spiritus omnino mirus est, nec comprehendi ab homine potest, nisi rei rationem afferas; Joan. Clericus inquit. "quando duos numeros clare cognitos habemus, facile est scire quæ summa iis additis exsurgat, et quæ "inde confici nequeat; sed ubi alteruter plane ignotus est quis, nisi temerarius, quæ summa iis confici "nequeat, definire ausit? Similiter ii, quibus cum mens tum corpus ignota est natura, sine teme- "ritate, quæ vel non alteruter ab altero affici possit aut non possit, nequeunt definire. Cum igitur dico actionem mutuam animam inter et corpus repugnare, [illegible] hujus mutuæ modus qui sit non definio. nec id [illegible] mihi vertendum est quod enim quotidie fiunt, quis qua ratione fiant ignoratur, fieri tamen non potest negari. Sic corpora ab Angelis fuisse agitata negari non potest, et igne malos Angelos atque animas impiorum a corpore separatas torqueri, communis est sententia. Quæ tamen hæc ratione fiant, quis nostrum prudens possit quasi dicere mirus?

Si quas proponi possunt contra influxum physicum difficultates singulas hic exponere vellem, longa nimis evaderet quæstio. Ut ergo [illegible], hanc mihi viam, qui [illegible] propono. Demonstrando qua ratione influxus physicus [illegible] quæstionem nos continemus: quæ duo qui rite teneat, [illegible] difficultatibus inveniet solutionem.

Itaque Peripateticæ scholæ doctrina hæc est. Objectis sensuum [illegible] in cerebro [illegible] phantasmata quæ species impressæ vocantur. ex iis vero ope intellectus agentis, species emergunt expressæ et intelligibiles, quæ sunt immediatum intellectus passivi objectum. namque in anima duos distinguunt intellectus nimirum agentem et passivum seu recipientem. Intellectus agens est [illegible] atque virtus animæ quæ a passiva distinguitur non tanquam substantia a substantia, sed tanquam accidens substantiæ facultas a facultate. Variter quidem a Thomistis, [illegible], formalitate [illegible], ratione [illegible] alios. Intellectus agentis hæc sunt munera. Sunt qui intellectui agenti unicam concedunt activitatem qua phantasmata illuminat, et faciat intelligibilia actu. Huic activitati aliam addunt alii qua expressas intelligibiles species passivo intellectui imprimat. Ita corpus in animam agere explicant, animam vero in corpus agere volunt quatenus mens per totum corpus diffusa, ita corpori unitur est apta ut vias excitat [illegible] quæ sunt partes [illegible] accommodatæ. et sicuti id quod a corpore in animam transit in eo spiritualizari docent. ita id quod ex animo transit in corpus in eo corporeari dicunt. Hæc est Peripateticæ scholæ doctrina, quam nec ipsos intelligere scholasticos ingenui esse viros concedant oportet; quamque idcirco accuratissime refutata est.

Gassendus Animad.

Secundus animam quandam mediam commentus est, quae quodammodo quasi vinculum esset inter mentem et corpus et cuius medio mens in corpus, et corpus in mentem ageret. Hanc animam mediam promovit Campanella lib. de sensu rerum et prosecutus est Cudworthus in suo Systemate intellectuali. Haec anima media primum non displicuit Antonio Genuensi, sed re melius perpensa eam reiecit in epist.a responsiva data ad Antonium de Comitibus nobilem Venetum. Eam autem reiecit ut inutilem, quia intelligi debere non potest, qua ratione in ea impressiones corporeae novam formam induant atque ideo ea in Animam intellectivam permeent; et ultimo quo modo anima intellectiva agat in mediam et media in corpus. Fidi vero esse principium quo sentimus atque percipimus, credimus fieri in illo cerebro: perperam propterea ex eadem, qui duas distinguunt Animas, mediam scilicet et intellectivam, quarum haec etiam resideat in cerebro, illa per totum corpus sit diffusa.

Sequitur et videamus quid hac in re sentiant recentiores philosophi. Convenit inter eos animam in cerebro residere, seu in ea cerebri parte, unde prodeunt nervi, ibique ope spirituum animalium eum movere et regere, atque primas et simplices rerum ideas, quarum deinde ope construit compositas alias, a sensibus accipere. Sed quomodo primas rerum ideas a sensibus accipiat [illegible] habent primas rerum ideas nihil aliud esse quam impressiones a sensibus factas in cerebro communicatas. Quas impressiones in cerebro, ut voluit in suo [illegible], percipiat mens. Percipere autem potest duplici modo: primo intuendo rerum formas et ideas in cerebro impressas, sicut ex facto, quo rerum imagines in tela depictas videt oculus; secundo [illegible] a motionibus cerebri excitatur mens, ut sibi ipsa ideas conficiat. Primo modo qui rerum ideas in cerebro mentem percipere docent, tenentur explicare qui fiat, ut mens in cerebro quasi depictas rerum imagines videat; cum enim vero nullo modo [illegible] figuras intueri, quia intueatur telam, non figuram [illegible]. Deinde ideae [illegible] rerum imagines et formae ut in cerebro a mente videri possint necesse est, ut mens extra se percipiat ideas. At cum perceptiones sint actiones mentis immanentes non transeuntes, non potest mens percipere ideas extra se, sicut nec oculus videre extra se. Ut ergo rerum imagines intra se percipiat mens, necesse est a motionibus cerebri excitari mentem, ut rerum ideas sibi conficiat. Hoc modo primas rerum ideas a sensibus mentem accipere explicant, cum [illegible] quae [illegible] agat [illegible] moveat mens qui volunt explicare id debent [illegible] cerebro [illegible] in nervis contentis [illegible] quae determinat ad motus corporis [illegible] percipiendo [illegible] autem remanet explicandum, quo scilicet modo a motionibus corporis mens

mens et ab actione [illegible] corpus excitetur, quod paucis expediunt [illegible]; [illegible] et mentem a corpore excitari actione mutua atque immediata, [illegible] tamen actionis modus autem ignotus est. [illegible] atque hic habetis quaestionis statum.

Hinc quaerenti [illegible], dum excitatur mens a corpore, [illegible] ne aliquid [illegible] in illam [illegible] respondendum nihil [illegible] nisi enim intellectum agentem in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporeum est, et id fieri non potest salva animi incorporalitate; nihil ergo [illegible], atque hic [illegible] ergo ne excitetur quidem [illegible] excitari posse [illegible] ; quomodo excitetur, definire nos neque posse neque debere: [illegible] [illegible] quaerenti non [illegible] corpus a mente [illegible] ne aliquid [illegible] illud [illegible].

Hinc quaerenti [illegible] quo modo ex puris motionibus [illegible] mutatione figurae [illegible] excitari possit mens [illegible] tamque varias [illegible] sibi efformandas, respondendum motione [illegible] esse a motionibus [illegible]; motiones autem [illegible] variae sunt [illegible] pro variis et per[illegible] diversa [illegible] pro variis impressionibus a rebus externis in sensus factis [illegible] [illegible] motiones cerebri variae atque diversae; [illegible] motionibus cerebri respondeant [illegible] quas sibi mens efformat, erunt ergo variae et diversae.

[illegible] quaerenti tertio quare, [illegible] mens corpus movet ac regit eo quo vult motu [illegible] producere non semper possit, respondendum, quamvis sint quae ad motus [illegible] naturaliter me[illegible] actionem [illegible] nos tamen loqui [illegible] de motibus voluntariis; ex [illegible] autem voluntariis non eos quos vult in corpore semper producit, quia a corporis dispositione tanquam a conditione necessaria dependet. [illegible] exemplo illustro. [illegible] canna [illegible] diversae figurae et longitudinis, et quarum orificia unde [illegible] variae [illegible] sint, aut citharae [illegible] [illegible] variis cordis longioribus brevioribus [illegible] magis minusve [illegible], idem in canna musici flatus [illegible] graciles sonos [illegible]; [illegible] cordis, [illegible] aut [illegible] repente fuerit rupta. [illegible] proposito accommodate servata [illegible].

[illegible] quaerenti quare [illegible] fiat ut mens [illegible] animalia corpus moveat ac regat, quae nescit an corpus [illegible] animalis [illegible] quae natura [illegible], ita fieri ut quam ra-tione quibusve mediis [illegible] homines [illegible] ipsi [illegible] C.C.
animus [illegible] removet quae [illegible] quibusve mediis id fiat [illegible] ignorat [illegible] consensus aut [illegible] consensu animi [illegible] nescit definire. [illegible] experientia [illegible] fieri quae [illegible] evenient rationem [illegible]- [illegible] non [illegible], [illegible] autem [illegible] experientia modum [illegible] a mente quo corpus apte moveat et regat [illegible] quae ratione [illegible] corpus [illegible] movere [illegible].

tus quaerenti ultimo an posita actione mutua animam inter et corpus eadem in natura maneat quantitas motus aut virium quae motrices dicuntur, respondebimus hoc pacto: quantitas motus eadem in natura semper esse debuit Cartesianis propterea ab Anima in glandula pineali ita spiritus animales motu diriget [illegible], per Cartesianos ab anima non est motus corporis, sed directio motus; sed sive corporis motus, sive solum motus directio sit ab anima animae immediata actione semper Animam in corpus agere dicendum est, quod nobis sufficit. Leibnitius vult non eandem in natura manere motus quantitatem, sed quantitatem virium quae motrices [illegible] vero legem [illegible] corporeae [illegible] ita retineri debere, ut [illegible] [illegible] moveantur a spiritibus, et vicissim spiritus [illegible] a corpore [illegible]. Suspicatus est ipse Bilfingerus, atque a viris [illegible] oppositum Wolffio mihi sectione III de Harmonia animi et corporis humani. Deinde quemadmodum in [illegible] [illegible] ob immediatam animae actionem directionem motus esse posse diximus, ita in Leibnitiana sententia dicere possumus vires motrices ab immediata animae actione excitari ac dirigi. Certe quis illi persuadeat vires corporis motrices brutas ac mechanicas eiusmodi actiones suas volitionibus animae respondentes, quin ab ipsa anima determinentur actione [illegible].

Antequam propositioni finem faciam addo pauca quibus clariora fiant ea quae diximus in responsione ad id quod secundo loco quaerebatur. Id quod ibi quaeritur ex Malebranchii doctrina desumptum est: vult enim ille ideas a perceptionibus distingui, atque eas esse imagines [illegible], entia repraesentativa rerum, quas mens percipit. Quoniam vero mens destituta [illegible] ipsa [illegible] quae percipit, sequitur primo ut ideas [illegible] creare careat mens; secundo ut [illegible], quas [illegible] creat mens, sit realitas obiectiva rerum quas percipit; quae duo per ipsum repugnant. [illegible] quia mens vi creandi destituta est, secundum quia in impressionibus cerebri non datur ratio sufficiens realitatis obiectivae idearum. Hoc Malebranchius cum ex eo assentitur quod mens [illegible] in se, [illegible] percipere quae percipit, id vero quia [illegible] [illegible] placet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mentem creare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] perceptione [illegible] Sed haec secundum [illegible] et propterea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nullo alio modo distingui, nisi duobus respectibus, et quae est perceptio relata ad mentem, est idea relata ad obiectum; ergo [illegible] et [illegible]. Et certe si productio idearum [illegible] [illegible] creatio [illegible] propterea mente repugnaret [illegible] nemo dixerit. Jam si ideae non distinguuntur a perceptionibus, realitas obiectiva rerum, quas percipit mens [illegible] debet in perceptionibus ceptionibus ipsis et ratio sufficiens realitatis objectivae perceptionum in impressionibus cerebri. Nam ex motionibus in nervis excitatis emergunt in cerebro sive ideae et imagines, quae ipsae sint motiones, sive ex motionibus emergentia phantasmata.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Q. I.

4

[illegible]

... tractatur ... [illegible] ... omnium ... [illegible] ... studium adhibendum ... [illegible]

[illegible]

Philosophiæ Pars in Elementorum Geometricorum

[illegible]

[illegible] vel [illegible] vel [illegible]

[illegible]

Postulata

1. [illegible]
2. [illegible]
3. [illegible]

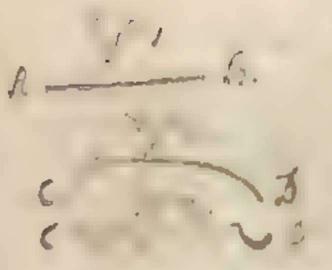
Axiomata

1. [illegible]
2. [illegible]
3. [illegible]
4. [illegible]
5. [illegible]
6. [illegible]
7. [illegible]
8. [illegible]
9. [illegible]

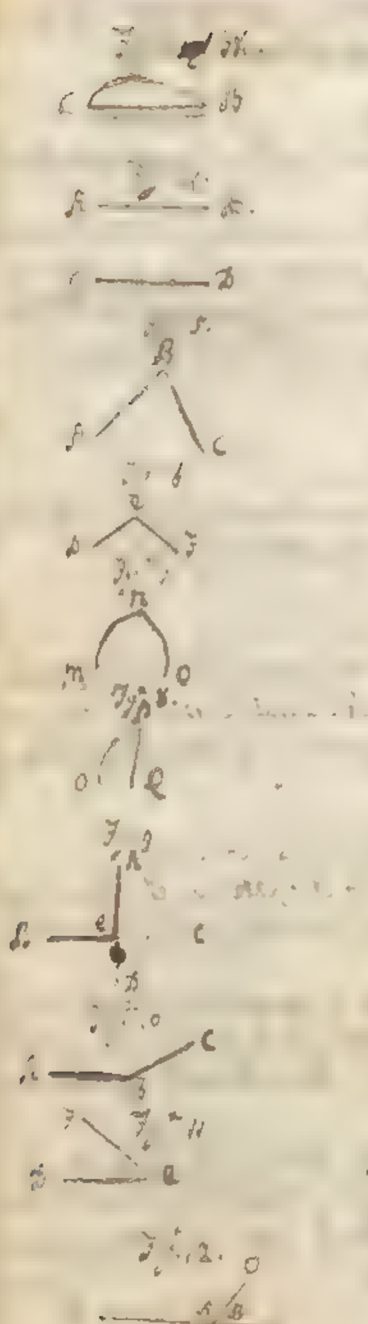
[illegible]

Definitiones

1. [illegible] extensio, sed principium [illegible] numerus, sed [illegible]
2. [illegible] itudo, sive [illegible]
3. [illegible] agnitudo tantum lo[illegible]
4. [illegible] lineae sunt puncta.



5. [illegible]
6. [illegible]
7. [illegible]
8. [illegible]
9. [illegible]



10. [illegible] recta [illegible] altera.
11. [illegible]
12. [illegible] ião.
13. [illegible] continent.
14. [illegible]
15. [illegible]
16. [illegible] continent. [illegible] majori vel minori [illegible]
17. [illegible] sphærica; sphærici. [illegible]
18. [illegible] ut ABC, et [illegible] Fig. 6, et 6. [illegible] recta et curva, ut O [illegible] Fig.ª 8.
19. Omnis angulus vel rectus ē, vel obtusus, vel acutus.
20. A[illegible] ex parte æqualis oritur, si unum latus pro[illegible] altera ex parte æqualis efficit [illegible] ABC, si latus BE [illegible] in C. [illegible] rectos esse ista se æquales.
21. [illegible] recta AE Fig.ª 9. sub rectam BEC [illegible] utram partem [illegible]; ambo isti anguli AEB, et AEC recti sunt: Recta autem AE [illegible] BEC [illegible] perpendicularis [illegible].
22. Angulus obtusus est major recto, cujusmodi ē angulus ABC Fig.ª 10
23. Angulus acutus ē minor recto: ut angulus DEF Fig.ª 11.
24. [illegible] communem habent, quiq. ex utraq. parte istius lateris fiunt, dici solent [illegible]: ut AEB, et AEC Fig.ª 9. [illegible] producatur AE in D, quemadmodum BE producta [illegible] in C, anguli AEB, et CED erunt [illegible].
25. [illegible] recta [illegible] Fig.ª 12 [illegible] AB, [illegible] C, et [illegible] et F [illegible] dicentur internus, et externus ad eandem partem oppositi.

Theorema [illegible]

Recta sup rectam consistens vel duos rectos [illegible] facit, vel duos rectis [illegible].
Nam si recta AD Fig.ª 13. [illegible] recti p Definitionem 20, et 21. [illegible] duo recti ABD, et ADC. [illegible]

Corollaria

1. [illegible] plures rectas eidem recto ad [illegible] ut [illegible] Fig.ª 14 [illegible] anguli [illegible]
2. [illegible] Fig.ª 15.
3. Omnes anguli circa [illegible] constitut[illegible] rectos [illegible] Fig.ª 15 [illegible] C [illegible].

Theorema [illegible] 15 [illegible]

A[illegible]
[illegible]

Ergo anguli C, et A simul sumpti æquales sunt angulis B, et A simul [illegible]. A [illegible] angulo A, [illegible] anguli B, et C [illegible] ext[illegible] angulo [illegible] erat demonstrand[um].

Theorema 3tium. [illegible]

Si recta linea [illegible] æquales.

[illegible] vel acuta [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] æquales.

[illegible] Ergo [illegible] C æqualis [illegible] demonstrand[um].

Theorema 5. [illegible]

Si [illegible] interno, [illegible] erunt [illegible] æquales. [illegible] sunt inter se æquales [illegible] demonstrandum.

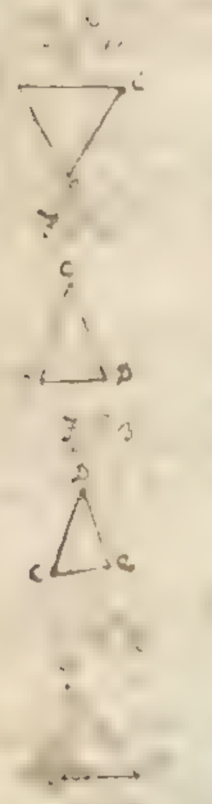
Schol[ium].

[illegible] Theorematis [illegible] notur, seu loc[illegible] conv[illegible].

[illegible] cum [illegible] extern[illegible], et inter [illegible] externi [illegible] ad eandem lineam [illegible] parallelæ per Axioma 9.

2do. ex eo quod anguli [illegible] C, et I sint æquales, sequitur lineas [illegible], et [illegible] parallelas. Quoniam anguli [illegible] Theorema 2d[um] [illegible] æqualis [illegible] Theorema 4, et angulus [illegible] externus [illegible] interno [illegible] Theorema 3ti[um] [illegible] ideoque per demonstrationem præcedentem lineæ [illegible], et [illegible] erunt parallelæ.

3tio. si anguli D et I [illegible] parallelæ. Nam anguli B et D [illegible] sunt æquales [illegible] recti [illegible] anguli D et I ponuntur [illegible] æquales [illegible] Ergo anguli B externus, et I internus sunt æquales [illegible] adeoque ex [illegible] demonstratur [illegible], et [illegible] sunt parallelæ.



Geometriæ
Liber 2dus
[illegible] Triangulis, Quadrilateris, Pentagonis, Hexagonis, et reliquis Polygonis Definitiones.

[illegible]

[illegible]

3 [illegible] vel [illegible] partem [illegible]

4 [illegible]

5 [illegible]

6 [illegible]

7 [illegible]

8 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

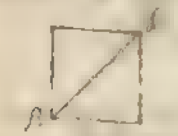
9 [illegible] Trianguli, seu [illegible]

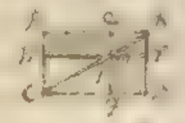
10 [illegible]

11 [illegible]

12 [illegible]

13 [illegible] acutos: ut ABC, [illegible]





[illegible]

16. de [illegible]

17. [illegible]

18. [illegible] extra [illegible]

[illegible]

20. [illegible]

[illegible]

22. [illegible]

23. [illegible] latew [illegible]

Theorema 1. [illegible]

In omni Triangulo externus angulus aequalis est [illegible] simul, anguli [illegible] tres [illegible] duobus rectis.

[illegible] aequales esse duobus [illegible] et [illegible] gulis rectis.

Demonstratur prima pars [illegible] AC incidentia [illegible]

[illegible] A, et B sunt [illegible] aequalis est duobus [illegible] demonstrandum.

[illegible] duo interni anguli A et B [illegible] Theorematis [illegible]

[illegible]

Corollaria.

1. [illegible]

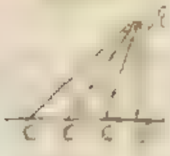
2. [illegible]

3. [illegible]

Theorema [illegible]

[illegible]

T. 16.



[illegible] quod [illegible]

Corollaria

1\. [illegible]

[illegible]

Theorema 3 [illegible]

[illegible] tota triangula. [illegible]

Corollaria

1 [illegible] habent [illegible] lateribus oppositos habent aequales.

2\. [illegible] ad extremitates duorum aequalium laterum, omnia [illegible] aequalia.

Theorema 4.

[illegible] summa [illegible] majora. [illegible] ab Archimede. [illegible] recta linea est brevissima omnium linearum, quae ab uno puncto ad aliud [illegible] ab uno puncto ad aliud, [illegible] directa [illegible] majora

Theorema 5. [illegible] Euclid.

In [illegible] parallelogrammo opposita anguli, et opposita latera sunt inter se aequalia, [illegible] parallelogrammum Diameter, [illegible] illud dividit aequales partes.

[illegible] A D, [illegible] B [illegible] 12. sunt parallela [illegible]

[illegible] D [illegible] parallelogrammi A D C B [illegible]

D, et D C B [illegible]. Rursus, quia A C, et D B [illegible]

[illegible] recta D [illegible] D, et C D B aequale. [illegible] D

Eodem modo, ducta recta A B, [illegible] angulos A et [illegible] aequales.

Jam vero, quia triangula A D C et C B A [illegible] latus D C [illegible] habent, [illegible] latera [illegible] Theorema [illegible] corollarium [illegible].

Corollaria

1\. [illegible] A [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] C. D. D C.

2\. [illegible]

[illegible]

Theorema 6. [illegible]

Parallelogramma super eadem basi, et in eadem parallelis, constituta sunt aequalia.

[illegible] parallelogramma A C, A D, [illegible] 19. [illegible] constituta. Dicimus ea esse aequalia. Nam in triangulis A [illegible] et [illegible] latus A C, et [illegible] aequalia [illegible] Theorema praecedens. [illegible] latus C [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] A D, [illegible]

[illegible] aequala. [illegible]

[illegible] A C, et A D aequalia [illegible]

Corollaria

[illegible]

2. Triangula sub eadem, vel equalibus basibus constituta, et inter easdem [illegible] A B C [illegible] parallelogrammi A B C E [illegible] A B C, [illegible] sunt equalia [illegible].

Theorema 7.

[illegible] divid[illegible] in tot triangula, quot habet latera.
Nam si intra Heptagonum B C D E F G [illegible] punctum A [illegible] ad omnes angulos ducantur rectæ lineæ AC, AD, AE, AF, AG, [illegible], manifestum est tot [illegible] triangula [illegible] quot sunt latera.

Corollarium

1. Omnes [illegible] efficiunt bis tot rectos [illegible] quot sunt latera [illegible].
[illegible] ex quovis puncto A intra [illegible] ducantur ad omnes angulos rectæ lineæ AB, AC etc. quæ figuram secabunt in tot Triangula, quot habet latera. Quoniam [illegible] duobus rectis per Theorema primum [illegible] tot [illegible] angulis, quot sunt latera prædicta [illegible] rectis per Corollarium 3tium 1. Theorematis [illegible] ad omnium Triangulorum angulos [illegible] circa punctum A [illegible] ad [illegible] collocati bis tot rectos [illegible] ficient, quot [illegible].
Hinc patet [illegible] æquales habere [illegible] quibus dignum est.
[illegible] si co[illegible]oscere volumus, quot [illegible] rectos angulos, quos [illegible] rum, habet angulos equales mille, [illegible] recti [illegible].

2. Omnes simul externi anguli cuiuscumque rectilinei [illegible] efficiunt [illegible] quatuor rectos.
Nam singuli figuræ interni anguli [illegible] duos rectos per Theorema 1. [illegible] proindeque interni simul omnes [illegible] bis tot rectos, quot sunt latera figuræ sed, ut in precedenti Corollario [illegible] interni simul omnes cum quatuor rectis, efficiunt bis tot rectos, [illegible] externi [illegible] quatuor recti [illegible]. Ergo omnes simul [illegible] anguli cuiuscumque figuræ rectilineæ [illegible] rectos.
[illegible] rectis [illegible] ex qua [illegible] equales habere exte[illegible] triangulum tres externi anguli equales sunt [illegible] externi [illegible] sus admiratione digna sunt.

Geometriæ
Liber 3tius
De Circulo
Definitiones.

1. [illegible] circulo conprehensa [illegible] ad [illegible] punctum intra [illegible] rectæ lineæ [illegible] currens linea [illegible] ea conclusum.
2. Circumferentia, seu Peripheria est [illegible] vel concava, seu cava [illegible].
3. Circumferentia Circuli divid[illegible] 360 partes, [illegible] solent [illegible] cumferentia, seu semiperipheria in [illegible] minuta prima. Quodvis minutum [illegible].
4. Centrum Circuli est punctum, a quo lineæ omnes [illegible].
5. Diameter est recta [illegible] equales partes: ut A B, [illegible]
6. Semidiameter, seu radius est recta a centro [illegible] ut [illegible].
7. [illegible] la est recta ducta ab uno puncto circumferentiæ [illegible] transeat: ut E F, [illegible]
8. Semicirculus est figura com[illegible] a diametro [illegible].
9. Quadrans est figura compre[illegible].
10. Arcus est pars circumferentiæ a chorda [illegible]
[illegible] hoc loco est [illegible] arcus [illegible] corollaria; [illegible] 300 [illegible].

[illegible]

[illegible] Circulo [illegible] vel [illegible] circulus.

[illegible] à centro, [illegible]

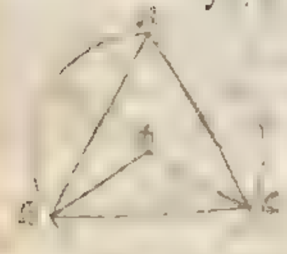
15 Circuli [illegible] à centro [illegible] circumferentia [illegible]

16 [illegible] circulo [illegible] centro distare dicuntur, [illegible] sunt [illegible]

17. Segmenta seu portione circuli sunt [illegible] circulus [illegible] recta [illegible] e F G, et H I K Fig. 5. Hinc omne circuli segmentum duobus terminatur, [illegible] scilicet recta, [illegible] secans circulum [illegible]

18 [illegible] segmenta [illegible] vel I H K segmentum [illegible]

19 [illegible]



20 [illegible] Talis ē in centro [illegible] vel [illegible]

21. [illegible] circulos.

22 [illegible]

23 [illegible] inscripta [illegible] circulo, [illegible]

24 [illegible] latera a [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] prop 16. lib 3 Eucl.

[illegible]

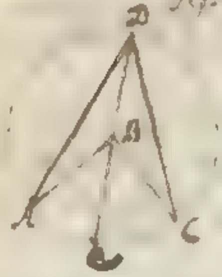
F. 12

... per extremum punctum [illegible] diametri A B Fig. 11 [illegible] recta [illegible] basi [illegible] ea [illegible] puncto. Demonstr. [illegible] ... a centro [illegible] ad [illegible] recta C [illegible] a centro [illegible] ad punctum [illegible] angulus C B F [illegible] maximus latus oppositi [illegible] theorema [illegible] Lib. [illegible] ... debet [illegible] seu radio C B, [illegible] Circuli. ergo punctum F perpendiculari [illegible] ... in solo [illegible] Circulum [illegible] demonstrandum.

Corollarium.

Nulla duci potest recta linea [illegible] punctum [illegible] ... perpendicularis [illegible] ... Circulus.

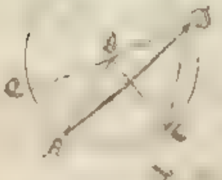
F. 13.



Theorema [illegible]. Propositio 20. Lib. 3 Eucl.

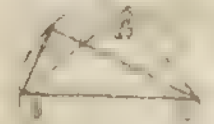
Angulus ad centrum duplus est anguli ad circumferentiam, [illegible] ... casus. Primus est, quando unum latus anguli ad circumferentiam incidit in unum latus anguli ad centrum: 2dus, quum latera anguli ad circumferentiam angulum ad centrum includunt: 3tius, quum latera anguli ad circumferentiam [illegible] ad centrum se se intersecant.

[illegible] in primo casu angulus ad circumferentiam [illegible] 12, [illegible] angulus ad centrum [illegible] ... angulo ad circumferentiam [illegible] ... Ergo angulus A [illegible] ad centrum [illegible]



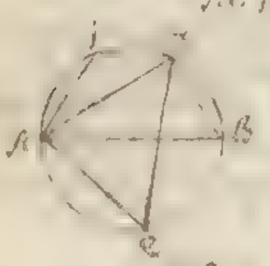
F. 15

Sit in 2do casu angulus ad centrum A [illegible] AD, B C anguli ad circumferentiam [illegible] D C, [illegible] F. 13. [illegible] lineam D B C transiens per centrum [illegible] angulus A B D [illegible] angulus C D C [illegible] demonstr. [illegible] A D C. [illegible]



Sit tertio in 3tio casu angulus ad centrum A B C, [illegible] angulus ad circumferentiam [illegible] latera se se intersecant, [illegible] ... eodem modo demonstratur totum angulum C B C duplum esse anguli [illegible] duplum esse anguli A [illegible] ... residuus angulus A B C [illegible] ... demonstrandum.

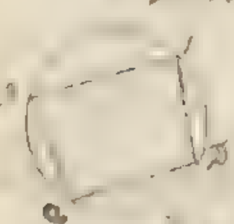
F. 16.



Corollaria. 1. Angulus ad circumferentiam habet [illegible]

2. Angulus ad circumferentiam [illegible] ... arcui, cui [illegible] ... angulo ad centrum. [illegible] ... arcui A C, cui [illegible] A F, cui insistit angulus ad centrum A B F, [illegible] ad centrum A B F. Nam per Theorema [illegible] demonstratus angulus ad centrum [illegible] angulo ad circumferentiam [illegible] ... ad centrum [illegible] ... A C [illegible] A F, [illegible] A B F.

F. 14.



3. [illegible] ... ejusdem Circuli segmentis sunt, seu qui eosdem habent arcus [illegible] ... anguli C et B, qui Fig. 15 sunt in eodem segmento D B C. [illegible] ... A C

4. Angulus A [illegible] semicirculo F. 16 [illegible] mensura [illegible] ... A C B, [illegible] ... angulus A D [illegible] ... CA [illegible] ... dia [illegible] semicircumferentiae, hujus vero minor.

5. Quadrilateri A [illegible] Fig. 17 [illegible] opposita anguli [illegible] et A, vel [illegible] ... semicircumferentia [illegible]

Theorema [illegible]. Propositio 32. Lib. 3 Eucl.

Angulus segmenti, qui fit a [illegible] tangente circulum, et [illegible] puncto contactus [illegible] ... qualis est angulo, qui fit in segmento alterno.

Chorda [illegible] Fig. 18 secet circulum ad punctum B [illegible] ... angulum C B D. [illegible] ... B C comprehendunt [illegible] ... angulus A [illegible] ... B C D.

[illegible]

[illegible] quadrato ABCD [illegible] circulo [illegible] BCD [illegible]

Theorema 5.

Omne polygonum circulo circumscriptum equale est triangulo rectangulo cuius alterum latus [illegible] alterum vero toti peripheriae [illegible]

[illegible] AB, BC, CD [illegible] Fig.a 20 [illegible] AC [illegible] CG F [illegible] CG Fig. 19.

[illegible] triangula ACB, BCD et Fig.a 20, equalia ei tria [illegible] polygonum. Sed aliis hisce triangulis equalia sunt [illegible] Fig.a 20 [illegible] ABC [illegible] CAC, et [illegible] BCG [illegible] Ergo totum parallelogrammum AB duplum est triangulorum [illegible]

[illegible] AB duplum est trianguli ABC [illegible] Theorema 5 [illegible] CG [illegible] Fig. 20, [illegible] toti polygono [illegible]

Theorema 6.

Omne polygonum ordinatum, seu regulare [illegible] latus [illegible] circulo [illegible] polygoni [illegible]

[illegible] Fig.a 21.

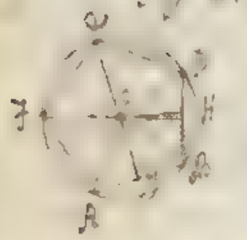


Fig. 21

Corollarium.

[illegible] attiam, tametsi [illegible]

Sed [illegible] circulo [illegible] Theorema [illegible] triangulo rectangulo, cuius alterum latus [illegible] polygoni, alterum vero [illegible] circulo [illegible] triangulo rectangulo [illegible] circumscripto [illegible]

Scholium

[illegible] polygoni seu circulo circumscripti [illegible] circulo [illegible] triangulo recto [illegible] circulo equale [illegible]

Fig.

Fig.

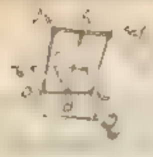
[illegible]

Liber 4

De Solidis

Definitiones

1. Solidum, sive corpus, est [illegible] latitudine [illegible] et profunditate.
2. Termini cuiuscumque solidi sunt superficies, [illegible]
3. Recta [illegible] perpendicularis [illegible] AB [illegible] CD [illegible] ABC, ABD [illegible]
4. Planum dicitur rectum, seu perpendiculare [illegible] planum, quum [illegible] sectioni planorum ducta in planorum uno, est perpendicularis alteri [illegible] EF [illegible] AB [illegible] recta AB, est perpendicularis ad [illegible] EF [illegible] EF.
5. [illegible] perpendicularis BE ad planum CD, iungaturque recta BE; [illegible] AB ad planum CD.



6. Si planum secans ... contineat rectis lineis, cum altero plano ad communem sectionem ... plano ... qui continet a rectis lineis AB, et BC, ... in utroque plano ad communem sectionem ... perpendiculares.

7. Plana similiter inclinata dicuntur, quando ... sunt, ...

8. Parallela plana sunt, quæ in omnem partem producta non conveniunt ...
9. Similes figuræ solidæ rectilineæ sunt, ...
10. Angulus solidus rectilineus est, qui ... unum punctum constitutis, continetur: ut BAC, CAD, DAB ...
11. Æquales solidi anguli sunt, qui invicem super positi ... lineariter, ita solidus angulus est inclinatio ...

Fig. 7

12. ... solidum ... triangulis ... io, vertex vero communis: ut ABCD ... basis BDC, et eundem communem verticem A.
Planum igitur BDC dicitur basis ... alia figura, ex cujus late... demissa a vertice ... A ...

13. ... solida ... plana sunt parallelogramma ... ut AB, Fig. 7.

14. Parallelepipedum est solidum sex parallelogrammis ... nt, et æqualia: ut KO, ... parallela ...
15. Cubus est solidum sex parallelogrammis ... quadrata ut ABFG ... est cubus.

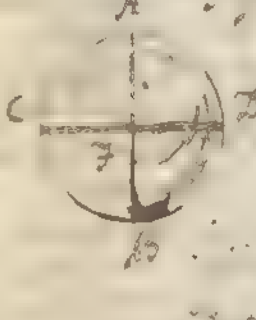


Fig. 10

16. Sphæra ... a qua omnes rectæ lineæ ad unum punctum ductæ ... ut A ... Fig. 10.
17. Axis sphæræ est ... recta AB. Fig. 10.
18. Centrum sphæræ est punctum ... circuli ...
19. Diameter sphæræ est recta ...

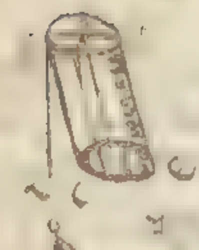
Fig. 11

20. ... circumferentia duo circuli ... parallela ... recta ab unius circuli centro ad centrum alterius circuli ducta ... Cylindrus. Sic quia recta linea BC, Fig. 11 ita convertitur circum duos parallelos circulos BD, CE; ut redeat in locum unde moveri cœpit, ... duorum circulorum centra ducta ... Cylindrus nuncupatur.

Fig. 12.

21. Bases cylindri sunt duo circuli, ... Cylindrus: ut BD, et CE Fig. 11
22. Axis cylindri est recta basium centra connectens: ut OI, Fig. 11.
23. Latus cylindri est recta in cylindro ... utrasque bases tangens: ut BC, Fig. 11.

24. Si recta linea in ... puncto extra ... circuli ... circumferentiam circuli, fabricatur Conus. ... circuli CF, Fig. 12 ... punctum O, a quo ducatur recta OF ... circuli converti, donec redeat in locum OF unde moveri cœperat; ... Conus.



25. Basis Coni est circulus ... ut circulus CF, Fig. 12.
26. Vertex Coni est punctum ipsius Coni: ut punctum O, Fig. 12.
27. Axis Coni est recta ex vertice ad basis centrum ducta: ut recta OI, Fig. 12.
28. Latus Coni est recta a vertice ad basis circumferentiam ducta: ut recta OF, Fig. 12.

29. Coni atque Cylindri recti ... quorum Axis perpendicularis est ad planum basis: ut figuræ 11, et 12.
30. Coni, et Cylindri ... inclinati, quorum Axis ... : ut ... 13, 14
31. Coni recti, vel recti cylindri sunt inter se æquales, quorum Axes ... et diametri basium ... basium sunt æquales.
32. Coni inclinati, vel Cylindri inclinati sunt inter se æquales, quorum Axes æqualem habent inclinationem ad plana basium.

F. 15.

33. Solida ordinata, [illegible] vocan[tur] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tur, sunt autem [illegible] [illegible], Tetraedrum, Cubus, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et Icosaedrum.

34. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]: Ut A B [illegible] 15. Cubus sub sex quadratis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] A B F G [illegible] 9. Octaedrum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] continetur.

Geometriæ

Liber 5.

De Proportionibus.

Definitiones.

1. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] comparata majori magnitudini [illegible] [illegible] pars, [illegible] [illegible] majori magnitudine [illegible] contineatur. Sic linea 2. pedum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], licet in ipsa [illegible] contineatur.

2. Pars dividitur in aliquotam et aliquantam.

3. [illegible] aliquota [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adæquat. Sic linea 2. pedum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] linea 10. [illegible] [illegible] linea 2. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 10. [illegible], [illegible] adæquat.

4. [illegible] aliquanta [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quæ majori magnitudini [illegible] [illegible] comparata [illegible] [illegible] adæquat. Sic linea [illegible] pedum [illegible] [illegible] aliquanta lineæ 10. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] comparata, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] adæquat, Ita vero comparata [illegible] excedit.

5 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] multiplex, quæ simpliciter multiplex appellari solet, [illegible] major magnitudo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Sic linea 6 pedum [illegible] multiplex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quia [illegible] [illegible] 2. [illegible] comparata, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] continet.

6. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quantitatis continent. Sic linea 12 pedum [illegible] lineæ 4. pedum, et linea 6 [illegible] [illegible] lineæ 2. pedum vocantur [illegible], quia et linea 12. pedum ter continet lineam 4. pedum, et linea 6. pedum [illegible] [illegible] continet lineam 2. pedum.

7. Magnitudines homogeneæ [illegible], quæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] seu, quibus eadem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quia [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] omnia vocantur homogenea, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible].

8 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] heterogeneæ [illegible] (vocantur) [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lineæ superficies et linea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nuncupantur.

9. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] comparantur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] minus [illegible] antecedens, et [illegible] consequens. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 2. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] terminus antecedens, et linea 6. pedum terminus consequens. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] magnitudinum comparatio, seu relatio, dicitur a Geometris [illegible].

10 Ratio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quantitate, [illegible] tudo, seu relatio, Dixi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] homogenearum: Nam magnitudines heterogeneæ [illegible] possunt inter se comparari.

11 Dividitur [illegible] ratio in rationalem et irrationalem.

12. Ratio rationalis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] commensurabiles, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] ratio [illegible] habet linea 4. pedum ad lineam 3. [illegible] vocatur rationalis, quia [illegible] [illegible], linea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] numeris exprimi potest.

13. Ratio irrationalis [illegible], quæ existit inter duas magnitudines incommensurabiles. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] linea, quæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] queat.

14. Dividitur [illegible] ratio in rationem æqualitatis, et [illegible] [illegible] inæqualitatis.

15 [illegible] æqualitatis dicitur, quando antecedens, et consequens [illegible] [illegible] æqualia. [illegible] [illegible] ratio [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad lineam bipedalem.

16. Ratio inæqualitatis [illegible], [illegible] antecedens et consequens sunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] bipedalis ad [illegible] [illegible] pedalem.

17. Ratio [illegible] in ratione majoris inæqualitatis, et in ratione minoris inæqualitatis.

18. Ratio majoris inæqualitatis est, quando antecedens terminus major est consequente: Talis est ratio [illegible] sex pedum, et lineam 2 pedum.

19. Ratio minoris inæqualitatis est, quando [illegible] quantitas minor est 2da; hoc est, quando antecedens terminus est consequente minor: Talis est ratio [illegible] 2. pedum, et lineam 6. pedum.

20. Ratio majoris inæqualitatis [illegible] dividitur in multiplicem, superparticularem, superpartientem, multiplicem superparticularem, et multiplicem superpartientem.

21. Ratio multiplex est, quando major quantitas minorem quantitatem, hoc est, quando antecedens terminus [illegible] continet terminum consequentem. Hujusmodi est ratio [illegible] lineam 14 pedum et lineam [illegible] pedum. [illegible] quantitas [illegible] contineat, dicitur [illegible] habere ad [illegible] rationem duplam seu primam [illegible] ad 2dam in ratione [illegible] quantitas ter contineat 2dam, dicitur esse [illegible] in ratione [illegible] si quater in ratione quadrupla; atque ita [illegible]. Sic linea 4. pedum est ad lineam [illegible] in ratione dupla; 6. pedum in ratione tripla: 8. pedum in ratione quadrupla; 10. pedum in ratione [illegible] 12. pedum in ratione sextupla: 14 pedum in ratione septupla: 16 pedum in ratione octupla etc.

22. Ratio superparticularis est, quando major antecedens terminus semel continet minorem [illegible] consequentem, et [illegible] [illegible] consequentis: ut ratio lineæ 6 pedum ad lineam 4 pedum. Notandum autem est, [illegible] major quantitas ita semel continet minorem cum una aliquota minoris, ut [illegible] sit dimidia pars minoris, ~~[illegible] ratio dicitur sesquialtera~~ [illegible] ratio lineæ 6 pedum ad lineam 4. pedum: vel lineæ 3. pedum ad lineam duorum pedum. Vel si [illegible] minorem quantitatem semel contineat, et unam partem aliquotam minoris, [illegible] [illegible] minoris ratio est sesquitertia: ut ratio lineæ 4. pedum ad lineam 3 pedum, aut lineæ 16. pedum ad lineam 12. pedum. Eodem modo, ubi pars aliquota minoris, vel [illegible] pars, vel [illegible], vel [illegible]; [illegible] ratio vel sesquiquarta erit, vel sesquiquinta, vel sesquisexta etc.

23. Ratio superpartiens [illegible], quando major quantitas semel continet minorem quantitatem et [illegible] aliquotas, quæ tamen non constituunt unam aliquotam. Talis est ratio lineæ [illegible] pedum ad lineam [illegible] pedum. [illegible] linea 8. pedum semel continet lineam 5. pedum, et [illegible] lineam [illegible] pedum, hoc est tres [illegible] quarum linea [illegible] pedum, quæ tamen partes simul [illegible] non constituunt unam aliquotam [illegible] 5. pedum.

24. Ratio multiplex superparticularis, quando major minorem aliquoties continet et unam aliquotam: ut ratio lineæ 5. pedum ad lineam 2. pedum, vel lineæ 10. pedum ad lineam 4 pedum.

25. Ratio multiplex superpartiens est, quando major minorem aliquoties continet et [illegible] aliquotas non constituentes unam aliquotam: ut ratio lineæ 8. pedum ad lineam 3. pedum, vel lineæ 16 pedum ad lineam 6. pedum.

26 Ratio quoque minoris inæqualitatis dividitur in submultiplicem, subsuperparticularem, subsuperpartientem, submultiplicem superparticularem, et submultiplicem superpartientem.

27. Ratio submultiplex est, quando antecedens in consequente aliquoties continetur. Hujusmodi est ratio lineæ 2 pedum ad lineam 4. pedum. Si antecedens bis contineatur in consequente, dicitur antecedens esse ad consequens in ratione subdupla, si ter, in ratione subtripla; si quater, in ratione subquadrupla etc. Sic linea 2. pedum est ad lineam 4. pedum in ratione subdupla, ad lineam 6. pedum in ratione subtripla, ad lineam 8 pedum in ratione subquadrupla etc.

28 Ratio subsuperparticularis est, quando antecedens cum una sua aliquota semel in consequente continetur, ut ratio lineæ 4. pedum ad lineam 6. pedum. Hinc ratio subsuperparticularis, vel sesquialtera [illegible], vel sesquitertia vel sesquiquarta etc.

29. Ratio subsuperpartiens appellatur, [illegible] antecedens cum pluribus suis aliquotis, quæ [illegible] non constituunt unam aliquotam, in consequente continetur: ut ratio lineæ 5. pedum ad lineam 8 [illegible].

30. Ratio submultiplex superparticularis est, quando antecedens cum una sui aliquota in consequente aliquoties continetur. Talis est ratio lineæ 2. pedum ad lineam 5. pedum.

31. Ratio submultiplex superpartiens est, quando antecedens cum pluribus [illegible] [illegible] unam non constituentibus aliquotam in consequente aliquoties continetur. Hujusmodi est ratio lineæ 3. pedum ad lineam 8. pedum.

32. Quatuor magnitudines eandem habere rationem, seu in eadem ratione dicuntur, quando ratio primæ ad 2dam eadem, vel æqualis est rationi 3tiæ ad 4tam: seu 4 magnitudines in eadem ratione dicuntur, [illegible] prima est [illegible], et 3tia respectu 4tæ sunt vel æquimultiplices vel similes partes [illegible] linea 12 pedum comparata lineæ 4. pedum, et linea 6. pedum comparata lineæ 2. pedum, [illegible] quatuor magnitudines sunt eandem habentes rationem, quia sicut linea 12. pedum ter continet [illegible] 4. pedum, ita linea 6 pedum ter continet lineam 2. pedum.

33 Prima magnitudo [illegible] habere dicitur [illegible] ad 2dam, quam 3tia ad 4tam, quando prima [illegible] partes aliquotas 2dæ pluries [illegible] continet, quam 3tia [illegible] similes partes aliquotas 4tæ: [illegible] linea 16. pedum [illegible] habet rationem ad lineam [illegible] pedum, quam linea 6 pedum [illegible] quia linea [illegible] continet [illegible]; linea vero 6 pedum ter [illegible] ad 2. pedum.

34. Prima magnitudo minorem habere dicitur rationem ad 2dam, quam 3tia ad 4tam, si cum prima unam partem aliquotam 2dæ pauciès [illegible] contineat, quam 3tia [illegible] similem aliquotam 4tæ. Sic linea 6 pedum minorem habet rationem ad lineam 2. pedum quam linea 16 pedum ad lineam 4 pedum. linea [illegible] 6 pedum ad lineam 2 pedum rationem habet triplam, linea vero 16 pedum ad lineam 4 pedum rationem quadruplam.

35. Magnitudines, quæ eandem, seu similem habent rationem, dicuntur proportionales.

36. Hinc proportio, seu analogia ē similitudo rationum.

37. ~~[illegible]~~ Triplex ē proportio, Geometrica scilicet, Aritmetica, et Harmonica.

38. Geometrica proportio, quæ simpliciter et absolute proportio dicitur, ē illa in qua quæritur quoties una quantitas [illegible] quantitatem [illegible], vel in duas alias includatur quantitates. Sic ratio lineæ 16 pedum ad lineam [illegible] et [illegible] lineæ 12 pedum ad lineam 3 pedum constituunt proportionem Geometricam, quia [illegible] quoties linea 16. pedum includat lineam 4 pedum, vel quoties linea 4 pedum includatur in linea 16, toties [illegible] linea 12 pedum includat lineam 3 pedum, vel linea 3. pedum includatur in linea 12. pedum.

39 Proportio Arithmetica ē illa, in qua spectatur, quantum duæ quantitates excedant duas alias quantitates vel quantum [illegible] quantitates [illegible] ab [illegible] duabus quantitatibus excedantur. Sic numerus quaternarius comparatus numero ternario, et numerus binarius comparatus unitati proportionem efficiunt Arithmeticam, spectatur enim quantum numerus quaternarius excedat numerum ternarium, vel quantum ternarius numerus excedatur a quaternario. et quantum numerus binarius excedat unitatem, vel a numero binario unitas excedatur.

40 Quævis proportio sive Geometrica, sive arithmetica duabus necessario constat rationibus, [illegible] quatuor quantitates, [illegible] in proportione [illegible] dicuntur termini. Primus ergo et 3tius dicuntur antecedentes [illegible] con[illegible]. 3tius 2dus antecedens: 4tus secundum consequens. Primus [illegible], et 4tus dicuntur extremi, [illegible] et 3tius media. Hoc autem modo notantur a Geometris. A. B:: C. D. vel, 6. 3:: 4. 2. [illegible] ut A se habet ad B, ita C se habet ad D. [illegible] ut 6 se habet ad 3 ita 4 se habet ad 2.

41 Proportio sive Geometrica, sive arithmetica vel Discreta ē, vel continua.

42. Proportio discreta nuncupatur, cum termini semel tantum accipiuntur, ut in superiori exemplo A. B:: C. D. vel, 6. 4:: 12. 8. Magnitudines autem hanc proportionem efficientes dicuntur discrete proportionales.

43. Proportio continua appellatur, si medii termini bis accipiuntur; [illegible] antecedentes [illegible] ut [illegible] 8. 4. 2. [illegible] primus consequens respectu [illegible] primi antecedentis, [illegible] 2. 2di consequentis. Magnitudines hanc proportionem [illegible] continuo proportionales.

44. Rursus proportio alia est alterna, alia conversa.

[illegible] Proportio alterna [illegible] antecedentis ad antecedentem, et consequentis [illegible] A. B:: C. D [illegible] A ad C [illegible] B ad D.

46 Proportio conversa ē comparatio consequentis ad antecedentem. [illegible] A. B:: C. D [illegible] B. A:: D. C.

47. Proportio [illegible] vel divisa vel conversa.

48. [illegible] proportio [illegible] rationis, vel componendo, [illegible] antecedentis [illegible] consequentis [illegible] A. B. B:: C. D. D.

[illegible] excessus antecedentis [illegible] A. B. B. C. D. [illegible] A. B: C. D

50 [illegible] rationis, seu conversio [illegible] antecedentis [illegible] A. B. A. C. D. C

51. [illegible] antecedentia antecedentium, et [illegible] consequentia [illegible] quantitates [illegible]

52. 3tia proportionum species, scilicet Harmonica, cujus frequens fit mentio [illegible] constitit in tribus terminis ita dispositis, ut qualis ē ratio maximi ad [illegible] excessus medii a minimo. Sint V.G. [illegible] 6 [illegible] 12 [illegible] 8 [illegible] 6 [illegible] excessus 4, qui [illegible] inter 8 et 6.

53 Animadvertendum ē, quod licet ratio, ut superius vidimus, a proportione [illegible] ut ratio et proportio idem [illegible] V.C. proportio alterna [illegible] proportio [illegible] ratio A ad B [illegible]

5[illegible]. [illegible] primus antecedens A comparat 2do consequenti D, relictis primo consequente B, et 2do antecedente C; ratio A ad D composita dicitur, composita nimirum ex ratione A ad B, et ex ratione C ad D. Quum vero in proportione hac continua [illegible] A. B. C. ~~A comparatur~~ primus antecedens A comparatur 2do consequenti C, relicta media proportionali scilicet B, quae gerit vices primi consequentis, et 2di simul antecedentis; ratio A ad C composita [illegible] appellatur ex duabus rationibus A ad B, et B ad C.

55. Ratio duplicata dicitur, quae composita est ex duabus rationibus aequalibus in ratione majoris inaequalitatis, v.g. si 12. [illegible] :: 6. 2; tota ratio 12. ad 2. duplicata nuncupatur [illegible] 12 ad 6, et 6. ad 2. Ratio [illegible] est ratio composita ex tribus rationibus aequalibus in ratione majoris inaequalitatis [illegible] 16 [illegible] 12 ad 3 8 ad 2. eam [illegible] rationes scilicet quadruplas; ratio 16. ad 2. triplicata erit trium [illegible] rationum 16 ad [illegible] 3, et 8. ad 2. Eodem modo servatis servandis, habebitur ratio [illegible] duplicata, sextuplicata, octuplicata, nonuplicata [illegible].

56. Ratio subd[illegible] est [illegible] ratio composita ex duabus rationibus aequalibus in ratione minoris inaequalitatis. Ratio duplicata subduple [illegible] minoris antecedentis consequenti [illegible] [illegible]. V.g. in hac proportione ~~[illegible]~~ continua [illegible] ita 4. se habet ad 8; tota ratio 2. ad 8 vocatur ratio sub[illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] plo majores rationes [illegible]; 2. ad 8 [illegible] ratio [illegible] duplas, [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] tione, efficit ratio [illegible] [illegible].

57 Linea [illegible] in aliam ducitur, seu in aliam lineam multiplicatur [illegible] [illegible] rectangulum, cujus [illegible] [illegible] contineat. [illegible] multiplicatur, [illegible] ex utraque fit [illegible] rectangulum [illegible].

58. Si linea vel per se ipsam vel [illegible] multiplicat, ex [illegible] [illegible] v.g. [illegible] CD [illegible] Fig. 2. per se [illegible] multiplicet [illegible] ex illa multiplicatione [illegible] quadratum EFCD; [illegible] sint aequalia.

59. Rectangulum, aut quaevis alia superficies per lineam multiplicata, [illegible] [illegible] rectangulum, cujus basis sit ea [illegible] altitudo [illegible] [illegible] figura ABGH [illegible] per lineam IK, vel per lineas BC [illegible] FR, cujus basis est superficies ABGH, altitudo vero [illegible] K, [illegible] aequales.

60. Si superficies sit quadrata, et per lineam [illegible], ex [illegible] [illegible] sex superficies erunt inter se aequales.

61. Ex figuris [illegible], [illegible] angulos [illegible] [illegible] ea aequales angulos proportionalia. [illegible] sunt [illegible] ABC [illegible] A quae [illegible] ac [illegible] AB. AC :: ab. ac. Latera, [illegible] dicuntur homologa: ut AB, et ab: AC, et ac [illegible].

62. Altitudo cujusque figurae est linea [illegible] a vertice [illegible] [illegible] Fig. 4. est altitudo Trianguli ABC.

63. Spatia, seu intervalla inter parallelas comprehensa sunt aequalia, in quibus [illegible] sunt aequales.

Postulatum

Datis tribus quantitatibus A, B, C, dari potest [illegible] ad quam C [illegible] rationem, quam habet A, ad B.

Theorema 1

In proportione arithmetica [illegible] extremorum est semper [illegible].
In hac proportione arithmetica [illegible] 2. 1. [illegible] ut [illegible] 5: [illegible] 2. [illegible] 3, [illegible] a 2, [illegible] est [illegible] utroque aequalitas.

Theorema 2

In proportione geometrica extremorum multiplicatio [illegible].
In hac v.g. proportione 4. 2 :: 6. 3. si 4. per tria [illegible] duo per 6. multiplicat [illegible] autem est, quia 4, et bis duo sunt [illegible] bis tria [illegible] [illegible] 3. per 4. multiplicantur, idem est, ac, [illegible] bis tria, et [illegible] tria, seu uno verbo quater tria. Duum [illegible] 2. per 6. multiplicantur, idem [illegible] est ac [illegible] bis tria, et bis tria. Producta [illegible] [illegible].

Corollarium

[illegible]

Fig. 1.

Fig. 2.

Fig. 3.

Fig. 4. Fig. 5

Theorema 3tium.

Triangulorum aequiangulorum latera circa aequales angulos sunt proportionalia. P. 04. L. 6 Eucl.

Sint triangula ABC Fig. 6. et abc Fig. 7. quae sint aequiangula. Dico AB esse ad ab, ut BC ad ac, et BC ad bc; atque ita alternando AB esse ad AC, ut ab ad ac, et bc.

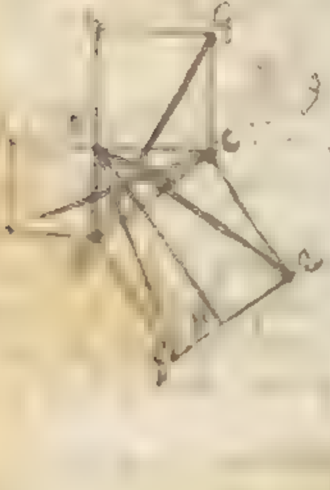
A vertice A majoris trianguli ABC demittatur perpendicularis AD, dividaturque in partes aequales, et per sectiones divisiones ducantur rectae lineae basi BC parallelae, quae occurrant lateri AB in punctis F, et a quorum singulis demittantur partes perpendiculares in basis partes BD. [illegible] latus AB, et partes basis BD in totidem partes dividi, quot continentur in perpendiculari AD, quae quidem simul erunt inter se aequales tot in AB, quot in BD, per Corollarium 2. Theorem. 3. Lib. 2.

[illegible] illa pars in minori triangulo abc perpendiculari ap, in qua sumantur partes ad, de aequales partibus AD, DE et continuaturque in ap quotquot, quales [illegible] AD, quae sunt sectiones [illegible] [illegible] ducant recta basi bc, a adeo, quae occurrent [illegible] in punctis f, et a quorum singulis demittantur perpendiculares in [illegible] aut basis partem ap, dein [illegible] latus ab, et partes basis bp in tot partes inter se aequales dividi, quot continentur in perpendiculari ap.

[illegible] multitudo partium aequalium in perpendiculari AD majoris trianguli ad multitudinem partium aequalium perpendiculari ap in minori triangulo, ut multitudo partium lateris AB, vel basis BD ad multitudinem partium lateris ab, vel basis bp. Idque demonstrabitur de triangulis ABC, abc. Proindeque ut latus AB ad latus ab, ita latus AC ad latus ac, et BC ad bc, ac consequenter, ut tota basis BC ad totam basim bc. Quod erat demonstrandum.

Theorema 4tum. Prop. 8. Lib. 6. Eucl.

3 In triangulis rectangulis perpendicularis ab angulo recto in basim demissa facit duo triangula sibi invicem, et toti similia.



Perpendicularis v. g. AD, Fig. 8 facit triangula DAB, et DAC sibi mutuo, et toti triangulo CAB similia. Nam in triangulis CAB, et DAB duo anguli CAB [illegible] rectus est et ADB sunt aequales [illegible] ADB, qui est rectus, et ABD [illegible] tertius ACB est aequalis tertio DAB per corollarium 3tium Theorematis 1. Lib. 2. Ergo ista triangula sunt aequiangula [illegible] latera habent proportionalia per Theorema precedens. Ergo e definitione 3. hujus sunt similia. Eodem modo demonstrabitur CAD similem esse ipsi CAB; Adeoque duo haec triangula sunt sibi mutuo, et toti CAB similia.

Corolaria.

1 Perpendicularis AD Fig. 8. est media proportionalis inter segmenta basis CD, et DB. Hoc est, ut CD ad DA, ita DA ad DB. Quia enim triangula CAD, et DAB sunt similia, [illegible] latus [illegible] angulo CAD est ad [illegible] latus [illegible] trianguli, ut [illegible] minus latus [illegible] ad [illegible] per Theorema 3tium huius. [illegible]

Simili modo CA est media proportionalis inter hypotenusam CB et segmentum CD. Nam quia triangula CAB, et CAD sunt similia, erit hypotenusa CB in majori triangulo CAB ad minus latus CA, ut hypotenusa CA in minori triangulo CAD est ad minimum quod latus CD.

Denique BA est media proportionalis inter hypotenusam BC, et segmentum BD. Nam quia triangula BAC, et BAD sunt similia, erit hypotenusa BC in majori triangulo BAC ad BA minus latus, ut hypotenusa BA in minori triangulo BAD est ad minus latus BD.

2. Quadratum perpendicularis AD, Fig. 8. est aequale rectangulo sub segmentis basis DB, et DC contento per Theorema 2. [illegible] et [illegible] corolarium [illegible] in media proportionali [illegible] sunt eadem ratione [illegible] lata. [illegible] CA est aequale rectangulo sub basi BC, et [illegible] CD. Sicuti quadratum lateris [illegible] est [illegible] rectangulo sub basi BC, et [illegible] segmento BD [illegible]

Theorema 5. Prop. 47. Lib. 1 Eucl.

In omni triangulo rectangulo quadratum basis, seu hypotenusae aequale est quadratis laterum simul sumptis.

[illegible] triangulo rectangulo BAC Fig. 9. quadratum hypotenusae BC aequale est quadratis laterum BA, AC [illegible]

[illegible] latera BC, AB, AC [illegible] quadrata. Ducatur perpendicularis AH, quae [illegible] parallela [illegible] Dicimus, [illegible] AF [illegible] rectangulo BH, et quadratum AG aequale est rectangulo CH. Proindeque quadratum BC aequale est duobus quadratis AF, AG. Quod ita demonstratur.

[illegible] triangula FBC, ABD habent latera [illegible] BD, [illegible] aequalia [illegible] quadratis. Habent etiam angulos FBC, ABD aequales, quia [illegible] angulos FBA, DBC, communem habeant angulum ABC. [illegible] triangula FBC, ABD [illegible] per Theorema 3tium [illegible] inter se aequalia. [illegible] quadratum AF duplum est trianguli FBC per Theorema 5. L. 6. 2di, et Theorema 6, [illegible] Corolarium 2dum [illegible] eam basim BF [illegible] eadem parallela [illegible] Restat [illegible] duplum trianguli ABD quia habeant eandem basim BD, et sint inter easdem parallelas BD, AH. quadratum ergo AJ equale est rectangulo BH. [illegible] triangula ACG, GCB sunt equalia [illegible] Theo. [illegible] 37. [illegible] AG duplum [illegible] trianguli BCG, et rectangulum CH duplum est trianguli A[illegible] [illegible] Quadratum ergo AJ equale est rectangulo CH. Et conveniunt totum quadratum BC [illegible] quadratum hypotenusae, equale est duobus quadratis AJ, [illegible] G, quae sunt quadrata laterum trianguli rectanguli BAC. Quod erat [illegible].

Hoc [illegible] [illegible] habetur a mathematicis universis. Vocat Pythagoricum ab inventore Pythagora, qui, ut testatur Proclus, [illegible] Vitruvius centum boves [illegible] lavit, [illegible] putaret. Hujusce Theorematis [illegible] est [illegible] 47. Libri 1. Euclidis, magnusque usus apud Geometras. [illegible] nos tria duntaxat notamus [illegible] exemplo [illegible].

Et primo ex eo [illegible] quasdam extare lineas incommensurabiles, quas sciliet nulla communi mensura notum metiri; seu extare quasdam lineas, [illegible] alterum numeret: omnis [illegible] numeri habent saltem unitatem pro mensura communi, ex qua aliquoties repetita [illegible] itaque in superiori triangulo ABC [illegible] 9. [illegible] AB sit 3 pedum, latus AC [illegible] BC est 5 pedum. [illegible] quadratum lateris AB, scilicet AJ, continere 9 pedes quadratos, [illegible] ex [illegible] pedum [illegible] si autem tres pedes sumantur [illegible] numerum multiplicent, efficient 9 pedes. [illegible] quadratum lateris AC, scilicet [illegible] 16 pedum, et quadratum hypotenusae BC [illegible] 25 pedes quadratos continebit. [illegible] si addantur simul quadratum AJ 9 pedum, et quadratum AG [illegible] 25, pedes simul sumpta equalia sunt quadrato [illegible], quod [illegible] 25 pedes quadratos comprehendit.

Neque solum quadrata laterum, ut hactenus vidimus, numeris [illegible] verum etiam [illegible] radices, latera scilicet ista, numeris [illegible] latera vel radices quadratorum [illegible], qui [illegible] multiplicati [illegible] quadratum efficiunt. [illegible] 2 est [illegible] 4 [illegible] 3 est radix quadrata [illegible] dix numeri 16. 5 radix numeri 25. 6 radix numeri 36. 7 radix numeri 49. 8 [illegible] meri 64. 9 radix numeri 81. 10 radix 100 etc. [illegible] numeri 4, 9, 16, 25, 36 [illegible] 100 quadrati appellantur, quoniam ex certis numeris [illegible] exurgunt, et [illegible] formam quadratam disponi possunt. Hinc numerus, qui quadrati cujusdam numeri duplus est, non potest esse quadratus, quia in formam quadratam ordinari non potest. Nam si numerus v.g. quaternarius bis sumatur, fiet octonarius, qui quadratus non est, quia in formam quadratam ordinari non possit. Verum si numerus quaternarius quater sumatur, prodibit numerus 16, qui quadratus merito dicitur.

Quamvis autem numerus quadratus non possit esse alterius numeri quadrati duplus; potest tamen quadratum extensum esse alterius quadrati extensi duplum. Nam si triangulum rectangulum fuerit isosceles. V.g. si utrumque illius latus fuerit 4 pedum, erit uniuscujusque lateris quadratum 16 pedum, et ambo simul sumpta 32 pedes quadratos complectentur; adeoque quadratum hypotenusae in predicto triangulo continebit 32 pedes, eritque alterutrius duplum. Numerus autem 32 non est quadratus; sed continetur inter numeros quadratos 25, et 36, quorum radices sunt 5, et 6: proindeque radix numeri 32, quae est hypotenusa predicti trianguli, debet plures continere pedes, quam 5, et pauciores, quam 6 [illegible] magnitudo numeris precise determinari non potest. [illegible] proinde [illegible] [illegible] potest laterum, et hypotenusae mensura communis. Ergo hypotenusa trianguli isoscelis [illegible] diagonalis cujuscumque quadrati est incommensurabilis lateri.

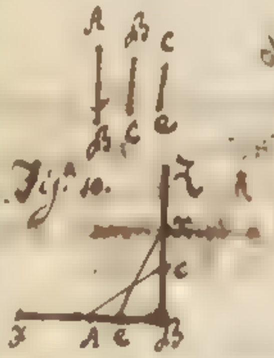

Fig.a 10.

Consequitur 2do, datis quotcumque quadratis, unum construi posse omnibus equale. Dentur v.g. quadrata tria, quorum latera sint AB, BC, CE. Fiat angulus rectus JBZ infinita habens latera BJ, BZ, atque in ea transferantur latera BA, BC, junganturque AC. Erit quadratum AC equale quadratis AB, BC. [illegible] AC transferatur ex B in X, et CE tertium latus transferatur ex B in E, junganturque EX: erit quadratum lateris EX equale quadratis laterum EB, et BX hoc est equale tribus datis quadratis laterum AB, BC, CE.

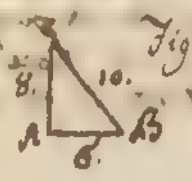

Fig.a 11.

Consequitur 3tio, notis duobus quibuscumque lateribus trianguli rectanguli, tertium quoque latus cognosci posse. Latera rectum angulum ambientia sint AC, et AB, hoc 6 pedum, illud 8 pedum. [illegible] niamus quot pedes sit latus majus CB angulo recto oppositum, latus 6 pedum, et latus 8 pedum in se ipsa ducenda sunt, seu per se ipsa multiplicanda. Ex hac multiplicatione consurget 36 quadratum lateris 6, et 64 quadratum lateris 8, eorumque summa erit 100. Porro radix quadrata 100 nempe 10 dabit pedes tertii lateris BC. Nam summa quadratorum BA, AC equalis est quadra to BC. Ergo horum summae radix eadem est cum radice, seu latere BC.

Nota sint deinde latera AB, BC, hoc 10. pedum, illud 6. pedum, atque invenire oporteat quot sint pedes lateris AC. Lateris AB quadratum 36. auferatur ex 100. quadrato lateris BC. Residuum 64. erit quadratum lateris AC. Radix ergo 64, nempe 8, dat pedes lateris AC.

Geometriae
Liber 6.
Problemata.
Definitiones.

1. Orgyia Graecorum idem significat, quod hexapeda, seu sexpeda nostra, nempe mensura 6. continens pedes.
2. Pes continet 12. uncias, sive pollices. Uncia quippe sumitur non tantum pro pondere, quo sensu est 12. pars Librae, verum etiam pro mensura, nempe pro pollice, seu 12. pedis parte.
3. Digitus est pars pedis 16. Verum recentiores scriptores pollicem, et digitum saepe indiscriminatim sumunt, pro parte nimirum pedis 12.
4. Pollex continet 12. partes, quae lineae vocantur. Aliae mensurae adhibebantur a veteribus, quae apud nos non sunt in usu.
5. Mensurae, quibus communiter utuntur Romani, et Galli, sequentibus versibus exprimuntur.

> Quatuor ex granis digitus componitur unus.
> Est quater in palmo digitus: quater in pede palmus.
> Quinque pedes passum faciunt. Passus quoque centum, > Viginti quinque stadium dant. At miliare > Octo dabunt stadia: Duplicatum dat tibi leucam.

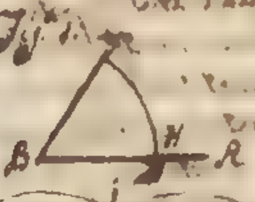
Notandum est per grana hic intelligi grana hordei deinceps secundum longitudinem collocata, per passus vero intelligi passus geometricos, non communes; quum passus communis trium duntaxat pedum constet.

6. Romani per stadia, aut milliaria numerabant. Dictum est autem miliare, quod mille passus geometricos contineat.
7. Leucis Galli duo miliaria vulgo tribuunt. Leucae Germanicae duplo fere majores dicuntur.
8. Egyptii Schoenis utebantur, de quorum amplitudine non liquet. Nam alii singulis schoenis tribuunt tres leucas gallicas cum dimidia, et quadrante. Alii duas leucas cum dimidia. Alii leucam cum quadrante.
9. Persae intervalla per Parasangas metiebantur. Continere autem parasanga dicitur tria milliaria et passus 740.

Fig. 1



Problema 1. Propositio 23. Lib. 1 Eucl.

Ad datum punctum datae rectae angulum efficere aequalem alteri dato.

Sit punctum B in linea AB. Fig. 1 in quo efficiendus sit angulus dato angulo CDE aequalis. Ex puncto D, veluti centro, ad intervallum E, describatur arcus EC: Tum manente eadem circini apertura, fiat ex puncto B, veluti centro, ad aequale intervallum H, aequalis arcus FH. Deinde ducatur recta BF. Angulus HBF aequalis erit angulo CDE per definitionem. Ambo enim anguli aequali arcu sunt dimensi, ut dictum est ad definitionem 10. Libri 1mi.

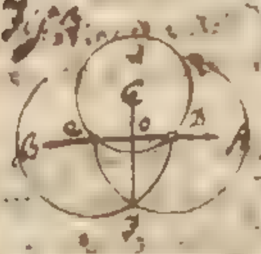
Fig. 2

Problema 2.

Ex dato in recta puncto perpendicularem excitare. Propositio 11. Lib. 1 Eucl.

In linea AB, Fig. 2, datum sit punctum C. Sumantur hinc inde, ope circini, aequales partes CD, CE. Ex punctis D, et E describantur duo arcus sese intersecantes in puncto I. Tum a puncto C per punctum I excitetur recta CI. Haec linea perpendicularis erit per definitionem 21. Lib. 1. Nam punctum I non magis in partes CD inclinat, quam in partes CE: et recta CI facit utrinque angulos ECI, DCI rectos, seu aequales.

Fig. 3



Problema 3tium. Propositio 12. Lib. 1 Eucl.

Ex dato extra rectam puncto perpendicularem ad eandem rectam ducere.

Sit datum punctum C, Fig. 3, a quo describatur arcus DE secans lineam AB in punctis D, et E. Ex illis punctis D, et E fiant duo arcus sese in puncto F intersecantes. Ducatur recta CF secans lineam A D in O. Linea C O erit perpendicularis quaesita. Linea quippe C O non magis ad partem A D inclinatur, quam ad partem O E.

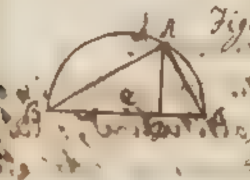
Problema 4.

A dato puncto ducere parallelam lineae datae. Propositio 31. Lib. 1. Eucl.

Sit punctum A Fig.a 4, per quod ducenda sit parallela datae lineae C B. Ducatur quaecumque recta A D secans datam rectam C B in D: ex puncto D describatur arcus A F, et ex puncto A eodem intervallo describatur alter arcus D G, in quo transferatur arcus A F, scilicet ex D in G. Tum ducta recta A G erit parallela quaesita per Theorema 4. Lib. 1. et ipsius scholium. Nam anguli alterni A D F, et D A G sunt aequales, seu aequali arcu dimensi.

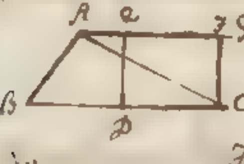


Problema 5. Propositio 13. Lib. 6. Eucl.

Inter datas duas lineas mediam proportionalem invenire.

Sint datae lineae B D, D C, Fig.a 5, quae in directum ponantur, et unam rectam B C efficiant, ex cujus medio puncto E describatur semicirculus B A C. Deinde a puncto D excitetur perpendicularis D A occurrens semicircumferentiae in A. Dicimus rectam D A esse mediam proportionalem inter B D, et D C.

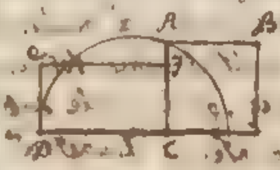
Nam ductis rectis B A, C A fit angulus B A C in semicirculo, proindeque rectus per Corollarium 4. Theorematis 4. Lib. 3. Quare demissa perpendicularis A D in basim B C est media proportionalis inter segmenta, seu datas lineas B D, D C per Corollarium 1. Theorematis 4. Lib. 5.



Problema 6.

Dato triangulo aequale parallelogrammum rectangulum efficere. Propositio 42. Lib. 1. Euclidis.

Sit triangulum A B C datum, Fig. 6, per cujus verticem A ducatur recta A F parallela basi B C. Tum dividatur basis B C in duas aequales partes in puncto D, ex quo excitetur perpendicularis D E usque ad parallelam A F. Sumatur C F aequalis ipsi D E, et ducatur latus C F. Erit rectangulum D F aequale dato triangulo A B C per Theorema 5, et 6 Libri 2di, eorumque corollaria.



Problema 7.

Dato parallelogrammo quadratum constituere. Propositio 14. Lib. 2. Euclidis Sit parallelogrammum C D E F datum, Fig.a 7, inter cujus longitudinem D C, et altitudinem C F, media proportionalis inveniatur C A per Problema 5. Erit quadratum C B hujus mediae proportionalis aequale recto rectangulo C D E F per Theorema 2dum Lib. [illegible] corollarium.

Problema 8.

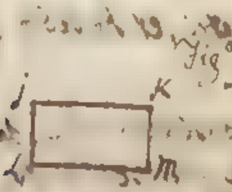
~~Lineam horizontalem, ad quam unde tantum una parte extrema accedere liceat, metiri.~~

~~Sit linea A B, Fig. 8, ad quam accedere liceat tantum in puncto B; et hujusce lineae longi~~tudo inquirenda proponatur.

Aream triangularem metiri.

A vertice figurae ad basim ducatur perpendicularis A D, Fig.a 8. Tum videatur quot sint pedes, vel palmi, vel digiti, vel grani etc. in basi B C, et quot partes sint in perpendiculari A D. Postea multiplicentur partes in perpendiculari inventae per semissem basis: Hisce pactis innotescet area trianguli. Nam totidem quadrati sunt aut pedes, aut palmi etc. quadrati in area triangulari A B C, quot inventae fuerint partes in producto perpendicularis A D per semissem basis B C.

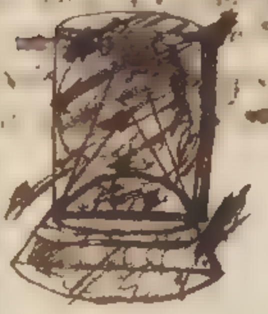
Etenim triangulum est media pars parallelogrammi intra easdem lineas parallelas contenti per Theorema 5. Libri 2di. Sed parallelogrammum habetur ex multiplicatione basis B C per altitudinem A D secundum definitionem 17. Lib. quinti, ergo haec eadem perpendicularis per semissem basis multiplicata refert aream triangularem.



Problema 9.

Parallelogrammum rectangulum metiri.

Metiatur primum latus I L Fig.a 9. tum latus L M. Postea ducatur latus I L in latus L M: et tota area rectanguli innotescet ob rationem in praecedenti problemate assignatam.



Problema 10.

Figuram polygonam metiri.

Primo secetur polygonum in triangula ductis ab unoquoque angulo ad oppositum rectis lineis, vel ductis rectis ad aliquod punctum intra polygonum constitutum secundum Theorema 7. Libri 2. Commensurentur deinde singula triangula per Problema 8: et omnium triangulorum summa figuram polygonam referet.

Problema 11.

Circulum metiri.

Multiplicetur radius circuli per ejus semicircumferentiam. Nam per corollarium Theorematis 6. Libri 3tii circulus aequalis est triangulo rectangulo, cujus unum latus aequale est radio, et aliud circumferentiae: sed triangulum per Theorema 5. Libri 2di aequale est parallelogrammo rectangulo, cujus unum latus esset semicircumferentia, aliud vero radius.

Sed per Problema 9. haberet istius parallelogrammi aream, si duceret unum latus, quod foret equale radio circuli, in alterum latus equale semicircumferentiae. Ergo ut habeatur area circuli, multiplicanda est semicircumferentia per radium. Ut vero nota sit semicircumferentia circuli, quaerenda est illius diameter.

Problema 12.

Metiri parallelepipedum, vel prisma, vel cylindrum, vel pyramidem, vel conum.
Multiplicetur per definitionem 19. Lib. 5. basis parallelepipedi, vel prismatis, vel cylindri per suam altitudinem perpendicularem; basis vero pyramidis, vel coni per trientem altitudinis, quia pyramis est tertia pars prismatis ejusdem basis, et altitudinis, et conus tertia pars cylindri ejusdem quoque basis, et altitudinis.

Problema 13.

Sphaeram metiri.
Primo quaerenda est sphaerae superficies, quae est equalis quatuor maximis ejusdem sphaerae circulis ut demonstravit Archimedes. Quum ergo per Problema 11. habeatur area Circuli ex multiplicatione semicircumferentiae per radium; et consequenter duplum illius ex multiplicatione totius circumferentiae per eundem radium; Hinc sequitur haberi quadruplum illius areae, quod est equale superficiei sphaerae, per multiplicationem ipsius circumferentiae per duplum radium, seu per integram diametrum.
2do. inventa sphaerae superficie, habebitur ejus soliditas, si multiplicetur tota illius superficies per trientem radii. Nam sphaera equalis est cono recto, cujus basis est sphaerae superficies, altitudo vero radius. Sic conus BCA, fig.a 10. equalis est sphaerae ACI, si modo ipsius basis BA sit equalis toti superficiei sphaerae. Concipitur n. in sphaera tanquam quaedam infinitorum conorum multitudo, quorum bases sint in superficie, vertices vero in centro.
Si libet, maximus sphaerae circulus multiplicetur per duplum trientem diametri; et habebitur sphaerae quaesita soliditas.

Haec sunt, quae ad aliquam comparandam Geometriae cognitionem, consideranda, demonstrandaque judicavimus. Quantae sit utilitatis futura, sive recte philosophantibus, in difficilioribus potissimum physicis cognoscetis. Pauca sunt, quae [illegible] tradidimus: Verum ne plura traderemus, in causa fuit, quae premit, temporis angustia. Si quid in perscrutandis naturae phenomenis aut arduum occurret, aut novum, [illegible] ex Geometria petitum; illud secundum proposita hucusque elementa, suo loco et demonstrabitur, et fortasse alacrius. [illegible] de re dialectica agamus.

Philosophiae Pars 2da

Logica

Omnes homines beati esse volunt, atque insita natura in certam et immobilem feruntur voluntatem, quae vera est beatitudo, vehementissime feruntur. Porro certam et invariabilem perfectam voluntatem nihil ex summi boni possessione manare, compertum satis est, sicut enim illud bonum, quod nobis voluptatem affert, quam nullus sequitur dolor: ita quidquid affectat appetibile, certamque voluptatem in nobis creat, Summum est bonum. Omnia ergo ad beatitudinem, natura ipsa impellente, tendimus, in id totis viribus incumbere decemus, ut summum hoc, perfectissimumque bonum assequamur; scilicet ut ea quae dolorem pariunt vitemus, quae autem voluptatem producere possunt, ea summo studio comparemus. Verum qui fieri potest, ut amplectenda, vel vitanda cognoscamus sine sapientia? Est ad comparandam ipsam beatitudinem necessaria est sapientia: Itaque hinc factum est, ut cum desiderio beatitudinis insita natura inesset omnium hominum sapientiae desiderium.

Est autem sapientia, (inquit A. Genuensis in Prolegomenis Artis Logico-criticae Sect.e 3.) rerum divinarum, factarum, et nobilium, earumque causarum, finium, relationum usuum scientia. Scientia vero certa cognitio est ratione comparata. Ratio autem vis incipiendi, cogitandi, ratiocinandi: et recta quidem ratio, quae solidis principiis utitur, et recte, ac necessario ordine ratiocinatur: Corrupta, et falsa, quae aut non solidis principiis utitur, aut ex solidis principiis non recte infert consequentias. Hanc ergo sapientiam comparare sibi necesse est qui vere beati esse cupiunt. Ad hanc autem comparandam, habendae sunt Artes, seu Institutiones aliquae esse neariam. Nam solis nãe viribus relictandi ad sapientiam perveniremus, falsamque plerumque scientiam consequeremur. Ars haec Dialectica, seu Logica nuncupatur.

Q. II.

Hinc Logica haudquaquam ars quaedam est pompae, et victoriae amore, qualis olim fuit apud Graecorum sophistas, et nostri temporis apud Scholasticos; sed ars est, quae rationem nostram dirigit, format, et a morbis sive naturae, sive consuetudinis purgat, ut scientiam rerum aeternarum, factarum, et possibilium, quoad fieri potest, acquirat. Hinc recte cum Authore Artis cogitandi definires Logicam Ars bene utendi ratione in rerum cognitione acquirenda, tam ad sui ipsius, quam aliorum institutionem.

Logicam ab antiquissimis ductam esse temporibus, fatentur eruditi omnes: Illius vero praecepta, circa Olympiade 79, hoc est annis 450 ante epocham Christianam, fuisse a Zenone Eleate in ordinem collecta, testatur Diogenes Laertius in Vita Zenonis, et Sextus Empiricus. Post Zenonem, ut tradit Christianus Thomasius Philosophiae Aulicae Cap. 4 sect. 7, Socrates, ejusque Discipulus Plato Artem hanc summopere illustrarunt. Verum illud certum est, nullam ante Aristotelem fuisse hujusce Artis certam, ordinatamque Methodum. Id primus conatus est summus ille Philosophus; et si Francisco Patricio credimus, 123 Libri Dialectici ab eo conscripti fuere, quorum tamen praecipua pars nostris temporibus desideratur. Non confundenda est tamen Aristotelis Logica cum Logica Scholasticorum, ut non recte monet Genuensis in Prolegomenis Sect. 11. Scholastici aut Aristotelis Libros nunquam legerunt, si paucissimos excipias: aut, cum graece docti non essent, non intellexerunt. aut pro temporis depravatione quasi ignorationem rei secuti sunt.

Stoici, quorum Princeps est Zeno Cittieus Cratetis Cynici auditor, quique usque ad Augusti Imperium summa cum laude floruerunt, Logicae studia maximo cum ardore complexi sunt. Ex hac secta emersit Chrysippus, qui acutus disputationibus claruit Dictatore Julio Caesare, quique 311 Libros de rebus Logicis, teste Laertio, scripsit inter veteres tamen Philosophos, ut animadvertit Georgius Walchius; nullus de re logica meruit magis, quam Epicurus. Nam licet Tullius Lib. 1 de Finib. Cap. 7. eum in hac arte nudum censeat, et inermem; habenda tamen in sacris [illegible] fides, quod Stoicis faverent Tullius Academicus, et Stoicae Philosophiae, cui adversabatur Epicurus.

Quanquam vero plures ex veteribus Philosophis de rebus Logicis egerint, et ad Augustum usque Peripateticorum, Stoicorum, ac Epicureorum Dialectica floruerit; contigit tamen, a primis ecclesiae saeculis, ut sola in honore esset Logica Aristotelis. Nam etsi primi Christiani in Philosophia versati Eclectici fuerint; Aristotelis tamen Dialecticam prae omnibus elegisse, et secutos fuisse, dubitari non potest. Saeculo autem 9. cum Arabes magnam Orientis Africae, et Hispaniae partem occupassent, et secum Aristotelis Libros male ab iis explicatos et suis ineptis interpretationibus depravatos in Europam detulissent; factum est, ut Barbarorum exemplo, saeculo 12, Scholastici omnes Christiani Philosophi Aristoteli, vel potius corruptae, et depravatae Aristotelis doctrinae adhaeserint. Quare et primis contentionem rebus de metaphysicis dederunt, et Logicam Aristotelis obscuratam et intricatam novis acuminibus, et argutiis implicarunt. Nam cum Graecos codices vel non legerent, vel ignoratione Graeci sermonis intelligere non possent, neglectis utilioribus Aristoteleis praeceptis, sophisticen duntaxat coluerunt, et ampliarunt. Est nimis grave atque molestum est in harum rerum enarratione diutius versari. Non sine n. maximo animi dolore excogitare possumus, quantum Scholastici Peripatetici omnibus Disciplinis attulerint detrimentum. Nihil illis debemus, imo barbariem omnem in literis per 4 fere saecula ab iis ortam, et per eos excultam fuisse cum omnibus eruditis viris dolentes fatemur.

Circa finem 15 Saeculi Laurentius Valla Romanus, Rodolphus Agricola Germanus, et paulo post Ludovicus Vives Hispanus, et Marius Nizolius Brixellensis adversus illius aetatis barbariem declamare, et in Logica balbutire ceperant. Sed primus omnium medio saeculo 16 Petrus Ramus Gallus Aristotelis errores notavit, novamque disserendi artem institutionibus Dialecticis proposuit; quae res tamen summum illi Peripateticorum odium conciliavit. Nam homines invidi, qui in Aristotelis verba juraverant, Ramum, quasi ma[illegible], semel et iterum ad Magistratum detulerunt, et tantum negotii illi suscitarunt, ut tametsi Parisiensis Senatus decreto absolutus, et Regiu Professoris munere ornatus, insanum eorum furorem aufugere haudquaquam potuerit; infelix quippe Ramus in Parisiensi seditione, Religionis nomine, revera vero Philosophiae invidia ab Adversariis occisus fuit, qui nec mortuo parcentes, laceratum Philosophi cadaver in Sequanam abjecerunt anno 1572.

Ineunte saeculo 17. Redemptus Baranzanus anno 1590 in Oppido Serravallensi Dioecesis Vercellensis natus, et anno 1609 nostro ordini adscriptus, in Collegio Annecienti Philosophiam ita tractavit, ut Aristotelis jugum excutere, et novorum systematum ea author ceperit. Verum nimis immatura mors tantum Philosophum in Collegio Montis Argii 33 annos natum corripuit anno 1622

Baranzanus, inquit cl. noster Niceronus in Viris Illustrib. Tomo 3tio, Aristotelis jugum cepit aliqua ex parte excutere, et nova systemata perquirere. Quamvis autem parum feliciter in arduo hoc opere se gesserit, judicari tamen potest quid successu temporis facturus fuisset, nisi florente juventute postremum obiisset diem. Trigintа annos natus, atque iis temporibus, quibus ab Aristotele dissentire crimen erat, authorem inventoremque se facere ausus est, et cum summis illius aetatis viris amicitiam, et literarias consuetudines habuit; Quantus ergo futurus fuisset, si diu vivere Deus sivisset. Quanti Baranzanum summi Philosophi facerent, patet ex Epistola Francisci Baconis ad ipsum Baranzanum data. Eam apud Niceronum nostrum legat, qui vult.

Seculi aetatis 17 initio Baranzani nostri summus amicus Franciscus Baco, Baro de Verulanio Vicecomes S. Albani, et Angliae magnus Cancellarius excitavit suis scriptis, editisque Libris ad sapientius philosophandum universos Europae Philosophos. Edidit autem Verulamius Logicam quamdam, quam Novum Organum inscripsit.

Verulamium secuti sunt plures recentiores Philosophi, qui nova methodo de rebus Dialecticis egerunt. Celebriores sunt Petrus Gassendus Gallus Diniensis Ecclesiae Praepositus, Thomas Hobbesius Anglus, Renatus Cartesius Gallus, Author Artis cogitandi Gallus, Nicolaus Malebranchius Presbiter Oratorii Gallicani, Author Artis dirigendae mentis, Eduardus Corsinus Hetruscus, Christianus Wolfius Germanus, Joannes Lockius Anglus, Joannes Clericus, Christianus Thomasius, Petrus Poiretus, Andreas Rudigerius, Petrus Crousatius, Antonius Genuensis, Aloysius-Antonius Vernejus.

Quoniam vero celebriorum hujusmodi Philosophorum exemplo ducti Logicam traditurі sumus, quae, quantum fieri potest, ita mentem nostram formet, ut veritatem duntaxat in posterum acquirat, quosque admisit hactenus errores rejiciat; Considerandum in primis est, quid sibi mens humana velit.

Sunt qui Animam, Animum, et mentem diversas esse res volunt, ut in Psychologia videbimus. Verum, quia de vocabulis in praesentiarum disputare nolumus, Quidquid in nobis cogitat, illud sive Animam, sive Animum, sive mentem appellamus. Quare recte, ut opinor definiretur mens Principium cogitationum nostrarum activum a corpore distinctum, atque diversum. Sed de his fusius suo loco.

Quum nos mentem, qua donati fuimus, contemplamur, eam cogitare solummodo deprehendimus. Plura fortasse alia unitus corpori organico animus operatur, quae tamen nos illius naturae et proprietates obscure tantum intelligentes, omitto fugiunt. Cogitationes autem animi in quatuor a nobis classes dividuntur, scilicet in Perceptiones, Judicia, Discursus, Dispositiones.

Perceptio, sive Apprehensio est mentis operatio, qua nos aliquid simpliciter apprehendimus, sive concipimus, nihil de illo affirmando, vel negando. Sic, quum Solem orientem instar disci per nubes transparentes intuemur, attentionemque nostram in eo defigimus, nihil tamen de eo affirmantes, vel negantes; Solem percipere, seu apprehendere dicimur. Quia vero, dum aliquid a mente nostra concipitur, pulcherrima quaedam illius imago in nobis formatur, ac fere depingitur, quam deinde vocibus exprimere solemus; Hujusmodi sive imago, sive notio, sive Idea a simplici perceptione est distinguenda. Nam quum Triangulum v. g. rectilineum concipimus, de triangulo simplicem apprehensionem habemus: Quum autem in mente nobis repraesentamus figuram tribus lineis rectis comprehensam, Trianguli rectilinei ideam producimus. Nihilominus tamen usus nostris temporibus invaluit, ut Perceptio, notio, idea, apprehensio idem omnino significent.

Judicium est mentis operatio, qua convenientes ideas affirmando conjungimus, vel repugnantes sejungimus negando. Hinc omne judicium duabus saltem constat ideis, idea scilicet rei, cui aliquid tribuitur, vel a qua aliquid removetur, et idea illius, quod eidem rei tribuitur, vel ab ea removetur. Si quis e. g. ait Triangulum habere tres angulos, is trium angulorum ideam jungit cum idea Trianguli, quod sibi repraesentat tanquam figuram planam tribus rectis lineis contentam; adeoque componitur illius judicium ex idea Trianguli, tanquam rei, de qua judicatur, et ex idea trium angulorum, qui eidem inesse intelliguntur.

Discursus, seu Ratiocinatio est operatio mentis, per quam aliquod judicium ex alio, vel pluribus aliis judiciis inferimus. Si quis e. g. postquam judicavit animos hominum esse spirituales, et incorporeos, inferat eosdem animos esse incorruptibiles, discurrere, seu ratiocinari dicetur.

Dispositio, seu Methodus est via brevis, seu ordinata ratio inveniendi veri, ipsiusque, quum inventum fuerit, exponendi. Nam ea de causa methodus instituta est, ut mens nostra varias ideas, plurima judicia, variasque argumentationes ita disponeret, ut earum ope, quibusdam veluti gradibus, ad veritatem ipsam facilius contenderet.

Maxima quæstio est inter Dialecticos: utrum methodus habenda sit quarta quædam a cæteris distincta cogitationis species, an potius methodus ipsa ad Perceptionem, atque Judicium, referri possit. Plurimi existimant eam esse quartam mentis operationem ab aliis operationibus omnino distinctam, dum methodus ipsa neque aliquid percipiat, neque judicet, neque unum ex alio inferat, sed perceptiones solum, judicia, discursus antea formatos, dirigat, ordinet, inter se conferat, eorumque vitia, si quæ fortasse fuerint, detegat. In hac sententia sunt Petrus Crousatius Logicæ Tom. 1 Cap. 1 Authores Artis cogitandi initio sui Libri: Petrus Gassendus Præfatione in Institutionem Logicam, et plures alii. Ita autem ratiocinantur: Judicium a Perceptione, et Discursus a Judicio distinguitur, quamvis in Discursu Judicium, atque in Judicio Perceptio contineatur; ergo Methodus quoque a cæteris mentis operationibus distinguetur, quamvis illa Perceptionem, Judicium, Discursum, supponat, ac quodammodo complectatur.

Christianus tamen Wolfius Logicæ Par. 1: Sect: 1. Cap. 1: Eduardus Corsinus Logicæ Parte 4 Cap. et alii non pauci in contrariam abiere sententiam, quod Methodus ad Judicium, et Perceptionem ipsam commode possit revocari. Nam animus, inquiunt, non tantum simplices rerum imagines intuetur, neque res ipsas solummodo contemplatur; verum etiam experitur, quod ordinem, seriem, nexum, aut repugnantiam, quæ inter ideas ipsas, judicia, atque discursus reperitur, apprehendere, et intueri potest; adeoque mens nostra Methodum adhibere dicitur, ubi varios rerum ordines, earum seriem, et nexum accurate tenendo, id sola Perceptione præstare poterit. Ad 2dam etiam mentis operationem, seu ad Judicium pertinet non solum ideam aliquam cum alia sibi conveniente conjungere, aut ab alia repugnante sejungere, verum etiam Judicium aliud cum alio conveniens conjungere, aut, si contrarium, vel repugnantia illa fuerint, sejungere. Ad Judicium quoque spectat ex pluribus ideis, judiciis, et argumentationibus opportuniores seligere, erroresque omnes, qui in vitiosa judiciorum, et argumentationum unione reperiuntur, ostendere: quæ tamen singula ad Methodum pertinere, atque ab illa præstanda esse dicuntur. Cum itaque Methodus ad Judicium, et Perceptionem revocari possit; non est recensenda Methodus inter diversas, atque distinctas mentis operationes.

Verum, ut in hac quæstione sententiam nostram fateamur ingenue; neque tres, neque quatuor esse operationes mentis putamus. Nam, ut recte philosophantur Viri Cl. Antonius Genuensis Elementorum Artis Logico-Criticæ Lib. 1. Cap. 1. et Aloysius Vernejus De re logica Lib. 2 Cap. 2 omnino certum est humanam mentem percipere, et judicare, nec aliud facere, quam duas hasce operationes elicere, si cognitionum naturam, et differentiam consideramus. Si vero investigamus curiosius varium perceptionum, judiciorumque usum; non tres tantum, aut quatuor, sed plures numerari poterunt mentis operationes. Nam animus noster interdum animadvertit se percipere, sibique hujusce perceptionis est conscius. Et tunc habetur Reflexio, seu, ut vocat Leibnitius, Appercepatio. Quandoque percipit mens ideam alias perceptam, cum reflexione, et sensu eam sibi alias notam fuisse: et tunc Reminiscentia, quæ alia est mentis operatio, habetur. Inter operationes quoque mentis numerari possunt Phantasia, et Ingenium. Phantasia est vis mentis, qua sibi corpora absentia in suis imaginibus repræsentat, et per quam imagines istas corporeas pro lubitu augere potest, minuere, varie associare, aut etiam res incorporeas, corporum instar imaginari. Phantasiam autem, seu imaginationem a simplici perceptione, seu intellectione esse diversam revocari in dubium non potest: simplex quippe intellectio, et perceptio nudis corporeis utitur imaginibus. Hinc quamlibet v.g. lineam in infinitum esse divisibilem clare intelligimus, quum id evidentes demonstrationes suadeant, neque tamen imaginamur. Ingenium dicitur acumen, et perspicacitas mentis in excogitando, et intelligendo. Tandem, ut alia mittam, dubitatio, qua mens se a judicando continet, alia est ejusdem mentis operatio.

Itaque si proprie, ac rigide loqui volumus, duæ tantum sunt mentis operationes, plures vero, si in sensu lato sermonem instituimus. Quare, cum nos in 4 classes dividimus mentis cogitationes, non quatuor esse illius operationes putamus; sed ad quatuor hæc cogitationum genera, methodi facilioris gratia, universam artem logicam reducere volumus in quatuor Libros distinctam.

Logicæ

Liber Primus

De Ideis, Idearumque Signis.

Caput 1.

De Natura, et Generibus idearum.

Idea, si græcam nominis significationem spectamus, imaginem, speciem, vel simulacrum latine significat. Hanc vocem primus usurpavit Plato ad exprimenda omnium rerum exemplaria, quæ Deorum, et hominum intellectibus obversari ajebat. Has rerum formas, inquit Tullius in Oratore, appellat ideas rite, ñ intelligendi solū, sed etiā dicendi gravissimus author, et magister Plato: Et Lib. 1° Academ. Augst: Hanc illi ideā appellabant; jā a Platone ita nominatā: nos recte speciē possumus dicere. Illud ñ certū, atq. exploratū ē, qd omnia externa a nobis ita concipiūtr, ut sensibilis aliqua rei percepte species, sive corporea quędā imago in cerebro nostro efformetr, et veluti accuratissime depingatr. Hanc p corporeā imagines, seu p sensibiles ideas nostrarū productionē perceptionē satis familiari exemplo describit Eduardus Corsinus Logicę Parte 1., Cap. 1. Quemadmodū ñ cū flos ante speculū ponitr, pulcherrima, simillima, et perfectissima floris imago suis distincta coloribus in ipsa speculi superficie depingi videtr; ita cū obm aliqd sensib nostris obversatr, ejusdē obi species, et imago, quęcumq illa fuerit, p sensus ingressa in cerebro imprimitr, nobisq. percipientib perceptū objectū repręsentat. Omnes igitr res externas ope idearū percipimus. Nā res extra nos positas sine quibusdā earū imaginib mens nostra percipere ñ potē, quū neq. mens cū reb ipsis conjungi possit, exeundo de corpore, neq res ipsę intrare queant in mentē.

Quare, quidquid in sua Logica asserat Hobbesius; nāa idearū longe diversa ē a nāa perceptionū: perceptio quippe ē actio mentis contantis, idea vero ē imago quędā rerū ~~perceptarum~~ objectarū in cerebro depicta, cujus adminiculo res ipsas mens percipit. Ne itaq., quę propria sunt idearū, tribuamus cū Hobbesio perceptionib: cū Christiano Wolfio, et Antonio Genuensi distinguendę potius sunt ideę mãales ab ideis intellectualib.

Primo itaq. alię sunt ideę mãales, quę nihil aliud sunt, quā impressiones organorū sensoriorū, et cerebri: Alię ideę intellectuales, quę a perceptionibus ñ distinguuntr. Hę autē ideę sibi invicē respondent, ita ut precedant in corpore ideę mãales, deinde intellectuales ideę sequantr in mente. Ideę quoq. mãales dici possunt ideę objectivę: et ideę intellectuales ideę formales.

2do Idea ratione formę, seu originis alia ē Adventitia, alia Factitia. Ideę Adventitię sunt ea, quę sensuū ministerio nobis adveniunt, seu, quę sensuū externorū ope a mente nostra producuntr. Hujusmodi sunt ideę omnes rerū corporearū. Ideę Factitię sunt, quas mens a se ipsa deducit, quę sensib acquiruntr: ut si mens ideā hoīs cū ideā ensis, clypei, galeę, atq hasta aliqua ex parte conferat, eliciet factitiā ideā militis. Cartesiani sequuti sententiā Platonis, qui teste Tullio ideas omnes in nobis semp ēē, et nunquā gigni existimabat, docuerunt aliud ēē ratione originis genus idearū, quas ipsi innatas, vel congenitas, vel inditas nuncupant. Definiūt autē ab ipsis idea innata, quę menti nostrę statī ab ortu divinitus ē ingenita! Quare et innatas ideas nobis presto ēē contendunt a primo vitę momento ad extremā usq diē: et putant hujusmodi ideas a sola prima causa habere originē, sine corporis nostri organici, aut cujuscumq. alterius 2dę causę subsidio. Intr ideas innatas recensent Cartesiani ideas Entis generatī spectati, primorumq ejus attributorū, Essentię nimirū, existentię, unitatis, veritatis, bonitatis, perfectionis, aliorumq.: Innatas eā ēē volunt ideas substantię spiritualis, et corporeę, Dei, et creaturę, Entis perfecti, et imperfecti, cogitationis, et extensionis. Verū utrū hoc genus Idearū a Platonicis olim, et novissime a Cartesio immerito fuisse excogitatū, in sequenti Capite videbimus.

3tio dividitr Idea ratione obi in Simplicē, et Compositā. Simplex Idea ē illa, in qua nec mente quidē plura distinguere possumus, cujusmodi v.g. sunt ideę unitatis, et veritatis. Composita idea ē, quę plurib constat simplicib ideis: ut idea hoīs, in qua duę sunt distinctę notiones, corporis nimirū, et spiritus.

4to dividitr idea in adequatā, et inadequatā. Prima ē, quę omnes rei partes complectitr. 2da, quę aliquas tantū ejusdē rei partes menti exhibet.

5to Idea vel Universalis ēē potē, vel Particularis, vel Singularis. Universalis dicitr quę plura representat, seu, quę plurib convenire potē: ut idea Trianguli, quę omnib convenit Triangulis. Particularis vocatr, quę unū tantū nobis exhibet omnino vagū, et indeterminatū: ut idea hoīs. Idea autē Singularis ē illa, quę unū numero, certū, determinatumq subjectū menti representat; cujusmodi ē Idea Solis.

6to Ideę alię sunt Absolutę, alię Relativę. Absolutę sunt, quę nullā habent cū aliis relationē: ut Ideę Spiritus, Corporis. Relativę sunt, quę relationes continent: ut Ideę Patris et Filii, Creatoris, et Creaturę. Animadvertendū tñ ē Ideas Relativas cū Ideis Relationū ñ ēē confundendas. Idea ñ v.g. Creatoris ē idea relativa, quia continet relationē, Idea vero creationis ē idea relationis, quia representat relationē.

Caput 2

De origine Idearū.

Mentē humanā ita rerū omniū pręditi ideis, ut ipsa ñ sit idea, aut perceptio rerū, in controversiā revocari ñ potē. Nā si secus se res haberet, omnes semp, atq. eodē modo omnia in telligeremus, nec ea ediscere cogerem, quæ nescimus. Utrum autem hujusmodi ideas ingenitas sibi mens habeat, vel ab externa causa accipiat: et quomodo vel inditas contineat; vel extrinsecus acquirat, maxima quæstio ē tum apud Veteres, cum apud Recentiores Philosophos.

Ex Veterib. Plato, qui animos humanos p sidera sparsos eē putavit, docuit æternas rerum omnium ideas singulis mentib. a Deo impressas fuisse, in quib. ipsæ omnia clarissime intuerent. Verum quum necessitate deinde quadam ad humana corpora animæ descenderint, factum ē, inquit, ut innatæ illæ ideæ contagione corporis pmixtæ fuerint, ita ut nonnisi diuturna meditaone, et sensuum adjumento, ordinem, claritatemq. recuperare, et sui notitiam excitare queant. Hinc illud Platonis Nihil aliud ē discere, nisi recordari.

Cum Aristotele Peripatetici putarunt rerum ideas ab intellectu immediate produci, dependenter tn̄ a phantasmate, seu a corporea quadam ipsarum rerum imagine. Hinc vulgatum illud Axioma: Nihil ē in intellectu, quin prius fuerit in sensu. Quum tn̄ de modo agit, quo mens a phantasmate determinat, nec ipsi Peripatetici int. se conveniunt. Nonnulli n. contendunt mentem determinari immediate a phantasmate: Alii vero ajunt mentem immediate determinari a quadam forma spirituali, quam speciem impressam vocant, ab ipsa mente ad præsentiam phantasmatis in se productam.

A Peripateticorum opinione valde distat sententia Epicureorum. Hi n. n̄ solum a corporib. oriri ideas docuerunt, verum eam, ut tradit Lucretius Lib. 4. de rerum nāa, dixerunt ideas n̄ aliud eē, quam spectra, et simulacra quædam corporea p sensus intrantia.

Ex Recentiorib. Cartesius Meditaone 4. et Principiorum Philosophicorum Parte 1. Platonis sententiam suscitavit, emendavitq. Censuit n. animos, qui corporib. junguntur, a Deo creari, atq. eodem tempore Deum illis imprimere semina quædam idearum, quæ tn̄, nisi a sensuum motib. excitent, pcipi n̄ possunt. Censuit etiam mentes nostras vi producendi rerum ideas eē omnino destitutam; eam autem ideas informari a Deo, occasione motuum, qui ex sensibilium rerum appulsu in sensoriis corporis organis excitant. Cartesium sequuti sunt Author Artis cogitandi, Leibnitius, Purchotius, Malebranchius, Corsinus, cæteriq. quamplures; quamvis in explicandis innatis ideis, quid nimirum p innatas ideas intelligant, int. se parum conveniant. In hac re celebris ē sententia Malebranchii, qui vult mentem nostram Deo essentialit. uniri, et in Deo, aut Dei lumine omnia videre.

Sententiam Epicureorum emendatam restituit Petrus Gassendus. Inquit n. Institutionis Logicæ Parte 1. Canone 2do: omnis, quæ in mente habet, idea ortum ducit a sensib. Idcirco n̄ qui ē cæcus natus, nullam habet ideam coloris, quia sensu visus destituit, cujus interventu eam habet; qui surdus natus nullam soni, quia caret sensu auditus, cujus ope illam acquirat. Adeo proinde ut si ē posset, qui omni privatus sensu viveret, ... is nullius rei ideam haberet. Huc proinde spectat celebre effatum Nihil in intellectu ē, qd prius n̄ fuerit in sensu. Spectat et, qd dicunt intellectum, seu mentem eē tabulam rasam, in qua nihil celatum, depictumve sit. Quippe qui illi eē dicunt ideas a nāa impressas, neq. p sensus acquisitas, ii qd dicunt minime probant.

Post Gassendum Joannes Lokius in suo opere de Intellectu humano ideas omnes vel sensu, vel meditaone produci egregie demonstravit. Hujusce Viri philosophandi rao Recentissimis Philosophis adeo placuit, ut vix alia, hac ptate, nominari possit cum honore. Certe in hac re nulla videt nobis sententia verosimilior. Quoniam vero illud, veluti fundamentum, statuit a Cartesianis, mentem scilicet humanam destitutam eē vi producendi rerum ideas, sit Ppõo 1. Mens humana, ingenita sibi vi, rerum in se producit Ideas.

Ppõo demonstrat. Quum ita in pcipiendo, seu intelligendo humana mens se habeat, ut se quaquam causam aliquam creatam, a qua determinet, agnoscat, nec veluti iners quædam substantia sit; inficiari merito nemo potē congenitam ipsimet inēe vim, qua rerum in se cudat ideas. Nam qui in contrariam abiere sententiam Cartesius potissimum, et P. Malebranchius hac de causa contendunt intellectum nostrum dici debere facultatem humanæ mentis passivam, qd putant eam fuisse ab Authore nāæ sancitam legem corpus int. et mentem, ut ex occasione quorumdam corporis motuum quædam animi pceptiones sequerent, et ab ipso Deo producerent. N̄ modo corpora, inquit Malebranchius Lib. 3 de inquisitione veritatis, Parte 2da Cap. 3, n̄ possunt eē vera causa ullius rei: mentes eām nobilissimæ in eadem versant impotentia. Nihil possunt cognoscere, nisi Deus ipsas illuminet. Falsum autem ē activa virtute eē mentem destitutam, propterea qd n̄ potē res pcipere, nisi prius illius tenebras Deus illuminet. Magna stultitia ē, inquit Tullius, earum rerum Deos facere effectores, causas rerum n̄ quærere. Quidquid n. orit, qualecumq. ē, causam habeat a nāa, necesse ē. Quem n. latet Deum eē, a quo, ut ait S. Augustinus, ē omnis modus, omnis species, omnis ordo, a quo ē mensura, numerus, et pondus; a quo ē quidquid n̄ālis ē. Id omnes norunt, nec tñ extra Deum aliquod ēē verant, et proprias causas efficiant.

Verum, ut clarius pateat, quomodo mens nostra ad producendas rerum ideas determinet a Deo, sine tñ congenita, et activa vi eas producendi destituat, ipsorum Cartesianorum principia consulamus. Fatent ipsi eodem modo ē in mente nostra rerum ideas, quo sunt volitiones rerum, et nolitiones. Nas, ut ipsi tradunt, sicuti volitiones, et nolitiones a solo Deo menti communicant occasione idearum, quæ eidem impressæ a Deo sunt, vel occasione quorumdam motuum, qui ab eodem in corpore fiunt; ita rerum quarumcumque ideæ a solo Deo producunt in mente occasione motuum, qui in organis sensoriis fiunt. Sed volitiones, et nolitiones ita menti nostræ communicant a Deo, ut eas, vi sibi congenita, active simul producat mens nostra, secus n. nulla esset illius libertas. Eodem igit modo, licet occasione motuum corporis rerum ideis mens nostra informet a Deo, eas, vi sibi congenita, mens ipsa producit.

Confirmat propo nostra authoritate S. Augustini Lib 12 sup. Genesim scribentis. Putandum n̄ ē facere aliquid corpus in spiritu, tanquam spiritus corpori facienti, more vice, subdat. Omni n. modo præstantior ē qui facit, ea re, de qua aliquid facit. Nec ullo modo spiritu præstantius ē corpus, imo præcipuo modo spiritus corpore. Quamvis ergo prius videamus aliquod corpus, quod antea n̄ videramus; atque inde incipiat imago ejus ēē in spiritu nostro, qua illud, quum absens fuerit, recordemur, tñ eamdem ejus imaginem n̄ corpus in spiritu, sed ipse spiritus in se ipso facit celeritate mirabili, quæ ineffabiliter longe ē a corporis tarditate, cujus imago, mox ut oculis visum fuerit, in spiritu videntis, nullius puncti temporalis interpōne format.

Opponunt 1. Cartesiani. Nullus ē in nobis intellectus agens. Ergo mens nostra congenita sibi vi n̄ producit rerum ideas. Pro: ant: Mens nostra, dum percipit, n̄ agit, sed patit. Ergo nullus ē in nobis intellectus agens. Pro: ant: mens nostra, dum percipit, ideas suscipit, n̄ fabricat. Ergo mens nostra dum percipit, n̄ agit, sed patit. Pro: ant: Dum mens intelligit, rei idea producit in ipsa mente a Deo occasione mutaonis factæ in sensoriis organis a re sensibili. Sed, hoc posito, mens rei ideas suscipit, n̄ fabricat. Ergo mens nostra, dum percipit, ideas suscipit, n̄ fabricat. Majorem propōnem probare contendunt ipso Cartesii, et Malebranchii principio. Causæ n̄āles n̄ sunt veræ causæ. Nihil sunt, præter causæ occasionales, quæ n̄ agunt, nisi vi, et efficacia voluntatis divinæ. Præterea authoritate D. Augustini serm. 67. de verbis Domini, n. 8 Dic, quia tu tibi lumen n̄ es. Ut multum oculus es, lumen n̄ es. Quid prodest patens, et sanus oculus, si lumen desit. Ergo dic, a te tibi lumen n̄ ēē, et clama quod scriptum ē. Tu illuminabis lucernam meam, Domine: Lumine tuo, Domine, illuminabis tenebras meas. Meæ n. nihil, nisi tenebræ, tu autem lumen fugans tenebras, illuminans me; n̄ a me mihi lumen existens, sed lumen n̄ participans, nisi in te.

R. ne. ante ad prob. ne ante ad prob ne. ant. ad prob. dist. ma: Dum mens intelligit, rei idea producit in ipsa mente a Deo tanquam a prima, et generali causa, occasione mutaonis etc conc. Producit in ipsa mente a Deo, tanquam a proxima, et particulari causa, occasione etc ne. min. Dist min Sed, hoc posito, quod scilicet idea producat a Deo, tanquam a proxima, et particulari causa, mens rei ideas suscipit, n̄ fabricat conc. Sed, hoc posito, quod nimirum idea producat a Deo, tanquam a prima, generali, et remota causa, mens etc ne. min, et sub allata dist.e conseq.m et conseq.e probaonem. Nemo sane mentis dubitavit unquam omnes humanæ mentis operaones Deo, tanquam primæ, et universali causæ, acceptas ēē referendas. In ipso n. vivimus, movemur et sumus, et ipse omnia operat in omnibus. Verum ob generalem hunc Dei influxum censendum haud ita quam ē mentem nostram n̄ ēē donatam idonea, et sufficiente virtute ad operandum. Nam, si, ut docet S. Thomas 1 parte, Quæst. 105, Artic. 5. una actio n̄ procedit a duobus agentibus ejusdem ordinis, sed nihil prohibet, quin una et eadem actio procedat a primo, et 2do agente; licet occasione quorumdam corporis motuum, ideæ rerum a Deo producant in mente, eadem nihilominus mens, veluti 2da et particularis causa eas active potest producere. Profecto, fatentibus ipsis Cartesianis, n̄ solum Deus creatarum mentium tenebras illuminat, dum illis rerum exhibet ideas, verum eam ipsas met sive ad volendum, sive ad nolendum determinat. Mentes, inquit Malebranchius, nihil possunt velle, nisi Deus ipsas versus se moveat. Sed mens, ita, influente Deo, vel bonum vult, vel malum aversat, ut tamquam propria, et vera causa se se determinet vel ad amplectendum bonum, vel ad vitandum malum et nihilominus agat, veluti vera quædam substantia, sed proprie, et libere operet. Ergo eam mens ita, occasione quorumdam motuum corporis, influente, seu illas illuminante Deo, rerum producit ideas, ut n̄ passive tantum se habeat, sed eas, congenita sibi vi, vere, et proprie cudat.

Neq. ē, cur Malebranchius activam hanc virtutem menti neget, quod ut ille sibi induxit in animum, causæ n̄āles n̄ sunt veræ causæ. Fallit enim vir, quum putat extra Deum n̄ ēē nisi causas occasionales. Per sensum n. intimum, seu per conscientiam certi sumus suarum operaonum veram causam ēē mentem, quum n̄ minus per sensum intimum conscii simus nos percipere, judicare, raocinari, quam, quum percipimus, ju-dicamus, aut raocinam, nos agere, hoc ē activam menti nostrę inēe vim, qua se ipsam excitat, atq. ad percipiendum, judicandum, et raocinandum impellit se se, et quodamodo determinat. Declarare ad rem nostram Tullius Lib. 1. Tusc. quæst. Sentit animus se moveri, qd quum sentit, illud una sentit, se vi sua, n̄ aliena moveri.

Qd attinet ad oppositam D. Augustini authoritatem, nihil inde infertur, qd nostram evertat sententiam. Nam, ut prætermittam a S. Doctore ibidem n̄ excludi mentem a raōne veræ, et propriæ causæ, sed tantum ostendi neārium influxum Dei; Vox illa luminis n̄ pro idea a supremo nostr authore in mente nostra producta sumitur, sed pro raōne, qua bonum a malo possumus discernere. Ita S. Thomas in versiculum illum Psalmi 4: Signatum ē sup nos lumen vultus tui Domine. Inquit n. Vultus Dei ē id p qd Deus cognoscitur: sicut hōo cognoscitur p vultum suum, hoc ē veritas Dei. Ab hac veritate Dei refulget similitudo lucis suæ in animab nostris. Et hoc ē quasi lumen, et ē signatum sup nos, quia ē superior in nobis, et ē quasi quoddam signum sup facies nostras, et hoc lumine cognoscere possumus bonum. De hoc ipso lumine loquitur S. Augustinus, quum ait nos nobimetipsis lumen n̄ ēe, et lumen n̄ ēe in nobismetipsis. Nos quippe raōnē n̄ a nobis, sed a Deo habuimus.

Instant 1. Fallim, quum cogitantes, aut judicantes existimamus nos agere. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Ideo putamus nos cogitantes, aut judicantes agere, quia nullam sentimus causam, à qua mens nostra agat. Sed causa hæc, licet a nobis n̄ sentiatur, revera tn̄ extra nos existit. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant. ad prob: conc. mm. ne: mm. Quum cognitiones illæ, quas p conscientiam, seu p intimum sensum habemus sive de mente nostra, sive de ipsius mentis operaōnib, imperfectæ quidem sint, n̄ tn̄ falsæ, ut docent Cartesiani; nunquam fieri potest, ut in errorem inducam, quum p intimum sensum sentimus mentem nostram, dum percipit, judicat, aut raocinatur, se vi sua, n̄ aliena moveri. Nam, quemadmodum n̄ errat mens nostra, quum p conscientiam se vel percipere, vel judicare, vel raocinari cognoscit, ita neq errat, quum, dum percipit, vel appetit, vel aversatur, cognoscit se vi sua impelli ad percipiendum, volendum, aut nolendum. Aut ipsa n̄ fallim, quum p intimum sensum sentimus se propria virtute determinare animum ad operandum, vel decipiuntur Cartesiani, quum ajunt cognitiones, quas mentis nostræ p conscientiam habemus, imperfectas quidem ēe, n̄ tn̄ falsas.

Instant 2do. Ita se habent in mente nostra Ideæ; quemadmodum volitiones, et nolitiones. Sed volitiones, et nolitiones n̄ producuntur a mente. Ergo etc. mm certa ē. prob mm. Si volitiones, et nolitiones producuntur a mente, præsertim quia mens nostra debet libere velle, et nolle, sed potē libere velle, et nolle, licet volitiones, et nolitiones n̄ producantur ab ipsa mente. Ergo etc. mm certa ē. prob mm. Ea lege a Deo producuntur volitiones, et nolitiones in mente, qua producerentur ab ipsa mente, si agendi, et sese determinandi facultate polleret; sed, si mens agendi virtute polleret, libere vellet, et nollet. Ergo potē mens libere velle, et nolle, quamvis volitiones, et nolitiones n̄ producantur ab ipsa mente.

~~Hujusmodi~~

R. conc: mm ne. mm ad prob: conc mm, ne mm ad prob: ne: mm. Hujusmodi Cartesianorum effugium humanam libertatem minime tuetur. Ut n. mens nostra libere velit, aut nolit, n̄ debet se habere veluti iners quædam substantia omni agendi virtute destituta, sed sive ad volendum, sive ad nolendum debet se active determinare. Hæc autem activa virtus, si n̄ ē in mente, si a Deo tantum et ad volitiones, et ad nolitiones impellitur, cāmse exalicato a Cartesianis modo intelligeret. Nam si ad actionis libertatem sufficeret, ut eo modo actio ipsa producatur a Deo in sub.o, quo ab ipso, si libere operari posset, produceretur, omnes corporis motus libere essent appellandi, quum tn̄ certum sit nullam merito libertatem corporibus ēe tribuendam. Neq dicat aliquis Cartesianus, repugnare corporib, ut libere moveant, n̄ repugnare menti, ut libere operet. Nam, ut recte animadvertit Cl. Fortunatus, ita argumentari quis posset. Aut repugnat, ut mens humana determinare se ipsam valeat, aut n̄ repugnat. Si n̄ repugnat quæro, cur humanæ menti hanc vim reipsa Deus n̄ contulerit? Si autem repugnat Ergo mentis, atq. corporum par conditio ē, ideoq. vel eorum motus possunt a corporib libere produci, vel neq appetitiones, et volitiones libere ab humana mente eliciuntur. Hoc fortasse perpendens Maleoranchius, eodem Lib. 6 de Inquisitione veritatis, Parte 2da, Cap. 3tio fateri coactus ē: Int mentes nostras, et corpora, quæ nos ambiunt, multum ē discriminis. Mens nostra vult, agit, se se aliquo sensu determinat, fateor. Hujus veritatis sensu interno, quem de nobismetipsis habemus, sed conscientia convincim. Si nulla nobis esset libertas, nec præmia, nec pœnæ futuræ essent, nam sine libertate nec bonæ, nec malæ sunt actiones.

Opponunt 2do. Si mens humana prædita esset vi producendi ideas, aliquid esset in ipsa mente, qd creaturæ naām excederet, sed nihil in reb creatis admittendum ē, qd earum excedat naām. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Si mens humana et mens humana esset a Deo independens; sed hæc independentia excedit naām rei creatæ. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Vis producendi ideas ē participaō divinæ potentiæ; sed participaō divinæ potentiæ constituit rem creatam a Deo independentem. Ergo etc.

R. ne: mm. ad prob: ne: mm ad prob conc mm, ne: mm. Dat rerum ideæ, ut superius diximus quam rerum volitiones, nolitionesq. congenita sibi vi producuntur a mente, quum non sint nisi quidam ejusdem mentis modificationes. Qui ergo fieri potest, ut vis illa, qua mens producit ideas, participatio sit divinæ potentiæ, quæ mentem ipsam a Deo constituat independentem, facultas vero illa qua eadem mens producit appetitiones, et aversationes suas, hujusmodi independentiam non inducat. Vis cudendi ideas rerum, si Malebranchio credimus, est merum ignorantiæ, et vanitatis humanæ figmentum; vanitatis quoque, et ignorantiæ nostræ figmentum non erit vis illa, qua se mens nostra sive ad volendum, sive ad nolendum determinat. Eo profecto adducta res est, ut vel concedendum sit mentem nostram, dum appetit, vel aversatur, participare potentiam divinam, et constitui a Deo independentem, vel sit asserendum vim, quam nos menti percipienti tribuimus, non esse participationem divinæ potentiæ, quæ independentiam a Deo includat. Ceterum, hujusmodi vis potest esse participatio divinæ potentiæ, quin tamen independentia hæc, quam Cartesiani verentur, inferenda sit. Quemadmodum non cujuscumque creatæ rei essentia participatio est essentiæ divinæ, nec tamen quoad essentiam creatura dicitur a Deo independens; ita vis producendi rerum ideas participatio est divinæ potentiæ, quin propterea mens nostra vel minimam habeat a Deo independentiam.

Urgebunt. Si homines præditi essent virtute formandi ideas, possent entia formare realia, et spiritualia, sed non possunt homines formare entia realia, et spiritualia. Ergo etc. Mi certa est. Nemo non dubitat ideas, quarum proprietates reales sunt, esse entia realia, quumque a corporibus, quæ repræsentant, longe sint diversæ, esse entia spiritualia. Pro: Mr. Si homines possent formare entia realia, et spiritualia, formare possent entia nobiliora, et perfectiora mundo, quem Deus condidit; sed hoc absurdum est. Ergo etc. Pro: mm. Mundus intelligibilis perfectior est mundo materiali. Ergo etc.

R. per instantiam. Si homines præditi essent virtute eliciendi appetitiones, et aversationes suas, possent entia formare realia, et spiritualia; sed non possunt homines formare entia realia, et spiritualia. Ergo præditi non sunt homines virtute suas eliciendi appetitiones, et aversationes. In forma ne. Mi ideæ non rerum, si recte loqui volumus, entia dici non possunt. Nam licet duplex esse ens vulgo asseratur, alterum nempe, quo ens participium dicitur præsentis temporis, et quod præsens sive rei, sive modi existentia significat, quod idem est, ac existens: alterum vero, quod nominis tantum, non participii vim habet, et rem, sive substantiam, quæ aut existit, aut existere potest, denotat; communiter tamen posteriori tantum sensu ab eruditis usurpatur, apud quos ens, res, et substantia eandem prorsus habent significationem. Jamvero, quamvis rerum ideæ, prout existentes sunt, entia realia vulgo dicantur, quum tamen neque res sint, neque substantiæ, sed modi duntaxat, seu affectiones, quæ in mente, tamquam in subjecto inhærent, entia realia proprie non possunt appellari. Hinc haudquaquam pertimescendum nobis est, ne, quum mentem dicimus congenita sibi vi producere rerum ideas, tribuamus nobismetipsis facultatem producendi entia nobiliora, et perfectiora mundo a Deo condito. Si n. ideæ non sunt res, sed modi, non substantia, sed accidens, nullum condimus spiritualem mundum.

Quamquam, concedamus ideas esse revera entia realia, num propterea formare nos possumus entia nobiliora mundo? Certe appetitiones, et aversationes mentis, non secus ac rerum perceptiones, entia sunt realia, reales videlicet mentis aut appetentis, aut aversantis modificationes. Certum etiam est has appetitiones, et aversationes esse spirituales, adeoque a corporeis rebus quas appetit, et aversatur, longe diversas. Verum quis propterea inferat posse mentem humanam producere entia rebus sensibilibus, atque ipso mundo a Deo condito perfectiora, quod prædita sit facultate eliciendi appetitiones, nolitionesque rerum sensibilium? Vel igitur neganda est menti vis producendi volitiones, et nolitiones suas, ne eidem facultas adscribatur formandi entia rebus sensibilibus nobiliora, vel ita ipsa mens res quascumque percipit, ut suas sibimet cudat ideas.

Opponunt tertio. Quamvis idea non sit ens, vel substantia, est tamen aliquid spirituale, sed, si est aliquid spirituale, a mente produci non potest. Ergo etc. Pro: Mr. Hujusmodi productio esset creatio, sed menti humanæ repugnat facultas aliquid creandi. Ergo etc. Probant majorem cum Malebranchio. Licet n., inquiunt, productio idearum aliquid supponat, impressiones scilicet materiales, quas cerebrum accipit ab objectis, creatio vero nihil supponat: difficilius tamen non est rem e nihilo educere, quam ideam producere, supponendo aliquid aliud, ex quo confici nequit. Si igitur mens ideas suas producat ex impressionibus materialibus, quas cerebrum accipit ab objectis, idem semper efficit, ac si eas crearet. aut aliquid æque difficile, immo difficilius efficit; quum ideæ, utpote spirituales, non possint produci ex imaginibus materialibus, quæ sunt in cerebro, quæque nullam cum iis proportionem habent.

R. conc. mm, ne: mm ad prob: ne: mm. Ex ipsa creationis definitione, quam communiter afferunt philosophi, manifestum est productionem idearum, quam asserimus, non esse cum creatione confundendam. Definitur autem creatio productio rei ex nihilo sui, et subjecti. Dicitur productio rei ex nihilo sui quia, ut res aliqua creari dicatur, necesse est, ut nulla essentialis illius pars antea in rerum natura extiterit, ex qua intrinsecus componi possit; dicitur vero productio rei ex nihilo subjecti, quia ut res creetur, nullum esse debet subjectum, a quo res ipsa, ut fiat, atque existat, dependere debeat. Quis autem asserat productionem idearum ita fieri a mente, ut definiri possit productio rei ex nihilo sui, et subjecti? Nonne Ideae, fatentibus omnibus celebrioribus Philosophis, mentis sunt modificationes, quae ita menti inhaerent, ut ab ipsamet mente, tanquam a subjecto dependeant, ut fiant, existantque conserventur? Productio igitur idearum, quum non fiat ex nihilo sui, et subjecti, non est creatio. Caeterum, si Adversariorum argumentum alicujus esset roboris, probaret etiam appetitiones, et nolitiones non posse a mente produci. Nam si productio idearum est creatio; cur productio quoque appetitionum, et nolitionum non erit vera creatio?

Quum autem ait P. Malebranchius, difficilius non esse rem ex nihilo educi, quam produci a mente nostra ideas, quae spirituales sunt, ex imaginibus materialibus, quae sunt in cerebro; illud nobis opponit verum, quod numquam excogitavimus. Nam quum dicimus mentem humanam intrinseca vi, occasione mutationis factae in sensorio organo a re sensibili, ejusdem sensibilis rei producere ideam, non putamus rei sensibilis corpoream imaginem in cerebro impressam ad ipsam ideam pertinere, ita ut idea vel ex phantasmate praeexistente fiat, vel in phantasmate, tamquam in subjecto recipiatur. Uberius loquamur, non asserimus aliquid a corpore in mentem transire, sed affirmamus mentem corpori unitam corporeis illis imaginibus indigere ad producendas rerum ideas; quia licet tali facultate a Deo donata sit, ut eas vi sibi congenita producat, eas tamen in praesentiarum non potest producere, nisi a re, quam percipit, vel potius ab aliquo, quod ipsius rei vices gerat, determinetur. Hinc non est, cur opponatur ex substantia materiali ideam spiritualem non posse formari, sicuti quadratum confici non potest ex spiritu. Nam si ideas rerum producere potest mens, et re ipsa producit, quin earum aliqua ex rebus corporeis, aut ex corporeis imaginibus fiat, jam quod spirituale est ex materiali substantia non conficitur. Neque repugnat mentem nostram dependenter a rebus sensibilibus, sive a corporeis imaginibus producere ideas, quin ipsaemet ideae ex rebus sensibilibus fiant. Nam si mentes a corporibus sejunctae plura sensibilia percipiunt, quin aliquid tamen corporeum in ipsasmet transeat, cur mens unita corpori non poterit dependenter a phantasmate rei sensibilis ideam formare, quin a phantasmate aliquid ipsi accedat sensibile?

Opponunt 4to. Frustra tribuitur menti facultas producendi rerum ideas. Ergo etc. Pro. ant: Ut mens possit producere rei alicujus ideam, debet rem ipsam antea cognoscere. Sed, hoc posito, frustra tribuitur etc. Ergo etc. Min. prob: Ignotae rei nulla formari potest idea. Ergo etc. Ant. probant exemplo Pictoris, qui, quantumvis peritus, repraesentare nequit illud, quod numquam vidit, et cujus nullam habet ideam. Inferunt n.: Vel mens, antequam rerum ideas cudat, res ipsas percipit, vel ignorat? Si ignorat; non itaque potest earum ideas formare. Si percipit, jam ipsa earum illeis est informata. Frustra ergo tribuitur menti hujusmodi facultas.

R. ne. ant. ad prob: ne. Min. ad prob ne ant. Ea n. est natura mentis humanae, ut statim ac res aliqua vel in se, vel in sua imagine satis illi praesens fuerit, ejusdem rei similitudinem, ideam scilicet propria virtute cudere in se possit, quamvis rem, quam percipit, numquam antea perceperit. Nam quemadmodum, dum bonum, vel malum aliquid sese obiicit menti, tanta est ipsa virtutis, ut et in bonum amore feratur, et malum prosequatur odio; ita quum aliqua res ipsi praesens fit, tanta est illius vis, ut confestim ejusdem rei producat ideam. Id, ut melius innotescat, adduci potest allatum superius speculi florem repraesentantis exemplum, vel aliud, quo utitur P. Fortunatus ex igne desumptum. Sicuti ignis, inquit ipse, nullo indiget principio externo impellente vel determinante, ut lignum sibi debite praesens comburat; quia ad lignum sibi assimilandum, posita debita approximatione, ipsa sua natura determinata est; ita mens extrinseco monitore non indiget, ut rei similitudinem, quamprimum res ipsa sibi debite praesens fuerit, in se producat. quia ejusmodi quoque est ipsius mentis natura, ut, posita praesentia obiecti, ei non assimulari, sive illius imaginem, in se ipsa, instar speculi, innata sua vi, nequaquam cudere, minime possit. Hinc latissimum intercedit discrimen inter Pictorem, qui nequit aliquid aliud repraesentare, cujus nullam habet ideam, et mentem humanam vi sibi congenita percipientem. Nam, ut Pictor rei imaginem coloribus exprimat, debet ipsamet rem prius cognoscere, quia tanta virtute donatum non est Pictoris corpus, ut illius manus possint exprimere imaginem, quin ab alio dirigantur; mens vero humana, ut rerum cudat ideas non debet easdem res antea percipere, quia sufficienti praedita est facultate, qua eas ita potest cudere, ut nulla indigeat extrinseca causa, a qua ad earum productionem moveatur. Paucis: Pictoris corpus dirigi debet a mente ut operetur; non dirigi debet ab alia mente mens, ut suas eliciat operationes. Frustra igitur non tribuimus menti congenitam illam vim in suarum productione idearum; quemadmodum Malebranchius, Purchotius, Corsinus caeterique quamplures nobis opponunt.

Corollarium 1.

Ex hactenus dictis inferendum ē primo mentem ita ut sibi congenita producere rerum ideas, ut ad nullam p suam essentiam sit determinata. Quum n. ; ut inquit Tullius Lib. 1. Tusc. Quæst. nām insit mentib nostris insatiabilis quædam cupiditas veri videndi; et omnia, quæ volumus, nota nobis eē possint; nihil ē n., de quo cogitare nequeamus; ita mens cujuscumq. rei notionem potē in se producere, ut n sit p suam essentiam determinata ad certam duntaxat idearum seriem.

Corollarium 2dum.

Quum mens ad nullam producendam ideam sit p suam essentiam determinata, aliqua debet eē res, quæ ipsamet determinet ad unius potius, quam alterius rei cudendam ideam.

Corollarium 3tium.

Inferendum ē 3tio mentem nostram ad hanc, vel illam formandam ideam n aliunde determinari, quam a reb, quæ p ipsas ideas exprimuntur. Nam si, ut tradunt Philosophi, omnis potentia determinatur ab obo. n solum ad generatim operandum, verum etiam ad ita operandum, ut hunc potius, quam alium in specie actum eliciat: Obiectum vero cognoscitivæ potentiæ n aliud ē, quam res, quæ p ideam exprimitur; n nisi a reb ipsis, quarum ideam producit mens, determinari potē ad hanc potius, quam illam ideam formandam.

Corollarium 4tum.

Colligendum ē 4to mentem corpori unitam determinari a phantasmate, scilicet a corporea quadam rerum imagine in cerebro depicta, ut unius potius, quam alterius rei sensibilis ideam producat. Quum n. menti nostræ corpori unitæ nulla earum rerum sensibilium, quæ extra nos sunt, ita præsens sit, ut in se ipsa percipi a mente possit, necesse ē, ut omnes attingantur in phantasmate, qd ex earum appulsu in cerebro efficitur, quodq. ipsius rei, sive obi vices gerit.

Corollarium 5.

Quum mens unita corpori habenda sit vera, et propria suarum actionum causa, ~~idem~~ pro certo habemus, dependenter a phantasmate congenita sibi vi producere rerum ideas. Sed quomodo id præstet, ~~aut~~ quā fieri possit, ut phantasma præsens sit menti, ~~[illegible]~~ quo tandem modo ad præsentiam phantasmatis mālis produci queat idea spiritualis, fatemur ingenue nos ignorare.

Ppōo 1da. Nullius rei idea congenita ē, seu nulla ē in nobis idea innata.

Probatur Ppōo. Ea ē, ut docent Cartesiani, idea innata, quæ nobiscum nata ē, seu quæ menti nostræ statim ab ortu divinitus ē impressa, nobisq. a primo vitæ momento ad extremum, quoties attendit animus, semp præsto ē, et a sola prima causa, sine corporis, aut cujuscumq. alterius causæ 2dæ subsidio suam habet originem; sed nulla ē in nobis hujusmodi idea: Nulla siquidem ē notio, quæ a primo vitæ momento ita impressa sit menti a supremo nām Authore, ut in ea continuo hæreret, et vigeat: Nulla igitur ē in nobis idea innata. Enimvero, ut de nostris ideis, deq earum origine apte, et candide loquamur, neq. Deum, neq. Ens, neq substantiam, neq. prima principia, neq, uno verbo, cæterarum rerum ideas, quas sibi innatas dicunt Cartesiani, nos ita nobis congenitas sentimus, aut aliquando sensimus, ut a primo vitæ nostræ momento de Deo, Ente, et substantia cogitaverimus, aut ita nunc cogitemus, ut sola mentis attentione ad hujusmodi impressas imagines inspiciamus. Experientia compertum ē nullam nos in mente, veluti in charta geographica, insculptam vero notionem aut aliquando invenisse, aut modo ita posse intueri, ut nullum sit nobis necesse causæ 2dæ subsidium. Sentimus omnes ~~[illegible]~~ nostras ideas propria vi, et virtute a mente fuisse productas, et continuo produci. Atq. hoc ē intimum sensum nimium: Quæ omnia, quum minime conveniant innatæ Cartesianorum ideæ, asserendum ē illam commento a Platonicis fuisse inventam, et a Cartesianis excitatam.

Confirmatur. Congenita idea sumpta pro actuali rei notione hujusmodi eē debet, ut continuo hæreret in mente, adeo nempe ut inditis rerum notionis, ne momento quidem temporis, nostra careat mens nec carere possit; secus profecto eadem e., et conditionis cum ideis adventitiis, quæ modo in mente sunt, modo n sunt. Sed nos ita de Deo, Ente, substantia, cæterisq., quorum, secundum Cartesianos, indita nobis sunt ideæ, cogitamus, ut de iis aliquando cogitemus, aliquando n cogitemus. Ergo nullam habemus ideam, quæ ab adventitia, et factitia distincta sit, nullam proinde habemus ideam innatam.

Opponunt 1. Ideæ innatæ ab adventitiis, et factitiis distinguuntur. Ergo sunt in nobis ideæ innatæ. Probant. Inter innatas ideas, et ideas adventitias, atq factitias hoc intercedit discrimen, qd innatæ a solo Deo imprimantur, adventitiæ vero, et factitiæ producantur a mente. Ergo etc.

R. ne. antē ad prob. ne. ant. Etenim, ut patet ex superiori Ppōone, tanta ē, secundum Cartesianos, in-firmitas mentis humanæ, ut n. possit ẽe vera causa ullius rei, et nihil possit cognoscere, nisi Deus ipsam illuminet. Causæ, inquiunt, naturales n. sunt veræ causæ. Nihil sunt, quam causæ occasionales, quæ n. agunt, nisi vi, et efficacia voluntatis divinæ. Hæc autem si vera sunt, n. video qua ratione inter se distinguantur ideæ adventitiæ, et innatæ Cartesianorum. Nam si n. potest mens aliquam producere ideam, quin a Deo illuminetur, seu quin a Deo in ipsa mente producatur idea, tam innatæ, quam adventitiæ ideæ eandem habent originem. Ut igitur fateamur Cartesianis, n. omnem ideam innatam n. distingui ab adventitia, quod utroque modo in mente sint, modo n. sint; verum eam nullum inter eas debet ẽe discrimen, quod quidem prorsus sint conditionis æquæ spectatæ quoad originem. Sed concedamus innatas ideas a solo Deo produci, ideas vero adventitias produci a mente; Adhuc probandum ẽ a Cartesianis hujusmodi ideas inter se distingui. Nam vel Deus innatas ideas, posita aliqua conditione, producit in mente, vel independenter ab omni conditione? Si posita aliqua conditione, nullum ergo ẽ discrimen inter innatas, et adventitias ideas, quum etiam ideæ adventitiæ, ut ajunt Cartesiani, occasione quorumdam motuum corporis, a Deo imprimantur menti. Si independenter a quacumque conditione, cur igitur innatæ hujusmodi ideæ n. semper existunt in mente, ita ut semper cogitemus de rebus, quarum nobis Deus indidit ideas? Vel itaque talis ẽe debet innata idea, ut contra experientiam semper obversetur menti, vel nulla ẽ idea innata.

Opponunt 2do. Genus idearum, quæ sensuum ope producuntur, diversum omnino ẽ a genere idearum quæ nullam habent a sensibus dependentiam. Ergo etc. Pro consequentia. Ideæ adventitiæ sensuum ope habentur, ideæ vero innatæ nullo modo dependent a sensibus. Ergo si genus idearum etc., ideæ innatæ distinguuntur ab adventitiis. Prima pars antecedentis certa ẽ. Probatur 2da. Ideæ innatæ sunt veluti characteres quidam mentibus a Deo impressi. Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. ne. conseq. ad prob. ne. ant. quoad 2dam partem. ad prob. ne. ant. Nullas ẽe in mente nostra ideas, quæ vel mediate, vel immediate n. habeantur per sensus, inferius videbimus. Nunc illud cum Lockio, et Vernejo animadvertimus, nullos scilicet fuisse nobis ab ortu impressos in animis characteres rerum, seu nullas fuisse nobis indita ideas. Nam, ut preclare Lockius in tractatu de intellectu humano cap. 2, n.° 5, si hujusmodi characteres impressi ~~[illegible]~~ sunt menti, explicari, atque intelligi n. potest, quo pacto sine ejusdem mentis perceptione aut initio imprimi a Deo potuerint, aut nunc impressi ẽe possint. Pugnantia quippe, et maxime inter se contraria asserere videntur Cartesiani, quum ajunt characteres, seu ideas in animis imprimi, quas nos haudquaquam percipimus, quum imprimere, si proprie loqui volumus, nihil aliud sit, quam efficere, ut rerum in animo characteres percipiantur. Si parvuli igitur prediti essent animis ita a nativitate signatis, necessario ideæ illæ ipsis innotescerent, atque assensionem ipsorum comprobarent. Et quoniam nequaquam illud fieri animadvertimus, patet ẽ, eas n. in illorum animis ẽe consignatas. Si n. notiones n. ita sunt impressæ, quomodo dici possunt ingenitæ? Et si sunt impressæ, unde ẽ, quod ignorentur? Qui notionem aliquam in animo imprimi fatetur, atque animum eodem tempore illius ẽe inscium affirmat, is inde facit, ac si diceret impressionem istam pro nihilo ẽe habendam. Quorsum itaque divisio illa idearum in innatas, et adventitias? Si ideæ menti imprimi possunt, quæ tamen minime percipiantur, n. video quomodo hujusmodi ideæ ratione originis, recte discerni possint ab iis, quas mens ipsa dependenter a sensibus propria vi assequitur. Accedit, rem nimis mysteriosam pronuntiari a Cartesianis, quum ajunt ideas innatas ẽe veluti characteres mentibus nostris impressos. Nam aliquid ẽe in mente, et nunquam percipi, aliquid ẽe in intellectu, et n. intelligi idem ẽ, ac si diceret aliquid simul ẽe, et n. ẽe in mente. Itaque vel innatæ ideæ n. sunt mentibus nostris a nativitate impressæ, proindeque n. distinguuntur ab adventitiis, vel parvuli hujusmodi idearum deberent sibi ẽe conscii, quod experientiæ repugnat.

Confirmant. Nam licet Cartesii sectatores, ut innatas ideas ab adventitiis distinguerent, asseruerint adventitias ex sensibus provenire, innatas vero ẽe notiones, seu characteres quosdam a Deo animis impressos, numquam tamen id docuisse videtur Cartesius. En quomodo summus ille Philosophus suam in hac re explicat sententiam. Resp.e ad art. 12 Program. Belgici, anni 1647. Nunquam scripsi vel judicavi mentem indigere ideis innatis, quæ sint aliquid diversum ab ejus facultate cogitandi. Sed cum adverterem, quasdam in me ẽe cogitationes, quæ n. ab objectis externis, nec a voluntatis meæ determinatione procedebant, sed a sola facultate cogitandi, quæ in me ẽ, ut ideas, quæ sunt istarum cogitationum formæ, ab aliis adventitiis, aut factitiis distinguerem, illas innatas vocavi. Hactenus Cartesius, ex quibus patet hujusmodi characteres, sive impressiones n. ẽe Cartesii, sed Cartesianorum nugas. Jamvero, ut notat ~~Genuensis Artis Logico-criticæ Lib. 2 Cap. 3. et ante eum~~ Lockius Cap. 2. si vis, et facultas percipiendi ẽ naturalis illa impressio, de qua tantopere digladiantur, omnes ideæ pro ingenitis habendæ erunt. Nemo n. negavit unquam innatam nobis ẽe, atque ab ipso ortu inditam cogitandi facultatem.

Opponunt 3tio. Ea lege impressæ fuerunt in animis rerum ideæ, ut tunc duntaxat innotescerent, cum ventum ē ad usum rationis. Sed parvuli n. habent usum rationis. Ergo etc. Pro. mi. Nisi nostrum rationis ad semetipsum attendit animus; sed ut impressæ ideæ innotescant, necessaria ē animi attentio. Ergo ea lege etc.

R. ne mm. ad prob. ne mm. Nulla evidenti ratione probare possunt Cartesiani eam fuisse a natura sancitam legem, ut insculptæ in animis rerum notiones nonnisi post rationis usum pueris innotescerent. Nam si a nativitate sunt insculptæ, cur necessarium erit ad eas percipiendas aliud adjumentum? Num ad eas intuendas necessaria erit mentis attentio? Sed hoc ipsum probat posse insculptas ideas ante rationis usum ab infantibus dignosci. Nam si ē aliquid in mente, et cognosci, seu attendi a mente res una, et eadem sunt; insculptas ideas necessario consequens mentis attentio, quin usus rationis sit desiderandus. Merito propterea ad hanc rem inquit Lockius dubios, et ancipites sermones, qui nihil ferme denotant, pro certis, et perspicuis rationibus sumi a Cartesianis, qui nullam in examinandis, ponderandisve adhibent operam.

Sed ut oppositi argumenti falsitas magis elucescat, vel dicunt Cartesiani inscriptas menti ideas tunc innotescere, et ab hominibus observari, quum ad rationis usum pervenerint. Vel asserunt rationis usum et exercitium in notionibus istis percipiendis, investigandisque adjumento esse. Si volunt hominem usu, atque adminiculo rationis in istarum idearum notitiam devenire, atque inde demonstrare putant congenitas esse nobis hujusmodi ideas; illud profecto sequitur, omnes nempe ideas, quas investigando ratio assequitur, esse ingenitas. Nulla ergo erit discrepantia inter Mathematicorum Axiomata, Theoremata, Problemata, et innatas ideas Cartesianorum. Quum omnia rationis lumine, et adminiculo patescant, omnia quoque erunt innata. Si vero inquiunt, non rationis adjumento percipi impressas ideas, necessarium esse tamen rationis usum, seu percipi non posse ante rationis usum; quum ratio, ut ipsi Cartesiani docent, sit facultas veritates incognitas ex principiis, sive propositionibus cognitis inferendi, certissimum ē nequaquam dici posse innata illas ideas, ad quarum investigationem ratio requiritur, nisi, ut mox dicebamus, omnes sibi latas notiones, quas de rebus physicis, vel mathematicis rationis ope acquirimus, pro innatis ideis habere velimus. Qui itaque ratione, vel illius exercitio opus esse dicunt, ut mens nostra res a natura insitas, percipere possit, eodem facit, ac si dicerent, res visibiles non sine rationis ope ab oculis percipi posse: et qui rationis nobis adjumento esse volunt ad innatas istas ideas explorandas, non aliud dicunt, quam quod ratio ea nobis nota faciat, quæ antea jam cognita habuimus. Si n. a primo animarum ortu, atque ante rationis usum innatæ ideæ imprimuntur, quarum tamen in summa ignorantia versantur, donec ratio adolescat, re ipsa quoddam dicunt Cartesiani homines et gnaros simul, et ignaros esse innatarum idearum.

Opponunt 4to. Mens humana semper cogitat. Ergo prædita ē debet innatis ideis, quarum ope sit semper in actuali cogitatione. Pro ant. essentia mentis humanæ consistit in actuali cogitatione. Ergo etc. Pro. ant. Mens humana definitur substantia cogitans. Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. ne conseq. Quamvis cum Lockio, Fortunato, et Peripateticis universis negare non possemus essentiam mentis humanæ in actuali cogitatione consistere; quia tamen efficacissimis premimur argumentis concedimus Cartesianis eam esse mentis nostræ naturam, ut semper cogitet. Sed num ope ista necessario erunt ideæ innatæ? minime profecto. Nam vel animæ cogitationes spectantur in vigilantibus, vel in dormientibus. Si in vigilantibus, jam, fatentibus ipsis Cartesianis, non indigebit mens innatis ideis, quum in eo statu uti commode possit sensuum ope ad rerum sensibilium notiones sive vere, et proprie, sive occasionaliter producendas. Si vero spectentur in dormientibus, nulla pariter necessitas ē innatarum hujusmodi idearum. Nam, ut argumentatur Wolfius Psychologiæ Empiricæ Parte 1, sect. 2, Cap. 3: et Psychologiæ Rationalis sect. 1. Cap. 3tio, quum nos somno opprimimur, nullius utique rei præsentis conscii nobis sumus, seu de præsentibus non cogitamus; conscii tamen sumus de rebus absentibus ceteroquin percipimus. Hæc autem absentium rerum perceptio, quæ in dormientibus somnium appellatur, habetur semper ope phantasmatum. Nam sicuti quum sensationes claræ sunt, et claræ ab iis depictæ in cerebro imagines, vigilare dicimur, et cogitare vigilantes adjumento sensuum, atque phantasmatum; ita, dum claræ omnes sensationes cessant, et confusa plerumque phantasmata a confusis sensationibus excitant in cerebro, dormientes somniamus, sive confuse percipimus. A sensatione itaque, atque ex depictis inde in cerebro imaginibus tam vigilantium, quam dormientium ideæ proficiscuntur, cum hoc tantum discrimine, quod in vigilantibus propter vividas sensationes claræ sint, atque distinctæ; in dormientibus vero, quia torpentibus organorum sensoriorum fibris, obscuræ plerumque sint, atque confusæ. Quæ quum ita sint, nulla necessitas nos cogit ad admittendas innatas illas ideas, etiamsi cum Cartesio, Clauberjio, Malebranchio, ceterisque Cartesianis asseramus in dormientibus quoque cogitare animas. Sed de hac re fusius in Psychologia nostra.

Corollarium.

Ex hac Ppōne manifeste consequitur ideam innatam sumi ñ posse pro facultate cogitandi. Si ñ facultas cogitandi eadem esset cum innata idea, quis ñ videt omnes ideas contra sententiam Cartesianorum ēē innatas? Deinde, indicatam nobis ēē facultatem producendi ideas, seu posse nos cogitare, quis dubitavit unquam? Id adeo certum ē, ut etiam qui dubitaret, sine cogitatione dubitare ñ posset. Vivere se, inquit D. Augustinus Lib. 10. de Trinitate, Cap. 10, et meminisse, et intelligere, et velle, et cogitare, et scire, et judicare, quis dubitet? Quandoquidem etiam si dubitat, vivit; si dubitat, unde dubitet, meminit; si dubitat, dubitare se intelligit; si dubitat, certus ēē vult; si dubitat, cogitat; si dubitat, scit se nescire; si dubitat, judicat, ñ se temere consentire oportere.

Ppōo 3tia. Idea Dei ñ ē innata.

Probatur Ppōo. Per superiorem Ppōnem nulla ē in nobis idea innata. Ergo idea Dei ñ ē innata.

Opponunt 1. Idea, quæ a solo Deo mentibus nostris fuit impressa, ē idea innata, sed idea Dei a solo Deo mentibus nostris fuit impressa. Ergo etc. Pro: mi. Idea Dei ē idea Entis summe perfecti; sed idea Entis summe perfecti a solo Deo mentibus nostris fuit impressa. Ergo etc. Pro: mi. Idea Entis summe perfecti ē idea infinita; sed idea infinita a solo Deo etc. Ergo etc. Pro: mi. Ens summe perfectum ē infinitum. Ergo etc. Ant. certum ē. Pro. conseq. Quia corpus ē finitum, idea corporis ē finita. Ergo quia Ens summe perfectum ē infinitum, idea Entis summe perfecti ē infinita.

R. conc: mam. ne. mam. ad prob: conc. mam. ne. mam. ad prob: ne: mam. ad prob: conc: ant: ne: conseqam. ad quam ne. ant. Idea Entis summe perfecti, quam nobis ēē congenitam docent Cartesiani, vel ē idea formalis, actio scilicet ipsa mentis Ens summe perfectum percipientis, vel ē idea objectiva, ipsum scilicet Ens summe perfectum, qd menti nostræ objectum ē, et de quo cogitamus. Neutro autem modo hujusmodi idea censenda ē infinita. Si ñ in primo sensu accipiatur, cum mente nostra, cujus modificatio, seu affectio ē, nequeat ēē perfectior, ñ secus ac ipsa mens, finita dicenda ē, et imperfecta. Si vero in 2do sensu sumatur, prout nempe imago ē rei summe perfectæ, et infinitæ, imperfecta pariter ē, atq finita. Nam quum, docente Cartesio, objectivæ ideæ ñ sint, nisi individuales quædam rerum imagines; quia Ens summe perfectum ē infinitum, asserendum ñ ē ideam Entis summe perfecti ēē infinitam. Quamvis n inter imaginem, et suum archetypum aliqua intercedat similitudo, et propterea imago appelletur, quia suum repræsentat archetypum, ñ ea tn similitudo requiritur, ut proprietates omnes, quæ archetypo conveniunt, in imagine etiam inveniantur. Quis n existimet proprietates Cæsaris, fortitudinem nempe, clementiam, liberalitatem, justitiam in ejus imagine fulgere? Aut quis in imagine Cæsaris easdem deposcat perfectiones, quæ in ipsomet Cæsare deprosciuntur? Si igitur ñ omnia, quæ archetypo conveniunt, tribuenda sunt imagini, idea Entis summe perfecti ñ ē infinita, licet fieri ñ possit, ut aliquod Ens sit perfectissimum, quin sit infinitum.

Ad paritatem desumptam ex idea corporis, ñ ideo corporis idea ē finita, quia corpus, quod per ideam exhibetur, ē finitum, sed quia corpus, ñ ut par ē, adæquate scilicet, et perfecte percipimus, sed inadæquate tantum et imperfecte. Quamquam, etiamsi finita esset idea corporis, quia finitum ē corpus; adhuc tn probandum esset ideam Entis perfectissimi ēē infinitam. Nam si corporis idea finita ē, quia a re finita, ac ipso nempe corpore exhibetur, finita pariter dicenda erit idea Entis summe perfecti. Licet n Ens summe perfectum sit infinitum, quod tn idea Entis summe perfecti ñ nisi ex rebus finitis eruatur, ut inferius videbimus, merito censebitur finita.

Instabunt. Adeo excellens ē idea Entis summe perfecti, ut ñ nisi a Deo possit in mente nostra produci. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Idea Entis summe perfecti ē idea Entis infiniti, sed idea Entis infiniti adeo excellens ē, ut ñ nisi a Deo etc. Ergo etc. mam certa ē pro mi. P ideam Entis infiniti animo comprehendimus infinitum. Ergo etc. Pro ant, quia licet, ut inquit Cartesius, nos, utpote finiti, nequeamus percipere infinitum quoad infinitionem, illud tn infinitum positive percipimus, quamvis ñ adæquate, et perfecte. Quemadmodum n Trianguli ideam habere possumus, licet quæcunq de Triangulo sciri possunt, ñ percipiamus; ita etiamsi totam infiniti immensitatem animo perfecte comprehendam ñ habeamus, habemus tn ideam claram, atq distinctam infiniti, totumq ipsum infinitum, quamvis ñ omnino, neq omni ex parte, mente concipimus: ñ secus ac, cum mare e litore prospicimus, tametsi totius maris amplitudinem ñ videamus, mare tn innuo vere videmus.

R. ne: ant. ad prob: conc mam. ne mam. ad prob. dist. ant: P ideam Entis infiniti imperfecte animo comprehendimus infinitum conc. P ideam etc comprehendimus perfecte infinitum ne ant: et huc allata dist. con: ideam, quam nos habemus Entis summe perfecti, et infiniti, ñ ēē nisi imperfectam, et finitam, ex ipsa Car testi demonstratione liquido constat. Nam si, fatente Cartesio, duo in infinito spectanda sunt, primum res ipsa, quae infinita est, et infinitio, quae est in re infinita: si nos, utpote finito intellectu donati, infinitionem hanc negative tantum percipimus, ipsam vero rem infinitam intelligere quidem possumus positive, sed non adequate, neque perfecte; profecto nulla est in nobis idea entis summe perfecti, quae nuncupari possit infinita. Cum enim negative rem aliquam percipere idem omnino sit, ac scire quid ea res non sit; inadequate vero aliquid intelligere idem prorsus sit, ac finite, et imperfecte intelligere; tam entis infiniti, quam ejus infinitionis idea erit finita. Quare hoc contra Cartesianos institui argumentum potest. Idea entis infiniti vel est infinita, quod rem percipimus infinitam, vel quod ipsius rei infinitae infinitionem intelligimus? Non est infinita quoad rem infinitam, quae, ut docet Cartesius, inadequate, et imperfecte adeoque finite percipitur: non est infinita quoad infinitionem, quum eam negative tantum, secundum ipsum Cartesium, percipientes, intelligamus duntaxat quid infinitio non sit. Idea igitur entis summe perfecti, docente ipsomet Cartesio, nullatenus est infinita.

Ad similitudines ex Triangulo, et Mari desumptas quod attinet, tantum abest, quod ex iis aliquid contra nos inferat, ut nostram apprime confirment sententiam. Triangulus non si a nobis percipitur, non alia de causa percipitur, nisi quia Triangulum, non secus ac sol, homo, arbor, est res finita. Verum quum Trianguli proprietates sint infinitae, tales scilicet, quae a nobis percipi non possunt, quemadmodum in hoc sensu infinitae sunt solis, hominis, et arboris proprietates, idcirco Triangulum finite quidem, et imperfecte intelligimus proprietatum vero Trianguli infinitam ideam habere non possumus. Dei itaque infinitae, eo ipso quod infinita est, non possumus habere infinitam ideam. Sed id clarius evincit exemplum maris a Cartesio propositum. Nam si quis in litore consistens intueatur Oceanum, vulgo quidem dicitur prospicere Oceanum improprie tamen, et parte pro toto usurpata. Qui enim oceanum videt, reipsa non videt Oceanum, sed partem solummodo aliquam oceani, adeo ut inde colligere possit maris illius aut longitudinem, aut latitudinem, aut profunditatem. Quare, sicuti visio particulae maris, et quae ex hac visione producitur idea, comparata ideae maris universi, talis est videtur, qualis est pars ad totum collata, manca scilicet, et imperfecta; ita idea entis summe perfecti cum ipsomet ente summe perfecto comparata imperfecta admodum erit, et finita, utpote quae, fatente Cartesio, non adequate, et perfecte, sed imperfecte tantum et inadequate rem ipsam infinitam repraesentat. Rursus, quemadmodum ideam particulae maris ita quidem animo amplificare possumus, ut ideam tandem aliquam universitati maris aequalem in nobis effingamus, nunquam tamen per hujusmodi ideam maris universitatem, prout revera se habet, percipiamus; ita, quum finiti, ut ajunt, ad infinitum nulla est proportio, possumus quidem animo amplificare finitam entis summe perfecti ideam, sed nunquam per hanc ideam rei infinitae perfectam, et infinitam notitiam attingemus. Idea igitur entis summe perfecti, quam nobis congenitam esse volunt Cartesiani, non secus ac ceterae ideae, imperfecta est, atque finita.

Opponunt 2do. Ita se habet in mente nostra idea Dei, quemadmodum se habet imago artificis operi suo impressa, et ab ipso opere nullatenus distincta; sed, hoc posito, indita nobis est idea Dei. Ergo etc. Probatur Maior. Nos facti sumus ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei; sed, si facti sumus ad imaginem Dei ita se habet in mente nostra idea Dei etc. Ergo etc. Minor certa est; Maior vero patet quia si facti sumus ad similitudinem Dei, haec similitudo ita se habet in nobis, ut sit veluti imago Dei creatoris menti humanae creaturae suae impressa, proindeque innata.

R. ne. Maiorem. ad prob. conc. Minorem, ne. Maiorem. Quum ait Cartesius ideam Dei esse notam supremi Artificis operi suo impressam, et ab opere, ab humana scilicet mente nullatenus distinctam, magnifica quidem proponit, quae tamen probari non ita facile possunt. Quis enim hanc sibi insculptam notam dignoscit? Quis ejus impressae notae formam concipit? Sed, ut haec missa faciamus, si hujusmodi nota ab opere, seu a mente non est diversa, mens igitur nostra, cui haec impressa fuit nota, est ipsa Dei idea, mens nostra est ipsa affectio, seu modus cogitationis, mens denique nostra et ipsa est impressa nota, et impressionis eodem tempore subjectum.

Neque est, quod asserat Cartesius, credibile esse, quod nos facti simus ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei. Nam, ut preclare ait Petrus-Daniel Huetius. Hoc et nos cum Cartesio, docente fide credimus; Geneseos quippe primo legitur. Faciamus hominem ad imaginem, et similitudinem nostram. Sed qui fieri potest, ut naturali ratione credamus factos nos esse ad Dei imaginem, et similitudinem, quum Deum faciamus hominiformem? In quonam haec similitudo potest consistere? An, quum nobis simus [illegible] aeterna [illegible], incorporeae, immensae, perfectissimae, gloriosissimae, et, quod caput est, indivisibilissimae, et incomprehensibilissimae naturae possumus nos similes praesumere? An Deum de facie cognovimus, ut nos cum ipso comparantes asseverare queamus conformes? Ratio ipsa, quam affert Cartesius, probat incredibile esse nos ad Dei similitudinem fuisse creatos. Quum enim neque effectus sit proprie causae similis, neque opus operanti simile dici possit nisi, quem ab eo generatum per communicationem naturae: nos autem divinae non sumus proles, nec magis profecto Deo similes possumus appellari, quam sit scamnum aliquod Fabro lignario, a quo fuit constructum. Haec nobis solam attendentibus naturalem rationem constant. Nam licet, ut docent scripturae, creaverit nos Deus ad imaginem, et similitudinem suam, id tamen non naturaliter a nobis cognoscitur, sed religiosa fide credimus, quod ipsemet fassus est Cartesius. Ait enim se, dum semetipsum intelligit, intelligere rem incompletam, et ab alio dependentem: quae quidem perceptio non similitudinis, sed dissimilitudinis argumentum est, quum naturaliter videatur nullam esse similitudinem inter ea, quae sunt dependentia, et independentissima, incompleta, et completissima.

Praeterquamquod, etiamsi hanc nobis impressam Creatoris similitudinem solo naturae lumine perciperemus, semper tamen immerito colligeret Cartesius innatam esse nobis ideam Dei. Nam mentes humanae factae sunt ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei, non quod spirituales sint, et cogitandi praeditae sint facultate, sed quia signatum est super illas divini vultus lumen; quo ad supremi rerum omnium conditoris cognitionem ducimur, bonum a malo secernimus, atque ad pie, honesteque vivendum adjuvamur. Caeterum, licet animae humanae factae dicerentur ad imaginem Dei, propterea quod intellectuales substantiae sunt, et cogitandi facultate donatae, non sequeretur tamen ideam Dei appellari posse imaginem Dei. Sequeretur enim duntaxat ideam Dei sumptam pro facultate cogitandi de Deo fuisse menti nostrae a Deo insculptam, quemadmodum nota Artificis impressa est operi suo; non autem fuisse nobis inditam ideam Dei pro actuali Dei notione acceptam, de qua nunc disputamus. Praetereo, tot Philosophos, et homines sapientissimos numquam intellexisse hanc sibi a supremo Artifice impressam notam, quod quum aliquando per literas Cartesio objectum fuisset, respondisse legimus, ideam hanc, proinde ut in se, sic in aliis inesse, licet ab iis non agnosceretur. Sed quaeri rursus ab eo poterat, inquit Cl. Huetius, cur viri ingeniosi ab illo admoniti, ideae hujus tam splendidae, suisque animis impressae, inscii essent, et Cartesio tantum concessum fuisset eam noscere, et investigare.

Opponunt 3tio. Constans sententia est scripturarum, sanctorum Patrum, et vetustissimorum Philosophorum, congenitam nobis esse notionem Dei. Ergo etc. Probatur antecedens Et primo quoad sacram scripturam. In Psalmo n. 4, n. 7. legitur. Signatum est super nos lumen vultus tui, Domine Et in Evangelio Joannis Cap. 1 n. 9 Illuminat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum. Quod spectat ad Patres, Eusebius Caesariensis Lib. 2. Praeparationis Evangelicae. Cap. 9 ait: Nos autem.... dicere non dubitamus, naturam, imo vero divinitus, omnibus esse hominibus insitum, non solum utile quid, atque honestum Dei nomine significari, verum etiam omnium rerum Creatorem. D. Gregorius Nissenus Oratione 5. Opinio de numine divino naturaliter quidem insita est omnibus hominibus. Origenes Lib. 1. contra Celsum. Dicendum est, insitum esse hominibus sensum Dei. Atque, ut alios praetermittam, Joannes Damascenus Lib. 1. Fidei Orthodoxae, Cap. 1: Nemo umquam Deum novit, nisi cui se ipse indicavit; non de hominibus tantum loquor, sed de virtutibus etiam aliis mundo sublimioribus, ac de ipsis quoque Cherubin, atque Seraphin. Nec tamen nos in omni prorsus ignoratione sui versari sinit Deus. Nemo enim est mortalium, cui non hoc a Deo naturaliter insitum sit, ut Deum esse compertum habeat. Ex Philosophis, Plato Lib. 1. de Legibus inquit: Quando Deos esse asseris, cognatio quaedam forte divina ad rem tibi conjunctam affirmandam, colendamque ducit. Jamblycus de Mysteriis Egiptiorum Cap. 1: Ante omnem rationis usum inest naturaliter insita Deorum notio. Tullius denique Lib. 1. de natura Deorum haec habet: Quae gens, aut quod genus hominum, quod non habeat sine doctrina anticipationem quamdam Deorum? Et paucis interjectis: Quum non instituto aliquo, aut more, aut lege sit opinio constituta, maneatque ad unum omnium firma consensio, intelligi necesse est esse Deos, quoniam insitas eorum, vel potius innatas cognitiones habemus.

R. ne: ant. Et primo quod attinet ad versiculum illum Psalmi 4, nomine luminis signati super nos haudquaquam venit congenita nobis idea Dei, sed ratio, per quam a Brutis distinguimur, ut diximus in 1. Propositione. Textus desumptus ex Cap. 1. Evangelii Joannis a D. Joanne Chrysostomo, Theophylacto, Eutymio, aliisque Patribus non de congenita nobis Dei notione explicatur, sed de lumine Fidei, et Gratiae: quatenus nempe Verbum divinum per Fidem, et Gratiam universo Mundo oblatam, omnes homines, quantum in se est, illuminat. Et D. Cyrillus Alexandrinus eumdem textum de naturali lumine rationis interpretatur, quum universum humanum genus a Deo donatum sit rationis lumine, quo scire potest quid bonum sit, quid malum, quid amplectendum, quidve declinandum. Authoritates igitur scripturarum a re nostra omnino sunt.

Nec magis favent sententiae Cartesianorum laudatae ss. Patrum, et Philosophorum authoritates. Omnes enim uno excepto Platone, congenitam nobis a natura dixerunt notitiam Dei, non quod mens nostra a primo vitae suae momento notione Dei fuerit ab ipso Deo informata, aut quod hujusmodi notio sine ullo corporis aut alterius creatae causae subsidio in nobis oriatur: sed quia ea est mentis nostrae natura, atque vis, eaque totius Mundi structura, atque praestantia, ut nullam creatam substantiam considerare mens possit, quin inferre vel invita cogatur supremum aliquod esse lumen, a quo haec omnia et condita fuerint, et regantur. Hoc enim creaturae est, ait D. Augustinus, ut per id, quod in eo praecedit, attingat illud, quod cuncta praecessit, idē unus verus optimus Deus, sine quo nulla nāa subsistit, nulla doctrina instructus usus expedit. Verum, ut oppositas authoritates distinctius expendamus, Eusebius Caesariensis Cap. 9. Libri 2di Praeparaonis Evangelicae n̄ divinitus ē nobis insitam docet ideam Dei, imo eorum arguit, qui ex rebus visibilibus invisibilia intelligere noluerunt, sed tantum asserit, semel acquisita idea Dei, omnibus naālit in mentem venire Deum ē summe effectus et Creatorem. Hinc in fine ejusdem Capitis Gentiles objurgat, qd hoīes Parricidas, et Fratricidas divinis honoribus colere non erubescerent. In hoc eod sensu D. Gregorius Nyssenus ait opinionem de numine divino naālit insitam ē omnibus hoīb. nam in sequenti oraōne fusius ostendit Creaturas ducere nos in cognitionem Dei, et divinae cujusdam notionis imaginem animis imprimere. Joannes tandem Damascenus, quum inquit Nemo unquam Deum novit ex n̄ loquitur, ut patet ex iis, quae praemittit, de naāli cognitione Dei seu de cognitione existentiae Dei, sed de supnaāli illa cognitione, quam Deus ipse p Legem, Prophetas, et Angelos suos nobis indicavit. Quum vero subdit: Nemo ē mortalium ex de naāli utiq. Dei notitia loquitur; Verum, ut constat ex iis, quae subsequuntur, hanc naālem Dei notitiam in hoc sensu dicit ē omnibus a Deo inditam, qd a Deo ante oculos omnium positae sint Creaturae, ex quibus dignoscere possumus Dei existentiam. Inquit n. Ipsae res conditae, earumq. conservaō, atq. gubernaō divinae nāe majestatem praedicant. Et Cap. 3 postquam fusius demonstravit naālem Dei cognitionem ex rebus creatis inferri, ita concludit. Jam vero ipsa rerum conditarum compages, et conservaō, atq. gubernaō Deum ē, qui universam hanc rerum molem coagmentavit, eamq. tueatur, atq. conservet, eiq. ppetuo prospiciat, nos docet. Cur autem Damascenus, ut probaret unum revera ē summum Deum, praeclaram illam demonstraōnem ex Creaturis instituisset, si existimasset ideam Dei ē omnibus a Deo congenitam?

Sed quoniam summopere gloriantur Cartesiani de vetustissimorum Philosophorum authoritate, audias inter caeteros Philosophum antiquissimum Trismegistum. Quum p Deum cuncta clarescant, p omnia rursus atq. in omnibus fulget. Deus siquidem totius expers invidiae p singulas Mundi particulas ubiq. splendet, atq. adeo se notum praestat, ut n̄ intelligere modo, sed et manibus eam ipsi, ut ita dixerim, liceat attrectare. Nam undiq. nostris oculis ejus obversatur, seq. objicit, et inculcat imago. Hactenus Trismegistus.

Ppōo 4ta. Nulla sunt animis nostris ingenita speculativa principia.

Pro. Pbōo. Deus, [illegible], ut ajunt [illegible] omnes, nihil frustra creavit; [illegible] ergo ita nos creavisset Deus, atq ita nos constituerit nāa, ut naāles quascumq veritates sensuum et meditaōnis ope [illegible] sequerem, nullas habemus inditas nāae veritates, [illegible] ingenita speculativa principia. ~~[illegible]~~ Sine sic esset perridiculum ē, inquit [illegible], oculus ut bis omnes colorum [illegible] animanti natiua ē insitas, cui usus oculorum, et facultas ab externis objectis illas recipiendi a [illegible] concessa ē; ita n̄ minus absurdum esset, si quis [illegible] careret, veritates quasdam universales a [illegible] nāa ē in omnium animis impressas, quam in nobismetipsis vere mentis educere animadvertimus, ex quibus veritas haud difficilius elici potē, quam si species ejus primigenia signata in animo esset.

Opponunt 1. Principium illud Quidquid ē, necessario ē. et Illud Impossibile ē idem simul ē, et n̄ ē, [illegible] principia speculativa; sed hec principia sunt animis nostris ingenita Ergo etc. Pro: Mi: Hec principia sunt omnium consensione approbata; sed, si universalit sunt comprobata, sunt universalit ingenita Ergo etc. [illegible]

Philosophorum

R. conc. Mm neg. Mm. ad prob. neg. Mm. Quamquam constans omnium ferme opinio ē superioris [illegible] speculativa principia ab omnibus cognosci, atq. approbari; Audacter tn̄ dicimus, tantum abē, ut universorum suffragio comprobentur, ut magna pars hominum [illegible] innotue e. [illegible] omnium [illegible], seu [illegible] nulla illorum cognitione, aut cogitatione [illegible] evincit [illegible] conventionem. [illegible] Cartesiani [illegible] tantum cognosci, atq. approbari, [illegible] ratione utuntur; Cur ergo a primo ortu [illegible] ante rōnis usum [illegible] Sunt quomodo ea dici possunt ingenita, [illegible] Certe [illegible], prorsus [illegible] quomodo [illegible] mentis [illegible] menti, [illegible] nulla [illegible] dici potē [illegible] menti, [illegible] ante usum rationis [illegible] mens [illegible] suam cognitionem [illegible] Nam si [illegible] esset innatum, [illegible] tn̄ nulla acquirit notitia ante usum rōnis, tunc pari [illegible] ppōnes omnes, de quarum veritate constat, et [illegible] nemo aliquando assentiri potē, insita, et a primo ortu impresse dici possent. Itaq., si parvuli [illegible] ingenita haberent speculativa illa principia, statim ab ortu deberent illa cognoscere, et comprobare; qd ē contra experientiam.

[illegible]

Opponunt 2do. Principia speculativa, eatenus n̄ cognoscantur ante rōnis usum sunt tn̄ innata [illegible]. Pro ant: Hoc interē inter principia innata, et adventitia, qd innata statim [illegible] rōnis usum cognoscantur, adventitia vero non, nisi post [illegible] mentis ratiocinaōnem, [illegible] cipia: Quidquid est, necessario est: et: Impossibile est idem simul esse, et non esse: cognoscuntur ab omnibus statim post acquisitum rationis usum. Ergo etc.

R. nego antecedens; ad probationem: transmisso majori, nego minorem. Falsum est parvulos, statim ac rationis usu praediti sunt, eorum principiorum notitiam consequi, atque iis assentiri. Plurima exempla confirmant puerulos ratione multo prius uti, quam ullam hujusce axiomatis Impossibile est etc. cognitionem invadant. Nam certo sciunt se a nutrice non esse caros, quocum ludunt, neque quem formidant [illegible], semen [illegible], quod discernant, non esse [illegible], aut [illegible], quibus [illegible] sunt. Quis vero aliquos pueros vel hujusce propositionis Impossibile est etc. sibi conscios, et ejus veritatem [illegible] affirmare conabitur, cum merito Lockius Cap. 2 n. 2[illegible], puerulos generales istas notiones abstractas habere eo tempore, quo incipiunt sapere, et crepundia sua dignoscere, ut eo vere fortasse dici potest, [illegible] sentiq sue [illegible], majorique contentione dogmata sua arripere quam infantes, incertitate tamen eos non aequare. Accedit, magnam partem rudium, atque agrestium hominum plures aetatis suae annos transigere, antequam istas, vel alias generales propositiones dignoscant. Non inficiar itaque necessarium esse usum rationis ut homines universalium harum veritatum cognitionem assequi possint, sed negamus eas cognosci, quamprimum ad rationis usum pervenerint. Transmittimus autem minorem, quia etiamsi homines tunc primum haec principia cognoscerent, quum uti ratione incipiunt, non tamen sequeretur innata esse eadem principia. Si non ideo patres, matres, nutrices haberent a pueris, [illegible] quarum idearum sunt concii, nec tamen hujusmodi ideae inditae sunt secundum Cartesianos; cur innata principia erunt adducta principia, quod statim post acquisitum rationis usum innotescant?

Opponunt 3tio. Nullus est tam rudis, tamque imbecillis ingenii, qui non assentiat universalibus hujusmodi propositionibus. Ergo propositiones hujusmodi sunt innatae. Probo antecedens: quicumque, qui ad rationis usum pervenit, intelligens earum vocabulum, de earum veritate ita certus est, ut nullam unquam habeat [illegible] rationem. Ergo etc.

R. nego antecedens; ad probationem: concesso antecedente, nego consequentiam. Hoc Cartesianorum argumentum, ut patet ex iis, quae diximus in responsione ad primam objectionem, nimis infirmum est. Ut probent principia haec speculativa ab omnibus cognosci, et universali consensione eorum veritatem comprobari, probare [illegible] deberent ea ab omnibus ante rationis usum universaliter intelligi; id certe nunquam sunt probaturi. Quomodo enim ea dici possunt ab omnibus admitti, quae non constat ab omnibus percipi? Sed demus licere ad universalem consensionem sufficere, quod communiter assentiatur genus humanum, quum verum est ad usum rationis: non tamen ex hoc universali assensu inferri potest innata esse audita, et statim admissa principia. Nam si generalis hic consensus esset inserti principii nota, quum non videt omnes istas propositiones esse innatas, quibus, quam primum audiuntur, assensus vulgo praebetur? Eadem ergo ratione in numero innatorum axiomatum ponenda erunt varia propositiones ad numeros spectantes, unum et duo esse aequalia tribus, duo et duo esse aequalia quatuor, quum vix auditis omnes assentiant: eadem certe ratione innumerae propositiones ad Physicam, et Mathesim pertinentes, pro innatis erunt habendae. Patet enim corpora non posse esse simul in eodem loco, et quadratum non esse circulum, et album non esse nigrum, et sexcentae aliae propositiones tamque claritate, atque evidentia sunt, ut nemo sanae mentis, auditis atque intellectis nominibus, de earum veritate dubitaverit.

Quod si asserant propositiones istas: Unum et duo sunt aequalia quatuor; Album non est nigrum aliaque ejusmodi non esse propositiones, cum axiomata generalia summatimodum ista. Quidquid est necessario est. Et Impossibile est idem simul esse et non esse; quod generalitate hujusmodi fuerunt, nam universali assensu, aliam propositionem audito [illegible] termini, certissimum indicium est innatae [illegible], quam omnis propositio, quae audita statim, et intellecta omnium assensionem comprobat, in numero innatorum principiorum recensenda erit, aeque ac duo ista generalia Cartesianorum axiomata.

Sed ut haec propositione fine imponamus, hoc argumento rem universam conficimus. Ideae, ex quibus hujusmodi principia constant, non sunt innatae. Ergo neque ipsa principia sunt innata.

Corollarium

Si duo ista axiomata non sunt ingenita, nullum erit generalium principium, quod [illegible] aliud [illegible]. Totum itaque esse majus sua parte. Principium item Cartesianorum Ego cogito ergo sum eodem erunt conditionis cum superius examinatis principiis.

Propositio 5. Nullum est insitum nobis naturaliter practicum principium.

Probatur Primo. Ea sunt innata principia secundum Cartesianos, quae ab universis gentibus communi consentione recipiuntur, quaeque, quum proposita, et explicata sunt, promptum ab omnibus hominibus obtinent assensum; sed nulla sunt practica hujusmodi principia. Ergo nulla sunt insita nobis practica, seu moralia principia. Hujusce argumenti certitudo, atque evidentia ex solutione objectionum patebit.

Opponunt 1. Omnes gentes, licet immanes, atque barbarae, consentiunt servandas esse fides, et custodiendas leges. Ergo morale hoc, et practicum principium servetur fides, atque justitia: naturaliter omnibus est insitum. Probo antecedens. Omnino de servanda fide, atque justitia in [illegible] latronum, et in perditissimorum hominum greges recepta ē. Ergo etc. Pro ant: Ipsi latrones, atq. [illegible] servant int. se justitiæ et pactorum fidē. Ergo etc.

R. neg. ant. ad prob. neg. ant. ad prob. concedo ant. neg. conseqm. Quamvis [illegible], et scelerati hoīes suas habe ant leges, quibus religiose parent: n. tn. sequitur hujusmodi leges eē in eorum animis a natura insculptas. Nam si [illegible] leges ab ipsis [illegible], servant duntaxat tanquam [illegible], quibus [illegible] eorum societa, rerum et vitæ communitas conservet. Incredibile ē, [illegible], tanquam practicum principium complecti, qui [illegible] tempore, [illegible] agit, quod [illegible] participes, et [illegible] innocuum, [illegible] occiat habet, vita, aut bonis certe omnibus spoliat. Justitia, et veritas communia sunt humanæ societatis [illegible]. [illegible], qui a terorum hoīum communione [illegible], [illegible] int. se colant neces se ē, ne [illegible] societas [illegible] dir[illegible]. Nūm quis vero dicet, eos, qui latrocinas, [illegible], qui male-ficus vivunt, [illegible] insculpta habere [illegible] veritatis, et [illegible] quas [illegible] requirere?

Instabunt. Licet hoīes insuū cum ceteris, quorum consuetudine utunt, [illegible], [illegible], habent tn. innata fidei, atq. [illegible] principia. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Hoīes ipsi vident meliora, tacitoq. [illegible] allensu comprobant, deteriora vero sequunt. Ergo etc. [illegible]

R. neg. ant. ad prob. dist. ant. Hoīes ipsi vident meliora [illegible], [illegible] a parentis, vel magistris hauserunt, aut ope assiduæ meditaōnis conc. vident meliora, qd. iis insculpta sunt moralia principia neg. ant. et conseqm. Hoīes ipsos videre meliora, seu ea cognoscere, quæ virtuti [illegible] [illegible], n. inficiam, quamvis nullam eē in eorum animis [illegible] virtutis legem [illegible]. Maximum [illegible] discrimen int. legem naturæ insitam, et [illegible] leges. Legem naturæ insitam intelligimus moralia [illegible] principia, quæ omnibus hoīnibus ab ipso ortu [illegible], et universali consensione approba ta, legem vero natæ intelligimus cognitionem moralium quarumdam [illegible], quam vis raōnis meditaōne, et [illegible] acquirere facile [illegible]. [illegible], qui [illegible] hoīes immania scelera patrant, [illegible] n. eē natranda optime et ipsi cognoscunt, consequens [illegible] eē in ipsis aliquam cognitionem legum nat., quam [illegible] sibimetipsis comparaverunt, n. autem signatas a nativitate habere in animis nat. leges. Fatemur equidem eē nobis a natura insitam cupiditatem [illegible], et aversaōnem miseriæ. Hujusmodi cupiditas, atq. aversaō in nobis observari nunquam desinunt, nosq. ad consequendum bonum, [illegible] malum continuo impellunt. Hæc [illegible] possent practica principia nobis ingenita, quoniam iis universaliter [illegible] ē genus humanum. Sed longe differunt hæc principia a practicis ingenitisq. principiis [illegible]. [illegible] cupidita[illegible], et aversio [illegible] n. sunt nisi ingenitæ voluntatis propensiones ad bonum, practica [illegible] signatæ quædam sunt in intellectu veritatis impressiones. Hinc ex hujusmodi nobis [illegible] propensiones nihil inferri potest, qd. [illegible] faciat [illegible] in animo characteres virtutum, atq. vitiorum, imo contrarium potius colligit. Si n. aliqui essent characteres a natura in intellectu [illegible] tanquam communis principia, operaōnes [illegible] intellectum sentiremus, sicuti continuo sentimus ingenitas propensiones in voluntate et appetitu operantes, quæ merito propterea appellant principia omnium nostrarum actionum.

Verum illud evidentius ostendit nulla eē nobis indita practica principia, qd. nulla fortasse sit moralis regula, cujus n. [illegible] raōnem exigere posset. Nam [illegible] morales regulæ ingenitæ [illegible] adeoq. [illegible] manifestæ, absurdum videt. ad earum veritatem firmandam argumentorum, et raōnis adminiculo opus eē. Ne profecto omnino raōnis expers judicandus esset, qui [illegible], cur impossibile [illegible] simul esse et n. eē; [illegible] hoc axioma [illegible] clarum, manifestumq. sit, nec alia [illegible] indigeat, qua [illegible]. [illegible], et immutabilis moralis [illegible] regula: Qd. tibi fieri n. vis, alteri ne feceris, [illegible] proponeret, [illegible] [illegible], qui [illegible] raōnem peteret, [illegible] proponentis esset, ut [illegible] veritatem raōnibus confirmaret. Hoc maximum argumentum ē, regulam hanc n. eē nobis ingenitam; si n. esset, raōnum momentis nec in lucem [illegible], nec clarior redderi posset, sed statim audita, veluti [illegible] veritas ab omnibus reciperent. Ita fidem servandam moralis [illegible] regula ē, de qua omnes conveniunt. Si tn. [illegible], cui vel [illegible] [illegible], vel æterni cruciatus ob oculos versantur, interroget, cur promissa servanda sint, raōnem [illegible], quoniam nimirum Deus, a quo mors, et vita dependent, hoc a nobis postulat. Si vero Hobbesii discipulus [illegible] [illegible] veritatis raōnem exponat, respondebit, quia [illegible] [illegible] societatem [illegible], sine [illegible] levare [illegible]. Si aliquis [illegible] [illegible] interrogaret, respondebit, quia secus [illegible] inhoneste agent [illegible] [illegible] n. servaret, quia contra virtutem peccaret, quæ summa perfectio ē humanæ naturæ. Veritas ergo regularum moralium demonstraōne indiget, et [illegible] veritatis pendet, [illegible] [illegible] haberet, [illegible] essent innatæ, esset manifesta.

Opponunt 2do. Quilibet [illegible] de veritate [illegible] principii: Qd. tibi fieri n. vis, alteri ne feceris, ab omnibus inditum ē practicum hoc principium. Probatur. Illi qui contra hoc principium operant, de [illegible] sentiunt. Pro. ant. Qui contra hoc principium operant, conscientiæ stimulis et angoribus divexant. Ergo etc.

R. neg. ant. ad prob. neg. ant. ~~ad [illegible]~~ ad prob. dist. ant. Stimuli, qui contra hoc principium operanti conscientiæ stimuli et [illegible]: Omnes, qui contra hoc principium operant, conscientiæ stimulis [illegible], et conseqm. Facile illæ conscientiæ reprehensiones, quas ~~[illegible]~~ hoīes sentiunt, quum contra hoc et alia mo

rali

ralia principia operant, non sunt ingenitorum principiorum argumentum. Imprimis enim educatio, consuetudo, vel mores patrii sunt alot aliquorum moralium principiorum opinione imbuerunt; hic autem semel acquisita et confirmata opinio stimulos admovet conscientiae, quae nihil aliud est, quam nostra opinio de morali rectitudine, vel pravitate nostrarum actionum. Deinde falsum est universum humanum genus consentire; permultas nationes quae contra moralia principia operant. Non video enim, quo pacto homines plura flagitia libenter animo, et tranquilla fronte patrare queant, et de patratis sceleribus gaudere, si conscientiae angores sentiant, atque internis objurgationibus divexant.

Sed convertamus nos ad historiam generis humani, et quamplurima scelerum exempla videbimus, quae sine ullo angore conscientiae perpetrant. Ponite primum ante oculos tot urbium crudeles direptiones. Quomodo in iis se gerunt milites, quis sensus quae cor tam principiorum moralium, quis timor ex conscientia immanium facinorum incendia, rapinae, stupra, caedes, ludi, et oblectamenta sunt hominum ab omni lege et sub licet metu solutorum. Sed, ac Annon universae extiterunt nationes, quae haud quaquam immanitate barbarae, sed morum mansuetudine, et societatis sanctioris vitae excultae, in quibus tamen usitatum, et quotidianum erat, infantes vix natos in agris exponere enecandos fame aut feris bestiis devorandos? annon etiam nostris temporibus, apud quasdam gentes, infantes in eodem sepulchro cum matribus condunt, quum puerperio supremam vitae diem obierit aut patres eos interficiunt, si quis astrorum interpres infelici eos fato natos esse praedixerit? Annon loca sunt, in quibus liberi, non reclamante conscientia parentes ad certam aetatem provectos interficiunt, aut omnino per illos exponunt? In quadam Americae parte aegrotantes, quamprimum de illorum salute desperari certum est, adhuc vivi, in cratibus in fossa terrae excavatam abjiciunt, ut coeli, et tempestatum injuria expositi pereant, nemine illorum misericordia capto aut auxilium ferente. Testatur apud Theveuotium Gruberus Mingrelios Christianam religionem profitentes in usu habere liberos suos vivos humare: Apud eundem Thevenotum sunt Caraibes quidam gentes liberos suos vendere: Et Jossius de Indi. origine cap. 18, et 19, tradit apud Charibes in more positum liberos suos castrare, ut saginatos postea delicatius comederent. Garcilasso de la Vega de populo Peruviano commemorat, apud eos fuisse consuetudinem, ut liberos a captivis foeminis susceptis, usque ad decimumtertium annum nutrire; vescerent, dicto eos concubinas in id aluisse, quae eam, si steriles deprehenderent, inde ac si esca lenta essent animalia, jugulare, atque edere solebant. Toupinambi non alias ob virtutes se paradiso digno censebant, quam quod perniciosum esset, injurias omnes graviter ulcisci, et multorum quorum hostium carnem corpora sua reciere, et hanc certissimam esse prohibebant ad beatitudinem perveniendi viam. In Turcarum gente qui in sanctorum numerum referant iis sceleribus semetipsos inquinare solent, quae dicere pudor vetat. Sed quorsum ad hanc rem plura conferimus? Galli, Britanni, Batavi, qui aetate nostra remotissimos populos, eorumque vivendi rationem accurate indagarunt, tam horrenda et moralibus nostris principiis contraria facinora communi apud eos consuetudine firmata, descripserunt, ut vix haberi possent illorum scriptis fides, nisi universali probarent summorum virorum authoritate. Ubinam ergo sunt innata ista principia justitiae, pietatis, gratitudinis, aequitatis, castitatis? Ubinam universalis consensus de veritate hujusmodi principiorum? Ubi denique universales isti conscientiae angores, quum praecepta haec non servant?

Instabunt. Non sequitur regulam non esse cognitam, quoniam contra eam peccatur. Ergo non sequitur morales regulas non esse innatas, quoniam contra eas peccatur. Patet satis quotidiana experientia Christianorum, qui vere vivendi regulas cognoscunt, quas tamen frequenter transgrediuntur. Consequentia patet non constat. Sicut non recta Christianorum non probant ipsos ignorare quas sciunt regulas, neque remotarum gentium flagitia evincunt non esse illis naturales innatas probe vivendi regulas.

R. d. ant: Non sequitur regulam non esse cognitam eo quod contra eam peccantes non negent se illam cognoscere conc. si negent se eam cognoscere ne ant. d. n. paris consequens ergo non sequitur morales regulas non esse innatas, si contra eas peccantes non negent pravam vim et certitudinem conc. si in nobis regularum certitudinem, et vim negent, ne consequentia. Legis transgressio non probat eam non esse, transgressio cognitam, nam homines, licet contra legem operent, ejus tamen vim haudquaquam negant, atque qui infamiae, censura, et supplicii metus saltem dicat inesse ipsis aliquam legis reverentiam. Sed qui fieri potest, ut tot gentes, atque integrae nationes eadem publice rejiciant, et aspernentur, ac singuli illorum vim legis habere certo, et infallibiliter sciunt? Fieri quidem potest, ut homines morales aliquando regulas verbis profiteantur, quas tamen non esse veras in animo credunt, ut famam, et existimationem suam apud eos tueantur, qui de illarum veritate persuasi esse noscunt. Fieri autem non potest, ut integrae nationes publice, et unanimi sententia eas contemnant regulas, quas legis habere vim non possunt in animis suis ignorare. Quodcumque practicum principium quam bonum, utcumque ideo servandum concipitur. Quomodo ergo, si aliqua practica principia omnibus hominibus naturaliter sunt insita, si veluti bona per omnes cognoscuntur, quomodo igitur concipi potest ab integris nationibus ea injuriae, publice, et tranquilla fronte conculcari? Si enim etiam nos concedimus regulae violationem non probare illam esse incognitam, sed illud certo probare, et certo habemus, universalem conventionem, qua aliquibus in locis violatur, evidenter probare, non esse ingenitam.

Opponent 3tio. Duo hæc principia . Existit aliquod supremum numen . Supremum numen è colendum : sunt omnibus innata . Ergo etc. Pro. ant: homines universi aliquas divinitates cognoverunt, atque coluerunt, ne exceptis quidem gentibus immanitate barbaris. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant. ad prob. neg. ant. Si aliquibus exemplis habemus fidem, et si historias generis humani consulimus, valet ut omnes homines, universasque nationes et non cognovisse, et nunc cognoscere, supremum aliquod numen existere, ipsumque esse adorandum. Ex multis, quæ proferre possemus exemplis, duo tantum dabimus. Anno 1694 in nemoribus ad Lithuaniæ, et Russiæ confinia sitis, inter greges ursorum captus fuit, decem circiter annos natus, aspectu ferino, manibus, pedibusque incedens, loquelæ expers, et nullius rationis faciens indicium. Baptizatus illico, et humano vivendi ritui adsuetus, post longum tempus verba quædam pauca protulit inhumana capit proferre, et ea, quæ dicebant intelligere. Interrogatus de vita silvestri, ejus non magis recordabatur, quam nos eorum, quæ infantes contavimus. Describit factum Bernardus Connor, qui aliud simile addit exemplum, ex de Joanne Petri van Derbra[illegible] [illegible] Batavi in Britannia qui anno 1669 [illegible] saviæ vidit hominem silvestrem inter ursos captum. Nam frequens est in Lithuania, ut pueri in agro ab incautis parentibus relicti ab ursis famelicis devorentur. Quod si ursa sit lactans, aliquando eos ad greges ducit, et ferarum more educat. Hoc autem exemplum luculenter probat non habere homines innatas hujusmodi principiorum notitias. Nam cur ea ignorasset silvestris ille adolescens decem annos natus, si scripta a nativitate habuisset illa in animo?

Ut legitur in historia Regiæ Academiæ Parisiensis ad annum 1703 juvenis natus surdus, et mutus a parentibus Catholicis Christiano ritu educatus, adeo ut more nostro se muniret signo crucis, et aqua lustrali frontem aspergeret, et in genua procumbens precantis more, diu esset. Casu campanæ sonitu in aures illapso, auditum recuperavit. Post 4. menses, [illegible] ea [illegible] edere didicisset, accurate a Theologis interrogatus, nullam prorsus notitiam de Deo, de anima, ac honestate actionum se habuisse reperiebatur, sed nec animadvertisse ad ea attendisse, et multo minus eadem meditando examinasse, contentus, tum fa[illegible] videbat, nihil amplius habens, quam [illegible] videbat, intuitionem, et receptionem.

Verum, quid commune notum esse in omni anima principia moralia hæc principia, si tot nationes inventæ sunt, quæ nullam habebant Dei ideam? Multi testio proferunt Atheos, quos nunc [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] veteres Historiarum monumentis consignarunt, Annis posterioribus hoc [illegible] in [illegible] gentes et nationes detectæ sunt [illegible] [illegible], in Soldaniæ, in [illegible] in Groenlandia, et in Insulis Caribes, apud quas nulla erat notio numinis et religionis nulla. Rem hanc testantur accuratissimi scriptores Thevenotus, Joannes de Lery, et [illegible] de la [illegible] et in Historia relatione de rebus Indicis [illegible] hæc scribit ex Paraguaria Nicolaus del Techo. Refert eam gentem nullum nomen habere, ut Deus, et hominis anima significet, nulla habere sacra, nulla idola. Aliud de Toupinambis testatur Lu[illegible] De Lery. Hæc exempla [illegible] a sectis artibus, et literarum plane rudibus. Sed aliæ nationes sunt disciplinis non mediocriter excultæ, in quibus nulla numinis est notio. Recordamini incolas ex hoc esse numero scribit de Regno Siam Tom. I. cap. 9 ser. 5 Dom. de la Loubere ~~[illegible]~~, qui etiam Tom. I. Cap. 20. Sect. 4 refert apud Chinenses idem, non multo secus se rem habere. Et fortasse, inquit Lockius Lib. I. Cap. 4. n. 8, si mores, et sententiones hominum, quos non procul distantium, attente consideraremus, haud sane parvum metuendum foret ne, in regionibus, in quibus homines ad politiorem humanitatem formantur, Dei notitia in plurimorum animis admodum debilis et obscura deprehendatur, nec aliqua ratione est, cur concionatores nostri in aspectu [illegible] atheismo graviter querantur. Licet non nisi pauci quidam has opiniones, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], fortasse tamen plures in eandem sententiam loquuturi, nisi Magistratus, aut [illegible] censura eos [illegible] [illegible]. Hæc omnia de homi[illegible] fortasse aut [illegible] [illegible] loquens: Quæ quidem notione de suis Deis haberet, si [illegible] tate videret. Cæterum eam non [illegible] [illegible] Dei notitias haberent, non inde sequeretur, ideam Dei esse innatam a natura. Tantum quippe mentis vires [illegible] Deus, ut ipsum [illegible], et meditatione auxilio facile cognosceremus, proindeque et colendum sciremus.

Oppon. 4to. Si aliquæ nationes nullum Deum colant et contra moralia principia universaliter operentur, hæc ex animi pravitate, et corruptione societatis, non defectu innatorum principiorum. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Possunt ingenita principia corrumpi, et obscurari. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant. ad prob. ne ant. Nam si moralia principia penitus se haberent, ac characteres quidam animis impressi; neque concipi, neque explicari potest quomodo prava educatio, aut improbum hominum consortium ea ita obscurare, et corrumpere queat, ut non cognoscantur a mente. Quamvis, concedere ea possemus illa corrumpi, et [illegible] concedimus. Sed, [illegible], hoc posito universalis est ille consensus, quo veluti efficacissimo argumento, utuntur Cartesiani ad probandam de ingenitis principiis opinionem. Certe, nisi fors in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut eorum opinionem, [illegible] eandem [illegible] [illegible] tam sequuntur, universalis attentus locum obtinere. [illegible] hunc consensionem veram omnia [illegible] sunt necessaria, de quibus omnes conveniunt, licet ex [illegible] nulla sunt, quia prava consuetudine [illegible] sunt corrupta, et depravata, [illegible] ala institutione ex hominum mentibus [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] dicerent [illegible] illorum ea conservare multos vero abusu de sentire

Q. III.

sentire. Quare hoc argumento concludendum esse ducimus. Principia moralia, quae secundum Cartesianos sunt nobis ingenita vel per disciplinam, societatemque obscurari, et obrui possunt, vel non possunt. Si non possunt: in universo itaque genere humano deprehendi debent, et in singulis hominibus aeque clara sunt; necesse est. Si possunt: itaque quo propiora sunt suis fontibus, in puerulis nimirum, atque idiotis, qui alienis opinionibus non sunt imbuti, eo clariora, et magis perspicua reperientur. Utrumque quum experientiae repugnet, fatendum est nulla esse animis nostris ingenita practica principia.

Propositio 6. Duo sunt omnium Idearum fontes, sensatio nimirum, atque reflexio.

Propositio demonstratur. Mens nostra, quae, ut in superioribus propositionibus satis probatum est, sese habet, ac Tabula quaedam, in qua nihil depictum sit, aliunde recipere debet ingentem illam, et quasi infinitam idearum multitudinem. Omnes autem ideae, quibus semetipsam, et corpus, cui unita est organicum intuetur, quibus singulas Telluris partes contemplatur, quibus in altum supra nubes fertur, et ad Caelos usque penetrat, omnes, inquam, oriuntur ab impressionibus, quas externa objecta in sensus nostros faciunt, et ab ipsius mentis circa hasce impressiones operationibus. Nam primo, ut praeclare Lockius Lib. 2 Cap. 1, externi sensus, qui circa particularia sensibilia objecta versantur, in mentem ingerunt eorundem objectorum ideas, et, quoniam ab objectis non eodem semper modo afficiuntur, pro diversitate affectionum, seu impressionum, varias, distinctasque suppeditant rerum perceptiones; quae rerum sensibilium in sensorum organis impressiones, seu diversi motus, a nobis appellantur sensationes. Ab hoc fonte manarunt ideae, quae in nobis sunt, flavedinis, albedinis, caloris, frigoris, mollitiei, duritiei, amaritudinis, dulcedinis, odoris, saporis, soni, omniumque proprietatum, quae sensibiles dicuntur a Physicis.

2do. fons alter, unde in intellectum deveniunt ideae, sunt operationes, quas circa ideas jam a se collectas instituit mens; quae operationes, postquam eas attente contemplati sumus, genus quoddam idearum intellectui suppeditant, quod a rebus externis oriri non poterat. Perceptio enim, dubitatio, fiducia, ratiocinatio, cognitio, volitio, aliique diversi mentis nostrae actus tot fontes idearum sunt. Eorum, quum nobis conscii sumus, ideas quoque distinctas in intellectum recipimus, ac a corporibus, quae in sensus incurrunt. Hunc autem idearum fontem unusquisque in se habet; et quamvis sensus appellari non possit, quum nullum habeat cum externis objectis commercium, ei tamen simillimus est, et nomine satis proprio sensus internus dici posset. Et quemadmodum externum sensum nuncupamus sensationem; ita sensum internum dicimus reflexionem, quum ideae, quas inde procreamus, tales duntaxat sint, quales mens ex sua rerum contemplatione operationum adipiscitur. Ab externis itaque materialibus rebus, tanquam sensationis objectis, et ab internis mentis operationibus, tanquam reflexionis objectis universae hominum ideae sumunt originem. Permittat quisquis, quantum potest, ait eodem Capite n.° 5 Lockius, animos perscrutatus sensus, ideas referat, utrum ideae primigeniae, quas ibi reperit aliunde sint, quam a sensuum objectis, aut mentis operationibus consideratis tanquam reflexionis ipsius objecta. Quamvis fortasse mentem suam magnis inclusam copiis cumulatam esse censeat, post accuratam tamen considerationem comperiet, nullam in animo ideam esse, quae non uno aut altero hoc modo fuerit impressa; quamvis intellectus fortasse infinita varietate illas composuerit, atque ampliaverit.

Verum, ut res evidentius pateat amotis omnibus praejudiciis examinemus infantem. Quid in isto deprehendit intelligentiae? Prater sensuum usum, et partes quasi repente, utut indicium naturam facit idearum, quam bestiam potius diceres quam hominem. Ad vero balbutientem consideremus. Garrit indesinenter, mammas, et tatas dicit, nutrices, et alia ejusmodi nominat, et agnoscit. Cur ita? quia castiesin hora ad aures occinunt hisce nominibus, digito res monstrant, blanditias, et bellarias et animadvertat, alliciunt. Quo vero ... tetigat, ait Aloysius Verneius de re Logica Lib 2, Cap 3, nullam cognitionem e sinu suo educere nullum, sed omnes ab objectis, quae extra sunt, accipere, vel hoc unum animadvertas, puerulos nihil concupiscere aut loqui, nisi de iis quae auditu, visu, ceteris denique sensibus acceperunt. In reliquis quotiunt proprius. Decipiuntur facile, propterea quod ideas deceptionis, et ... delitati nondum habent. Ut corpore, sic mente pro rata augmentum satis magnum est cur dicamus ab sensibus primaevas ideas ducere originem.

Neque pueri duntaxat, sed Adolescentes, et provectae aetate probe totum vitae cursum rerum ideas ... nisi de iis, quae per sensus acceperunt, aut ex accentis collegerunt, loquuntur. Nunquam audivi hominem, qui de rebus loqueretur, quas sensuum exercitatione non acquisiverit. Illi ipsi, qui de rebus loquuntur, quae nec esse intelligi possunt, quaeque vocabula sunt plerumque, quibus nulla significandi vis inducitur, a magistris habuere; quae dicunt, vel ex praeceptorum institutis commentando deduxerunt. Omnes tamen homines ideas suas accipiunt a sensatione, et reflexione.

Opponunt 1. Si sensão, atq reflexio sunt omnium idearum fontes, neãrio consequitur omnes ideas dependere a sensib; sed falsum ē omnes ideas dependere a sensib. Ergo etc. Mi certa ē, quum reflexió nihil aliud sit, quam cógnitio a nobis operaõnes mentis circa ideas jam sensaõnis ope collectas. Pro: mr. Earum duntaxat rerum ideæ habentur p sensus, quæ vel coloratæ sunt, vel sapidæ, vel sonoræ etc sed ~~[illegible]~~ plures res sunt, quæ neq. sunt coloratæ, neq. sapidæ, neq. sonoræ etc Ergo etc. Prob: mr. ens, substantia, causa, et alia hujusmodi neq. colorata sunt, neq. sapida, neq. sonora etc. Ergo etc.

R. dist. mm. Si sensão, atq reflexio etc neãrio consequitur omnes ideas vel mediate, vel immediate dependere a sensib conc: neãrio consequitur omnes ideas immediate dependere a sensib ne. mm. dist. mm sed falsum ē omnes ideas immediate dependere a sensib conc: vel mediate, vel immediate dependere a sensib, ne. mm, et conseq.tm Eodem modo cum proportione distinguenda sunt cæterorum argumentorum mõones. Quia nos, experientia duce, optime novimus n̄ omnes rerum ideas produci a mente immediate p externos sensus, sed fortasse majorem partem immediate oriri a mentis nostræ meditaõne, seu a cogniõne, et consideraõne operaõnum mentis, propterea n̄ diximus unum eē fontem idearum fontem, sensum scilicet, sed duos, sensaõnem nimirum, et reflexionem. Verum eãmen cum Aristotelicis, et Gassendistis fateremur omnes ideas haberi p sensus, n̄ tn̄ aliqd fateremur absurdum. Nam qui putant Entis, substantiæ, causæ, et q hujusmodi rerum ideæ produci a mente dependenter a sensib, n̄ opinantur Ens, substantias, et causam tanquam corporeas aliquas qualitates corporearum imaginum ope percipi a mente; sed asserunt in productione hujusmodi idearum dependere mentem a sensib, ut eas n̄ ex ipsismet sensib immediate hauriat, sed mediate duntaxat, ex ideis scilicet, quas habet rerum sensibilium.

Qd si quærat a Cartesianis, quo demum modo universales illæ ideæ Entis, substantiæ, causæ ex ideis sensibilium producantur, id reflexionis ope a mente præstari demonstramus. Et primo qd attinet ad Entis ideam, quæ notio Entis nihil aliud sit, quam idea rei, cui n̄ repugnat existere quum q res omnes sensibiles a nobis percipiantur veluti res, quib n̄ repugnat existere; potest profecto mens ita plura sensibilia considerare, ut neglectis omnib illis affectionib, p quas inter se differunt, et sola hac attenta negaõne repugnantiæ, universalem sibimet cudat Entis ideam. Percipit E.C mens nostra aquam veluti rem quamdam, cui n̄ repugnat, ut existat. Percipit terram, veluti quidpiam, cui n̄ repugnat, ut reipsa sit: Percipit ignem, veluti aliqd cui n̄ repugnat eē. Hæc ubi de tribus hisce elementis percepit, omnes eorum proprietates, p quas inter se differunt, missas faciens, efformat tandem notionem rei, cui n̄ repugnat existere, proindeq. universalem Entis ideam. N̄ secus de substantiæ idea sentiendum ē. Idea n. substantiæ ē idea rei, quæ ita existit, ut in nullo sit, a quo dependeat. Plures autem sensuum ministerio existere res cognoscimus, quin sint in alio re. entæ, atq in hujusmodi existendi modo eas convenire intelligimus, quamvis sint naã dissimiles. Cæteris enim, p quæ discrepant inter se, prætermissis, et modo duntaxat, quo reipsa existunt, spectato, ex ideis rerum sensibilium producere eam possumus universalem substantiæ notionem. Idea quoq. causæ eamdem habet originem. Mens n. animadvertens n̄nullas ex reb sensibilib ita cum aliis eē connexas, ut una posita, ponat et altera, illa vero sublata hæc quoq tollatur: omnib circumstantiis neglectis, et ipsa rei sensibilitate omissa, talem sibi format ideam, ut duo in planis occurrant, quorum unum ideo poscit eē, quia existit alterum, Quæ idea universalis ē idea causæ, ut liquido constat.

Quæ hactenus diximus de Entis, substantiæ, et causæ ideis, cum proportione dicenda erunt de aliis ideis universalib Generis nimirum, speciei, Differentiæ, Accidentis, Mãæ, Figuræ, Motus, Quietis etc, ita ut nulla sit idea universalis, quæ ex ideis singularib præcisione, adeoq. reflexionis ope, efformari n̄ possit a mente. Nam, ut præclare explicat Cl. Huetius Cap. 3tio censuræ Philosophiæ Cartesianæ Animus in reb multis idem quippiam animadvertens, excerpit illud e multis, in quib inerat divisum, et in unum colligit, atq inde ideam universalem conflat. Velut in Petro, et Joanne, aliisq hoĩb singulis deprehendens, eos eē aã alia raõne præditos, jam neq Petrum, neq. Joannem, neq ullum singularem hoĩem spectans, educit illud, et componit in unum, qd multiplex fuerat, ac generalem ideam, et universalem conflat, et confingit ideam, quiq commendat omnem hoĩem eē aãl raõle

Instavant cum Authore Art. cogitandi. Quamvis ideæ universales Entis, substantiæ etc p præcisionem ex aliis sensibilib imaginaõnib efforment a mente, dici tn̄ nequit hujusmodi ideas dependere a sensib ir ... ant. Ita in productione hujusmodi idearum se habent sensus, quemadmodum in pictura se habet proposita merces, qua Pictor ad pingendum inducitur. sed n̄ ita a proposita mercede ad pingendum inducitur Pictor, ut dici possit Picturam a proposita mercede duxisse originem. Ergo etc.

R. ne ant. ad prob. ne mm. nam mens humana corpori unita ita dependet a sensib, seu a sensibilib imaginaõnib in productione universalium idearum, ut n̄ ipse dependeat, ut placet Authori Artis cogitandi, sed mp, adeout sine sensuum adminiculo neq Ens, neq substantiam percipere ullo modo possit. Contra vero a proposita mercede haudquaquam Pictura dependet, quia ita a proposita mercede ad pingendum indu citq Pictor, ut sine tn mercede et possit pingere, et sepissime reipsa depingat. Verum, ut opposita contra nos similitudine utam; Quemadmodum, quia ita a colorib habet Pictor, ut pingat, ut sine colorib pingere nullatenus possit, propterea dicitq Picturam dependere a colorib, Ita quia ita a sensib determinetur mens ad universales producendas ideas, ut sine ope sensuum eas cudere nequeat, asserendum e hujusmodi ideas a sensib dependere.

Opponunt 2do. Ideæ veritatis, unitatis, virtutum, atq vitiorum ex ideis rerum sensibilium inferri n possunt. Ergo etc. Pro: ant. Nunquam ex ideis rerum sensibilium pote talis notio p reflexionem desumi, quæ unitatem vel veritatem generatim sumptam menti exhibeat. Ergo etc.

R. ne: ant. ad prob: ne: ant. Hujusmodi eam ideæ produci possunt a mente ex cognitione rerum sensibilium. Et primo quoad veritatis ideam, quum verum sit illud, qd tale e, quale ee debet, illud scilicet, qd cum suo exemplari convenit, n aliud e idea veritatis, quam idea duas res complectens int se omnino conformes. Unam autem rem sensibilem posse alteri ita respondere, ut sibi mutuo consentiant, proindeq conformitatem in reb sensibilib a mente cognosci, certum e. Ex ideis itaq rerum sensibilium meditationis ope, talis notio desumi pote a mente, quæ veritatem generatim sumptam repræsentet. Illud addi pote, qd Cartesio objeciebat Gassendus Dubit. 2. in medit. 3. Inquit n. Vir cl. Si veritas nihil aliud e, quam conformitas judicii cum re, de qua fertq judicium, veritas e quædam relatio, ac proinde nihil distinctum ab ipsa re, ideaq ad se relatis, seu, qd idem e, ab ipsa rei idea; quippe obj et se, et rem, qualis e, repræsentat. Quare et n alia e veritatis idea, quam idea rei, quatenus rei conformis e, seu quatenus ideam repræsentat, cujusmodi e, adeo proinde ut, si idea rei n innata, sed adventitia sit, idea quoq veritatis adventitia sit, n innata. Et quum id de qualibet veritate singulari intelligatq, intelligi eam pote universalitq de veritate, cujus notio, seu idea ex notionib, seu ideis singularium abstrahitq. Hucusq Gassendus.

Eodem pariter modo efformatq a mente idea unitatis. Si enim rem aliquam, qd in se sit indivisa, ... in rebus sensibilib attendatq, et rem quamq ita res sensibiles a mente spectetq, ut ceteris omnib, quæ nobis in illa occurrunt, neglectis, consideretq duntaxat prout in se indivisa e, universalis producitq idea unitatis. De ideis vero virtutum, vitiorumq id sentimus, qd docet Clericus Pneumatologiæ Sect. 1. Cap. 5. Ideas virtutis, ac vitii, ut Vir Cl. neqaquam innatas ee hinc liquet, qd exemplis, et institutione eas a Parentib, Magistris, illisq, quibuscum vivimus, habeamus. Hinc fit, ut apud cultiores sentes sint magis perspicuæ, quam apud barbaras, atq tanta sint in humano genere circa virtutes, et vitia dissensio. Ad disciplinam quidem, et exempla aliorum accedat nostra meditatio necesse e, nisi velimus sæpissime falli; sed hoc ipsum indicium e, nullas nec nobis, neq aliis innatas de hisce ee ideas.

Instabunt. Idea saltem, quam de se ipsa habet mens nostra corpori unita, a sensatione, aut reflexione n dependet. Ergo etc.

R. ne ant. Mens n nostra, quamdiu corpori unita e, n cogitat de se ipsa, nisi quatenus [incipit] se de rebus externis cogitare. Ea autem idea, qua se scit mens se cogitare, mediate quidem a sensatione, immediate vero a reflexione oritq. Quum n sciat mens se cogitare, quatenus nosit se aliqua percipere; ideo cogitat mens se cogitare, quia ad rerum, quas habet ideas, sese convertit, et circa illas, veluti circa objectum versatq. Sed rerum ideæ, ... vel a sensatione, vel a reflexione dependent, ut ... e. Quum igitq a rerum ideis eam idea illa dependeat, qua se cogitare cogitat mens, et de se ipsa n cogitet nisi quatenus cogitat se cogitare, censendum e mentem corpori copulatam a reflexione habere, ut de se ipsa acquirat ideam.

Opponunt 3tio. Ex ideis rerum sensibilium produci n pote a mente idea Dei. Ergo a reflexione n oritq idea Dei. Pro. ant. Deus e Ens infinitum, et perfectissimum, sed ex ideis rerum sensibilium produci n pote a mente idea Entis infiniti, et perfectissimi. Ergo etc. Pro. mr. Res sensibiles imperfectæ sunt, atq finitæ; sed ex reb imperfectis, atq finitis inferri n pote Ens perfectissimum, et infinitum. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Ex opere finito inferri n pote, nisi Artifex virtutis finitæ. Ergo etc.

R. ne: ant. ad prob. conc mjm ne mnm. ad prob: conc mjm ne mnm. ad prob dist. ant. Ex opere finito inferri n pote, nisi artifex virtutis finitæ, si sermo sit de Artifice producto conc. si sermo sit de Artifice primo, et improducto ne ant: et conseqm. Quamvis res sensibiles imperfectæ admodum sint, et finitæ ex earum tn ideis, reflexionis ope, vel p positionem, ut ajunt, vel p negationem, inferre ideam Dei possumus. P positionem quippe Deum concipimus, quum ea, quæ in nobis, ceterisq creatis reb perfectiones redolent, Deo tribuimus, P negationem vero Deum, ut Ens perfectissimum, atq infinitum intelligimus, quum omnes illas imperfectiones, quas in nobis, aliisq reb sensibilib deprehendimus, ab illo removemus. Habemus, inquit ..., Dei notitiam, et manifestam quidem, at n ex idea Dei innatam, sed ratiocinando collectam, et ex gentium omnium consensu, et ex preclaro Mundi ornatu, et ordine, et ex rerum existentia, earumdemq. motu, aliisq. argumentis, quæ et a Veteribus Philosophis, et a Sanctis Ecclesiæ Patribus feliciter sunt usurpata. Res etenim sensibiles, licet finita sint perfectione donatæ, ducunt nos in cognitionem supremi, et infiniti Artificis, quia totum, ut inquiunt, esse, finito operi concessum, summam, et infinitam Artificis perfectionem demonstrat. Hoc enim intercedit discrimen inter finitum, et infinitum Artificem, ut Artifex finitus, adeoq. productus nihil unquam possit moliri, nisi ex præexistente aliqua materia; Artifex vero primus, et improductus ex nihilo res omnes creaverit, easdemq. conservet. Quare, sicuti productus Artifex, et quia productus est, et quia operi suo totum esse non tribuit, cognoscitur finitus; ita quum primus, et improductus Artifex ex nihilo cuncta produxerit, ex ipsis rebus productis infinita ejus virtus demonstratur.

Instabunt 1. Infinitum ex finito inferri nullatenus potest. Ergo etc. Pro. ant. Res finita nullam habet proportionem cum re infinita. Hoc posito, infinitum ex finito cognosci non potest. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant. ad prob: dist. mam: Res finita nullam habet proportionem entitatis, et perfectionis cum re infinita, conc: connexionis, et dependentiæ ne: mam. dist. mam: Hoc posito, scilicet quod res finita nullam habeat proportionem connexionis, et dependentiæ cum re infinita, infinitum etc. conc. Hoc posito, quod res nempe finita nullam habeat proportionem entitatis, et perfectionis cum re infinita, infinitum etc. ne mam, et conseq.m. Ut ex rebus finitis eruatur idea infiniti, non ea necessaria est inter rem finitam, et infinitam proportio, quæ a Scholasticis dicitur proportio entitatis, et perfectionis, scilicet non ea proportio necessaria, ne omnes illæ perfectiones, quæ in re infinita continentur, in re quoq. finita debent includi: sed ea sufficit proportio, seu similitudo, quæ connexionis, et dependentiæ nuncupatur. Hanc autem proportionem inter rem infinitam, et finitam, Deum nempe, et Creaturas intercedere, nemo sanæ mentis ibit inficias. Creaturæ enim, eo ipso quod Creaturæ sunt, necessariam cum Deo Creatore suo connexionem habent, quemadmodum effectus necessariam habet connexionem cum propria causa, et res creatæ, eo ipso, quod creatæ sunt necessario a Conditore suo dependent, quemadmodum a causa necessario dependet effectus.

Instabunt 2do. Res creatæ sensibiles sunt contingentes; sed ex rebus contingentibus inferri non potest idea Dei. Ergo etc. Pro mi. Medium contingens non potest ducere nos in cognitionem Entis necessarii; sed idea Dei est idea Entis necessarii. Ergo etc.

R. dist. mam. Res creatæ sensibiles sunt contingentes quoad existentiam conc. quoad essentiam, et connexionem cum Ente necessario, seu Deo ne: mam. dist. mam: sed ex rebus contingentibus quoad essentiam, et connexionem cum Deo, inferri non potest idea Dei conc: sed ex rebus contingentibus tantum quoad existentiam, inferri non potest idea Dei ne: mam, et conseq.m. Ad prob. eadem utendum est dist.e Quum in medio demonstrationis quærenda non sit necessitas existentiæ, sed sufficiat necessitas connexionis cum re demonstranda: Hac enim necessaria connexione posita, statim ac ex iis unum existit, alterius existentia infertur: Necessum minime est, ut Creaturæ necessario existant, quemadmodum necessario existit Deus, ut ex Creaturis inferri possit idea Dei, sed sufficit, ut Creaturæ necessariam habeant cum Deo connexionem. Jam vero creatæ res omnes, licet secundum existentiam contingentes sint, quoad essentiam tamen, et connexionem cum Deo necessitatem habent, quia res contingens non potest, primo ad existendum determinari, nisi ab Ente necessario, et Creaturæ non possunt esse, nisi à Creatore. Hinc ex Creaturis, eo ipso, quod Creaturæ sunt, et existunt, evidenter, ac necessario colligimus Deum existere. Quemadmodum enim, licet possit Artifex domum construere, vel non construere, constructa tamen Domo, recte in hunc modum argumentamur: Existit Domus; ergo ab Artifice constructa est, ita licet potuerit Mundus a Deo produci, et non produci, quum tamen revera productus sit, recte argumentamur: Existit Mundus, et potuit non existere: ergo a supremo, et libero Conditore factus est.

Instabunt 3tio. Cognitio fit ex similibus; sed res creatæ sensibiles non sunt Deo similes. Ergo etc.

R. dist. mam: Cognitio fit ex similibus vel perfecte vel imperfecte, quando hæc sunt aliunde connexa conc: cognitio fit tantum ex perfecte similibus subdist: Cognitio perfecta fit tantum ex perfecte similibus conc. imperfecta ne: mam: dist. mam. sed res sensibiles creatæ non sunt perfecte similes Deo conc. non sunt imperfecte similes Deo, et aliunde connexæ, ne mam, et conseq.m. Duplici modo unamquamq. rem cognoscere possumus, seu duplicem habere possumus rei alicujus ideam, perfectam scilicet et imperfectam. Perfecte rem aliquam cognoscimus, quum percipimus clare, atq. distincte quid res ipsa sit, imperfectam vero ideam habemus, quum tantum cognoscimus rem aliquam esse, sive existere. Porro cognitio utiq. perfecta nisi ex perfecte similibus haberi potest, ideoq. nunquam alicujus rei essentiam perfecte cognoscemus, nisi ideam perfecte sibi similem in mente habeamus. At cognitionem imperfectam habemus ex rebus connexis, licet aliunde dissimilibus. Sic ex fumo ignem, ex motibus corporis existentiam colligimus rationalis animæ, licet inter fumum, et ignem, inter animam, et corpus perfecta non intercedat similitudo, sed sola connexio. Quamvis igitur Creaturæ, utpote finitæ, et imperfectæ, a summa Dei perfectione plurimum distent, quum tamen sint cum Deo connexæ, ex ipsis percipimus Deum existere. Ipsa enim dependentia, quæ est radix omnium imperfectionum in Creaturis, ducit nos in cognitionem Dei, tanquam primæ causæ, a qua cetera omnia dependent. Præterquamquod licet Creaturæ perfecte, et univoce non sint Deo similes, analogice tamen, et imperfecte esse similes, perspicuum est. Omnes enim perfectiones Creaturarum a Deo proficiscunt; proinde eæ in Deo etiam admittendæ sunt, quamvis nobiliori, ac [illegible] modo. Hinc Creaturæ ratione connexionis certam nobis parant notitiam de existentia Dei, [illegible] tione autem imperfectæ similitudinis possunt eam immediate nobis aliquam imperfectam notitiam de essentia Dei, sive per affirmationem, affirmando de Deo sapientiam, bonitatem, justitiam, cæterasque perfectiones quas in creaturis [illegible], quæ in suo conceptu intellectuali nullam per se involvere imperfectionem: sive per negationem, negando de Deo limitatem, dependentiam, compositionem, aliasque [illegible] imperfectiones, quas in creaturis [illegible] convenire cognoscimus. Hæc dicta [illegible] connexionem, et similitudinem, quam cum Deo habent [illegible] creatæ [illegible] mentum, [illegible] effectum [illegible] ad [illegible] dum Deum, respondendum erit Creaturas esse effectus improportionatos ad [illegible] existentia Dei, [illegible] ad efformandas imperfectas Dei existentis ideas [illegible]

Opponunt 4to. Idea Dei est idea Entis perfectissimi, sed idea Entis perfectissimi neque per [illegible], haberi potest, neque per reflexionem. Ergo etc. Minor certa est [illegible] quoad [illegible] partem constat, quum Deus, [illegible] corporeis [illegible] sensus, qui corporei sunt. [illegible] vero partem probatur. Idea Entis perfectissimi [illegible] sed, [illegible] reflexionem habet, non simplex est, sed composita. Ergo etc. [illegible] Idea Entis perfectissimi neque augeri potest neque minui. Ergo etc.

R. conc: [illegible] neg: [illegible] ad prob: neg: [illegible] [illegible] neg: ant. Hæc Cartesii momenta sunt. [illegible] oppositam sententiam [illegible], ut [illegible] demonstrari existimant ideam Entis perfectissimi [illegible] sensu [illegible]. Atque [illegible], Deum esse corporeum [illegible] Deum incorporeum cognosci [illegible], dependenter tamen a cognitione rerum sensibilium, quemadmodum [illegible], licet incorporea sit anima, ex corpore [illegible], et [illegible] eius ideam [illegible] incorporeus sit Deus, [illegible] corporea, et sensibilia sunt per reflexionem [illegible] ideam Dei. Neque porro necesse est, ut ideam Entis perfectissimi simplicem dicamus; imo [illegible] [illegible] ex [illegible] vel per additionem, vel per detractionem [illegible], [illegible] potest. [illegible], ut [illegible] Cartesius [illegible] ideæ simplicitatem, [illegible] Entis perfectissimi [illegible], respondimus [illegible] contrarium [illegible]. [illegible] ideam Entis perfectissimi positive Deum [illegible], non tamen adæquate, atque perfecte. At, cur, quæso, nihil vel detrahi vel addi potest ideæ, per quam imperfecte rem aliquam attingimus? Cur fieri non potest, ut quod imperfectum est, per aliquid aut additum aut detractum, vel minus imperfectum evadat, vel magis perfectum. Sed vero [illegible] Cartesii [illegible] per suam [illegible] ideam de Deo adæquate, et perfecte concipere, [illegible] perfectissimi aliquid posse nos tum addere, tum detrahere: Idea [illegible] Entis perfectissimi composita est, [illegible] nihil [illegible], quominus a mente producatur reflexionis ope.

[illegible] Deum [illegible] ideas [illegible] omnem [illegible] rum, [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] imperfectas. [illegible], quod Deus [illegible] perfectissimus [illegible] imperfecto modo, a nobis concipitur. Sed de his satis superque diximus in responsione ad objectionem [illegible] conc. etc.

Opponunt 5. Omnes homines pervenerunt ad rationis usum pervenerunt, debent existentiam [illegible] cognoscere. Ergo Idea supremi Numinis non acquisita est, sed innata. Ant. certum est, quum communiter doceant Theologi, neminem ratione utentem posse inculpabiliter ignorare Dei existere. [illegible] si omnes homines pervenerunt ad rationis usum eam cognoscere tenentur, [illegible] Deus [illegible] notionem impresserit. [illegible], si [illegible] notionem [illegible] impresserit, idea supremi Numinis non acquisita est, sed innata. Ergo etc.

R. conc: ant: neg: conseq.m ad prob: conc: ant: neg: conseq.m Omnes equidem homines, qui rationis usum obtinuerint secundum Angelici Doctoris, cæterorumque Theologorum doctrinam, possunt, et debent unius Dei existentiam cognoscere; adeo ut [illegible] [illegible], in Dei [illegible]. [illegible] merito [illegible] notitiam Dei non esse, [illegible] ac ceteræ ideæ, [illegible] ante omnia [illegible] Creaturæ [illegible] mentis humanæ, [illegible] cognoscere [illegible] existentiam [illegible], [illegible] hominis notionem [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] vocare [illegible] Dei existentiam, atque [illegible] omnium animus [illegible] ideam, [illegible] consentaneum videtur [illegible] Deum [illegible] expressum characterem [illegible] de Deo [illegible], et [illegible] quæcumque vel [illegible], [illegible] tanda sunt, quum id quoque divinæ bonitati consentaneum videatur.

Verum, [illegible] Deus [illegible] hujusmodi [illegible], idea in mente [illegible] divina [illegible] bonitas [illegible], quum [illegible] Deus [illegible] cognoscendi [illegible], haud bonitas [illegible] [illegible] rationis, manum, et [illegible] [illegible]. Sed si integræ nationes hujusmodi sunt, et facultates [illegible] ut superius vidimus; mirum esse non debet. Nam barbaræ illæ gentes facultates [illegible]

[illegible] sed satis habuere [illegible] mores, et res, prout in sua cuique patria [illegible], [illegible] disquisitione amplecti. Noscant fortasse, qui de existentia Dei [illegible], quique earum rationum [illegible] [illegible] admirati; [illegible] de [illegible] [illegible] habeamus [illegible], vel [illegible] [illegible] nati [illegible].

Corollarium.

[illegible] omnes [illegible] ideae [illegible] a sensatione, et reflexione; [illegible] sive [illegible] sive moralia, quae reflexionis adminiculo [illegible] innotescant. Quid [illegible] sunt principia, aut axiomata universalia, [illegible] nihil aliud sunt, quam unio, et connexio quaedam ~~particularium~~ singularium idearum. Quare, si ideae universales, quae ex ~~particularibus~~ singularibus ideis resultant, producuntur a mente per reflexionem; eadem principia, quae componuntur ex particularibus ideis, reflexionis adjumento cognoscentur. Hinc mirum non est, si [illegible] [illegible] principia [illegible] [illegible]. Nam [illegible] a [illegible], quam a Magistris, neque [illegible] temporis, quo haec principia [redacted] didicimus, recordamur, putamus ea nobis esse innata; praesertim quum post diuturnam ~~reflexionem~~ meditationem, et [illegible] examen [illegible] illa corroborari omnium, quibuscum conversamur, aut [illegible], aut tacito assensione.

Propositio 7. Systema Malebranchianum de idearum origine, alienum est a veritate.

[illegible] propositio haec demonstretur, aliqua [illegible] sunt, quae ad ~~[illegible]~~ majorem notitiam [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] itaque Malebranchius [illegible] [illegible] Philosophorum [illegible] [illegible] originem idearum sibi visus est satis confutasse, illud pro certo habet, mentem nostram Deo unitam omnia in ipso Deo videre, seu in Deo cuncta percipere. Hanc autem opinionem ut confirmet, animadvertit esse in Deo mundum intelligibilem, in quo omnium rerum notiones, et rationes continentur, adeo ut, si mens cum Deo uniatur, in illo videat quaecumque intelligit. Uniri vero cum Deo mentem, duobus hisce argumentis ostendere conatur. Primum est, Deum, quum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corpora, [illegible] arctius mentes humanas Deo immenso uniri, quam corpora spatio continentur. Secundum est, unionem mentis, et corporis [illegible] mentis esse [illegible], [illegible] corpori [illegible], [illegible] hujusmodi unionem, [illegible] mentem detrahatur, [illegible] essentialem unionem mentis cum Deo, quam non potest hujusmodi [illegible] [illegible], quin statim mens in nihilum redigatur. Haec est celebris illa sententia Malebranchii, quam Arnaldus, Poiretus, Lockius, Pritius, Author artis [illegible] mentis, Genuensis, omnesque alicujus nominis Philosophi [illegible] [illegible].

Propositio probatur. Quemadmodum cum D. Thoma [illegible] Genuensis Elementorum [illegible] Parte 2 Cap. 3 duobus modis videre aliquid in aliquo dicimur, [illegible] aut [illegible] in [illegible], aut [illegible] in lumine et [illegible]. Primo modo imagines in speculis videmus, 2do modo in axiomatibus conclusiones. Si, ponitis, quaerimus a Malebranchio, quo tandem modo videat mens nostra res omnes in Deo? Si ait, videre primo modo, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] idearum; quod tamen [illegible] a veritate [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] maxime [illegible] habent de Deo notitiam, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quid sit, dici possit. Deinde, quum Deus, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] mentes nostrae in Deo omnia videant, [illegible] [illegible] nulla [illegible] ratione [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] et omnium [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mentem humanam oporteret: quod tamen experientia repugnat.

[illegible] asserat Malebranchius 2do modo [illegible] omnia in Deo videre, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], cum omnibus philosophis concedimus. Nam ope divini luminis, id est rationis naturalis, intelligere nos quaecumque intelligimus, a nemine in dubium vertitur. Verum, si in hoc sensu loquutus est Malebranchius, jam quisque videt originem idearum non explicari, adeoque [illegible] systema nullum esse.

Dices 1. Mens humana est essentialiter unita Deo. Ergo omnia videt, seu intelligit in Deo. Antecedens patet, omnia omnes [illegible] sunt in Deo [illegible] extenso, [illegible] corpus in spatio. [illegible] [illegible] essentialis [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] nostri est [illegible] Deo. Probatur consequentia. In Deo sunt rerum omnium formae, seu ideae. Ergo si mens humana est essentialiter unita Deo, omnia videt in Deo.

R. ~~[illegible]~~ Antecedens [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] consequentiam. Quum Deus sit immensus, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] extensione [illegible], aliquo modo mentes humanas unitas esse cum Deo concedere [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] essentialis unio non admittatur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nulla ~~[illegible]~~ est substantia sive corporea sive incorporea, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in Deo [illegible] [illegible], quam corpora [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible], [illegible] mens humana unita [illegible] Deo, [illegible] [illegible] unione, omnia videre mentem in Deo; quod ipse etiam animadvertit Malebranchius, quum ait, [illegible] [illegible] non sufficere, ut mens in Deo videat, quae intelligit, sed necesse praeterea esse, ut ei Deus hujusmodi ideas detegat. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] nobis [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mentem in Deo rerum omnium formas [illegible] videat. Nam [illegible] unio hujusmodi [illegible] dumtaxat est [illegible], patet ipso Malebranchio, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Deus ideas menti detegat; unio [illegible] [illegible] cum Deo, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nostras esse vel Dei [illegible], vel Dei modos [illegible], quod [illegible] nullo modo potē. Neq. ē cur Malebranch. demonstrare conex. substantialē hanc mentis cum Deo ex communicatione quam in nobis supponit omnium idearum a Deo. Petit manifeste principium vitiose, si ita argumentatur, quod illud, veluti certum, atq. exploratum, supponat, quod in quaestionem revocatur. Transeamus ad Arnaldum, qui unio substantialis, seu essentialis mentis humanae cum Deo admitti non potest, quin ... consequantur absurda. Unio substantialis mentis cum Deo, inquit A. Genuensis, nequit intelligi, nisi in Spinozistico systemate; nam si Deus locus est mentium, et spatium corporum, ita mentes cum Deo penetrantur, quemadmodum ... corpora. Ita ut Dei partes erunt, aut modi, aut Deus ipse. Neq. ego unquam alia ... Malebranchium, et Spinozisticum systema ... tenui distare, revera unum esse ... confidentius dico. Nam veritas potior ē, et antiquior Philosophis. Hactenus Genuensis.

Dices 2do. Ceterorum Philosophorum opiniones quoad originem idearum sunt falsae. Ergo ideae nobis a Deo explicato modo, oriuntur. Confirmatur. Rectae rationi magis consonum ē, nos omnia in Deo cognoscere, quam vel ope sensuum, vel quovis alio modo ~~aut~~ producere, ~~aut~~ haurire ideas. Ergo etc.

R. trans. ant. ne. conseqm ut recte ~~observat~~ animadvertit Genuensis, Elementorum Metaphysicae Parte 2da, Cap 3, Propositione 2 et multo ante Lockius in Examine Sententiae P. Malebranchii, admodum non utilis ē hujusmodi argumentandi ratio. Ceterae ad hanc rem opiniones sunt falsae. Ergo mea sententia ē veritati consona. Et primo quidem, quia reliqua omnia systemata, quae circa originem idearum statuta, et demonstrata fuerunt a Philosophis, rationibus duntaxat probabilibus, non certis probationibus constare ... Malebranchius, ut cuique videre potē in 3tio ejus Libro de inquirenda veritate, atq. ut manifeste patet ex iis, quae in superiori propositione de origine idearum diximus. 2do, quia etiamsi ceterae omnes Philosophorum sententiae essent falsae, nullus tamen Dialecticus recte concluderet Malebranchium non errare, seu, quod idem ē, verum idearum fontem ignoravisse. Ut recte itaq. argumentaretur Malebranchius, debebat positivis, et gravis momentis suam opinionem demonstrare, deinde colligere a veritate abesse Aristotelicorum, Gassendi, et Cartesii sententias.

Ad confirmationem ne. ant. Tantum abē, quod rectae rationi magis consona sit Malebranchii sententia, ut nulla hactenus quoad hanc rem excogitata fuerit ā dissentientibus Philosophorum sectis, quae rectae rationi magis adversetur. In primis n., si conscientiam, seu internum sensum consulimus, clarissime intelligimus, nos quavis potius alia ratione res extra nos positas cognoscere, quam in Deo, cujus claram, distinctamq. ideam non habemus. Deinde, si omnes mentes humanae sunt aeque Deo unitae, adeoq. aeque omnes intelligunt, in ipso Deo intelligunt; cur itaq. non in omnibus hominibus eadem, aut aequalis ē idearum series? Cur nos in pueritia ... obscure cognoscimus, in adolescentia distincte atq. clare, in virilitate vividius, in senectute confusius? Cur eadem objecta pro aetatis, atq. temporum diversitate sub diverso quasi aspectu concipimus? Annon, quum idem semper sit Deus, idem fons, atq. promptuarium idearum, eodem modo suppeditabuntur omnibus rerum formae? Concipi ne potē quomodo contradictoriae inter se rerum notiones in Deo videantur, quin in ipso Deo contineantur? Haec sunt, quae rectae rationi omnino repugnare videntur, quae tamen, ut quisque videt, necessario consequuntur ex hypothesi Malebranchiana.

Et si reponat Malebranchius, necessum non ē, ut omnes mentes aeque intelligant, quia hanc legem sancivit Deus ut non omnibus aeque detegerent ideas, quas in se ipso continet, ... argumentis ... delinat. Primo, licet concedamus, Deum posse omnes, et singulas ideas, aut eandem ... ideam ... mentibus detegere, concipi tamen nequit, quomodo velit Deus de una, eademq. re contradictorias ... mentibus ... detegere ideas. Concipi ... nequit, qui fiat, ut eadem numero res a nobis ... in Deo, et ... speciem virtutis, ab aliis vero tanquam enorme vitium, ut idem objectum detegat ... bonum quod aliis manifestatur deforme, et malum; nisi dicere velimus, unam eandemq. rem ... et ... omnes circumstantias spectatam, habere in essentia divina notionem boni simul et non boni, vitii simul, et virtutis. Deinde, si Deus ea, quae vult, mentibus detegit, ea ... quae ... necessaria, aut non ... utilia. Sed quis non videt, maximam humanarum idearum partem ... inutilem, ... ideas ē nobis noxias? Accedit, ... mentes ... eodem modo ... in Deo ... quomodo ... dicemus, ... summo ... bono ... conjunctas? ... consequuntur ex opinione Malebranchiana ... cum recta ratione, et ipsa evidentia pugnantes, quas consulto ... Pauca tantum addimus cum cl. Genuensi. Si omnia in Deo videmus, omnes rationes ... revelatio externa, et externa legislatio inutiles sunt; ... movent ... ad vim ... et ... tanta sunt, ... aliam, ... cum ... systemate, cum Deo unione.

Dices 3tio. Mentem humanam omnia in Deo cognoscere, consona ē sententia Scripturarum, SS. Patrum et ... Philosophorum. ... 3tio ... docet ... Actorum Cap 17, ... Deus non longe ē ab unoquoque nostrum. In ipso enim vivimus, movemur et sumus. In Epistola Jacobi, Cap 1 ... Deus ē Pater luminum. In Epistola ad Romanos Cap 1 ... et tandem in Evangelio Joannis, Cap 1 ... ē lux vera, quae illuminat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum. Ex SS. Patribus Augustinus pluribus in locis docet nos omnia in Deo cognoscere, in Libro vero de Magistro fuse ostendit, ... nihil ... docere posse, nisi ... a Deo ...

in corde [illegible], erudire: adeo verum est [illegible] Scripturae unum esse Magistrum nostrum, qui in coelis est. [illegible] retractaverit, sed tamen in hac re opinionem non mutavit. [illegible] in primo Soliloquiorum Deus intelligibilis lux, in quo, et a quo, et per quem intelligibiliter lucent omnia. Item passim [illegible] de Trinitate, et in Confessionibus. Hanc autem opinionem a Platonicis accepisse Augustinum, probabile [illegible]. Iamblicus [illegible], et Plotinus [illegible] ex schola Platonicorum id expressis verbis tradiderunt. [illegible] Hoc ipsum et Chaldaica [illegible] Philosophia.

[illegible] Et primo, quod attinet ad textus Scripturarum, nimis [illegible] male [illegible], [illegible] sensum [illegible], quam [illegible] inde confirmari suum de origine idearum systema. [illegible] sacr. [illegible] Deum [illegible] nostrum, Deum esse lumen nostrum, a Deo manifestari homini scientiam, Deum denique illuminare mentem hominum, verum hujusmodi lumen, manifestatio, illuminatio, de quibus loquuntur, omnino [illegible] a manifestatione idearum secundum hypothesim Malebranchianorum. [illegible], ut recte [illegible] Author [illegible] mentis, et Antonius Genuensis, duobus modis intelligere debemus, Deum hominum mentes illuminare, ratione scilicet, et revelatione. Ratione nos Deus illuminat, quatenus ratio quae lumen mentis est, a Deo est et conservatur. Illuminat vero revelatione, quum Deus rationem nostram naturalem revelatione, seu prophetia [illegible], atque emendat. [illegible] hinc [illegible], ut lex divina dicatur lucerna [illegible] ante pedes, [illegible] in tenebroso loco [illegible] et Christus lux, veritas, via. [illegible] ergo [illegible], ut [illegible] suo [illegible] rationem [illegible] contoruet.

[illegible] Malebranchius [illegible] auctoritate D. Augustini [illegible], Doctor mentis [illegible] intelligere [illegible] divina, [illegible] Deum mente humana [illegible] omnium notiones [illegible] manifestare [illegible] videre [illegible], et [illegible] intellectu [illegible], quo res [illegible] valemus [illegible] ratione naturali [illegible] quam bonum [illegible] Deinde [illegible] in contrarium [illegible] sententiam Augustinus, [illegible] loco [illegible] Malebranchianus. [illegible] docet Augustinus, nullius hominis authoritati [illegible] esse, nisi quando divina authoritate [illegible] ratione confirmatur. [illegible] ergo D. Augustini authoritas nulla [illegible] falsa [illegible] ratione naturali, systema Malebranchianum [illegible] confirmaret. [illegible] ratione [illegible] adductum ex sententia Platonicorum, aut Chaldaeorum, argumentum.

Si [illegible] omnipotentiam [illegible] Malebranchius, [illegible] Deum omnia manifestare [illegible] [illegible] utro [illegible]. Verum, [illegible] a potentia ad actum, ut aiunt [illegible], non valet illatio, [illegible] conclusio; praesertim quum experientia adversetur, veram omnium magistra, necnon naturalis ratio, ut superius satis probatum est.

Caput 3tium.

De Universalitate Idearum.

Omnes ideae [illegible], vel universales sunt, vel particulares vel singulares, [illegible] quod [illegible] universales et particulares [illegible]. Hoc loco, quid in idea universali magnopere interest distinguere, et quot sint ideae universales observandum est.

Et primo cum Authore Artis cogitandi in idea universali duo accurate distinguenda sunt, Comprehensio scilicet, et Extensio. [illegible] comprehensione veniunt omnia illa attributa [illegible] in idea continentur, et nullum prorsus negligi queat, quin ipsamet idea destruatur. Sic comprehensio e.g. ideae Trianguli includit illius extensionem, [illegible] aequalitatem cum duobus rectis, adeo ut ex hisce attributis nullum demi possit, quin idea destruatur [illegible] triangulorum species sese extendit. Notandum autem est, quod licet idea [illegible] attributis spoliare possimus, quin destruatur, possumus tamen quandam extensionem restringere, illam quibusdam duntaxat [illegible] applicando, quin destruatur.

[illegible] et indeterminate, ut si dicerem Aliquod animal [illegible] idea particularis evadit, quum ad partem tantummodo subjectorum [illegible] omnia prius comprehendebat, se extendat, nec tamen pars illa, ad quam restringitur, determinetur.

[illegible] communiter numerantur ideae universales, Genus scilicet, Species, Differentia, Proprium, et Accidens. Hujusmodi [illegible] universales ideae vocantur [illegible] modum [illegible] vel genus, vel speciem, vel differentiam, vel [illegible] Porphyrii Isagoge inscribitur, quod sit veluti quaedam ad Aristotelis Categorias introductio. Licet autem in eo libello, ut notat Christianæ Religionis, a qua receperat, inferret in nos hostis, plura ille [illegible] contraria docuerit, [illegible] accu rate universalium idearum numerum, naturamque exposuerit, dignus est qui in hac parte laudetur, propterea quod ab inutilibus veterum sophistarum quæstionibus abstinuerit. Has et singulas breviter explicemus.

Genus definire possumus attributum universale commune pluribus differentibus specie. Sic figura est [illegible] genus respectu parallelogrammi, et trapezii. Et substantia genus est respectu substantiæ extensæ, quæ corpus dicitur, et substantiæ co gitantis, quæ spiritus appellatur. [illegible] quadrilatera communis est parallelogrammo, et trapezio [illegible] differant, quam substantia corpori, et spiritui. Genus dividitur primo in proximum et remotum. [illegible] illud, [illegible] enuntiatur de rebus specie differentibus, et nullum aliud attributum [illegible] rationem [illegible] possit. Remotum vero est illud, quod aliud genus [illegible] continet. Sic quod homo, et bellua [illegible] genere animalis, in vita vero suo genere viventis, animal est genus proximum, vivens remotum [illegible] ad hominem, et [illegible] bestia [illegible] referant. [illegible] dividitur genus in supremum, medium, et infimum. Supremum dicitur [illegible] attributum, cui vera conveniat generis ratio. Medium, [illegible] supra, et infra se alterum [illegible] genus. Infimum vero, sub quo genus aliud non reperitur. Attributum [illegible] entis est genus supremum, quod nullum sit attributum superius, aut uni versalius, cui generis ratio conveniat. Vivens est genus medium quod et [illegible] habeat universalius, et animal particula rius. Animal autem est genus infimum, quia sub animali genus alterum non reperitur.

Species est attributum quod multis individuis, seu singularibus convenit. Homo [illegible] est species, quod sit attributum Petro, Ca rolo, Francisco, et ceteris singularibus, seu individuis conveniens. Si quis quærat, quid sit Petrus, respondebimus esse hominem, idest compositum quoddam ex mente, et corpore. Individuum vero, seu singulare dicitur, quod suo specie [illegible] dividi nequit in plura talia, quale ipsum est [illegible] non potest in duos Platones secari, licet dividi possit in partes. Tripliciter distinguitur species, suprema, media, et infima. Suprema vocatur, quæ supremo generi imme diate subjicitur. Media, quæ sub genere medio posita est: Infima, quæ nullas sub se continet species, sed tantum individua. Sic species suprema appellatur corpus, quia immediate subjicitur substantiæ. Species media dicitur animal, quod positum sit sub genere viventis: Infima vero species est homo, quia singularia tantum, Petrum nempe, Carolum, et Franciscum sub se continet. Notandum tamen est solam speciem infimam, quæ et prædicabilis nuncupatur, pro prie speciem appellari. Soli enim est, cui ratio generis omnino repugnat.

Differentia generatim sumpta est id, quo unum differt ab alio. Duplex autem est, essentialis, et accidentalis. Dif ferentia essentialis, de qua nunc agimus, dicitur attributum illud, per quod una res essentialiter ab alia differt, quacum tamen in genere convenit. Hujusmodi est in homine rationalitas. Per hanc enim homo a belluis distinguitur essentia liter, licet cum iis conveniat respectu generis, scilicet animalitatis. Dividitur primo differentia essentialis in pr oximam, et remotam. Proxima est, quæ genus proximum; Remota, quæ genus remotum dividit. Sic ratio corporis differentia dicitur remota, rationalitas vero proxima, quia illa remotum substantiæ genus, hæc genus proximum animalis distribuit. Dividitur 2do in supremam, mediam, et infimam. Suprema est, quæ genus supremum, media quæ medium, infima, quæ genus infimum dividit. Sic ratio corporis, quæ supremum genus substantiæ dividit, est diffe rentia suprema. Vitalitas, quæ genus medium viventis, est media: Rationalitas, quæ infimum secat genus animalis, est differentia infima. Dividitur postremo in genericam, et specificam. Generica differentia est, quæ ita dividit genus, ut totum ex illa, atque ex ipso genere consurgens, [illegible] quæ subjecta eidem [illegible], comparetur, verum adhu[illegible] generis rationem contineat. Specifica vero differentia vocatur, quæ ita genus distribuit, ut [illegible] speciem constituat. Hinc differentia tam suprema, quam media generica est, Differentia vero infima, semper est speci fica.

Proprium recte definiri posset attributum essentiale 2darium, quod alicui speciei omni, et soli semper convenit. Sed apud Porphyrium Cap. 4. Isagoges quadruplex distinguitur. Primo est aliud proprium, quod soli alicui speciei convenit; non omni, ut soli homini convenit ratio medici, non omni. 2do, quod omni speciei convenit, ut omni ho mini convenit duos habere pedes. 3tio, quod omni, et soli speciei convenit, sed non semper. Ut omni, et soli homini convenit canescere, inquit Porphyrius, non quidem semper, sed in senectute tantum. Quarto denique aliud proprium est, quod convenit omni, et soli alicui speciei, et semper. Ut omni, et soli homini, ait Porphyrius, semper con venit risibilitas. Proprium quarto modo sumptum, de quo duntaxat [illegible] est, dividi solet in genericum, et specificum. Primum dicitur, quod rei convenit ratione attributi generici. 2dum, quod illi convenit ratione diffe rentiæ specificæ. Sic impenetrabilitas generica corporum proprietas est, quia illis inest, quatenus specie sunt corpora, adeo licet specie inter se differant. Vero autem [illegible] cupiditas est proprietas hominum specifica, quod illis conveniat, quatenus ratione donantur.

Accidens definitur a Porphyrio Cap. 5. Isagoges id, quod adest, et abest sine subjecti, quod afficit, sive interitu, cor ruptione. Sic figura rotunda, quod possit adesse ceræ, aut ab illa abesse sine illius corruptione, accidens di citur. Sic, quod cogitatio aliqua [illegible], vel recordatio possit adesse menti, vel ab ea abesse sine ipsius in teritu, accidens appellatur. Quamvis enim fieri non possit, ut aut corpus sine aliqua generatim figura consistat, aut mens sine aliqua cogitatione sit; quod tamen et corpus sine hac, vel illa figura, et mens absque hac, vel illa co gitatione consistat, tam figura, quam cogitatio, accidentia appellantur. Hinc primo dicitur accidens in [illegible] bile, et inseparabile. Primum est, quod separari potest a subjecto; ut quadrata, vel circularis figura in corpore. 2dum est, quod non potest, nisi in mente, separari a subjecto; ut nigredo respectu corvi, vel Æthiopis, candor respectu nivis. Dividitur 2do accidens in extrinsecum, et intrinsecum. Extrinsecum illud est, quod extrinsecus subjectum denominat, ut quum paries dicitur visus a visione, quæ est ipsi extrinseca. Intrinsecum est illud, quod in ipsa re, seu subjecto recipit, ut amor, qui afficit mentem, motus, qui afficit corpus. Dividitur denique in absolutum, et relativum. Primum est, quod competit ad subjectum absolute spectatum, ut motus, vel situs respectu corporis. 2dum est, quod ad subjectum quoddam pertinet ad aliud comparatum, ut similitudo, æqualitas. Animadvertendum tamen est, quod licet modus seu accidens illud sit, quod naturaliter existere nequit, nisi in substantia, adeoque a substantia quammaxime differt, contingere tamen potest, ut substantia alteri circumposita respectu illius accidentaria sit, quamvis proprie modum, vel accidens dici nequeat. Sic e.g. vestis, tametsi substantia sit, quia ad essentiam hominis non pertineat, eidem accidentaria dicitur, non tamen aut modus, aut accidens hominis. Accidens igitur, seu modus est attributum aliquod universale, quod multis subjectis conjunctum convenire potest, non necessario.

Caput 4tum.

De veritate, falsitate, claritate, obscuritate, distinctione, et confusione Idearum.

Expendendæ nunc sunt præcipuæ idearum proprietates. Atque ut a veritate exordiamur, quum verum, ut ait D. Augustinus, sit illud, quod ita se habet, ut cognitori videtur, si velit, possitque cognoscere, et veritas nostræ cognitionis sit illius conformitas cum re cognita; vera erit idea, si ita se res habuerit, quemadmodum in idea nostra repræsentatur. Quum vero e contrario illud sit falso cognitum, quod non ita revera se habet, quemadmodum cognoscenti videtur; falsa erit idea, si res aliter fuerit in se, ac ipsamet idea exhibetur. Notandum tamen est cum Lockio Libro 2do, Cap. 32, n.o 19, quod licet, secundum communem loquendi modum, ideæ quandoque veræ, quandoque falsæ nuncupentur; re tamen accurate spectata, veritas, et falsitas judiciis tribuendæ sunt, non simplicibus rerum perceptionibus, seu ideis. Quum non tam veritatem, quam falsitatem semper contineat aut tacita, aut expressa aliqua affirmatio, sive negatio, proindeque aliquod judicium; nulla idea, sive sit cum suo objecto conformis, sive ab eo dissentiat, proprie in se dici potest aut vera, aut falsa.

Idea clara dicitur a Cartesio prima parte Principiorum, n.o 45, quæ luculenter, ac sola mentis attentione innotescit et ab Authore Artis Cogitandi Parte 1. Cap. 9, quæ vividum sui sensum nobis imprimit. Idea vero obscura appellatur, quæ menti attendenti non satis liquido apparet. Lockius Lib. 2. Cap. 29. n.o 2do exemplo visus explicat fortasse clarius, quid veniat nomine ideæ claræ, vel obscuræ. Ait n. Quum lux sit illud quod objecta visibilia nobis perspicua reddit, illud dicimus obscurum, quod in luce haud collocatum est clara satis ad res ita illustrandas ut colores, et figuræ ejus accuratissime cerni possint, quæque in meliori luce maxime perspicua forent. Similiter ideæ nostræ simplices claræ sunt, quum tales sunt, quales ab objectis ipsis, e quibus desumptæ erant in sensatione, aut perceptione rite ordinata repræsentant. Dum memoria eas hoc modo retinet, et menti, quandocumque opus fuerit, ita exhibere potuerit, claræ sunt ideæ. Quatenus vero primæ sui fulgoris aliquid amiserunt, aut earum venustas vetustate defloruit eatenus obscuræ sunt. Hactenus Lockius. Disputant hoc loco inter se Cartesiani, utrum aliqua esse possit idea clara, quæ tamen non sit distincta. Cartesius affirmat exemplo ideæ caloris, quam quisque habet de dolore. Hanc n. ait esse claram, et vividam, non tamen distinctam, quum sæpe confundatur calor, qui percipitur, cum eo, quod flammæ inest, confundatur, quum tamen uterque calor sit prorsus dissimilis. Verum ad hanc rem prolixe Author Artis Cogitandi loco supra laudato Dicere possumus, inquit, quod omnis idea sit distincta, quatenus est clara, ideo non aliter obscuræ sunt confusæ, quam quia sunt obscuræ. Sic doloris sensus, qui nos ferit, clarus est, atque etiam distinctus, id vero, quod in eo confusum, doloris nempe in manu inesse, non est clarum.

Distincta idea est quæ evidentiam ab omnibus aliis ita sejunctam exhibet, ut minime cum iis confundi possit. Sic distincta est idea, qua hominem percipimus sub ratione animalis rationalis. Per hanc siquidem convenientiam hominem a ceteris quibuscumque rebus sejunctum. Idea vero confusa dicitur ea, in qua plura diversa nobis occurrunt, seu quæ multa simul præcipit. Sic confusa est idea, qua hominem percipimus sub ratione animalis tantum. Occurrit n. menti nostræ homo, quatenus dumtaxat cum pluribus aliis convenit animalibus.

Plurimas esse in nobis ideas, quæ claræ, atque distinctæ sint omnes fatentur. Licet autem in iis recensendis, maxime inter se differant Philosophi, plerique tamen consentiunt, ideas, quas mens habet, sui ipsius, suarum perceptionum, cogitationum, ideas extensionis, motus, quietis, entis in genere existentiæque, numeri, temporis esse claras esse, atque distinctas.

Causæ obscuritatis in ideis simplicibus, ut recte tradit Lockius, sunt vel organa obtusa, vel species ab objectis levissime in animo impressæ, vel memoriæ debilitas, quæ rerum imagines non tam uti acceperit, retinere potest. Causas hasce auferre, nostrum non est. Sed alia sunt vitia, ex quibus obscuræ atque confusæ ideæ proficiscantur quæ, quum volumus, magna saltem ex parte, tollere possumus. Ea fusius explicat laudatus Lockius et ante Lockium Clericus in suis Tractatu suo Metaphysica Quæst. 3tia. Pro nostris impedimenta organorum omnis idearum confusio ex duplici potissimum capite oritur, nimirum ex conditione, et natura mentis nostræ. Tum ex plus sæpe in modis

Ea est mentis nostræ indoles, ut non progredi, sed evolare sentiat et recentes legit, et [illegible] attingere. Hinc [illegible] in ideis nostris oritur confusio, quod res ipsas inconsiderate, non defixis veluti oculis et attento animo intueamur. Plerumque etiam, quæ pura intellectione assequi tantum possumus, quæque nullum habent impressum in cerebro vestigium, hæc imaginari volumus, et tanquam res corporeas effingere. Ideæ quoque male a rebus abstractæ, nec satis definitæ, aut circumscriptæ, vocum ambiguitas, et alia quamplura magnam in ideis nostris pariunt obscuritatem.

Quare, ut clarius, quo fieri potest, atque distinctius percipiamus, animadvertendum est nobis primo, ut in rebus considerandis summo studio vitetur præcipitatio mentis. Omnes enim, inquit Tullius Lib. 1. de Officiis, Cap. 6. trahimur, et ducimur ad cognitionis, et scientiæ cupiditatem, in qua excellere pulchrum putamus, labi autem, et errare, nescire, et decipi, malum, et turpe ducimus. In hoc genere hoc vitium notandum est, ne incognita pro cognitis supponamus, hisque temere assentiamur. Quod vitium effugere qui volet (omnes autem velle debent) adhibebit ad considerandas res et tempus, et diligentiam. Hæc autem mentis attentio omnibus quidem, potissimum vero adolescentibus est necessaria propter leves, vagasque plerumque eorum cogitationes. Secundo unum tantum objectum, non plura simul contemplari debemus. Quum enim percipiendi vis non infinita tota in nobis sit, verum etiam terrestris undique circumfusa, multisque obstaculis impedita, rerum multitudine adeo opprimitur, ut ad eas distincte percipiendas incapax prorsus sit, et quare [illegible]. Tertio, quum de iis agitur quæ sunt spiritualia, vel tametsi corporea, sensibus percipi non possunt, cavendum est, ne nos quandam sibi in cerebro efformet imaginem, in qua, non secus ac in speculo, res ipsas prodidit. Ita enim non solum rerum omnino dissimilium proprietates confunderentur, verum etiam id earum uni tribueretur, quod illi repugnat. Quarto cavendum est, ne res, quas contemplamur, ideis nostris ita accommodemus, ut certum nobis sit eas revera esse hujusmodi, cujusmodi in ipsis ideis esse videntur. Quia enim non res ab ideis nostris, sed ideæ a rebus ipsis descendunt, nihil fere est quod hac [illegible] licentia Philosopho [illegible]. Quinto ad claritatem, et distinctionem idearum plurimum confert rem, quam consideramus, cum aliis sibi cognitis conferre, easque comparare inter se mutuo, attente perpendendo quid illis omnibus commune sit, quidve singulis proprium. Tandem, ut confusio idearum aut ex abstractionibus, aut ex vocum ambiguitate orta auferatur, premittendæ sunt definitiones, quæ vocum æquivocationes tollunt, et rectæ divisiones adhibendæ sunt, quæ magnam rebus lucem afferre solent. Nam, ut ait Quintilianus Lib. 11 Cap. 2do Qui recte diviserit, nunquam poterit in rerum ordine errare.

Caput 5.

De Ideis Abstractis.

Ea est imperfectio mentis humanæ, ut nequeat ad plura simul unica cognitione diffundi, nec queat multa simul, nisi obscure, et confuse percipere. Quæ sunt in nobis cognitiones, gradatim sunt acquisitæ; nec possumus compositas res alio modo comprehendere, quam eas attente considerando, et per singulas partes contemplando. Hujusmodi autem cogitandi modus Abstractio nuncupatur, propterea quod ea, quæ conjuncta sunt, abstrahimus, seu unum sine altero percipimus. Ita quæ natura individuo nexu conjunxit, ob intellectus imbecillitatem divellere cogimur.

Tribus modis abstractio fieri potest. Primo enim cognoscimus per abstractionem quum partes aliquas, seu partes alicujus rei, quæ integrantes dicuntur, ita percipimus, ut unam sine altera percipiamus. Hoc modo cognoscimus corpus humanum. Illud enim in suas partes dividimus, et singulas partes, caput sine pedibus, manus sine brachiis seorsum consideramus. Vocamus autem hic cognoscendi modus formalis Abstractio a Scholasticis nuncupatur, quum tamen quæ seorsum ita cognoscuntur, realiter ad invicem distinguuntur, absque sola mentis consideratione, improprie abstractio appellatur.

Cognoscimus 2do per abstractionem, quum modum sine re vel rem sine modo consideramus. Quamvis enim fieri nequeat, ut modus sine re subsistat, possumus tamen ad rei modum attendere, quin rem ipsam, cui modus inhæret, spectemus. Sic a Geometris pro objecto Geometriæ statutum est corpus extensum in longitudine, latitudine, et profunditate. Ut enim illud accurate cognoscerent, primus unam tantum ejus dimensionem considerandam susceperunt, longitudinem scilicet, quam lineam nominarunt. Postea binas dimensiones, longitudinem nempe, et latitudinem, quas superficiem dixerunt. Demum considerantes omnes simul tres dimensiones longitudinem, latitudinem, et profunditatem illud corpus, seu solidum appellarunt. Hic autem cognoscendi modus vocatur a Scholasticis Abstractio mo[illegible]

3tio abstractionis ope percipimus, quum universales notiones sine singularibus, naturam humanam sine individuis consideramus. Atque hæc vera, et propria abstractio est, cujus usus non solum in Logica, verum etiam in tota Philosophia, scientiisque omnibus maxima est utilitas. Per hanc enim abstractionem singula rerum attributa clare, atque distincte percipimus, ex particularibus ideis universales ideas efformamus, atque ex universalibus universaliores, uti supra ostensum probatumque est.

Caput 6.

De Ideis rerum, et signorum.

Quum ita mens nostra objectum aliquod considerare possit, ut et illius duntaxat naturam spectare queat, et spectata ipsius natura, ad aliud etiam quodpiam sese possit convertere: hinc ideae rerum ab ideis signorum distinguendae sunt. Idea rei dicitur, quum objectum aliquod in se ipso, et in propria illius natura considerantes, non convertimus mentem ad aliud, quod ab ipsomet objecto possit repraesentari. Hujusmodi sunt ideae solis, Terrae, maris. Idea signi appellatur, quum istud objectum aliquod consideramus, ut propter ipsius objecti naturam, aliquid ab eo repraesentatum recipiamus. Sic idea Regis in tabula depicti idea signi dicitur, quia nos hujusmodi tabulam intuentes, et tabulam depictam concipimus, et Regem per ipsammet repraesentatum. Signum enim duas continet ideas, alteram ejus rei, quae repraesentat, alteram illius, quae ab ista repraesentatur, ipsiusque natura in hoc sita est, ut 2dam ideam per primam excitet.

Signorum divisiones multae fieri solent. Sed, ut praecipuas duntaxat attingamus, Dividitur primo signum in certum et probabile. Sic respiratio in animali est certum signum vitae, pallor autem vultus, probabile signum infirmitatis in homine. In [illegible] considerandae sunt. Utraque enim judicia temeraria [illegible] quod duas has signorum species confundant.

2do alia signa sunt rei juncta, alia a re sejuncta. Symptomata [illegible] signa sunt morborum ac morbis [illegible]

3tio alia signa, ut natura [illegible] illius, quod repraesentat; Alia sunt signa instituta vel remotam habentia cum re figurata relationem, vel nullam, quemadmodum verba signa sunt cogitationum, et characteres verborum.

Traditi hac posita signorum divisione, tria cum Authore artis cogitandi notanda sunt. Primo ex praesentia signi rei significatae praesentiam inferri non posse, quum absentium quoque rerum sint aliqua signa: Ita praesentia pariter signi [illegible] rei significatae [illegible]. Advertendum 2do quod licet res [illegible] repraesentatur; Fieri enim potest, ut res aliqua in quodam statu se ipsam referat in alio statu, quemadmodum fieri potest, ut homo aliquis in proprio cubiculo semetipsum repraesentet concionantem. Sola enim status distinctio sufficit [illegible]. 3tio [illegible] advertendum est, quod quum ea sit signi natura, ut excitet per ideam rei [illegible] rei figuratae, quamdiu [illegible] excitet [illegible] natura fuerit destructa. [illegible] colores in Iride, quos Deus elegit, ut [illegible] humanum genus Diluvio deleturum, reales esse, et veros, dummodo sensus nostri easdem semper [illegible] nobis, easdemque utantur ad Dei promissa concipienda.

Caput 7.

De Categoriis, sive entium Generibus.

Quia [illegible] res [illegible] modos [illegible] modos cum rebus, resque, earum modos, et res modificatas simul permisceamus, et indistincte concipiamus; Inde a fit, ut tanta sit in nobis obscuritas, et confusio idearum. Quare, ut [illegible] claritas, atque distinctio in [illegible] summa [illegible] reducenda sunt [illegible] veluti series rerum, et modorum.

Hujusmodi series, quae a Quintiliano Elementa vocantur, graeca voce dicuntur Categoriae, seu, ut interpretatur Capella, [illegible]cationes. A Boethio autem caeterisque Dialecticis appellantur Praedicamenta [illegible] Aristotele, communes fecit. [illegible]

Decem recensentur a [illegible] Substantia, Quantitas, Relatio, Qualitas, Actio, Passio, Locus, Tempus, Situs, Habitus.

Substantia [illegible] qualitates [illegible] substantiae sunt. Hinc substantia ratione substantiae, quatenus nimirum est Entitas per se subsistens, alteri substantiae contraria esse non potest, sed omnis substantiarum repugnantia, et oppositio oritur ab accidentibus. Ad substantiam, velut varias species referuntur substantia spiritualis, et corporea, vivens, et vita destituta [illegible]

Quantitas est extensio partium substantiae. Dividitur in continuam, et discretam. Continua est ea, quae partes habet inter se connexas: ut linea, tempus; Discreta vocatur, cujus partes sejunctae sunt: ut numerus. Quantitas continua [illegible] dividitur in permanentem, et successivam. Permanens dicitur, quae partes omnes simul existentes habet: ut superficies [illegible] est extensio [illegible] extensio [illegible] sio numerum in longum, latum, et profundum.

Relatio est ordo, sive respectus, sive habitudo unius ad aliud [illegible] ad servum, Principis ad subditum, solis ad Lunam.

Qualitas definitur a Peripateticis accidens modificativum substantiæ, sive accidens, per quod substantia dicitur qualis; ut per calorem calida, per albedinem alba. Dividitur autem qualitas ab Aristotele in Habitum, Potentiam, Patibilem qualitatem, et Figuram. Habitus est facilitas, et propensio firmata ad operandum, quæ frequentatis actibus, vel exercitatione acquiritur, et habetur [illegible]. Quod si habitus debilis adhuc sit, dispositio vocatur. Potentia est vis a natura rei indita ad aliquid agendum, ut potentia visiva; quæ si debilis, et infirma fuerit, impotentia nuncupatur. Patibilis qualitas est illud accidens [illegible], vel [illegible] afficere [illegible], ut calor, frigus; eadem vero affectio [illegible], passio dicitur. Figura denique est extrema corporis [illegible] ordine resultans: ut figura quadrata, vel rotunda.

Actio a Peripateticis concipitur ut accidens [illegible] causæ [illegible] agens. [illegible] calefactio [illegible]. Actio vero [illegible], ut [illegible], [illegible]tare, scire, amare; vel extra se: ut scribere, secare, frangere, manifestare.

Passio est illud, quo res aliqua constituitur patiens, seu effectum recipiens. Sic calefactio [illegible] hominis, vel alterius corporis calefacti dicitur passio.

Locus secundum Aristotelem est determinatio rei locatæ, et duplex distinguitur, definitivus [illegible], et circumscriptivus. Primus convenit substantiæ spirituali, quum ita spiritus sit in loco, ut totus eam sit in qualibet parte loci. 2dus proprius est corporis, quum ita corporea substantia sit in loco, ut ab ipsa loci superficie circumferatur, et contineatur, ita ut [illegible] corporis parte, quæ est in loco, [illegible] corpori.

Tempus dicitur accidens resultans in corpore, quo corpus in aliqua temporis differentia concipitur. Designari autem solet adverbiis heri, cras, et similibus.

Situs, sive Positura est dispositio partium corporis in ordine ad locum: ut situs Urbis, vel Ædificii. Situs [illegible] præcipue competit viventibus, et [illegible] pro dispositione partium [illegible].

Habitus tandem definitur corpus quoddam alteri corpori circumpositum, ut Toga. Ad habitum [illegible] tres requiri conditiones: Prima est, quod corpus adjacens corpori, cui inhæret, utile sit: 2da, quod a corpore circumferatur: [illegible]. Hinc defectu primæ conditionis, compedes ferrei, defectu 2dæ, stragula, defectu 3tiæ, plumæ, crines, ungues a prædicamento Habitus excluduntur.

Hæ sunt [illegible] Aristotelis Categoriæ, de quibus apud Peripateticos magna animorum contentione [illegible] cognitionem omnem verumque scientiam [illegible], vel [illegible] numero aut ordine [illegible]. [illegible] Aristoteles [illegible] gravidæ, parum utiles sunt, tantum abest, ad vitæ formandum, [illegible] tare animadvertit Eduardus Corsinus Logicæ Partis 1. Cap. 19, divisio, et distributio ista paulo liberius ab Aristotele [illegible] continet [illegible], cujusmodi sunt [illegible] Dominus appellatur: aut quæ nova realis entitas in locrate effingi potest, quod in Academia [illegible] vel carcere reperiatur. Si denominationes omnes, vel modi extrinseci admitti deberent, jam non decem, sed infinita propemodum entium genera [illegible]. Illud est a Philosophis Recentioribus observatum est, [illegible] Aristotelis [illegible] ad unum, aut certe ad pauciora numero reduci potuerant.

Recentiores [illegible] sex [illegible] enumerant [illegible] genera [illegible] mensura, motus, positura, quomodocumque ea definiatur. Mensura [illegible] quantitatem [illegible]. Motus est translatio, sive migratio corporis ex uno in alium locum. Positura est [illegible] illa proprietas, quæ intima est, quæque variari non potest, quin eadem substantia mutetur. [illegible] addunt Quietem. Verumtamen quum non sit nova realis entitas; aut realis [illegible] privatio motus, inter Categorias [illegible] collocanda est [illegible] exsurgendas esse [illegible].

Caput 8.

De Idearum signis, seu de natura vocabulorum.

[illegible] ea, [illegible], sola idearum [illegible], ceteris [illegible] sa neque tam nos juvarent, neque tam essent in nobis manifesta, nisi quæ concepissemus mente, promere eas loquendo nossemus. [illegible] cendo serva possumus; idcirco nunc de eis dicenda sunt, de signis idearum, seu de vocibus, quarum adminiculo ideas nostras manifestamus.

De vocabulorum natura, [illegible] Tezure natos [illegible]

[illegible] in quendam [illegible] commoda [illegible] expoliverint. Si homines non aliam habuissent originem, nihil in hac re dici probabilius posset. Alii cum Cratylo docuerunt primos homines sua sponte naturâ fuisse locutos, et [illegible] linguam quandam naturalem. Nec desunt qui putant infantes, si nullo hominum commercio educarentur, hanc linguam lo[quuturos] [illegible] al [illegible] propria naturâ significent.

Certe autem non aliud est vocabula [illegible] et arbitraria nostrarum idearum [illegible] non idem [illegible] hominum docuit multis argumentis [illegible] primo, licet quidam sint vocabula, quae [illegible] significata habere videntur, ut [illegible] murmur [illegible] stridor; haec tamen adeo pauca, et levia sunt, ut immerito inferatur singula vocabula ex ipsa rerum naturâ fuisse exorta [illegible] murmur [illegible] omnes [illegible] contraria [illegible] bus significent. 2do, si ipsamet naturâ naturalem quandam linguam nos edoceret, et qui sine societate educarentur, loquaces essent, et loquerentur surdi, quorum lingua non est impedita, et homines universi eodem sermone uterentur; [illegible] experientiae repugnent, dicendum est vocabula [illegible] articulato [illegible] aut [illegible] quibus animi conceptus, seu ideas pro libito significant.

Errant [illegible] naturâ [illegible] nullo modo linguam loquuti essent. Sed ea lingua [illegible] constabat, et simplicissimis vocabulis, quae duobus illis [illegible] certum est vocabula [illegible] et [illegible] arbitraria [illegible] autoritate.

[illegible] canones ac [illegible] vocum [illegible] vocabula sunt arbitraria [illegible] significare [illegible] vocabulum [illegible] vocabula [illegible] notiones [illegible] quicunque hunc canonem non [illegible] authores non intelligunt [illegible] quam author [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ recipiunt.

2do propter arbitrarium vocabulorum [illegible] ut [illegible] vocabulis non [illegible] notiones [illegible] Quare cavendum est ne vocabula [illegible] ex propria notione [illegible] errores hoc canone [illegible] haurimus [illegible] secundum nostras ideas, et [illegible] opiniones [illegible] vera accipimus. [illegible] canones servanti [illegible] qui vel authores legunt, vel aliquem [illegible] audiunt, si [illegible] cipi nolunt.

[illegible] autem vel dicturi [illegible] sunt animadvertant [illegible] ideam [illegible] abutentur [illegible] ut homines [illegible] vocabula [illegible] in familiari sermone [illegible] interrogati quid significent, nesciunt explicare.

2do cavere debent, ne cogitationes suas [illegible] exprimant [illegible] curam duntaxat ideam.

3tio, uni vocabulo [illegible] non sunt [illegible] idea [illegible] dicta est, quot [illegible] in scholis [illegible] existere [illegible]

4to cavendum est a vocibus indeterminatis, [illegible] translatis.

Caput 9.

De Speciebus, et Proprietatibus vocum.

Grammatici, [illegible] octo orationis partes [illegible] octo enumerarunt [illegible] terminorum species [illegible] Pronomen, verbum, Participium, [illegible] Interjectionem, et Conjunctionem. Duae tamen ex illis praecipuae sunt, verbum nimirum, et nomen, tum quia [illegible] tum quia ad illas caeterae revocari possunt.

Nomen definitur ab Aristotele vox ex instituto significans sine tempore; significans nimirum simplicitur ideas ac idearum objecta: ut Deus, homo, sol. Idem etiam de Pronomine intelligendum est.

Verbum ab eodem Aristotele definitur, vox ex instituto significans cum tempore [illegible] vox significans affirmationem cum designatione personae, numeri, et temporis. [illegible] verbum ad judicia exprimenda institutum est, atque hujusmodi significandi vi a caeteris orationis partibus distinguitur; 2dario vero temporis etiam, numeri [illegible] ferentias complectitur.

Participium, ut ipsa vox sonat, nomen [illegible] temporis etiam differentias [illegible] significent, sed tempus etiam, in quo [illegible] exercet. Caeterae orationis partes: Praepositio, conjunctio, [illegible] verbum excipias, vel modum rei exprimunt [illegible] modos [illegible] et accidentia [illegible] significant, quae cogitationes nostras, aut res exprimant. Verum [illegible] omnia clare, distincte [illegible] possunt [illegible] idearum conditio et natura, qua istas voces exprimunt [illegible]. Talis [illegible] natura vocis aut termini [illegible] rei, aut mode [illegible] vocis [illegible] significati. [illegible] plures oriuntur vocum seu terminorum [illegible] quae breviter indicare sufficiat.

Nam primo terminus alius est substantivus seu absolutus, alius connotativus, seu adjectivus. [illegible] substantivus est substantiam significat [illegible] ut homo, prudentia, adjectivus rem modificatam exprimit ut albus, prudens.

2do vel Categorematicus est, vel Syncategorematicus. Primus per se significat ut homo, [illegible] 2dus [illegible] significat quid alteri [illegible]: ut omnis, aliquis, nullus.

3tio dividitur in universalem, seu communem, et in particularem. Universalis dicitur qui aliquid significat commune pluribus ut [illegible]. Particularis, qui aliquid significat [illegible] [illegible] ut Petrus. Terminus universalis dividitur in univocum, aequivocum, et analogum. Univocus est, qui eandem significationem habet in multis, sic [illegible] in significatione animalis homo et brutum [illegible] conveniant. Vox animal univoce dicitur tam de homine, quam de bruto. Terminus aequivocus est, qui res significat omnino diversas, et in solo nomine convenientes: ut Canis, qui dicitur de pisce, de sidere, et de animali domestico. Analogus est qui res diversas significat, id est [illegible] attributionem [illegible], vel aliquam inter se proportionem, et [illegible] habentes. Sic vox sanum analogice dicitur de animali, medicina, et colore, quia animal gaudet sanitate, medicina illam [illegible], eamque color indicat.

4to dividitur terminus in divisivum, seu distributivum, et in collectivum, seu [illegible]. Distributivus est ille, qui pluribus convenit et simul acceptis et seorsum sumptis ut sidus [illegible] omnibus, et singulis convenit sideribus. Collectivus est, qui plura significat solum prout conjuncta sunt: ut Populus, Civitas, exercitus.

Dividitur 5 in simplicem, seu incomplexum et in compositum, seu complexum. Simplex una tantum voce rem unam significat ut Sol, Arbor; Compositus vero plures res vel plures voces complectitur. [illegible] terminus complexus voce, sed non re: e.g. Marcus Tullius Cicero; Alius est complexus re non voce: ut Geometra, quo homo simul, et Geometria comprehenduntur; Alius denique et re, et voce complexus: ut Tullius Orator, qui duas res duabus vocibus indicat.

Dividitur 6 terminus in impertinentem, et pertinentem. Impertinentes sunt, quorum unus [illegible] excludat [illegible] [illegible] non [illegible] ab altero. In hoc [illegible] termino, Philosophus Miles, neque Miles excludit Philosophum, neque Philosophus Militem. [illegible] non [illegible] Philosophus, ergo Miles. Vel [illegible] Miles, ergo Philosophus. [illegible] pertinentes sunt, quorum unus ex altero deducitur. Ut [illegible], et [illegible]. Termini [illegible] pertinentes sunt qui se se invicem excludunt ut album [illegible]. [illegible] termini dicuntur a [illegible] in Dialecticis pertinentes sequela [illegible] unus ex alio sequitur, et pertinentes repugnantia, [illegible] unus alium excludat.

7o dividitur terminus in terminum primae intentionis, et terminum 2dae intentionis. Primus est, qui res significat, prout in se ipsis sunt, quin ab intellectu nostro pendeant; ut homo, lapis: 2dus est, qui res significat a mente nostra pendentes: ut genus, species, modus.

8vo terminus vel concretus est, vel abstractus. Concretus formam, seu modum exprimit simul cum subjecto, cui inheret: ut album, dulce. Abstractus formam, seu modum ab omni subjecto separatum significat. Ut albedo, dulcedo.

9 vel absolutus est, vel relativus. Primus rem exprimit sine ulla ad aliam relatione: ut Circulus. 2dus rem indicat cum relatione ad aliam: ut [illegible], qui [illegible] [illegible] relatione ad patrem. [illegible] a Dialecticis [illegible] seu terminorum species, quas veluti inutiles praeterimus.

Quum plurimis aliis modis voces pro rebus, ipsis in oratione poni, atque adhiberi consueverint, factum est, ut plures distinguerent terminorum proprietates [illegible], [illegible], Restrictio, Alienatio, et Appellatio.

Suppositio nihil aliud est, quam termini pro re significata positio. Haec autem multiplex est. [illegible] terminus universalis pro omnibus [illegible] significatis ponatur, suppositio vocatur Distributiva completa [illegible] ad [illegible] procedat, [illegible] dicat omne animal [illegible]. Incompleta vero, [illegible] conficitur [illegible] diceret omne animal [illegible] ~~Collectiva [illegible]~~ [illegible] terminus ponatur pro [illegible] conjunctis [illegible] ut si quis diceret Partes Orbis sunt quatuor suppositio nuncupatur Collectiva. Si vero terminus [illegible] pro [illegible] duntaxat [illegible] suppositio erit disjunctiva. Ut si [illegible] aliquis homo est Geometra.

Ampliatio est extensio termini ad omnes temporis, loci, et [illegible] differentias, [illegible] jacent ut si diceres Deus pro omni, homo, mortuus est [illegible] non solum de futuris sed de praeteritis [illegible] [illegible], et [illegible], [illegible], atque [illegible] intelligitur.

Restrictio dicitur, quum amplior termini significatio ad pauciora contrahitur: ut quum vocabulum hoc Orator pro M. Tullio ponitur.

Alienatio est translatio termini a propria ad impropriam, seu metaphoricam significationem. Sic quum Scriptura dicit: [illegible] Leo de [illegible] Juda. Terminus Leo, qui proprie animal indicat [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Christum, qui quum nostrae salutis hostes debellaverit, [illegible]

Appellatio denique, seu denominatio est usus termini tribuentis [illegible] denominationem alteri termino [illegible] Appellatio patebit ex hac Propositione: Mens humana est immortalis in qua [illegible] immortalis [illegible] denominationem menti humanae. [illegible] [illegible] Denominatio [illegible] et Formalis [illegible] [illegible] vox [illegible] homo [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] propositio est [illegible], quum in hac propositione [illegible] homine secundum formam, id est secundum veram, et propriam, quam importat, rationem.

Veteres Dialectici alia etiam plura de speciebus et proprietatibus terminorum fuse et operose tradiderant, quae nos ut investiganda relinquimus; praesertim cum pauca etiam ista, quae in hanc rem diximus, nullius ferme sint usus.

Logicae

Liber 2dus

De Judicio, et Propositionibus.

Caput 1.

De natura Judicii.

Judicium est actus, quo unum de alio vel affirmat mens, vel negat. Deum v. c. esse justum, animam rationalem non esse cum corpore perituram. Tria necessaria sunt, ut rectum de aliqua re judicium proferat. Primo enim necessum est, ut conspicimus duarum idearum, videlicet, ut nobis innotescat tum id, de quo aliquid affirmare volumus, vel negare, tum id, quod illi affirmando conjungimus, vel negando removemus. Sic recte judicare non possumus corpus esse extensum, nisi constet tum quid sit corpus, tum quid extensionis nomine intelligat. 2do ad rectum judicium necessaria est mutua duarum ipsarum idearum comparatio. Nisi enim ideae, quarum una de altera enuntianda est, invicem conferantur, cognoscere non potest mens quae sit earum habitudo, proindeque nec rectum ferre judicium. 3tio necesse est, ut ipsarum idearum habitudo menti reluceat. Nam ex cognitione duntaxat hujus habitudinis determinatur mens ad unam ideam de alia affirmandam, vel negandam.

Hinc judicium vel affirmativum est, vel negativum. Primum est, quum unam ideam alteri convenire affirmamus, ut quum judicamus Plantas esse vita donatas. 2dum est, quum unam ideam alteri non convenire asserimus, ut quum judicamus corpus humanum non esse immortalitate praeditum. Proprietates judicii sunt veritas, et falsitas. Verum erit judicium, si proprio objecto, rei nimirum, quam contemplat mens, dum judicat, consentaneum sit: Falsum erit judicium, si proprio objecto minime congruat. Sic vere judicamus Spiritus non esse extensum, quia substantiae spirituali juncta extensio repugnat. Falsum vero est judicium, quo affirmamus Mercurium, Venerem, caeterasque Planetas lucere lumine proprio, quum revera non proprio lumine luceant, sed reflexo lumine Solis. Judicium itaque a perceptione, seu idea longe diversum est, quum per ideam aliquid duntaxat percipiat mens, nihil affirmando, aut negando, per judicium vero plures ideas vel affirmando conjungat, vel separet negando. Quum autem judicium sit actio mentis duas ideas vel conjungentis, vel separantis, pro certo habendum est illud a mente propria, et congenita sibi vi, produci.

Caput 2dum.

De erroribus in judiciis nostris occurrentibus.

Docent Dialectici, nec immerito, falsa omnia judicia vel ex praejudicatis infantiae opinionibus, vel ex nimis properata, et praecipiti mentis festinatione produci. Ut ergo judiciorum falsitas quoad fieri potest evitemus, hujusmodi errorum fontes accurate examinandi sunt, et quaenam sint adhibenda remedia.

Infantiae praejudicia vocant falsas illas opiniones, quas, cum infantes essemus, ex sensuum praesertim impressionibus hausimus. Nam, ut ait Tullius [illegible] nos simul atque editi in lucem, et suscepti sumus, in omni continuo pravitate, et in summa opinionum perversitate versamur, ut pene cum lacte nutricis errorem suxisse videamur. Quum vero Parentibus redditi, deinde Magistris traditi sumus, tum [illegible] errorum et vanitati veritas, et opinioni confirmatae natura ipsa cedat. Falsis nos pueros opinionibus a teneris usque annis imbutos, experientia constat satis habemus. Nam praestante ad [illegible] ideas, quae ex rebus sensibilibus oriuntur in varios errores adducti fuimus, propterea quod tales esse res judicabamus, quales sensuum ope recipiebant. Hinc graviora, densioraque corpora, aurum scilicet, lapidem, lignum plus continere corporeae substantiae, quam aer, aqua, caeteraque leviora et rariora, putavimus. Hinc Antipodas inverso capite incedere, Solem non esse Tellure majorem, Stellas [illegible] aequales judicabamus. Hinc denum innumera falsa judicia orta sunt, quibus a pueritia praeoccupati falsa ea omnia arbitramur, quae illis consentanea non sunt, ea vero quae [illegible], velut certissima amplectimur, quae ex illis derivantur. Nam

Dedidicit animus sero, quod didicit diu.

Praejudicatis infantiae opinionibus accedit praecipitatio mentis, praecipue nimium, et inconsiderate de re ignota, vel non satis explorata, judicium. Quo certe mentis vitio nullum in nobis frequentius. Quum enim ad opinionis, et scientiae cupiditatem trahamur omnes, morae impatientes sumus res inordinate et confuse consideramus, et longe plura sunt, quae odio, amore, cupiditate, iracundia, dolore, laetitia, spe, timore, errore, aut alia emotione mentis, quam ex veritate judicamus. Apud viros, praeclare Auctor Artis cogitandi, in sinum admittimus promiscuam rationum, et Axiomatum farraginem. Haec malumus pro veris supponere, quam ad examen vocare. Si non cum ipsi, credere volumus ab aliis capi, et sic memoriam infinita rerum falsarum, obscurarum, et non intellectarum suppellectile oneramus, e quibus, tan[quam] indubitatis principiis, conclusiones postea deducimus, nequaquam ad ea attendentes, quae vel dicimus, vel cogitamus. Vanitas praeterea et Arrogantia vires addunt huic malo. Pudet nos de quovis dubitare, quidvis ignorare. Malumus inconsulte garrire, et casu pronuntiare, quam nosmetipsos agnoscere non satis instructos ad sententiam ferendam. Tot scatemus ignorantiis, et erroribus, quum tamen nihil difficilius sit, quam hanc tam aequam, tam debitam humanae conditioni confessionem extorquere: Nescio, Fallor.

Ut autem duobus hisce errorum fontibus occurramus, Primo ab omnibus opinionibus expurganda est mens nostra, quas ante hac vitae consuetudine temere arripuimus; earumque nulla deinceps pro vera habeatur oportet, nisi maturo prius examini subjecta fuerit, attentoque animo considerata, et aequa rationis lance expensa. Hinc Cartesius meditatione 1. a dubitatione inchoandum esse Philosophiae studium docuit. Quamdiu enim anticipatae opiniones vigent, tamdiu judicia nostra libera esse nequeunt ab omni erroris periculo; Atque ubi omnia simul complexa sunt, discerni vera a falsis vix possunt, nisi singula in dubium revocentur, et rursus de expendantur. Cavendum tamen est summopere, ne per hanc dubitationis regulam in oppositum vitium incidamus: Nulli sunt qui dignoscentes plurima obscura esse, et incerta, gloriae ducunt asserere nihil certi omnino esse, ita ut veritates manifestissimas, atque ipsam adeo Religionem in dubium revocent. Cum his haudquaquam dubitandum est quum plura sint fere nobiscum nata, et absque ullo examine a teneris usque annis menti infixa, quae nobis, vel levi adhibita attentione, manifestissime constant. Terram, solem, lunam existere; totum esse majus sua parte; Impossibile esse idem simul esse et non esse, et alia sexcenta ita certa sunt, ita clara, ut nullus sanae mentis ea veluti dubia habuerit. Ea quoque, quae ad Fidem pertinent, ab omni prorsus dubitatione excipienda sunt. Quemadmodum enim in iis, quae a naturali ratione dependent, evidentia inquirenda est, ita haec ipsa evidentia nimis temere in iis desiderat, quae credenda quidem sunt, sciri autem minime possunt. Merito propterea Author Artis cogitandi quinque [illegible] peccare existimat, qui in judiciis ferendis praecipites sunt quam qui haesitant sunt, res omnes in dubium revocant. Non minus quippe vitium est tantam menti humanae tribuere vim, ut uno vel simplicissimo intuitu omnia possit clare, distincte percipere, quam mentem in tantum adeo dejicere, ut nihil unquam certi possit ab ipsa comprehendi.

Quoniam vero multa sunt praejudicia, quae non ita facile eradicari ex animo possunt, quaedam sunt quae nobiscum quodammodo nata, sensim quoque incrementa in animo cepere. Totis viribus in id incumbendum est, ut ab omni opinione, quam citra justam rationem hausimus, mens exsurgat, assensum nostrum circa eas res de quibus merito dubitari potest, tamdiu sustinendo donec illas recognoverimus, et accurate, ac sedulo ponderaverimus. Quare omnis in judiciis pertinacia vitanda est, ac nequaquam iis inhaerendi qui praejudicia sua acceptione fuerit, et se erudiri a junioribus potissimum, minime patiuntur. Nam ut recte Lactantius Lib. 2 divinarum Institutionum cap. 8. Quum sapere, idest veritatem quaerere, omnibus sit innatum, sapientiam sibi adimunt, qui sine ullo judicio inventa majorum probant, et ab aliis pecudum more ducuntur! Sed hoc eos fallit, quod majorum nomine posito, non putant fieri posse, ut aut ipsi plus sapiant, quia minores vocantur, aut illi desipuerint, quia majores nominantur.

2do, ut errores, qui oriri solent a mentis praecipitatione, excludantur, judicia nostra tamdiu cognitorum sustinere debemus, donec res, in qua versamur, sedulo examine discussa fuerit, satisque perspecta. Quum enim, ut ait Tullius, tam vitiosum est consentire ad assentiendum aut falsum aut incognitum, sustinenda est potius omnis assensio, ne praecipitet, si temere processerit. Quia tamen non omnia ejusdem ponderis sunt, nec omnia eodem modo incerta, pro diversa rerum judicandarum conditione, singula sunt expendenda. Quae igitur magni sunt ponderis, maximeque abstrusa, longa et diligenti mentis attentione sunt perpendenda; Quae vero sunt facilia, parvique momenti, attenta quidem, sed non tam morosa discussione consideremus oportet. Non minus quippe vitium est, in iis quae pro sua natura, ac difficultate longo, attentoque examine indigent praecipitanter versari, quam in iis perscrutandis, quae scitu faciliora sunt, et parum utilia longam operam impendere.

3tio, praemisso sufficienti rei examine, judicium ita ferendum est ut perceptioni communi respondeat, ita ut si perceptio fuerit clara, atque distincta, firmum sit, et stabile judicium, si obscura fuerit et confusa, aut nullum, aut non nisi timidum proferatur judicium! Itaque redarguendi ii sunt, qui de rebus certis, et evidentibus dubitanter et timide judicant, quam qui de rebus confuse tantum, et obscure cognitis absque ulla haesitatione judicium, veluti ex tripode, pronuntiant.

Cognitis falsorum judiciorum fontibus, et regulis statutis ad recte judicandum, inquirendum nunc est, utrum tradita a Cartesio methodus admitti possit. Diximus dubitandum nobis esse, ut quae in nobis sunt [illegible] opiniones auferantur, atque ut inposterum recte judicemus. Statuendum nunc est, utrum modo, quem docet ille, dubitandum sit initio Philosophiae. Inprimis autem notandum est vel late vel stricte sumi posse dubitationem. Late sumpta dubitatio est, quum intellectus ignorat rationes, quibus propositae quaestionis veritas, et certitudo nititur, Atque haec improprie dicitur dubitatio, quum potius ignorantia appellanda sit. Stricte vero sumpta dubitatio est, quum mens nostra accurate perpensa, et libratis utrinque rationum ponderibus, haeret quasi suspensa, et incerta, utrum ad hanc, vel illam partem sese determinet, hoc est, utrum propositam quaestionem affirmet vel neget. Atque haec illa est dubitatio, quam veluti Philosophiae fundamentum olim Sceptici, ex Recentioribus vero Cartesius invexit, quamvis in hoc a Scepticis differat Cartesius, quod illi de rebus omnibus dubitantes nihil assererent, sed semper in quaerendo, considerandoque, ut tradit Tullius toti essent, Cartesiani vero, ut ipsi praedicant, eo fine de rebus omnibus dubitent, ut praemisso diuturno per dubitationem examine, certo, evidenterque omnia cognoscant. Hinc Cartesius meditatione 1. Animadverti, inquit, jam ante aliquot annos, quam multa, ineunte aetate, falsa pro veris admiserim, et quam dubia sint quaecumque illis postea superstruxi, ac proinde funditus omnia semel in vita esse evertenda, atque a primis fundamentis denuo inchoandum, si quid aliquando firmum, et mansurum cupiam in scientiis stabilire. Hoc autem Cartesianae Philosophiae fundamentum quatuor potissimum innixum est argumentis. Primum est, quod sensus fallaces ẽẽ sæpe experiam, 2dũ, qd plurima in somniis appareant, quæ nusquã sunt, quæq. internoscere ñ possumus ab iis, quæ vigilantes sentimus, 3tiũ, qd obscura sit, et lubrica humana rão, ac ñnullos aliquando in iis errare videamus, quæ pro certissimis, et per se notis admittunt, 4tũ, qd ignoremus, an tales nos voluerit creare Deus, ut semp fallam in iis etiã, quæ nobis videntur ẽẽ notissima. Hujusmodi generalis dubitaõnis fundamenta cum sibi proposuisset, subdit eadẽ meditaõne Vir cl. Quibus sane argumentis ñ habeo, qd respondeã, sed tandem cogor fateri nihil ẽẽ ex iis, quæ olim vera putabam, de quo ñ liceat dubitare, idq. ñ per inconsiderantiam, vel levitatem, sed propter validas, et meditatas raões, ideoq. etiã ab iisdem, ñ minus quam ab aptè falsis accurate deinceps assensionẽ ẽẽ cohibendam, si quid certi velim invenire. Hisce notatis, ut habeamus qd opponamus iis, qui putant Cartesium haudquaquam docuisse de rebus omnibus, semel in vita ẽẽ dubitandum, sit Proõ Unica. Dubitaõ Cartesiana ad veritatem assequendam adeo inutilis ẽ, ut omnẽ potius eliminet veritatem.

Probaõ probatur. Quamvis multa præjudicia a teneris usq. annis sint menti infixa, adeo ut innumera, veluti certissima habeamus quæ vel falsa, vel ñ satis explorata sunt, manifestissima tñ, et certissimas ẽẽ in nobis quamplurium rerum cogniõnes, verti in dubium ñ potẽ. Enimvero et unum existere supremum rerum universarum conditorem certo scimus, et mundum universum nobis circumfusum pro figmento animi habere ñ possumus, et nosmetipsos cogitare revera et ẽẽ ita pro certo habemus, ut si vel levitr dubitaremus, ut essemus comparandi, quibus se aliquantum comparavit aliquando Cartesius, quibusdam scilicet insanis, quorum cerebella tam contumax vapor ex atra bile labefactat, ut constanter asseverent vel se ẽẽ Reges, quum sunt pauperrimi, vel purpura indutos, quum sunt nudi vel caput habere fictile vel se totos ẽẽ cucurbitas, vel ex vitro conflatos. Animus ad deponendos errores paratissimus, et ad argumenta ponderanda maxime intensus non ẽ, cur statim ab initio, omnibus receptis opinionibus depositis, omnia debeat veluti falsa, aut dubia rejicere. Si decepti fuimus, adhibito accurato examine, cognoscere possumus nos fuisse deceptos, et ne imposterum fallamur, satis nobis erit si successive proloco, tempore et opportunitate singula ad examen revocavimus. Quare qd jubet Cartesius semel in vita ẽẽ philosopho dubitandum, et ita dubitandum, ut universa ñ pro incertis tantum, sed omnino pro falsis habeam quod docet ñ solum quæcumq. antehac incerta, et verosimilia, sed et quæ certissima nobis visa sunt, ẽẽ rejicienda, ea tradit, quæ fingi quidem, fieri autem nullo modo possunt.

Quanquam, etiamsi ita omnes cogniões rejicere posset mens, ut omnia haberet pro falsis, vel pro incertis, quæ quæso, esset hujusce dubitaõnis utilitas pro recta acquisitione veritatis? Quid v. c. proderit dubitanti Circulum ẽẽ rotundum, totum ẽẽ majus sua parte, numerum binarium ẽẽ numerum parem, si hac dubitaõne pacta, eo semp deveniendum ẽ, ut et Circulum ẽẽ rotundum, et totum ẽẽ majus sua parte, et numerum binarium ẽẽ numerum parem pro certo habeat? Ut veritatem assequamur, distinguenda sunt certa ab incertis, vera a falsis, ñ autem ita veritas cum falsitate permiscenda, ut quæ sunt vera habenda sint cum Cartesio veluti falsa.

Verum qd magis evincit periculosam ẽẽ Cartesianam dubitaõnem sunt ipsamet fundamenta dubitaõnis. Profecto si sensus fallaces sunt, si distinguere ñ possumus ea quæ vigilantes sentimus, ab iis, quæ nobis somniantibus contingunt, si obscura, et imperfecta ẽ humana rão, si denique ẽ Deus deceptor: ñ semel in vita tantum, sed semper cum scepticis dubitandum esset de rebus omnibus. Id quum asserere nequeat Cartesius, quin Catholica pietate Fides fatendum ẽ hujusmodi dubitaõnem inutilem ẽẽ, imo et periculosam pro recta veritatis inquisitione.

Opponitur. 1 Quæcumq. hactenus percepimus, sensuum ministerio percepimus. Ergo quæcumq. hactenus percepimus in dubium revocanda sunt. Ant. certum ẽ. Pro conseq. Cognovimus aliquando a sensibus fuisse deceptos. Hoc posito, quæcumq. hactenus percepimus etc. Ergo etc. Min. certa ẽ. Pro: Mr. Summa imprudentia ẽ iis confidere, qui nos vel semel deceperunt. Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. neg. conseq. ad prob. conc. mm neg. mm ad prob. neg. ant. et conseq. Quanquam fieri potẽ, ut aliquando occasionaliter per sensus decipiamur, ñ propterea de omnibus dubitandum ẽ, quæ sensuum ministerio percepimus. Quum ex iis, quæ novimus per sensus, multa sint, quæ semp ita se habuerunt, et nunc quoq. constanter ita se habent, ñ nisi imprudenter de iis etiam dubitaremus. Ñ nisi imprudenter, inquam. Nam si qd nos aliquando fefellit reviciendum ẽ, cur ñ etiam fidendum vel semp, atq. constanter verum deprehendimus? Num mala unquam rão nos suadet ẽẽ falsum quia Turrim a longe conspicientes saltem judicabimus rotundam, falsum quoq. censendum erit judicium illud, quo eam prope intuentes semp, atq. constanter judicamus quadratam? Parum igitur refert, qd sensus nos aliquando occasionaliter deceperint.

Neq. dicat Cartesius summam ẽẽ imprudentiam nostram iis fidere, qui nos vel semel deceperunt. Quis ñ existimet sibi a vino ẽẽ prorsus abstinendum, qd semel a vino passus sit incommodum? Quis a cibo abhorreat, qd ei illi aliquando nocuerit? Vel: in summa imprudentia ẽ vinum vibere ei, qui aliquando temulentus fuit, summa imprudentia ẽ sumere cibum, a quo aliquando infirmitas principium duxit: Vel prudentis ñ ẽ sensibus fidem habere, licet quandoq. a sensibus nos fuisse deceptos fateam. Sicuti ergo prudentis ẽ ñ omnino cibum, et vinum relinquere, quia aliquando nocuit, sed tantum relinquere qd nocuit, ita summa prudentia erit ñ omnes, quas per sensus habuimus, cogniões in dubium revocare; qd sensus aliquando in suis repræsentaõnibus nos deceperint, sed eas tantum evertere, quas falsas aliquando, aut dubias deprehendimus.

Opponunt 2do. Plura nobis in somniis contingunt, quæ contingere solent vigilantibus Ergo etc. Ant. certum. Pro conseq. nunquam certis indiciis distinguere possumus somnum a vigilia Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. neg. conseq. ad prob. neg. ant. Libenter fateor cum Cartesio id et D. Augustinus Lib. 15 de Trinitate fatetur vitam scilicet somniantium ẽẽ simillimam vitæ vigilantium, negamus tñ de omnibus quæ nobis occurrunt est dubitandum quod somnum a vigilia distinguere non possumus, ac certi quandoque sumus, ut semper somniemus. Falsum est eo nomine non posse utrum vigilemus, vel dormiamus. Quilibet experientia constat habet, saepissime evenire, ut statim ac somnia evanuere, considerationes, seu potius illusiones in somniis habitas mente revolvens, se somniasse clarissime sciat. In ipso somno aliquando contingit, ut tantam advertentiam idearum confusionem, deprehendamus vel saltem nos somniare suspicemur. Quae cum ita sint, asserendum proinde est, ex conscientia, seu ex intimo sensu nos saltem de nostra vigilia certos esse. Indignum autem Philosopho, imo a sana mentis homine alienum est de eo dubitare, quod ex intimo sensu evident cognoscit, et talis se in angustias conjicere, ut putet se continuo dormientem, hic iis, quae clare, atque distincte apparent, ac [illegible] Sit praejudicia dormientium sola evigilatione, et rerum evidentia discutiunt, ita digna res est ad dormientibus insomnia conducere, ut vigilantium praejudicia auferant.

Opponunt 2do. Mens nostra finita est, et limitata. Ergo etc. Pro. Conseq. si mens nostra finita est et limitata, non possumus nisi pluribus esse erroribus obnoxii. Hoc posito, de rebus omnibus licet dubitare. Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. ne. conseq. ad prob. conc. tam ne. tam: vel ita distinguo: Hoc posito, de rebus omnibus falsis et incertis licet dubitare conc. de omnibus, veritatem, et certis ne. tam et conseq. Certum est mentem nostram finitam esse et limitatam, et tamen intellectui imbecille admodum esse, et infirmum: certum etiam est ab hac mentis limitatione et [illegible] se omnes illos errores proficisci, quibus nos quotidie obnoxii vivimus, immerito tamen propterea inter omnia quae hactenus cognovimus, esse in dubium revocanda. Nam si clara clare, atque distincte percipiant [illegible] ita ut capiant, quae non adversent lumini naturali, certa sunt, et evidentia; Haec saltem uti certissima admittenda sunt adeo ut, nobis etiam invitis, ad cogam assentiri. Hinc Cartesius ipse, postquam decrevit de rebus omnibus dubitare, [illegible] est, etiam de iis, quae per se lumine naturali nota sunt, ne exceptis quidem Theorematibus Mathematicis, nec iis principiis, quae [illegible]; Coactus denique est dubitationis suae fundamenta revocare, et nulla nasci veluti certa admittere, hac tantum ratione, quod lumine naturali nota sint. Sic certissime, et sine ulla dubitatione fatendum esse decrevit se esse, quia cogitat, quod repugnet, id quod cogitat, tum quod cogitat, non esse. Quid autem, inquit Huetius, aliud est repugnare, quam adversari [illegible] naturali, et salutari manifesto, ac [illegible] se notas explicare? Ergo quae adversant lumini naturali, et quorum falsitas per se nobis nota est, sine ulla dubitatione repudiari, uti Cartesius omnia ut falsa; quae vero consentiunt lumini naturali, et quorum veritas per se nobis nota est, sine ulla dubitatione admitti ut vera. Non igitur considerandum est ad mentis nostrae limitationes, considerandum non est ad luminis naturalis [illegible] ut omnia, quae a mente percepit, quae lumine naturali nota sunt evertamus.

Instabunt. Nunquam erramus ea certissima, et per se nota admittentes, quae non sunt nisi falsa. Ergo dubitandum de omnibus.

R. conc. ant. ne. conseq. [illegible] quando dicimus ea existimantes certissima quae sunt falsa, [illegible] admittendum est praecipite mentis festinatione in [illegible] de [illegible] ideas. Hinc si quando in hujusmodi vitium provocanti fuimus, [illegible] considerandas esse res et maturius [illegible] esse attendendas, ac de rebus [illegible] nobis, et [illegible] autem consequitur dubitandum esse de omnibus.

Opponunt 3tio. Ignoramus, utrum nos tales fecerit Deus, ut semper fallamur in iis etiam, quae nobis videntur notissima. Ergo etc. Pro. ant. Deus summe potens est; sed summe potens est, ignoramus etc. Ergo etc. Ita Cartesius in meditatione 1 inquiens: infixa quaedam est meae menti vetus opinio, Deum esse qui potest omnia, et a quo talis, qualis existo, sum creatus. Unde autem scio illum non fecisse, ut nulla plane sit terra, nullum coelum, nulla res extensa, nulla figura, nulla magnitudo, nullus locus. Et tamen haec omnia, non aliter, quam nunc mihi videantur, existere.

R. ne. ant. ad prob. conc. tam ne. tam. Non miror audemus Cartesium vedar vere quod [illegible] nisi auribus inauditam posuerit, quum opinatum est Deum posse nos semper fallere, sed hoc tantum [illegible] tenere existimat [illegible] simul [illegible], Deum scilicet, qui summe potens est, esse Deum [illegible] Deum bonum, Deum veracem. Quis si [illegible] intelliget profecto, quemadmodum alibi causale est, [illegible] tantum Christiano, sed Ethnico Philosopho hujusmodi excogitare. Quis non videt veracitati Dei repugnare, ut nos perpetuo, a tali bonitati Dei repugnare ut velit nos in perpetuo errore versari. Sapientiae Dei repugnare sui nullam prorsus nobis scientiam communicet? Num in eo collocanda est summa Dei potentia, ut nos et nobis decipere, et deceptos velit? Num talis est omnipotentia Dei ut repugnantia et impossibilia [illegible] possit efficere? Nemo unquam sentiens hoc ausus est dicere. Deus, inquit D. Augustinus lib. 2 contra Faustum, Deus non potest facere, ut quae facta sunt, facta non fuerint. Et libro de Symbolo haec habet: Multa non potest Deus, sed omnipotens est: et ideo omnipotens, quia ista non potest. Haec in causa fuere, ut Cartesius [illegible] se aliis in locis, et praesertim Principiorum parte 1. can. 29 scripserit Deum esse summe veracem, et dato [illegible] nos omnis luminis, ac proinde plane repugnare, ut nos fallat, sive ut proprie, et positive sit causa errorum. Si ergo, fatente Cartesio, repugnat, quod Deus sit causa errorum, suspicari merito non possumus utrum nos tales fecerit Deus, ut semper decipiamur, imo certi sumus, Deum nolle, ut perpetuo obnoxii simus erroribus.

Urgebit Cartesius. Quamvis suspicari non possimus Deum fontem veritatis nos semper fallere, supponere tamen possumus genium aliquem malignum, eundemque summe potentem, et callidum, qui omnem suam industriam in eo ponat, ut nos perpetuo decipiat. Ergo etc.

R. trans. ant. ne. conseq. Quemadmodum fingere non possumus Deum summe potentem velle nos in perpetuum errore versari, quia id repugnat bonitati ac veracitati divinæ, ita non possumus suspicari a maligno quodam genio posse nos semper falli, quia repugnat Deum summe bonum atque veracem hujusmodi potentiâ et calliditate genium creasse, qui nos semper deciperet. Nihilominus secus id sibi fingeret Cartesius Cœlum, aerem, terram, colores, figuras, sonos, cunctaque externa nihil aliud esse, quam ludificationes somniorum ut fingeret se falso opinantem habere manus, pedes, oculos, Carnem, et sanguinem; id sibi persuadere voluit de maligno hoc genio, quod nemo antea somniavit.

Opponunt 5. Multa in nobis sunt præjudicia, quæ sunt errorum fontes; sed hujusmodi præjudicia deponere non possumus, nisi per generalem rerum omnium dubitationem. Ergo etc. Pro Minori. Quum multa præjudicia a teneris annis infixa sint menti, non possumus illa distinguere ab iis, quæ vera et certa sunt. Ergo etc.

R. conc. Majorem, neg. Minorem. ad prob: transeat Antecedens, neg. conseq. Innumera esse in nobis præjudicia a teneris usque unguiculis menti infixa; et ab hujusmodi præjudiciis quamplurimos errores proficisci norunt omnes. Summum studium in eo ponendum est, ut omnia, quo fieri potest, præjudicia auferantur, nosque putamus. Verum cavendum est, ne in majus præjudicium præcipites ruamus, dum ea, quæ certa sunt et indubitata cum iis, quæ incerta sunt, aut falsa, confundimus. Exuenda sunt præjudicia, non certæ, evidentesque cognitiones. Sicuti enim pravi humores, non laudabiles sunt evacuandi, Lolium, non frumentum ab agro est evellendum; ita inanes, et pravæ opiniones, non recta, et sana judicia sunt exterminanda. Quamquam, qui fieri potest, ut ea, quæ certa sunt, et evidentia, reputemus veluti falsa? An sibi in animum inducere poterit Geometra Quadratum non constare ex quatuor lateribus, et totidem rectis angulis? An persuadere sibi poterit Arithmeticus, quod bina, et bina non constituant numerum quaternarium? Ut ergo præjudicia auferantur, dubitare nemo potest modo a Cartesianis proposito.

Instabunt. Multa falsa in aliis scientiis supponuntur ad veritatem facilius assequendam. Ergo licet falsum esset, omnia, quæ hactenus percepimus, esse incerta; id tamen supponendum aliquando est, ut securius veritates omnes dignoscamus.

R. dist. Ant. Multa falsa in aliis scientiis supponuntur, quæ tamen falsa appellantur, et uti falsa supponuntur, conc. Multa falsa in aliis scientiis supponuntur, quæ uti vera admittuntur, et supponuntur, neg. Ant. et conseq.^m Quum in aliis scientiis nonnulla falsa supponuntur ad dilucidandas veritates, fatentur omnes ea esse falsa, et tantum supposita. Geometræ v.g. supponentes novas lineas, quæ revera non sunt, et ipsi optime noscunt hujusmodi lineas non esse, sed tantum supponi. At Cartesius, dum vult de rebus omnibus semel in vita esse dubitandum, hanc dubitationem non veluti falsam, sed tamquam veram dubitationem proponit, ut probant sive illius autoritates superius adductæ, sive argumenta, quibus demonstrare contendit universalem hanc dubitationem. Imo tantum abest, quod hæc dubitatio veluti falsa a Cartesio proponatur, ut, si res ita se haberet Cartesius sibimetipsi contradiceret. Doceret enim easdem res esse simul certas, et incertas, de iisdem rebus esse simul dubitandum, et non dubitandum. Præterea, si in aliis scientiis aliqua supponuntur, quæ falsa sunt, ex hac suppositione multa commoda, et utilitates oriuntur, multa explicantur, multa dignoscuntur. Hæc autem commoda, et utilitates ex Cartesiana dubitatione non consequuntur, ut patet ex iis, quæ superius diximus.

Urgebunt. Contraria Contrariis curantur. Ergo quia præcipites judicantes decepti fuimus, dubitandum est aliquando de omnibus.

R. conc. Ant: dist: conseq: Ergo quia præcipites judicantes decepti fuimus, dubitandum est aliquando de omnibus, in quibus decepti fuimus conc. Ergo quia aliquando est dubitandum est aliquando de omnibus omnino, neg. conseq. Quia contraria, ut Medici tradunt, contrariis curantur; recta ratio postulat, ut de iis tantum, quæ falso pro certis habuimus, dubitemus, et quum ob præcipitatem mentis determinationem quandoque decepti fuerimus, attentius consideramus in posterum, præsertim ubi de rebus agitur, quæ claræ, ac manifestæ non sunt. Non enim, quia aliquando erravimus, ea etiam, in quibus non erravimus, evertenda sunt. Quemadmodum enim, quia aliquando ab aliquo cibo sani fuimus incommodum, ab illo tantum cibo cavendum nobis esse præscribit Medicus, non ab omni prorsus, et quocumque cibo; ita, quia contrariis contraria curantur, proponendum nobis est, ut non omnibus statim assentiamur, non autem, ut ea, quæ certa sunt, revocemus.

Corollarium

[illegible] in [illegible] cum [illegible] innomi[illegible] [illegible] semel [illegible] vita [illegible] ut omnia auferat [illegible] non potest, ut omnia a nobis [illegible], quum [illegible] eo nos pervenire, ut omnia, [illegible] quæ mente nostræ [illegible] non [illegible] non omnia [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible], ut [illegible] ea [illegible] a mente concutere. Loco ergo, hac [illegible] dubitatione, ut [illegible] intellectum nostrum, quæ certa sunt, et evidentia, [illegible] [illegible] omnia præjudicia [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] mentis [illegible] aliquando [illegible], ut [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible]. Alia [illegible] Cartesii fundamentis [illegible] [illegible] dubitationis [illegible], et [illegible].

Conclusio 3ta

[illegible]
[illegible]

Q. IV.

Unus cum Aristotele Oratio affirmans, vel negans aliquid de alio. Hinc necessario [illegible] doctrinali tribus saltem constare debet omnis Propositio Subjecto scilicet, attributo, et forma, quam copulam vocant. Subjectum dicitur illud est, de quo affirmatur, aut negatur aliquid. Attributum, seu praedicatum est illud, quod de subjecto affirmatur, vel negatur, forma autem affirmatio, vel negatio, forma, seu copula dicitur.

Propositiones vel simplices sunt, vel composite, seu complexe. Simplices dicuntur illae, quae in nullas alias solvi possunt, seu quae nullas alias complectuntur Ut Virtus est nobilis [illegible] est grave. Homo est mortalis, Complexi, seu composite sunt, quae in alias solvi possunt. Ut Galileus Florentinus fuit verus Philosophicarum instaurator. [illegible]

Sed ut clarius appareat quae natura Propositionis, cum multiplex illius divisio, quatuor in Propositione consideranda et cum Dialecticis distinguenda perito sunt. Natura scilicet, Forma, Quantitas, Qualitas. Natura sunt voces seu termini, quibus Propositio, veluti partibus componitur, quae pluribus, diversisque modis inter se convenire, seu connecti possunt. Forma Propositionis est affirmatio, sive negatio unius de alio, quibus eadem Propositio continetur. Quantitas est extensio Propositionis ad plura, sive pauciora significanda, quando nempe idem attributum de pluribus, sive paucioribus subjectis praedicatur. Qualitas denique Propositionis est id, quod Propositionem ipsam jam formatam consequitur, atque in ipsa tanquam adarica quaedam proprietas, et affectio reperitur, aut certe inter consequitur, cujusmodi nimirum est veritas, et falsitas: unde eadem Propositio ab Aristotele definitur oratio susceptiva veri, vel falsi.

Atque ut a Propositionis natura, scilicet a vocibus exordiam, cum ipse voces, seu termini non uno, eodemque modo, sed diversis inter se connectantur, atque conveniant, necessario nempe, contingenter, possibiliter, et impossibiliter, totidem quoque Propositionum genera distingui possunt ratione naturae, ut alia proinde sit Propositio necessaria, alia contingens, alia possibilis, alia impossibilis. Necessaria Propositio dicitur illa, in qua attributum necessario convenit cum subjecto, hoc est ita convenit, ut ab illo sejungi non possit. Hinc necessariae appellantur sequentes Propositiones Deus est immortalis Homo est animal Circulus est rotundus. Contingens Propositio nuncupatur illa, cujus attributum accidentaliter, sive contingenter convenit cum subjecto, ita nimirum, ut possit etiam non convenire. Hujus generis sunt sequentes Propositiones Petrus est justus Lapis movetur. Possibilis est Propositio, quum attributum non quidem convenit subjecto, convenire tamen ei potest, ut quum dicimus omnes homines salvantur. Impossibilis est illa, in qua attributum nulla ratione convenit, aut convenire potest cum subjecto, sed potius illi repugnat Ut Homo est lapis. Spectatae denique quoad naturam Propositiones vel simplices sunt vel compositae, de quibus supra.

Quoniam vero simplices illae Propositiones, ex quibus altera composita Propositio debet constare, quibusdam uniuntur particulis, quae proinde particulae componentes, aut unientes merito vocari possunt. Hinc totidem distingui poterunt genera Propositionis compositae, quot sunt ipsae particulae componentes. Porro unientes hujusmodi particulae, licet modo plures, modo pauciores a variis Auctoribus afferantur, sex tamen communiter distingui solent, copulativa nimirum, disjunctiva, causalis, conditionalis, relativa, discretiva. Propositiones itaque compositae vel erunt copulativae vel disjunctivae, vel causales, vel conditionales, vel relativae, vel discretivae.

Propositio Copulativa, seu Conjunctiva dicitur illa in qua simplices propositiones particulis conjunctivis et atque ac nec necnon, neque, sive, quoque, etiam, quum tum, sive implicite, sive expresse positae fuerint, conjunguntur. Disjunctiva est illa, in qua Propositiones simplices particulis disjunctivis seu, sive, aut, vel uniuntur. Causalis est, quae particulas causales continet, cujusmodi sunt quia ut, quod, ergo, propterea, ideo, idcirco, quandoquidem, nam quoniam, enim, quare, quum. Conditionalis est, quae componitur ex simplicibus Propositionibus particulis conditionalibus si, nisi, [illegible], sin, modo, dum, quando simul unitis. Relativa dicitur illa quae consurgit ex simplicibus propositionibus conjunctis relativis particulis ibi, ubi, ante, prius, postea. Discretiva denique, vel adversativa Propositio vocatur, quae continet discretivas particulas sed, at, atqui, tamen, tametsi, autem, vero, verum, nihilominus.

Praeterea compositio Propositionum vel aperta est potius, vel latens. Propositiones apertam habentes compositionem ad sex illas classes referri solent, de quibus modo loquebamur; Propositionum vero latentem compositionem habentium [illegible] genera recensentur, exclusivae scilicet, exceptivae, comparativae, inceptivae, desitivae, continuativae, reduplicativae.

Exclusiva Propositio dicitur illa, in qua attributum ita cum subjecto conjungitur ut exprimatur inesse ope alicujus particulae exclusivae tantum, tantummodo, solum duntaxat et nulli alteri attributum illud subjecto convenire. Hujusmodi est sequens Propositio. Oculus cernit tantummodo colores. Exceptiva Propositio, quae solo verbo nomine ab exclusiva distinguitur, est, quum attributum de pluribus subjectis, vel de plurium quodam [illegible] praedicatur, exceptis tamen particulas exceptivas praeter, extra et quibusdam ex illis partibus, sive subjectis ut si dicerem. Omnes mundi partes fere sunt a nobis cognitae praeter Americam. Comparativa appellatur illa in qua attributum enuntiatur de aliquo subjecto, quod ordinatur, comparatur, sive refertur ad aliud. Componitur autem comparativis vocibus, vel saltem comparativis particulis quam, magis, quanto tanto etc. Hinc comparativa erit haec Propositio. Quanto ceteris Planetis major est Sol, tanto [illegible]: Philosophi [illegible] Inceptiva est, quae exprimit praedicatum ita convenire subjecto, ut antea non conveniret. Galileus primus detexit solares maculas. Desitiva est, quum aliquid subjecto convenire dicimus, quod amplius illi convenire non poterit: Ut si quis diceret. Joannes Lockius anno 1704. vita functus est. Continuativa est quum attributum non modo prius convenisse subjecto, sed adhuc etiam convenire affirmamus. Talis est [illegible] Copernicus vere Astronomiae fundamenta jecit. Reduplicativa denique est illa in qua non solum attributum [illegible] convenire dicimus, sed insuper particulis reduplicativis prout quatenus, et [illegible] attributum ideo convenire sub.o, quia sub.m ē raće, n̄ aliud ut omnis proinde rão, cur attributum cui sub.o conveniat, ex indole, sive nāa sub.i oriat. Hujusmodi ē sequens Proōo. Medicus curat morbos, quatenus medicus ē.

In Propoōnib quoq. Compositis distinguendæ sunt propoōnes principales ab incidentib, et accessorias. Cum dicimus e.g. Alexander, qui fuit Rex fortissimus, vicit Darium duo affirmamus, primo scilicet Alexandrum fuisse Regem fortissimum, 2do Alexandrum vicisse Darium. Duarum autem istarum Propoōnum prior incidens ē, posterior principalis.

Spectata Propoō ratione formæ vel affirmativa ē, vel negativa. Affirmativa ē illa, in qua prædicatum cum sub.o conjungimus, et prædicatum ipsum subjecto convenire affirmamus. Negativa vero ē illa, in qua prædicatum a sub.o sejungimus, seu prædicatum ipsum sub.o repugnare dicimus.

Sumpta Propoō quoad Quantitatem vel universalis ē vel Particularis, vel Singularis, vel Indefinita. Universalis ē, quæ afficit signo aliquo universali ut. omnis homo ē mortalis: nemo ē omni ex parte beatus. Particularis ē, quando aliqua vox pro aliquo duntaxat sub.o indeterminate, et confuse ponitur ut si dicerem sunt lineæ quædam incommensurabiles. Singularis dicitur, quando terminus pro aliquo sub.o determinate, distincteque ponitur ut si quis diceret hic homo ē sapiens, vel quando singularis aliqua vox subjecti locum obtinet. ut in hac Propoōne Cicero Romanæ fuit Consul Reipublicæ. Indefinita demum ē illa, quæ nullo afficitur signo quantitatis: ut: Virtus ē vera nobilitas. Circulus ē figura plana.

Ratione qualitatis Propoō omnis aut vera ē, aut falsa. Vera dicitur, quæ aliquid ēē affirmat, quod ē, aut aliquid ēē negat, quod revera n̄ ē; falsa vero appellatur, quæ dicit aliquid ēē, quod n̄ ē, vel negat aliquid ēē, quod revera ē. Hæ sunt præcipuæ, et magis utiles Propoōnum divisiones.

Caput 4tum.

De Oppoōne, et Conversione Propoōnum

Oppoōo Propoōnum ē repugnantia duarum Propoōnum, quæ, idem sub.m idemque attributum habent, sed secundum formam, aut quantitatem, vel secundum utramque simul inter se differunt. Si duæ oppositæ Propoōnes conveniant in forma, ut scilicet utraque vel affirmativa sit, vel negativa, differant autem in quantitate, ut una sit universalis, altera particularis, tunc duæ istæ Propoōnes erunt subalternæ ut. omnis homo ē justus Aliquis homo ē justus. Si duæ oppositæ Propoōnes conveniant in quantitate, differant autem in forma videlicet si ambæ fuerint vel universales, vel particulares, sed una affirmativa, altera negativa, dicentur aut Contrariæ, aut Subcontrariæ. Contrariæ quidem si fuerint ambæ universales ut Omnis homo ē justus. Nullus homo ē justus; Subcontrariæ vero, si ambæ fuerint particulares ut Aliquis homo ē justus, Aliquis homo n̄ ē justus. Si denique duæ oppositæ Propoōnes differant in forma simul, et quantitate, erunt Contradictoriæ. ut omnis homo ē justus. Aliquis homo n̄ ē justus.

Conversio Propoōnum ē inversio, sive reciproca mutaō subjecti in prædicatum, et prædicati in sub.m quando nimirum prædicatum ponitur loco subjecti, et subjectum ipsum loco prædicati, remanente tn̄ ipsius Propoōnis veritate, quamvis aliquando Propoōnis extensio, vel quantitas varietur. Triplici modo Propoōnum conversio fieri potest. Primo. n. alia ē conversio simplex, in qua remanet eadem quantitas Propoōnis cujusmodi ē ista. Triangula æquilatera sunt æquiangula Triangula æquiangula sunt æquilatera. 2do alia ē conversio per accidens, in qua eadem remanet qualitas, veritas scilicet, vel falsitas, mutatur tn̄ quantitas, hoc ē Propoō ex universali fit particularis, vel ex particulari universalis. Hinc per accidens est et sequens Conversio Nullus secundarius Planeta lumine lucet proprio: Aliquis Planeta 2dar. us n̄ lucet lumine proprio. 3tio alia ē conversio per contrapoōnem, per quam termini extrema scilicet Propoōnis, adjecta particula negativa non, ex finitis dicuntur fieri indefiniti, vel potius, ut loquitur Judicus infiniti: ut si diceres Omne corpus ē solidum. Omne n̄ solidum ē n̄ corpus.

Caput 5.

De Definitione

Quanquam Propoōnes omnes, ipsarumque proprietates ad rectam veritatis inquisitionem plurimum conferant; nulla tn̄ fortasse uberiorem in Disciplinis omnibus acquirendis lucem affert, quam ea Propoōnum species, quæ Definitio nuncupatur. ē autem Definitio oratio, seu Propoō per quam exponitur, et explicatur id, quod ē obscurum sive in re, sive in nomine. Hinc duplex imprimis ē definitio, nominis nimirum, et rei. Definitio nominis, quæ etiam etymologia dicitur, ē illa, quæ nomen ipsum, ejusque originem clarius exponit ut si diceres Nuncius ē Nuntius. Definitio rei, sive naturæ ē illa, quæ per nomen ipsum exprimitur, cujusmodi ē ista. Quadratum ē figura quatuor lateribus contenta. Plurimum ēē porro Definitionis usum inde facile cognosci potest, quod neque de rebus disserere, neque errores ullos in disserendo corrigere unquam possemus nisi verborum vi. sensumque perciperemus. Hinc, ut recte monet Tullius Omnis quæ a ratione suscipitur de aliqua re institutio, debet a definitione proficisci, ut intelligatur quid sit id, de quo disputatur.

Definitio rei, quæ optime definiri posset Propoō explicans rei naturam, duplex ē, Essentialis scilicet, ac Descriptiva. Definitio essentialis ē, quæ rem aliquam per suas partes, et attributa essentialia explicat et duplex pariter ē, physica nimirum, et metaphysica. Physica rerum essentiam exprimit per partes essentiales physicas, et realiter inter se distinctas; ut quando definimus hominem compositum quoddam ex mente, et corpore; Metaphysica vero per principia, vel partes metaphysicas, et abstractas rerum essentiam explicat. ut cum homo definitur communiter animal rationale.

Definitio descriptiva ē orāo rē aliquam exponens p. illius accidentia, sive propria, sive communia. Et triplex ē, Propria scilicet, Accidentalis, et Causalis. Propria essentias rerum p. proprietates explicat earundem rerum; ut quum dicit hoīnē eē scientiæ capacem. Accidentalis definit res p. plura accidentia, quæ seorsim sumpta aliis rebus possunt convenire. Hujusmodi ē Definitio illa hoīnis Platonica. Hoō ē aāl pulchrum, implume, bipes, habens caput erectum. Causalis deniq. exprimit res p. causas extrinsecas, efficientem scilicet, exemplarem, et finalem. Sic quum hoō dicit aāl a Deo factum, definit p. causam efficientem. Quum additur ad ejus imaginem, et similitudinem, p. causam definit exemplarem. Quum dicitur, ut eo frui possit, definit p. causam finalem.

Ut autem nihil recte Definitiones a nobis efformentur, animadvertendum ē primo, ut nostræ definitiones constent genere, et differentia, quibus res ipsæ, quas definimus, aut earum naturæ, veluti partibus componuntur. Hoc tñ discrimen servandum ē, ut in definitionibus, quæ essentiales dicunt, exprimat vera differentia, sive intrinsecum illud principium, quo res definita a quacumq. alia re distinguitur. In definitione descriptiva propria veræ differentiæ locum teneat aliqua proprietas, in accidentali accidentia, in causali deniq. causæ.

2do curandum ē, ut res definita a quacumq. alia re p.fecte distinguat. Quare, si definitio ē essentialis, vel propria, sufficit exprimere unicum duntaxat attributum essentiale, sive proprietatem aliquam, quæ inseparabiliter ipsi rei definitæ conveniat. Qd si ponantur accidentia, vel causæ, quum et eadem causa plures effectus producat, et idem accidens in pluribus aliquando subjectis reperiat, tot ex illis accidentibus, vel causis enumerari in definitione debent, quot simul sumpta uni tantummodo rei definitæ conveniant, eamq. a cæteris omnibus distinguant.

3tio advertendum ē, ut Definitio nec superflua sit, nec diminuta. Nam si diminuta erit, res definita a cæteris rebus haudquaquam distinguetur, si vero erit superflua, pariet ambiguitatem.

4to ita construendæ sunt Definitiones, ut sint rebus definitis clariores; secus n. mentis lumen n. juvarent, sed potius obruerent. Hinc plurima, quæ p. se nitida, ac perspicua sunt, definiri n. debent, quum hujusmodi definitiones sint semp. rebus definitis obscuriores.

Postremo reciproca debet eē definitio cum re definita, hoc ē ita se habere debet, ut cum re definita converti possit, ut quidquid nimirum de re definita verificat, verificari eād possit de definitione, et ex secundo vicissim definitioni convenit, conveniat eād rei definitæ. Ut in sequentibus exemplis Triangulum ē figura tribus lateribus circumscripta. Et Figura tribus lateribus circumscripta ē Triangulus. Vel Triangulum tres habet angulos, et Figura tres habens angulos ē Triangulum.

Caput 6.

De Divisione.

Int cæteras Propon.[l] species Divisio supremum obtinet locum. Definit autem orāo dividens totum in partes, sive explicans rē p. partes: et quum totum, qd resolvit in partes, duplici modo partes ipsas continere possit, duplex genus divisionis recensent a Dialecticis.

Itaq. vel partes illæ, quæ numerant, et distinguunt, continent actualiter in toto, ut partes proinde actuales vocari possint, vel tantummodo in potentia continent, hoc ē totum illas, quidem n. habet, habere tñ potest, ut potentiales idcirco dicant. Si partes illæ, quæ totum constituunt, fuerint actuales, divisio, quæ illas ab invicem separat, nuncupabit actualis, physica quidem si partes physicæ fuerint, metaphysica si metaphysicæ, integralis vero, si partes, ex quib. totum resultat, fuerint integrales, hoc ē n. ad essentiam totius, sed ad ejus duntaxat integritatem, et perfectionem p.tinentes. Hinc actuales physicæ divisiones sunt, quibus Domum in tectum, parietes, et fundamenta, Urbem in suas regiones, Regnum in Provincias, hoīnem in corpus, et animam, Corpus in membra dividimus. Hinc actualis metaphysica divisio ē, qua hoīnem dividimus in aālitatem, et rālitatem. Hinc deniq. actualis integralis divisio dicit, qua hoīnem ipsum dividimus in caput, brachia, ~~[illegible]~~, pedes.

Qd si totum dividat in suas potentiales partes, quæ scilicet actu quidem n. continent in toto, possunt tñ contineri, divisio erit potentialis. Triplex autem illa ē, univoca nimirum, æquivoca, et Analogica. Divisio potentialis univoca ē, quando universale dividit in particularia univoce convenientia. Talis ē divisio aālis in hoīnem, Leonem Ursum et. Divisio potentialis æquivoca appellat illa, p. quam totum divisum diverso modo partibus convenit. Ut si dividat Canis in Celestem, Terrestrem, et marinum. Divisio tandem potentialis analoga ē, quum universale dividit in particularia analogice tantum convenientia: ut quum Ens in Deum, et Creaturas distribuit.

Rectæ divisionis regulæ quatuor statui possunt. Prima ē, ut totum divisum majus quam sit qualibet sui parte separatim sumpta, sed omnes tñ partes simul sumptæ æquales sint ipsi toti. Divisio n. partes n. destruit, sed separat duntaxat, unde si partes iterum coalescant, et uniant, debent ipsum totum antea divisum restituere. Hinc n. recte divideret Orbis in Asiam, Africam, et Europam, Deesset n. America absq. qua tres illæ partes simul sumptæ Totum divisum n. æquarent.

2da regula ē, ut una pars n. includat in alia. Sic defectu hujus regulæ male divideret Europa in Italiam, Hispaniam, Galliam, Germaniam, Aquitaniam et quum Aquitania sit una ex partibus Galliæ, pro indeq. in Gallia comprehensa.

3tio necesse ē ut divisio, quantum fieri potē, brevis sit, ne ex nimio partium numero confusio, et obscuritas oriatr. Nam, ut praeclare inquit Seneca Epist. 89 idem vitii habet nimia, qd nulla divisio: simile confuso ē quidquid usq. in pulverem sectum ē.

4to Divisio fieri debet in membra proxima, et immediata, hoc ē in partes duas, quae proxime, et immediate, proindeq. clarius, atq. distinctius in toto continent. Hinc male divideret ãal in canem, leonem etc; ordinata n. divisio fieri deberet in rãale, et irrãale, deinde irrãale dividi posset in aereum, terrestre et marinum, ac singulae istae species in alias species, donec tandem ad ipsa individua descenderet.

Logicae

Liber 3tius.

De Discursu

Caput 1.

De nãa Discursus.

Intellectus humani imbecillitas, et limitãon necessitatem Discursus, seu Rãocinãonis invexit. Quum n. mens nostra peculiare hoc habeat, ut ideas, quas acquisivit, alias cum aliis comparet, intelligatq conveniant ne an n. conveniant, interdum tn. p obscuritatem idearum continuo hanc convenientiam n. percipiat; idcirco nãa ipsa nos admonet, ut duas obscuras ideas cum 3tia clariori idea ~~conferamus~~ conferamus, et si intelligimus eas cum illa congruere, colligamus eas aliud aliq convenire. Idea v.g. solis, et idea lucis tam perspicue sibi invicem conveniunt, ut, quum eas inter se conferimus, statim judicemus solem ē lucem. Idea tn. solis, et idea ignis n. adeo evidenter conveniunt, ut confestim nos ad judicandum inducant solem ē ignem. Itaq. hac arte nos expedimus. Inquirimus notissimam aliquam ignis proprietatem, comburendi v.g. facultatem, eamq. cum duabus illis solis, et ignis comparamus in hunc modum. Quidquid comburit lignum ē ignis. Solis radii vitrea lente excepti comburunt lignum. Sol itaq ē ignis. Atque haec judicandi rãon, seu procedendi ab uno ad aliud, vocatur rãocinãon, seu discursus. Recte itaq. definires Discursus 3tia quaedam cogitãonis species, qua judicium aliqd ex alio judicio, vel ex pluribus aliis judiciis sibi connexis inferimus.

Judicium illud, qd ē veluti fons, et origo alterius judicii, ex quo nimirum aliud infertr judicium, nuncupatur antecedens: Alterum vero judicium, qd ex primo veluti clarior infertr, vocatur consequens. Siquis v.g. judicaret bonum ē amandum, atq inde inferret amandum ē Deum, ex amabilitate boni, tanquam ex antecedente, deduceret amabilitatem Dei tanquam aliquid aliud illi connexum, ab illo dependens, aut ad illud consequens.

Caput 2dum

De variis Argumentãonis speciebus.

Quemadmodum ea, quae a nobis idearum ope concipiuntur, vocibus, seu terminis exprimere solemus. Et quid quid de re concepta vel affirmando vel negando judicamus variis propositionibus notum facimus; 3tia Discursus omnes a mente formatos variis argumentãonum generibus explicamus, adeoque argumentãon nihil aliud sit quam interna rãocinãon, seu discursus verbis expressus. Porro septem enumerantur Argumentãonis species Inductio nimirum, Exemplum, Dilemma, Sorites, Syllogismus, Enthimema, Epicherema, Prosyllogismus.

Inductio ē Argumentãon, qua ex pluribus particularibus enumeratis aliquid universale omnibus commune concluditr. ex. exemplum. Movetur Tellus nostra, movetur motu aliquo et ipse sol, moventur planetae omnes tam primarii, quam secundarii, moventur Cometae, ipsaeq. etiam, quae dicuntur fixae, sunt aliquo motu donatae. Ergo Orbis movetur universus. Hujusmodi argumentãonis genus in rebus potissimum physicis adhiberi consuevit. Verum curandum ē, ut partes omnes, sive omnia singularia enumerentur; Alioquin inductio nihil concluderet.

Exemplum ē Argumentãon, in qua ex uno singulari aliud singulare illi simile infertr v.g. Franciscus mediocri praeditus ingenio sex mensium spatio totam didicit Logicam. Sex ipse mensium spatio eam comparavit et Petrus eodem ingenio donatus. Hanc Argumentãonis speciem cautissime ē adhibendam demonstrant errores illi, in quos facile incurrimus, dum ex aliquo singulari quodlibet aliud singulare inferri volumus. Maxima tn. ē illius vis, et ipsissime usurpatr in iis, quae ad mores vitae componendos spectant, quum plerumq. mens nostra fortius aliorum exemplis, quam rãonibus moveatr.

Dilemma, qd etiam involutum, et cornutum disserendi genus vocatr, ē Argumentãon, in qua propositis duabus partibus, sive propositionibus, utraq adversarium urgemus, et id concludimus de toto, qd de singulis partibus fuerat conclusum; quando nimirum inter duas propositiones disjunctivam sic proponimus, ut utcumq. illius pars sive negata, sive concessa fuerit, semper qd concludi volumus concludatur. Probaturus v.g. omnes homines ē miseros sequenti utar Dilemmate. Quicumq hanc vitam vivit, vel cupiditati servit, vel obsistit. Si servit miser ē: nam eas explere numquam poterit. Si obsistit, miser quoq ē: nam sibi perpetuo repugnare cogitr. Quivis ergo mortalis hanc vitam vivit, miser ē attributum praecedentis propositionis sit sequentis subjectum, donec primum subjectum cum praedicato ultimo conjungatur. Si probare e.g. volumus ambitiosos misere vivere, ita per soritem argumentandum erit. Ambitiosi dignitates captant. Qui dignitates captant, ad ampliora contendunt semper. Qui ad ampliora contendunt semper, nunquam honoribus satiantur: Qui nunquam honoribus satiantur, continuis premuntur curis: Qui continuis premuntur curis, animi serenitate carent. Qui animi serenitate carent, miseram agunt vitam. Ergo Ambitiosi miseram agunt vitam.

Sorites, quem Tullius Acervalem, alii Gradationem vocant, ē Argumentãon ex pluribus propositionibus ita coalescens, ut

Quatuor hactenus enumeratae Argumentationis species licet ad syllogismum facile revocari possint, ab illo tamen manifestissime distinguuntur: Quatuor autem, quae explicandae supersunt, syllogismus scilicet, Enthymema, Epicherema, Prosyllogismus unicam fere Argumentationis speciem efficiunt, quum in illis una, eademque syllogismi vis, atque natura reperiatur.

Syllogismus ab Aristotele Lib. 1. Priorum Analyticorum Cap. 1. definitur oratio, in qua quibusdam positis aliud quiddam diversum ab his, quae posita sunt, necessario consequitur, ex eo, quod haec sint; oratio scilicet, in qua positis duabus propositionibus, aliam propositionem ex illis deducimus, e.g. positis duabus hisce propositionibus. Corpora omnia sunt gravia. Sed plumae, atque crines sunt corpora, tertiam hanc propositionem inferimus. Ergo plumae, atque crines sunt graves. Tres igitur in syllogismo sunt propositiones, quarum prima major, 2da minor, ambae autem praemissae solent nuncupari; tertia vero, quae sequitur, quam vel concedit, vel negat, dicitur consequentia, quia distinguitur, consequens appellatur.

Enthymema est syllogismus truncatus, cujus aliqua propositio reticetur, et in mente retinetur. Quamvis enim syllogismus tribus constare debeat propositionibus, non omnes tamen propositiones exprimi solent, sed alterutra ex praemissis, quae clarior est, veluti vera, aut concessa supponitur, et quandoque reticetur. Hinc si ita argumentarem. Deus est justus. Ergo timendus, quia retineo in mente hanc propositionem: Qui est justus est timendus; syllogismo truncato, seu Enthymemate uterem.

Epicherema est syllogismus, cujus alterutri, vel utrique praemissarum probatio, vel confirmatio adjungitur. Hujusmodi est sequens Argumentatio. Omne bonum est amandum; Voluntas enim, et amor nostri ad bonum veluti ad objectum dirigitur. Sed Deus est bonus; Ab ipso siquidem veluti fonte omnia bona dimanant. Ergo Deus est amandus. Hanc argumentationis speciem ab Oratoribus fere semper usurpari conspicimus.

Prosyllogismus denique est, quum uni syllogismo jam formato syllogismus alter ita connectitur, ut prioris syllogismi conclusio fiat major syllogismi sequentis, ut in sequenti exemplo. Omnis spiritus carere debet partibus. Sed animus est spiritus. Ergo animus carere debet partibus; Sed id, quod partibus carere debet, est incorruptibile. Ergo animus est incorruptibilis. Quarta Prosyllogismi propositio vocatur lemma, sive subsumpta minor, sive subsumptum.

Caput 3tium.

De natura, figuris, et divisione syllogismi.

Omnis syllogismus tribus constare debet ideis, proindeque tribus terminis seu, non voce, qui majus extremum, minus extremum, et medius terminus appellantur. Majus extremum est illud, quod est praedicatum in conclusione, et connectitur cum medio termino in majori. Minus extremum est illud, quod est subjectum in conclusione et connectitur cum medio termino in minori. Medius terminus est ille, quocum connectuntur in praemissis illi termini, qui in conclusione sunt subjectum, et praedicatum. Rem exemplo declaremus. In hoc syllogismo Omnis homo est animal Petrus est homo Ergo Petrus est animal, terminus animal, qui connectitur in majori cum termino homo, et est praedicatum in conclusione, dicitur majus extremum. Terminus Petrus, qui connectitur in minori cum termino homo, et est subjectum in conclusione est minus extremum. Terminus homo, quocum connectuntur in praemissis Petrus, et animal est medius terminus, qui in utraque praemissa contineri debet, nunquam vero in conclusione. Praedicatum igitur conclusionis est majus extremum, subjectum conclusionis est minus extremum, terminus autem, quocum in praemissis illa conjunguntur, quasi veluti vinculum utriusque extremi, dicitur medius. Quare ad rectum conficiendum syllogismum omne in eo studium adhibendum est ut aliquod inveniat medium terminum, quocum extrema uniantur. Nam quae sunt eadem uni tertio sunt eadem inter se.

Quia autem quatuor modis collocari potest medius terminus, quatuor a Dialecticis statutae sunt figurae syllogismorum. Prima figura est, quum medius terminus est subjectum in majori, et praedicatum in minori, ut in sequenti exemplo. Omnis homo est animal; sed Petrus est homo Ergo Petrus est animal. 2da Figura est quum medius terminus praedicati munus gerit tam in majori, quam in minori. e.g. Omnia gravia feruntur versus Telluris centrum. Sed ignis fertur versus Telluris centrum Ergo ignis est gravis. 3tia Figura est quum medius terminus est subjectum tam in majori, quam in minori ut in sequenti syllogismo. Nullum rationale est cogitans, sed omne rationale est substantia: Ergo aliqua substantia non est cogitans. 4ta denique figura est, quum medius terminus ponitur ut praedicatum in majori, ut subjectum vero in minori. e.g. Omne animal est corporeum; sed nullum corporeum est spiritus Ergo nullus spiritus est animal. Alia plura traduntur a Dialecticis quoad varios syllogismorum modos, qui a diversa propositionum dispositione oriuntur, quae nos veluti inutilia praetermittimus, praesertim quum in omnibus exercitiis tum possint ac ut, qui se se delectant in hujusmodi ineptiis.

Syllogismi alii simplices sunt, alii conjunctivi. Simplices dicuntur illi, in quibus medius terminus utrique extremo seorsim est conjunctus in præmissis. Hinc simplex est hujusmodi syllogismus. Omnis virtus est amanda. Justitia est virtus. Ergo justitia amanda. Nam medius terminus, scilicet virtus separatim connectitur in majori propositione cum majori extremo, scilicet cum prædicato amanda, et separatim partim conjungitur in minori propositione cum minori extremo, nimirum cum subjecto justitia.

Syllogismi conjunctivi ii sunt in quibus medius terminus utrique simul extremo connectitur. Talis est sequens syllogismus. Si Regnum electivum factionibus obnoxium est non est diuturnum. Sed Regnum electivum factionibus obnoxium est. Ergo Regnum electivum non est diuturnum. Nam Regnum electivum quod est minus extremum, et diuturnum, quod est majus extremum in majori propositione simul reperiuntur, et cum medio termino factionibus obnoxium connectuntur.

Syllogismi simplices duplicis generis sunt, clari nimirum, seu incomplexi, et implicati, seu complexi. Incomplexi sunt illi, in quibus majus et minus extremum integre cum medio termino connectuntur; ut Omne animal est vivens. Omnis homo est animal. Ergo omnis homo est vivens. Syllogismi vero implicati seu complexi ii sunt in quibus propositionum complexarum, idest ex terminis complexis compositarum subjectum, vel prædicatum secundum partem tantum in altera præmissarum medio termino connectitur, in altera vero quod reliquum est, quod que unius solum termini vices gerit eidem medio termino jungitur ut in hoc syllogismo. Lex divina jubet, ut Principes honoremus; Benedictus XIV est Princeps. Ergo Lex divina jubet, ut honoremus Benedictum XIV.

Caput Lxxm.

De Regulis perfecti syllogismi.

Decem enumerant præcipuas Regulas, quæ si serventur in syllogismorum constructione, iidem syllogismi recte erunt instructi. Ex his duæ pertinent ad extrema, tres ad medium terminum, tres ad præmissas, ad conclusionem duæ.

Prima Regula est, ut in quolibet syllogismo tres duntaxat sint termini. Nam si pauciores sunt, tota corruit Ars syllogistica in eo posita, ut in Conclusione inferatur unio duorum inter se ex unione utriusque cum termino in præmissis. Si vero plures sunt, nunquam majus, et minus extremum erunt quid idem inter se, quum non sint quid idem cum eodem termino. Ut in hoc syllogismo liquet. Omne animal est vivens; sed canis est animal. Ergo Canis mortuus est vivens.

2da Regula edocet nullum terminum in conclusione esse universalius accipiendum, quam fuerit in præmissis. Defectu hujus regulæ rectus non esset hic syllogismus. Omne animal est vivens, sed omne animal est substantia. Ergo omnis substantia est vivens.

Præscribitur a 3tia medium terminum nunquam ingredi debere conclusionem. Medius enim terminus sumitur duntaxat ad probandam connexionem, vel repugnantiam majoris, et minoris extremi, ex quibus Conclusio constat. Deficeret propterea syllogismus iste. Omnis homo est animal. Sed Petrus est homo. Ergo Petrus homo est animal.

Statuit 4ta medium terminum vel in utraque, vel in aliqua saltem ex præmissis universaliter esse usurpandum, ut aliquid concludi possit. Nam medius terminus particulariter semper acceptus non unum, sed duo indicat diversa, ut patet in sequenti. Omnis homo est substantia. Omnis Angelus est substantia. Ergo omnis Angelus est homo.

Quinta docet medium terminum etiam singulariter acceptum concludere posse. Sicut enim quoad rectam illationem Propositiones singulares in syllogismo æquivalent universalibus, etiam terminus singularis æquivalens erit universali. Rectus propterea est hic syllogismus. Franciscus est orator. Franciscus errat. Ergo aliquis Orator errat.

Sexta tradit ex duabus præmissis particularibus rectam minime inferri conclusionem. Sic non concludit sequens: Aliquis homo est animal: Aliquod animal est Leo: Ergo aliquis Leo est homo.

Septima Regula indicat, quod quum singulares Propositiones æquivaleant universalibus, ex singularibus quoque haberi possit legitima conclusio. Id patet in sequenti syllogismo. Petrus est sapiens. Petrus est homo. Ergo aliquis homo est sapiens.

Docet octava ex duabus præmissis negativis nihil concludi posse. Ut enim syllogismi negativi recta sit conclusio, in ea unum extremum debet ab alio separari, ideo ut unum vere de alio negetur vi præmissarum. Id autem fieri non potest, si ambæ syllogismi præmissæ sint negativæ. Exemplum sit hujusmodi syllogismus. Nullus homo est irrationalis. Nullus Canis est homo. Ergo nullus Canis est irrationalis.

Admonet nona Conclusionem sequi debere debiliorem partem, seu præmissam debiliorem propositionem, quia extrema non alio modo in Conclusione conjungi debent, inter se, ac fuerint in præmissis cum termino unita. Quare, quum posita una tantum ex præmissis particulari, extrema particulariter tantum in præmissis fuerint cum medio termino unita, particulariter tantum etiam in Conclusione debent inter se uniri. Irrectitudo regulæ vis in sequenti syllogismo constat. Omne mortale est corporeum; sed aliqua substantia non est corporea. Ergo aliqua substantia non est mortalis.

Postrema Regula est ex duabus praemissis affirmativis, altera negativa, posse conclusionem negantem [illegible], cujus Regulae certitudo et evidentia nascitur ex superius laudato principio, quae sunt eadem uni tertio, sunt eadem inter se. Hinc argumentari non possumus. Omne corpus trinam habet dimensionem, sed lapis est corpus, ergo lapis trinam non habet dimensionem. Hae sunt, quae a Dialecticis appellantur fundamentales syllogismorum regulae, plures aliae afferri solent, quae declarare aiunt, et non raro conferunt ad id ostendendum, quomodo in qualibet Figura rite construi possit syllogismus. Sed eas legere omnes potes apud Dialecticos potissimum Aristoteleos.

Caput 5.

De sophismatibus, seu vitiosis Argumentationibus.

Quia experientia constat esse aliquas nostras inter vere animos exempla [illegible] quae caventes [illegible] sunt, ideirco, [illegible] quaevis recta Argumentationum regula [illegible] causas malarum ratiocinationum, seu sophismata, seu paralogismi [illegible] nosset. Haec autem sunt suprema capita, ad quae reduci possunt omnia sophismata.

Primum est, quod aliud probatur, quam quod est in quaestione. Vitium hoc ab Aristotele vocatur ignoratio elenchi, [illegible] contra adversarium [illegible] valde familiare est in disputationibus. Nam [illegible] saepe incalescimus, ut alter alterum non intelligamus: ex animi perturbatione, quandoque etiam ex mala fraude [illegible] adversarius, quae sunt ab eorum [illegible] [illegible] omnia, quae ad primam sophismatum speciem referri possunt, [illegible] in argumentationibus [illegible] nota, cura et diligentia. Est vitium non tantum Philosopho, sed quovis probo homine indignum.

2da sophismatum species est, quod id supponitur, quod est in quaestione. Vocatur ab Aristotele petitio principii [illegible] ratione adversarii [illegible] in omni [illegible] id quod probare contendimus, [illegible] et clarius esse debet. Hinc merito [illegible] Aristoteleum probantem [illegible] centrum universi [illegible] redarguit petitionis principii in sequenti syllogismo. Gravia ad centrum universi natura ferunt, a quo levia recedunt, sed experientia constat, gravia ad centrum Telluris ferri, a quo levia recedunt. Ergo idem est centrum Telluris cum centro Universi. Nam in majori propositione Aristoteles id supponit tanquam certum, quod versatur in quaestione, gravia scilicet [illegible] ad universi centrum. Mera [illegible] petitiones sunt maxima pars argumentorum, quae [illegible] ad introducendum [illegible] quasdam veras substantias [illegible] formas vocitant, [illegible] esse volunt, quamvis corpora non sint. Ad hoc idem sophisma revocari potest omnis probatio [illegible] disputatione non cadit, sed [illegible] ab adversario negari. Denique huc spectant rationes illae, quibus [illegible] probatur [illegible] per aeque ignotum, aut per ignotius; incertum per aeque incertum, aut per incertius.

3tia fallacium argumentationum origo est, quod causas eas assignamus, quae causae non sunt. [illegible] familiare est Philosophis, et [illegible] Primo [illegible] causarum ignoratione, et [illegible] causas remotas [illegible] [illegible] ad [illegible] [illegible] vel [illegible] 2do [illegible] in hoc genus sophismatis, ut recte notat [illegible] ex [illegible] vanitate [illegible] [illegible] Malumus [illegible] causas effingere [illegible] [illegible] Interrogati [illegible] [illegible] causa, [illegible] respondebant esse virtutem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] virtute magnetica. Rogati, cur [illegible] respondebant, [illegible] virtute [illegible] [illegible] admirationem [illegible] ab [illegible] horologia [illegible] Dicere [illegible] [illegible] omnia, quae [illegible] demirabantur; [illegible] virtute [illegible] notantes, quae horas demonstrarent et virtute sonorifica, quae [illegible] [illegible] in Horologiorum [illegible]

4to [illegible] ratiocinationes [illegible] ab [illegible] enumeratione, quo certe vitio nullum [illegible] [illegible] frequentius. [illegible] in enumerandis modis, [illegible] temere [illegible] [illegible] vel [illegible] non esse, quia hoc modo non est, [illegible] alio est [illegible] alio, quem nondum consideraverunt, esse queat.

5to erramus [illegible] in nostris argumentationibus, quia de rebus judicamus [illegible] Hoc sophisma in scholis dicitur [illegible] accidente, [illegible] [illegible] conclusio absoluta, simplex, et sine restrictione. Hinc ridicula [illegible] ratiocinatio, qua [illegible] concludebant Deos esse debere hominiformes. [illegible] ratione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ratione, [illegible] [illegible] humanam formam [illegible] esse Deos [illegible] habere [illegible] quam non videbant [illegible] figura humana, ut constet vel ratione. Ridiculam [illegible] imaginari cogitationem, ratiocinationem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] omnia, [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] haberent, [illegible] sophismate [illegible] concludebant [illegible] humana tantum forma rationem invenire, [illegible] in homine adjuncta est illi formae.

Ero in sophismata incidimus, quum argumentamur a sensu diviso ad sensum compositum, vel a sensu composito ad sensum divisum. Christus Dominus [illegible] de patratis a se miraculis in Evangelio loquens ait caecos videre, claudos ambulare, surdos audire, quod tamen verum tantum est, si haec sumantur divisim, non conjunctim. Nam caeci non videbant, quamdiu caeci erant; nec surdi, quamdiu surdi, audiebant. E contrario sunt quaedam propositiones, quae verae non sunt, nisi in sensu composito. Hoc sensu e. g. ait Apostolus maledicos, fornicatores, avaros non intrare in Regnum coelorum. Palam itaque est, ab uno sensu ad alium transiri non posse sine sophismate.

Ima species sophismatum est, quum argumentamur ab eo quod est verum secundum quid ad id, quod est verum simpliciter, scilicet quum ex eo, quod verum duntaxat est, positis aliquibus circumstantiis, inferimus quod semper et absolute debet esse verum. En exemplum ab [illegible] [illegible]. Quidquid pulchrius est, debet Deus competere. Sed forma humana pulchrior est; ergo forma humana competere debet Deo. [illegible] [illegible] ratiocinatio, quia simpliciter et absolute forma humana pulchrior non est, sed tantum respectu corporum.

[illegible] causa sophismatum est vocum ambiguitas, quae pluribus modis potest contingere. Primo, quum in syllogismo quatuor inveniuntur termini, sive quia medius sumatur bis particulariter, sive quia in prima propositione idem idem sensus non est qui in 2da, sive denique quia termini conclusionis eundem sensum non habent in praemissis quem in conclusione. Non [illegible] ambiguitatis vocabulum ad ea tantum nomina restringimus, quae crasse, et aperte aequivoca sunt: talia non raro fallunt. Sed ambiguitatis nomine illud omne comprehendimus, quod verborum sensum quovis modo potest immutare. [illegible] [illegible] exemplum, ambiguitatem [illegible] vocis, quae aliquando totum significant, [illegible] collective pro omnibus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Hinc dicuntur [illegible] [illegible] mundum esse [illegible] ratione [illegible]. Dicebant [illegible] [illegible] ratione [illegible] [illegible] ratione [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~ terminus [illegible] ~~[illegible]~~, quia Mundo tribuit summe [illegible] quae soli convenit Deo: ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] de creaturis tantum sermo est, nihil [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] universitate rerum a Deo creatarum. Inde autem inferri tantum potest Mundum ratione praeditum esse secundum [illegible] partes, Angelos nimirum, et homines, non vero mundum conjunctim esse [illegible] rationis usu donatum.

[illegible] denique causa fallacium argumentationum est inductio vitiosa, ex qua universalem inferimus conclusionem. [illegible]

Caput 6.

De Locis, seu de inventione argumentorum.

Loca illa, ex quibus argumenta inferri possunt, quaeque ab antiquis Dialecticis tam fuse pertractata fuerunt, vel Grammatica sunt, vel Logica, vel Metaphysica.

Grammatica loca dicuntur illa, quae vel ab etymologia vel a conjugatis ducuntur. Argumenta ab etymologia [illegible] [illegible], quum nominis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] etymologia, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], aut [illegible] in sequenti argumentatione. Consul est, ergo consulere debet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Ergo amator sapientiae. Aut [illegible] Consulere debet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ergo est Philosophus. A conjugatis autem argumenta ducuntur, quum [illegible] conjugatis de [illegible] [illegible], vel negant, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] (conjugata [illegible] [illegible] vocabula a nomine etymologica derivata) ut in sequenti exemplo. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fidem non habuit. Ergo fuit infidelis.

Loca Logica sunt termini universales Genus, Species, Differentia, Proprium, Accidens, [illegible] [illegible] divisio, de quibus jam [illegible] [illegible], non est cur [illegible] [illegible] tradantur. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] locis hisce logicis [illegible] axiomata communia, ut [illegible], [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] affirmat, aut negat de genere, affirmat, aut negat de specie. Destructo genere [illegible] [illegible]. Destructa [illegible] [illegible] destruitur genus. Si de re qualibet affirmari, vel negari poterit [illegible], [illegible] negari, vel affirmari poterit species. Si de re qualibet affirmari, vel negari poterit proprium, affirmari, vel negari poterit species. Affirmat, vel negat definitum, de quo affirmat, vel negat definitio.

Loca metaphysica sunt illa, quae deducuntur ex principiis, seu proprietatibus, quae in Metaphysica exponi [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] in physica [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] vero principia [illegible] in genere, ejusque proprietates, et affectiones respiciunt, cujusmodi sunt veritas, et falsitas, Causa et effectus, Paria et Dispa[illegible] Similia, et Dissimilia, Relata, Antecedentia, Consequentia, Contraria, Privativa, contradictoria, Majora, Minora, Authoritas, et Testimonium. [illegible]

Ab idea [illegible] haec consequuntur, et alia consimilia [illegible], quae nostrarum argumentationum sunt [illegible] fundamentum, nimirum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potest simul esse et non esse. [illegible] in idea rei clare, distincteque [illegible], [illegible] rei convenit. [illegible] [illegible] clare, distincte [illegible] [illegible] non potest convenire. [illegible] veritatis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Verum non potest [illegible] [illegible] ex vero, et [illegible] ex vero [illegible] [illegible] potest. Ab idea autem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], vel [illegible] non potest [illegible] ex [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] non potest; [illegible] [illegible] causae et effectus [illegible] [illegible] sequentia axiomata. [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] res aliqua operari non potest, quia existat! Causa quae producit effectum semper praecedit effectum. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]

rior. Causa nobilior nobiliorem, ceteris paribus, producit effectum. Nobilior, sive praestantior effectus a nobiliori causa produci debet. Causa causae est etiam causa effectus, quem ab illa producitur. Nemo potest producere se ipsum, sive esse causa sui ipsius. A nihilo nihil fit. Nemo dat, quod non habet. Effectus propria causa nobilior esse non potest. Effectus in causa aliqua ratione contineri debet. Posito effectu, poni, vel admitti debet sua causa.

A pari, sive similium. Similibus similia, paribus paria conveniunt. A dispari, sive dissimili. Dissimilibus dissimilia, disparibus [illegible] conveniunt. A relatis. Posito sive sublato alterutro relativorum, ponitur, sive aufertur et aliud. Ab antecedentibus et consequentibus. Cui antecedentia, simulque consequentia conveniunt, convenit etiam id quod illa consequitur. A contrariis, privativis, et contradictoriis. Contraria, sive privativa, sive contradictoria simul esse non possunt [illegible] si unum est verum, aliud est falsum. A majori ad minus vel a minori ad majus. Qui [illegible] facere potest, aut cui convenit majus, facere etiam poterit, sive illi conveniet etiam minus: et e contra, cui minus [illegible], repugnabit et majus. Ab auctoritate, et testimonio. Quod a Deo revelatur, debet esse certissimum. [illegible] testimonio vel communi hominum [illegible], est certum [illegible] ab omnibus hominibus [illegible] nullo affectu, nulla utilitate [illegible], est verum [illegible] ab antiquis [illegible] sinceri, genuini [illegible], candidi, [illegible] monumentis [illegible] est certum.

Haec, et alia id genus innumera principia sunt, ex quibus veluti fontibus immensa sane nostrarum argumentationum series oriri potest. Qui haec ipsa fusius, aut plurima fortasse alia desiderat, eos adire poterit, qui longa oratione de iis edisserunt.

Logicae
Liber IItus
De Methodo
Caput I.
De methodi natura, et divisione.

Qui veritatem inquirunt, plures res concipere debent, plura de rebus conceptis ferre judicia, plures ex institutis judiciis discursus, seu argumentationes formare. Sed ne ingens illa idearum varietas, judiciorum, et ratiocinationum quam maximus numerus, tanta denique illa argumentorum series obscuritatem [illegible] pareret, factum est quod veterum quam recentiorum Dialecticorum sapientissimo consilio, et ceteris Logicae partibus, [illegible] idearum, judiciorum et argumentationum leges, natura et ratio demonstrant, [illegible], qui omnia apto ordine [illegible]. Hujus [illegible] hanc [illegible] ut occulta veritas [illegible] inveniatur aut [illegible] jam [illegible] ceteris ostendatur et [illegible] errores qui aut in inveniendi aut in demonstrandae veritatis studio irrepere possunt, declinamus.

Vocatur autem pars illa methodus: et definitur via brevis, aut ordinata ratio inveniendi veri, ipsiusque, quum inventum fuerit, exponendi.

Dividitur methodus in Analyticam, sive Resolutivam, et Syntheticam, seu Compositivam. Methodus Analytica dicitur illa, in qua a cognitione [illegible] descendimus ad [illegible] cognitionem, ex cognitione effectus ad cognitionem [illegible] causarum, a quibus ille producitur, ex cognitione [illegible] ad cognitionem [illegible] singularium, et universalium. [illegible] ex cognitione [illegible] ad cognitionem [illegible] ex cognitione [illegible] ad cognitionem causarum [illegible] ad cognitionem omnium [illegible]. Hac methodo in scientiis, ~~[illegible]~~ [illegible] uti solemus, quod plerumque nobis esse [illegible] posita, vel singularia cognita, et efficacissima sunt; illorum vero causae sint longe obscuriores, occultioresque, uti experientia constat.

Synthetica Methodus, sive compositiva [illegible], in qua a [illegible] a [illegible] a causis ad effectus [illegible] gradatim [illegible]. Hanc methodum adhibemus, quum inventam jam veritatem docere, et ostendere volumus. [illegible] Analysi [illegible], ut ad difficiliora paulatim progrediatur.

Quoniam vero utraque haec methodus [illegible] demonstranda veritate [illegible], non erit abs re, si antequam methodi utiliores leges proponamus, aliqua de ipsa veritate dicamus. Frustra siquidem methodi naturam [illegible], quam in inquirenda veritate [illegible] veritas [illegible], aut quid sit veritas ipsa, cognosceremus.

Caput 2dum.
De veritate.

Vocabulum hoc veritatis non unam, eandemque habet notionem, sed diversas. Alia enim veritas [illegible] moralis, alia realis; seu naturalis, alia metaphysica, alia logica. Veritas moralis est concordia sententiarum animi cum [illegible] [illegible] autem [illegible] ad [illegible] aut voce aut [illegible] quae animo sentiunt, [illegible] appellant [illegible] mendaces, [illegible], vel dissimulatores [illegible]. [illegible] veritatem [illegible] mendacium, et [illegible] non [illegible] non [illegible] veritatis notitiae [illegible], fallaces [illegible], veteratores [illegible]

Veritas realis, seu naalis ē, quā res ita se habet, quemadmodum eē in naā debet, et quā eas habet proprietates, affectiones, aut relaōnes, quas habere naā debet: seu, ut clarius loquar, ē ipsa existentia, essentia et ratio rei, prout in naā ista statuta reperitur. Hanc veritatē habent hujusmodi Pnōnes. Existit res quædam cogitans. Datur res aliqua extensa. Aliquid ē grave. In Triangulo tres anguli æquales sunt duobus rectis. Si existit motus, existit causa motrix.

Veritas metaphysica ē convenientia rerum aut factarum aut possibilium cum ideis Dei æternis et immutabilibus. Duas hasce veritatis, naali scilicet, et metaphysicę nulla ē opposita falsitas, quā quælibet res sicuti ratione sui nāa ēē debet, ita æternis Dei, et immutabilibus ideis congruere debeat; Deus quippe sapientissimus, et potentissimus est, ac mundi opifex, atq. conservator.

Veritas Logica ē convenientia nostrorum judiciorum cum veritatibus ipsis naalibus et realibus, quā scilicet id nos judiciis nostris affirmamus, aut negamus, qd naā ita sese ē, aut n̄ ē. Falsitas autē logica ē discordantia judiciorum nostrorum a veritatibus naalibus, et realibus, nempe quā judiciis nostris affirmamus, qd se ipsa rerum naā [illegible] [illegible], vel negandum, aut negamus id, qd [illegible] affirmandum. Vocatur autē hæc veritas logica, quia quemadmodum Philosophi [illegible] ē veritates naāles investigare, ita ad Logicam pertinet [illegible] canones, quibus hujusmodi veritates certa via, et ordine [illegible] possint. Porro de veritates dividuntur a Logicis Pnōnes evidentes, aut per evidentes, saltem certas. Quod autem Pnōnes ad varias humanæ eruditionis partes pertineant, inde fit, ut appellentur Physicę, Theologicę, Juridicę, Ethicę, Historicę, Mathematicę etc. Sed et ipsę veritates naāles, prout pertinent ad varia objecta idearum nostrarum, variis vocabulis nominantur. Hinc dicimus investigare veritatem physicam, quā causas motuum cœlestium proximas, aut attractionis magneticę quærimus: Geometricam vero quā aut Problematum geometricorum solutionem invenimus, aut theorematum demonstraōnem. [illegible] eodem modo ē ratiocinandum

Dari veritatem negarunt olim cum Pyronicis, sive scepticis Academici, quamvis n̄ eodem modo omnes. Vetus Academia, quę authorem habuit Aristoclem Atheniensem ob frontis latitudinem a Socrate Præceptore suo Platonis nomine appellatum, docuit dari veritatem de rebus duntaxat intelligibilibus. De rebus n. sensibilibus in utramq. partem disputare solebat [illegible] Socrate, ut verum inveniret, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], ut notat D. Augustinus l. 3 contra Academicos, et patet ex ipsius Platonis Tymæo. 2da Academia, authore Arcesilao, Socratico dicto abusa, ē quidquam, qd sciri posset, negavit, sed omnia in occulto latere, et incerta ēē asseruit, neq. illo excepto, qd omnia sint incerta. 3tia Academia, cujus Princeps fuit Carneades Cyrenæus, teste D. Augustino loco superius laudato, veri ēē aliquid n̄ negavit, percipi tn̄ posse negavit. Carneades n. ita in phylosophando fuit inconstans, et occultus, ut ne quis de eo, qd statueret, certi sciret, modo hanc, modo illam tueretur sententiam. Quarta demum Academia, quę Principem habuit Philonem ob sermonis elegantiam, et morum suavitates celeberrimus, asseruit quędam comprehendi posse, sed n̄ tam certo, ut nihil omnino obiici possit. Hinc Tullius Philonis Auditor in libro 2do Academic. Quæst. Ubi, inquit, omnis cognitio multis ē obstructa difficultatibus, eaq. ē et in ipsis rebus obscuritas, et in judiciis nostris infirmitas, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] reperiri, diffisi sint; tn̄ nec illi defecerunt, neq. nos [illegible] [illegible] exquirendi cum studio relinquemus, neq. nostræ disputaōnes quidquam [illegible] agunt, nisi ut in utramq. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] eliciant aliquid, quod aut verum sit, aut ad id quamproxime accedat. Neq. inter nos, et eos, qui se scire arbitrantur, quidquam interest, nisi qd illi n̄ dubitant, quin ea vera sint. Nos probabilia multa habemus, quę sequi facile, affirmare vix possumus. Hanc deinde Academicorum sententiam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a Pyrrone [illegible] nomen sortiti, qui a philosophandi raōne Aporetici etiam, sceptici, Ephectici, ac Zetici dicti sunt. Docuerunt n. nihil prorsus sciri posse, sed in utramq. partem disputandum de omnibus ēē.

Caput 3tium

De Scientia

Scientia definitur a Philosophis cognitio certa, [illegible] [illegible] per demonstraōnem acquisita. Dividitur in metaphysicam, physicam, et moralem. Scientia Metaphysica ē adhæsio mentis objecto [illegible] ita [illegible] certo, et immutabile, ut ne divinitus quidem mutari possit. Scientia Physica illa ē, quę talem [illegible] intellectu nostro parit certitudinem, atq. evidentiam, ut certo [illegible] liceat objectum cognitum, secundum leges consuetas naæ [illegible], tali semp debere existere modo; Deo tn̄ supra naām operante, posse aliter se habere. Moralis deniq. scientia ē, qua mens nostra adhæret alicui objecto, qd licet absolute, attento eōd naālium rerum ordine, ē possit aliter, ac dicitur, atq. cognoscitur, n̄ tn̄ aliter ēē solet; adeo ut de illo dubitare hoī prudenti n̄ liceat.

Sceptici, qui, ut diximus, cum 2da Academia docuerunt de omnibus ēē dubitandum, omnia ēē ambigua, et obscura, et nihil ab intellectu percipi, aut comprehendi, certitudinem, proindeq. scientiam omnem sustulerunt. Sit itaque adversus Pyronismum

Pnōo Prima. ē in nobis aliquarum rerum scientia Physica

Pro Pnōo. Fatentibus, consentientibusq. Philosophis [illegible] de aliqua re [illegible] dicimus habere scientiam, quam eam demonstraōne ope, secundum naæ leges immutabiles certo, evidenterq. cognoscimus. Porro de rebus sive physicis, sive metaphysicis, sive Mathematicis quamplures sī in nobis certas [illegible] [illegible] cognitiones [illegible] [illegible] certissimis demonstraōnibus partas, quę, servatis naæ legibus, ita semp se habere debent; nemo prudens dubitaverit. Nos vivere, et existere, quadratum Hypothenusæ æquale ēē quadratis laterum, corporum [illegible] cadentium vires ēē in raōne duplicata distantiarum [illegible] obliquam [illegible] [illegible] linea recta, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et alia sexcenta velut naāles immutabiles certo, atq. evidenter et demonstraōne [illegible]. Certe [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quā animus, qui de certitudine [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] ē idea de certitudine hujusmodi Pnōnum, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] naæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] possit, [illegible] velit: Cognoscunt evidenter, quia ex principiis certis, et evidentibus ratione recta, et infallibili deducuntur. Nos vivere e.g. certo scimus, quia per intimum sensum ita vivere nos judicamus, ut dubitare merito non possimus, quamvis conemur, nos autem vivere scimus evidenter, quia cognitionem nostrae vitae inferimus ex hisce duabus propositionibus: Omne, quod cogitat vivere est, sed ego cogito ergo. Quidem propositiones adeo certae, atque evidentes sunt ut non indigeant probatione: sed nimis inutile est, ut in re tam certa, tamque clara demonstranda immoremur diutius: Illud duntaxat de insana Scepticorum sententia obiter animadvertimus, quod habet apud Ciceronem Lucullus Lib. 2. Academ. Quaest. Qui negant, quidquam posse comprehendi, totam vitam evertunt funditus, ipsumque animal orbant animo, ut difficile sit de temeritate eorum, perinde ut causa postulat, dicere.

Opponunt 1. Nulla est in intellectu nostro cognitio certa et evidens ergo nulla est in nobis scientia Physica. Pro ant: Quaelibet nostra cognitio innititur principio fallaci; sed cognitio, quae innititur principio fallaci, non est certa, et evidens ergo etc. Pro: mi. Quaelibet nostra cognitio dependet a sensibus. Sed sensus sunt fallaces. Ergo etc.

R. neg: ant. ad prob: neg: min. ad prob: conc. mai: neg. min. Omnes nostrae cognitiones vel mediate, vel immediate dependent a sensibus; nec dependent tamen a fallaci principio. Enimvero si sensus, quorum ope producit mens ideas rerum, bene dispositi sint, vividi nimirum constantes, et diuturni, certae omnino erunt ideae. Ratio autem est, quia posita hujusmodi sensuum dispositione, ideae seu cognitiones omnes nostrae clarae erunt, atque distinctae descendentes ab alia clara et distincta idea, quam habemus de divina providentia, ad quam pertinere censemus, aliquam in nostris cognitionibus tribuere nobis certam regulam, qua verum a falso discernamus. Talis non potest ut oculus e.g. quando est vividus, et [illegible], perspicax nimirum, et in objecto illuminato attente fixus, atque ad aliquid sensus ibi applicatus, decipiatur, et falsum percipiat; alioquin conqueri merito possemus de divina providentia, quod tam fallacia instrumenta pro veritatis acquisitione nobis suppeditaverit. Ordiar a sensibus inquit apud Tullium Lucullus Lib. 2 superius laudato quorum ita clara judicia, et certa sunt, ut, si optio naturae nostrae detur, et ab ea Deus aliquis requirat, contentane sit suis integris, incorruptisque sensibus, an postulet melius aliquid, non videam quid quaerat amplius. Et paulo inferius: Meo autem judicio ita est maxima in sensibus veritas, si et sani sunt, et valentes, et omnia removentur quae obstant, et impediunt.

Instabunt 1. Sensus nos saepe decipiunt. Ergo sunt fallaces. Pro ant. Saepe res exhibent nobis sensus aliter, ac sunt in se. Ergo etc. Ant. patet. Nam remum in aqua immersum repraesentant inflexum, et turres [illegible] se moventes, solem sub mensura unius pedis, stellas sub forma exigua facis. Confirmatur authoritate D. Augustini, qui Lib. 15. de Trinitate sermonem instituens de cognitionibus, quas non habemus per sensus, inquit: nec in eis utique hoc habemus, quae objiciunt extrinsecus, ut in eo se fallat oculus, quemadmodum fallitur, quando in aqua remum videt infractum, et navigantibus turres moveri, et alia sexcenta, quae aliter sunt, quam videntur.

R. conc. ant. dist. conseq. Ergo sensus semper sunt fallaces neg. Ergo sensus sunt aliquando fallaces judicii occasionaliter conc. proprie, et per se neg. conseq. Etiamsi nonnunquam per sensus decipiamur, non est detrahenda fides sensibus, quia si aliquando objecta aliter, ac sunt in se, repraesentarint, inferendum non est eos ita semper repraesentare. Decipiunt enim aliquando sensus nostri, quia ad eos [illegible] ob aliquas circumstantias [illegible] non sunt; adeo quod hujusmodi deceptio vertenda non est sensuum vitio, sed prorsus occasioni, aut cuipiam alteri externo impedimento. Parum igitur refert, etiamsi sensus nos aliquando deciperent. Ceterum a veritate alienum est, quod in objectis recipiendo fallantur sensus nostri. Nam quum in sensibus, utpote externis, sola externa, atque sensibilis objecti apparentia recipiatur, ut immunes a deceptione sint, sufficit, quod istas apparentias attingant. Hinc non decipiuntur navigantium oculi remum in aqua immersum curvum, atque inflexum percipientes, et turres se se movere, atque recedere. Tunc enim clare objecta attingunt juxta illas apparentias, secundum quas ipsis repraesentantur, proinde et debito suo funguntur modo, et verum cernunt. Ulterius deciperent, sensus nostri, nisi illis ita apparerent, objecta [illegible]. Injusta est, inquit D. Augustinus Lib. 3 contra Academicos, a sensibus exigere aliquid plus quam possunt. Quidquid autem possunt videre oculi, verum vident. Ergone verum est, quod de remo in aqua videtur? Prorsus verum. Nam causa accedente, quare ita videretur, si demersus unda rectus appareret remus, oculos meos falsae prenuntiationis arguerem, si non viderent, quod talibus existentibus causis videndum fuit. Quid multis opus est? Hoc de turrium motu, hoc de pennulis avium, hoc de ceteris innumerabilibus dici potest. Hactenus D. Augustinus, ex quibus patet, utrum existimaverit sensus esse fallaces. Quapropter in opposita authoritate hoc sensu duntaxat contendit decipi oculus in suis perceptionibus, quia nimirum est occasio potest, ut mens fallatur, si eadem sensus perceptioni innixa judicet, remum in aqua immersum revera infractum esse, et turres moveri.

Instabunt 2do. Tametsi non decipiant sensus nostri in suis perceptionibus, praebent tamen occasionem, ut mens secundum apparentias judicans fallatur in proferendis judiciis. Ergo nunquam dependenter a sensibus haberi potest cognitio certa, et evidens.

R. conc: ant, vel modo superius assignato dist. neg: conseq. Nam si sensus nostri recte dispositi fuerint, ideae, seu cognitiones rerum a talibus sensibus transmissae erunt omnino certae, utpote conjunctae cum idea clara atque distincta divinae bonitatis, quae nullo modo pati debet ut semper decipiamur, adeoque potest tunc mens nostra absque ulla deceptione formare suum [illegible] cognitionibus praestare assensum. Sed si constat sensus esse occupatos, deficiet certe a veritate mens, si judicaverit rem aliter non se habere, ac per sensus [illegible]. Verum ne tunc quidem deciperetur mens a sensibus. Talis enim deceptio non sensibus foret imputanda, sed praecipiti determinationi mentis, quae de re non satis explorata judicium ferre non dubitavit. Nam, ut praeclare ait D. Augustinus Lib. de vera Religione, cap. 33 Corporea species, quia nullam voluntatem habent, non mentiuntur, sed ne ipsi quidem oculi fallunt: Non enim renunciare possunt animo, nisi affectionē suam. Qd si ñ solū ipsi, sed eā omnes corporis sensus ita renunciant, ut afficiunt, quid abeis amplius exigere debeamus, ignoro.... Si quis remū frangi in aqua opinatꝫ, ñ malum habet internunciū, sed malus ē judex, nā ille pro sua nāa ñ potuit aliṭ in aqua sentire, nec aliṭ debuit. Si ñ aliud ē aer, aliud aqua, justū ē, ut aliṭ in aere, aliṭ in aqua sentiaṭ. Quare oculus recte videt; Ad hoc ñ factus ē, ut tantū videat, sed animus pperse judicat, cui ad contemplandam summam pulchritudinē mens, ñ oculus factus ē.

Instabunt 2do. Sensus nostri, licet vere dispositi, et suffulti idea clara, atq distincta divinę veritatis, percipiunt obª aliṭ, ac sunt in se. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Nobis sæpe vigilantib, atq optima oculorū acie preditis, proindeq claras, atq distinctas rerū ideas habentib, oculi percipiunt pennas in collo columbę versicolores, remū in aqua immersum veluti fractum, et alia sexcenta, quę talia in se ipsis ñ sunt. Ergo etc.

R. dist ant. Sensus nostri, licet vere dispositi percipiunt objecta aliṭ, ac sunt in se, quū sunt extrinsecus impediti conc. quū ñ habent aliqd extrinsecum impedimentū ne. ant. et conseqᵐ. Ad prob. eadē utendū distinctione. Licet sensus nostri, posita eā recta ipsorū dispoñe, percipiant quandoq res aliṭ, ac revera sunt in se, falsa tñ hujusmodi pceptio ñ ab ipsis est sensib sed ab externo procedit impedimento, a diversa scilicet refractione lucis in remo, et a diversa ejusdē lucis reflexione in pennis columbę; quę quidē impedimenta, quū nobis comperta sint, dubitare utiq debemus, num res ita se habeant, quemadmodū a sensib attinguntur, ñ autē sensus ipsos veluti fallaces redarguere. Sensus siḍ, quando sunt integri, incorrupti, ac vere dispositi, et quū omnia removent, quę obstant, et impediunt, maximā in se habent veritatē. Quare, ut errores vitenṭ, tandiu assensus noster cohibendus ē, quandiu attente consideraverimus, utrū sani, et valentes sint sensus, et utrum ab aliqua extrinseca re impediantṭ. Insuper quamvis etiamsi ex parte objecti aliqd occurrat impedimentū in sensuū pceptionib, semp tñ certū ē et remū v.g. in aqua immersū nobis videri curvum, et pennas in collo columbę exhiberi versicolores; proindeq certū ē rerū saltē secundū apparentiam aliquā, ē in nobis scientiā physicā. Dicere ñ quis posset: Scio remū immersum in aqua mihi apparere, et videri curvū, cui sane argumento ñ habent Pyrrhonici, qd respondeant. Propterea D. Augustinus ad convincendos pertinaces Academicos quū adversus semetipsū hanc objectionē instituisset. Ergo tñ fallor, si assentiar ita respondet Noli plus assentiri, quā ut ita tibi apparere psuadeas, et nulla deceptio ē. Ñ ñ video, quomodo refellat Academicus eum, qui dicit Hoc mihi candidum videri scio. Hoc auditum meū delectare scio. Hoc mihi jucundū olere scio: Hoc mihi sapere dulce scio Hoc mihi frigidū ē scio. Dic potius, utrum per se amaræ sint oleastri frondes, quas caper tā pertinaciṭ appetit.

Opponunt 2do. Nulla ē in intellectu nostro cognitio certa, et evidens rei naalṭ immutabilis. Ergo etc. Pro ant: Nulla res creata ē naalṭ immutabilis. Ergo etc. Pro ant Nulla res contingens ē naalṭ immutabilis, sed quælibet res creata ē contingens. Ergo etc. Confirmatꝫ. Si aliqua ē in nobis scientia physica, vel ē de reb singularib, vel de universalib, sed neq de singularib, neq de universalib haberi potē scientia physica. Ergo etc. Pro mī. Ñ de singularib, quū contingentes sint, ñ de universalib, quū pcipi a sensus ñ possint. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant. ad prob ne. ant. ad prob dist mam. Nulla res contingens sive quoad essentiā, sive quoad existentiā ē naalṭ immutabilis conc. Nulla res contingens tantū quoad existentiā ē naalṭ immutabilis ne: mam: dist mīm sed quælibet res creata ē contingens quoad existentiā conc. quoad essentiā ne mīm et conseqᵐ. Contingentia Creaturarū ñ obstat, quominus naalṭ dici queant immutabiles. Res siquidē creatę, ut alibi diximus, duplici modo spectari possunt, quoad existentiā scilicet, et quoad essentiā. Res productas secundū existentiā consideratas mutabiles ē, ambigi ñ potē qd ñ contingens tantū existit, potē ñ ē, ac destrui. Spectatas vero quoad essentiā, naalṭ immutari ñ posse, inquidē patet quū omnis res creata secundū essentiā necessaria sit, ñ contingens, ~~adeo ut~~ adeoq essentialib attributis ita constituatꝫ, ut servato presenti rerū ordine, naalṭ fieri ñ possit, qd diversā habeat essentiā. Quamvis hoō v.g. potuerit a Deo produci, et ñ produci, et possit nunc eā in nihilū redigi; essentia tñ hoīs in naalitate, et raalitate consistens semp eadē ē, sive eā spectemus ut existentē, sive ut futurā, sive ut possibilē. Fingamus ñ, qd Deus velit hoīnē desinere, imo et destruat. Nunc rursus potē illū producere. Negabit nemo, quū ita res creatę in nihilū redigantꝫ, ut earū possibilitas ñ auferatꝫ. Si ergo rursus potē Deus creare hoīnē, destructa hoīs existentia possibilis adhuc remanet illius essentia. Qd si quis asserat, mutata hoīs existentia, ñ eandē, sed aliā quā tantū possibilē remanere illius essentiā, respondendū ē eandē prorsus semp ē possibilē. Si ñ Deus destructo hoīe, illū denuo produceret, ut naaliṭ operaret, deberet illū producere, servato presenti rerū ordine sed in presenti rerū ordine hoīs essentia in eo consistit, ut sit aāl raōne preditū, Deus ergo, si denuo hoīnem produceret, cū hac ipsa essentia produceret. Creatę ergo res, licet quoad existentiā mutari possint quoad essentiā tñ naaliṭ sunt immutabiles. Ad confirmaōnem conc mām ne mīm. Et modo superius assignato dist ad prob primā partē antecedentis, nego vero 2dam.

Instabunt 1. Est aliqua ē in nobis cogñio certa certitudine physica, pręsertim ista Circulus ē rotundus sed neq ista. Ergo etc. Pro mī. Ut certi physice simus omnē circulū ē rotundū, debet prius fieri singulorū circulorū enumeraōo: Hęc fieri nequit. Ergo etc. Pro: mī: Ut certi physice simus omnē hoīnē ē album, debet prius fieri singulorū hoīnū enumeraōo. Ergo etc.

R. conc: mām: ne: mīm ad prob: ne: mīm. ad prob: conc: ant: ne: conseqᵐ Disparitas ē, quia ipsa idea clara, atq distincta Circuli hoc nobis representatꝫ, qd nimirū Circulus debeat ē rotundus, qd autē in idea clara, atq distincta alicujus rei continetꝫ, neārio illi convenit, adeo ut de ea re eād generatī sumpta certo affirmari possit certitudine physica, ommissa singulorū enumeraōne. Verū in idea clara, atq distincta hoīnis n̄ continet albedo, aut alia quæpiam exterior determinata corporis affectio, nullus proinde certus ē nosse physice omnes hoīes ē albos, nisi facta singulorum hoīum ennumeratiōne.

Instabunt 2do. Si aliqua ē in nobis scientia physica, præsertim de nostra cogitatiōne, et vita. Sed neq. de cogitatiōne, et vita nostra. Ergo etc. Pro mr. n̄ aliunde certi ē possumus nos vivere, quam quia cogitamus, sed quum nos cogitare putamus, somniamus fortasse, aut deliramus. Ergo etc.

R. conc. mm: ne mm. ad prob: conc. mm, et mm: ne conseqm. nihil hoc argumento infulsius ē nosse. Somnium n., atq. delirium in hoīne sine aliqua mentis operatiōne, adeoq. sine aliqua cogitatiōne ē n̄ possunt. Si ergo dum cogitamus, vivimus; quum somniantes, et delirantes cogitemus, tam in somnio, quam in delirio certi physice sumus cogitare nos, et vivere.

Opponunt 3tio. Sacrarum scripturarum authoritates probant nullam ē in nobis scientiam physicam. Ergo etc. Pro ant: Ecclesiastes Cap. 1. vers. 8. inquit. Cunctæ res difficiles. n̄ potest hōo eas explicare sermone. Et Cap. 3. v. 11. mundum tradidit disputatiōni eorum, ut n̄ inveniat hōo opus, qd operatus ē Deus ab initio usq. ad finem. Tandem Cap. 8, v. 17: Intellexi, qd omnium operum Dei nullam possit hōo invenire ratiōnem eorum, quæ fiunt sub sole et quanto plus laboraverit ad quærendum, tanto minus inveniat: Etiamsi dixerit sapiens se nosse, n̄ poterit reperire. Ergo etc.

R. ne ant. ad prob: conc. authoritates, ex quibus tn̄ nihil contra nos. Primam siquidem, ut præclare explicat Dionisius Cartusianus in expositiōne ejusdem Libri, innuit duntaxat cunctas res ē difficiles, ut perfecte intelligantur, nec posse hoīem eas explicare expressionibus perfecte res ipsas nosificantibus. In hoc eōdem sensu exponit laudatus author 2dam authoritatem, qd nimirum percipere n̄ possit hōo opera Dei cogniōne perfecta, et omnino comprehensiva. Ad 3tiam authoritatem qd attinet, idem Dionisius eandem interpretatur de ignorantia hoīum quoad judicia Dei circa res creatas. Nam vers. 16, qui immediate præcedit, ait Salomon Apposui cor meum, ut scirem sapientiam, et intelligerem distensionem, quæ versatur in terra ubi per illud vocabulum distensionem legit Cartusianus cum aliis distinctiones, idē discretiones, variumq. eventum, qui contigit hoīnibus, ita qd unus prosperatur, alter adversis affligitur; unus prævenitur a Domino, et gratiis impletur ab eo, alter indesinenter peccare, atq. obdurari permittitur; Quo utiq. sensu certum ē, qd invenire nequit hōo ratiōnem operum Dei, clamante Apostolo ad Romanos 11. O altitudo divitiarum sapientiæ, et scientiæ Dei, quam incomprehensibilia sunt judicia ejus, et investigabiles viæ ejus. Cæterum, n̄ desunt Scripturæ testimonia, quæ aptissime indicant aliquam ē in nobis scientiam physicam. In Libro n. Job Cap. 22. v. 2do legitur Numquid Deo nosse comparari hōo, etiamsi perfectæ fuerit scientiæ? Et Cap. 6 supra trigesimum, v. 6. juxta vigesimum Ecce Deus magnus vincens scientiam nostram. Docet itaq. Scriptura aliquam ē in nobis scientiam. Quommodo n. scientiam nostram Deus vinceret, si in nobis nulla esset?

Quæ contra Scioōnem hanc opponi ulterius possunt, confutata sunt, quum de Cartesiana dubitatiōne actum est.

Corollarium 1.

Illud primo ex dictis hactenus inferendum ē, certitudini scilicet physicæ n̄ obstare pravas illas contentiones quas ēnt se habent Philosophi de rebus nāalibus disputantes. Nam ea, de quibus disputant, vel hujusmodi sunt, ut de iis clara n̄ sit in nobis, atq. distincta idea, vel talibus innixa sunt principiis, quæ aut falsitati sunt obnoxia, aut n̄, ut pate, [illegible]; Illa vero, de quibus physicam ē in nobis scientiam asseveramus, adeo certa, et inconcussa sunt, ut nemo hactenus in solidam disputatiōnem vocaverit.

Corollarium 2dum.

Inferendum ē 2do argumentum illud desumptum ab hoīum diversitate, qd nimirum talis sit inter illos corporum temperamentorum, affectuumq. discrepantia, ut una, eademq. res variis varia videatur, nihil omnino evincere. Vel n. nonnulli vina e.c. habeant in deliciis, nonnulli vero abstineant quammaxime; qd alii quasdam arenti-borum species, quas gustare alii nullo modo possunt, sed plerique nonnullum recreent odoribus, quos alteri ferre nullatenus queunt, probat duntaxat in solis sensibus statuendum n̄ ē veritatis judicium, n̄ autem nullam a nobis cognosci veritatem. Nam etiamsi concedamus, ex sensuum testimonio certo nos judicare n̄ posse ita se habere res, quemadmodum per sensus repræsentantur, eo tn̄ semper deveniendum ē, ut de rerum saltem apparentia certos nosē nos certo habeamus. Vel si proposita hactenus momenta n̄ tanti roboris videantur, ita cum Tullio, et D. Augustino contra pertinaces scepticos argumentandum ē. Vel scitis nullam dari scientiam, vel nescitis, si nescitis, qua temeritate id proponitis? si autem scitis: Ergo de hoc saltem datur scientia, qd sciatur nihil.

Quærendum nunc ē, utrum præter scientiam physicam, aliqua sit in intellectu nostro scientia metaphysica. Negant Cartesiani, qui tametsi Academicorum insaniam detestantes ostendere pro viribus nitantur quamplurium creatarum rerum existere in intellectu hoīnis viatoris scientiam physicam, eo tn̄ audaciæ devenere, ut nullam ē[illegible] nobis in hac mortali vita dependentem de iisdem rebus creatis certitudinem metaphysicam constantissime asseverent. Ajunt n. Deum contulisse nobis infallibilem regulam, qua de iis rebus, quæ in universo nāaliter eveniunt, absq. erroris formidine judicium ferre possemus; sed nullum fuisse nobis inditum lumen, quo certe, atq. dijudicare ea iam cognosceremus, quæ Deus, ut supernāalis author, præstare solet. Id ut confirment ad fidei nostræ mysteria confugiunt asserentes plura Deum efficere, quæ communem hunc nāæ ordinem superant, quæq. impossibilia existimamus, proindeq. summam in hac re pietatem affectantes, n̄ solum a recta ratiōne alienum; verum et impium et sacrilegum ē asseverant, si hoc a Deo posse fieri, illud vero in brachio eōdem extenso fieri n̄ posse, ē prop:

terea in nobis scientiam metaphysicam contendamus. Ita enim, inquiunt, divinæ providentiæ omnem intelligentiam nostram longe antecellenti leges, atque limites, quod indignum est, imponunt. Ut autem pateat, quinam magis a recta ratione, et Christiana pietate aberrent.

Animadvertendum est primo essentiam cujuslibet rei creatæ nihil aliud esse, quam participationem quamdam divinæ essentiæ divinæ. Fons enim omnis bonitatis Deus cum summe, ut ajunt, sui ipsius communicativus sit, ipsius divina essentia infinitis exigit participari, et communicari modis, non solum ad intra, ut inquiunt scholæ, per processiones divinarum, verum etiam ad extra per productionem creaturarum. Hinc licet creata omnia, quæ fuerunt, quæque existunt, finito nobis comprehendantur numero, et finita in omnibus sint, creaturæ tamen possibiles tam quoad numerum, tam quoad species sunt infinitæ, quia et in numero, et in specie infinitis sunt illi modi, quibus perfectissima divina natura extra se diffundi potest, et participari. Hinc etiam possibilia dicuntur ab æterno, non quia essentiæ rerum possibilium tales sunt in se ipsis, sed quia essentia divina, quæ cumulatam semper habuit in se quamcumque perfectionem, semper quoque, et ab æterno potuit hoc, vel illo modo communicari. Varii enim modi communicabilitatis divinæ constituunt essentiam cujuslibet rei creatæ, quæ fuit, est, aut esse potest, quin ideo aliquid possibile sit, quia tali modo divina natura est participabilis. Id confirmari potest paritate divini Decreti. Quemadmodum enim Decretum divinum causa est, et origo futurorum, quia nihil est futurum, nisi ab efficaci, et infallibili Decreto Dei ad existendum pro aliqua temporis differentia determinetur, ita essentia divina causa est, et origo possibilium, quia nihil est possibile, nisi illud, quod dicitur possibile, sit aliquis modus quo eadem essentia divina potest communicari. Ex his autem consectarium fit, quod si aliquo modo incommunicabilis concipit Deus, quia alioquin aliqua imperfectio, vel contradictio in ipsum caderet, illud quod diffundi ab ipso nequit, dicitur impossibile. Tametsi enim essentia divina infinitis participari possit modis, semper tamen participabilis est modis perfectis, hoc est connexionem servantibus, non imperfectis, idem contradictionem, et repugnantiam involventibus.

Animadvertendum est 2do nullam unquam rem posse Deum producere, nisi secundum aliquem ex illis modis, quibus ab æterno cognovit essentiam suam esse communicabilem. Sicuti enim in humanis conficere opus externum Artifex nequit, nisi ad normam alicujus exemplaris ideæ, ita neque summus rerum conditor Deus rem ullam producere potest, quæ conformis non sit illis ideis, quas ab æterno in mente habuit. Sed Deus non aliter cognovit ab æterno res omnes, quæ determinato tempore possunt existere, quam in essentia sua, veluti in prima rerum omnium causa, et origine, quatenus perfectissima cognitione comprehendens naturam suam, vidit etiam omnes illos modos, quibus participari eadem potuit, et in iis etiam omnes vidit, et singulas creaturarum essentias. Non alia igitur ratione potest Deus rem aliquam producere quam conformiter ad illos modos, quibus ab æterno novit essentiam suam esse communicabilem. Ex hactenus autem dictis consequitur essentiam cujuslibet rei ita esse necessariam, et immutabilem quemadmodum necessaria, et immutabilis est essentia Dei. Quia essentiæ rerum creatarum sunt effectus necessario procedentes ab essentia divina. Consequitur etiam, quod sicuti essentia divina ad intra necessario communicatur, ita et ad extra debet posse communicari, quum sit necessaria proprietas Entis summe boni, ut summe sit sui ipsius diffusivum, cum hoc tantum discrimine, quod necessaria divinæ essentiæ communicatio ad intra est actualis, ad extra vero possibilem tantum respicit rem, proindeque essentia divina in creaturarum productione debet necessario infinitis modis posse communicari, non necessario actu communicari.

Neque est, quod inquiunt Cartesiani, Deum non habere perfectissimam in omnibus libertatem, si essentia divina infinitis necessario participari modis. Nam essentiæ rerum præcedunt divinam hanc libertatem. In primo siquidem rationis signo concipitur Deus ut perfectissime comprehendens essentiam suam, et in ea necessario videns scientia simplicis intelligentiæ omnia possibilia, omnes nimirum modos, quibus natura divina est communicabilis ad extra. In sequenti autem signo concipitur Deus per liberum suæ voluntatis Decretum aliqua ex cognitis possibilibus determinare ad existendum, et alia in eorum possibilitate relinquere. Quum ergo essentiæ rerum liberum præcedant divinæ voluntatis Decretum ita sunt necessariæ, ut neque ab ipso Deo possint mutari: Et liberum hujusmodi Decretum determinat quidem eorum existentiam, quæ proinde est semper contingens, non autem essentiam, quæ immediate ac necessario ab essentia divina procedit. Hinc sequitur, quod quum essentiæ rerum sint ipsæ communicationes divinæ naturæ, quæ semper, et necessario sunt tales, et determinatæ, ita sint necessariæ ut in iis producendis nullo prorsus modo possit Deus illas mutare. Non enim potest Deus ipsas producere aut difformes ab illis ideis, quas ab æterno habuit, aut difformes ab iis modis, quibus ab æterno cognovit essentiam suam summe communicabilem. His prænotatis sit Conclusio 2da. Est in nobis aliquarum rerum scientia metaphysica.

Probatur: 1. Probatio. Est in nobis hujusmodi cognitio. Hoc est ad rationis particulas Ergo est in nobis scientia aliqua metaphysica. Probatur consequentia scientia metaphysica est cognitio certa certitudine metaphysica, sed talis est hujusmodi cognitio. Ergo etc. Maior patet. Probatur Minor. Illa cognitio est certa certitudine metaphysica, cujus objectum est supernaturaliter immutabile; sed objectum hujusce cognitionis est supernaturaliter immutabile. Ergo etc. Probatur Minor objectum hujus cognitionis est essentia hominis, sed essentia hominis, sicuti ac cæterarum creaturarum essentiæ, supernaturaliter est immutabilis. Ergo etc. Probatur Minor non potest Deus, supernaturaliter etiam agens, mutare essentias rerum creatarum, quin simul mutet essentiam suam sed Deus nulla sua virtute mutare potest essentiam suam. Ergo etc. Maior est certissima etiam apud Cartesianos, qui ob immutabilitatem essentiæ divinæ admittunt circa Deum scientiam metaphysicam. Minor itaque probatur. Effectus necessario, et immediate procedens ab aliqua causa mutari nequit, quin et causa mutetur; sed essentiæ rerum creatarum sunt effectus necessario, et immediate procedentes ab essentia divina, tanquam a causa propriam cuique rei essentiam communicante. Ergo etc. Minor inductione probatur. Sic quia perfecta rerum omnium cognitio est effectus necessario consequens perfectissimam divinam naturam, mutari non potest, quin divina simul natura mutetur. Sic quia potentia discursiva necessario, et immediate provenit a spiritualitate, nequit illa mutari, quin et ista mutetur.

sic demum quia sensibilitas a corpore, humor ab aqua, calor ab igne, lux a sole necessario, et immediate profluunt, tales hujusmodi effectus, aut mutari nequeunt, quin natura in propriis [illegible] causis [illegible], atque mutetur. Sic Mi. Essentiae creaturarum sunt participationes essentiae Dei, sed quaelibet hujusmodi participatio ab essentia divina necessario, et immediate procedit: Divina n. natura est necessario extra se [illegible] participabilis, [illegible] debent res, quibus eadem communicari potest; Aliunde vero necessaria est relatio communicabilitatis alicujus naturae ad terminum talis communicabilitatis. Cum igitur natura divina omnis bonitatis fons, et necessario extra se communicabilis, necessario quoque ab ipsa procedere debent innumerae participationes, quae nec efficacissima quidem Dei libertas mutare potest, utpote quae per signum rationis ipsam antecedunt, nec ab ea ullo modo dependent.

Praeterea, cum essentia divina non solum extra se necessario sit communicabilis, verum etiam talibus, ac determinatis modis exigat communicari, eorum quamvis participationes non solum ab eadem divina essentia necessario procedere, sed etiam talem, ac determinatam necessario procedere. Rursus, cum in participatione divinae naturae cujuslibet rei essentia consistat, sequitur quod omnes rerum essentiae ita sint necessariae, et immutabiles, ut nulla sua virtute efficere Deus possit, quod sint, et non sint tales, quales a divina essentia procedunt, et a nobis cognoscuntur. Cum ergo essentiam alicujus rei creatae clare, distincteque novimus, habere nos scientiam metaphysicam [illegible], cum talis cognitio sit de objecto supernaturaliter immutabili.

Pro: 2do Prob. Mutari nequit aliqua imago, quin et archetypum, exemplar primum talis imaginis mutetur; sed omnes Creaturae quoad essentiam, sunt imagines divinae naturae, et divina natura est exemplar harum imaginum. Non ergo possunt mutari essentiae rerum quin in divinam naturam mutatio cadat, [illegible] de Deo, apud quem [illegible] non est transmutatio, nec vicissitudinis obumbratio. Mi. certa est, quia est imago et archetypum, [illegible] signum et rem signatam, est necessaria relatio; imago n. est illud, quod archetypum nobis repraesentat, quemadmodum signum est illud, quod ducit nos in rei signatae cognitionem. Quod autem creaturae omnes quoad essentiam sint imagines divinae naturae et divina natura exemplar sit harum imaginum, [illegible] ratio, tum scriptura suadet. Ratio quidem, quia Deus in productione creaturarum manifestat nobis [illegible], quamvis inadaequate, quum ... tantummodo, non omnes [illegible] infinito [illegible] modo exhibeant nobis divinas perfectiones; Scriptura vero, quum Joannis primo habeatur omnia per ipsum facta sunt, quibus verbis significatur Deum omnia fecisse per verbum, veluti per causam exemplarem, nempe omnia fecisse quae in universo circumspiciuntur, ad normam, et exemplar perfectissimae [illegible] naturae, quae in divino Verbo continetur. Mutari ergo nequeunt creaturarum essentiae, quin divina natura mutetur, quae perfectissimum est illarum exemplar. Enimvero si essentia alicujus rei creatae, essentia v. g. hominis mutaretur, mutari minime posset, nisi redderetur impossibilis; ex eo siquidem quod aliquid modo existat, modo non existat in rerum natura, solum mutatur illius existentia, non autem essentia, quae eadem semper est, sive sit rei praesentis, sive praeteritae, sive futurae, sive possibilis. Porro si essentia hominis evaderet impossibilis, impossibilis quoque evaderet necessario ille modus, quo essentia divina potuit ab aeterno extra se in productione hominis communicari et illa exemplaris idea, ad cujus normam ab aeterno potuit homo produci. Quemadmodum, quia impossibilis est alter Deus, nec potest essentia divina tali modo communicari, nec in ea contineri aliqua exemplaris idea, secundum quam alter Deus quodammodo producatur. Si ergo impossibilis fieret essentia hominis, non amplius esset in Deo aut ille modus, quo Deus essentiam suam diffundere poterat in productione quidem hominis, aut exemplaris illa idea, ad cujus normam poterat homo produci, quum neque communicabilitas essentiae divinae neque ideae divinae mentis habere possent terminum impossibilem, utpote repugnantem, atque implicantem. Igitur, si mutaretur essentia hominis, aut alia quaevis essentia, mutaretur etiam ipse Deus, siquidem non destrueretur ex divinis ideis, nec amplius divina natura perfectissime esset communicabilis.

Opponunt 1. Esto essentiae rerum creatarum a divina natura necessario procedant, et tales sint, ac non [illegible] a eadem divina natura procedant, proindeque supernaturaliter etiam immutabiles; non inde tamen sequitur metaphysicam esse nobis in certitudinem [illegible]. Sic ar. Esto ita se habeant rerum essentiae, metaphysice certi non sumus, quod a nobis cognoscantur, sicuti sunt in se ipsis. Ergo etc.

R. [illegible] ad prob. [illegible]. Enimvero statim ac aliquae rerum essentiae apparent nobis in idea clara, atque distincta, certi metaphysice sumus hujusmodi res ita esse in se ipsis, sicuti nobis apparent, quum fieri non possit, ut aliquam rem claram, atque distinctam ideam cognoscamus, quin illud evidenter [illegible]. Quemadmodum [illegible] claram, atque distinctam ideam objectum aliquod naturaliter immutabile novimus, scientiam ob [illegible] scientiam physicam habemus, ita quando clare, et distincte [illegible] evidenter rem aliquam supernaturaliter etiam mutari non posse cognoscimus, [illegible] in intellectu nostro [illegible] scientia metaphysica. [illegible] quum evidentia [illegible] sit scientiae utriusque physicae, et metaphysicae discrimen non ab evidentia sumatur, sed a certitudine objectiva, ab objecto scilicet vel naturaliter, vel supernaturaliter immutabili, illa evidentia, quae [illegible] in nobis scientiam physicam, sufficit, ut scientiam quoque metaphysicam comparemus. Id confirmat magis ex ipsis principiis Cartesianorum. Inquiunt n. Cartesiani esse in nobis scientiam metaphysicam de rebus divinis, quia evidenter cognoscimus supernaturaliter esse immutabiles. At ignari sunt, et hujusmodi evidentiam, qua rerum divinarum immutabilitatem [illegible] non alia [illegible], quam quae habetur ex idea clara, atque distincta. Si ergo, ut docent Cartesiani, certi metaphysice sumus de rebus divinis, quia [illegible] nobis apparet in idea clara, atque distincta Dei supernaturaliter etiam non posse Deum mutare, quum non minus in clara, atque distincta idea nobis appareat essentia rerum creatarum a Deo supernaturaliter etiam operante mutari non posse, fatendum est non solum de rebus divinis, verum etiam de aliis rebus creatis esse in nobis scientiam metaphysicam.

Instabunt. Dubitare merito possumus, utrum perfectissimus Deus mutare possit hominis essentiam [illegible]. Sic ar. Sicut perfectissimus, fortasse in essentia divina plures sunt modi, plures ideae, ad quarum normam potest [illegible] homo a Deo produci. Hoc posito Dubitare merito possumus [illegible] ex [illegible] Dei perfectione, et communi capabilitate. Pro 2a. Poti fortasse Deus agens supra naturæ ordinem destruere hominem secundum unam essentiam eundemque producere secundum aliam, quæ correspondeat alteri ex illis modis, atque ideis, quas habet in mente. Ergo etc.

R. neg. ant. ad prob: transm. min. neg. mm. ad prob. neg. ant. Nam etiamsi in essentia divina plures illi modi atque ideæ respectu ejusdem rei continerentur, adhuc tamen mutari res quoad essentiam non posset, quin aliqua imperfectio atque mutatio in Deum caderet. Si n. supernaturaliter agens Deus hominem tam quoad essentiam, tum quoad existentiam destrueret, illumque produceret nova alia essentia, quæ non esset aliud realiter, sed solum corresponderet alicui ex aliis modis, atque ideis, quibus divina essentia in productione hominis adhuc poterit communicavisse, vel prior ista essentia, quæ in aliam [illegible] mutata foret, esset adhuc possibilis, vei facta esset impossibilis. Si adhuc esset possibilis, sola igitur existentia, de qua non controvertitur, mutata esset. Si facta esset impossibilis, tunc mutari ergo divinam essentiam necessum esset, quum non amplius esset in Deo ille modus, quo se [illegible] diffundere poterat in productione hominis [illegible] illa idea, secundum quam ab æterno erat homo producibilis. Cæterum plures illi modi, atque ideæ, ad quarum normam eademque res produci à Deo possit, immerito excogitantur. Nam ad ideas possibiles quod attinet, vel essent in specie similes, vel dissimiles. Si dissimiles ad unam et eandemque rem pertinere non possent; quum plures res specifice diversas respicerent: Si omnes essent similes essent inutiles superflua, quum una eandem atque eam sufficeret. Praeterea atque, si plures illæ ideæ essent similes destrui, ac mutari deberent omnes destructa, ac mutata essentia illius rei, ad quam pertinerent, quum omnes, utpote similes, eandem essentiam pro termino haberent. Quemadmodum, quia particulares hominum essentiæ cum essentia hominis in genere specifice similes sunt, mutata essentia hominis in genere, singulæ quoque in particulari hominum essentiæ mutari deberent.

Quod si adhuc urgeant Cartesiani inquientes summam esse divinæ potentiæ vim, et fieri propterea posse, ut quæ menti nostræ impossibilia, et contradictoria videntur, a Deo fortasse perficiantur; respondendum est hoc argumentum vel nihil probare contra nos, vel scientiam Cartesianorum metaphysicam impugnare. Nam si Deus, utpote omnipotens, efficere potest quæ nobis videntur impossibilia, efficere eam fortasse poterit, ut ideæ mentis nostræ claræ, atque distinctæ nihil aliud sint, quam somnia, ac deliria, fieri propterea fortasse poterit, ut quum clare, atque distincte res divinas percipimus tanquam supernaturaliter immutabiles, non scientiam de iis metaphysicam habeamus, sed somniantes, et delirantes perpetuo decipiamur. Nutat ergo omnis in nobis scientia admisso illo fortasse Cartesianorum. Quare, vel Deus non potest omnipotenti virtute sua efficere impossibilia, et contradictoria: nec potest ea patrare, quæ in clara, atque distincta idea apparent nobis impossibilia, vel nulla prorsus in nobis est aut physica, aut metaphysica scientia.

Opponunt 2do. Nulla est in nobis cognitio, cujus objectum supernaturaliter immutabile sit. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Nihil est in nobis quod certos nos reddat, objectum aliquod supernaturaliter esse immutabile. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Si aliquid est, quod certos reddere possit, naturalis ratio seu idea clara, atque distincta essentiæ alicujus rei; sed hæc non sufficit. Ergo etc. Min. patet. Imprimis n. nihil certius existimamus principio illo: quæ sunt eadem uni tertio, sunt eadem inter se: et tamen hujusmodi principium quod clare distincteque veluti certissimum percipimus, et arbitramur, supernaturali Dei virtute falsum fuisse redditum, docet aptissime fides nostra in Mysterio Trinitatis, in quo tres divinæ personæ sunt quid idem cum tertio, hoc est cum divina natura, nec sunt idem inter se. 2do clarum, distinctamque ideam certam, atque indubitatam omnino est totum esse majus sua parte, et tamen aliter se rem habere fide credimus in Eucharistiæ Sacramento, in quo corpus Xti totum est in tota Hostia, et totum parit in qualibet sensibili hostiæ parte. 3tio clare, distincteque percipimus esse impossibile, ac manifeste repugnare, quod duo corpora esse possint in eodem loco et tamen id pluries contigisse tradit Scriptura exemplo Xti Domini, qui in apertam lucem venit, intacto Virginis utero, quum fores essent clausæ, intravit in Cenaculum, et immoto lapide exivit de monumento. Nihil ergo est, quod certos nos reddat aliquod objectum esse supernaturaliter immutabile, quia, ut ait Scriptura Lucæ I. Non est impossibile apud Deum omne verbum.

R. neg. ant. ad prob. neg. ant. ad prob. conc. mm. neg. mm. Ex illo principio: quæ sunt eadem uni tertio, sunt eadem inter se, non recte infertur ea quoque esse incerta, quæ in clara, atque distincta idea nobis apparent. Nam Axioma illud ad res duntaxat creatas extenditur, non ad Deum, qui longe altiori ordine est. Sicuti n. [illegible] apud Philosophos obtinet locum hujusmodi axioma ex nihilo nihil fit; nemo tamen audet transferre illud ad Deum; ita clare distincteque percipimus ea, quæ in creatis sunt eadem uni tertio, esse eadem inter se, quin tamen principium illud ad Deum extendamus. Quamquam, in Trinitatis eam Mysterio sua locum veritatem [illegible] principium. Nam Filius, et Spiritus Sanctus, qui in natura cum Patre conveniunt, adeo sunt quid idem cum tertio in natura [illegible] sunt quid idem inter se, quia vero quoad personalitatem non sunt quid idem cum tertio, quoad eandem personalitatem non sunt quid idem inter se. Si [illegible] si probare possent Cartesiani Deum reddidisse falsum illud principium in Mysterio Trinitatis, sequeretur non tantum scientiam metaphysicam, sed scientiam quoque physicam esse excludendam. Non n. mutasset Deus principium illud supernaturali virtute sua, sed per potentiam naturalem, quum personæ divinæ naturaliter, et necessario, non supernaturaliter potentia scilicet extraordinaria, sint quid idem cum divina natura, et realiter distinguantur in personis.

Ad 2dum dicendum est Corpus Xti existere in Sacramento Altaris modo spirituali, non corporeo. Quod autem res, quæ spirituali existit modo, tota sit in toto, et tota parit in qualibet loci parte, nullam involvit repugnantiam, aut contradictionem, sed proprium hoc est, et naturalis modus, quo res spirituales existunt in loco. Quare principium illud: Totum est majus sua parte non ita accipiendum est, ut in quacunque hypothesi locum habeat, sed in ea tantum, quod corpora existant modo sibi proprio, modo videlicet corporeo.

Ad 3tio denique loco oppositum fuit, nihil omnino evincit. Etenim naturaliter est impossibile, quod duo corpora existant in eodem loco, non supernaturaliter. Etiam omnes ferme Philosophi contendunt corporum compenetrationem, ut naturaliter [illegible], [illegible] supernaturalem hanc compenetrationem corporum explicant, quomodo corpus Xti exierit in lucem, servata materni uteri integritate, quomodo, immoto lapide, exierit de monumento. et quomodo, januis clausis, intraverit ad Discipulos.

Quæ dicta sunt de triplici principiis, de aliis consimilibus quæ opponi possunt, in exorditione in ista sunt duæ penitus n. Deus agens supra nãe ordinem videt reddidisse falsa quædam principia quæ nos habemus ut certa, et evidentia, haudquaquam contra nãam suam operatur è impossibilium. Rão autē ē, quia principia illa, ad quorum normam n̄ operat Deus, dum agit supra nãam n̄ sunt principia absolute universalia quæ proinde in quacunq sive nãali, sive supnãli providentia infallibilem habeant veritatē, sed, quæ vera sunt, ne dato duntaxat communi nãæ ordine. Quare, quum Deus supnãaliq agens secundum ea principia n̄ operat, ea n̄ reddit falsa operatur n̄ extra illum ordinem, in quo tantummodo principia illa suam habent veritatem. Id confirmari potē exemplo lucis Antipodes, si obūm coloratum proponitur oculo in proportionata distantia, necrio illud videtur quæ falsa n̄ redditur, tamen si nocturno tempore n̄ verificetur. Quemadmodum ergo talia n̄ evadit absoluta Rdõ, quia ad obūm duntaxat illuminata extenditur, n̄ ad corpora luce carentia; ita prædicta principia n̄ redduntur falsa, quia in ordine tantum nãali prosequuntur a Philosophis veluti certa, et infallibilia. Conclusionem itaq, primo ē, qd ut probent Cartesiani Deum falsa reddidisse illa principia, ostendere deberent Deum contra ea operatum ē in illo eodem ordine, in quo illa tantum obtinent veritatem. 2do supnãali virtute operatum fuisse, aut operari posse Deum contra illa principia quæ in clara, atq distincta idea apparent nobis absolute universalia quæ talia proinde sunt in quacunq sive nãali, sive supnãali ordine, cujusmodi sunt ista: Idem n̄ potē simul ēē, et n̄ ēē. Idem est vel ē, vel n̄ ē. Effectus nequit ē prior sua causa.

Neq. obstat scripturæ authoritas ex Cap. 1 Lucæ desumpta. Aliud n̄ ē, qd n̄ sit impossibile apud Deum omne verbum, et aliud ē, qd nullum verbum apud Deum sit impossibile. Primum verum ē fatem, quum plura re vera sint, quæ licet evidenter concipiamus ut impossibilia, ac fieri nãaliter n̄ possint, supnãaliter tñ a Deo fiunt, ut patet in illo principio Totum ē majus sua parte, qd tamen nãaliter falsum reddi n̄ possit, potē tñ supnãaliter, ac revera falsum redditur in Venerabili Eucharistiæ Sacramento. 2dum vero falsum ē quia sunt n̄nulla, quæ neq supnãaliter fieri possunt cujusmodi sunt ista Deus ē creatura. Circulus ē quadratus, et alia, quorum intrinseca repugnantia in eorum clara, atq distincta idea evidenti sine percipitur, et a lumine intellectuali apertissime indicatur.

Opponunt 3tio. Si essentiæ rerum supnãaliter essent immutabiles, nulla esset dependentia Creaturarum a Deo, adeoq nullum esset Dei dominium in Creaturas; Hoc ē maximum absurdum. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Dependentia n. Creaturarum a Deo in eo sita ē, ut possint ēē, et n̄ ēē ad arbitrium supremi rerum omnium Conditoris, possint idcirco mutari, et destrui. Nam si in humanis ita ab Artifice dependet Artefactum, ut ab ejus libitum destrui possit; multo magis poterunt mutari a Deo essentiæ Creaturarum, quum omnes res creatæ necrio dependeant a Deo tum quoad essentiam, tum quoad existentiam.

R. ne mm, et ejus probatione. Quamvis n. nec creatæ quoad essentiam Creaturæ supnãaliter mutari nequeant, servatur nihilominus earum dependentia a Deo eas quoad essentiam, quum omnes essentiæ creaturarum procedant ab essentia divina tanquam a propria causa, et origine. Necessum autē sit id omne, qd ab alio procedit, ab eo dependere, a quo procedit. Neq obstat, qd essentiæ creaturarum ita procedant a divina essentia, ut procedant necrio, quia hujusmodi necessitas easdem constituunt quidem immutabiles, minime vero independentes. Effectus quippe alii sunt necrii, alii contingentes. Necessarii necrio procedunt a propria causa, et semper eodem modo immutabiles perseverant, quamdiu immutabilis perseverat eorum ipsorum causa. Contingentes autē possunt ēē, et n̄ ēē, atq, etiamsi sint, immutata nãa propriæ causæ, possunt mutari, destrui. Neq. novum alicui videatur, qd effectus necrio procedens, n̄ sit tñ independens. Lucem siquidem a sole, calorem ab igne, humorem ab aqua, et alia, excepta a propria causa necrio procedere certum ē, quia ab iisdem causis constituunt independentia. Quamvis igitur creaturæ quoad essentiam consideratæ necrio a divina essentia procedant, ac proindeq mutare nullatenus possint, independentes tñ n̄ sunt. Nam quia a solo Deo procedunt, ab ipso Deo necrio dependent, quia vero tales, ac determinatæ necrio procedunt, sunt omnino immutabiles. Hinc patet, cur Artifex in humanis aliquid rei habens dominium eam ad libitum mutare possit, Deus autē, qui rerum omnium absolutus ē Dominus, rerum essentias n̄ possit. Nam homo liberum habet arbitrium supra res illas, quæ sui juris sunt, quæq ab ejus voluntate dependent, At Deus ē quidem Dominus Creaturarum eas quoad essentias, verum n̄ liber, sed necrio ē Dominus, quia ipsæ essentiæ rerum antecedant quodcunq liberum divinæ voluntatis Decretum.

Instabunt 1. Si Deus supnãaliter eas possit mutare nequit essentias creaturarum, propterea quia sunt participationes divinæ nãæ, et ipsius Dei imagines. Hæc rão nulla ē. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Nam si probari inde posset creaturarum immutabilitas, consequeretur eas Creaturas ēē debere undequaq pfectas, tum quia participationes divinæ nãæ necrio et immediate a divina essentia procedunt, a qua omne datum ē optimum, et omne donum pfectum; tum quia quælibet imago Dei debet ēē Deo similis, nullaq in pfectum, et impfectum ē similitudo potē.

R. conc mm ne mn. et prob. Enimvero, quum omnium creaturarum essentiæ participatione sint divinæ nãæ, ejusdemq imagines secundum duntaxat eas ē supnãaliter immutabiles minime vero ēē debere absolutas pfectas. Rão autē ē, quia divina nãa, ēto infinitas exigat extra se communicari modis, hujusmodi tñ infinitudo neq communicat, neq potē communicari quum secus alter admittendus esset Deus. Quare, quia essentia divina n̄ omnimode, sed secundum aliquas tantum pfectiones extra se diffundit, consectarium fit n̄ omnibus Creaturas carere imperfectionibus, imo plures in iis ēē, tot nimirum, quot sunt reliquæ pfectiones, quæ a divina essentia n̄ participantur.

Instabunt 2do. Si creaturæ quoad essentias supnãaliter essent immutabiles, immutabiles eas forent quoad existentias. Hoc dici nequit. Ergo etc. Pro mr. Creaturæ tam quoad essentias, quam quoad existentias participationes sunt divinæ nãæ, eidemq imagines. Ergo etc.

R. ne mm, et affero disparitatem, quæ inter rerum essentias, et existentiam latissima intercedit. Nam tametsi creaturæ tam quoad essentias, quam quoad existentias sint imagines Dei, ejusdemq pfectissimæ nãæ participationes, earum tamen existentia non a divina natura, sed a libero divinae voluntatis decreto proprie dependet, a quo Creaturae determinantur ad existendum, vel non existendum. Essentia vero liberum Dei decretum antecedit, et necessario procedit a divina essentia. Quamobrem mutari libere possunt rerum creatarum existentiae, mutari autem non possunt essentiae, quia et divina essentia mutetur.

Instabunt 3tio. Si essentiae rerum creatarum supernaturaliter mutari non possent, quaelibet Creatura quoad essentiam esset ~~ipse~~ ipse Deus. Hoc repugnat. Ergo etc. Probo majorem: quaelibet enim Creatura esset a se, ac independens, quemadmodum ipse Deus non alia ratione est a se, ac independens, quam quia necessario existit.

R. dist. majorem: Si essentiae rerum creatarum etc. quaelibet Creatura quoad essentiam possibilem esset ~~ipse~~ ipse Deus conc. quoad essentiam existentem esset ~~ipse~~ Deus neg. majorem. dist. cum proportione minorem, et nego consequentiam. Essentiae rerum creatarum vel considerantur ut possibiles, vel ut existentes. Si considerantur ut possibiles, aliud non sunt, quam ipse Deus, quum possibiliter ete spectata sint ipsa divina essentia, quatenus hoc vel illo modo est sui ipsius ab aeterno, et necessario extra se communicabilis. Si vero sumantur essentiae, prout existentes sunt, non possunt dici Deus ipse, quum omnis Creatura quoad existentiam dependeat a divina omnipotentia, tanquam a praeexistente causa, vel aut ab alio, tanquam a praeexistente causa dependet, Deus non sit. Accedit, quod eamsi Creaturae quoad essentiam consideratae sint necessariae, hanc tamen necessitatem non a se ipsis habent, sed a Deo, quum tales sint ob necessariam ipsius Dei immutabilitatem. Tandem, ut alia multa faciam, aliud est habere essentiam necessario immutabilem, aliud est necessario existere. Primum convenit rei possibili, et hoc modo immutabiles sunt essentiae rerum, 2dum vero convenit soli Deo, quum necessaria existentia, ut sacrae literae, et SS. Patres testantur, sit illud praedicatum, quo Deus ab omni eo, quod Deus non est primo secernitur, et a quo, veluti ex fonte, ceteras divinas perfectiones profluere intelligunt.

Opponunt 4to quasdam Scripturae, et SS. Patrum authoritates. Ac primo occurrit testimonium Apostoli. ad Corinth. 1. dicentis. Stultam fecit Deus sapientiam hujus mundi. 2do D. Jo. Chrysost. hom 17. in Epist. 1 ad Corinth. inquiens non est Deus adeo egenus, ut ea sola operetur, quae possint comprehendi imbecillitate tenuium rationum. 3tio D. Ambrosius Lib. 1. de interpellatione, Cap 9 haec habent: Non tibi licet scire, o homo, alta sapientiae ideo tibi scrutandum noli altum sapere. Qui id curiose quaeris investigare, quod tibi non conceditur scire, nec cognoscere datur Imperatoris hujus in terris non tibi licet scire consilia, et vis scire divina. Ultimo tandem D. August., qui Epist. 2a ad Volusianum ait: Demus aliquid Deum posse, quod nos fateam investigare non posse.

R. nihil ex adductis authoritatibus contra scientiam metaphysicam inferri. Et primo, quod spectat ad testimonium Apostoli. Stultam fecit Deus sapientiam hujus mundi, non mutando prima illa principia, quae universaliter evidentia sunt, atque spectata, neque illa operando, quae fieri, atque distincte cognoscimus velut impossibilia, sed Apostolis praedicantibus, et mundo revelantibus passionem, et mortem Xti Domini, quas corrupti hujus saeculi amatores nisi insaniam reputabant. Non aliorsum accipiendum esse laudatum testimonium, ex contextu patet. Ait in eodem Cap. 1 Apostolus: Verbum enim Crucis pereuntibus quidem stultitia est, iis autem qui salvi fiunt, idest nobis, Dei virtutem. Et paucis interjectis. Nos autem praedicamus Xtum Crucifixum, Judaeis quidem scandalum, Gentibus autem stultitiam: Quod et praeclare explicat sequenti Capite inquiens. Animalis autem homo non percipit ea, quae sunt Spiritus Dei. Stultitia non est illi, et non potest intelligere, quia spiritualiter examinantur.

Ad authoritatem D. Jo. Chrysost. facilis, et obvia responsio. Probat non duntaxat Deum plus posse quam nos imbecillitate mentis nostrae aut argumentari, aut conjicere possimus; quod nos ultro, libenterque fatemur. Divinam quippe potentiam longe esse majorem, quam cognoscere homo possit, nemo est sanae mentis, qui dubitet. Hinc nusquam contendit Deum posse ea efficere reddere falsa, quae nobis evidenter apparent ut vera tam in ordine naturali, quam supernaturali. Ut enim divina omnipotentia incomprehensibilis, et infinita sit, necesse non est, ut ad impossibilia extendatur. Non potest omnipotens fallere, ut alio in loco Chrysostomus, et ea, quae vera sunt, falsa sint, quia ipsa veritas Deus non potest adversari, in quo est ipsa summa, et incommutabilis veritas. Deus enim, ut summe potens sit, sufficit quod plures alias et pene infinitas producere possit creaturas, quas nos non solum ignoramus, sed ne concipere quidem possumus. Neque adversatur nobis Ambrosii testimonium, imo id ipse contendit, et nos contendimus. Viatori homini non licet scire alta sapientiae, quum nobis datum non sit praedestinationis et [illegible] arcanum cognoscere, aut praedestinatorum numerum, ordinemque investigare, scriptum enim noli altum sapere. Et sacramentum Regis abscondere bonum est. Tandem cum D. Augustino fatemur et nos Deum aliquid posse, quod nos non possumus investigare. Sed cum eodem Doctore asserimus, Deum, quia omnipotentem non posse efficere impossibilia. Haec est communis omnium SS. Patrum sententia quam praeclare explicat Hugo Victorinus Lib 1 de sacramento fidei inquiens: summe potens est, qui potest omne, quod possibile est, nec ideo minus potest, quod impossibilia non potest, quia impossibilia posse non est posse, sed non posse.

Sed si aliquis Cartesianus urgeret, Deum posse mutare rerum creatarum essentias, nam ut videre est, et mutavit et mutat quotidie essentiam panis, et vini in naturam corporis, et sanguinis Xti: respondendum esset, existentias utique panis et vini essentiam mutari, minime vero possibilem essentiam, de qua sermonem instituimus. Certum itaque est de rebus quoque creatis aliquam esse in nobis scientiam metaphysicam.

Caput 4tum

De Criterio Veritatis

Qui nullam esse in nobis scientiam opinati sunt, nullum quoque autumarunt esse in nobis veritatis criterium, seu certam et infallibilem regulam, qua verum a falso discernere possimus. Quamvis autem Philosophi omnes, Academicis duntaxat exceptis aliquam admittentes scientiam, admittant etiam veritatis criterium, quaerentes tamen in quonam hoc criterium, seu regula veritatis posita sit, quammaxime inter se dissentiant. Plato enim duplex statuit criterium in sensibus scilicet et ratione. Dialo 7 de Rep. inquiens sensus, quae exposita sunt, partim non provocant intelligentiam ad considerationem, ut quae satis sensu judicentur; partim illam considerare jubent, quoniam nihil mage hoc, quam contrarium judicant. Duplex tradit et ab Aristotelicis, quorum alterum sensibus nimirum, rebus sensibilibus agnoscendis inserviat, alterum vero, scilicet intelligentia, rebus intelligibilibus. Duae tandem veritatis regulae excogitatae fuerunt ab Epicureis, quarum unam decipien in sensibus, alteram in praenotione collocarunt.

Recentiorum Philosophorum duae potissimum in hac re sententiae sunt. Prima est Petri Gassendi, qui Epicurum se reddere quatus, duo contendit esse criteria, sensus scilicet, et praenotiones: nomine autem praenotionis intelligit verum praecognitiones, seu ideas, quas medius externis sensibus mens nostra efformat. 2da est Renati Cartesii, qui unum tantum statuit, et non fuit Criterium hisce verbis expressum: Quidquid in idea clara, et distincta rei alicujus continetur, id de ea re, tanquam ei naturaliter conveniens, potest certo affirmari. Ut autem quae nobis sententia verosimilior videatur, aperiamus, sit:

Propositio unica. Duplex est naturalis [redacted] veritatis Criterium, idea scilicet clara, atque distincta, et externi sensus.

Probatur: Propositio quoad primam partem. Illud est naturalis cujuslibet veritatis criterium, quod est regula apta ad cognoscendam quamcumque naturalem veritatem, sed idea clara, atque distincta hujusmodi est. Ergo etc. Major Propositio in dubium revocari non potest. Probatur Minor. Ut aliqua regula sit apta ad cognoscendam quamcumque naturalem veritatem, debet esse regula certa, cognata, et generalis. Ita se habet idea clara, atque distincta. Ergo etc. Major ab omnibus Philosophis admittitur. Minor demonstratur quoad singulas partes. Imprimis idea clara atque distincta est regula certa, tum quia nos errores facit circa aliquam quamcumque naturalem veritatem, tum quia est immutabilis. Cujuscumque naturalis veritatis certitudinem ab hac regula pendere ex eo patet, quod nulla res inveniri potest, quae huic regulae comparata non sit eidem conformis. Non alia de causa nos certo scimus, nisi quia id clare, atque distincte intelligimus. Quare, cum verum nequeat esse falso conforme, et certum nequeat incerto congruere, necessario asseramus oportet certam esse hanc regulam, cui omnes comparatae veritates, inveniuntur cum ita convenire. Sed hujus regulae certitudo ex ipsiusmet immutabilitate probatur. Siquidem quod est immutabile, certum sit necesse est. Sic quia prima principia, Deo etiam supra naturam operante, sunt immutabilia, evidenter sunt certa. Quia Deo l. g. etiam supra naturam operante fieri non potest ut idem simul sit et non sit, evidenter cognoscimus veritatem hujus principii: non potest idem simul esse, et non esse. Sed ideam claram, atque distinctam immutari, est impossibile. Secus eadem simul esset idea clara, atque distincta, et non esset idea clara, atque distincta. Cum igitur idea clara, atque distincta immutabilis sit, est regula certa.

2do idea clara, atque distincta est Regula cognata, hoc est ejusdem rationis cum iis, quae examinanda assumit. Nam sive idea clara, atque distincta, sive cognitiones illae, ad quarum examen adhibetur, sunt quidnam spiritale, et incorporeum. Quum non quaecumque cognitiones nostrae spiritualis substantiae affectiones sint, necesse est, ut ipsae quoque sint spirituales, adeoque ejusdem naturae cum idea clara, atque distincta, quae spiritualis substantiae operatio nuncupatur.

3tio clara, atque distincta idea est Regula generalis. Nulla non assignari potest naturalis veritas, cui talis regula aptari nequeat; Summo nihil est verum, nisi ob conformationem, quam habet cum idea clara, atque distincta: Quum claritas, et distinctio sint proprietates solius, et cujuscumque naturalis veritatis. In dubium ergo revocari non potest ideam claram atque distinctam esse regulam certam, cognatam, et generalem, proindeque naturalis esse cujuslibet veritatis criterium.

Probatur Propositio quoad 2dam partem. Illud, a quo naturalis [redacted] dependet veritas, est naturalis [redacted] veritatis criterium, sed a sensibus [redacted] naturalis dependet veritas. Ergo etc. Major certa est. Minor vero patet ex iis, quae Libro primo dicta sunt. Nullae sunt in nobis verum ideae quae non producantur a mente dependenter a sensibus, nullae erunt in nobis cognitiones, quae non ab iis habeantur e sensibus, atque adeo naturalis [redacted] veritas pendebit a sensibus.

Opponunt 1. Illud non est veritatis Criterium quod non est regula vera. Sed idea clara, atque distincta non est regula vera. Ergo etc. Probatur Minor. Idea clara, atque distincta opponitur veritati, sed verum nunquam opponitur veritati. Ergo etc. Probatur Minor. Idea clara, atque distincta opponitur veritati fidei. Ergo etc. Probatur antecedens. Qui videt hostiam consecratam, et ductus ab idea clara, atque distincta quae ex ea provenit, judicium, judicat ibi adesse substantiam panis, sed substantia panis, docente fide, non est in hostia consecrata. Ergo etc. Confirmatur. Si non quis videat hostiam consecratam l. g. in altera, ubi omnes circumstantiae suadeant eam non esse consecratam, visis accidentibus panis, certissime existimabit ex tare et ibi substantiam.

R. conc. Majorem. Nego Minorem. ad probationem Nego Majorem. ad probationem conc antecedens. ad probationem dist. Majorem. Qui videt hostiam consecratamque judicat ibi adesse substantiam panis servato naturali rerum ordine conc. non servato naturali rerum ordine Nego Majorem. dist Majorem. Sed substantia panis atque non est in hostia consecrata naturali ordine non servato conc. naturali ordine servato Nego Majorem et conseq. Ex quibus patet, quod immerito argumentantur Adversarii, cum idea clara, atque distincta sit regula cujuscumque naturalis veritatis, minime vero supranaturalis, supranaturalis siquidem veritatis regula in hac mortali vita est lumen fidei, et lumen gloriae in Patria. Quare qui videt, et scit hostiam esse consecratam, non ducitur, nec duci debet ab idea clara, atque distincta ad judicandum ibi adesse substantiam panis; si non scit hostiam esse consecratam non amplius habet ideam claram, atque distinctam de existentia substantiae panis. Ratio autem est, quia tunc habemus ideam claram, atque distinctam alicujus rei, quando talem rem adeo clare, atque distincte percipimus, ut nullus errandi timor, nulla ratio opposita, nullum nobis occurrat dubitandi fundamentum. Sed in hypothesi, quod quis videat, et sciat hostiam esse consecratam, nunc ac merito dubitare potest, imo certum est in ista hostia non adesse substantiam panis. Nam iisque [...] substantia panis in ista hostia consecrata, non habet ideam claram, atque distinctam. Non alia ergo ratione qui videt hostiam consecratam prudenter judicabit ibi adesse substantiam panis, nisi sub conditione, videlicet, servato naturali rerum ordine. Quod si asserat, non asserit profecto aliquid, quod fidei veritati opponatur, sed tantum aliquid diversum ab eo, quod docet fides. Diversae enim propositiones sunt, non contradictoriae hujusmodi propositiones. In ordine supranaturali cum sunt accidentia panis sine substantia panis in ordine naturali existere nequeunt accidentia panis sine substantia panis.

Ad confirmationem. Licet in facta hypothesi, quod quis videat hostiam consecratam in platea, vel eo loci positam, ubi omnes circumstantiæ suadeant eam non esse consecratam, ex mentis judicio nihil sequitur contra fidei veritatem. Enimvero, ut recte mens judicet secundum claras, distinctasque ideas, hunc in modum ratiocinandum est. Ubi sunt accidentia panis, ibi sit quoque panis substantia necesse est, nisi Deus supra hunc naturæ ordinem operans aliter disponat; sed hic sunt accidentia panis. Ergo ibi esse panis substantia oportet, nisi a Deo supernaturaliter aliter statutum; atque ita nullus erit error in proferendo judicio. Quod si contingat eum qui videt hostiam consecratam, visis accidentibus panis, absolute judicare adesse ejusdem panis substantiam, dubium non est, quod ille decipiatur; verum hæc deceptio adscribenda non est ideæ claræ, atque distinctæ, sed præcipiti mentis judicio, et nimiæ temeritati, qua absque diligenti examine judicium ferre non dubitavit. Ceterum hoc argumentum retorqueri potest contra eos, qui pro veritatis criterio admittunt vel solos sensus, vel solum lumen intellectus.

Opponunt 2do. Criterium naturale cujuslibet veritatis debet esse certissimum; sed idea clara, atque distincta hujusmodi non est. Ergo etc. Pro Mr. Multi per claras, atque distinctas ideas in errorem inducuntur. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Multi sunt somniantes, multi amentes, multi paralogismo, seu falsa ratiocinatione decepti; sed hi omnes in errorem inducuntur per ideas claras atque distinctas. Ergo etc. Mr. ex eo constat, quod si ex his plures interrogemus, num in suis opinionibus, judiciis habuerint ideas claras, atque distinctas, statim respondebunt, se ideas habuisse.

R. conc. Mn. ne. Mn. ad prob. ne. ant. ad prob. conc. Mn., et ne. Mn. quoad omnes partes. Homines in errorem inducuntur vel ab ignorantia, vel ab inconsiderantia, vel a propria æstimatione, quum semper id esse verum dicant, quod clare atque distincte non percipiunt, nunquam vero ab idea clara, atque distincta. Atque in primis ad somniantes quod attinet, ii fere semper claris, atque distinctis ideis destituti sunt, cum non inordinatum spirituum animalium motum et per confusas, quæ in eorum cerebro fiunt, impressiones, excitentur fere semper confusæ duntaxat, et obscuræ ideæ. Quod si quandoque contingit, ut aliqua ipsis occurrat idea clara, atque distincta tunc non decipiuntur somniantes, sed veritatem attingunt. Ut cum v. g. judicant circulo convenire rotunditatem, imparem numerum non esse numerum parem, et alia hujusmodi. Idem sentiendum de amentibus, nunquam siquidem, vel raro admodum claræ, atque distinctæ ideæ iis obviæ fiunt. Nam insania in maxima cerebri perturbatione, vehementique spirituum animalium inordinato motu sita est, quæ propterea nonnisi obscuras, et confusas parere potest ideas. Tandem qui aliquo sophismate decepti, sermones præbent assensum falsæ conclusioni, non a clara, atque distincta idea, qua destituti sunt, decipiuntur, sed vel ab ignorantia, vel a æstimatione, qua temere nimis, et inconsulto de re judicant, cujus evidentem non habent, neque habent ideas. Quod ex eo manifestum fit, quod si errorem his ostendat, ipse quos agnoscit, et fatetur, se ideas claras, atque distinctas non habuisse.

Parum autem refert, somniantes, omnesque paralogismo delusos asseverare, se clara, atque distincta idea esse usos. Eam non si habent, nonnisi in existimatione habent. Mirum propterea non est, si decipiantur, quum pura existimatio de rei veritate certos eos reddere nullo modo possit. Deinde, si errent idcirco non potest idea claras atque distinctas certam non esse veritatis regulam. Quemadmodum non, si Architectus ad dimoscendas unius anguli cum altero æqualitatem, falsam admoveat regulam, existimans se veram præ manibus habuisse, deinde atque, hic error omnis Artificis inconsiderantiæ tribuendus est, non veræ regulæ, quæ adhibita non fuit, nisi in existimatione, adeo ut risu digna res esset, si quis inde vellet concludere certam non existere Architecturæ regulam. Ita quum aliquis obscuras haberet et confusas ideas, quas tamen claras, atque distinctas reputabat, de re aliqua inconsiderate judicavit, judicium falsitas judicantis inconsiderantiæ, et temeritati adscribenda est, non claræ, atque distinctæ ideæ, quæ adhibita non fuit, nisi in æstimatione, adeo ut inferendum non sit claras, distinctasque ideas non esse certam, et infallibilem veritatis normam. Tur id tantum postulant somniantium, et paralogismo deceptorum exempla, ut ancipiamus ideas, quæ solum in existimatione clara est, atque distincta esse tantum existimatæ; seu apparentis veritatis regulas.

Si vero quærant Adversarii quomodo scire possimus, num idea, quam habemus, sit vera clara atque distincta nobis inducta, respondendum est, illam mentis attentionem esse cognoscenda [illegible], quæ tamen necessaria est ad hoc, ut ab omni inconsiderantia, et præcipitatione abesse, citra aliud errandi periculum, et ipsæ procedentes luminis rationem, cum summa tranquillitate cognitæ veritati acquiescamus, certamque, et firmum de ea judicium proferamus. Hanc si mentis attentionem adhibeat Philosophus, certus erit se claras habere, atque distinctas ideas, et quidem veras, non autem solummodo putatas.

Opponunt 3tio. Illud certum non est cujuslibet veritatis criterium, quod ab alio dependet, sed idea clara, atque distincta ab alio dependet. Ergo etc. Pro: Mr. Idea clara, atque distincta dependet ab hac propositione Deus existit, quod patet. Ideo enim certi sumus nos in eis non decipi, quæ clare, atque distincte novimus, quia scimus Deum existere, qui sua tanta bonitate est, ut non patiatur nos decipi in nostris cogitationibus.

R. conc. Mn. ne. Mn. ad prob. ne. ant: et ejus probationem. Quum idea existentiæ Dei non sit nobis innata, sed ducatur a mente nostra demum a cognitione rerum sensibilium, tantum abest, ut ab ista propositione Deus existit ideæ claræ, atque distinctæ dependeant, ut potius demta revelatione, ideo certi simus Deum existere, quia ex productione Creaturarum supremum aliquem Artificem necessario existere clare atque distincte cognoscimus. Fateor quidem ex cognitione existentiæ Dei augeri, magisque roborari criterii nostri certitudinem, quum Dei bonitatem considerantes certi simus ab eo nobis esse suppeditatam certam regulam, qua verum a falso dignoscamus, et clara, distinctaque idea nulla animari certior posset, verum hoc non probat ideam propositionis Deus existit primam esse cognoscendæ veritatis normam.

Q. V.

Instabunt 1. Admissa hac doctrina, sequeretur veritatem hujus propositionis: Deus existit a nostris ideis pendere. Hoc e absurdum. Ergo etc.

R. dist. maj.: Admissa hac doctrina, sequeretur veritatem hujus propositionis Deus existit a nostris ideis pendere ut cognoscatur conc. ut reipsa sit, ne. maj.: dist. parit. min. Absurdum e veritatem hujus propositionis a nostris ideis pendere, ut reipsa sit conc. min. ut a nobis cognoscatur, ne. min. et conseq. Distinctio adeo clara e, ut non indigeat interpretatione.

Instabunt 2do. Si idea clara, atque distincta e regula vera; vel ejus veritas cognoscitur per aliam regulam, vel non. Si primum: Ergo e aliud verum antecedens ideam claram, et distinctam, per quod veritas innotescit ideae clarae, atque distinctae, nobis innotescit. Si 2dum: veritas ipsius ideae clarae, atque distinctae sine ullo fundamento asseritur, quum nulla regula probetur. Nulla enim res potest esse regula sui ipsius, quemadmodum nihil sui ipsius potest esse causa.

R. ideam claram, atque distinctam et reliquas omnes veritates, et simul seipsam nobis manifestare. Nam veritas ideae clarae, atque distinctae per ipsam ideam claram, atque distinctam a nobis deprehenditur, non veluti per normam, sed per simplicem sui ipsius manifestationem. Neque id mirum alicui videatur. Quemadmodum enim Lux et alia corpora, et seipsam simul manifestat; ita idea clara, et distincta et alias veritates, et seipsam simul satis aperte ostendit. Quare sicuti, ut videamus lucem, non indigemus alia luce, quia lux claritatem suam oculis nostris sufficienter exhibet: ita ut ideae clarae, atque distinctae veritatem agnoscamus, nulla indigemus regula praeter ideam claram, atque distinctam, quae satis, superque veritatem suam mentibus nostris manifestam reddit. Ideae igitur clarae et distinctae innotescunt nobis per conscientiam, seu per intimum sensum. Quod enim quis sentit in intimo sensu se ideis claris, et distinctis collustrari de earum veritate, adhibita simplici suae mentis attentione, adeo certum e, ut nulla alia indigeat ratione, per quam certior evadat. Et sane, quis unquam, qui immediata evidentia rem aliquam cognoverit, aliam requiret evidentiam, qua de prima illius rei evidentia certior esse possit? Nemo profecto; tum quia secus daretur processus in infinitum; tum quia evidentia nullum relinquit dubium, imo necessario impellit intellectum ad assensum. Idem ergo dicendum de idea clara, atque distincta, quae ab evidentia non distinguitur, nisi concipiendi modo, quo a definito distingui solet definitio. Ceterum, oppositum argumentum nimis probat. Probat enim nullam admittendam esse generalem cujuslibet veritatis regulam, quum de quavis eadem institui argumentatio possit.

Opponunt 4to. Idea clara, atque distincta e naturalis cujuslibet veritatis criterium. Ergo sensus externi non sunt veritatis criterium. Pro conseq. Ideo primum quia ideae clarae, atque distinctae conveniunt Criteria proprietates, sed sensibus non conveniunt Criteria proprietates. Ergo si primum, repugnat 2dum. Min. certa e. Sensus enim neque dici possunt regula certa, neque cognata, neque generalis: non certa, quia nos plerumque fallunt, non cognata, quia non ejusdem generis sunt cum nostris cognitionibus; non generales, quum non omnis veritas probetur per sensus: Vel igitur clara, atque distincta idea non e criterium veritatis, vel a criterii ratione excludendi sunt sensus.

R. dist. ant.: Idea clara, atque distincta e naturalis cujuslibet veritatis primum, ac praecipuum Criterium conc.: e unicum cujuslibet veritatis criterium ne. ant. dist.: conseq. Ergo sensus externi non sunt primum, ac praecipuum criterium conc.: nullo modo sunt naturalis veritatis criterium, ne. conseq. Eodem modo cum proportione distinguenda sunt 2di syllogismi propositiones. Quum enim asserimus in sensibus statuendum esse naturalis veritatis criterium, non ita fieri nobis esse sensibus judicamus, ut eorum perceptionibus, seu repraesentationibus acquiescendum sit, et existimandum non aliter se habere ea quae ab illis nobis attingunt. Primam habet universalem ejusque omnis veritatis normam sicut in idea tantum clara atque distincta collocandam esse, cum proprium sit solius mentis de rebus clare distincteque ... proferre judicium. Tantummodo criterium tribuimus externis sensibus, quod rei sensibili, et corporeae convenire potest, 2darium dicimus, et minus praecipuum. Nam ... ea e conditio mentis humanae unitae corpori organico, ut quae ... sensus. Et si ita se habeant sensus, ut cum recte dispositi et ordinati sunt, ac nullum occurrit impedimentum non possunt nos decipere in suis perceptionibus, ... sensus recte dispositos, et non impeditos statuendum erit aliquod criterium. Hinc ... Dominus Lucae Cap. 24 n. 29, ut Discipulos dubitantes de resurrectione sua certos faceret, ... perceptione, tanquam certam, et infallibilem regulam, ... Videte manus meas, et pedes, quia ego ipse sum. Palpate, et videte quia spiritus carnem, et ossa non habet, sicut me videtis habere.

Quod autem ajunt Adversarii, sensus neque esse regulam certam, neque cognatam, neque generalem, falsum e. Nam imprimis, ... valentes, et omnia removent, quae obstant, et impediunt, maxima e ... in sensibus veritas: 2do, ... et sensus ... cognati ... sunt. 3tio, nostris ... sensibilium certa sunt, et generalis regula. Ceterum haec necessaria sunt primo, praecipuo, et universali criterio, ideae scilicet clarae, atque distinctae, non 2dario, et particulari Criterio.

Aliqui opponunt authoritates SS. Patrum, qui videantur indicare collocandum non esse veritatis judicium in sensibus, ... de judicio ..., sed solius mentis e operatio, non de ... naturali veritatis criterio, quod in sensibus admittendum putamus. ... asserunt, sensus a clara, distinctaque idea ... et ... cognoscant, id concedendum e, ... Haec non ... alia regula requirat quidem primo, et praecipuo naturalis veritatis criterio, ... idea clara, atque distincta, non 2dario, cujusmodi sensus sunt.

Corollarium 1.

Ex hactenus dictis patet, quam absurda sit eorum sententia, qui in solo humano intellectu collocant criterium ... veritatis. Hac enim posita sententia, quis non videt, de una, eademque re idem posse affirmari, et negari?

Corollarium 2dum.

Patet etiam, ex illa propositione: Ego sum substantia cogitans vel ab illa: Ego existo ideam claram, atque distinctam non dependere. Nam, si de prima loquamur, ex quo nos sumus substantiae cogitantes, recte inferre non possumus, verum id quidem de quo cogitamus. Ex quo tamen substantiae sumus clare, atque distincte quandoque cogitantes, recte inferimus id esse non alibi verum, quod clare, atque distincte percipimus. Si sermo sit de 2da propositione, licet existentia praecedat cogitationem, non alibi tamen nos existere certe scimus, nisi quia id clare, atque distincte percipimus.

Caput 5.

De Methodi analyticae legibus.

Ut occultam veritatem investigemus, assequamurque, aliqua nobis est necessaria propter infirmitatem mentis sive analytica, sive synthetica methodus, uti superiori Capite 1. dictum est. Quamvis autem occulta veritas aliquando synthesi, aliquando analysi exploretur, frequentius tamen, atque facilius analytica utimur methodo, quum de veritate invenienda agitur, synthetica vero, cum jam inventa veritas est demonstranda. Nobis itaque philosophantibus, et naturales veritates investigare incipientibus statuendae sunt cum recentioribus majoris nominis Dialecticis praecipuae methodi analyticae leges, quarum profecto maxima futura erit utilitas, ubi accurate serventur.

Ac prima lex sit. Propositae quaestionis nodum quam clarissimis verbis explicato. Etenim, nisi apte statuatur quid quaerendum sit, quidve demonstrandum, incerta omnis vacabit oratio, inutiles orientur controversiae, altercationes, lites. Quoniam vero quaestio omnis vel a nobis proponi potest, vel ab aliis, summopere curandum est, ut si nobis ipsi quaestionem proposuerimus, claram, distinctamque illius notionem in animo efformemus, si vero ab aliis quaestio fuerit proposita, rogemus illos humanissime, ut mentem suam clare, atque distincte explicent. Plura ad hanc rem legere quisque potest apud Malebranchium Lib. 6. de inquisitione veritatis, Authorem Artis cogitandi parte 4, Clericum Logicae parte 3, Corsinum Logicae parte 4, Vernejum De re logica Lib. 5. parte 2da, caeterosque quamplures.

2da lex sit: Expendito, utrum ita sis animo praeparatus, ut ei veritati inveniendae, aut solvendae quaestioni aptus sis, ne aut inutiliter divagaris, aut inepta, et ridicula effutias. Saepe e.g. contingit, ut res Astronomiae, Medicinae Geographiae proponantur, quas nos vel omnino ignoramus, vel summis duntaxat delibavimus labiis. Nimis temerarius, atque ridiculus est sine necessariis earum Disciplinarum notionibus Astronomum agere, aut Medicum, aut Geographum. Nihil tamen hoc vitio frequentius, in Adolescentibus potissimum, qui non animadvertunt quid valeant humeri, quidve ferre recusent.

3tia lex erit. Expendito sedulo, simplex ne quaestio sit, an composita: Quod si fuerit composita, eam accurate in omnes simplices dividito, minutatim examinato, et in eam primum inquirito quae lucem aliis praeferre possint. Quaeritur e.g. quot sint species colorum, et quaenam eorumdem origo. Duae itaque proponuntur quaestiones, quarum intérim 2da ad examen revocabitur, quia non explicata colorum origine, idest scilicet primigeniis solaribus coloratis radiolis, nunquam diversae intelligentur colorum species, aut mire eorum compositiones. Quod si propositae quaestionis partes talis naturae fuerint, ut una explicata, quam facillime, et necessario intelligatur altera, ab illa initium faciendum est. Quaeritur v.c. utrum subtilis existat materia Cartesianorum atque utrum existat in universo spatium aliquod omni corpore destitutum. Jam quisque videt a prima parte faciendum esse initium, posita quippe materia subtili Cartesianorum, quae omnia repleat, quae omnes meatus, poros, atque vacuolos quamcitissime penetret, palam est nullum esse in universo spatium corpore destitutum. Illa vero negata et in terrestribus corporibus, et in spatiis caelestibus infinita consequuntur loca corporibus carentia.

4ta lex erit: Diligentissime perquirito quaecumque cum proposita quaestione connexionem aliquam habent. Comparato quaecumque ei lumen aliquod afferre possunt: possibiles quaslibet confingito hypotheses. Hoc modo unidemque praesidia comparantur, quibus solvendis quaestionibus, et veritati detegendae aptiores evadere possumus. Hanc tamen legem ii duntaxat servare possunt qui secundam non transgrediuntur.

Sequitur Quinta. Quaestionem corrige, et exacte, et quam simplicissime exprime, idest resecato ab ea, quae collectis superioribus regulis, intelligis, nullum tibi afferre praesidium.

Praecipit 6ta. Principia solida, quibus veritatem invenias, aut quaestionem expedias, perquirito et veluti faces perpetuo ante oculos habeto. Hujusmodi lex facile quidem praecipitur, difficillime vero servatur. Inutiles sunt Loci communes, quos nonnulli dederunt, nisi 2dae regulae praesidio suffultus sit Philosophus.

Hae generales sunt Methodi analyticae leges. Ex his autem plures aliae consequuntur, quae minus generales sunt, quarum prior est: Quaestionem utrum quaestionis solutio pendeat ex ratiocinio, an ex experimentis an ex authoritate; eamque definire conator eorum principiorum ope, quae aut ratiocinium, aut experimenta, aut authoritas suppeditant. Caveto ne tria haec misceas. Adversus hanc legem peccare plures Philosophos, experientia satis compertum habemus. Nam quae pura theoremata sunt, ex aliorum authoritate repetere conantur. Quae sola authoritate definienda sunt, ratione volunt intelligere et ubi experimentis est opus, ad abstractas quandoque ratiocinationes confugiunt.

Itaque si quaestio fuerit physica, ita ratiocinationes nostras confingere debemus, ut experimenta praecedant, et ratiocinium experimentis inhaereat.

Si vero quæstio ab authoritate pendeat, inquirendum imprimis est, utrum autoritas sit infallibilis, an fallibilis. Si autoritas [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tanquam demonstratæ propositiones; atque ita certæ, uti axiomata. 3tias. Quæ aut illis axiomatibus, aut his consequentibus propositionibus clare adversantur, falsa reputanda sunt. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Quod si autoritas sit fallibilis, hi statuendi sunt canones. Quæ omnes, aut plures narrant [illegible] [illegible] ne refragante, certa sunt habenda; si autem unus, aut alius adversus plures testificentur, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Quæ facta unus, aut alter ocularis narrat historicus, nemine contra scribente, proxima sunt certitudini, dummodo hujusmodi historici veras habuerint historicorum dotes.

Qui aliquid tacet, is id non negat. Ergo quæ historici narrant coævi in dubium vocanda non sunt ex hoc tantum, quod alius, aut alii eam coævi taceant. Qui non tacet, aut oscitantiæ, aut ad summum malitiæ accusari duntaxat potest.

Quæ facta testes non coævi, neque oculares magna consensione narrant, in dubium sunt vocanda, si nemo coævorum, et ocularium historicorum memoret, quum memorandi opportunitas erat.

Si nulli extent coævi, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] di argumenta.

Historia; quæ claris rationibus repugnat, falsa est reputanda

Historia dicenda non est ratione contraria, quod moribus, et opinionibus præsentibus adversetur: opiniones quippe, atque mores mutantur.

Non ideirco falsa habenda est historia, quod res enarret, quarum nos non intelligimus causas.

Quod attinet tandem ad veritates, quæ ratiocinii usu acquiruntur, præter ea, quæ tota hac in Logica docuimus, tria hæc axiomata advertenda sunt. Primum est. Quæ in idea clare, atque distincte contineri cernimus, de ea affirmare debemus. ea vero negare, quæ illi adversari clare, atque distincte cupimus. 2dum. Quæ non percipimus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mus, neque illud intelligimus, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] volumus esse ridicule [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Hæ sunt præcipuæ methodi analyticæ leges: Has servetis oportet, si occultas veritates citra erroris periculum cognoscere vultis. Syntheticæ methodi canones vos [illegible] legere poteritis apud recentiores notissimum Dialecticos, quum iis erit opus; sat eos scire, atque tenere in præsentiarum ad vos non attinet; fortasse tamen aliquos post annos (quod de majori saltem vestrum parte sperandum est) [illegible]. Sed in rebus hujusmodi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quod tamen non modo vertendum est vitio, sed scholasticis conjecturis quum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], aut [illegible] mutatæ neque [illegible] est, neque, hisce temporibus utile. Illud certum est, in præceptis Dialecticis [illegible] exiguas nos [illegible] [illegible] mentium partem, nec alia tradidisse, quam quæ cum summis viris judicavimus utiliora. Nunc ad alteram partem Philosophiæ transitum faciamus.

Philosophiæ

Pars 3tia

Metaphysica.

Ea Philosophiæ pars, quam modo [illegible], ab ~~[illegible]~~ antiquis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nomen accepit [illegible] quod de rebus materia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contemplationes, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] qui metaphysici inscribuntur, ab iis, qui eos collegerunt, et in certum ordinem digesserunt, post physicos libros [illegible] [illegible], atque ob hanc causam [illegible] Metaphysici. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nominis origine observandum est, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in Metaphy. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Theo[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Bibliothecæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] libros [illegible] [illegible] in terra [illegible] [illegible], donec post multum temporis eruti sunt blattis, atque tineis pene corrupti. Hos quum [illegible] quidam [illegible] emisset, [illegible] [illegible] emendare, et in ordinem [illegible] conatus est [illegible] [illegible] Græcia Romam vexit, Tyrannioni cuidam Grammatico demandata cura, et eosdem corrigeret. [illegible] denique Rhodius illos recensuit, atque [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] detraxit. Hi itaque tres [illegible] [illegible] correctores quum ea, quæ [illegible] Dialecticas, moralem philosophiam [illegible] [illegible] in unum [illegible] corpus redegerint, quæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Physicis libris [illegible] re, eaque, quod post Physica essent collocata; metaphysica dixere.

Verum quæcunque sit hujusce nominis origo; metaphysica est scientia, quæ res contemplatur ab omni materiæ commercio secretas, earumque primas causas, atque principia: Hujus scientiæ est [illegible] generatim sumptum [illegible]

usq. proprietates examinare. Hic Deum simplicissimum, sapientissimum, immensum, æternum, ubiq. et rerum omnium authorem, ~~[illegible]~~ rectoremq. contemplatur. Hinc cœlestium et ... naturas mentium considerationem vertit, et hanc demum ad nosmetipsos convertit, nostram ... corpoream ... ... accidentium noscimus, quam ... ... conversionem, ... Hinc non immerito sapientes viri scientiam hanc omnium præstantissimam, atq. utilissimam judicarunt: Hinc quoque hanc Philosophiæ ... ... vel scientiam generalem dixerunt, primam quippe Philosophiam, quod prima omnium Disciplinarum principia complectatur, et quasi summa capita, in quæ omnium scientiarum contemplationes, et ... quasi ... resolvuntur, scientiam vero generalem, quod tractat causas, atq. rationes generales rerum omnium, æternarum ..., ..., et ... .

Ut erudite more suo, observat ... Genuen ... in Prolegomenis Elementorum Metaphysicæ, Pythagoras primus fuisse videtur, qui hujus scientiæ fundamenta ... ... ad Platonicos et Eleaticos ..., hos ... navit. Multa profecto in Eleaticorum fragmentis ad hanc scientiam spectantia leguntur: ~~multa~~ longe etiam plura in libris tum Platonis, cum Platonicorum, ... , Alcinoi, Plotini, Jamblici, Porphyrii, ... Primus tamen qui res metaphysicas in ordinem ac, artis artem referre conatus est fuit Aristoteles, quamvis successu ... felici: nam præter Aristotelem ... metaphysicorum ... notias, ac specimina ... ... judicanti se exhibent, quam ... , et ... ... , et ... ... Philosophorum commentis, at ... ... ad ... usq. decimum septimum ... duntaxat ... ... Metaphysicam, donec primum Verulamius, ac postea Cartesius, ut alia studia, hæc quoq. summopere promovere cœperant.

Itaq. ab initio sæculi decimiseptimi ad nostra hæc usq. tempora plures floruerunt, atq. etiamnunc florentissimi metaphysici. Præcipui autem sunt ex secta Cartesianorum Sylvanus Regis, Joannes Claubergius, Benedictus Spinoza, Nicolaus Malebranchius: ex iis vero, qui Cartesium non omnino sequuntur, Gassendus, Du-hamelius, Lockius, Newtonus, Clarkius, Parkerus, Cudworthius, Clericus, Leibnitius, Wolfius, Bulfingerus, Genuensis. Quid ergo responderunt nunc ... ..., atq. etiam nostri ordinis delicatiores Philosophi, qui totam in rebus physicis putant versari debere nostram Philosophandi rationem, quiq. metaphysicas quæstiones vel non tractandas putant, vel cursim atq. postremis tantum diebus, quibus Philosophiæ datur opera? An hi sapientiores fortasse sunt, atq. doctiores celeberrimis, qui hactenus ... Europæ sapientiæ ... ? An reprehendemus omnium Academiarum in hac re consilium, ... ~~[illegible]~~ vel alterius præjudicium ... ? Sed pudet in re manifesta rationem, et demonstrationes quærere.

Ut itaq. redeamus unde discessimus, universam Metaphysicam in duas dividimus partes, quarum primam nuncupabimus Ontologiam; aliam Pneumatologiam.

Metaphysicæ

Pars I.

Ontologia.

Ontologia, quæ secundum nominis ethimologiam, nihil aliud est, quam Entis generatim accepti tractatio, et cui, si proprie loqui volumus, primæ Philosophiæ, sive Metaphysicæ nomen duntaxat convenit, definitur a Wolfio, cæterisq. Philosophis scientia Entis in genere. ~~[illegible]~~ ~~[illegible]~~. Atq. ut in re tam ampla, tamq. fuse a Metaphysicis pertractata minus utilia missa faciamus, et nonnisi necessaria consideremus sit.

Caput I.

De notionibus Rei, Entis, Nihili, Possibilis, Impossibilis, Necessarii, Contingentis.

Quidquid aliquando extitit, existit, futurum est, aut possibile est, sive illud substantia sit, sive modus, Res nuncupatur a Philosophis. Hoc vocabulo nullum est apud latinæ linguæ scriptores universalius, neq. aliud excogitare possumus, ut opinor, quod ampliorem habeat notionem.

Entis nomine intelligimus quidquid existit, sive illud substantia sit sive modus. Sunt qui rei atq. entis unam eandemq. esse notionem putant. Nos tamen malumus duo hæc vocabula distinguere, ut commodius cogitationes nostras explicemus, præsertim quum nomen Entis, ut patet ex nominis ethimologia, apud Latinos existentiam significet, vocabulum vero rei quidlibet etiam non existens.

Vocabulum Nihili duas habet notiones, unam sibi et Entis alteram privationis alicujus rei in quomet ente, vocabulum non nullo negativum est. Vocabula autem negativa, si recte demonstravit Lockius lib. 2 de intellectu humano, ~~[illegible]~~ Cap. x, sect. 5, absentiam idearum positivarum explicant. Quum asserimus e. g. ante conditum mundum fuisse nihil, duas subjicit notiones, Mundi scilicet, et absentiæ Mundi. Hinc non recte Wolfius post ... definivit nihilum veluti illud, cui nulla respondet notio.

Possibile est illud, quod neq. existit, neq. certum est, utrum aliquando existet, sed tantum non repugnat existere. ... e. g. homines, hoc est in Luna incolæ neq. existunt, neq. certum est, utrum futuri quandoq. sint; quia tamen non repugnat incolæ Lunam, possibiles dicuntur habitatores in Luna. Atq. hoc loco animadvertendum est ... ut aliqui facere solent, probabilia cum possibilibus confundantis. Nam probabilitas spectat rationem, qua aliquid vel affirmamus, vel negamus, ponderamus; possibilitas autem ipsam rei naturam

Impossibile ē illud, q̄d existere repugnat ut Circulus quadratus: Mens corporea. idē simul eē, et n̄ eē.

Ens necessarium ē illud q̄d fieri nunquā potē, ut n̄ existat. Dividit̄ autē in necessarium existentiæ, necessarium essentiæ, necessarium ad existentiā, et necessarium ad essentiā. Primū, q̄d proprie necessarium dicit̄, ē illud, q̄d existentiæ suæ n̄ habet causam, seu q̄d æternum ē; Atq. hoc modo necessarium ē solus Deus. 2dum ē, q̄d essentiā habet immutabilem, q̄d solum, ut ait Plato, æternum ē. Hoc modo rerum creatarum essentiæ quæ æternæ sunt, necessariæ dicunt̄. Necessarium ad existentiā dicit̄ illud, sine quo aliud nequit existere. Ita si n̄ existente A nequit existere B. A necessarium nuncupabit̄ ad existentiā B. Necessarium ad essentiā, seu, ut loquitur Wolfius, essentiale, ē illud, sine quo essentia rei haberi nequit. Ita soliditas dicit̄ necessaria ad essentiā corporis, æqualitas circumferentiæ a centro ad essentiā circuli.

Ens contingens vocat̄ a Philosophis, cujus essentia ab alio dependet, quales sunt omnia [illegible] et possibilia quæ necessitate nullā n̄ existunt. Ita contingens, et necessarium opponi dicunt̄, ut q̄d unum ē nequeat eē alterum:

Caput 2dum

De Relatione, Subjecto, Adjuncto, Substantia, Attributo, Modo

Relaō ē qualiscumq. nexus unius rei cum alia. ē autē hujusmodi nexus vel realis, vel moralis, vel intellectualis. Nexus realis in ipsa rerum naā consistit, cujusmodi ē nexus int̄ Patrem, et Filium: nexus moralis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et int̄ uxorem, et virum: intellectualis denique [illegible] cogitaōne comprehendit̄; Atq. hujusmodi sunt relaōnes int̄ [illegible] principia, atq. inde deductas conclusiones, int̄ [illegible], quorum tñ unum ab altero n̄ dependet.

Subjectum ē illud, cui aliquid inhærere potest; Adjunctum vero, q̄d subjecto inhæret. Sic tela [illegible] ē Picturæ, pictura autē adjunctum telæ.

Substantia ē primum subjectum illud, q̄d ē, aut sit, q̄d primum subjectum ita existit, ut intrinsecus aliud [illegible]. Modus autē ē q̄d, in tali substantia, q̄d tñ ad illud n̄ [illegible] essentiā, [illegible] intrinsece ab essentia substantiæ pendeat, nec eē sine substantia possit.

Attributum ē illud, q̄d licet n̄ sit primum in essentia, necario tñ, et intrinsecus convenit ab essentia, ita ut [illegible] essentia; illud consequ. distinguit a modo, q̄d modus abeē a re potest, attributum autē necario rei inhæreat. Dividunt Philosophi attributa in affirmantia, et negantia. Illa explicant quid res sit, hæc quid n̄ sit. sic extensio in corpore attributum dicit̄ affirmativum, Impenetrabilitas vero in eōd corpore [illegible] dicit̄ attributum negativum.

Caput 3tium

De essentia, naā, et subsistentia

Essentia ē forma rei intrinseca, qua res talis potiusquā qualis, seu, ut nonnullis placet, ē illa, qua posita, res ponit̄ [illegible], destructa vero re ipsa destruit̄. Essentiæ vel reales sunt, vel nominales. [illegible] dicunt, quæ ipsa constituunt res tales [illegible], nominales [illegible] notiones nostræ circa essentias rerum [illegible] vocabulis expressæ. Porro essentiæ rerum reales vel [illegible] sunt [illegible] contineri in mente Dei: facti extra Deum existunt.

Essentia atq. naā duo nomina sunt apud Philosophos eandē [illegible] significaōnem, verum [illegible] cum de rebus physicis loquunt, vel de moralibus. ē autē apud physicos naā vis, seu [illegible], apud Ethicos vero norma humanarum actionum ab Authore Naā promulgata. Leges naæ vocant physici normas, secundum quas in hac rerum universitate motiones provenire statuit author Deus. Leges naæ vocant ethici normas, secundum quas ut suas liberas actiones homines conformet, q. lumen raōnis docet, atq. præcipit Deus.

Quoniam vero præcipua Religionis nostræ Mysteria, sacrosancta videlicet, et individua Trinitas, necnon admirabilis verbi divini incarnaōne, n̄ [illegible] [illegible], quæ de subsistentia [illegible] consueverunt Philosophi explicari [illegible] [illegible]. ideirco ea consideranda nunc sunt, quæ captu quidē [illegible], semel tñ [illegible], et memoria retenta tam Philosopho, quam Theologo usu sunt [illegible]. Sed si in hac re Philosophi limites [illegible] excedere videbimur, nullus nobis succenseat. Cum n̄ sit subsistentiæ naō cognosci n̄ potē, nisi ex iis, quæ nos edocet Fides. Quare inquiremus [illegible], quænam sit [illegible], et [illegible] vocabuli substantiæ. Deinde in quo eadē sita sit.

Q̄d attinet ad [illegible] vocabuli originē certum ē, n̄ solum veteres ethnicos Philosophos, verum eām Christianos n̄ brevi temporis intervallo, subsistentiæ nomen [illegible] Ecclesiæ seculis ignorasse. Cumvero [illegible] Patres sanctum [illegible] ad explicandum sive Trinitatis, sive Incarnaōnis Mysterium hypostasis vocē assumpserunt; quæ tñ hæc vox hypostasis æquivoca in temporis foret, et a Latinis Patribus usurparet pro substantia, quæ naā nullatenus distinguit; propterea nonnulli Patres, int̄ quos Hieronymus, noluerunt tres cum Græcis in Deo hypostases admittere; ne pares cum Idololatris [illegible] Deos [illegible]. At quum postea [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Concilio, constitutum fuit, ut nomine hypostasis n̄ substantia, [illegible] naā [illegible] persona intelligeret, quam optime noverant Latini, substantiæ nomen, quo [illegible] utebant, [illegible] convenire q̄d Græci ō hypostasis accipiebant, ut aliqd excogitarent vocabulum, q̄d idē ac hypostasis; gnificaret, subsistentię vocē invenerant. Patet itaq. subsistentiā significare Psonā, cum Catholica deinde ecclesia tres in Deo fassa sit hypostases, sive tres subsistentias. Id cū ex eo constat, qd cum Catholica fides doceat duas ē in Christo Domino nāas, unicā vero duntaxat Verbi divini Psonā, omnes pro[r]sus modū unanimi consensione pro certo habuerint unicā ē in Xto Hypostasim, seu unicā subsistentiā. Hec quoad originē vocabuli subsistentię.

Si autē de vera, et propria illius significatione loquam, certū ē p subsistentiā nihil aliud vere, et proprie intelligi, quā ultimū nāę terminum, seu complementum, quo eâdē nāa omnino in se ipsa sistit, et alteri constituit incommunicata. Hinc n̄ immerito ajunt subsistentiā ita se habere respectu nāę, quemadmodū se habet figura respectu corporis. Nā sicuti figura in corpore efficit, ut corpus ultra ulteriorē n̄ habeat extensionē, ita ā subsistentia habet nāa, ut in se sistat, atq. ulterius n̄ extendatur! Animadvertendū n ē, qd quelibet nāa tametsi n̄ destituat propria actuali essentia, et existentia, indifferens tn̄ adhuc ē vel ut cū altera uniatur subsistente nāa, dependens a cujus subsistentia suas exerceat actiones, ut patet in humana Xti nāa vel ut sibimetipsi relinquatur, sitq. proinde ex se integrum suarum actionum principium. Quare nāa alteri subsistenti nāę unita propria quidē essentia, et existentia donatur, propriam tn̄ n̄ habet subsistentiam nāa vero sibi relicta, et alteri incommunicata prętr actualem essentiam, et existentiam propriam quoq. habet subsistentiam. Ex his autē manifeste consequitur substantiam a subsistentia distingui, quod substantia sit illud omne, qd existit per se, n̄ vero alterius entis ope; subsistentia vero sit ultimum substantię complementum eam reddens alteri substantię incommunicatam, adeo proinde ut ipsa sit totum, et integrum suarum operationum, si quas exercet principium, aut passionum, si quas recipit subjectum.

Quamvis autē subsistentia secundum vocabuli vim nihil aliud significare videatur, quam modum, quo quelibet substantia sive completa, sive incompleta existit, usus tn̄ invaluit, ut subsistentię nomen substantię tantum completę Petro e. g. vel Paulo tribueretur. Nā si subsistentia ē terminus nāę incompletę, talis nāa subsistens duntaxat appellatur. Hinc anima rationalis a corpore separata, licet in se subsistens, et avere conjuncta n̄ sit, nunquam tn̄ aut subsistentię, aut Psonę nomine appellatur. Qd si subsistentia nāę completę terminus sit, qd complete subsistit vel suppositum dicitur, vel Psona, suppositum quidem, si nāa completa sit irrationalis, ut Leo, equus, Psona vero, si nāa completa sit rationalis. Cum n. Psonę nomen ad dignitatē ptineat, ideo (ut praeclare ait rō noster Severinus Boetius) homines dicimus ē Psonas, dicimus Deū, dicimus Angeli, n̄ arboris, n̄ equi.

Quoniam vero subsistentia, ut diximus, significat Psonā, opere pretium ē, ut Psonę definitionem afferamus. Porro hęc definitur a Boetio rationalis nāę individua substantia. Dicitur primo rationalis nāę substantia, quia res omnes rationis expertes suppositum appellatur, n̄ Psona, cum Psona dignitatem, et excellentiam exprimat. Definitur quoq. individua substantia nāę rationalis ad significandam singularitatem, et integritatem illius nāę, de qua Psona enunciatur. Singularitatem, inquam, cum Psona n̄ dicatur aut de pluribus, aut de uno generatim sumpto. Hinc idē Boetius Nusquam, inquit, in universalibus Psona dici potē, sed in singularibus tantum, et individuis. Animalis n. vel generalis hominis nulla Psona ē, sed vel Ciceronis, vel Platonis. Integritatem denique vocat illam individuam expressionem, quia totum, et integrum illud sit oportet, qd Psona nuncupatur, adeo propterea ut oculo, manui aut pedi in homine subsistentię, suppositi, aut Psonę notio aptari n̄ possit, cum sint partes duntaxat corporis humani. N̄ omnia ergo, quę existunt in se ipsis, eodem modo possunt nominari subsistentia. Nā illud omne, qd Psonę notionem habet, ē quoq. subsistens, et suppositum, n̄ vicissim omne suppositum, et subsistens vocari potē, aut ē Psonam, sive subsistentia. His positis

Ppōo 1. Subsistentia in divinis virtualiter distinguitur ā nāa

Pro Ppōo. Docet Fides subsistentias, seu Psonas divinas ē quid unum realiter cum divina nāa. Quamvis n quelibet divina Psona realiter distinguatur ab altera, certum tn̄ ē quamlibet divinam Psonam ab essentia, seu nāa divina realiter n̄ distingui. Si aliqua igitur int subsistentiam, et divinam nāam admittenda ē distinctio, quemadmodum admittenda ē, ea profecto nonnisi virtualis ē potē. Id autē ut clarius pateat, ea breviter sunt argumenta quib. Sabellius olim, et Arius errores ancipites. N̄ aliunde profecto eorum circa Trinitatis mysterium orti sunt errores, quam qd nullam int divinas Psonas, et nāam, existimaverint intercedere distinctionem. Nulla in quiebat Sabellius, nulla distinctio int Psonas, et nāam sed in Deo una ē nāa. Ergo nonnisi una ē in Deo Psona. Psona, ajebat Arius, nullo modo distinguitur a nāa. Tres sunt in Deo Psonę. Tres ergo sunt in Deo naturę. Quare cum Catholica Fides n̄ rationum subtilitate, sed Scripturarum, et traditionis autoritate doceat unā ē in Deo nāam, et tres Psonas, cumq. certum sit, Psonas, seu subsistentias divinas realiter n̄ distingui a divina nāa, sed ē unum, et idem realiter, ne in Sabellii, et Arii errores incidamus, statuendū ē subsistentias, seu Psonas divinas ratione, sive virtualiter distingui a divina nāa Ppōo 2da. ē valde fidei consentaneum, si in creatis realem int subsistentiam, et nāam distinctionem admittamus.

Pro Ppōo. Si subsistentia in creatis realiter n̄ distingueretur a nāa, difficile admodum esset ea explicare, atq. tueri, quę docet Fides circa Mysterium Incarnationis. Certum n ē Verbum divinum humanam assumpsisse nāam, n̄ assumpsisse humanam subsistentiam, seu Psonam. Hęc autem, nonnisi reali posita distinctione, possunt explicari. Enimvero si virtualiter tantum humana nāa distingueretur ab humana subsistentia, inde consequeretur Verbum divinum aut assumpsisse nāam humanam dimidiatam, et imperfectam, aut una simul cum nāa humanam quoq. assumpsisse Psonam; quę ut ... repugnant, quę edocet fides. In Symbolo n̄, qd D. Athanasio adscribitur, Xtus dicitur perfectus homo et Catholici omnes unanimi consensione fatentur a Verbo divino illud omne fuisse assumptum, qd pertinet ad humanę nāę perfectionem. Nā vero hec omnia immerito doceret Ecclesia, si Verbum divinum imperfectam assumpsisset humanam nāam. Deinde Arianos et Nestorius et Eutyches suorum errorum primum duxerunt ... ab eo prejudicio, quo opinabantur creatam subsistentiam nullatenus distingui a creata nāa. Ea argumenta, quib. totā pror sus suarum heresim vis erat innixa. Nāa, argumentabat Nestorius, n̄ distinguit a Psona; Quum itaq. duę sint in Xto nāę, duę pariter sunt in Xto Psonę: Eutyches contra arguebat Psona n̄ distinguit a nāa; Consequentē ergo, qd quot in Xto unica sit Psona, unica eād in Xto sit nāa. nunquam autē aut Nestorius, aut Eutyches hęc ausi fuissent asserere, si recte, ut par erat, expendissent eam, quę inter creatam subsistentiam et nāam intercedit, distinctionem. si ergo adversus Nestorianos, et Eutychianos in pluribus Conciliis definitum fuit duas ē in Xto nāas, et unicam tantum Psonam, si in Symbolo, qd D. Athanasii appellat, Xtus dicitur unus omnino n̄ confusione substantię, sed unitate Psonę; hę, secus ac Catholica fides Ecclesia, sentiamus, concedendum profecto ē creatam subsistentiam, seu Psonam a nāa vere, et proprie, ideoq realiter distingui.

Parum autem, seu nihil ponderis habent ea quę Durandus, ejusq. sectatores adducunt, ut probent sufficere virtualem distinctionem inter nāam, et creatam subsistentiam. nam, ut praetermittam, opinionem hanc ut fidei Catholicę non satis accommodatam communiter ab Orthodoxis Auctoribus n̄ admitti, quia, posita virtuali tantum distinctione probari nollet in Xto Domino perseverasse humanam subsistentiam; n̄ ē, cur ad omnipotentiam divinam confugiat Durandus, qua ea omnia facta sint, quę in Mysterio Incarnaōnis docet fides. Supflum omnino ē tales nos in angustias conjicere, ut asseramus, subsistentiam a nāa humana p mentem solummodo distinctam, omnipotente Dei virtute fuisse ab eādem nāa vere, et proprie sejunctam; Quum realiter ab invicem distinctis subsistentia, et nāa in creatis, ea, quę spectant ad precipua fidei nostrę Mysteria conciliari commode possint.

Quęrendum nunc ē, in quonam subsistentia creata consistat, utrum scilicet in positivo aliquo, vel potius in aliquo negativo. Formalem subsistentię raōnem in creatis superaddere nāę aliquid positivum contendunt Thomistę. Eam in puro negativo consistere, docent Scotistę. Nos 2dam hanc sententiam, quę probabilior ē, et apud recentiores Philosophos communior, demonstrandam suscipimus. Itaq. sit Ppōo 3tia. Subsistentia in creatis in puro negativo consistit.

Pro: Ppōo. Subsistentia aliud n̄ ē, quam ultimus nāę terminus, seu ultimum nāę complementum. quo ipsa sit sui juris; sed evadere nāam sui juris contingi optime potē sine aliquo positivo nāę superaddito. Ergo etc. Mr apud omnes ē certissima. Mr probat. Corpus p figuram terminari atq. compleri contingi optime potē sine aliquo positivo eidem corpori superaddito. Ergo a pari. Antecedens certum ē debet, quia corpus p figuram terminari, atq. compleri n̄ aliud ē, quam negare, seu impedire, ne figuratum corpus ulterius extendat, sed eām evadere nāam subsistentem, seu sui juris, n̄ aliud ē, quam ipsam reddi incommunicabilem alteri, tanquam supposito, sive negare communicaōnem cum altera subsistente nāa. Ergo si primum, eām 2dum. Quum autem aliunde melius dignosci causę nequeant, quam ex propriis earum effectibus, subsistentię effectus perscrutem, ut liquido appareat utrum positivum vel negativum aliqd appellanda sit. Jam vero subsistentię positivus effectus nullus ē! Hujusmodi n̄ esse posset vel ē independentiam a subo vel reddere nāam singularem, et existentem, vel eandem eadem constituere nāam alteri n̄ communicabilem. Porro neuter ex his effectibus est positivus subsistentię effectus potē recenseri. N̄ primus, quia nāa omnis eo ipso, qd ē [illegible] substantialis, ē eām independens a subo citra subsistentiam; Independentia enim a subo ē quidem effectus substantię, n̄ subsistentię. N̄ 2dus: Natura siquidem, eo ipso qd ē actu producta, habet a sua entitate, ut sit singularis, seu individua, atq. in se ipsa existens. Hinc nāa humana in Xto Domino, licet in se n̄ subsistat, sed in Verbo divino, cum ē unita, ē tamen, utpote propria n̄ carens hęc ea entitate, singularis, seu individua, atq. in se ipsa existens. Tertius denique effectus negativus ē, n̄ positivus. Nam, ut patet ex iis, quę supra diximus, reddere nāam incommunicabilem, seu n̄ communicabilem alteri, idem omnino ē, ac negare ejus communicaōnem cum altera superiori, aliqd proinde negativum. Dum itaq. omnes hos effectus adduci alter nequeat vere positivus a subsistentia proficiens, inferendum ē subsistentiam n̄ superaddere nāę aliquid positivum, sed in puro negativo consistere.

Id autem eo vel magis asserendum ē, si eā attente perpendamus, quę docet Fides in admirabili Mysterio Incarnaōnis. Nam si docente fide, fateri Xtum Dominum ōe perfectum hoīem; fateam quoq necesse ē Verbum divinum humanam assumens nāam eām omnia assumpsisse, qd spectat ad physicam, et positivam hoīs perfectionem. sed certum ē Verbum divinum n̄ assumpsisse humanam subsistentiam. si ergo Xtus Dominus totum omne, qd in humana natura physicum, ac positivum ē, assumens, humanam n̄ assumpsit subsistentiam; creata subsistentia n̄ ē aliquid positivum. Si n̄ in aliquo positivo creata subsistentia consisteret, vel sicuti nāa positiva perfectio foret, aut Verbum divinum hoc quoq. positivum assumpsisset, quum hōo nasci singulare ē, adeoq duę essent in Xto Psonę, aut n̄ omnes physicam, et positivam hoīs perfectionem assumpsisset, adeoq. n̄ esset perfectus hōo. Primum asserere ē in Nestorii heresim incidere, quam proscripsit C. tertia in Concilio Ephesino. 2dum dicere ē contra Apostoli, et universalis Ecclesię Doctrinam. Ex Mysterio itaq. Incarnaōnis liquet subsistentiam in creatis n̄ superaddere nāę aliquid positivum.

Neq. solum ex Mysterio Incarnaōnis nostra confirmat assertio, verum eām, posita nostra sententia, hoc Mysterium, quantum homini licet, facilius explicat. Intelligitur n. expresius, quomodo Xtus perfectus sit hōo, licet humana careat subsistentia. 2do ex eo tantum qd humana nāa sit unita Verbo divino, recte concipit mens humanam nāam n̄ ē amplius integrum suarum actionum principium, nec amplius ē sui juris, sed sub jure Verbi divini, quin tamen eidem humanę nāę aliqua desit positiva perfectio. Nam quum inferior aliqua nāa alteri superiori subsistenti nāę jungitur, jam desinit ē sui juris, et evadit juris alterius, ut patet in aquę gutta quę Oceano mixta, atq. conjunctam fit juris alieni, ita tamen, ut nihil rei physicum, et positivum perdat. Quę quidem doctrina tota desumpta ē ex Concilio Francofordiensi tempore Hadriani Primi Papę, et Caroli Magni Imperatoris coacto, ubi ex Epistola Paschasii Romanę Ecclesię Diaconi in Libello de Spiritu sancto Cap 4. hęc habentur. In Deo hoīne persona substantia ē, n̄ persona Psona. Nam Psona Psonam consumere potē, n̄ substantia substantiam, quia Persona vel juris, substantia vel naturae. Persona igitur, seu subsistentia secundum adductam auctoritatem nihil aliud supponit naturae, quod est sui juris, et nihil eidem naturae potest detrahere, vel physicum, aut positivum sit: ideo natura humana in Christo nata, quod Verbo divino fuerit unita, nihil physicum, aut positivum ad propriam entitatem pertinens amisit. Quare si haec omnia melius, atque facilius explicantur, posita subsistentiae notione in puro negativo, citra ullam dubitationem asserendum erit formalem subsistentiae rationem in Creatis non superaddere naturae, quemadmodum immerito contendunt Thomistae, aliquid positivum.

Opponunt 1. Subsistentia in divinis est aliquid positivum. Ergo etiam in creatis. Probatur consequentia. Subsistentia in creatis est participatio subsistentiae divinae. Ergo si subsistentia in divinis est etiam in creatis. Probatur consequentia. Quia creata intellectio, et volitio sunt participationes divinae intellectionis, et volitionis, sunt aliquid positivum. Ergo similiter et.

R. concedo ant. nego conseq. Disparitas est, quia tres divinae Personae, seu subsistentiae, ut Catholica nos docet Fides, realiter ab invicem se distinguunt, non per naturam, quae una eademque est in tribus omnibus divinis Personis. Adeoque assignari debent tres subsistentiae relativae, quae sint tres positivae entitates relative realiter inter se, et virtualiter tantum a natura distinctae, per quas tres in Deo Personae constituuntur, et vere, ac proprie inter se distinguuntur. Verum aliter omnino se se res habet creatis in rebus omnibus. Quum natura in rebus creatis natura finita, et alteri misime communis sit, ideirco in rebus creatis una Persona distinguitur ab altera per propriam naturam, non per subsistentiam. Caeterum a divinis ad creata non [illegible] recta est argumentatio potest. Et si inde aliquid probari volunt Thomistae, asserant quoque necessitatem, quod quemadmodum in divinis subsistentia virtualiter tantum distinguitur a natura, et necessaria, atque immutabilis est; ita quoque se habeat in creatis.

Parum autem refert, creatam subsistentiam divinae esse subsistentiae participationem. Nam ut aliquid sit, ac dici possit participatio divinae naturae, et divinae perfectionis, necesse non est illud omnimodam, et perfectam habere similitudinem cum ente perfectissimo, Creaturarum quippe sanctitas, et sapientia sunt et dicuntur participationes tum sanctitatis, tum sapientiae divinae, neque tamen aut perfectae sunt, aut necessariae, et immutabiles; sed satis est, si aliqua duntaxat similitudo intercedat. Quae vero aliqua est similitudinis inter divinam, et creatam subsistentiam, certum est. Sicuti n. subsistentia in divinis est ultimum complementum naturae divinae in tres Personas distinctae, ita subsistentia in creatis est ultimum cujuscumque naturae tam rationalis, quam irrationalis complementum. Ratio igitur ex eo desumpta, quod subsistentia in creatis sit participatio subsistentiae divinae nihil omnino evincit.

Nec porro tantum habet roboris, quod ex creata intellectione, et volitione objiciunt. Non ideo n. intellectiones, et volitiones nostrae aliquid positivum sunt, quia divinae intellectionis, et volitionis sunt participationes, sed quia ut aliquid revera positivum, atque ut positivi actus a nobis concipiuntur, quae omnia, re bene discussa, de subsistentia creata, dici nequeant, sed illam in puro, ut ajunt, negativo esse collocandam. Verum si nostrum oppositi argumenti falsitatem magis infirmare [illegible], ita contra Adversarios argumentandum est. Quamvis creata intellectio, et volitio sint participationes divinae intellectionis, et volitionis, actus tamen intelligendi, et volendi in homine sunt pura accidentia, in Deo autem sunt substantia. Ergo a pari licet subsistentia in creatis sit participatio subsistentiae divinae, subsistentia tamen creata est quid negativum, divina vero positivum.

Opponunt 2do. Quod consumi et suppleri ab alio potest, requirit esse, nisi aliquid positivum, sed SS. Patres asserunt Verbum divinum humanam assumens naturam quoad humanae naturae consumpsisse subsistentiam, eamque per propriam supplevisse subsistentiam. Ergo etc.

R. dist. mm.: Quod proprie consumi, et suppleri ab alio potest, requirit etc. conc.: quod improprie consumi et suppleri ab alio potest, requirit etc. neg.: mm. dist.a cum proportione maj. neg. conseq. Quum SS. Patres asserunt Verbum divinum humanam consumpsisse subsistentiam, eamque propria subsistentia supplevisse, nobis haudquaquam adversantur. Non n. in sensu physico, et proprio locuti sunt SS. Patres, quatenus Verbum divinum humanam assumens naturam, et humanam naturae deferens subsistentiam, entitatem aliquam, et rem positivam, quae ad humanam pertineat naturam, destruxerit; sed in sensu improprio duntaxat, et morali hoc asseruerunt, quatenus scilicet impedivit, ne humana natura in se ipsa sisteret, ne esset sui juris, atque interius ex se suarum actionum principium. Atque in hoc etiam sensu intelligendi sunt SS. Patres, quum ajunt Verbum divinum supplevisse humanam Personam. Nam ita natura, quae per unionem hypostaticam unione ceu incompleta a Patre, fuisset perfecte completa, adeoque interius ex se principium suarum operationum, a Verbo divino obtinuit complementum, et simul cum eodem Verbo interius evadit agendi principium. Haec autem omnia non alicujus subsistentiae detractione fiunt, sed potius additione, Verbi scilicet divini, sicut egregie innuit Doctor Angelicus 3 parte, quaest. 4. art. 2do ad 2dum his verbis: Dicendum quod naturae assumptae non deest propria personalitas propter defectum alicujus, quod ad perfectionem naturae humanae pertineat, sed propter additionem alicujus, quod est supra humanam naturam. Quod est unio ad divinam Personam. Humana igitur subsistentia in Christo nec proprie consumpta nec proprie suppleta fuit, quum illud solummodo, quod est esse sui juris, adjunctam proinde negationem humanae detraxerit naturae a Verbo assumptae.

Quamquam, etiamsi voces illae consumi, atque suppleri in proprio, ac rigido sensu accipiantur; explicari tamen ne ab ipsis quidem Adversariis potest, quomodo Verbum divinum humanae naturae consumpserit, atque suppleverit personalitatem. Nam ad primum quod attinet; quomodo naturae humanae subsistentia, esto positivum aliquid esset, a Verbo divino proprie consumi potuit, si humana Christi Domini natura fuit semper Verbo divino unita, et nullo umquam vel minimi temporis intervallo, in se subsistens? An verum hoc consumi dici potest de eo, quod numquam praeextitit? Eadem omnino dici possunt de verbo illo supplere stricte, et in proprio sensu usurpato. Nam si proprie loqui volumus, alterius vices supplere significat, et omne praestare quod praestaret alterum, si foret. Quum vero, praeterea dicatur, si in humana natura esset humana Persona, eadem humanam naturam redderet Verbo divino non communicatam, sistentē in se, et ab alia Psona ñ dependentē; Hic eadē efficere deberet Verbi divini Psona ad supplendas vices humanæ subsistentiæ. Sed hæc a subsistentia Verbi divini ñ præstarī. Secus nulla esset hypostatica unio. Humana ergo subsistentia proprie suppleta ñ ē a Verbi Psona.

Opponunt 3tio. Si Psonæ formalis rãō in alio sita ñ esset, quã in negãōne communicaōnis, seu conjunctio[nis] cū superiori nãa, id certe ñ ignorassent Patres rē contra Nestoriū agentes idq. Nestorio opposuissent; sed de hac negãōne nulla prorsus apud ipsos fit mentio. Ergo &.

R. ne: mm. Quamvis concedamus Patres, qui Nestorianā hæresī profligarunt, ignorasse seu non satis expressisse verbis ñ asseruisse subsistentiā consistere in sola negãōne communicaōnis cū altera superiori subsistente nãa; ñ idcirco consequitr eā in positivo ēē collocandā. Nā, ut jam demonstratū ē, natura creata subsistentiæ positivū affertur, et nostra sententia quam maxime cohæret Mysterio Incarnaōnis.

Instabunt. Ab omni rãōne abhorret tot Concilia adversus Nestoriū fuisse congregata, si de sola negãōne erat agendum. Ergo &.

R. conc: ant. ne: conseq.m Controversiæ int Catholicos, et Nestorianos ñ in eo versabant, ut dijudicarent, num subsistentia collocanda esset in positivo, vel potius in negativo. Superior erat contentio Hæreticorū, et majoris momenti prætendebat. Siquidē Nestorius eo impietatis devenerat, ut illā negaret humanæ nãæ cū Verbo divino unionē, quā Fidei Mysteriis edocti certā nos credimus, unionē scilicet physicā, et substantialē. Contendebat ñ hujusmodi unionē fuisse tantū accidentalē, & aliquam similem speciale Verbi inhabitationē in ipsa humanitate, aut p peculiarē amicitiā, adeo ut [illegible] hõm in Xto esset tantummodo instrumentum Verbi, et Verbū divinū ita assumpta humanitate uteret, sicuti Artifex utit instrumento, cui hac ceden[s] unit. Quare ideo tot Concilia fuere congregata, ut contra Nestoriū definiret Ecclesia verā, physicā, et substantialē fuisse unionē nãæ humanæ cū Verbo divino, et ita nãā humanā fuisse Verbo unitā, ut desierit ēē sui juris, seu in se subsistens. Ñ ig. ut de sola gratis negãōne tot fuerunt Concilia adversus Nestoriū congregata.

Opponunt 4to. Posita hac sententia, sequeret humanā nãā a Verbo divino assumptā ex eo duntaxat propriā amisisse subsistentiā, qd Verbo divino fuerit unita. Hoc dici nequit. Ergo &. Pro mr. Hoc posito, quælibet nãa desineret ēē subsistens eo ipso tantū, qd uniret cū altera, sed si quælibet nãa, qm Verbū divinū assumpsit humanā nãā, eidemq. fuit intime conjunctū, desiisset ēē Psona. Ergo &.

R. conc. mm ne: mm. ad prob. dist mm. Hoc posito, quælibet nãa desineret ēē subsistens, eo ipso tantū, qd uniret cū altera præstantiori et digniori, atq. tali, ut in suis actionib ñ dependeat ab inferiori conc. Hoc posito, quælibet nãa desineret ēē subsistens, eo ipso tantū, qd uniret cū altera utcumq. nãa ne: mm: et distincta cū proportione mai ne. conseq. Ex nostra utiq. sententia sequit humanā in Xto Domino nãā propriā amisisse psonalitatē, seu subsistentiā, eo ipso tantū, qd fuerit Verbo divino unita. Quum enim unio nãæ humanæ cū Verbo divino sit unio inferioris cū superiori, recte intelligit, quomodo suā amiserit subsistentiā, seu sui juris ēē desierit. Nā sicuti, ut familiarib utar exemplis, hõo liber evadit servus, eo ipso, qd alterius hõis subjiciat imperio. Regnū, quod prius dicebat Nunen, et propria gaudebat subsistentia, p hoc duntaxat, qd in Ocëanū intret, eidemq. idcirco conjungat, propriā amittit suæ subsistentiæ, sub denominaōnem; ita humana nãa p hoc duntaxat, qd Verbo divino fuerit intime conjuncta, propriā, qua fruita esset, si eidē ñ fuisset unita, hõis nimirū deperdidit Psonā, et evasit Psona Verbi, a cujus dependebat imperio, cujus juri subjacebat ac potestati a quo, tanquā a nobiliori Psona perficiebat.

Neq. dicant Adversarii, hac posita doctrina, quamcumq. unius nãæ cū altera unionē efficere, ut prior natura desinat ēē subsistens, et subsistat subsistentia alterius nãæ. Certū ñ ē id tantū eo tunc contingere quum una nãa alteri unit præstantiori, atq. digniori, et tali insup, ut in suis actionib ñ dependeat ab inferiori. Hinc humana in Xto nãa desiit ēē subsistens, quia unita fuit alteri subsistenti nãæ præstantiori atq. digniori, Verbo scilicet divino, a quo in agendo dependens fuit n̄ nō, et nunc usque dependet. Verbum autē divinum propriā ñ amisit subsistentiā, quia post unionē ab humana nãa ñ dependet, sed semper ē ex se suarum actionum principium.

Sed si quis urgeat paritate desumpta ab unione corporis cū anima rãli inquiens, qd quemadmodum in hac unione sequitur neutrā hõis partem ēē sui juris, licet corporis præstantiorem longe antecellat ita animæ, ita de hypostatica unione dicendum sit; respondendū ē latissimā intercedere disparitatē. Ideo n in unione corporis cū anima rãli, neq. corpus, neq. anima rãlis sui juris dicit, quia corpus cū tali nãa, seu substantia unitr, quæ eā post unionem independens a corpore ñ ē, nec integra per se, et totale principiū humanarū actionū. Nā ñ solū corpus humanum in suis motib, et operaōnib a concursu pendet et imperio rãlis animæ verū et ipsa quoq. anima rãlis in suis perceptionib, volitionib, et nolitionib ab ipsomet corpore dependet, a quo, nempe sensus et phantasia suppeditant objecta. Quum autem alia omnino se res habeat in casu nostro Verbum quippe divinum ab humanitate nullum obtinet adjumentum. Ex nostra sententia humana nãa consequitur, qd Verbum divinum desierit ēē sui juris, proindeq. in se subsistens.

Opponunt 5. Nãa humana in Xto vel aliquid amisit vel nihil, si nihil; Ergo adhuc subsistit in se. Ergo frustra dicitr Verbum divinum ñ assumpsisse humanā subsistentiā, idē ē ac dicere ñ assumpsisse nihil, et ñ assumpsisse negãōnem: si aliquid amisit, Ergo hoc debet ēē positivum, Ergo subsistentia in positivo consistit.

R. naam humanam in Xto nihil penitus amisisse, quod ad physicam sui ipsius entitatem pertineret, sed novum aliquid positivum fuisse adeptum, divini scilicet Verbi Personam, atque naturam, adeo ut natura humana, quae citra hujusmodi unionem fuisset sui juris, atque in se subsistens, unita Verbo divino facta sit juris divini, ejusdemque Verbi subsistentia completa. Positivum ergo nihil amisit humana in Xto natura, imo adepta potius est, negativum vero aliquid perdidisse ambigi nequit; Deperdidit non negationem conjunctionis cum superiori natura, qua sublata, non amplius est sui juris, ideoque caret subsistentia. Neque inde infertur, uti existimant Adversarii, Verbum divinum non assumens humanam subsistentiam non assumpsisse aliquid, quod sit nobile. Non a Verbo assumptum non fuit nihil positivum humanam constituens Personam, non autem nihil esse morale.

Instabunt. Hac posita explicatione inferendum esset Mysterium Incarnationis non esse amplius admirabile aut ineffabile; quod enim naturalis rationis lumine attingitur, mysterium dici non potest.

Verum respondendum est non ideo unionem naturae humanae cum Verbi Persona ineffabilem dici, ac mysterium nuncupari, quia ob substantialem inter utramque nexum propriam natura humana deperdidit subsistentiam: Hoc enim naturali ratione attingi facillime potest; sed quia percipere non potest mens, quomodo Deus, et homo, qui infinite inter se distant, potuerint adeo intime conjungi, quin Verbum naturae humanae contraheret imperfectiones, et, non secus ac ipsa, mutabile evaderet. Haec sunt, quae naturaliter cognoscere non possumus, sive utrum subsistentia aliqua sit vel positiva, vel negativa entitas.

Opponunt 3tio. Si creata subsistentia esset mera negatio, sequeretur humanitatem in Xto esse aeque completam ac naturam cujuslibet hominis; sed, hoc posito, unio Verbi divini cum humanitate non esset vera, et substantialis unio. Ergo etc. Minor probatur et patet. Pro: Maj: uti communis sententia docet, inter duo completa nequit esse vera, et substantialis unio. Ergo etc. Hinc in Symbolo, quod D. Athanasio adscribitur, profitemur, quod sicut anima rationalis, et caro unus est homo, ita Deus, et homo unus est Xtus. Quemadmodum non anima rationalis, et caro, ut unum hominem constituant, debent esse partes incompletae; ita humanitas a Verbo assumpta debet esse incompleta, ut unum valeat Xtum constituere.

R. dist: Maj. Si creata subsistentia esset, sequeretur esse in ratione naturae, seu substantiae conc: in ratione Personae, sive subsistentiae neg: Maj: dist: Min. Sed, hoc posito, scilicet si humanitas esset aeque completa in Xto sive in ratione naturae, sive in ratione personae, ac esse unio Verbi divini esset conc: secus neg: Min. et sub allata distinctione conseq.m ad prob: ratione utendum est distinctione. Licet formalis subsistentiae ratio in negativo sita sit, completa nihilominus est Xti humanitas in ratione naturae, seu substantiae, quum constet ex vero corpore et vera mente humana: Completa autem non est in ratione Personae, quum unita Verbo eidem subdatur, nec amplius sui juris sit. Hinc primo vera dicenda est, et substantialis unio humanae naturae cum Verbo divino, quia ad hujusmodi unionem habendam, sufficit, humanitatem in Xto iis non destitui, quae pertinent ad physicam, et positivam humanae naturae perfectionem. Hinc 2do eadem superius adducta distinctione facile explicatur, quomodo inter duo completa esse non possit vera, et substantialis unio. Certum, nam completa est amygdala in propria arboris specie, non completum est flumen in ratione aquae: Et tamen si prima inseratur malo armeniae, 2dum in oceanum intret, vera fit inter ista unio. Igitur etiam ex duabus naturis, quarum altera licet propria careat subsistentia, ambae tamen secus. Secus completam habeant, vera esse potest, et substantialis unio. Ceterum antiquiorum Philosophorum axioma nimirum, inter duo completa vera esse nequit, et substantialis unio est ex numero illarum sententiarum, quae verae sunt cum de rebus naturalibus modo evenientibus sermo instituitur, non cum agitur de iis, quae Deus supranaturaliter efficit. Complures enim quae inverso neque verbis satis exprimi, neque ratione satis possunt intelligi. Ex auctoritate desumpta ex Symbolo Athanasiano inferre licebat, quod sicuti ex anima rationali, et corpore unus vere, ac substantialiter fit homo, non per inhabitationem tantummodo, aut per affectum, ita ex Verbo divino, et humana natura, non accidentaliter, aut affective, ut contendebat Nestorius, sed unus vere fit, ac substantialiter Xtus. Quare similitudo illa animae rationalis, et corporis indicat solum, quod sicuti vera est, ac perfecta unio animae cum corpore, ita vera est, ac perfecta unio Verbi divini cum humana ab ipso naturae assumpta natura.

Instabunt .. Si creata subsistentia non esset aliquid positivum, Xtus Dominus non esset nobiscum univoce homo. Ejus enim Persona esset quid positivum, nostra vero non esset, nisi mera negatio.

Verum respondendum est Xtum esse nobiscum univoce hominem, eamsi humana subsistentia sit aliquid negativum. Univocatio quippe hominis se se tenet penes naturam, quae in Xto a nostra non est dissimilis, non penes Personam, quae quum, utpote Verbi divini, divina sit, esse nobis univoca nullatenus potest.

Instabunt 2do. Humana Xti natura est libera in suis actionibus. Ergo est sui juris, proindeque subsistens. Antecedens est Pro: Conseq. nam ut aliqua res sui juris dicatur, non aliud requiritur, quam ut independenter ab alio, adeoque libere suas efficiat operationes.

R. dist: ant. Humana Xti natura est libera in suis actionibus veluti pars conc: veluti totum neg. ant. et sub allata dist.ne conseq. Quum humana in Xto natura non ex se, sed unacum Verbo sit integrum suarum actionum principium, et in suis exercendis operationibus dirigatur, et pendeat a Verbo divino, est quidem in suis actionibus libera veluti pars, non autem veluti totum, adeo ut ad bonum simul, et malum efficiendum sit expedita. Nam si malum aliud patraret humana Xti natura, illud Verbo divino fuisset adscriptum, quum actiones, ut ajunt, sint suppositorum. Quare si ad bonum tantum vel efficiendum, vel non efficiendum libera est humana in Xto natura, et libera est dependenter a supposito Verbi divini, profecto humana Xti natura non est omnimode sui juris, neque propterea in se subsistens.

Haec sunt, quae ex intima Theologia petita nobis obiiciuntur. Alia etiam ex Metaphysica congerunt Thomistae argumenta qu[illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sunt [illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] vero positivo, ut patet in [illegible], in quo [illegible]
[illegible]
pta: Et modi terminativi in continuo positivum aliqd [illegible]

Lr. atq. ad primum qd spectat; Si subsistentia evadit nāa [illegible] [illegible] mentis ē, qd ab Adversarius infert, operaones scilicet a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] lophi, Operari sequitr adēe, adeoq. sola posita nāa, seu essentia alicuju [illegible] ad physicas, et positivas quidem sui operaones. Quare, licet operāo sit aliqua physica, et [illegible] sicut quoq. atq. positivum debeat ē illud principium, a quo eadē procedit, n sequit tn [illegible] [illegible] in Subsistentia ēe statuendum, quod, ut patet ex superius d [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sisteri. Ab essentia ejus, seu a nāa operaones habent, ut physicas sint, ac po[illegible] [illegible] adeoq. humana [illegible] humana [illegible] nāa efficiebat, denominative tantum, et moralit. Deo [illegible] tribuebant in eas physica n influen[illegible] ti, proprie autem humanae [illegible] naturae. [illegible]

[illegible] si quis opponeret, nāa, licet agendi [illegible] sit virtute, nunquam suas exercere functiones, nisi vel in se vel [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Subsistentiā [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Quare, sicuti, quia approximāo requirit tantum veluti nāria conditio, ut ignis calē in- [illegible] [illegible] solo igne proficiscitr; Ita quia subsistentia requirit ut nāria tantum conditio ad operaones efficiendas, subsistentia n ē physicum illud principium, a quo operaones [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ac physice procedant, nec tn [illegible] subsistentiae [illegible], nisi moraliter, ac denominative [illegible] intelligendum ē Axioma illud: Actiones sunt suppositorum. Acquirit itaq. nāa jus, atq. dominium in suas acti- ones [illegible] qd evadit subsistens; sed nihil inde positivum eidem advenit: Quum hoc jus, atq. dominium physica n sit aliqua [illegible], [illegible] moralis [illegible], moralis nimirum quidam respectus, seu relāo, qua operaones ad [illegible] tanet nāae referunt, veluti ad integrum, a quo procedunt, principium; relāo autem unius ad alterum nihil supad- dat positivum, ut patet in hoine, qui fameticum altera hoine similitudinis relaones habeat, neuter tn ex hac relaone [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible], sicuti alicujus [illegible] [illegible] quae ad nāae [illegible], [illegible] evadimus; Ita nāa ē domina poti [illegible] actionum, quin physice, et positive [illegible] [illegible] augeat. Tandem, sicuti recte [illegible], nāae amittere jus, atq. dominium in suas actiones p hoc [illegible] qd [illegible] alteri [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] superiori [illegible] imperio subdat, ac potestati, a qua habeat, ut agere possit, [illegible]. positivum aliqd, et physicum n [illegible]

Ad 2dum; Aliud ē loqui de negaone dependentiae physicae, aliud de negaone dependentiae, quae sit tantum moralis [illegible] in [illegible] consistere [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negamus. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] subsistentiae nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ab alio, tanquam a [illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] quit independentia a [illegible], aut independentia a Sub.o a substantiae nāa. Ceterum [illegible] [illegible] du- plicem, secundum scholasticos Philosophos, ēe negaonum genus; Alterum nimirum earum, quae sunt [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negāo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] negāo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sumat.

Neq. demum ex duobus aliis momentis colligi aliquid pote, quo subsistentia [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] trict. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] te, sed hujusmodi perfectior existendi modus n provenit a supposito, quatenus [illegible] [illegible], sed naturae nāae seu substantiae [illegible] nec alia eā de causa accidens [illegible] a supposito, [illegible] ē perfectissimum in toto genere substantiae, nisi quia supposit nāae continet veluti substantiam singularem, atq. completam. Ad 2dum: Mo- di terminativi in continuo positivum aliquid sunt, quia [illegible] [illegible], constituunt continuum; sicuti [illegible] continuum aliqd ē positivum, ita positivum aliqd ēe debent modi [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] continuum. Verum n ita se res habet in Subsistentia, quae ē modus terminativus moralis tantum [illegible] adveniens, n ipsam physice constitu[illegible] [illegible]

Corollarium I.

Ex dictis [illegible] [illegible], primo humanam in [illegible] nāae ēe indi[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nāa [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], tali nimirum anima, tali ac determinatum corpus; n [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

cui non obtineat, sed ad personale individuum

Corollarium [illegible]

[illegible] creatae res omnes, [illegible] a Deo ad omnes concurrente [illegible] actiones [illegible] [illegible] quantum in omnes res [illegible] Deo, [illegible] ultimo [illegible] possunt, [illegible] humanae [illegible] [illegible] tanquam a proprio [illegible] posito regebat [illegible] ad bonum eliciendum, vel suspendendum.

Caput 4tum

De Distinctione

Distinctionis nomine nihil aliud venit, quam negatio identitatis, seu separatio unius ab alio. Porro variae sunt secundum Scholasticos distinctionis species. Alia n. est distinctio realis, qua unum, nemine cogitante, cum altero idem non est, sive res sint ab invicem separatae ut Cicero, et Demosthenes, sive sint conjunctae, ut anima, et corpus. Alia est distinctio rationis, qua unum aliud non est sola intellectus nostri consideratione, quatenus nempe res in se unica in varios conceptus mens nostra distinguit.

Distinctio realis [illegible] [illegible] et tunc distinctio [illegible] [illegible] realis major [illegible] [illegible] et tunc distinctio modalis, seu realis minor [illegible]. Ad realem distinctionem [illegible] distinctionem virtualem [illegible] distinctionem, quam [illegible] [illegible] mente nostra [illegible] tes concipiendi.

Distinctio rationis duplex partis est. Prima est cum fundamento, quam nempe mens nostra excogitando ponit in aliqua re virtualiter multiplici. Sic, quia homo e.g. inquantum est corpus, aequivalet ligno, lapidibusque, inquantum vero vivit [illegible] mens nostra [illegible] distinguit in homine [illegible] [illegible] Scholasticis distinctio rationis [illegible]. Altera distinctio rationis est, [illegible] distinguerent a Cicero [illegible] haec distinctio dicitur a Scholasticis distinctio rationis ratiocinantis.

Hanc [illegible] omnes [illegible] [illegible] distinctionem realem et distinctionem rationis [illegible] formalem vocavit ex natura rei: formalem quidem, quia non inter res diversas, sed inter ejusdem rei formalitates, ut ipse explicat, intercedit; ex natura vero rei, quia [illegible] rationis, [illegible] ex propria earum natura. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporis, et viventis, quorum alia quidem superiora sint, alia inferiora, ea idcirco formaliter distingui docent Scotistae, nec verentur [illegible] formalitates [illegible] distinctas [illegible] cinere.

[illegible] [illegible] repugnare distinctionem formalem ex natura rei, quia, si accurate [illegible] distinctio realis [illegible] extrema distinctionis formalis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tinctionis formalis sunt duae res; ac propterea distinctio formalis eadem est cum distinctione reali. Quare, [illegible] ita nec admittere debent distinctionem formalem ex natura rei.

[illegible] formalitates, quas [illegible] intellectus nostri operationes [illegible] distinctionis virtualis [illegible] [illegible] ex natura rei [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] re contradictoria [illegible]. Porro hoc omnia solius virtualis distinctionis ope commode haberi possunt. [illegible] res pluribus aequivalent, inferre [illegible] uno definiat modo, quatenus vero aequivalet alteri, definiatur [illegible] valet alteri, [illegible] contradictoria [illegible] distinctionis formalis naturam con-sideramus, [illegible] [illegible] stantia.

Metaphysica

Pars 2da

Pneumatologia, seu Scientia Spirituum.

De Spiritu generatim sumpto

Quamvis vox ista Spiritus, si Graecum vocabulum consideremus, proprie halitum significet, saepe accipitur pro anima, nonnunquam pro animo, quandoque etiam pro vento, ut patet ex Latinis scriptoribus. Apud Philosophos tamen usus invaluit, ut, quam Spiritum dicunt, substantiam exprimant cujuscumque materiae expertem. Nos, quamdiu in terris vivimus, Spiritum ita sumptum nimis imperfecte, et obscure cognoscimus, verum, quia de Spiritu cogitantes, cogitationem duntaxat in nostro animadvertimus, Spiritus naturali ratione cognitus substantia cogitans definitur. Quoniam vero multa de Spirituum natura opinati sunt absurda tam Veteres, quam plurimi ex Recentioribus Philosophi, non erit abs re eorum hypotheses recensere, ut iis, quae nimis falsa, et commentitia sunt, rejectis, clara, atque distincta Spirituum natura magis elucescat.

Atque ut ad antiquorum Philosophorum opiniones veniamus primi sese nobis offerunt Chaldaei, qui quemadmodum duo excogitarunt diversa rerum principia, lucem scilicet, et tenebras, ita et diversa Spirituum genera inde promanasse arbitrati sunt. Namque Spiritus ex luce promanantes intelligibiles, vel intellectuales dixerunt, putantes quemcumque ex hisce Spiritibus praeditum tum Dei, tum sui ipsius, tum aliarum rerum cognitionem [illegible] esse. Quinque autem lucidorum Spirituum constituebant species. Ex his primos vocabant Cosmagogos, quorum munus esset providis suis motionibus Mundum regere. 2di dicebantur Azoni, atque hi Zonarum potestate deferentes, supra Caelum, et Planetas incolere volebant. 3tii nuncupabantur Zonaei, qui Zonas in Caelo necessario circumvolverent, et quae in iis Regionibus necessaria sunt, administrarent. Quarti ordine veniebant Daemones boni, qui quasi [illegible] ac Ministri Dei hoc etiam munere fungerentur, ut nobis hominibus praesto essent, eorumque animas ad loca beata educerent. Quinti demum erant mentes humanae, quas ex sede lucida varias ob causas demissas credebant in corpora terrestria; ita tamen ut pro ratione patratorum operum vel in priorem locum essent rediturae, vel in sedes deteriores cucurrendae.

Quemadmodum autem lucidos hujusmodi Spiritus immortales dixerunt, et intelligibiles, ita e contrario Spiritus ex tenebris ortos materiales appellabant, ac tantum eorum esse numerum docebant, ut aer, terra, mare, omnia denique, quae circumspiciuntur, iis essent referta. Horum materialium Daemonum sex praecipue numerabant genera: Primo scilicet Ignei, qui superiores aeris regiones obtinerent. 2do Aerei, qui inferiores. 3tio Terrestres, qui in Terrae superficie habitarent. 4to Marini, qui aquas incolerent: 5to Subterranei, qui in Terrae visceribus latitarent. 6to Lucifugi, seu Terribiles, qui lucis inimici noctu debaccharentur. Ad duo haec postrema Daemonum genera pertinere asserebant, hominum viscera occupare, phreneses, variosque morbos producere; In eo tamen omnes convenire putabant, ut odio erga Deos, hominesque flagrarent, et varias animalium formas, aliorumque corporum figuras possent induere. Tandem id sibi [illegible] voluere, ritus scilicet theurgicos, precationes nempe vocum murmurationes, aliisque ridiculis characteribus, bonos Daemones e sua sede posse trahi, malos vero a nobis expelli. Haec de natura, numero, et proprietatibus Spirituum Chaldaei omnium Philosophorum antiquissimi.

Post Chaldaeos nonnulla pauca de Spiritibus tradiderunt Pythagorei. Hi tres esse docuere Spirituum species, Divos scilicet, Daemones, et Heroes, Huic autem postremo Spirituum generi dabant, ut munera ad hanc Terram pertinentia obirent. Ab iis somnia, signa, morbos sanitatemque hominum immitti arbitrabantur. Credebant etiam cuilibet homini a nativitate assignatum fuisse Genium bonum, et malum, quorum hic ad malum, ille vero ad bonum inclinaret humanum genus.

Tria etiam a Platonicis statuta sunt Spirituum genera ex magna mundi anima profecta, Aetherea nimirum, aerea, et Terrestria. Aethereos Spiritus nuncuparunt Divos, aereos Daemones, Terrestres hominum animas. Ex hisce principiis Platonicae deinde Philosophiae sectatores novas sequentes Theses pronuntiavere. 1ma. Spiritus Aetherei sunt sanctissimi, atque ideo in statu beatissimo versantur. 2da. Spiritus aerei vel boni sunt, et in felici; vel mali, et in infelici statu collocati. 3tia. Animae humanae a corpore sejunctae si heroicis virtutibus sint praeditae, Aethereis Spiritibus junguntur; si secus, Daemones evadunt. 4ta. Spiritus Aetherei sunt primarii ministri summi numinis, Daemones autem sunt ministri 2darii. 5ta. Spiritus aerei habent inter se Politiam, et certo regimini non solum sunt subjecti, verum etiam in diversas provincias dispartiti. 6ta. Maligni Daemones ad bonam frugem possunt redire, si velint; et si in dies profecerint Aethereorum Spirituum numero adscribi. 7ma. Aerei Spiritus possunt ad aliquod tempus corpus assumere ex aere compositum, et in illo apparere. 8va. Apparitiones, et prælia militum ex nubibus sunt a Spiritibus aereis, qui pro libito ita figurare aerem possunt. Gra. Animæ vita functorum, non secus ac Demones, per somnia, vel alias apparitiones possunt videri.

Spiritum ex Elementis compositum, et ignem naturam finxerunt Zeno, Chrysippus, et Stoici fere omnes: Alii naturam aqueam, ut Heraclitus, Thales, Hypparchus. Alii terream, ut Anaximander. Alii aeream ut Anaximenes. Aqueam simul, et terream naturam voluit Xenophanes: Terream, et igneam Parmenides; ex quatuor omnibus elementis conflatum putavit Empedocles.

Inter Recentiores non desunt Philosophi nimium Heterodoxi, qui Spiritum materialem dicunt. Nam Rudigerius et Fridericus Gentzkerius Spiritum definiunt substantiam vivam, adeo ut per vitæ duntaxat rationem a cæteris rebus materialibus differat. Hinc dividunt Spiritus in mentes hominum, in animas brutorum, et in naturam plasticam. Sunt etiam qui contendunt Spiritus naturam nos latere, ut inter cæteros Lockius.

Superest nunc, ut, quantum nobis sinit infirmum rationis lumen, Spirituum naturam, atque ordinem secundum nostrum systema statuamus. Itaque imprimis certum est Spiritum non esse ex materia compositum, sed definiendum esse, substantiam cogitatione donatam. Deinde quatuor enumerentur Spirituum ordines. Primus Deus est, a quo cæteri Spiritus, et Mundus universus producti fuere. Alii sunt Spiritus puri a corporibus secreti, mentes scilicet Angelicæ. Alii sunt mentes humanæ: Alii demum Brutorum animæ. Hisce quæ ad genericam Spiritus notionem pertinent, præmissis; rectus ordo postulat, ut de singulis Spirituum generibus sermonem agamus, et primo loco de Deo, a quo cæteri quicumque Spiritus habent, ut Spiritus sint.

Pneumatologiæ

Liber Primus

De Deo

Caput I.

Quid Dei nomine omnibus in mentem veniat.

De Deo naturalibus tantum rationibus, non sacrorum librorum autoritate disputantibus investigandum initio est, quid, natura duce, veniat omnibus in mentem nomine Dei. Deos enim, præclare Tullius, lib. I Tusc. Quæst. Deos esse natura opinamur, quales sint ratione cognoscimus. Id autem imprimis pro certo habendum esse ducimus neminem scilicet esse, qui non fateatur, se, dum de Deo cogitat, substantiam intelligere spiritualem, simplicem, a se ipsa existentem, æternam, immensam, infinitam, omnipotentem, omnia videntem, omnia continentem, gubernantem, moventem, uno verbo, substantiam omni perfectionum genere cumulatissimam. Nam et ipsi, qui nudum existere Deum voce tantum tales sunt contra animi sententiam si interrogati fuissent, quid esset Deus, quem ipsi existere negarent, respondissent profecto esse substantiam spiritualem, æternam, immensam, uno verbo infinite perfectam. Deus igitur si naturali rationis lumen consulamus, et si quod animo concipimus, camente verbis exprimere velimus, Deus inquam, est substantia perfectissima, omnes scilicet in se continens cogitabiles perfectiones, sive formaliter, ut ajunt, sive eminenter. Formaliter primo sunt in Deo perfectiones quæ vocantur simpliciter simplices, quæ videlicet in suo conceptu nullam involvunt imperfectionem, quæque ita in Deo continentur, ut de ipso absolute possint prædicari, cujusmodi sunt bonitas, sapientia, justitia, aliæque perfectiones, quæ Dei attributa solent appellari. Eminenter vero, seclusa nimirum imperfectione, in Deo sunt etiam cæteræ quæcumque perfectiones, quæ alicui imperfectioni sunt admixtæ, quæque dici solent perfectiones simplices secundum quid. Sic Planta, homo, lapis, et alia hujusmodi, quæ perfectiones sunt, eminenter duntaxat continentur in Deo, quia neque planta, neque homo, neque lapis de Deo prædicantur, sed tantum in Deo sunt per æquivalentiam, seu per virtutem, quam habet ad ea producenda. Quare si, teste superius laudato Tullio, nulla gens tam fera, tamque immanis, cujus mentem non imbuerit Deorum opinio. Si omnes esse vim, et naturam divinam arbitrantur, omnes profecto naturaliter cognoscant oportet, hujusmodi divinam naturam esse perfectissimam. Sit itaque.

Propositio unica. Omnibus naturaliter in mentem venit Deum esse ens perfectissimum. Propositio demonstrata est.

Dices I. cum Hobbesio. Deus concipi nequit. Sed quod concipi nequit definiri non potest. Ergo Deus definiri non potest substantia perfectissima. Pro majori. Deus est infinitus. Sed infinitum concipi non potest. Ergo etc. Pro minori. Quod nullis comprehenditur est limitibus, comprehendi non potest a mente nostra. Sed infinitum est. Ergo etc.

R. dist. maj. Deus concipi nequit adæquate conc. inadæquate neg. maj. dist. min.: sed quod concipi nequit sive adæquate, sive inadæquate definiri non potest conc. quod concipi nequit adæquate definiri non posse neg. min., et consequentiam. Ad prob. conc. maj., dist. ut supra dictum est, min., et sub allata distinctione neg. consequentiam. Nemo sane mentis est, qui cum scelerato Hobbesio brutum sive etiam limat, quod nulli unquam Ethnicorum Philosophorum, imo, nulli unquam sententiam placuisse fuit. Itaque statuit Hobbesius, Atheus, nunquam verbis non animo, nullam nos ob mentis imbecillitatem, et limitationem formare posse Ideam Dei, adeo, ut ita tantum possit Deus definiri, quod scilicet neque comprehendi possit, neque definiri. Quamvis enim et nos libenter fateamur Deum esse substantiam infinitam, nostramque proinde perfectiones, quae finitae sunt, superantem, non inde tamen inferemur ducimus, Deum infinitum nullo modo posse comprehendi. Objectum siquidem infinitum mentis cognosci potest comprehendi tamen aliquo modo potest. Adaequate igitur, idest quoad omnes, et singulas perfectiones Deus, utpote infinitus, non percipitur; inadaequate tamen, idest imperfecte, quoad aliquas perfectiones et intelligi potest, et ab omnibus perfectionibus earum oppositis hominis sola naturali ratione intelligitur. Verum, ut magis pateat, quam infirma sint opposita ab Hobesio momenta; ex ipsa sua argumentatione demonstrandum est, Deum naturaliter concipi, et definiri Ens perfectissimum. Deus, inquit Hobesius, concipi nullo modo potest. Cur, quaeso, concipi non potest? Quia, inquis, ens infinitum est Deus. Jam ergo intelliges Deum esse substantiam infinitam. Cur ergo nullam de Deo ideam formare nos possumus, si tu Deum concipis veluti infinitum? Cur naturali ratione nescimus, utrum Deus sit Ens perfectissimum, si a te pronoscitur ut Ens infinitum? Num forsasse est aliud Deus infinitus, quam in omnibus suis perfectionibus sit infinitus? Asserendum igitur est, Hobesi, aut Deum a te non percipi infinitum, aut Deum etiam a te, et a nobis cognosci ut Ens perfectissimum.

Dices 2do. Omnes naturaliter Deum non cognoscunt. Ergo omnes naturaliter non cognoscunt Deum esse Ens perfectissimum. Probo ant. Plures fuerunt Athei tum antiqui, tum nostris etiam temporibus. Pro ant. Ex antiquis enim sunt Protagoras, et Diagoras, teste Tullio Lib. 1. de natura Deorum, Theodorus Cyrenaeus, Leucippus, atque Democritus, et nostris etiam temporibus celebriores sunt Hobesius, Spinoza, et Vaninus. Quod autem humanae historiae praebent, divino etiam testimonio confirmari potest. Psalmo quippe 13, n. 1. ajunt Regius Vates: Dixit insipiens in corde suo: Non est Deus, et Psalmo 78 n. 6 effunde iram tuam in gentes, quae te non noverunt. Apostolus etiam ad Ephesios 2do, n. 12 ait. Eratis illo tempore sine Deo in hoc mundo. Athei superius recensitis addi possunt Brasilienses, Peruani, et alii populi, qui nullum Deum cognoverunt, imo nullam, sive de vero, sive de falso numine ideam habuere, adeo ut ne nomen quidem apud ipsos esset, quo exprimi Deus posset.

Resp. ad ant: ad prob. dist: ant. Plures tum antiqui, tum nostris temporibus fuerunt nomine, et corde Athei conc. fuerunt revera, et intellectu Athei neg. ant: et conseq. Esse revera Atheos nullo certo argumento potest probari, nisi in horum numero non habeantur, quos veteres, eo quod vulgares Deos, et eorum simulachra non colerent, Atheos nuncupabant. Sic Atheus dictus est Socrates, quia Athenienses suos contemnentes Deos multa multa[illegible] Sic Athei appellati sunt Pythagoras, Plato, aliique quamplures. Sic Judaeos, atque Christianos tanquam in Atheismum prolapsos variis tormentorum generibus interfecerunt Romani, et Graeci idololatrae. Veros Atheos in stricto sensu accepti qui nimirum non verbis tantum, aut pravo affectu, sed in intellectu sibi suadeant nullum esse Deum, neque fuerunt unquam, neque ullo tempore esse poterunt. Hinc, ut ad opposita exempla veniamus, Protagoras, Diagoras, caeterique sive antiquiores, sive recentiores Athei, non ideo se Atheos professi sunt, quod nullum revera Deum admitterent, sed quia impii, scelestique homines optabant non esse Deum, ut mala impune patrarent. Si enim interrogati fuissent, quid esset Deus, quem ipsi existere negarent, profecto respondissent, Deum esse, substantiam scilicet perfectissimam. Quod si ex his nonnulli, ut inter caeteros Vaninus, vel inter flammas Atheismum professi sunt, id ad ostentationem inanis gloriae, et vanae cujusdam fortitudinis laudem est referendum. Intelligitur hominum impiorum, praeclare ad rem nostram Lockius Anglus in instructione Juvenis nobilis, parte 2da, dial. 5to, possunt quidem aliqui jactare, et pejerare se non nosse Deum, et furentes in hac eorum insania intus etiam quandoque audacius provocare, Hoc tamen nihil aliud est, quam strepitus vocis. Hujus enim rei negatio solum est sub lingua eorum At hoc est potius desiderium quoddam, quod cupiunt non esse Deum, quam vera conclusio, quam credant ipsum Deum non esse. Quin ipso eodem tempore, quo asserunt hoc, quod nihil esse dicunt, maxime contremiscunt, quam ipsum conclamant, paveantque suam vindictam, dum ipsius negant existentiam.

Scripturae testimonia nobis non adversantur. Nam primus textus ex Psalmo 13 desumptus, et 3tius ex Epistola ad Ephesios allatus id tantum probant, quod hactenus diximus, scilicet nonnullos esse, qui corde, idest pravo affectu, et desiderio Deum esse nolunt. Haec est SS. Patrum interpretatio. Ait enim D. Augustinus in Psalmum 13 Qui amant hoc saeculum, et non amant Deum, ipsae sunt affectiones, quae corrumpunt animam, et sic excaecant, ut possint etiam dicere insipientes in corde suo: Non est Deus. Clemens vero Alexandrinus, aliique Ecclesiastici Scriptores testantur in hoc tantum sensu fuisse Ephesios appellatos ab Apostolo sine Deo, adeoque Atheos. 2dus textus ex Psalmo 78 desumptus probat duntaxat, solos Judaeos eo tempore vero Deo veram exhibuisse cultum, Alii quippe Nationes in Idololatriae tenebris versabantur. Idololatria autem non prorsus Deum eliminat, sed falsos tantum Deos admittit, et colit, atque communem omnibus ostendit divinitatis sensum, tametsi ait D. Augustinus, multum falsitatibus obrutum, et contusum, quo factum est, ut homo, quamvis naturae suppositis, se se rebus vilissimis, veluti numinibus, subjicerit, et maluerit divinitatem rebus indignissimis adscribere, quam omni Deo carere.

Quod spectat ad Brasilienses, Peruanos, aliosque Americanos Populos; tam variae, atque inter se dissentientes sunt Recentiorum etiam Historiae, ut nihil certi statui possit, quemadmodum viri eruditi opinantur, atque ii equidem non pauci. Nam Doctor Stidingfleetus in suo [illegible] scriptione promontorii Bonae Spei: Dominus de-la-Croze L. 6. 7. de Christianitate Indiarum: Ziegenbalg maximae fidei scriptor, qui jussu Regis Borussiae per decem annos versatus est in regionibus, quarum incolae Athei dicuntur, in narratione historica conversionum Paganorum in orientalibus Indiis. Dominus de Rochefort. D. du Tertre, aliique satis apte testantur nullas nationes vel in Africa vel in Asia, vel in America inventas fuisse gentes sine aliqua opinione Divinitatis. Riccardus autem Cumberlandus et Barbeyracus, recentissimi summae fidei scriptores, falsum esse tradunt, quae de Atheis Soldaniae Populis nonnulli non satis accurate narrarunt.

Dices 3tio. Esse notitiam in nobis aliquam divinitatis notitiam, quam tamen conjunctam Deum veluti Ens perfectissimum. Ergo etc. Probo: ant. Idololatrae aliquam divinitatis admiserunt, non tamen omnimode perfectam. Ergo etc. Probo ant. Idololatrae plures agnoverunt Deos. Ergo etc. Probo conseq. Pluralitas non Deorum summae perfectioni repugnat, quandoquidem, si plures essent Dii, non essent omnes summe perfecti.

R. neg. ant. in prob. neg. ant. ad prob. dist. ant. Idololatrae plures agnoverunt Deos, ita tamen, ut unum tantum agnoscerent inter illos summum, ceteros vero, tanquam illius ministros, haberent conc. Idololatrae plures agnoverunt aequales Deos neg. ant: et sub addita dist. conseq. Quamvis ea fuerit antiquorum temporum caecitas, ut, excepta Gente Judaeorum, universus Terrarum Orbis post Diluvium Deorum turbas agnosceret, non eo tamen insaniae Idolorum cultores devenere, ut omnes prorsus, quos vocabant Deos, existimarent aequales. Summum unum quendam statuebant, a quo ceteri omnes Dii ortum ducerent. Huic summo, et soli Deo perfectiones omnes attribuebant, ceteros vero inferiores tantum Deos et veluti summi Dei ministros venerabantur. Id probant tum veteres historiae, tum carmina vetustiora Poetarum. Quid non indicant sententiae illae: Ab Jove principium. Jovis omnia plena. Divum Pater atque hominum Rex: Hominum, Divumque aeterna potestas. Quid, inquam, indicant, si hoc non indicant, unum summe dumtaxat perfectum, summumque Deum inter eas Idololatras cognovisse? Hinc in Concilio Carthaginensi sub Cypriano Saturninus Confessor dixit. Gentiles, quamvis Idola colant, tamen summum Deum Patrem, et Creatorem cognoscunt, ac confitentur. Et Horosius L. 6. Historiae Cap. 1 Paganos, quos jam declarata veritas de contumacia magis, quam de ignorantia convincit, cum a nobis discutiuntur, non se plures Deos, sed sub uno Deo magno plures ministros venerari fatentur. Si quis autem quaerat, cur Idolorum cultores unum revera summum, et perfectissimum numen cognoscentes, innumeros alios Deos, et inter quos aliarum Figuras adoraverint, respondendum est, id contigisse tum fraude daemonis, qui corruptam primi Parentis lapsu humanam naturam a Creatore avertere, et ad Creaturas convertere studuit, tum ipsorum hominum malitia, qui vel Divitias, vel errando voluntates Deos proprius libidinibus accommodatos finxerunt, vel non sub iis elati sibi, aut suis divinos honores arrogarunt. Praecipue vero id contigisse certum est, ipso justo Deo in scelerum vindictam permittente. Sicut, ut ait Apostolus ad Romanos 1: Quia, cum cognovissent Deum, non sicut Deum glorificaverunt, aut gratias egerunt, sed evanuerunt in cogitationibus suis, et obscuratum est insipiens cor eorum. Dicentes enim se esse sapientes stulti facti sunt, et mutaverunt gloriam incorruptibilis Dei in similitudinem imaginis corruptibilis hominis, et volucrum, et quadrupedum, et serpentium. Propter quod tradidit illos Deus in desideria cordis eorum. Igitur vel in ipsis deterioris Idololatriae tenebris satis clara, atque distincta Divinitatis notitia minime defuit, adeo ut merito affirmare possimus, et unum ubique Deum, ratione duce, fuisse cognitum, et plures simul Deos, ex voluntatis malitia, et corruptione fuisse adoratos.

Dices 4to. Ens perfectissimum a nobis neque videtur, neque tangitur, neque auditur, neque odoratur, neque gustatur. Ergo Idea entis perfectissimi naturaliter nobis in mentem venire non potest. Probo: conseq. omnis nostra cognitio pendet a sensibus. Ergo etc.

Resp. conc. ant. neg. conseq. in prob. dist. ant. Omnis nostra cognitio vel mediate, vel immediate pendet a sensibus conc: immediate tantum neg: ant. et conseq. Nihil hoc argumento validius afferre Athei possunt. Non enim pecudes sumus, ut ea tantum, quae videmus, aut tangimus, cognoscamus. Inest nobis ratio, qua ad altiora consurgere possumus, et debemus. Ipsa siquidem Creaturarum opera, quae oculis conspicimus, ingerunt menti notitiam invisibilis Creatoris, quemadmodum motus visibiles corporis ducunt nos in cognitionem latentis animae. Hinc D. Augustinus in Psalmum 73 Atheum dicentem: non video quid credituros sim, praeclare ita refellit inquiens: Stulte, corpus tuum videtur: Animam tuam quis videt? Cum ergo corpus solum videatur, quare non sepeleris? Miratur, quia dixi: Quare non sepeliris? et respondet (sapit non in hoc) quia vivo. Unde scio, quia vivis, cujus animam non video? Unde scio? respondebis, Quia loquor, quia ambulo, quia operor. Stulte, ex operibus corporis agnosco viventem, ex operibus Creaturae non potes agnoscere Creatorem? Haec D. Augustinus, ex quibus liquido constat, quam inania sint omnia ista argumenta, quibus ibi frustra probare conantur Athei, nullam existere, aut naturaliter concipi posse Substantiam omnimode perfectam.

Caput 2dum.

De existentia Dei.

Existentiam Dei non posse in dubium revocari, probatum aliquo modo superius est. Fieri enim non potest, ut Deus naturaliter ab omnibus percipiatur veluti Ens perfectissimum, quin simul habeatur existens. Nunc ea afferenda sunt argumenta, quae ad Dei existentiam demonstrandam fiere a Philosophis excogitata. Haec autem tria sunt, Moralia scilicet, Physica, et Metaphysica. Moralia argumenta illa appellant, quae a doctis simul, et indoctis percipiuntur, et quia in communem sensum magis incurrunt, adeo efficacia sunt, ut ab homine, qui sana utitur ratione, nequeant in dubium verti. Cum non tantam non postulent attentionem neque reconditam scientiam excitant, sed omnibus sint obvia, atque oculis omnium subjecta, certam apud omnes, et inconcussam obtinentur auctoritatem. Hujusmodi argumenta duo praecipua sunt, Mundi scilicet creatio, ejusdemque gubernatio.

Argumenta physica nuncupantur, quae ex rerum physicarum contemplatione desumpta sunt. Et tria con-munitis recensent. Primum infert ex variis affectionibus, quas in nobis per corpora excitari sentimus. Sic quia nullis rei corporeæ nos recreant, nullis tedio afficiunt, et quia optime intelligimus res corporeas non esse primas, et effectrices causas. Aliam generalem rerum omnium causam excogitamus, a qua corporeæ res habeant, ut voluptatem, vel dolorem, vel tedium, tanquam secundariæ causæ in nobis producant. 2dum physicum argumentum desumitur ex motu corporum. Si non omnibus evidens est in corporibus naturalibus esse motum aliquem, ex hujusmodi motu intercedendo, et esse supremum aliquem motorem existere. 3tium argumentum ex causarum efficientium serie ducitur. Quæcumque non tantum se operari, et effectus producere videntur in rerum aspectabilium natura, et ab aliqua suprema causa debent adjuvari: nam fieri non potest, ut solus homo V.C. alteri homini existentiam largiatur, cujus fabricam, vires, et organorum conformationem penitus ignorat.

Metaphysica demum argumenta ea sunt, quæ ex intima metaphysica depromta Deum existere probant, velut causam rerum omnium effectricem. Etenim ex rebus, quæ contingentes, factæ, dependentes, et finitæ sunt, evidenter demonstratur existere ens absolute necessarium, increatum, independens, et infinitum.

Ut a metaphysicis argumentis exordiar; tria proponit Cartesius. Primum est: Extat in nobis idea Dei seu idea Entis summe perfecti. Sed idea Entis summe perfecti aliunde, quam ab ipso Deo, proficisci non potuit. Ergo idea Entis summe perfecti ~~ab ipso Deo~~ a Deo est, proindeque existit Deus. 2dum argumentum ita instituit. Quidquid in idea clara atque distincta rei alicujus comprehenditur, id de ea re certissime potest affirmari; sed actualis existentia Dei continetur in idea clara atque distincta Dei, seu Entis summe perfecti. Ergo eo ipso, quod hujusmodi clara, atque distincta idea nobis est indita, actualis existentia Dei certissime de Deo potest affirmari. 3tium argumentum ex [illegible] exponit in hunc modum. Plura sunt Entia contingentia, sed Entia contingentia nisi ab Ente necessario in rerum natura collocari potuerunt. Ergo existit Ens necessarium. Sed Ens necessarium est Deus. Existit ergo Deus. Postremum hoc argumentum efficacissimum ad Dei existentiam demonstrandam nos quoque cum Cartesio, et Philosophis omnibus probabimus. Primum vero et 2dum tanquam efficacia merito negamus. Iis itaque, quæ de origine idearum in Logicis tradita sunt, in memoriam vocatis, sit Propositio 1. Argumenta metaphysica primo, et 2do loco a Cartesio proposita non probant actualem existentiam Dei.

Probatur Propositio quoad primum argumentum. Idea, quæ in nobis est, Entis summe perfecti aliunde, quam a Deo orta est; sed si hæc idea aliunde orta est, ex indita idea non infertur Deum existere. Ergo ex indita idea Entis perfectissimi non probatur Deum existere. Major Propositio constat. Si enim idea Entis perfectissimi producitur a mente nostra dependenter a sensibus, profecto hæc idea non est nobis indita, seu ab ipso Deo animis nostris impressa. Minor quoque Propositio est certissima. Nam quemadmodum, si dependenter a sensibus nulla mens produceret ideam Entis perfectissimi, ex adventitia idea Entis perfectissimi inferre non possemus Deum re vera existere, ita si idea, quæ in nobis est, Entis perfectissimi, non est innata, ex innata idea probare non possumus Entis perfectissimi existentiam. Confirmatur. Ubi nullus adest effectus, ex effectu assurgere non possumus in causæ cognitionem. Sed eo ipso, quod nulla est nobis ab ipso Deo indita idea Entis perfectissimi, hæc idea non est effectus Dei, saltem immediatus, ut contendunt Cartesiani. Ex idea igitur Entis perfectissimi, quæ congenita nobis non est, merito inferre non possumus Ens perfectissimum existere. Hinc corruit argumentum Cartesianorum asserentium, quod quum Deus nihil unquam in hac rerum universitate frustra operetur, suique ideam ab ipso nostro exordio tribuerit, eam non alia de causa tribuerit, quam ut eum existentem cognosceremus. Siquidem probatum est nullam fuisse nobis inditam a Deo ideam, frustra non operatur Deus, sed ut supremum rerum omnium Artificem decet, operatur, cujus ex Creaturis, quæ sua in nobis pariunt ideam, ideam quoque existentiam omnibus proposuit cognoscendam.

Probatur Propositio quoad 2dum argumentum. Atque imprimis, licet et nos cum Cartesio sentiamus, quidquid in idea clara, et distincta rei alicujus continetur, id de ea re certissime posse affirmari, non tamen propterea concedendum ducimus in idea Entis perfectissimi, eo sensu quo ipse contendit, Dei existentiam contineri. Ut probet Cartesius se clare, atque distincte percipere existentiam pertinere ad Ens perfectissimum, evidenter prius demonstrandum illi est, se esse consecutum claram; atque distinctam ideam Entis perfectissimi, atque claram hanc, distinctamque ideam sibi revera fuisse ab Ente perfectissimo insculptam. Dici enim non potest rem aliquam clare, atque distincte in idea contineri, nisi certum sit ideam illam claram esse, atque distinctam. Jam vero, si indita nobis esset idea Entis perfectissimi, perciperemus utique possemus existentiam Entis perfectissimi clare, atque distincte contineri in illa connata nobis idea; quum tamen hujusmodi idea non sit, nisi quoddam Cartesianorum figmentum, neque clara profecto est, neque distincta, adeoque Entis perfectissimi existentiam, ea, quæ nostra est, evidentia non includit.

Verum, demus aliquando Cartesio ideam Entis perfectissimi, qua donatus est, claram esse, atque distinctam. Illam ne ipse ideam fatetur ex rebus creatis non esse deductam, probavimus nos ab ipso Deo non fuisse impressam. Hæc igitur idea est a Cartesio animo tantum efficta. Porro, quum duplex sit rerum genus, alterum scilicet earum quæ pendent a mente, nec extra mentem ullibi sunt, planeque sunt commentitiæ, alterum vero earum, quæ re ipsa sunt, atque nemine eas de iis cogitante, in rerum natura existunt; si a mente duntaxat Cartecianorum pendet idea Entis perfectissimi, ab eorum cum mente pendebit existentia Entis perfectissimi adeo ut in illa eorum mente Dei existentia contineatur. Quod ut clarius innotescat, exemplo confirmetur. Quando clare, atque distincte percipimus montem aureum ex auro constare, quando ratione cum praedictis rationem, si nostras consulamus ideas, et in statu ideali maneamus. Verum, ubi ad statum realem et ad experientiam nos conferimus, aureum montem nihil in mente nostra existere certum est, quod vero ratio non tantum in nostro intellectu, sed re ipsa, et in statu reali existentiam includere. Hoc autem modo investigare quid Deus sit, non est, divinam naturam, ut est in se ipsa, investigare, sed tantum ut est in idea nostra, adeo ut adhuc Atheo a Cartesianis expectandum sit, ut probent Deum in se revera existere, quemadmodum in eorum idea proponitur existens. Quod si nihilominus contendant existentiam Entis perfectissimi in ipsorum idea expressam accipiendam esse pro existentia Entis perfectissimi in se ipso, eodem modo quis affirmandum erit montem aureum in se ipso, et in statu reali existere, quia clare, atque distincte intelligimus montem in mente nostra, et in statu ideali nihil ex auro constare, et aureum existere. Quare, quum hic quaestio instituatur non de ideali, sed de actuali existentia Dei, et a statu ideali ad statum actualem non teneat, ut inquiunt, illatio, idcirco fatendum est, Cartesiana argumenta non idonea probare existentiam Dei quae contra Atheos est demonstranda.

Opponunt 1. Quod in idea rei alicujus continetur affirmari de ea re potest, sed in idea Entis summe perfecti existentia continetur. Ergo etc. Probatur maj. Quod summe perfectum est necessario existit. Ergo etc.

R. dist: maj. Quod in idea rei alicujus continetur affirmari de ea re potest in statu ideali conc. in statu reali ne: maj: conc. min. et dist: conseq. et prob. eodem modo. Quum totum hoc de quo contenditur, idea tantum sit a Cartesio efficta, ex cujus natura probare conatur Deum revera existere; hinc in idea, quam sibi finxerit inditam rei infinitae, et summe perfectae, in statu tantum ideali, seu, ut Scholastici loquuntur, a parte intellectus summa perfectio continetur. Et quemadmodum in hac idea Entis summe perfecti non continetur summa perfectio in statu reali, sive, ut ajunt, a parte rei; ita in re idea infinita, et summe perfecta cujus ideam in mente habent Cartesiani, continetur utique necessaria existentia a parte intellectus, sed non a parte rei. Neque asserant Adversarii Ens perfectissimum sine existentia intelligi non posse. Hoc enim qui ajunt, manifeste petunt principium, atque id ponunt pro concesso, quod controversum est. Demonstrandum enim est hoc Ens perfectissimum revera existere, quum haec controversia sit, an detur Ens perfectissimum. Probare autem non possunt Ens perfectissimum existere ex idea tantum entis perfectissimi, secus idem per idem probarent. Asserere non Ens perfectissimum existere, quia habent ideam Entis perfectissimi, idem prorsus esset, ac dicere: existit Ens perfectissimum. Ergo Ens perfectissimum existit.

Ceterum, si libet, hoc modo distingui eam potest superius argumentum. Quicquid in idea rei alicujus continetur in statu reali, affirmari de ea re potest in statu reali conc. Quidquid in idea rei alicujus continetur in statu tantum ideali, affirmari de ea re potest in statu reali ne: maj. dist. min. Sed in idea Entis summe perfecti, quam habent Cartesiani, existentia continetur in statu ideali conc. in statu reali ne: min., et sub allata dist.e conseq.m

At inquiunt Cartesiani, in argumentatione Cartesii non sumi ut concessam rei infinitae, et summe perfectae existentiam. Quod autem ut probent, in exemplum proponere solent hunc syllogismum. Quidquid clare et distincte cognosco in idea rei alicujus contineri, id rei illi adscribendum est; Atqui in idea Trianguli clare, et distincte cognosco tres angulos contineri. Ergo tres anguli adscribendi sunt Triangulo. Sed contra. Inter syllogismum hunc. Quidquid clare, et distincte cognosco in idea rei alicujus contineri, id rei illi adscribendum est. Atqui etc. Ergo etc. et hunc syllogismum, quem, et syllogismum superius a Cartesianis propositum latissimum intercedit discrimen. Nam in illa minore primi syllogismi, quae ita se habet. In idea Trianguli clare, et distincte cognosco tres angulos contineri id Triangulo tribuitur, sine quo Triangulus esse non potest, quodque Trianguli naturam constituit. Verum in minore 2da 2di syllogismi hoc posito ponitur. In idea rei infinitae, et summe perfectae clare, et distincte cognosco existentiam contineri. id rei infinitae, et summe perfectae tribuitur, quod cujusmodi sit, et utrum ad ejus naturam pertineat, certo non constat. Nunc non illis ipsis a Cartesianis quaeritur, utrum scilicet ad naturam rei infinitae, et summe perfectae, cujus habent ideam, pertineat existentia, et cujusmodi sit haec existentia. Quare, quum hoc sit, quod ab Adversariis quaeritur, manifestum est eos pro concesso sumere, quod adhuc quaeritur, et tanquam certum supponere, quod in dubium vertitur.

Opponunt 2do. Argumentum Cartesii. Quidquid clare, et distincte cognosco et revera est demonstrationum, sine dubio, quod ad illius conclusionem assumitur, evidens est, et infallibile. Atqui medium, quod assumitur, evidens est et infallibile. Ergo etc. Maj. certa est, quum nihil evidentia, et infallibilitas requiratur ad demonstrationem alicujus conclusionis. Pro. min. Medium, quod ad conclusionem Cartesiani argumenti assumitur, est notitia, seu intellectualis visio Entis existentis conjuncta cum notitia, seu visione pariter intellectuali Entis summe perfecti. Sed hujusmodi notitiae, seu visiones, eo ipso quod sunt mere intellectuales, evidentes sunt, et infallibiles. Ergo medium etc. Pro. min. quia notitiae mere intellectuales, neque ab aliquo corporeo sensu, neque ab ullo imaginationis conatu originem ducunt, adeo ut nec decipere nos ullo modo possint. Hinc D. Augustinus Lib. 12 de Genesi ad literam, Cap. 14 et 6 corporales visiones, et 6 imagines corporalium, quae demonstrantur in spiritu, et boni instruunt, et mali fallunt; intellectualis autem visio non fallit. Aut enim non intelligit, qui aliud opinatur quam est; aut, si intelligit, continuo verum est. Et Epistola 222 "At vero in illis intellectualibus visis non fallitur (anima). Aut enim intelligit, et verum est, aut verum non est, et non intelligit.

R. conc. maj. neg. min. ad prob. conc. maj. neg. min. et conseq. Licet notitiae, seu visiones mere intellectuales quae scilicet nullo modo a sensibus dependerent, aliquo modo dici possent evidentes, quia se se offerrent evidenter apprehendendas; nihilominus velluti infallibiles habendae non essent in ipsa Cartesianorum sententia. Ratio autem est, quia a si de aliqua re mere intellectualem notitiam haberemus, inferri ad summum posset rei ideam evidentem, atque infallibiliter in mero nostro intellectu existere, non extra mentem nostram infallibilem existentiam habere. Caeterum argumentum hoc ex visione mere intellectuali desumptum nullius roboris est contra nos, qui nullas in mente humana corpori unita cognitiones, seu visiones admittimus mere intellectuales. Dicimus enim nullas esse menti nostrae inditas a Deo ideas, nullasque propterea esse in nobis notitias mere intellectuales, quae infallibiles sint, propterea quod neque falli, neque fallere potest Deus.

Ad auctoritatem D. Augustini fatemur, si quae essent notiones a Deo mentibus nostris inditae, illas a mente nostra vere apprehendi; fatemur etiam, quod quamvis primae illae apprehensiones verae essent, falsa quoque non essent lata de illis judicia. Id verum non propterea ex D. Augustino probabunt Cartesiani allatum ab ipsis argumentum esse demonstrativum. Contra Atheos, qui entis summe perfecti existentiam negant, probare imprimis debent se hoc ens summe perfectum vere intelligere, et hujusmodi notitiam animis a Deo fuisse inditam. Hoc autem ab ipsa indita idea probare non possunt, secus ut diximus, idem per idem probarent. Hinc D. Augustinus, qui Confessionum Lib. 7. fatebatur. Facilius dubitare vivere me, quam non esse veritatem, protinus adoedat, quae ea, quae facta sunt, intellecta conspiciuntur, ut intelligeremus apprehensionem primae veritatis ex rebus creatis sedulo esse explorandam. Manifestum est igitur non sufficere Cartesianis, ad demonstrandam existentiam Dei, veram esse ideam Dei, et existentis Dei, sed ut eorum argumentum vere demonstrativum sit ulterius requiri, ut veritas suarum idearum aliunde, quam ab ipsis ideis demonstretur.

Opponunt 3tio comparationem ex Triangulo sumptam, et hoc modo a Cartesio institutam. Attendenti fit manifestum, non magis posse existentiam ab essentia Dei separari, quam ab essentia Trianguli magnitudinem trium ejus angulorum aequalium duobus rectis, sive ab idea montis ideam vallis. Adeo ut non magis repugnet Deum cogitare, hoc est ens summe perfectum, cui desit existentia, hoc est, cui desit aliqua perfectio, quam cogitare montem cui desit vallis.

R. et primo cum Viro Cl. Petro Gassendo animadvertendum existimo non satis justam esse comparationem a Cartesio institutam. Nam, ut recta esset comparatio, comparare debuisset existentiam entis summe perfecti cum existentia Trianguli, aut proprietatem entis summe perfecti cum proprietate Trianguli, quemadmodum entis summe perfecti essentiam cum essentia Trianguli comparavit. Dicendum erat, non posse magis separari ab essentia Dei omnipotentiam, quam ab essentia Trianguli magnitudinem trium ejus angulorum duobus rectis aequalium, vel certe, non posse magis separari Dei existentiam ab ejus essentia, quam ab essentia Trianguli ejus existentiam. Hoc modo recte fuisset instituta comparatio, quamvis non propterea probasset, Deum; seu ens summe perfectum necessario existere. Quemadmodum enim licet existentia Trianguli separari re ipsa ab ejus essentia non possit, non tamen necessario est Triangulum, ita ex hac comparatione inferendum esset ens summe perfectum necessario non existere, quamvis illius essentia, et existentia separari nullatenus possint. Deinde, vel Cartesius enumerare non debuisset existentiam inter divinas perfectiones, vel inter perfectiones Trianguli, et montis collocare debuit existentiam, quando utrobique videatur perfectio. Videtur, inquam, perfectio. Nam revera perfectio non est, sed illud, sine quo res nec perfecta esset, nec imperfecta. Siquidem res illa quae non existit, neque perfectiones, neque imperfectiones habet. Et quod existit, pluresque perfectiones habet, non continet existentiam ut singulares perfectiones, et ex earum numero unam, sed eam tantum continet, veluti illud, quo tam id quod existit, quam illius perfectiones existentes sunt, et sine quo neque illud, quod existit, habere perfectiones, neque in eo, quod existit, perfectiones contineri dicuntur. Hinc neque existentia, perfectionum instar, in re dicitur existere, neque, si res careat existentia, carere dicitur perfectione existentiae, sed affirmatur duntaxat rem ipsam non existere. Quare, quemadmodum Cartesius enumerando perfectiones Trianguli non recenset existentiam, neque proinde concludit Triangulum existere, ita enumerando perfectiones Dei non debuit inter illas ponere existentiam, ut concluderet Deum existere, nisi principium petere vellet.

Sed concedamus Cartesio existentiam Dei tam esse illius perfectionem, quam sit Dei perfectio omnipotentia, et perfectio Trianguli aequalitas trium ejus angulorum duobus rectis. Non propterea consequitur ex notione entis summe perfecti demonstrari illius existentiam. Ait enim Vir Cl., quod quemadmodum cogitando Triangulum, non est necesse cogitare quod tres angulos habeat pares duobus rectis, licet id minus verum non sit, ut attendenti postea patet, ita posse quidem cogitari alias Dei perfectiones, non cogitata existentia, sed illam propterea non esse minus veram, quam attendenti perfectionem esse. Porro ex hisce Cartesii verbis haec contra ipsum inferri possunt quod quemadmodum aequalitas trium angulorum duobus rectis, licet perfectio Trianguli sit, non tamen concepto, aut viso Triangulo, statim cognoscitur, sed postea demonstratione probatur; ita licet existentia in Deo revera sit Dei proprietas, atque perfectio, non propterea concepto Deo, aut ente summe perfecto, ejusdem existentia cognoscatur, sed alia demonstratione a sensibus ducta sit inferenda. Comparatio igitur ex Triangulo desumpta non probat actualem existentiam tiae entis perfectissimi ex sola entis perfectissimi idea.

Corollarium.

Ex hactenus dictis patet, quomodo respondendum sit Cartesianis asserentibus ideam entis summe perfecti esse evidentem, et indubitabilem, quia ens summe perfectum sit ens summe intelligibile, et ratione contineat omnium evidentissimam intelligibilitatem. Nos non minime impugnamus veram esse ideam entis summe perfecti, quin et veram esse ideam entis necessario existentis comprehensam in idea entis summe perfecti; sed negamus argumentum desumptum a summa perfectione Dei esse demonstrativum, quia ad demonstrandam Dei existentiam probanda prius sit veritas hujusmodi idearum.

Nunc praecipuum argumentum ex rebus creatis contingentibus proponendum est, in quo continentur celebriores demonstrationes ad Atheos convincendos a Philosophis excogitatae. Sit autem Propositio 2da. Argumentum desumptum ex contingentia, et productione Creaturarum demonstrat existentiam Dei.

Pro. propositio conficiendo argumentum in hunc modum. Existunt in hoc mundo multa contingentia, et producta. Ergo existit ens necessarium, et improductum; sed ens necessarium, et improductum est Deus: Existit ergo Deus. Primum ant. immediata evidentia certum est. Consequentia probatur. Ens contingens indifferens est ad existendum, vel non existendum. Ergo ut existat ab alio debet determinari. Sed non ab alio aeque indifferenti, et contingenti. Quod enim contingens, et indifferens est ipsum quoque determinari indiget. Ergo ab aliquo ente non indeterminato, et necessario. Similiter omne productum ab alio productum est. Nam, ut ait autor Libri de triplici habitaculo in opera S. Augustini; Nihil se ipsum creat. Qui enim potentia qui omnino non erat se ipsum crearet? Neque productum ab alio quoque producto affirmari potest productum, quia eadem quaestio initium semper nouet; adeo ut, etiamsi infinita series rerum productarum supponeretur, tota ista rerum productarum collectio producta esset. Sed non a se ipsa producta esset. Ergo ab aliquo ente necessario, et improducto.

Confirmatur. Si omnia essent contingentia, et producta, nulla sequeretur contradictio in hypothesi quod omnia non essent. Sed maxima sequeretur contradictio in hypothesi, quod omnia non essent. Ergo non omnia sunt contingentia, et producta, proindeque admittendum est aliquod ens necessarium, et improductum. Major patet quia contingens dicitur illud, quod potest non esse, unde, si omnia forent contingentia, omnia possent non esse absque ulla contradictione, cum, ut Theologi aiunt, illud possibile [est] quo posito in actu nullum sequitur inconveniens. Probatur minor. In hypothesi quod omnia non essent, omnia forent possibilia simul, et impossibilia; possibilia, quia supponuntur contingentia, impossibilia vero, quia negato ente necessario, et improducto, nulla esset causa a qua possent produci quum entia contingentia supponantur non existere; quod autem non existit causa esse non potest. Certum itaque est non posse existere entia contingentia, et producta, nisi supponatur ens necessarium, et improductum existere.

Hoc autem ens necessarium, et improductum esse Deum, demonstratur. Ens necessarium, et improductum debet esse optimum. Sed ens optimum est Deus. Ergo ens necessarium, et improductum est Deus. Major patet: Nam ens necessarium, et improductum a nullo coarctari potest ad certas tantum perfectiones. Non coarctari potest a se ipso quia sui causa non est; et quamvis causa sui esset, omnes sibi conferret perfectiones, sicut homo sibi ipsi [illegible]. Non potest coarctari ab alio, quia ens necessarium, et improductum non habet superiorem causam a qua ad certum perfectionis gradum possit determinari. Non demum ex conditione naturae suae [illegible] perfectionum limitibus subesse potest, quia potius ex propria naturae necessitate omnes excogitabiles, veras perfectiones debet continere. Omnis enim excogitabilis, et vera perfectio, vel est necessaria, et improducta, vel producibilis, et contingens. Si necessaria, et improducta, jam est proprietas entis necessarii, et improducti. Si producibilis, et contingens, jam virtute contineri debet in ente necessario, et improducto, tanquam in prima omnium producibilium, et contingentium causa.

Hinc ens necessarium praeditum esse debet consilio, et intellectu [illegible] perfectiones, et quidem omni sensibili perfectione nobiliores. Has autem perfectiones in ente necessario agnoscendas esse, mirum in modum mundi universi dispositio testatur, in quo res omnes, et singulae ad suos fines sunt ordinatae [illegible] plurima, et admiranda media [illegible]. Spectant Celestium corporum sive amplitudinem, sive constantes motus. Spectant rerum Terrenarum variètatem, tempestatum vicissitudinem, animalium, arborumque structuram, [illegible] perfectiones in quibus enarrandis, explicandisque etsi plurima ac volumina conscripta sint, semper tamen nova et mirabiliora occurrunt consideranda. Atque hic quidem rerum creatarum ordinata dispositio [illegible] intelligentiam tam apte praedicat, ut nemo sit, nisi stolidus, qui eam possit ignorare [illegible], et pulchrum opus sine perito aliquo artifice producit, quomodo mundum universum alia intelligente causa fieri possibile censebimus? Et ea, quae cognitione carent, non tendunt in finem, nisi directa ab aliquo cognoscente, et intelligente sicut sagitta non tendit in scopum, nisi directa sit a sagittante, quomodo mundanas res tanto ordine suum in finem conspirare intuebimur, quin supremam causam intelligentem agnoscamus cujus consilio et mundus productus sit, et mirabilis rerum mundanarum ordo perpetuo servetur, ac dirigatur.

Opponunt 1. Mundus, si naturalem rationem consulamus, aeternus est. Si mundus aeternus est, nullum existit secundum naturalem rationem ens necessarium. Ergo nullum existit ens necessarium. Prima certa est, quia hypothesis de aeternitate mundi chymerica non sit. Aristoteles enim, et plerique Philosophorum opinati sunt mundum esse aeternum quorum opinionem evidentis falsitatis convinci non posse naturali ratione plures docent Theologi cum S. Thoma. Pro 2ª. Si mundus æternus esset, non repugnat processus infinitus in causis conservantibus, et productis. Sed admisso huiusmodi processu, nullum existit hac ratione ens necessarium. Ergo etc. 1ª constat, quia, posita semel mundi æternitate, unum ens conservans, et productum habetur ab alio ente conservante, et producto, et hoc ab alio in infinitum, vel per rectam lineam semper ascendendo, vel per mutuam causalitatem, et quasi circulum, quatenus A producat B, B C, et C reproducat A. 2ª etiam patet, quia si unum ens conservans, et productum ab alio ente conservanti, et producto dependet, et aliud ab alio in infinitum, nunquam devenimus ad ens necessarium, et improductum, quod sit omnium conservantium causa.

Q. VI.

R. trans. maj.: neg. min. ad prob. dist. maj. Si mundus æternus esset, non repugnat processus infinitus in causis conservantibus, et productis subordinatis per se neg.: maj. In causis subordinatis per accidens subdist. Admisso ente necessario, et improducto conc.: exclusio ente necessario, et improducto neg. maj. dist. eodem modo min., et neg. conseq. Duplex solet distingui genus causarum, quæ subordinatæ appellantur, causæ scilicet subordinatæ per se, et causæ subordinatæ per accidens. Causa subordinata per se dicitur illa, quæ ita a superiori causa dependet, ut sine actuatio eius influxu nec esse, nec conservari, neque ullo modo operari possit. Sic motus 2dæ rotæ in Horologio ita a motu primæ dependet, ut, hoc cessante, etiam 2da rota quiescat, nec possit alias inferiores rotas movere. Causa subordinata per accidens dicitur illa, quæ ab alia tantum pendet quoad primam suam productionem, non autem quantum ad suam conservationem, et operationem. Sicuti in humanis se habet Filius respectu Patris. Jamvero in causis subordinatis per se processus infinitus omnino repugnat. Quum enim in istis causa proxima non operetur, nisi per actualem influxum causæ mediæ, et causa quoque media non operetur, nisi per actualem influxum superioris causæ, admisso processu infinito, actu deberent existere infinitæ causæ, quod sanior Philosophorum pars negat possibile. Deinde, si infinitus hic processus in causis per se subordinatis admitteretur, nullus omnino haberi posset effectus. Quum enim causa proxima nequeat operari, nisi moveatur a media, et causa pariter media non operetur, nisi a superiore causa moveatur, nunquam causam illam attingeremus, a qua prima esset determinatio effectus, proindeque nullus omnino haberi posset effectus. Id exemplis confirmatur. Quia conclusio non potest ostendi vera, nisi per præmissas, si præmissæ per alias præmissas deberent ostendi, et illæ per alias in infinitum, quia aliquando deveniendum esset ad priores primas, et per se notas, nunquam profecto scientiam aliquam consequeremur. Si navis moveri debet a remis, remi a nautis, nautæ a Duce navis, Dux navis ab Imperatore classis, Imperator classis ab alio, et alius ab alio in infinitum, nunquam deveniendo ad supremam jussionem Regis, nunquam moveretur navis. Ergo a pari, si una causa ab alia, cui per se subordinatur, moveri deberet, et hæc ab alia in infinitum, nullus unquam a causa proxima produceretur effectus. Verum superfluum omnino est ad exempla confugere, ut demonstretur infinitum processum repugnare in causis per se subordinatis. Ut aliqua causa per se subordinata sit, infinitus processus ne excogitari quidem potest, quum ordo in supremum exigat, medium, et infimum quæ in infinito locum habere non possunt. Certum itaque est ex causarum per se subordinatis per se inferri existentiam primæ causæ. Si enim indicavimus omne potentia ens contingens non solum a se ipsis non posse existere, verum neque semper servare, aut operationes efficere, quum deficere singulis momentis queant; necesse est quandam existere superiorem causam, a qua eorum productio, conservatio, et operatio dependeat.

Quod attinet ad causas per accidens tantum subordinatas, non desunt Philosophi gravissimi, qui in ipsis etiam possibilem judicant infinitum processum, existimantes veterum Philosophorum opinionem de mundi æternitate etiam secluta fide, evidentis falsitatis posse convinci. Horum argumenta utrum exploratissima sint, neque in præsentiarum affirmamus, neque negamus. At certe probant in generationum, causarumque infinito processu majorem obscuritatem incidendi, gravioresque difficultates offendi, quam in admittenda aliqua prima, et necessaria causa, quam Deum appellamus. Quum tamen Athei dictitent, se Deum negare, quod res obscurissima, et difficilis admodum sit Deum intelligere. Verum ut eos efficacissimo argumento convincamus, damus ultro in causis subordinatis per accidens infinitum processum non repugnare, ita tamen ut ens necessarium admittendum sit, et concesso etiam hoc infinito processu, Dei existentia evidenter demonstretur. Hoc enim modo ratiocinor. Illud omne quod mundus in præsumpta æternitate, infinitoque processu complectitur, vel factum est, et conservans, vel non. Si non factum est, neque conservans: jam ergo admittitur aliquod ens necessarium, et a se ipso existens, si vero illud omne quod est infinitum, factum tamen est, et conservans: quum nihil possit se ipsum facere, neque res conservans possit se ipsam ad existendum determinare, extra illum rerum productarum, et conservantium infinitum processum, necesse erit improductam, et per se necessariam causam admittere.

Neq. ad declinandam hujus argumenti vim dicere possunt Athei, quod singulæ quidem mundi partes factæ sint, non autem tota mundi collectio. Quum enim partes sint intrinseca causa totius, utpote quæ totum ipsum constituunt, si partes productæ fuerunt, necessum est, ut totum quoque ipsum fuerit productum. Si singulæ Templi partes factæ sunt, eo vel magis asserendum erit totum Templum fuisse factum. Quoniam vero in animum sibi induxerunt Athei, effictam mundi æternitatem, et infinitam effectuum conservantium seriem causam necessariam, et improductam eliminare, ostendendum est in hac etiam falsa ipsorum opinione ad aliquod tandem improductum ens deveniendum esse. Nam si, ut supra demonstravimus, res conservans, utpote quæ potest existere, et non existere, se ipsam ad existendum non potest determinare, sed alia determinante causa indiget, quo magis rerum conservantium numerus augetur, major concurrit necessitas primæ, et improductæ causæ, a qua producantur, atque serventur. Quemadmodum dum n., quia ferrea catena se ipsam per aerem sustinere non potest, quanto plures addemus illi annulos, tanto crescet indigentia firmioris fulcri, a quo teneatur, quia dum annulos addimus, pondus catenae non firmitatem addimus. Quemadmodum insuper, si duo sint pauperes, qui ad famem expellendam vel modico pane destituti sint, hi quidem ad vitam conservandam sibi nullatenus sufficient, sed minus sufficient, si tertius ejusdem conditionis homo illis adjungatur, et si infiniti addantur, infinita quodammodo erit panis indigentia, adeo ut infinita duntaxat alicujus divitis liberalitate ali possint. Ita quum unaquaeque res contingens neque se ipsam producere, neque se ipsam queat conservare, quanto plures colligantur, eo indigentior collectio instituetur, adeo ut, si infinitam collectionem effingamus, infinitam quoque rerum contingentium indigentiam necesse sit admittere, atque id tandem fateri, res scilicet contingentes, et productas a se ipsis existere non posse, sed tantum beneficio alterius causae, quae contingens non sit, et infinitam contineat essendi plenitudinem.

Quae dicta hactenus sunt contra infinitum contingentium causarum processum, aptari possunt contra mutuam causalitatem, et fictum causarum gyrum. Mutua n. causalitas, per quam duo contingentia se se invicem primo producant, evidenter chymerica est. Nam duo illa deberent simul existere, et non existere; existere, ut producerent, non existere ut producerentur. Gyrus autem causarum, in quo reproductio diverso tempore fiat, saltem connexus est cum existentia Entis necessarii: Quum n. singulae illae causae, in quibus reproductio fingitur, contingentes essent, et factae, ac tota proinde collectio contingens esset, et facta, extra illam collectionem necessario admitti deberet causa improducta, et necessaria.

Instabunt. Non tenet argumentum a distributivo ad collectivum. Ergo ex quo singulae mundanae res sint contingentes, et factae, inepte colligitur totum mundum esse contingentem, et factum. Ant. pro exemplis. Inepte n., ac sophisticae sunt hujusmodi argumentationes: singulae unitates non sunt numerus; ergo unitatum collectio non est numerus. Singula possibilia seorsim possunt produci; ergo et omnia simul.

R. dist. ant. Non tenet argumentum a distributivo ad collectivum aliquando in praedicatis accidentalibus conc. per se in praedicatis proprietatibus essentialibus ne: ant. et conseq. Argumentum a distributivo ad collectivum per se rectum, et efficax est, quia collectio non est aliqua res existens extra sua membra, sed nam sua nihil aliud est, quam membra simul sumpta, ideoque quod singulis individuis collectionis convenit, necesse est toti collectioni conveniat, atque e contrario, quod nulli collectionis individuo convenit, necesse est, ut toti eadem non conveniat collectioni. Sic evidenter concludunt hujusmodi argumentationes. Quilibet lapis est corporeus ergo lapidum acervus est corporeus. Nullus lapis est rationalis ergo neque acervus lapidum est rationalis. Per accidens tamen argumentum a distributivo ad collectivum quandoque efficax non est, quando scilicet praedicata accidentalia sunt, et partibus conveniunt praecise ut separatis a consortio aliarum partium. Hinc inepta sunt opposita argumenta: singulae unitates etc.: singula possibilia etc. siquidem unitas solum ut ab aliis unitatibus sejuncta, numerus non est, at ipsa unitatum collectio numerum constituit. Quod plura, et plura possibilia producantur, divina potentia non exhaurit, quae tamen penitus exhausta intelligeretur, si omnia prorsus possibilia producerentur. Verum non ita se habet propositum a nobis argumentum. Singulae mundi partes productae sunt: ergo totus productus est mundus. Ens n. contingens, et productum non ideo sibi ad existendum non sufficit, quia seorsim ab aliis tantis, et contingentibus accipitur, sed quia secundum propriam essentiam contingens est, indifferens scilicet sive ad existendum, sive ad non existendum, ideoque indiget ab alio determinari; quae quidem indigentia ex multorum collectione non tollitur, quia, quum indigenti semper quae indigens addatur, indigentia augetur, non minuitur, ut superius dictum est.

Opponunt 2do. Etiamsi aliquod Ens necessarium, et improductum existeret, non tamen sequeretur Deum existere. Ergo etc. Pro: ant. quia Ens necessarium, et improductum possunt esse Atomi, quae quum per infinitum tempus, et per immensa spatia vagatae sint, atque in novas semper, infinitasque complexiones convenerint, mirum non est, quod aliquando praeclarum Mundi opus effecerint.

R. ne ant. Argumentum illud ab Atomis desumptum adeo a veritate alienum est, tamque apertam praefert insaniam, ut, quum Democritus Concivibus suis illud suadere conaretur, illi loco objiciendi rationes, quibus errantem convincerent, Hypocrati potius Medico veluti insanientem elleboro sanandum commiserint. Neque immerito. Namque ait Aristoteles 2do Physicorum: Ridiculum est velle rem tam apertam demonstrare, Mundum scilicet fortuito non esse factum, sed certa quadam naturae lege, atque ordinatissima ratione gubernari. Et Lactantius Lib 3. divinarum institutionum Cap 17 Lubricam illam de Atomis opinionem somnium appellat, et insaniam inquiens Nemo ista, praeter unum Leucippum somniavit, a quo Democritus eruditus hereditatem stultitiae reliquit Epicuro. Sed ut errorem hunc insanorum hominum etiam argumentis confutemus, illud primo reprehendimus, quod scilicet nobilissimum attributum Entis improducti solius Entis optimi proprium ejus, minutissimis corpusculis tribuat. 2do, quod temere asserat, nec ulla ratione probari possit, unde tam varii motus Atomis impressi fuerint ut ex tam varia corpora cohaerere potuerint, quum aliunde clare, atque distincte mente concipiamus veluti inertem quandam substantiam ex qua omnia fiant, non autem talem substantiam, quae omnia vi, et arte sua possit efficere. 3tio, quia caeco casui tribuatur opus adeo praeclarum, quod peritioris artis superat intelligentiam. Nam si, quum Spheram, Horologium, aliaque permulta rite elaborata conspicimus, non dubitamus, quin opera sint rationis, Quis stupore, quum multo mirabiliora naturae opera et in nobis, et extra nos undique intueamur, num haec caeco casu, an excellenti quadam divinaque ratione facta sint haesitare? An vero, ut praeclare Balbus apud Tullium loquitur, alia quidam natura mentis et rationis expers haec efficere potuit, quae non modo, ut fierent, ratione eguerunt, sed intelligi qualia sunt, sine summa ratione non possunt? Praeterea, nihil incerto per casui, et fortunae magis oppositum est, quam aeternus ordo, et rei alicujus in eodem statu perpetua, fixaque stabilitas. Unde ergo constans caelestium corporum motus, perpetuaeque generationum series, fixae ubique naturae leges consistunt? Si ex fortuita Atomorum concur-sione nascunt omnia, cur ñ ex omnib.? Cur ñ e mari hoĩes, e terra pisces, e cœlo pecudes? Deniq. ut ait Tullius Lib. 2do de nāa Deorum, si mundum efficere potuit concursus atomorum, cur templum, cur domum, cur urbem ñ potē, quæ sunt multo minus operosa, et multo quidem faciliora? Certe ita temere de mundo effutiunt, ut mihi quidem nunquam hunc admirabilem cœli ornatum suspexisse videant.

Instabunt; rerum ordinem, et determinatos nāalium causarum effectus a necessitate nāæ ortum ducere; quod ignis v.c. nāa sua comburat, et ea, quæ gravia sunt, nāa sua deorsum cadant.

Sed contra. A necessitate nāæ falso putant Athei profectum fuisse mirabilem hunc rerum creatarum ordinem. Hujusmodi n. nāa, cujus tanta virtus ē, vel ē nāa quædam particularis, prima scilicet bonitatum radix quæ in unoquoq. corpore, seu substantia reperit, vel ē nāa universalis, mundi scilicet universi. Tam vero rerum ordo, et determinati nāalium causarum effectus a nāa particulari oriri ñ possunt, quia, quum particulares nāæ factæ, et contingentes sint, possunt quidem ēē causa proxima, ñ autem causa prima effectuum naturalium. Deinde, quum particulares nāæ cognitione destitutæ sint, ñ possunt tam ordinatos, tamq. varios effectus producere, nisi a sapientissima intelligentia dirigant. Præterquamquod, quia duplex ordo in corporeis reb. conspicit, unus nempe partium uniuscujusq. corporis ad bonum singulorum corporum, alter vero singulorum corporum ad bonum totius universi; esto primus ordo a nāis particularib. haberi possit, id tñ de 2do excogitari ñ potē. Ñ n. ad particulares causas attinet mundi universi bonum prospicere, neq. particulares nāæ, quæ sæpe int se confligentes sunt, atq. contrariæ, effectuum tanto ordine constitutorum prima causa possunt appellari. Nam hæc ipsa mutua pugna, et particularium nāarum repugnantia efficeret, ut vel in dissociationem suapte nāa abirent, vel perturbatam confusionem parerent, nisi supremi artificis intelligentia coarctarent, ut præclare disputat Boetius Lib. 3. de consolatione Philosophiæ, Prosa 12 inquiens. Mundus hic ex tam diversis, contrariisq. partib. in unam formam minime convenisset, nisi unus esset, qui tam diversa conjungeret. Conjuncta vero nāarum ipsa diversitas invicem discors dissociaret, nisi esset unus, qui quod nexuit contineret. Ñ tam vero certus nāæ ordo procederet, nec tam dispositos motus explicaret, nisi unus esset, qui has mutaōnum varietates manens ipse disponeret. Hoc, quidquid ē, quo condita manent, atq. agitant, usitato cunctis vocabulo, Deum nomino. Quod si ad Dei notitiam eliminandam, infitiandamq. nāæ cujusdam universalis larvam Athei velint inducere, ad lubricam vocis ambagem solvendam hæc una sufficiet interrogaō. Nāa illa universalis, a qua omnia dicunt profecta, vel facta ē, et mente caret, vel improducta ē, et mente prædita? Si mente destituta, et facta ē; ergo nec illam optimæ mentis conditor agnoscendus ē, a quo creata fuerit, et gubernet. Si vero improducta ē, et mente pollet? Ñ intelligis, ait Seneca Lib. 4. de beneficiis, Cap. 7. te mutare nomen Deo? Quid n. ē aliud talis nāa, quam Deus? Quum igit, concludit ex eodem Seneca Lactantius Lib. 2 divinarum institutionum, Cap. 8 quum ipsi ortum rerum tribuit nāæ, ac detrahit Deo in eodem luto hæsitans versuram solvit. A quo n. fieri mundum negat, ab eodem plane fieri, mutato nomine, confitetur.

Opponunt 3tio. Nāa universalis, quæ improducta sit, et mente prædita, Deus ñ ē. Ergo etc. Pro ant: quia ut antiqui quidam Philosophi opinati sunt, nāa hæc vel ē Anima mundi, vel ipsa universi māa, ac substantia, ut contendit Spinoza, qui unam tantum docet existere substantiam, quæ Deus, et māa ē, cujus modificaōnes sunt extensio, et cogitaō, quæq. nāali necessitate omnib. illis mutaōnib. ē obnoxia, quæ in hoc mundo solent contingere.

R. neg. ant. Nāa prima, et universalis vel improprie tantum anima mundi appellat, quatenus Deus in genere efficientis causæ reb. creatis vitam, et motum, conservaōnem, et operaōnem largit. vel proprie dicit anima mundi, quatenus scilicet Deus forma sit mundo, secus ac māæ alligatam. Si in primo sensu id de Deo asserat, error nullus ē, quia, ut ait Apostolus, Vere in Deo ipso vivimus, movemur, et sumus. Si autem in 2do sensu, absurdus omnino error ē. Omnis n. forma quum a subo aliquid accipiat, repugnat Deum, qui optimus ē, a mundo, tanquam a proprio subo, vel minimam perfectionem emendicare; quumq. forma se habeat veluti pars, aliud proinde incompletum, raōni nāali repugnat, ut Deus in rigido sensu mundi anima nuncupet. Deinde, si Deus esset anima mundi, adeoq. forma mundi, conciperemus Deum ita mundo alligatum, ut simul cum eo esset, Deum a mundo dependere. Qui autem fieri potē, ut ens necessarium, improductum, optimum, independens ab ente contingente, et producto censeat dependens? Quod si Deus nequit ēē forma, et anima mundi, multo minus erit māa, quum hæc multo ignobilior sit et anima, et forma. Præterea nos clare, atq. distincte māam concipimus veluti quandam inertem substantiam, ex qua omnia fiant, unde secernenda ē a prima causa, et artifice, qui omnia produxit. Deniq. ñ potē dici Deus ipsum totum, seu rerum universitas. Nam, ut ait Origenes 1. contra Celsum: Deus ñ ē pars, imo neq. totum proprie, quia utrumq. dicit imperfectionem. Nam pars ē aliquid alterius, totum vero ē aliqua ex aliis coalescunt, ac proinde emendicant aliunde suam perfectionem. Confirmat. Prima causa causam habere non potē: Universitas autem rerum causam habet sive componentem, nempe res illas, ex quib. coalescit, sive efficientem. Si n. certum ē, mundanas res et multas ēē, et diversas, aliqua sane assignanda erit causa, quæ illas simul collegerit, ordinateq. disposuerit. Universitas igit rerum neq. prima causa, neq. Deus ē. Quod si adhuc pertinaciter contendant Athei universam hanc mundi machinam Deum ēē, hoc contra ipsos conf.

ciendū ē argumentū. singulæ universi partes vel sunt a se, vel ab alio. si sunt ab alio: ergo universum quoq., qd ex illis componitr, ē ens ab alio, adeoq. Deus n̄ ē. si sunt a se: singulæ ergo potius universi partes erunt Dii, quam totum, qd ex illis coalescit, universum, sicq. n̄ unus erit optimus Deus, sed multi, atq. imperfecti.

Cetera, quæ veterum Philosophorū figmento addidit Spinoza adeo turpia, et insana sunt, ut ea exposuisse, confutasse sit. Quis n̄ n̄ videat monstruosam hoīs inscitiam, qui pro impii systematis fundamento statuit unicam ēē in mundo substantiam, et plures repugnare, quum tot vīdē. substantias oculis, atq. mente intueamr sive diversorum inter se attributorū, ut sunt lapis, et lapis, corpus, et spiritus, sive ejusdem attributi, ut sunt plures homines, et plures lapides numero invicem distincti: Quis n̄ rideat delirium asserentis rem nullam in mundo de novo fieri, quum tantam rerum vicissitudinem, dum alię intereunt, oriuntur aliæ, continuo experiamr: Qd si dicat in hac rerum vicissitudine rem novam n̄ fieri, quia quæ mutantur formæ, n̄ res sunt, sed rerum modi, saltem in hoīs generaōne rem novam fieri concedat, necesse ē, quum cogitaō, quæ humano competit animo, mæ modus ēē n̄ possit. Toto siquidem cælo distant mæ extensa et spiritus cogitans. Deinde, si tanta in modis mutaō sit, novos usq. modos accipiendo, mæ, et Deus continuo mutatur, qd enti nēario repugnat. Demq., quis horrendas ferat blasphemias, qua tot sive næ infirmitates, atq. miserias, sive nostra vitia, et enormia delicta à Deo, et in Deo ēē sacrilegus ille pronunciat: Hæc profecto tam aperte falsa sunt, ut in iis refellendis supfluum omnino sit immorari. Nam, ut recte ait Aristoteles apud Stobæum sermone 4. Qui res manifestas demonstrare conantur, similes faciunt ac si soles adhibitas lucerna, vellent ostendere.

Opponunt 1mo. Deus dicitr ens optimum. Sed ens optimum repugnat. Ergo Deus repugnat. Pro: ant: 1. quia quolibet dato, melius ē conjunctum illud cum alio, quam ipsum solum. 2do, quia si daretr ens optimum, excludere deberet omne malum sibi contrarium, sicuti summus calor omne expelleret frigus. 3tio, quia ens optimum deberet ēē infinita substantia; substantia autē infinita n̄ compateretr alias extra se substantias, sicuti infinita quantitas n̄ alias extra se compateretr quantitates: 4to demum, quia ens optimum omnes includere deberet pfectiones; plures autē pfectiones invicem pugnant, cujusmodi sunt immutabilitas, et libertas, pfecta, et beata quies, ac sollicita rerum creatarum providentia.

R. conc: mm. ne: mm. ad primam prob: dist: ant. Quolibet dato, qd conjunctum sit ex duob. imperfectis, melius ē quolibet alio imperfecto seorsim sumpto conc. Quolibet dato, qd conjunctum sit ex duob., quorum unum sit pfectissimum, melius ē ipso ente pfectissimo seorsim sumpto, ne: ant: et conseqm. Quum res creatæ admodum imperfectæ, et finitæ sint; idcirco majorem in se continent pfectionem duæ creatæ res, quæ invicem sint unitæ, ac alia res creata seorsim sumpta contineat. Verum aliter se res habet in Deo, qui ens optimum dicitr. Quum n. ens optimum simplicissima unitate omnem in se contineat bonitatem, nequit ejus pfectio ex alterius consortio augeri, sicuti æterna duraō p additionem temporaneæ duraōnis augeri n̄ potē. Quare, quia Deus pfectissimus ē, conjunctum ex Deo, et Creaturis involvit quidem plura numero, sed n̄ propterea aliquid melius ē solo Deo.

Ad 2dam prob: dist: ant. si daretr ens optimum, deberet excludere omne malum sibi contrarium a semetipso conc. in aliis rebus a se disjunctis, seclusis effective, et libere conc: absolute ne: ant: et conseqm. Quamvis Deus, ut optimus nullum emittere potē, nō et emittit in Creaturis mala sive physica, sive moralia; tamen p tā, utilitate, et sapientissime, ut ex emissione mali eruat aliquid melius. Sic corruptiones rerum, aliosq. defectus physicos n̄ tantum emittit, verum eas indirecte efficit ad varietatem, vicissitudinem, et pulchritudinem Mundi: sic peccata triplex potissimum ob majus bonum emittit. Primo ad ostensionem misericordiæ suæ, dum parcit, patientiæ dum tolerat, justitiæ dum punit. 2do ad exercitium humanæ libertatis. Deus n., utpote universalis provisor, debet creatis rebus secundum earum conditionem providere; ac propterea, quemadmodum corporearum formarum sinere debet corruptiones, quia nā sua corruptibiles sunt, ita Deus debet in creatam voluntate sinere peccata, quæ, utpote ex nihilo facta, in malum labilis ē. 3tio, ut virtutum nitor in bonis fulgeat illustrius, quando inanu adversiatur. Deus n̄ exclusit mala, ait Lactantius Lib. 1. divinarum institut. Cap. 1., ut raō virtutis constare posset. Quomodo n. patientia vim suam, nomenq. retineret, si nihil esset, qd pati cogerem: Quomodo laudem mereretr devota Deo fides, nisi esset aliquis, qui a Deo vellet avertere: Nam et ideo potentiores ēē injustos pmisit, ut cogere ad malum possent, ideo plures ut virtus esset pretiosa, qd raro ē. Porro ex quo Deus mala in bonum convertat, magis ejus bonitas resplendet, quam si nulla ēē mala emitteret, ut Augustinus, aliiq. Patres frequenter docent. excellentissimæ siquidem bonitatis, potentiæ, ac sapientiæ ē, eā eas, quæ mala facta sunt, in bonum convertere, et quæ nos deformia fecimus, ea in pulchram formam redigere, et pfecta exhibere.

Ad 3tiam, ideo infinita quantitas alias extra se n̄ emitteret quantitates quia ex omnib. quantis, veluti ex partib. constituentib., constare deberet. At Deus, qui in raōne substantiæ infinitus ē, ex aliis substantiis n̄ constituitr, sed eas continet eminenti, indivisibili ac simplicissima unitate, idcirco Deus nihil de suæ substantiæ infinitate amittens potē extra se alias substantias producere.

Ad ultimam prob: omnes in Deo continentr pfectiones sed n̄ eadem raōne nam, ut supra dictum ē, aliæ sunt pfectiones simpliciter simplices quæ nullam in suo conceptu involvunt imperfectionem, atq. istæ formaliter in Deo existunt; aliæ vero sunt pfectiones simpliciter tantum secundum quid, quæ scilicet alicui imperfectioni admixtæ sunt, et istæ in Deo continentr eminenti tantum raōne omni semper detersa imperfectione, et contrarietate, quas involvunt dum in rebus creatis, et imperfectis existunt. Hinc nulla est in Deo perfectionum repugnantia. Atque, ut ad opposita exempla veniamus; solicita rerum providentia cum animi tranquillitate consistere nequit in causa creata, et imperfecta quae absque studio, et labore non potest res prospicere. Verum Deus, qui infinitae virtutis, et sapientiae est, sicuti absque ullo labore rerum omnium habet cognitionem, ita absque ulla difficultate cunctis rebus providet, sibique simul ad perfectam, quietamque sufficit beatitudinem. Si non ipse inter homines cernere animadvertimus ea, quae levati, et inerti sed non afferunt, viro sapienti, et ingenioso sunt voluptati, a eo vel magis de Deo asserendum est, cui omnes conveniunt excogitabiles perfectiones. Perfectio autem libertatis non in eo consistit, ut quis semel conceptam voluntatem possit mutare. Haec non creatae potius voluntatis imperfectio est quae ab imperfecta mentis cognitione ducit originem; sed libertatis perfectio in eo posita est, ut cum determinatione ad unum libera sit potestas faciendi opposita, quae certe libertas soli Deo convenit. Ita non Deus in indivisibili, et semper praesenti aeternitate quoad res producendas voluit potuit nolle, non per aliquam mutationem in ipso Deo, sed per solam indifferentiam ad diversa objecta, seu effectus creatos. Ideirco in se sive ut scholastici loquuntur, ab intra, quidquid in Deo est necessarium est, et immutabile, ab extra vero, sive relate ad Creaturas, Deus liber dicitur, cunctaque in se immutatus mutabilia variat, atque disponit.

Opponunt 5. Capi nequit, quomodo Deus qui aeternus est, mortalem fecerit mundum et solum post infinita saecula quietis se se dederit operi. Deinde, si Deus mundum condidit, vel illum condidit propter se vel propter homines? Non propter se, alioquin ante mundum voluptate aliqua caruisset, et latuisset in tenebris. Non propter homines tum quia plurima in mundo sunt, quae hominum incolumitati adversantur ut terrae sterilitas, belluarum immanitas, aeris intemperies tum quia hominis conditio caeterorum animantium conditione multo deterior videtur ut testatur capitis infantium humani corporis nuditas, et imbecillitas, vestium, alimentorum domorumque necessitas. Vel si hominum causa conditus est mundus, vel propter sapientes factus est, vel propter stultos. Non propter sapientes, quia paucissimorum causa non est tantus rerum apparatus; non propter stultos, quia ii potius deberent tanto beneficio privari. Accedit, quod si omnes mundanas res Dei sapientia gubernaret, nihil usquam fortunae, et casui adscribendum foret, et nihil in mundo inordinatum, et monstruosum cerneret. Quum tamen aliter se res habere, experientia nos quotidie edoceat.

R. Deus aeternus in tempore condidit mundum, vel quia Creaturae aeternitas repugnat, vel quia, quum Deus non necessitate sed libera voluntate extra se operetur, eidem placuit mundum temporaneum condere. Neque inde sequitur, otiosam in aeternitate fuisse virtutem Dei. Quamvis enim externus mundi effectus in tempore caeperit, voluntas tamen, qua conditus fuit, aeterna est. Creavit autem mundum Deus tum propter semetipsum, non quidem ut melior fieret (hoc enim fine causa duntaxat imperfecta operatur, non Deus, qui omnem in se solo perfectionem, et beatitudinem continet) sed ut suam extra se diffunderet bonitatem; tum propter homines, quorum potestati, et commodo corporea omnia subjecit, praesertim vero propter sapientes, quorum nomine non, superbia inflati Philosophi, sed probi, justique viri designantur. Neque tanto beneficio privantur impii, imo quandoque terrenis bonis copiosius ditantur, vel ut beneficiis allecti ad Conditoris erigant amorem, vel ut, si ingrato persistant animo, bona in hac vita recipientes, gravioribus poenis in altera juste corripiantur. Non enim terrena felicitas debitum est virtuti praemium, aut transitoria adversitas statutum est peccati supplicium. Parum autem refert, quod multa in hoc mundo sint, quae hominum incolumitati adversantur, aut quod in multis deterior videatur hominum, quam pecudum conditio. Quae enim homini noxia videntur poena sunt peccati primi Parentis, cui solum post transgressionem dictum est a Domino: Maledicta terra in opere tuo, in laboribus comedes ex ea: Spinas, et tribulos germinabit tibi. Deinde, seclusa etiam labe originalis noxae, novimus ita providentissime ordinari potuisse, quia hujusmodi calamitatibus vel corripimur, ne cum hoc mundo damnemur, vel probamur, ut patientiae reportemus coronam, vel admonemur, ne vitam istam calamitatibus obnoxiam, sed aliam, quae felicissima est, diligamus, et pietatis operibus comparemus. Ita rectis corde, et diligentibus Deum omnia cooperantur in bonum, ut ait Apostolus ad Romanos 8. Hinc multo potior est hominum, quam pecudum conditio. Ut enim inquit Lactantius in Lib. de opificio Dei: Unumquodque animal vel a conditione naturae vel a ratione instrui debet. Brutis, quum ratione careant, naturalia praesidia largius concessit Deus hominibus vero rationem dedit, qua non modo necessaria, sed meliora, ac commodiora sibi compararent, adeo propterea ut nemo, si sibi daretur optio, eligeret potius brutorum feritatem sine ratione, quam hominis sapientiam cum corporis imbecillitate.

Ad ea, quae ultimo loco opposita sunt; si causae primae ordinem spectemus, nihil revera casui, aut fortunae tribuendum est, quum omnia, quae in mundo contingunt, a divina sapientia et optime praevisa, et optime fuerint disposita. Verum respectu nostri, et spectato ordine quarundam particularium causarum, quaedam videntur casu tantum, et fortuito evenire, quia praeter expectationem nostram, et particularem causae 2dae ordinem solent cernere. Id confirmari potest exemplo ex Angelico Doctore desumpto. Quemadmodum enim, si Dominus diversas peregrinationes duobus servis ita seorsim demandet, atque ita eorum viam dirigat, ut aliquando nescientes sibi invicem occurrant; occursus hic respectu duorum famulorum inopinatus quidem est, et fortuitus, respectu tamen Domini praevisus, et recte dispositus,

Ita licet aliquando multa fortuito contingere videantur, respectu quidem nostri fortuita sunt, sed relate ad causam primam neque fortuita, neque inordinata sunt appellanda. Spectato paritur fine, quem in rerum gubernatione divina sibi statuit providentia, nihil in hoc mundo aut superfluum est, aut inordinatum aut monstruosum. Verum quia nos imbecilles, et obtusae mentis acie nati sumus, occultiores divinae providentiae fines prospicere non possumus. Ideirco plura in hoc mundo superflua aut etiam noxia, et inordinata videre quae tamen, si recta, prudentique ratione uti velimus nunquam audebimus condemnare. Siculi enim qui ex pluribus operibus affabre elaboratis alicujus Artificis fictiam optime conditam haberet in qua ad in qua officina instrumenta videat, quorum rationem ignorat, aut opus aliquod intueatur rudius adumbratum, non statim illa tanquam superflua, hoc tanquam deforme vituperat, sed, si prudens sit, et illa Artifici utilia, et hoc suo fini accommodatum esse non dubitat. Ita et nos qui ex tot tamque miris Dei operibus sapientissimam, et infinitam ejus providentiam clarissime dignoscamus, si aliqua identidem in mundi gubernatione nostro captui impervia occurrant, non insipientium more illa condemnabimus sed certa nobis erit persuasio, illa eadem, quae nobis inutilia, aut deformia videntur, respectu Dei omnia apta, omnia pulchra, omnia ordinatissima ratione esse disposita. Exemplum desumptum est ex D. Augustino Lib. 1 de Genesi contra Manichaeos

Caput 3tium

De Unitate Dei.

Demonstrata Dei existentia contra pervicaces Atheos, divina attributa perpendenda sunt, quae quidem licet numero sint infinita, et humanum superent intellectum, ea tamen, quae cum existentia creaturarum necessariam connexionem habent, difficile non erit investigare. Quoniam vero inter divina attributa praecipuum locum unitas obtinet, de hac inprimis agendum est. Superius diximus vel ipsos Ethnicos unum tantum cognovisse summum Deum; quae quidem non eo dicta sunt, quo existimemus nullos fuisse in Idololatriae tenebris versatos, sed ut pro certo haberent Gentiles et unum simul Deum cognovisse, et pluribus simul Diis divinos honores contulisse; certum namque est Idola, Bruta, et plura etiam insensibilia pro Diis fuisse habita, licet sapientes viros plures admisisse Deos credendum minime sit, quum templa erigi, ac sacrificia Idolis fieri eo tantum fine permiserint, ut Deorum metu vulgares homines coercerent. Quare sit Propositio unica. Rationi naturali repugnat plures Deos admittere.

Probatur 1. Propositio ex ipsa notione Dei, ut monet Tertullianus Lib. 1 contra Marcionem inquiens Deum ut unum esse deberet, quaere quid sit Deus. Nos autem quum Deum intelligimus, ens a se, adeoque summum, optimum, et infinitum mente concipimus. Porro, si Deus summus est, parem habere non potest, quia si aequalem haberet, hoc ipso summus esse desineret. Et si Deus optimus, et infinitus est, non potest dividi in plures Deos, quia ex pluribus Diis unus non contineret perfectionem alterius, sed ad summum perfectionem similem perfectioni alterius, adeo ut neuter ex illis dici posset ens optimum, adeoque Deus. Praeterea, si plures essent Dii, aliquid assignari deberet, in quo a se invicem differrent, atque id, in quo differrent, aliqua esse deberet perfectio, et quidem infinita, quum in ente optimo, et infinito neque minima fingi possit imperfectio, neque aliquid finitum. Si vero, si plures hujusmodi Dii infinita perfectione ad invicem differant, neuter ex illis erit optimus. Nam quilibet ex illis totidem careret infinitis perfectionibus, quot sunt numero alii Dii. Merito propterea Athanasius contra Gentiles inquit: Deos multos admittere idem est, quod nullum agnoscere. Et Tertullianus Lib. 1 contra Marcionem: Deus, si non unus est, non est.

Probatur 2do Propositio ex unitate, et optimo regimine universi. Quaecumque enim existunt, etsi diversissima, ordinem quendam habent inter se, cujus ordinis ratione unicum Mundum constituunt. Ergo, quemadmodum unus est Mundus, unus pariter esse debet mundi conditor, et gubernator Deus. Siquidem multa et diversa in unum ordinem non ab alio melius redigi possunt, quam ab uno, quum unum per se sit causa unius et multa non sint causa unius, nisi per accidens, quatenus scilicet aliquo modo unum constituunt. Hinc ut ait Athanasius Oratione contra Gentes Nec navis a multis gubernata recto cursu ferri potest, nisi quis clavum unus gubernator tenuerit, nec lyra a multis pulsata perfectum concentum efficiet, nisi Musicus unus eam pulsaverit. Idem pluribus exemplis confirmat Lactantius Lib. 1 de ira Dei inquiens Non possunt in hoc Mundo multi esse Rectores. Nam nec in una Domo multi Domini, nec in navi una multi Gubernatores, neque in armento, et grege Duces multi, nec in uno examine multi Reges, sed ne in Caelo quidem multi Soles esse potuerunt, sicut nec animae plures in uno corpore, adeo in unitate natura universa consistit.

Probatur 3tio. Si plures essent Dii, vel omnes uni summo Deo subjicerentur, vel pares essent inter se potestate praediti. Si primum asseras, nisi divina res est ut Dei nomen illi tribuatur; qui alteri subditus est. Cogitant omnes, inquit D. Augustinus Lib. 1. de Doctrina Christiana, Cap. 7, pro excellentia Dei certatim dimicant, nec quisquam inveniri potest, qui hoc Deum credat esse, quo melius aliquid sit. Quod si plures Dii nullum supremum Deum agnoscentes pari potestate singuli suum exerceant dominium, aliqua saltem inter ipsos oriretur opinionum discordia, proindeque mundanae res in turbatam confusionem abirent. Oriretur, inquam, aliquando opinionum discordia, quia in Creaturarum productione, mundique administratione tum diversi fines prudenter possunt constitui, tum ad eos fines consequendos diversa media prudenter possunt eligi. Quis autem Diis illis propria essent singuli libertate praediti, quis eos impediret, ne in diversas abirent sententias, aliosque sibi aut fines constituerent, aut alia media seligerent? At denuo nullas actu esse inter ipsos dissensiones. Nemo profecto negabit eas saltem esse posse, quum singuli propria gauderent libertate. Si autem fieri potest, ut plures hujusmodi Dii sint invicem discordes; vel tunc posset unus alterius dispositioni resistere: vel non posset? Si posset: Imbecillis igitur esset Deus ille, cujus voluntas et dispositio everteretur: si non posset? Imbecillis ergo esset Deus iste, qui nequit alterius potestati resistere. Ergo neuter esset Omnipotens, proindeque neuter esset Deus. Rursus si plures essent Dii, id sequeretur, quod maxime absurdum est; quodque nunquam ausi sunt Polythei asserere. Divina nempe progenies in infinitum abire deberet, quia si divina natura in unitate non sistit, sed in multos fecunda dividitur, quum infinita sit, nullus unquam esset ejus diffusionis, ac propagationis finis. Quare Octavius apud Minutium Felicem lepide Gentiles irridet inquiens: Cur, si nati sunt Dii, non hodie nascuntur? Nisi forte Jupiter senuit, et partus in Junone defecit, et Minerva canuit, antequam peperit... Ceterum si Dii creari possent, et interire non possent, plures totis hominibus Deos haberemus, ut jam eos nec Caelum contineret, nec aer caperet, nec terra sustineret. . . . .

Pro ultimo communi hominum, adeoque naturae ipsius judicio. Unum enim esse Deum summae apud Gentiles authoritatis Sybillae tradiderunt, unum probarunt Philosophi, qui eo nomine fuerunt digni, scilicet Trismegistus, Plato, Aristoteles, Cicero, Seneca, et alii; licet, ne populares invidias in se concitarent, communem errorem disertis verbis condemnare ausi non fuerint. Unum denique Gentilium ipse vulgus, quamvis falso Deorum cultui addictus, ex errore quandoque resipiscens fatebatur. In repentinis nempe casibus, ubi praejudicium animus non attendit, totusque ad se ipsum rediens naturae vocem audit, unum Deum solebant invocare, ut testatur Tertullianus Libro de Testimonio Animae inquiens: Consiste in medio Anima. Sed non eam te advoco, quae scholis formata, Bibliothecis exercitata, Academiis, et Porticibus Atticis pasta sapientiam ructas. Te simplicem et rudem, et impolitam, et idioticam compello, qualem habent, qui te solam habent, illam ipsam de compito, de trivio totam. Imperitia tua mihi opus est ... Deum naturae Dei nec te latet: Deus bonus est, Deus benefacit, tua vox est. Et in Apologetici Cap. 17: Haec est summa delicti nolentium recognoscere quem ignorare non possunt. .. Vultis ex Animae ipsius testimonio comprobemus? Quae licet carcere corporis pressa, licet institutionibus pravis circumscripta, licet libidinibus et concupiscentiis evigorata, licet falsis Diis exancillata, cum tamen resipiscit, ut ex crapula, ut ex somno, ut ex aliqua valetudine, Deum nominat hoc solo nomine, quia proprio Dei veri. Deus magnus: Deus bonus. Et quod Deus dederit omnium vox est... O testimonium Animae naturaliter Christianae. Hactenus Tertullianus. Jamvero ex hoc communi hominum, adeoque naturae ipsius judicio Dei unitas invicte demonstratur, quia, ut praeclare ait Gulielmus Parisiensis in Libro de Virtutibus Cap. 2: Quod natura universaliter, et naturaliter confitetur necesse est verum esse. Naturam enim naturaliter, et universaliter mentiri impossibile est.

Opponunt 1. Si repugnat plures Deos admittere, propterea quia singuli non essent optimi; sed non repugnat plures esse optimos Deos. Ergo etc. Pro Minori: si plures essent Dii, singuli haberent omnes perfectiones simpliciter simplices; Hoc posito, non repugnat etc. Ergo etc. Minor probatur, quia ita fingi possunt plures Dii, ut singuli habeant sapientiam, bonitatem, potentiam, ceterasque perfectiones, quae ab omni imperfectione sunt immunes, nec alteri perfectioni opponuntur, ita ut per individuales tantum perfectiones inter se differant, quae certe perfectiones, quum ad invicem repugnent, simpliciter simplices dici non possunt. Minor probatur, quia ad rationem Entis optimi sufficit habere omnes illas perfectiones, quae simpliciter simplices appellantur.

R. conc. Maj.: neg. Min. ad prob. neg. Min. Etiamsi concederemus perfectiones simpliciter simplices Ens optimum constituere, eo tamen deveniendum semper foret, ut, pluribus admissis Diis, fatendum esset nullum ex iis esse optimum. Si enim Deorum turbam inducimus, qui fieri potest, ut in singulis Diis omnes hujusmodi perfectiones contineantur? Nonne simpliciter simplex est illa perfectio, qua Ens aliquod ita a ceteris quibuscumque sublimius distinguitur, ut extra ipsum melior, aut perfectior natura excogitari non possit? Haec tamen perfectio si plures essent Dii, singulis deficeret Diis. Semper enim suspicari possemus naturam aliquam existere tanta essendi plenitudine praeditam, ut extra illam nihil omnino esset, quod suam ab illa non duceret originem. Deinde, si plures essent Dii, natura in illis divina careret unitate exclusiva. Unitas autem exclusiva, fatentibus omnibus, est perfectio simpliciter simplex. Nam, ut ait Lactantius Lib. 1. Institutionum, Cap. 3 Melius est non habere parem, quam habere: Melius super omnes esse, quam consortem pati: Melius in alium dominari, quam cum alio. Melius denique nihil eximi a suo imperio, quam eximi aliquid, et hoc summum. Quae igitur erit in singulis Diis summa perfectio? Cur singuli dicendi erunt optimi, si tanta, et ita simpliciter simplici perfectione sunt destituti? Verum, quod impossibile est, concedamus Polytheis, Adhuc tamen probandum erit, quomodo singulae in singulis Diis simpliciter simplices perfectiones habeantur. Nam, si plures essent Dii, et distincti Dii, unus ex iis non haberet omnes perfectiones simpliciter simplices, quas cont-neret alter, sed tantum perfectiones similes perfectionibus alterius, neuter propterea omnes perfectiones simpliciter simplices haberet. Ex his patet, quomodo Deorum multitudo repugnet in ea eadem hypothesi, quod perfectiones simpliciter simplices sufficiant ad ens optimum constituendum.

Negamus modo ens optimum finitis adeo limitibus contineri. Nam, ut alibi dictum est, ad rationem entis perfectissimi, adeoque optimi spectat, ut omnes omnino in se contineat perfectiones tam simpliciter simplices, quam simplices duntaxat, seu secundum quid, quanquam illas formaliter, istas vero eminenter. Tum vero, si plures essent Dii, fieri non posset, quomodo ex illis unus individualem contineret perfectionem alterius. Nam si eam contineret formaliter; non ergo plures, sed unus tantummodo erit Deus: si vero eam contineat eminenter, unus ergo ex illis Diis sublimior erit, atque perfectior quia ut dici possit rem aliquam eminenter continere perfectionem alterius, oportet hujusmodi rem esse nobiliorem, atque perfectiorem, adeo ut ratione hujusce nobilitatis, et majoris perfectionis rem alteram possit efficere. Sed nullus esse posset inter plures Deos ceteris perfectior, quique reliquos Deos posset producere; secus ille tantum verus esset Deus, ceteri vero, secus ac aliae creatae res, essent habendi. Nullus ergo in pluralitate Deorum summe perfectus esset Deus; proindeque nullus omnino foret vere, et proprie Deus.

Instabunt. Secundum Christianorum fidem plures sunt divinae Personae, et tamen singulae sunt optimae. Ergo plures etiam esse possunt Dii, et singuli optimi. Consequentia probatur. Ideo singulae divinae Personae sunt optimae; Pater e.g. est perfectissimus, et optimus Pater, quamvis non habeat perfectionem filiationis, quia haec cum Paternitate componi non potest, sed etiam individuales perfectiones, quibus plures constituerentur Dii, non possent invicem componi. Ergo etc.

R. ne ant. ad prob. ne: maj, et assero disparitatem. Singulae namque Personae Divinae optimae sunt, ac perfectissimae ratione perfectissimae divinae naturae, quae in singulis Personis una, et eadem est, non ratione personalium proprietatum, quibus ab invicem differunt, et quibus plures divinae Personae constituuntur. Nam personales hujusmodi proprietates sunt meri quidam respectus, qui licet in re sint perfectissimi ob identitatem cum eadem perfectissima divina natura, ab ea tamen si praescindantur, a perfectione, et imperfectione praescindunt, ut plures, gravesque Theologi arbitrantur. Quod si aliqua relativa perfectio illis concedenda videtur, ea non est simpliciter summa, eidem propterea distinctio, et numerus non repugnat. Si Paternitas v.g. a divinitate praecisa aliquam importat perfectionem, eam importat solummodo in ratione optimi Patris, unde excludit tantum plures a Divinitate Patres, sed non excludit, imo aliam in Deo infert Personam, quae Filius optimus, adeoque unicus sit. Praeterea, licet una ex divinis Personis relativam perfectionem alterius formaliter non contineat, eam tamen identice, et virtualiter continet in natura divina, a qua omnes profluunt relationes, quaeque in singulis divinis Personis tota reperitur; propterea singulae divinae Personae optimae sunt. Aliter autem se res haberet, si plures admitterentur Dii. Natura siquidem divina in multis Diis divisa foret, et multiplicata, ideoque unus ex illis nec formaliter, nec identice, seu eminenter individuales aliorum perfectiones haberet. Tantum ergo abest, ut ex notione entis optimi inferri possit, Deorum multitudinem non repugnare, ut hac potissimum de causa statuendum sit vel nullum esse ens optimum, adeoque vere et proprie Deum, vel non plures, sed unum tantum esse Deum.

Opponunt 2do. Plures in Mundo creaturae conspiciuntur. Ergo plures admittendi sunt Dii. Probatur consequentia. Plures, et inter se contrarii effectus nonnisi a pluribus, et contrariis causis produci possunt. Sed plures sunt etc. Ergo etc.

R. conc. ant. ne. consequentiam ad prob. dist. maj. Plures, et inter se contrarii effectus nonnisi a pluribus, et contrariis causis produci possunt, si sermo sit de causis particularibus conc. si de prima, et universali causa ne maj, et distincta eadem propositione min. ne. conseq. Quamvis multae partesque diversae sint ex quibus, veluti ex suis partibus, Mundus universus componitur, quum tamen rerum ipsa diversitas in unum eundemque pulcherrimum ordinem conspiret, recta ratio docet omnia ad unum referenda esse principium, quemadmodum disputat superius laudatus Boetius lib. 3 de Consolatione Philosophiae, prosa 12. Id autem eo vel magis attendendum est, si humanae naturae conditionem inspexerimus. Homo enim ita a Supremo Conditore productus fuit, ut sua sibi ad vitam non sufficerent sine Elementis, sine motu et influentiis siderum. Non ergo homo, Elementa, et sidera peculiarem sibi conditorem habent, sed qui author est hominis, dominus est etiam aeris, terrae, ignis, Caelorum, siderum, aliarumque rerum, quae operi sub hominis mirifice necessariae sunt. Quemadmodum enim, licet in corpore animalis diversae sint partes diversis usibus accomodatae, tamen quia omnes, et singulae unius animalis commoditati inservire constat, non dicimus aliud esse animal capitis, aliud pedum, sed potius unum esse totius animal colligimus, ita licet diversae sint Mundi partes, quia tamen unus est ordo, nonnisi unum intelligimus esse Mundi authorem, atque principium. Praeterea, creatae perfectiones, quum participatae, dependentes, et imperfectae sint, ideo sunt etiam diversae; verum in prima causa, seu ente necessario perfectissimo modo debent existere, adeoque in simplicissimam, et indivisibilem unitatem convenire. Nec confugiendum est ad causarum multitudinem, propterea quod in rebus creatis multa sunt inter se diversa atque contraria. Quae enim diversa, et contraria exprimuntur, licet secundum proprias, et particulares differentias invicem pugnent, semper tamen in aliquo communi, et essentiali praedicato, in hoc scilicet, quod entia sint, conveniunt, idcirco quamvis nequeant ab eadem infima, et particulari causa produci, non repugnat tamen, imo necessum est, ut ab eadem prima, ac universali causa et producta sint, et continuo dependeant. Nam si contraria omnia vere talia sunt et existunt, reduci debent in unum primum, et necessarium essendi principium. Id magis confirmatur ex consideratione effectuum a causis particularibus procedentium. Si enim effectus contrarii in rebus sublunaribus ab eodem pendent influxu corporum cœlestium, cur non effectus contrarii in Creaturis pendere possunt ab una, eademque virtute Dei? Si eadem 2da, et particularis causa tot diversos, et contrarios effectus potest producere, cur censendum erit creatas res invicem repugnantes a virtute Dei, quæ est causa infinita, superior, et universalis, non potuisse creari? Creaturarum igitur repugnantia non probat plures esse admittendas primas, et universales causas.

Quoniam vero diximus mundanas res, licet diversis, et inter se contrariis proprietatibus preditas, in unum tamen ordinem conspirare, et unicum mundum constituere, adeout ex ipso ordine, et unitate Mundi inferendum sit non plures, sed unum tantum existere sapientissimum Mundi Conditorem; ita argumentantur Polythei. In Polyarchia Respublica gubernatur a multis senatoribus quandoque melius quam Regnum ab uno Rege, seu Monarcha. Ergo etiam Mundus optime gubernari potest a multis Diis.

Verum [illegible] concedendo [illegible] et [illegible] conseq.ⁿ si in a multis senatoribus recte quandoque Respublica gubernatur, non ideo recto ordine [illegible], sed [illegible] Rerum conservatores sed [illegible] conventione, atque [illegible] morales senatores constituunt, adeout si in discordiam [illegible], [illegible] ordo [illegible], Id [illegible], sive recentiorum [illegible] exempla [illegible]. Deinde, melius quandoque [illegible], quam ab uno Civitas regitur, quia unius hominis providentia, utpote finita, et limitata multorum prudentiam, atque consilium in se continere non potest. Verum si forte conveniret tantam in uno Rege prudentiam, rectitudinem, ac bene agendi vim esse, quantam in Senatu, tunc profecto melius ab uno, quam a pluribus Magistratibus Respublica administraretur. Cum vero, quum de Deo Mundi Conditore, ac Conservatore sermonem instituimus, non de imperito, aut finito homine loquimur, sed de Deo ipso, quo nihil aut sapientius, aut rectius, aut potentius possumus excogitare, quique propterea aliorum consortio minime indiget, ut mundanis rebus accuratius prospiciat.

Opponunt 3tio. Opinio plurium Deorum antiquissima exhibetur, eamque confirmat omnium fere nationum consensus, etiam quas floruerunt Viri conspicui, qui ad recte vivendum sapientissima documenta prescripsere, et preclara moralium virtutum exempla reliquere. Non itaque irridenda videtur pluralitas Deorum.

R. concedant ma: conseq. Antiquissimam esse, et ante Xti Domini adventum omnibus fere Gentibus communem Polytheorum superstitionem non negamus. Verum hæc Idololatriæ antiquitas nullam sibi potest authoritatem conciliare, quia error naturali rationi repugnans nullum potest robur accipere ab externis momentis. Secus dicendum esset vel ipsa immania scelera esse excusanda, quia antiquissima sint, et semper virtutibus communiora. Ceterum, prodolendum est falsorum Deorum cultum paulo post Diluvium originem habuisse a Chananæis, ut tradit Lactantius Lib 2. Institutionum, Cap. 14. Cujus nempe Gentis Princeps, et Sator maledictus a Deo cultum Dei neglexit, ideoque veræ divinitatis ignorantiam veluti hereditariam posteris suis reliquit, qui deinde Ægyptum occupantes primo quidem cœlestia corpora, quorum contemplatione liberius, curiosiusque vacabant, postremo portentificam etiam aliorum figuras adorare ceperunt. Ab Ægyptiis deinde in Græcos, a Græcis in universas fere Gentes Idololatriæ pestis translata est, ut viri eruditi demonstrant. Id si aliquis quæreret, cur adeo stolide fuerint priscorum temporum Gentes, ut contra naturalis rationis lumen Deorum multitudinem admiserint, preter rationes, quas Cap. 1 hujus Libri attulimus, respondendum ulterius est tres potissimum ob causas in tantum crimen fuisse dellapsas.

Atque ut a prima exordiatur, Vir Cl. Petrus Daniel Huetius Demonstrationis Evangelicæ Propone 4ta, Cap. 8 satis fuse ostendit, Græcos aliqua primæva rerum originis notitia a Phœnicibus, Ægyptiisque fuisse imbutos, et ab iis miros Mosaicæ legis ritus accepisse; sed brevi deinde Theologiæ principia puerilibus fabulis ad sua tempora, et corruptos sibi homines accommodatis implicuisse, quas nova subinde figmentorum accessione consequens ætas cumulavit, adeo propterea, ut veritas pene tota extincta in densissimas tenebras ruerit demersa. Quemadmodum autem Mosaicam doctrinam, quæ vel in eorum fabulas quandoque contrusit, a ceteris nationibus intellexerunt; ita et Moisis cognomen a Cadmo, et Danao primo accepere: Quumque ab aliis subinde, quos sive ab Ægypto, sive a Phœnicia varii casus in Græciam expulerant, Moisis fama sparsa fuisset in Vulgus; Græci ad fingendum, et mentiendum prompti multis eam replaverunt fabulis, variasque Moisi Deorum, et Herorum personas imposuerunt, quemadmodum a Doctoribus suis jam ante factum audierant. Verum quia Instituti nostri ratio minime postulat, ut singulorum hoc loco Deorum originem consideremus, id tantum animadvertendum est, Mercurium, Apollinem, Bacchum, Vulcanum, Panem, Prianum, Esculapium ad unius Moisis exemplar fuisse confictos: Atque inde factum est, ut quum Moisem ob res preclare gestas veluti Deum haberent, et diversa illi nomina diversæ Gentes pro libito imponerent, factum, inquam, est, ut unum solummodo pro nominum diversitate in plures distinxerint, et pro uno tantum Moise Deorum multitudinem adoraverint. Qd si fortasse alicui hec Huetii doctrina non arrideat id vel ex ipsis Gentilium tabulis demonstrabimus. Nne n. et Luna, et Isis, et Lucina et Diana, et Trivia, et Hecate res una, et eadem sunt? Hoc profecto nemo negabit, qui priscos Authores vel leviter attigerit. et tn unumqdq. ex iis nomen singulare humen devenit; et sola Luna tot et innumeras alias genuit Deas. Nne idem prorsus e Sol; qui Phebus, qui Apollo, qui Apollo. Sol tn variaos ob causas alios quoq. in insano Gentilium cerebro potuit Deos producere. Prima ejs ratio, propter quam plures olim habebant Du, ea e, qd plura vocabula veluti plura numina acceperant.

2da ratio e, quia quum veteres divinorum attributorum multitudinem cogitarent, in eum errorem prolapsi sunt ut tot, ac tantas perfectiones, que in uno summo Deo conveniunt, in plurimis Diis discretas esse arbitrarentur. Sic quia fortitudinem, sapientiam, pulchritudinem, aliasq ejs generis perfectiones intellexere; alius fortitudinis Deum Martem, alias sapientie Deam Minervam, alios pulchritudinis Venerem, alios denique similes divinis attributis adscriptserunt Deos. Nec mirum. nam nostris etiam temporibus non raro contigit, ut una, eademq. res diversis proprietatibus predita a rudioribus, et imperitis hominibus, quasi plures, distinctasq. res accipiantur.

3tia, et fortasse potior ratio e, quia animadvertentes nonnulla preclare gesta, queq. humanas non vires superabant, facili negotio adduci potuerunt, ut eos, qui talia patrarent, veluti Deos colerent. Id ut evidentius demonstretur ad propositum superius Moisis exemplum redeundum e. A majoribus suis audierant Egyptii stupenda prodigia per Moisem a Deo facta ex Egyptiis ea intellexerant Phenices, ex Phenicibus iis, qui Greciam incolebant: sed quia temporum injuria, et Poetarum precipue admixtis fabulis, veri vestigia vix apud illas nationes superarant; propterea que Moisis propria erant ceteris tribuentes, plures in uno Moise Deos venerabantur. Quum n. accepissent, Moisem effecisse, ut Gens Israelitica in Civitatis formam coalesceret et legibus se contineri pateretur, somniarunt Amphionem Trojane urbis menia ad citharae cantum condidisse. Quum intellexissent, submerso Pharaone, et debellatis Gentibus, que iter in Chananeam terram morabantur, himnum victori Deo Moisem cecinisse; docuerunt, Apollinem, ut apud Tibullum legitur

Saturno Rege fugato
Victoris laudes concinuisse Jovis.

Eadem prorsus ratione quum accepissent Moisem in Montis cacumine legem a Deo habuisse, de montis nebo culmine promissam terram lustrasse, atq. ibidem obiisse, et sepultum fuisse; Panem finxerunt montivagum, eumq. Montium verticibus, et saxosis fastigiis preesse credebant: Quumq. edocti fuissent, precibus Moisis afflictum fame populum fuisse in Deserto celesti manna recreatum; narrabant, Cererem, Proserpina rapta, in Arcadie specubus latitantem diu quesitam a Diis, a Pane tandem fuisse inventam, qd ni fecisset, fame omnes homines interituri fuissent. Sexcenta alia mitto, ex quibus liquido constare posset, unde et Mercurius, et Bacchus, et ceteri quicumq. Egiptiorum precipue Dii originem habuerint.

Accedit, qd, quum Gentiles tam varias, atq diversas Dei operationes tam variis in locis, et circa distincta adeo obiecta observarent, et nullam Mundi partem, nullumve locum sive publicum, sive privatum Deo vacuum esse adverterent; opinati propterea sunt et Navigantium, et Agricolarum, et Militantium, et Pastorum, et Venatorum, et ceterorum numerum proprios esse Deos; quia putare non poterant, quo pacto fieri posset, ut unus Deus uno eodemq tempore, omnia, que ubiq fiunt, vel fieunt in infinito, ut ita dicam, hominum numero et videret, et cognosceret. Verum, nisi tanta fuisset eorum oscitantia, ignorare profecto non potuissent in Ente summe perfecto immensitatem quoq. conspiciendam esse, verosq. Deo illud convenire intellexissent, qd cecinit de Jove Virgilius Egloga 3tia: Jovis omnia plena: et qd de Sole Homerus Iliadum Lib. 3.

Sol, qui cuncta audis, quiq. omnia conspicis unus.

Ceterum, ut ut antiqua, et omnibus fere Gentibus communis fuerit superstitio Polytheorum; tot stulte, et ridicule fuerunt eorum de divinitate opiniones, tot crimina, tamq. infames actiones Diis suis attribuebant, tot denique turpitudines, et tam immania fuerunt scelera, quibus Gentiles onerare dabant, ut de multitudine, et societate [illegible] Deorum non sit illis gloriandum, sed maxime erubescendum. Qd si quandoq. ex Idolatris non nulli preclara moralium virtutum exempla ediderunt, nihil inde infertur in Polytheismi confirmationem. Inprimis n. ut monet D. Augustinus Lib. de Spiritu, et litera Cap. 27. si discutiantur quo fine facta sint, vix inveniuntur, que justitie debitam laudem, defensionemq. mereantur, quia in omnibus studiis suis etiam que honesta videbantur, non Deo, sed Diabolo serviebant scilicet inani et ipsius honoris, et glorie, ut subdit Prosper contra Collatorem Cap 27. Deinde, infidelitas obumbrat quidem lumen rationis, non tn omnes boni, naturalis affectus scintillas extinguit; adeoq. mirum non e, si usquequaq innumera Polytheorum vitia aliqua interdum apparere, et emicare potuit species virtutis.

Opponunt 4. Idolorum oracula posteriori eventu confirmata, quorum plura numerat Celsus apud Origenem Lib. 7. 2do miracula, que vel Dii Gentium, vel Gentiles homines patrarunt. Ex primis sunt miracula Isidis apud Diodorum Siculum Lib. 1, Esculapii, in cujus Romano Templo ad Insulam Tiberinam appensa erat marmorea tabula sanatorum ab ipso hominum exemplis inscripta, Veste, cujus multa prodigia in suarum Vestalium custodiam referunt Ovidius 2do Fastorum, Dionisius Lib. 2. Romane antiquitatis, et Valerius Maximus Lib. 8. Ex 2dis sunt miracula Apolonii Thianei apud Philostratum, necnon Vespasiani, et Hadriani, quorum ille, authore Tacito Lib. 8. Cap. 1., cæcum, et ægrotum manuum impositione sanavit, iste vero, Spartiano teste, cæcum a nativitate Pannonium nomine illuminavit.

R. et primo quod attinet ad Idolorum oracula, ea merito a nobis irridentur, quum vel ab ipsis Idolorum cultoribus et fabulosa, et commentitia fuerint habita. Tullius n. in Lib. 2do de Divinatione de hujusmodi oraculis ita loquitur: Autoritatem nullam debemus, nec fidem commentitiis rebus adjungere. Eodemque modo nec ego Publicio nescio cui, nec Martiis Vatibus, nec Apollinis obtis credendum existimo, quorum partim ficta aperte, partim effutita temere, nunquam, ne mediocri quidem cuiquam, non modo prudenti probata sunt. et non multo post Chrysippum hujusmodi oraculorum decantatorem contemnens hæc habet: Sed jam ad te venio

O sancte Apollo: qui umbilicum terrarum certum obtines:

Unde superstitiosa primum sæva evasit vox fera:

Tuis n. oraculis Chrysippus totum volumen implevit, partim falsis, ut ego opinor: partim casu veris, ut fit in omni oratione sæpissime: partim flexiloquis, et obscuris, ut interpres egeat interprete, et sors ipsa referenda sit ad sortes. partim ambiguis, et quæ ad Dialecticum referenda sint. Nam quum sors illa edita est opulentissimo Regi Asiæ:

Crœsus Halim penetrans magnam pervertet opum vim.

hostium vim se se perversurum putavit: pervertit autem suam. Utrum igitur eorum accidisset verum oraculum fuisset. Hæc Tullius, qui alia subinde Apollinis præsertim celeberrima oracula commemorans, ea vel fabulosa, vel quæ fabulæ suspicione minus laborant, perplexa, et ambigua esse demonstrat. Hoc idem ex Œnomai locis probat Eusebius Lib. 4. Præparationis Evangelicæ. Quod si nonnulla vera fuerunt, pro certo habendum est, res illas, quæ vere predictæ sunt, ex causis naturalibus prævideri potuisse, præsertim virtute Dæmonis, cujus naturalis scientia valde perspicax est. Ac certe malum Dæmonem, non bonum Deum autorem habuisse, constat, quia sæpe in amores illicitos, in improborum hominum laudes, in cædes, et alia crimina etiam Gentilibus legibus damnata homines alliciebant. Postremo Xti virtute coacta sunt obmutescere: et, si Ecclesiæ historiis fides habenda, quandoque etiam unius veri Dei potestatem confiteri.

Ad 2dum; Miracula Polytheorum fabulosa partim sunt, vel saltem dubia. Et, si quæ vera sunt, Deorum pluralitatem minime confirmant: Fabulosa, inquam, sunt, vel dubia etiam apud ipsos celeberrimos Gentilium scriptores, inter quos Livius initio historiæ suæ ea respuit veluti nulla idonea testium fide suffulta, planeque conficta subdens: Datur hæc venia antiquitati, ut miscendo humana divinis primordia urbium augustiora faciat. Non confirmant Deorum multitudinem, quia, si nonnulla mirabilia evenere, vel talia fuerunt, quæ in admirationem raperent solos rerum naturalium ignaros, vel inter inania Dæmonum præstigia sunt recensenda, vel alio fine, quam confirmandi Idololatriam, ab uno vero Deo fuere patrata. Atque ut de singulis, quæ exposita sunt, aliqua dicamus; quæ de Iside Diodorus refert non sunt vera miracula. Narrat n. ægros in ejus Templo somno abreptos, de morborum remediis fuisse admonitos. Id autem contingere poterat vel naturali eventu, propterea quod ægroti somniarent de remedio, quod medicos consulentes prius sibi propositum fuisse audierant, vel certe fraude sacerdotum, qui quum essent medicæ artis peritissimi, noctu infirmos alloquerentur, eisque pharmacum præscriberent. Nec obstat, quod nonnulli extemplo pristinæ restituti sanitati prædicentur; Hujusmodi n. sanitas ex imaginatione proficisci potuit, cujus vim in multis morbis incredibilem esse viri Medici tradunt.

Æsculapii miracula ejusdem generis sunt cum iis, quæ de Iside nonnulli somniarunt. Certum n. est neminem fuisse ab eo sanatum verbo, et imperio, sed potionibus tantum, et succis herbarum, quibus alii convalescebant, alii etiam perniciosius se habebant. Hinc Æsculapii curationes comico sale conspersit vel inter Gentiles Aristophanes. Atque ego n. se admodum mirari, quomodo ab Æsculapio salutem sperarent qui suis edocti fabulis credebant, eundem fulmine ab Jove percussum se ipsum servare minime potuisse.

Vestæ prodigia evidentis contradictionis possunt convinci. Narrat n. Ovidius Fastorum 2do, combusta Silua, Vestæ simulachrum manus oculis opposuisse, divinumque ignem quasi sensu præditum se se contraxisse sub cineres: Deinde Lib. 6. nullum in Templo Vestæ simulachrum fuisse aperte fatetur his versibus:

Esse diu stultus Vestæ simulacra putavi;

Mox didici curvo nulla subesse tolo.

En aperta contradictio, ex qua licet cetera metiri. De aliis Vestalibus hæc narrant. De Æmilia quod sua negligentia extinctum ignem, implorato Deæ præsidio rursus accenderit; De Claudia, quod cingulo navem, qua Idæ simulacrum devehebatur, in Tiberis vado hærentem ad littus traxerit; De Thuccia, quod vacuo cribro haustam aquam in suæ integritatis testimonium ad Forum pertulerit. Verum si hæc prodigia, quæ omnis admirata est antiquitas, fabulosa non sunt, saltem certum est, non esse ejus generis, quæ omnem naturalem virtutem excedunt, quum Dæmonum vis possit utique extinctum ignem accendere, navem movere, et aquam in cribro sustinere. Caeterum, non desunt magni nominis Theologi, qui Tucciae miraculum ad veri Dei operationem referunt. Potest enim Deus etiam a Gentilibus patrare vera miracula, non in confirmationem erroris, sed in innocentiae patrocinium.

Veniamus modo ad Apollonium. Si aliqua, quae consuetum naturae ordinem superare videntur, facta ab ipso leguntur, inania fuere praestigia. Eusebius enim magicis artibus eum deditum fuisse ostendit. Quae vero magis stupenda narrat Philostratus cum eodem Eusebio fabulosa putamus, tum quia sine ullo authore, et teste ea scribit, tum quia in historiis, quas miscet, plura narrat, quae gravioribus etiam profanis historicis contradicunt, tum quia multa ex incerto vulgi rumore accepta esse fatetur, de quibus et ipse dubitat. Duo autem sunt gesta Apollonii mirabiliora ex iis quae Fabulator hic narrat, cujusdam scilicet Puellae resuscitatio, ejusdemque Apollonii in Coelum raptus. Verum utrumque idem ipse Philostratus in dubium revocat. De Puella enim dicit, forte vitalis aurae scintillam in illa compressam latuisse. De raptu vero fatetur alios scribere, Apollonium non raptum, sed mortuum esse quosdam quidem Ephesi, alios Lyndi, alios Cretae.

Eadem omnino fides Vespasiani, et Hadriani miraculis habenda est. Ipse enim Cornelius Tacitus, cujus authoritatem tanti facere videntur Polytheistae, ingenue fatetur, infirmos a Vespasiano sanatos non fuisse humana arte insanabiles, neque caecum omnino eum, cui visum restituit. Elius vero Spartianus affirmat, Hadriani prodigia a Mario Maximo irrideri tanquam simulationes ad levandam Imperatoris stultitiam adhibitas. Nam quum aegritudinis molestiam ferre non valens sibimetipsi mortem consciscere vellet, Antoninus Pius obtulit ei Panonium tanquam veterem caecum, ut appareret illuminatus oppressum desperatione virum aliquo modo consolaretur. Illud postremo addendum est, hujusmodi etiamsi miracula, quamvis vera essent, non fuisse ordinata in Polytheismi confirmationem. Potuit enim Deus etiam a Gentilibus vera patrare miracula, ... Vespasianum, ut venerabilior redderetur Imperator ille, qui in perfidam Judaeorum Gentem divinae vindictae minister fuerat electus.

Caput 44tum
De Scientia Dei.

Divina attributa, de quibus hactenus egimus, hujusmodi sunt, ut nullam ad creaturas habere relationem intelligantur; sed cum, de qua loquimur, scientiam Dei, in Deo inesse concipimus, ut res creatas aliquo modo respiciat. Quum enim nihil aliud sit, quam Deus ipse quatenus et se ipsum, et alia a se distincta percipit, quemadmodum ob suam immensitatem ad omnia se extendit, ita et omnia perfecte cognoscit. Hinc divina scientia nullo modo censenda est ullis imperfectionibus obnoxia, quibus scientia creata, quia in Deo perfectissimo nihil excogitandum est, quod summum, perfectissimumque non sit. Sed perfectissima dicenda est tum propter multitudinem rerum, quae a Deo cognoscuntur, tum propter cognoscendi modum, qui purissimus, et simplicissimus esse debet actus. Dei quippe scientia non est discursiva, quatenus ex notioribus ad minus nota, vel obscura cognoscenda progrediatur vel ab una ad aliam cogitationem transitum faciat. Sed uno, et simplicissimo intuitu omnia videt, omniaque comprehendit. Post D. Augustinum Lib. 2 de diversis quaestionibus ad Simplicianum, Quaest 2da, praeclare de scientia Dei S. Thomas Quaest 14 art 1 ad 2dum, ubi divinam scientiam cum humana comparans haec habet: Homo secundum diversa cognita habet diversas cognitiones. Nam secundum quod cognoscit principia, dicitur habere intelligentiam, scientiam vero secundum quod cognoscit conclusiones, sapientiam secundum quod cognoscit causam altissimam, consilium, vel prudentiam, secundum quod cognoscit agibilia. Sed haec omnia Deus una, et simplici cognitione cognoscit. Unde simplex Dei cognitio omnibus istis nominibus nominari potest, ita tamen quod ab unoquoque eorum, quod in divinam praedicationem venit, secludatur quidquid imperfectionis est, et retineatur quidquid perfectionis est. Et secundum hoc dicitur Job 12: Apud ipsum est sapientia, et fortitudo; et ipse habet consilium, et intelligentiam. Haec ille Doctor Angelicus.

Jam vero, si scientia Dei, utpote perfectissima est infinita, nihil est quod eam fugere queat. Sed tanta erit ejus amplitudo, ut Deus tum semetipsum, tum creaturas omnes, tam possibiles, quam existentes, et quidquid creaturis accidit, aut potest accidere, uno, simplicissimoque intuitu perfectissime cognoscat. Etenim, si quaecumque in hoc mundo contingunt, aut Deo efficiente fiunt, si bona sunt, aut Deo permittente, et in bonum finem ordinante, si mala, nec citra hujusmodi efficientiam, aut permissionem quidquam rebus creatis potest accidere: necesse est, nihil unquam Dei cognitionem fugere, quemadmodum nihil est, nec esse potest, quod divinae non subsit providentiae.

Quod si quis opponeret, creaturas aliquas vilissimas esse, ac propterea indignas, ut a Deo cognoscantur, respondendum foret, creaturas ob hanc vilitatem non posse esse objectum primarium, et ut loquuntur, formale divinae cognitionis, secus objectum secundarium, et mere terminativum. Rationem affert S. Thomas Lib. 2 contra Gentes, cap. 30, quia scilicet vilitas cognitorum per se non redundat in cognoscentem: quidquid enim cognoscitur, ad modum cognoscentis cognoscitur, non ad modum rei cognitae. Propterea easdem res aliter cognoscit homo, aliter Angelus, aliter Deus. Per accidens duntaxat vilitas cognitorum redundare potest in cognoscentem, vel quia intellectus vilium rerum similitudine informatur, vel quia, dum vilia considerat, a nobilioribus abstrahitur, vel quia ex vilium consideratione viles in animo informi voluntate excitantur affectiones. Quae omnia in Deo locum habere non possunt. Nam Deus creaturas videt non per similitudines, aut proprias earum species, sed per divinam essentiam tam creaturas, quam se ipsum unico videt intuitu. In ejus vero voluntate nulla esse potest prava affectio, sed tantum bonitas, et judicium. Ideirco Deus quascumque res etiam vilissimas, purissima, nobilissimaque intuetur cognitione.

Multæ quoad scientiam Dei, et modum præsertim cognoscendi possibilia, et futura conditionata a Theologis institui solent quæstiones, quas iis libenter relinquimus. Quod attinet ad illius divisionem, ea primo dividitur in practicam, et speculativam. Practica dicitur cognitio objecti operabilis, Mundi v.g. condendi. Speculativa cognitio objecti non operabilis, qua Deus seipsum, et Creaturas possibiles cognoscit. 2do dividitur in necessariam, et liberam. Prima est cognitio objecti independentis a liberis Decretis Dei, ut scientia rerum possibilium: 2da est cognitio objecti dependentis a liberis Decretis Dei, ut scientia rerum existentium. 3tio celebris est divisio in scientiam simplicis intelligentiæ, et scientiam visionis. 1ma est cognitio rerum mere possibilium, quæ neque existunt, neque aliquando extituræ sunt; Hæc vero est cognitio rerum, quæ vel actu existunt, vel extiterunt, vel extituræ sunt. Patres societatis postremam hanc scientiæ divisionem veluti inadequatam rejicientes, aliam excogitarunt, quam scientiam mediam nuncupant, quod inter scientiam simplicis intelligentiæ, et scientiam visionis, ut ipsi contendunt, medium fere locum obtineat. et per hanc scientiam docent cognoscere Deum futura conditionata de conditione non adimplenda. Verum scientiam hanc mediam frustra omnino induci ex eo patet, quod quidquid a Deo cognoscitur vel ad scientiam simplicis intelligentiæ, vel ad scientiam visionis reducendum sit, et ex eo insuper quod nullum sit scientiæ hujus mediæ objectum. Enimvero quidquid Deus cognoscit, vel extitit aliquando, vel non est cognitio, in qua res futura dicitur, et extitura est, vel non [illegible] medium quippe non datur inter existere, et non existere quum sint contradictoria. Sed primum pertinet ad scientiam visionis, 2dum vero ad scientiam simplicis intelligentiæ. Scientia ergo, quæ dicitur media, quum nullum habeat objectum, non est admittenda. Neque est, cur dicant, futura conditionata de conditione non adimplenda esse objectum scientiæ mediæ. Hujusmodi enim futura, quum non sint proprie futura, sed absolute possibilia, utpote quæ conditionem habeant nunquam in actu ponendam, idcirco ad scientiam simplicis intelligentiæ pertinent, non vero esse objectum scientiæ mediæ.

Caput 5.

De simplicitate Dei.

Deum esse simplicissimum, concors est saniorum Philosophorum sententia. Animadvertendum est tamen, quo sensu conveniat Deo simplicitas, cum diversæ sint hujusce vocis significationes. In primis autem vocabulum simplicitatis vel defectum exprimit, ut quum hominem acri ingenio destitutum, simplicem dicimus, vel perfectionem aliquam includit, sic quum ad candidum, sincerumque animum denotandum simplicem animum appellare solemus. Quo sensu Christum Dominum Discipulos suos hortatum fuisse legimus, ut simplices essent sicut columbæ. Alia est ratione nonnulla simplicia dicuntur. Nam quæ diversis constant partibus, seu totum ex multis partibus resultans compositum nuncupari solet, partes vero, quæ totum ipsum constituunt, vocantur simplicia. Quo certe sensu neque simplicem, neque compositum possumus dicere Deum. 3tio, res aliquæ simplices nominantur respectu cæterarum rerum, quæ magis compositæ dignoscuntur. Sic elementa respectu mixtorum corpora simplicia nominantur. Sic Angeli respectu rerum corporearum simplices definiuntur. Sic denique Dei simplicitas explicatur per remotionem scilicet compositionis, quam dividunt in logicam, physicam, et metaphysicam.

Compositio logica duplex est, enunciativa scilicet, et argumentativa. Prima attributum cum subjecto componit, ac definitionem potissimum cum definito. 2da est argumenti cum argumento ad veritatem consequendam amica quædam conjunctio. Compositio physica duplex pariter statuenda videtur, altera scilicet entitativa resultans ex iis, quæ quamvis naturæ sunt, ex duabus v.g. aut pluribus æque quotis [illegible], altera quæ tunc contingit, quum duæ res diversæ conjunguntur, et novam essentiam constituunt a singulis partibus diversam. Compositio demum metaphysica ea est, quæ generis et differentiæ uno communi appellata, quæ genus nempe, et differentiam animal v.g. et rationale aliquo modo distincta jungit, atque componit.

His positis; statuendum est Deum esse simplicissimum, proindeque actum, ut ajunt, purissimum. Quod facile ne[illegible] probatur, si illud pro certo habeatur, quod secundum Philosophos meliores nostri est certissimum; Deum scilicet non esse ex partibus compositum, quarum una extra aliam posita sit, ut in rebus corporeis semper contingit, sed Spiritum esse purissimum omnis propterea divisionis expertem. Sed evidentius res demonstrabitur, si spectetur quid sibi compositio, quæ simplicitati opponitur, velit. Omnis enim compositio duo necessario importat extrema; Hujusmodi autem extrema in Ente perfectissimo esse non possunt, tum quia nulla excogitari potest causa, quæ illa simul componeret, nisi admittere velimus aliquam Deo priorem causam, tum quia, si hæc extrema in Deo reperirentur, finitus necessario dicendus esset Deus, quippe ex partibus distinctis, adeoque finitis constaret.

Quod si aliquis quærat, cur cognoscibilis sit Deo rerum compositionisque distinctio, adeoque compositio, quæ est distinctorum unio, nonnullis admittatur in Deo, respondendum est, maximum esse discrimen inter distinctionem, quam in Deo Metaphysici excogitarunt, et compositionem, quam in Deo ne fingere quidem possumus. Compositio enim, si in Deo esset, ex parte Dei ut inquiunt, se teneret, quia Deum ex partibus distinctis, ac propterea finitis componeret; Quod non contingit in distinctione, quæ non ex parte Dei se tenet, sed ex parte intellectus nostri. Nam quia ob mentis nostræ angustias non possumus [illegible] illas Dei perfectiones unico actu percipere, quum diversæ sint in nobis divinæ essentiæ, divinorumque attributorum ideæ eas propterea mente distinguimus. Quare, quum aliqua fingitur a nobis distinctio in Deo, non physica compositio, quæ plures inter se distinctas partes exigit, admittitur in Deo, sed metaphysica tantum constans ex genere, et differentia, seu essentia, et attributis, quæ compositio non in Deo continetur, sed in mente duntaxat nostra. Sic v.c. quum Deum dicimus Ens, spectamus Deum tanquam genus quoddam, per quod Deus ipse cum aliis entibus a se productis analogice convenit; Quum vero dicimus Deum summe perfectum, differentiam indicamus, per quam Deus ipse a cæteris quibuscumque entibus discrepat. Similiter, summa perfectio, tametsi simplex sit, dividitur a nobis in veritatem, bonitatem, sapientiam, justitiam, cæterasque virtutes, quas enti summe perfecto convenire intelli gimus, quia talis ē mentis nostrę angustiis contentę finis conditio, ut ne Ens quidē simplicissimū aliter, quā per diversas facies, seu relaões, tanquā 6 diversas partes, consideret. Deus itaq ita simplex dicendus ē, ut omnia illius attributa unū sint; ita simplex, ut omnē excludat distinctio; ita denique simplex, ut 6 simplicitate suā quascumq. superet sbās incorporeas, quę si ex sbā, et forma ñ componunt, habēt tñ compoõnē metaphysicam, et actus realiter distinctos. Hinc preclare ex doctrina Platonica Alcinous. Idē Deus per se summus, eternus, infallibilis, seipso 6fectus, divinitas, essentia, rão veritas, harmonia. Neq vero hec ita adnumero, ut eū sejuncta distinguā, imò ut unū potius cuncta considero. Et D. Augustinus Lib 4 Confessionū. Quid mihi proderat, quando et oberat, cum eū te, Deus meus, mirabiliter simplicem, atq. incommutabilem, illis decem predicamentis putans quidquid esset omnino comprehensum, sic intelligere conarer, quasi et tu subjectus esses magnitudini tuę, aut pulchritudini, ut illa essent in te quasi in sub.º, sicut in corpore; cum tua magnitudo, et pulchritudo tu ipse sis: corpus autē ñ eo sit magnū, et pulchrū, quo corpus ē, quia etsi minus magnū, et minus pulchrū esset, nihilominus corpus esset. Falsitas n erat, quā de te cogitabā, ñ veritas; et figmenta miserię meę, ñ firmamenta beatitudinis tuę.

Caput 6.

De immutabilitate, infinitate, et ęternitate Dei.

Quū in qualibet mutaõne aliquid semp vel accedat, vel deficiat enti, qd mutaõni subē; Hinc, quia Deo qui simplicissimus ē, nec addi aliquid unquā, nec detrahi potē, nārio consequitur Deū eē immutabilē. Eadē ratione, quia in Ente simplicissimo initiū, aut finē intelligere ñ possumus, necesse ē, ut Deū simplicissimū fateamur ęternū. Rursus, quū Ens simplicissimū nullis sit comprehensum limitibus, nārio inferendū ē, Deū eē infinitum.

Ad Dei immutabilitatē qd attinet, Stoici, ut refert Plutarchus, putabant Deū minorē in Deū magnū verti. Sed quā absurda sit eorū opinio, ex eo patet, qd Ens pfectissimū nullo fine clausū, nullo be loco contentū, nec tempore volvi possit, nec ętate variari. Innumeris Scripturarū testimoniis veritas hec confirmari posset, quę nobis contra aliquos Ethnicos sola nāli raõne argumentantes consulto prętermittenda sunt. Quare, Deus, qui simplicissimus ē, immutabilis quoq. fatendus ē, nisi velimus asserere, mutaõnē sine aliqua compoõne fieri posse. Fatentur quippe omnes, res quę mutaõni subē, successive considerandas ē sub diversis terminis, uno scilicet termino succedente, altero vero recedente. Aliunde autē, in Deo nulla eē accidentia possunt: Manifestū propterea ē, ñ posse de Deo asseri mutabilitatē, quemadmodū de Deo affirmari ñ potē compoõ ex sub.ª, et accidente.

Eadē omnino ob causas infinitus dicendus ē Deus. Ens autē pfectissimū, quū omnia in se contineat, infinitū eē appellandū, veteres etiā Philosophi docuerunt. Verū notandū ē, qd licet infinitū proprie dicatur illud, qd nullis finibus circumscriptū ē, vel illud, qd ē in suo genere extremū, et quo nihil datur ulterius; Duplici tñ modo legimus apud Scholasticos infiniti vocē fuisse usurpatā. Aliud n ē infinitū actu, qd proprie infinitū ē. Aliud infinitū potentia, cui infiniti nomen improprie convenit. Infinitū primo modo acceptū, et categorematicum illud ē, cujus nullus actu finis ē, Atq. in hoc sensu Deus dicitur infinitus, quū nullis claudatur terminis, omniū rerū causa sit, omnemq. entis plenitudinē complectatur. Infinitus vero in 2do sensu usurpatū, qd et syncategorematicum dicitur, illud ē, qd licet actu finitū sit, quia tñ augeri possit, potentiâ infinitū ē: sic velocitas, aut tarditas motus, licet revera finita sit, potentia dicitur infinita; quia nulla ē tanta velocitas, aut tarditas, quin major dari, aut certe concipi possit.

Ex infinitate Dei sequitur ęternitas, quę a Boetio Lib 5 de Consolaõne Philosophię. Prosa 6 definitur interminabilis vitę tota simul, et pfecta possessio. Quū n Deus neq. initiū, neq finē unquā habere queat, et nihil in Deo sit aut prętéritū, aut futurū, sed omnia sint presentia, inferendū ē soli Deo vere, et proprie convenire ęternitatē. Hinc tametsi Aristoteli concederemus, mundū nullū habuisse initiū, ñ consequeretur tñ mundū appellari posse ęternū, quia ñ totū simul infinitę vitę spatiū comprehenderet, utpote qui neq. futura, neq transacta amplius possideret.

Vel si quis exemplo mundi probare contenderet, Deū eād ñ eē vere, et proprie ęternū, quū antecedentia et consequentia momenta, sicut ac in Mundo, mens nostra concipiat in Deo, respondendum esset, momenta illa ñ ut actu distincta spectari a nobis in Deo, sed ut virtualia tantū. Ęternitas quippe, licet indivisibilis sit, et tota simul existat, ut definit Boetius; Quū tñ suo ambitu omnia complectatur, eā habet virtutē, ut singulis successivę duraõnis, seu temporis momentis respondeat. Atq hec quidē omniū Patrum sententia ē, asserentiū, ea, quę Deus facturus, aut permissurus ē, in immenso ęternitatis suę sinu semp presentia, ñ tam prescire, aut previdere, quā videre, aut scire. Scimus, ait S. Gregorius Magnus Lib 20 Moralium, cap 26. Scimus, quia Deo futurum nihil ē, ante cujus oculos pręterita nulla sunt, presentia ñ transeunt, futura ñ veniunt. Quippe, quia omne, qd nobis fuit, et erit, in ejus conspectu presto ē, et omne, qd presente monstrant. Solus Deus eē ęternus. Alia pretermitto et quidē efficacissima momenta quę evidentissime demonstrant solū Deū eē ęternū, Atq id tantū addo, contra effictā Mundi ęternitatē cum Viro Cl. Jo Baptta Duhamelio, conditum scilicet eē Mundum ex insano artium progressu confirmari. Nā si Mundus ęternus esset, tot artes ad vitę usū nārię, tot prętara inventa tam nova eē ñ possent, ac p ęternitatem latuisse q ea quippe nunquam perijssent, si aliquando fuissent excogitata, ut Acus nautica, Typographia, et alia innumera, quæ quotidie deteguntur; quæ magno sunt argumento, mundum non esse æternum, sed ab omnipotenti Deo conditum fuisse, et ab eodem regi, et gubernari.

Caput I.

De supremo in res creatas Dominio Dei.

Quum Deus sit illud Ens, quo præstantius aliud esse nequit, Deum supremum esse rerum omnium Dominum, cujus ope, et auxilio cuncta egent, ut sint, atque subsistant, controverti nullatenus potest a Christianis Philosophis. Utrum vero Deus ita sit rerum quarumcumque creatarum administrator, ut illas ad agendum moveat, atque determinet; id magna animorum contentione in quæstionem vocatur. Atque ut rem tanti momenti clarius, quo fieri potest agamus; sciendum primo loco est, quod tametsi videamus homines in aliquas res multis modis posse dominari, scilicet vel eas producendo, vel vi, industria, dono earum dominium assequendo, Deus tamen, qui, utpote perfectissimus, nullo indiget, cujus ope sua perfectio augeatur, et utpote independens, nullum habere potest, cujus potentiam aut industriam sibi conciliet, aut superet vi, non alia ratione supremum possidet in omnes res creatas dominium, quam quia prima, ac præstantissima est rerum omnium causa. Ideo, quum Dei dominium esse debeat quovis alio perfectius (omnia quippe illius attributa perfectissima sunt) nil penitus in rerum natura excogitari potest, quod divino non subsit Dominio. Cum vero, quo major est dependentia effectus, eo major est causæ dominium, si dominium Dei est perfectissimum, creaturarum quoque dependentia talis esse debet, ut major esse non possit. Dependent itaque a Deo creaturæ sive quoad naturam, sive quoad effectus, adeo nimirum, ut non modo creata omnia, quæ a Deo creatore, et conservatore essentialiter dependent, sed omne etiam, quod ab ipsis creaturis fieri, aut fieri posse comprehendimus, Deus, tanquam propria causa vere, ac physice operari censeatur.

Verum, quum catholica nos edoceat fides, plures creaturas, atque eas potissimum, quæ libero arbitrio donatæ sunt, esse suorum effectuum veras, et integras causas, dicente Tridentino Concilio Sess. 6. Can. 4. Si quis dixerit liberum hominis arbitrium a Deo motum, et excitatum nihil operari, sed veluti inane quoddam nihil omnino agere, mereque passive se habere, anathema sit; acriter propterea a nonnullis disputatur, num ad statuendum perfectissimum Dei dominium, asserendum sit, Deum vere, et physica actione concurrere ad omnes, et singulos creaturarum effectus, quorum illæ dicuntur veræ, ac immediatæ causæ; an potius ad vim creaturarum activam tuendam, libertatemque vindicandam Deo potius hæc concurrendi ratio detrahenda sit, ut factum a quibusdam fuit primis Ecclesiæ temporibus, qui teste Augustino Lib. 5 de Genesi ad litteram Cap. 20, arbitrati sunt unice mundum factum a Deo fuisse, cætera vero fieri ab ipso mundo, quemadmodum ille disposuit, atque sancivit, Deum vero ipsum nihil operari, eo ducti Scripturæ testimonio Genesis 2do Complevitque Deus die septimo opus suum, quod fecerat, et requievit die septimo ab universo opere, quod patrarat. Posterior hæc sententia, quum recte philosophantibus arridere nullo modo possit, sit Propositio Unica. Deus immediate concurrit ad omnes, et singulos Creaturarum effectus.

Pro: 1. Propositio authoritate Scripturarum, in quibus rerum omnium effectio Deo accepta refertur. Isaiæ Cap. 26 hæc habentur: Omnia opera nostra operatus es in nobis Domine. 1 ad Corinth. 12 Omnia operatur in omnibus. Joannis 1. Omnia per ipsum facta sunt, et sine ipso factum est nihil. Actorum 17. In ipso vivimus, movemur, et sumus. Joannis 5. Pater usque modo operatur, et ego operor. Hujusmodi autem Scripturæ testimonia non nisi de simultaneo, seu immediato Dei concursu esse intelligenda, eadem ipsa Scriptura apertissime suadet. Quemadmodum enim, dum inquit Genesis 1. Viditque Deus cuncta, quæ fecerat et erant valde bona, immediatam exprimit vim Dei creatricem in rerum omnium productione, adeo ut quidquid de nihilo fuit productum, immediatus sit Dei conditoris effectus; ita quum Deum omnia in omnibus operari efficientem indicat, id etiam omne, quod creatæ res exerunt, ab ipsis fieri immediato Dei concursu adjutis. Confirmatur testimonio Divi Augustini, qui in ea Joannis 5 nuper laudata verba inquit Tract.° 20. Quomodo ergo poterimus Deum etiam nunc operari cuncta, quæ fiunt, quum Dominus dicat: Pater meus usque modo operatur, et ego operor. Et Lib. 5. de Genesi ad litteram Cap. 20. Sunt, inquit, qui arbitrantur tantummodo mundum ipsum factum a Deo, cætera vero fieri ab ipso mundo, sicut ille ordinavit, et jussit, Deum autem ipsum nihil operari. His tandem allatis adversus hanc opinionem variis Scripturæ textibus, subdit: Movet itaque Deus occulta potentia universam creaturam suam. Explicat secula, quæ in suos cursus non explicarentur, si ea ille, qui condidit, providentia sua, idest influxu suo, administrare cessaret.

Pro 2do Propositio ratione, non quidem a supremo Dei dominio prorsus desumpta, id est aliquo modo superius innuimus, sed aliunde petita. In hunc autem modum ratiocinamur. Quælibet perfectio a Deo semper, tanquam a prima causa immediate petenda est, Atqui non modo posse agere, verum etiam actu agere est aliqua creati perfectio, imo major in actu, quam in sola virtute agendi perfectio elucet. Ergo creatura sic divino semper beneficio influxu, quum aliquid operatur, indiget, ut non solum privative, sed etiam effective, et immediate Deus cum illa concurrere debeat. Deus enim non minus est prima causa, quam sit primum Ens; sed quia est primum Ens, ab illo ens quodlibet creatum immediate pendere debet sive ut sit, sive ut conservetur. Ergo quia est prima causa quælibet creatura immediate pendebit a Deo, ut operetur. Neque creaturarum dependentia in eo tantum ponenda est, quod Deus illas conservet, atque contulerit vim activam. Nam mundus hic universus spectatus, si a Deo conditus est, quemadmodum verti in dubium nequit, profecto ab authore suo derelictus esse non potest, quin nullus sit opifex, qui ñ malit operi suo vere consultũ fieri, quã male, ñ potẽ Deus hoc opus suũ tanto habuisse despectui, ut ñ omnia coagendo ipsũ eã moderetr, nec ipsi prospiceret quidquid conducibilius fo ret. Nemo quippe melius novit, quis rei aliquid expeat, aut quemadmodũ gubernari debeat, quã qui ipsius conditorẽ.

Neq. ẽ, cur dicant, potuisse Mundũ adeo pfectũ a Deo creari, ut deinceps p se consistens, atq. agens curatore, seu adjutore ñ indigeret. Quũ .n. Mundus ex semetipso ñ sit, et, dempta opera creatoris munificentissimi, qui ipsũ ex nihilo eduxit, nihil sit; ñ potẽ sane nihil ñ ẽẽ, aut operari, nisi p severante, et aliquid semp conferente vi illa, a qua semel habuit, ut aliquid esset, atq. operaret. Qd si ñnullæ res sunt, quæ sine suis causis consistunt, propriasq. ex se exerunt functiones, ejusmodi tñ sunt res, quæ absq. suis causis aliquid sunt, quũ causæ nihil aliud, quã mãm vertant, et res in ipsa existentes temperent, ita ut novũ quidpiã appareat. Verũ Mundus, qui nihil absq. Deo fuit, nihil habet ex se, unde subsistere, aut agere p se, seu, Deo ñ adsistente, et opitulante possit. Deus igitr ẽ causa Mundi eo potius modo, quo Sol ẽ causa lucis. Sicuti .n. ñ amplius illuminat lux, si Sol influere desistat; ita Creatura quævis inanis omnino ẽ, atq in pristinũ recasura nihil, si Deus ipsi supponere desinat in omnes salutarẽ opẽ, seu immediate cũ illa ñ concurrat ad singulas illius operãones.

Opponunt 1. Dominiũ Dei ẽẽ debet pfectissimũ, sed si Deus immediate concurreret ad omnia, et singula creaturarũ opera, dominiũ Dei ñ esset pfectissimũ. Ergo etc. Pro: mr. Hoc modo ñ dominaretr Deus in creaturas pfectiores, sed si ñ dominaretr in creaturas pfectiores, dominiũ Dei ñ esset pfectissimũ. Ergo etc. Mr constat, quia concipi posset aliã pfectior creatura, quæ nempe p se, et sine alterius auxilio operaretr. Mr eã patet, quia pfectius haberi debet dominiũ illud, quo quis plures habet obsequentes subditos gradu, et qualitate eminentiores, eo, qd ad vilissimos tantũ extenditr, ut patet exemplo duorũ Regũ, quorũ unus si dominetr in Principes, alter vero in pauperes hoĩes, potior sane erit conditio primi, quã 2di.

R. conc. mm, ne mm. ad prob: conc mm, ne mm. Quamvis pfectiores essent creaturæ, si p se solas quidpiã agere possent (tunc quippe ñ indigerent auxilio alterius, neq. tantas haberent dependentiã a prima creatrice causa) quia tñ dominiũ Dei habendũ ẽ pfectissimũ, eo ipso qd ẽ pfectissimũ, repugnat dominari Deũ in Creaturas tanta pfectione donatas. Deus .n., semel ac immediate ñ concurreret cũ creaturis ad singulas earũ operãones, ñ amplius esset pfectissimus, quia aliquid esset in rerũ nãa, qd ñ fieret a Deo, qdq. vere, et proprie dominio Dei ñ subderetr. Effectus siquidem illi, qui provenirent a causis 2dis, ab ipso nullatenus penderent, et improprie ad summã infinitæ illius potestati subessent. Quũ itaq. Deus necẽrio sit summe pfectus, ac supremus propterea rerũ universarũ Dominus, renunciare nullatenus potẽ supremo illi, qd in creaturas habet, pfectissimo dominio, neq. res condere potuit adeo pfectas, quæ benefico, atq immediato ejus influxu ñ indigerent. Quare institutũ contra nos argumentũ nihil omnino evincit, nisi facta hypothesi, qd Deus deponere velit, et possit summam universi gubernãonẽ, qd tñ, ut patet, impiũ ẽ solummodo excogitare. Ad paritatẽ desumptã a dominio duorũ Regũ, respondendũ ẽ, pfectius utiq ẽẽ dominiũ illius, qui in Principes, seu divites hoĩes dominatr, At longe pfectius fore, si ita dominaretr in divites, ut omnia ab ejus nutu penderent, nec agere quidquã sine ejus imperio possent.

Instabunt, præstantius saltẽ ẽẽ Dei dominiũ, si concurreret duntaxat p suũ imperiũ ad efficiendos vel impediendos Creaturarũ effectus, eo modo, quo Princeps cũ subditis agunt, imperando scilicet, ñ immediate, et physice concurrendo. Pfectior .n. videtr potestas illa, quã quis nutu solũ, et imperio obtinet quidquid vult, quã ea, quæ ñ sufficiente imperio dominantis, suã quoq ponere debet operãonẽ.

Verũ qui ita argumentantr, divinũ agendi, dominandive modũ aut ñ capiunt, aut percipere nolunt. Pfectior adhuc ẽ potestas Dei, quæq dominiũ præstantius videtr, si ipsemet Deus ad omnia creaturarũ opera ñ morali tantũ imperio, sed et physico influxu concurrat. Sic ñ ab ipso physice provenit illud omne, qd in quavis creaturarũ actione bonitatẽ, et pfectionẽ includit. Qd haudquaquã consequitr, si Deus moralẽ tantũ haberet dominiũ sive in Creaturas, sive in creaturarũ actiones. Hinc si Terreni Principes physice ñ influunt, sed morali tantũ imperio ad opera subditorũ concurrunt, infertr duntaxat eos ñ habere in operib subditorũ physicũ jus, et summe pfectũ. Si .n. Populi in sciẽtiis sunt versati, ac bonis artib exculti, si in belli, et pacis officiis providi, si in mercatura exercenda industrii; amplificatr quidem in hoĩũ existimatione Principũ gloria, de hujusmodi tñ subditorũ virtutib, bonisq artib nihil sibi physico jure attribuere possunt Reges. Longe itaq pfectius erit Dei dominiũ, quia quidquid boni in Creaturarũ operib comperitr; illud a Deo physice, et immediate profluere, summq. permanare semp, adeo certũ ẽ, ut id qui negẽt, neget simul necesse sit, Deũ ẽẽ illud ens, quo pfectius cogitari ñ potẽ. Neq asserat quis; qd si hæc aliquid probarent, probarent eã, Creaturas a Deo impediti debere ad operandũ, ut absolutior foret rerũ omniũ Dominus. Hujusmodi .n.

dominium tirannicum esset, Deoq. prorsus indignum. Quamobrem, quum physice solum coagendo, hominesq. adjuvando, eorum actus a rationalis creaturis obtineat Deus, quos obtineret, si cogeret, hoc dominium quovis alio effectus in Deo admittendum est, illud vero eliminandum.

Opponunt 2do. sive causae 2dae tanta vi donatae sunt, quae satis sit, ut fungi suo munere queant, sive tanta vi destituantur, consequitur semper admitti non posse immediatum hunc concursum Dei. Nam si primum asseratur, supfluus ess, ut patet, talis influxus: 2dum vero dici nequit, secus dicendum foret, Deum condidisse creaturas admodum imperfectas, quae ninimum ex se nihil agere possent, Divino tamen eloquio contrarium suadente illis verbis: Dei perfecta sunt opera.

R. causas 2das vi sufficienti, atq. idonea preditas esse virtute ad operandum quae eisdem competat, et debita sit, vi minimus, et virtute reiiciente quidem cooperationem cujuslibet alterius causae 2dae in eodem sui genere suo ordine comprehensae (ad eliciendos n. unius v.g. creatae voluntatis actus physice alia non concurrit creata voluntas) minime vero agentis quoq. universalis coactionem. Quare neq. asserendum est influxum Dei esse supfluum, neq. concedendum est Creaturas imperfectas fuisse a Deo conditas. Non primum, quia perfectissimus alioquin Deus non esset dominator omnium; tum n. in omnia, quae sunt, quaeq. fiunt, simultanee, et immediate coagendo influeret. Non secundum, quia creaturae nihilominus suas, ut patet, exerunt actiones, eo ipso, quod alterius ope non indigeant una simul operantis creaturae; tametsi postea physicum exigant concursum Dei, tanquam orig. et universalis causae, nec alia perfectior agendi vis, quae excludat immediatum Dei concursum, concedi a potentissimo Deo eisdem queat.

Instabunt. si Deus ad omnes Creaturae actus immediate concurrit, vel eadem actione concurrit, qua concurrit Creatura, vel alia omnino diversa. Utrumq. repugnat. Ergo etc. Pro Mr. Nam si Deus eadem actione concurrit, eadem actio creata simul erit, et increata, quo nihil absurdius; si autem diversa actione concurrit, diversus quoq., et duplex erit effectus, in quo etiam non levis difficultas. Preterea, vel Deus influit ut causa totalis, vel ut partialis duntaxat. Non primum. Consequens n. alioquin foret, inanem esse Creaturae influxum, nullamq. creaturam veram esse, et totalem suarum actionum causam. Non 2dum, secus dicendum esset, alterius ope, et auxilio Deum indigere, ut in Creaturis operetur.

R. ad primum, Deum concurrere ad quoscumq. creaturarum effectus et diversa, et eadem prorsus actione, diversa scilicet quantum ad causam, eadem quantum ad effectum. Quum n. actio sit relatio causae ad effectum, qui producitur, duplici modo considerari potest. Igitur, si haec relatio, seu actio attendatur quoad causas, seu ajunt, quoad fundamentum, duplex est, et diversi ordinis, quemadmodum duae sunt, et diversi ordinis causae in eundem effectum physice influentes, una nimirum prima, generalis, et increata ex parte Dei, altera vero 2da, particularis, et creata ex parte creaturae. Si autem spectetur actio penes terminum, sive effectum, una eademq. actio est Deum simul, et creaturas respiciens, quia unus, idemq. effectus est a Deo simul, et Creatura proficiscens; Deus quippe suo physico, et immediato concursu facit et quidquid, et illud omne, quod Creatura operatur. Haec tamen actio, quae sumpta quoad effectum una, et eadem est, non increata actio est, sed creata, quia illud omne, quod independens a Deo non est, sed fit, dependetq. sive a Deo, sive a Creatura, increatum dici non potest. Neq. est, cur hoc veluti absurdum ab Adversariis habeatur. Esto n. repugnet, eundem numero effectum proficisci, atq. pendere a duabus causis eundem ordinem habentibus, id tamen minime repugnat, si causae in diverso ordine sint, ut ait S. Thomas 1. parte, quaest. 105, art 5 haec habens: Una actio (nomine actionis intelligendus est effectus) non procedit a duobus agentibus ejusdem ordinis, sed nihil prohibet, quin una, et eadem actio procedat a primo, et 2do agente.

Ad 2dum argumentum respondendum est, quod quum causa totalis ea sit, quae quidquid in effectu est omnino producit, partialis vero, a qua pars solum aliqua effectus gignitur; Deus autem, ut sacrae Scripturae paginae monent et rationalis ipsa ratio suadet, illud omne, quod Creatura operatur, physice influendo efficiat, totalis profecto creatorum effectuum causa censendus est, quin tamen inanis atq. supfluus creaturae cujusvis influxus sit autumandus. Enimvero, quum ita a natura comparatum sit causis 2dis, ut quidquid vel exerant, illud tanquam proprium opus adscribi debeat, atq. idcirco suorum effectuum verae effectrices causae, dici, quaeso, fieri potest, ut physicus earum influxus reiiciatur, quum hoc solummodo eas constituat, ostendatq. actrices, quo sublato, nec supliciis ob enormia delicta plecti, neq. ob res pie, sancteq. gestas premio aliquo possint donari? Preterea, quum hujusmodi sint Creaturarum opera, ut ob rationalis imperfectionis, quam earum conditio exigit, bono simul, et malo, plerumq. misceantur, et secundum pronunciatum illud, nihil sit in effectu, quod prius non fuerit in causa, quis non videt, preter eam, a qua bonum, quod procedit, aliam admittendam esse causam, a qua id omne ortum ducat, quod defectivum in quovis opere reperiatur? Quum igitur Deus ob infinitam, quam continet, perfectionem cumulum esse non possit minimi eorum defectus author, et causa; quemadmodum ambigi nequit, quin physice ad creaturarum opera concurrat, ut perfectum inde prodeat quodlibet opus; ita neq. dubitare possumus, etiam admittendum sit physicum cujusvis Creaturae concursum, ut quod ab omni defectus labe tersum haudquaquam est, eidem imputetur. Certum itaq. est, et Deum, et Creaturas, quae non ejusdem, sed diversi penitus ordinis sunt, ut duas totales causas ad idem opus concurrere, eundemq. effectum producere.

Neq. sane huic doctrinae illud obstat, quod desumitur a creatae voluntatis actibus, qui vitales quum sint, et immanentes recipi debent in principio, a quo proficiscuntur, adeo ut ita Deus concurrat ad omnes creatae voluntatis actus, ut in se recipiat, eorumq. subjectum evadat. Nam quum duobus modis possit principium operari, vel in se, vel in alio, seu immanentes, ut inquiunt, et transeuntes; jam ex diverso modo, quo agit Deus, satis convincitur, quomodo cooperari possit, quin creatæ voluntatis actus in se recipiat, eorumque evadat subjectum. Et sane, quum voluntas creata aliquod opus exercens, agat intra se, seu immanenter (proprium enim est potentiæ vitalis immanenter agere) ejusdem voluntatis actus remanent in principio, a quo fiunt, in ipsa videlicet voluntate operante, quæ evadit subjectum suorum actuum quibus velluti accidentibus, seu spiritualibus modis afficitur. Verum non ita contingit in Deo; Deus quippe licet in nostræ voluntatis actus physice influat, agit tamen extra se, in ipsa nempe voluntate creata. Quare tametsi creata quævis immanens, et vitalis actio vere eadem fiat, et dependeat a Deo; non sequitur tamen Deum evadere subjectum hujusmodi actionis, sicuti evadit creata voluntas, quia Deus agit extra se, et transeunter, voluntas vero creata circa suos actus immanenter operatur.

Opponunt 3tio simultaneum hunc Dei concursum humanam perimere libertatem. Creatura enim a Deo coagente adjuta non potest, inquiunt, non agere.

R. Simultaneum hunc Dei concursum non solum humanam libertatem non lædere, [illegible] juvere potius, atque perficere. Atque imprimis, ut eam nulla faciam, quæ alii adduxerunt Philosophi idem in hac re nobiscum sentientes, immediatum nempe hunc Dei concursum, cum creaturam supponat jam libere determinatam ad operandum, nullum vel minimum ejus libertati afferre detrimentum. Alia non desunt, eaque efficacissima argumenta. Nam Deus concurrens ad creatæ voluntatis actus ita se se creatæ voluntati accomodat, ut nihil aliud in nobis agere videatur, quam si nos soli, Deo eam non concurrente, ageremus; nec aliud evincit divinus concursus, quam quidquid a humana voluntate fit, et aliquid in se continet perfectionis, eminentiori quodam modo a Deo fieri, atque pendere. Quapropter Augustinus Lib. 10 de Civitate Dei, Cap. 14. Omnia inquit, quæ possunt homines vel Angeli, vel homines possunt in unius esse omnipotentis potestate, quibus dictis stabant. Tam vero, [illegible] se habet simultaneus Dei concursus, quemadmodum humana voluntas efficiat, ut aliquid exerceat nullam sibi adimit libertatem, multo magis poterit Deus, qui prima est libertatis origo; idem cum creatura opus efficere, quin concursu suo liberum perimat creaturæ arbitrium. Profecto enim, si animæ nostræ influxus non impedit, quominus libere operemur, sed adeo potius requirit, quum quidquid in nobis libertatis est ab eo debeat emanare; multo minus eidem libertati officere poterit immediatus Dei influxus, quum ipsi Deo quidquid in nobis perfectionis est immediate acceptum sit referendum, dicente Scriptura: Omne datum optimum, et omne donum perfectum desursum est descendens a Patre luminum.

Quoniam vero asserimus humanam libertatem divino Dei influxu adjutam perfici, atque foveri; id quoque demonstrandum est. Imprimis autem animadvertendum, quod quum Deus sit prima causa, et fons creatæ libertatis, atque ut inquit S. Augustinus Lib. de correptione, et gratia, Cap. 14: magis habeat in potestate voluntates hominum, quam ipsi suas; est eam causa liberæ actionis, operando in creatura tum ipsam actionis substantiam, tum modum actionis, scilicet libertatem. Deus enim, quum non extrinsecus violentiam inferendo, sed intime in ipsis causis operetur, suum influxum largitur secundum conditionem causæ, quam movet et in causis necessariis facit, ut necessario operentur, in liberis vero; ut libere suas eliciant actiones. Deinde, ut liberum servetur arbitrium, excludi utique debet quælibet causa creata, quæ ad unum, vel alterum moveat, atque determinet, minime vero causa prima, et increata. Nam, ut docet S. Thomas 1 par. quæst. 83, art. 1 ad 3tium Liberum arbitrium est causa sui motus, quia homo per liberum arbitrium se ipsum movet ad agendum, non tamen hoc est de necessitate libertatis, quod sit prima causa sui actus id, quod liberum est; sicuti nec ad hoc, quod aliquid sit causa alterius, requiritur quod sit prima causa ejus. Deus, qui est prima causa movens et naturales causas, et voluntarias, et sicuti naturalibus causis movendo eas non aufert, quin actus earum sint naturales, ita movendo causas voluntarias, non aufert quin actiones earum sint voluntariæ, sed potius hoc in eis facit. Operatur enim in unoquoque secundum suam proprietatem. Angelico consonat Doctor Subtilis, qui ait contra naturam voluntatis esse determinari a causa inferiore, quia tunc voluntas non [illegible] sui motus actuum Domina. At contra naturam voluntatis non esse a causa suprema Deo scilicet determinari cujus potestati omnis potestas, ac dominium creaturæ debet subesse. [illegible] ita sit, in hunc modum [illegible] dum est Decretum Dei, licet infallibiliter debeat effectum obtinere, necessitatem tamen non inducit [illegible] operanti sed quia Deus plura decrevit libere eventura, ex [illegible] Decreti divini efficacia infallibiliter sequitur, ut ea fiant libere. Ergo multo minus censendum erit, concursum Dei ad omnes, et singulos creatæ voluntatis actus, liberum hominis destruere arbitrium.

Quod si, quum opponant Creaturam a Deo coagente adjutam non posse non agere seu agere contrarium, respondendum est cum distinctione, non posse scilicet non agere, seu agere contrarium potentia futuritionis, seu positionis ad opposita in sensu composito, secus vero potentia possibilitatis ad opposita in sensu diviso. Quod, ut clarius pateat, animadvertendum est, duplicem a Theologis distingui in hac re potentiam. Alia enim est potentia secundum se sufficiens ad actum instructa, quæ actum respicit ut mere possibilem, et appellatur potentia possibilitatis. Alia vero est potentia ad actum jam ordinata, seu actioni applicata, quæ respicit actum exercitum, vel futurum, et hæc nuncupatur potentia futuritionis, seu positionis. Potentia [illegible] voluntatis ad opposita secundum se considerata adeoque in sensu diviso, pertinet ad essentiam libertatis. In hoc enim causa necessaria differt a libera, quod necessaria ita suum producat effectum, ut nequeat non producere, libera vero ita agat, ut possit non agere, aut etiam agere contrarium. Potentia futuritionis ad opposita haud pertinet ad libertatem, sed chymerica est et impossibilis. Sicuti enim [illegible] est idem simul esse, et non esse, agere, et non agere ita impossibile est idem simul esse futurum, et non futurum. Porro posito semel immediato concursu, seu influxu Dei ad actum [illegible] amoris, non est in voluntate creata potentia futuri-tionis ad non amandum, quia quum ratione Decreti divini sit amatura, nequit simul esse non amatura; et quum per divinum influxum constituatur amans, nequit simul esse amans, et non amare. Verum potentia possibilitatis semper intacta manet etiam cum Decreto, et immediato concursu Dei. Ratio autem est, quia potentia activa indifferens ad opposita supponitur in voluntate creata ante Decretum, et influxum Dei: necesse siquidem est, ut creata voluntas prius intelligatur potens eligere opposita, quam per divinum concursum ad unum eligendum inducta, et necesse est, ut prius intelligatur Decretum statuens voluntatem liberam, quam Decretum statuens quid sit electura. Alia accedit ratio. Simultaneus Dei concursus non impedit potentiam antecedentem, eo modo quo catena hominem constringens impedit potentiam antecedentem ambulandi; quam ex natura sua homo habet, sed potius liberam potentiam excitat, et in liberum reducit actum. Nam quia voluntas creata indifferens est ad oppositos actus, et quia est causa 2da nihil a se primo volens sine influxu causae primae, semper in sua indifferentia suspensa remaneret, nisi a causa prima ad libere agendum moveretur. Movetur autem per influxum ad unum potius actum quam ad alium. Propterea hujusmodi influxus impedit actum oppositum non ut impedimentum ligans, sed potius ut liberans, et solvens indeterminatam voluntatis potentiam. Simultaneus igitur Dei influxus liberum hominis non tollit arbitrium.

Opponunt 4to eam esse divinae naturae conditionem, ut nequeat una cum Creaturis operari, proindeque rerum omnium curam gerere, quia negotiis implicita diversimode turbetur, et felicitatem, summamque perfectionem amittat.

Verum qui facultate humana Deum dimetiuntur, hi certe Deum cogentes non possunt concipere, quin illum quammaxime perturbatum, miserum, et defatigatum fateantur. Aliis tamen omnino sentiunt qui pro certo habent praestantissimam divinam naturam sua eminentia, et inexcogitabilibus intervallis nostram superare. Fatetur non homo, si in multis rebus agendis labore fractus intelligitur, mirum non est; quum neque rerum omnium causas, effectus, connexiones, circumstantias possit agnoscere, neque quae necessaria sunt ad aggrediendum, promovendum, et ascendum contraria in sua potestate habere, neque ob finitam virtutem tum animae, tum corporis, tum status sufficiens sit ad omnia disponenda, exequenda, perficienda. At Deus, qui concipi a nobis non potest, nisi infinitae virtutis, et aeternae felicitatis, minus laborat in omnibus pene nobis, quae creatae etiam 2ae causae peragunt, quam homo optima valetudine donatus in alitu expirando. Operam porro faciunt, qui divinam ita in Caelo collocant ut, ut res hasce inferiores non agat nisi per Ministros. Alienum siquidem est a summa ejus potestate ita limitum afferere ejus dominium, ut rerum omnium universitati neque sic praesens non approbetur. Profecto, ubi concesserimus, Deum omnia praestare, quae ubique fiunt, eoque praesens sit omnibus immensitate, et virtute sua, recte intelligemus, quomodo absque ullo negotio, et extra ullum prorsus incommodum, et cuncta intellectione sua possit attingere, et cuncta operari. Atque ut exemplis utar ad rem apprime facientibus, si ipsi homines quammaxime delectantur, quando secundum naturales virtutem aliquam operantur, in maximis deliciis concipiendus est potius Deus, quum secundum immensam virtutem suam cuncta operatur. Nam, si ea, quae viris ignavis laboriosa sunt, diligentibus, atque solertibus facilia videntur: si quae Tirones vexare solent, artium expertes recreant; Cur natura divina, quae per se summe activa, et rerum omnium est perfectissima, non modo absque labore, et molestia, verum etiam cum summa quadam voluptate, operibus non posset incumbere? Deinde, summa, ut mihi videtur, voluptas est, aliis prodesse, et omnibus benefacere. Deo igitur, qui est summe bonus, atque adeo paratissimus, ut beneficentiam suam omnibus testetur, Deo, inquam, quammaxime erit jucundum, non paucis tantum, aut pluribus, sed rebus omnibus agendo prodesse, praesertim quum ipse sit bonorum omnium immensum Pelagus, proindeque haudquaquam pertimescens, ne ex profusione jacturam aliquam patiatur.

Opponunt 5to. Illud omne detrahendum est Deo, quod summae ipsius opponitur sanctitati, sed immediatus, et simultaneus ad omnia Dei concursus summae ipsius opponitur sanctitati. Ergo. Probo minorem. Si Deus ad omnia concurreret, concurreret etiam ad peccatum; sed peccatum summae Dei opponitur sanctitati. Ergo etc. Sequela certa est, quia, si ad peccatum non concurreret, non ad omnia Creaturarum opera concurreret Deus. Minor quoque certa est, quum malum in Deo cadere, aut a Deo provenire non possit, definiente Concilio Tridentino Sess. 6. Can. 6. Si quis dixerit, non esse in potestate hominis vias suas malas facere, sed mala opera, ita ut bona, Deum operari, non permissive solum, sed etiam proprie, et per se; adeo ut sit proprium ejus opus non minus proditio Judae, quam vocatio Pauli, anathema sit. Non igitur ad omnes creatae voluntatis actus immediate concurrit Deus.

R. conc. Majorem, neg. Minorem. Ad probationem dist. Majorem. Si Deus ad omnia concurreret, concurreret etiam ad peccatum, quantum ad substantiam actus, seu quantum ad physicum, et materiale peccati conc. quantum ad malitiam actus, seu quantum ad formale peccati neg. Majorem. Dist. Minorem. Sed peccatum quantum ad malitiam opponitur summae Dei sanctitati conc. Minorem quantum ad substantiam actus, et materiale peccati neg. Minorem, et conseq.m Scripturarum et SS. Patrum authoritate freti asserimus Deum ad omnia creaturarum opera concurrere; ita tamen, ut a Deo illud omne eliminetur, quod summam ejus sanctitatem aversatur, quodque Deum mali authorem constitueret. Quum enim in peccato duo distinguenda sint, materiale scilicet, seu actus physicus, qui bonus est bonitate naturae, et formale, seu deformitas a recta ratione, et lege Dei, quae mala est morali malitia; propterea dicimus, actum physicum peccati, qui bonus est, Deum immediate influere, malitiam vero, quae summae bonitati repugnat, Deum solummodo permittere. Nam quum malitia, et defectus peccati consistat, inquantum voluntas creata deficit ab ordine primi agentis, reduci non debet in divinum concursum, veluti in causam, sed in creatum, et defectibile hominis arbitrium; eo modo, quo defectus claudicationis reducitur in tibiam curvam.

veluti in causam, non in virtutem motivam animæ, quamvis ab hac causetur quidquid motionis est in claudicatione.

Nec obstat quod SS. Patres, quando de peccato loquuntur, formalem malitiam non distinguant, sed asserant tantum actiones malas a Deo non esse. Nam Patres loquuntur de actionibus ab homine positis. Actiones autem ab homine positæ adnexam habent malitiam, tanquam formam peccati, ideoque non Deo, sed homini adscribuntur. Sicuti non quæritur, vel assignatur causa vestis, seu statuæ, vel alterius artefacti, non quæritur, aut assignatur causa materiæ panni scilicet, vel ligni, vel marmoris, sed artifex qui est causa formæ, pallium dicitur, artem non materiam esse causam statuæ; ita dum quæritur, vel assignatur causa actionis malæ, a Patribus profertur causa ipsius malitiæ, proindeque peccatum non Deo, sed soli creaturæ recte adscribitur. Cæterum, malas etiam actiones materialiter consideratas in Deum, veluti in causam referendas esse, communis est SS. Patrum doctrina. [illegible] disputando sæpe docet, omnes naturas, omnes actiones, et quidquid essentiam habet [illegible], tanquam in primum principium esse referendum. Clarius vero id exponit Anselmus Lib. de concordia præscientiæ [illegible] et [illegible]: omnis qualitas, et omnis actio, et quidquid habet essentiam a Deo est a quo est omnis justitia, et nulla injustitia. Facit igitur Deus omnia, quæ justa, vel injusta voluntate fiunt [illegible] bona, et mala. In bonis quidem facit, quod sunt, et quod bona sunt, in malis vero facit, quod sunt, [illegible] mala [illegible].

Canon Concilii Tridentini immerito contra nostram affertur sententiam. Non asserimus cum Calvino Deum esse authorem peccati, sed tantam blasphemiam detestamur: neque secundum nostræ doctrinæ principia eodem modo opus Dei [illegible] vocatio Pauli et proditio Judæ. Nam vocationem Pauli efficit Deus non solum ut causa [illegible] movendo physice voluntatem, sed etiam exteriori suasione, ac gratia [illegible], [illegible] ad ea determinat. Ut Paulus resipisceret, non modo operatur Deus [illegible] voluntatis actionem, sed etiam actionis rectitudinem, et moralitatem [illegible], contra vero [illegible] operatur [illegible]. [illegible] Calvinus, cujus error [illegible], [illegible] causam formalem malitiæ, [illegible] Deum esse [illegible], et [illegible] causam peccati [illegible] sit [illegible] causa actionis. [illegible] Concilio [illegible] Tridentino [illegible], [illegible] Calvinus [illegible], non in sententia nostra [illegible] divino immediato concursu suum creaturæ operanti tribuit arbitrium.

Instabunt. Actus peccati est aliquando essentialiter connexus cum malitia. Ergo nequit Deus ad actum peccati concurrere, quin concurrat ad malitiam.

R. dist. ant: Actus peccati est aliquando essentialiter connexus cum malitia, ut ponitur a Creatura conc: ut ponitur a Deo neg. ant: et conseq. Quum Deus sit causa efficiens, non defficiens, et nemo, ut ait S. Augustinus, quærere debeat efficientem causam mali, [illegible], quæ [illegible] in peccato [illegible] indivulse connectantur, quum non eadem necessario esse debeat utriusque causa. Nam ut docet S. Thomas in 2 dist. 37, quæst. 2 art. 2 ad 5: Ubi in aliquo effectu plura inseparabiliter conjuncta sunt, non oportet, [illegible] causa quæ, quantum ad unum; sit causa quantum ad alterum; sicuti natura est causa oculi, quantum ad substantiam [illegible] ejus, non quantum ad defectum [illegible] [illegible] incidit. Id confirmatur [illegible] in exemplo claudicationis. Sicuti enim claudicationis motus alio modo procedit a tibia curva, alio modo ab Anima: Anima [illegible], tibia vero [illegible] ad deformitatem claudicationis [illegible], adeo ut sine deformitate motum exercere non possit; ita actus peccati alio modo habetur ex divino concursu, alio modo ex voluntate creata. [illegible] creata autem voluntate [illegible] creatura [illegible] defectu [illegible] ordine [illegible] voluntatis [illegible]. Sed Deus [illegible] actionem quam [illegible] prima ponitur regula, [illegible] ideoque non [illegible] actionem [illegible] connexam. [illegible] actio physica peccati a Deo [illegible] voluntas [illegible] non causa malitiæ, illo modo, quo motus ab Anima in tibiam curvam impressus est id, quod a curvitate tibiæ determinatur ad obliquitatem, [illegible] non est causa obliquitatis [illegible].

Summa [illegible] concurrat concurrit [illegible] necessitate [illegible] [illegible] efficiendo. [illegible] gratia [illegible] [illegible] universalis [illegible], ut plura permittantur mala, tum ob universi pulchritudinem, quæ ex ordinata [illegible], et malorum permixtione consurgit, tum quia, ut ait S. Augustinus in Enchiridio, Cap. 11: Deus non sineret malum aliquid esse in suis operibus, nisi usque adeo esset omnipotens, et bonus, ut benefaceret [illegible] sapientiæ, ac providentiæ lex postulat ut [illegible] moveat secundum ipsius naturalem conditionem. Quare, quia Creaturæ sua sponte natura deffectibiles possunt et bene, et male agere; necesse est ut Deus non impediat malas earum actiones, nisi supranaturaliter operando. [illegible] causam primam universalem, Deum scilicet, et causam [illegible] particularem [illegible] creaturam, quæ una cum altera [illegible] crimen patraret; aut alterius, quum posset, flagitium non impediret. Ne autem in hac controversia quidquam omittatur [illegible] confutatione dignum, hoc [illegible] est, Deo tribui tanquam causæ primæ, ne remotæ quidem, immutanda esse Creaturarum crimina. Falsum quippe est Deum esse, qui Creaturas condidit imperfectas, et deffectuosas, quum Deus causa sit voluntatis creatæ, minime vero ipsius deffectibilitatis, et propensionis in malum. Ratio autem est, quia creata voluntas est deffectibilis ex eo tantum, quod ex nihilo est; ideoque quidquid in illa perfectionis est, autorem sui clamat Deum, quidquid vero imperfectionis in ea comperitur, ex nihilo, a quo fuit educta, habet originem. Ut natura sit, ait S. Augustinus, Lib. 12 de Civitate Dei, Cap. 23 ex eo habet, quod a Deo facta est; ut autem ab eo, a quo facta est, defficiat, ex hoc [illegible] de nihilo facta est. Et Fulgentius Lib. de Fide ad Petrum [illegible] proficere possunt, quia esse [illegible], quia ex nihilo factæ sunt. [illegible] defectum eas adducit conditio originis, ad profectum vero pro[illegible] Creatoris.

VII.

Pneumatologia

Liber 2dus

De Spiritibus a quocumq. corpore secretis, sive de Angelis.

Caput I.

De natura Angelorum.

Quam pro instituti nostri ratione, aliqua, quæ ad Dei existentiam, et divina attributa spectant, in superiori Libro tradita fuerint; breviori modo de Angelis tractatio instituenda est, tum quia res est Theologorum magis, quam Philosophorum, tum quia de iis pauca nobis perspecta sunt, quæq. disputari solent, in conjecturis potius, quam veris rationibus posita sunt. Porro Angelorum nomine intelligimus naturas, seu substantias quasdam veluti medias inter Deum et homines, quæ quidem natura a veteribus Philosophis, præsertim Platonicis, Genii, et Dæmones fuerunt appellatæ. Verum hoc nomen Angelus, officii potius nomen censendum est, quam naturæ, quod a græco nomine Angelos derivatum sit, quod latine idem est, ac nuntius, seu missus. Quamvis autem non solum substantiæ a corporibus secretæ, sed ipsi etiam aliquando homines, ratione officii, dicti sint Angeli in Scripturis; quia tamen cæteris Spiritibus præcipui, et ordinarii sunt divinæ voluntatis ministri, secundum illud Psalmi 103: Qui facis Angelos tuos Spiritus; et illud Apostoli ad Hebræos I. omnes sunt administratorii Spiritus in ministerium missi propter eos, qui hæreditatem capient salutis, ideirco communi usu, et [illegible] factum est, ut nomine Angeli [illegible] spirituales naturas [illegible] intelligerent. [illegible] Augustinus Lib. [illegible] de Genesi ad literam, Cap. 10: græce Angeli dicuntur, quo nomine generali universa illa superna civitas nuncupatur.

Multa quoad Angelorum naturam partim vera, partim commentitia ab antiquis Philosophis fuisse tradita, initio superioris Libri adnotavimus, [illegible] naturam [illegible] substantias esse genus quoddam viventium inter divinam, et humanam naturam positum [illegible] aeream, æthereamq. regionem esse dispersas, administras [illegible] supremi numinis, et singulis hominibus fuisse concessas, quasi curatrices, et precum nostrarum ad Deum latrices; quamvis eas non esse omnino expertes cupiditatum, quibus homines commoventur, quin et non paucas esse mortales contenderent. Hinc Apulejus; cæteriq: ab Angelis Liberos procreari autumarunt; et mentes illas, quum aliquando ab amore suo defecissent, ad humanas conditiones prolapsas genuisse Gigantes, ex sacris literis comprobari asseruerunt. Lactantius, Philo, et Joseph [illegible] [illegible] quamquam [illegible] in Concilio Lateranensi [illegible] sub Innocentio IIIo, [illegible] fuerit definitum, sine [illegible] aut summæ alicujus temeritatis [illegible], non possumus idem cum ipsis sentire; ideirco sit Propositio unica. Angelorum natura est incorporea.

Pro: Propositio. Atq. ut nulla faciamus sive Scripturarum, sive SS. Patrum testimonia, quorum tamen hoc loco authoritas plurimi esset facienda; duo proponimus argumenta ex naturali ratione desumpta. Primum est; quod quum certum sit, Angelos moveri motu [illegible] [illegible] corpus haberent, [illegible] naturam [illegible] et postea claudi; sed neq. dividitur ab illis aer, neq. clauditur; id n. fieri non posset sine magno sonitu, et ingenti [illegible], quem tamen nunquam percipimus, quamvis Angelorum, et Dæmonum motus frequentissime contingant. Non itaq. ex Spiritu et corpore constitutæ sunt Angelicæ naturæ. Idem argumentum est. [illegible] Angeli, [illegible] [illegible] nos vero crasso corpore [illegible]. [illegible] secundum [illegible] [illegible], [illegible] subtilius corpus Angelorum non obstaret [illegible] specie cum hominis recenserentur. Quare quum non [illegible] et [illegible] [illegible] sint [illegible] [illegible] quiddam [illegible] inter divinam et humanam constitutum, [illegible] [illegible] esse substantias spirituales creatas a corpore secretas, quæ corpore non [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] operationes. Confirmatur [illegible] Angeli [illegible] quomodo [illegible] in uno homine esse [illegible]. [illegible] Richardus [illegible] Lib. 4 de Trinitate, [illegible] ab uno homine [illegible] sunt, [illegible] fuerunt, [illegible] in Spiritu an in corpore? [illegible] Constat n., omne corpus longitudinem, latitudinem, et profunditatem, locales videlicet dimensiones habere, quibus tamen Spiritus caret omnino. [illegible] in corpore. Quomodo n.; vel in qua hominis parte tot corpora habitabant? nam quantumcumq. subtilia sint, duo [illegible] quantitatis corpora, unum, eundemq. locum occupare non valent.

Dices I. [illegible] [illegible] Dei [illegible] [illegible] omnes [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] intelligendi [illegible], [illegible] opponuntur filiabus hominum, tum quia plures ex Codicibus 70 Interpretum loco Filii Dei habent Angeli Dei. [illegible]

R. [illegible] laudata sacræ scripturæ verba [illegible] intelligenda. Filios quippe Dei vel boni Angeli veniunt, vel mali? Sed neq. boni, [illegible] fatente [illegible] Domino Matthæi Cap. 20, neq nubunt, neq. nubuntur: Nec possunt mali Angeli, seu Dæmones intelligi, quum nunquam in Scripturis Dæmones appellentur Filii Dei. Laudata itaq. sacræ Scripturæ verba non probant [illegible]. Præterea voces illæ Filii Dei de iis intelligenda sunt, quorum peccata fuerunt causa Diluvii; causas siquidem narrat eo loco Moises, quæ Deum impulit ad perdendum [illegible] [illegible] sed hominum peccata fuerunt: Nam paulo post subditur. Videns autem Deus, quod multa malitia hominum esset in terra, et cuncta cogitatio cordis intenta esset ad malum omni tempore, pœnituit eum quod hominem fecisset in terra. Et tactus dolore cordis intrinsecus: Delebo, inquit, hominem, quem creavi a facie terræ. Per Filios ergo Dei, qui uxores duxerunt filias hominum, intelligendi sunt Sethi nepotes, qui ob pietatem, et veri Dei cultum Filii Dei appellabantur, qui, deserta avita pietate, Filias Caini, quæ animo terrena cogitabant, acceperunt uxores, ex quibus procreati sunt Gigantes. Neque obstat, quod aliqui codices loco Filii Dei legant Angeli Dei. Imprimis enim non omnes, sed aliqui tantum Codices ita legunt: Deinde, ut docet Cyrillus Lib. 9. adversus Julianum, emendatior censenda est lectio illa, quæ habet Filios Dei, quam, quæ habet Angelos Dei.

Dices 2do. Illi sunt corporei qui sub sensibili specie multoties hominibus apparuerunt, qui cum iis sunt collocuti, qui cum [illegible] manducarunt, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ut ex variis sacræ scripturæ textibus patet. Ergo.

R. dist. ma. Illi sunt corporei, qui sub sensibili, et propria specie apparuerunt, conc. qui sub aliena sensibili specie apparuerunt, ne: ma: dist: cum proportione min. et neg. conseq. Nonnulli in eam abiere sententiam, ut putarent, Angelorum apparitiones, quæ in scriptura narrantur, veras non fuisse sed tantum phantasticas, quatenus nimirum Deus eorum [illegible] Angeli dicuntur apparuisse, ita sensus disposuerit, quemadmodum dispositi fuissent, si Angeli sub aliqua sensibili specie se se realiter presentes exhibuissent. Verum, quum hæc asserere merito non possimus, concedimus Angelos in vero, et reali corpore apparuisse, ita tamen, ut alienum fuerit corpus illud, non proprium Angelorum. Ex circumstante enim aere efformare sibi potuerunt corpus humanum, eundemque aerem virtute, qua pollent in res creatas, in ossa, carnem, aliasque humani corporis partes condensare. Operationes autem, quas Angeli in assumptis corporibus exercuerunt, et reales utique fuere, quum vere cibum ori infuderint, et in stomacho digesserint; non fuerunt tamen vitales, quum a vitali principio non sint profectæ. Non enim Angeli ita assumpto corpori fuerunt uniti, quemadmodum anima, quæ vitale est principium in homine, substantialiter unitur corpori organico; sed accidentalis duntaxat fuit eorum unio, per quasdam videlicet extrinsecas operationes; non secus ac accidentaliter nauta unitus est navi. Quare Angelorum [illegible] in eo tantum sensu [illegible] Angelos esse corporeos, quo hoc quidam Relua [illegible] [illegible] nulla accidentaliter esset contextus.

Dices 3tio, Celeberrimos Ecclesiæ Patres, atque eos inter ceteros D. Augustinum docuisse pluribus in locis corpoream esse naturam Angelorum.

R. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], diversam omnino fuisse sententiam sive Græcorum, sive Latinorum Patrum, et omnes unanimi ferme consensione docuisse incorpoream esse Angelorum naturam. D. ipse Augustinus, ut Adversarii contendunt, [illegible] Angelos esse corporeos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] esse in Angelis animam, imo quum aliquando in calce Libri de Musica, Angelos [illegible] et animam beatarum atque sanctarum [illegible], in Lib. [illegible] 2do Retractationum, Cap. 11, sic corrigit: Quandoquidem hic animi Angelos sanctos intelligi volui: quos habere animas nusquam me legisse in divinis eloquiis, canonicisque recolo. Verum hæc probant solummodo eam fuisse D. Augustini consuetudinem, ut [illegible], de quibus Scriptura mentionem facit, non alia nomina tribueret, quam quæ iisdem a Scriptura tribui solent. Hinc quum animadverteret, nunquam Angelos in Scriptura animarum nomine fuisse appellatos, Lib. 2do Retractationum eum corrigit loquendi modum, non autem indicare contendit Angelicam substantiam esse corpoream. [illegible] in locis expresse docet [illegible] Doctor Angelorum naturam multo esse excellentiorem humana. Sed humanam naturam ex Spiritu, et corpore constitutam docet, In Libro enim primo de Anima, et ejus origine ad Renatum, Cap. 5 Vincentium Victorem redarguit, quod asseruisset animam humanam esse corpus his verbis: Quod vero eam non [illegible] ad corpus esse contendit [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quæ non est ex anima, et corpore, sed ex duobus, vel eam [illegible] [illegible] corporis? [illegible] ergo Augustinus esse corporeos, sed spirituales omnino, et humana anima nobiliores asserens Angelos.

Dices 4to. [illegible] [illegible] 2dum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sententiam Joannis [illegible] Thessalonicensis, cujus postrema verba [illegible] eam [illegible] SS. Patribus idipsum sentientibus, nimirum Basilio cognomento magno, Methodio, atque Athanasio [illegible] [illegible] tamen vel Angelos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], multoties in specie propriorum corporum visi sunt ab iis, quorum Deus oculos aperuit.

R. neque [illegible] [illegible] 2dum neque [illegible] Patres spiritualitatem vel Angelorum, vel Animarum negasse. [illegible] quod attinet ad Patres [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Joannis Thessalonicensis Dialogum quoad illius sententiam de corporea substantia Angelorum, et animarum; sed illius dicta [illegible] sunt quoad ea tantum, quæ circa usum pingendi Angelos, et colendi eorum imagines disserunt. [illegible] [illegible] definiendi adversus Iconomachos, pingendos esse Angelos. Id quod in suo Dialogo demonstrasset Joannes Thessalonicensis, fuit a Concilio approbatum; Rationes vero, quibus idipsum suadebat Joannes idem in eo maxime deceptus, quod putaret Catholicam Ecclesiam ita sentire, quod Angeli, non secus ac mentes humanæ, corporei sunt; has, inquam, rationes neque probavit Magna Synodus, neque rejecit. [illegible] eo tempore non de natura Angelorum, et Animarum, sed de [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] spectat ad [illegible] Patres, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] spirituales aut Angelos, aut animas. Et si quandoque [illegible] naturas corporeas nuncuparunt, [illegible] tantum corporea, et [illegible] dixerunt, quatenus scilicet temporum, locorumque limitibus circumscribuntur, non quatenus extensæ sint, veluti corpora, et in partes, veluti corpora, possint secari. Hoc autem sensu loquutos fuisse SS. Patres, certo certius est. Nam et ipse author Libri de Spiritu et Anima, Cap. IX postquam ita locutus est [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] naturam credendum est [illegible] [illegible], immediate addit quum [illegible] [illegible] simplex, et [illegible] [illegible] modis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et quum ubique est, in semetipso [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Omnis vero [illegible] creatura corporea est [illegible] [illegible] virtutes corporeæ sunt [illegible] [illegible] carne [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] naturam corpoream esse dicimus quia loco circumscribuntur sicut et anima humana quæ carne clauditur [illegible] [illegible] in loco, et [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] corporalem [illegible] [illegible] corporalis quantitatis expers est.

Cęterum, ad spiritualem confirmandam Angelorum nāām afferre possent innumeras SS. Patrum autoritates, quas, brevitatis gratia, missas facimus. Ignatius Martyr in Epistola ad Trallianos, Gregorius Nyssenus contra Eunomium, Eusebius Cęsariensis Lib. 4. de Demonstratiōne Evangelica: Crysostomus Homa 22. in Genesim, et prima in Matthęum; Theodoretus Quest. 20. in Genesim; Joannes Damascenus, Hieronimus, Leo Magnus; Gregorius Magnus, et alii expressis verbis fatentur Angelorum nāām ēē incorpoream. Quinimo Concilium Lateranense 4tum, Capitulo 1 ita definit. Firmiter credimus, quod unus ē solus, verus Deus, creator omnium invisibilium et visibilium, spiritualium et corporalium, qui sua omnipotenti virtute simul ab initio temporis utramque de nihilo condidit creaturam, spiritualem, et corporalem, angelicam videlicet, et mundanam, ac deinde humanam, quasi communem, ex spiritu, et corpore constitutam.

Caput 2dum.

De existentia Angelorum.

Hactenus de nāā Angelorum agentes pro certo habuimus illos existere. Quęrendum nunc ē, utrum Angelorum existentia adeo certa, atque evidens sit, ut sola nāāli rāōne possit demonstrari. Quamvis autem post Xtum natum, ut testatur Estius in 2dum Librum Sententiarum, dist. 2. Parag. 1. nulli fuisse legantur, qui Angelos negarent existere, exceptis Anabaptistis, qui novissimis temporibus et Angelorum custodiam, et Demonum oppugnaōnem ad fictitia transferunt Catholicorum commenta; ex veteribus tn̄ Philosophis quamplures, et inter Judęos Saducęi, ut patet ex Cap. 23. Actorum, nullos ēē Angelos existimarunt. Hujusce erroris rāō affertur a S. Thoma 1. par. quest. 50. art. 1. dicente: Ignorantes vim intelligendi, et n̄ distinguentes inter sensum et intellectum, nihil ēē existimaverunt in mundo, nisi quod sensu et imaginaōne apprehendi potē. Et quia sub imaginaōne n̄ cadit, nisi corpus, existimarunt quod nullum ens esset, nisi corpus. Ut itaque cum Philosophis agamus, nam Saducęi, et Anabaptistę Scripturarum textibus convinci possunt, argumenta in hanc rem ex nāāli rāōne desumpta examinemus. Sit autem.

Ppōo. Unica. Nāāli rāōne probabiliter quidem, n̄ evidenter demonstrari potē existentia Angelorum.

Pro: Ppōo quoad primam partem. Universi a Deo creati decus postulare videtur, ut aliquę sint a Deo productę creaturę, quę quidem spirituales sint, quę Deo perfecte similes, sed hujusmodi creaturę sunt Angeli, qui intellectu, et voluntate prędititi sunt, quique cujuslibet māāē expertes sunt. Ergo ad universi ornamentum, et pulchritudinem probabile saltem ē Angelos existere. Argumentum hoc desumptum ē a S. Thoma 1. parte, quest. 50, art. 1. in corpore. Deinde; aliquam revera nāām existere, quę inter Deum, et hoīēs medium obtinet locum, ex eo patet, quod et Historicorum autoritate et omnium nationum consensu, et nostrorum quoque experientia sensuum certum sit, Energumenos seu quosdam hoīēs existere, qui ea aut operant, aut eloquunt, quę certe indicant eos ab aliqua superiori intellectuali causa moveri. Nam si Energumeni ignotis loquuntur linguis, si res maxime absconditas detegunt, si ea narrant, quę in dissitis regionibus agunt, si alia innumera, quę cęterorum hoīum agendi consuetudinem superant, operantur, quę, quęso, virtus, aut quę censenda erit causa tantorum facinorum? Num fortasse solus hōō virtute sua talia potē efficere? At nullus ignorat tantam hoīnis, aut intelligendi aut operandi deesse facultatem. Num hęc Deus ipse operatur? At quum plerumque contingat hoīēs obsessos, licet alioquin pios, in enormes blasphemias erumpere, illarum profecto causa Deus ēēē n̄ potē. Causa igitur talium superior media ē inter Deum et hoīēm. Ergo prętera existit Spiritus, sive Angelus.

Pro Ppōo quoad 2dam partem. Si nāāli rāōne demonstrari evidenter potē Angelorum existentia, vel hujusmodi demonstrāō deducitur ex eorum nāā, vel ex productrice illorum causa, vel demum ex quibusdam effectibus, et operationibus. Sed neque eorum nāā demonstrat actualem illorum existentiam, quum solus Deus, utpote essentialiter independens, et perfectissimus, ex propria nāā necessario existat, Creaturę vero, quęcumque sint, ex propria nāā habeant ut possint existere, n̄ ut actu, et necessario existant: Neque eos existere evincit productiva eorum causa, quum Deus qui n̄ necessario, sed libere extra se operatur, quemadmodum a cujuscumque alterius creaturę, ita ab Angelorum creatione potuerit abstinere. N̄ demum ex effectibus id demonstratur, quia nullus adduci potē effectus, nulla tam mira, et stupenda operāō quę aliis causis sive bonis, sive malis tribui n̄ possint. Nāālis igitur rāō nulla suppeditare nobis potē certa argumenta, quę evidenter probent Angelorum existentiam.

Dices 1. Veteres aliqui Philosophi agnoverunt existentiam Angelorum. Plato n. tum in Tymęo, tum in Convivio Angelorum meminit, eosque inter Deum, et hoīēm medios facit et Aristoteles Lib. 12 Physicorum scribit astra ab Angelis moveri. Ergo sola nāāli rāōne ostendi potē existentia Angelorum.

R. conc. ant. dist. conseq. Ergo sola nāāli rāōne ostendi probabiliter potē existentia Angelorum conc: evidenter nego conseqm. Ex iis, quę huc usque dicta sunt consequitur hujus argumenti solutio. N̄ n. quidquid antiqui Philosophi, cęteroquin doctissimi, admiserunt, certum illud, atque evidens ē; quum n̄ omnia aut evidenter demonstraverint, aut demonstrare evidenter contenderint. Cęterum, si haud obscure de Angelis tractarunt, mirum ēē n̄ debet. Plura n. a Judęis acceperunt, inter quos discendi cupiditate aliquando versatos fuisse, tradunt viri eruditi. Deinde, n̄ multi Hebraicam linguam callere noterant, et sacros fortis Libros legere; quos quidem iam ante expeditionem Alexandri Magni grece fuisse redditos, quamplurium doctorum hoīum opiniō ē. Atque ad Platonem potissimum quod attinet, certum ē, si D. Augustino fidem habemus, ex Pentateucho Moisis, quem legerat Angelorum existentiam desumpsisse. Astrorum vero motus n̄ ē, cur ab Angelis efficiatur, quemadmodum putavit Aristoteles. Nam sicuti cęlestium corporum motus a Deo rerum omnium causa habuit originem, ita a Supremo Mundi Artifice absque alia intelligente 2da causa perpetuo potē conservari.

Dices 2do. Existentiam Angelorum pertinere ad necessariam universi perfectionem. Si enim existit in mundo creatura mere corporea, uti sunt lapides, arbores et alia hujusmodi. Si existit creatura partim corporea, partim spiritualis, cujusmodi est homo; necesse est adesse etiam creaturam omnino incorpoream, qualis est Angelus. Quum ergo Deus mundum perfectum condiderit. A summo quippe bono nulla res proficisci potest, quin sit valde bona: debuit in mundo Angelicam naturam producere.

R. substantiam a corpore omnino secretam spectare quidem ad majorem universi perfectionem, non tamen ad perfectionem necessariam, quae scilicet in mundo actu, et necessario debeat existere. Hinc sicuti, licet in potestate Dei fuerit mundum hunc perfectiorem condere, et licet innumerae aliae sint possibiles creaturae omnibus, quas nunc conspicimus, perfectiores, non tamen necesse est, quod Deus et perfectiorem mundum, et perfectiores condiderit creaturas: ita licet intellectualis omnino, et incorporea natura universi pulchritudinem, et ornamentum augeret, eaque natura ut possibilis perfectio conjungitur, non tamen propterea sequitur illam revera creaturam existere. Si perpendatur, quia duplex in creatis rebus distinguenda est perfectio, alia scilicet relativa quae est ordo ad primam, et supremam causam, alia vero absoluta quae est in quavis creaturarum naturalis conditio. Primam quidem perfectionem necessario Deus mundo contulit, quum omnia, quae ab eo facta sunt, ad authorem suae bonitatem, tanquam ad finem ultimum, referenda sint, et a Deo praescriptas motus, et operationis leges debeant servare. Verum perfectionem absolutam, pro suo divino beneplacito, singulis rebus elargitur, creatae aut corpus, prout ipsi lubet, aut spiritum. Deus igitur, tametsi non condidisset Angelos, mundum nihilominus condidisset perfectum, qui non positive sine Angelis imperfectus esset, sed tantum negative, per negationem scilicet majoris perfectionis. Accedit, diverso huic incorporearum creaturarum ordini supplere rationales animas a corporibus separatas, quae spirituales omnino sunt, praesertim quum, sola attenta naturali ratione, dubitari merito possit, utrum omnes fuerint initio creatae, et extra corpus in se ipsis subsistant tanquam totales, et completae substantiae.

Dices 3tio. Angelus idem est, ac nuntius, sed necesse est Deum habere nuntios, qui sua divina mandata hominibus referant. Ergo etc. Confirmatur primo, quia ad cujusque Regis, adeoque ad Dei etiam majestatem pertinet habere nuntios. Confirmatur 2do, quia perfecta beatitudo aliorum gaudet consortio, et societate, quae est aliquid bonum, Deus ergo, quum sit summe beatus, gaudere debet consortio Angelorum.

R. Deum, qui summe perfectus est, citra ullum incommodum, et absque ulla molestia, et imperfectione, omnia per se ipsum posse praestare, quae per Angelos si existerent, efficeret, aut certe per inspirationes, et revelationes, sive per rationales etiam animas a corpore separatas Angelorum munera posse obire. Hinc ad primam confirmationem, eadem divina majestas, quae ab aeterno sine Angelis fuit perfectissima, non potuit unquam Angelorum ministerio indigere. Et parum refert, quod terreni Principes tot egeant ministris. Siquidem quum hujusmodi sint, ut ob impotentiam, finitam cognitionem, et qualitatem naturae nequeant per se solos aut rebus omnibus providere, aut subditorum fidem sibi conciliare, pluribus indigent ministris, ut rectus Reipublicae ordo possit conservari. Verum Deus, quem nos omnipotentem, immensum, omnibusque perfectionibus praeditum concipimus, omnia per semetipsum potest obtinere. Ad 2dam confirmationem, beatitudo finita, et creata aliorum gaudet societate, et consortio, quia quum singuli homines, quantumvis beati, non omnibus perfectionibus praediti sint, necesse est, ut aliorum perfectionibus fruantur. Sed Deus, qui summam continet beatitudinem, quae in perfecta omnium perfectionum possessione consistit, quamque ab aeterno sine Angelis habuit, ut beatior evadat, aliorum haudquaquam indiget societate. Caeterum, etiamsi societas ista necessaria foret, rationales animae a corporibus separatae sufficerent.

Dices 4to. Plures sunt in universo effectus, qui nonnisi ab Angelis proficisci possunt. Ergo etc. Pro antecedente ex iis, quae Energumeni aut eloquuntur, aut operantur.

R. neg. ant. et conseq. Nam effectus omnes, qui in Energumenis tantopere admirantur, quique humanae naturae vires superare videntur, aliis causis, quin deveniendum sit ad Angelos, tribui possunt. Deus enim, qui, supposito Angeli, ad omnes eorum operationes immediate concurrit, haec omnia potest per se in Energumenis efficere vel immediate, vel mediate per aliquam organum vel in talibus circumstantiis atque ob fines sibi notos concessum; non secus ac Sanctorum virorum miracula et patravit olim sine Angelis, et nostris quoque temporibus, sine Angelorum virtute per semetipsum efficit. Quod si immediata haec Dei operatio non arrideat, illud certe statui potest, plures scilicet animas humanas in eodem corpore, permittente Deo, unitas, haec omnia in Energumenis praestare, adeo ut ea phaenomena, quae malis Angelis tribui solent, malis hujusmodi Defunctorum animabus sint adscribenda.

Caput 3tium

De tempore, et loco creationis Angelorum

Angelos non ante corporei hujus Universi productionem, sed una simul cum universo fuisse conditos ex sacris literis non obscure colligitur. Exodi n. 20 num. 11 haec habentur: Sex diebus fecit Dominus Coelum, et terram, et mare et omnia, quae in eis sunt, Quare, quum etiam Angeli Coelorum, et terrae ambitu comprehendantur, sequitur eos quoque sex dierum spatio fuisse a Deo creatos. Neque nos movet, quod opponi solet ex veteris Ecclesiae Patribus nimirum, quod si Angeli una cum hoc corporeo Mundo conditi fuissent, mentionem de iis aliquando fecisset Moises, quum tamen altum de iis servaverit silentium. Nam huic objectioni occurrimus cum D. Thoma asserente Angelos in prima illa rerum creatione non fuisse a Moise praetermissos, sed Coeli, ac lucis nomine designatos, ut constat

D. Augustinus Lib. 11. de Civitate Dei. Quod si vel silentio praetermissi sunt vel inter corporeas res enumerati, hoc ideo factum est, quia Moyses rudi populo loquebatur ad res spirituales intelligendas minime idoneo, atque in idololatriam propenso.

Quod attinet ad locum, in quo creati fuerunt Angeli, non alium fuisse, quam Caelum Empyreum, docet S. Thomas. In eo enim loco conditos fuisse statuendum est, a quo praevaricatores dejecti ceciderunt; Atqui ceciderunt e Caelo Empyreo ut patet ex illo Luc. Cap. 10 n° 18: Videbam Satanam, sicut fulgur, de Caelo cadentem, cui convenit et illud Isaiae Cap. 14. n° 12 Quomodo cecidisti de Caelo Lucifer, qui mane oriebaris? ubi de supremo Caelo mentionem fieri testatur Augustinus Lib. 11 de Civitate Dei. In Empyreo igitur caelo conditi fuerunt Angeli.

Caput 4tum

De immortalitate Angelorum.

Quum vel ab ipsis Ecclesiae Patribus et mortales, et immortales dicti sint Angeli, ut has veluti discrepantes sententias ad concordiam revocemus, animadvertendum est diversimode Angelos vocari posse mortales. Imprimis enim mortale illud dicitur, quod alicui mutationi subest, unde Augustinus Lib. 11. de Trinitate, Cap. 9 ait Ipsa mutabilitas non inconvenienter mortalitas dicitur, secundum quam et anima dicitur mori. Et contra Maximum: omnis mutatio est quaedam mors. Nam quod mutationi obnoxium est, desinit quodammodo esse. Porro in hoc sensu mortales sunt Angeli, quum de loco in locum, et de operatione in operationem possint transire. 2do illud appellari solet mortale, quod virtute divina potest in nihilum redigi, quo sensu idem S. Augustinus Epist. 50 ait non ob aliud res deficere posse, nisi quod ex nihilo factae sunt; Atque mortalitatem hanc creaturis omnibus, adeoque etiam Angelis convenire certum est. Siquidem, tametsi Angeli non sint morituri, quum eorum mors a Deo impediatur, mortales tamen sunt, ut ajunt Scholastici ab extrinseco, quum aliud sit non esse morituros, aliud esse vere, et proprie immortales. Hinc Plato ipse, ut scribit in Theologicis Proclus docuit minores Deos, scilicet Angelos nec esse immortales, nec tamen morituros. 3tio mortale dicitur, quod ab alio immortalitatem accepit. Hinc Autor responsorum ad orthodoxos Solus Deus immortalitatem dicitur habere, eoque non ex alterius voluntate eam habet, sicut caeteri omnes immortales, sed ex suapte essentia. Ut paucis omnia complectar, mortale est illud, quod alicui subjicitur mutationi, quod ex nihilo productum est, quod Dei voluntate non deficit. Quare, quum Angeli et ex aliqua parte immutentur, et ex nihilo producti fuerint, et a Dei voluntate habeant, ne deficiant, manifestum est eos quodammodo esse mortales.

Verum si immortalitas sumatur, quatenus idem est, ac permanentia substantiae, quae nullam habet intrinsecam potentiam inclinantem se ad non existendum: Angeli natura sua dicendi sunt immortales. Id autem duobus potissimum argumentis confirmatur. Primum est. ~~omne corpus~~ Omne, quod suapte natura ~~[illegible]~~ corrumpitur dissolubile est quod est dissolubile partes habet, quod habet partes extensum est, atque corporeum; sed Angeli non habent corpus. Ergo neque partes habent, quae dissolvi, et naturaliter possint interire. 2dum argumentum est. Si deficeret Angelus, non ad instar corporearum rerum, per corruptionem deficeret, sed per suam annihilationem. Atqui nulla res potest naturaliter in nihilum redigi, sed per hoc duntaxat, quod causa superior extrinseca suam subtrahat conservationem, quemadmodum ex nihilo nulla res producitur, nisi per Creatoris omnipotentiam. Ergo naturaliter nequeunt Angeli deficere. Ergo sunt immortales.

Pneumatologiae

Liber 3tius.

De Mente humana.

Caput i.

De natura mentis humanae.

Postquam de mentibus ab omni materiae commercio secretis, quae naturali ratione investigari possunt, disputavimus; constituta nos admonet methodus, ut 3tium genus mentium organicis nostris corporibus unitarum contemplemur. Res equidem non ita facilis est, quae in accuratam, solidamque quaestionem vocetur, ita tamen necessaria, ut, ea ignorata, ignorare nos nosmetipsos necesse sit. Duplex quaestio est, inquit D. Augustinus Lib. 2. de ordine, Cap. 18; una de anima, altera de Deo. Prima efficit, ut nosmetipsos noverimus, altera ut originem nostram. Illa nobis dulcior, ista carior. Illa nos dignos beata vita, beatos haec facit.

Sunt qui de anima nostra inique philosophantur, utpote qui medium tenentes nullum, ad extrema plane opposita confugiunt, vel animam humanam ad Angelorum naturam, et dignitatem extollentes, vel ad Belluarum, et rerum etiam inanimatarum sortem deprimentes. Certe tot sunt in hac re diversae, atque inter se contrariae maximorum etiam Philosophorum opiniones, ut nullus fortasse in tota Philosophia major, atque intricatior sit labyrinthus; Propterea multas quum enumerasset Tullius Harum, inquit, sententiarum, quae vera sit, Deus aliquis viderit, quae verisimillima, magna quaestio est. Et Lactantius aliquas commemoraturus. Quid autem sit anima, n̄dum inter Philosophos convenit.

Ad veterum Philosophorum placita quod attinet; Fuere, qui animam corpoream naturam dixerunt, fuere etiam, qui incorpoream. Qui animam esse corpus putarunt, ii sane permulti sunt. Nam quemadmodum ex variis elementis constare omnia volebant, ita et circa animam, referente Aristotele, ratiocinabantur. Et quod anima quidem esset ex sola terra, nemini dictum, sed ex sola aqua, memorat Hipponem in ea fuisse sententia, eo quod semen, a quo vocatur anima prima, humidum esset. His accedunt qui antiquitus mechanicam philosophandi rationem sequuti sunt. Ex his nonnulli animam esse corpus quoddam tenuissimum opinati sunt, vel ignem, vel aereum fecerunt, ut de Anaximandro testatur Theodoretus, de Anaximene Macrobius, de Anaxagora, et Arcesilao Stobæus; vel non ignem, inter quos ab Aristotele enumerantur Leucippus, et Democritus, qui ut ignem, sic animam coalescere voluerunt ex rotundis atomis, quæ totum corpus permeare, et movere facile possent. Zeno vero, universique Stoici, teste Tullio, ignem commiscuere rebus omnibus, ex quo omnes Deos, animasque deduxerunt. Ceteros mitto, qui non unicum assumpsere elementum; atque ad eam opinionem venio, quæ animam in sanguine collocat, secundum illud Virgilii Æneadum 9.

Purpuream vomit ille animam.

Et sanguinem quidem Chrysias apud Aristotelem dixit esse animam, persuasus fortasse, sentiendi vim, quæ in anima comperitur, e sanguine prodire; cui et consensit Empedocles. Hanc [illegible] fortasse [illegible] multi quod sanguinis detractione et excedere animam, et [illegible] vitam, experientia compertum sit. Hæc veterum Philosophorum [illegible] qui animam corpoream fecerunt naturam.

Videamus modo, quinam ex antiquis, et quomodo animam hominis corpus non esse contenderint. Spiritualem esse animam præ ceteris arbitrati sunt Pythagoras, Plato, ipsique adeo universi Pythagorei, et Platonici, qui aut illam habent veluti substantiam, seu quiddam existens per se, haud veluti formam, et qualitatem, hoc est accidens, inseparabileve adunctum. Ac Pythagoram [illegible] animam [illegible] partem [illegible], tradit Laertius. Alii vero ex quibus Platonicus, asseruerunt animam, propter suam simplicitatem, jungi immediate non posse crassis huic corporis, ideoque necessum esse, ut quendam induat quasi corporis florem, spiritum videlicet tenuissimum, seu igneum seu aereum, quo mediante alium deinde sumat paulo crassiorem, ac postea alium, et rursus alium, quousque in humores possit recipi, ac tandem in carneas, et alias solidiores partes transire.

Christiani [illegible], qui [illegible] Platonicæ Philosophiæ adhæserant, [illegible] hominis animam [illegible] uno [illegible] excepto Tertulliano. Constant [illegible] ~~Bracarense et Viennense~~ Concilium id expressis verbis definivit, quum dixit Verbum divinum assumpsisse carnem, animam rationalem, atque incorpoream. Sententiam hanc, ut prætermittam Bracarensem, et Viennensem, confirmavit sub Innocentio 3tio Lateranensis 4ta Synodus in Decreto contra Albigenses, quum statuit Deum ab initio temporis utramque de nihilo condidisse creaturam, angelicam, et mundanam, deinde humanam, quasi communem ex corpore, et spiritu constitutam; adeo propterea, ut Gratianus in 2da parte Decreti, Causa 24, quæst. 3. Cap. [illegible] autem Hæretici inter Hæreticos enumeret Tertullianistas animam corpoream prædicantes. Non defuere tamen, et nostris quoque temporibus non desunt apud Heterodoxos potissimum, maximi nominis Viri, qui mentem humanam vel esse corpus existimant, vel corporis qualitatem, atque affectionem. 3o abhinc sæculis, corpoream naturam esse animam sensit Petrus Pomponatius in Academia Patavina Prælector, et Philosophorum illius ætatis facile Princeps, qui eam per seminales vires traduci asserebat. Post Pomponatium Thomas Hobbesius Britannus secta Epicureus, et professione Atheus mentem hominum incorpoream esse negavit, quum suis in Libris nihil aliud esse operationes mentis contendit quam actiones, et reactiones cerebri. Ab Hobbesio non dissentire videtur Joannes Lockius, qui Lib. 4. de intellectu humano, Cap. 3. n.o 6. in dubium revocat, utrum cogitatio materiæ affectio esse possit: Ac tandem superioribus annis in [illegible] Libro inscripto Homo machina, ejusdem opinionis se se ostendit [illegible]; ut merito propterea Parisiensis Senatus Decreto, indignum adeo opus per manus Carnificis in ignem fuerit injectum; et illius author metu fortasse permotus se se, ut ferunt, ad Regem Borussiæ contulerit. Ut autem Theoriam hanc adversus tam veteres, quam recentiores Epicureos, clarius, evidentiusque, quo fieri potest, agamus, sit [illegible] 1. Quod cogitat in homine omnino diversum est a materia; sive: Materiæ repugnat cogitatio.

Pro [illegible]. [illegible] extensionem, soliditatem, inertiam, mobilitatem, [illegible], [illegible], Gravitatem, et vim attractionis, quæ corporis nostri [illegible], et ceterorum quorumcunque corporum [illegible] sunt; aliud quiddam in nobis animadvertimus, quod cum [illegible] intelligimus nullatenus convenire. Objecta quippe percipimus, hujusmodi perceptionum, sive idearum consilio [illegible], de perceptis rebus judicamus, et ratiocinamur. Uno verbo: est in nobis cogitatio, quam materiæ esse veluti affectionem quandam nihili immerito suspicaremur. Nam ut recte argumentatur Henricus Morus in Præfatione ad Libros de immortalitate Animæ, tum Lib. 2. Cap. 1, et Antonius Genuensis 2da parte Elementorum Metaphysicæ, Cap. 1. quum præter motionem, in corpore nullam aliam actionem intelligamus (Omne quippe incrementum, decrementum, generatio, [illegible] [illegible]) si cogitationem materiæ convenire posse in animum induxerimus, non alio modo [illegible] judicium, ratiocinationem existimare possumus quam motiones [illegible], actione [illegible], et reactione [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] actione: [illegible] [illegible] mentis [illegible] asserit nemo.

Nam primo, si ~~[illegible]~~ objectorum simplices perceptiones, cerebri motiones sunt, ut placet Hobbesio, necesse erit, ut tot sint in cerebro diversæ, atque inter se distinctæ motiones, quot sunt inter se distinctæ atque diver sæ rerum ideæ. Sicuti n., quia nihil aliud soni sunt, quam tremuli, seu subsultorii motus exiguarum partium sonantis corporis, ut chordarum in ~~[illegible]~~ Psalterio diversi toni A, B, C, D, explicentur, statuendi sunt diversi, atq. inter se distincti tremuli motus P, Q, R, S, (inepte quippe, et perridicule contenderes quis, eodem subsultorio motu P, produci diversos, atq. distinctos tonos A, B, C, D) ita, quia in hypothesi Hobbesiana nihil aliud sunt ideæ, quam actio extimarum cerebri partium in intimas, et reactio intimarum in extimas, tot profecto erunt in nostro cerebro motiones, seu tot erunt distincti, atq. diversi actionis, et reactionis partium cerebri conflictus, quot sunt in nobis distinctæ, atq. diversæ ideæ; et tamdiu perseverabunt in cerebro diversæ hujusmodi motiones, quamdiu diversæ ideæ nobis vivide obversabuntur.

Porro, quum motus sit actio, qua Ens de loco extrinseco in locum extrinsecum fertur, seu, translatio corporis ex una in aliam spatii partem (moveri siquidem corpus A non intelligimus, nisi a spatii parte A transferatur in B, vel C, vel D, etc.) necessario consequitur, ut argumentatur Genuensis parte 2da Elementorum Metaphysicæ, Cap. 1, alicujus corporis motum in eadem indivisibili spatii parte fieri non posse, adeoq. diversas, atq. distinctas Hobbesianas ideas, quæ ex actionis, et reactionis conflictu resultant, in indivisibili cerebri parte non posse excogitari; neq. etiam quod in parte illa, seu puncto indivisibili, diversi, atq. distincti motus tamdiu perseverant durare, quamdiu claræ, atq. vividæ rerum ideæ in nobis perdurant. Huic veri clarissimi et castissimo momento sequentem addimus Demonstrationem. Si motus in eadem indivisibili sive spatii, sive materiæ parte haberi non potest, tot necessario actu existent in cerebro inter se divisæ partes, quot sunt cerebri actiones, et reactiones singulas ideas repræsentantes (actio quippe unius particulæ cerebri in aliam negi quidem potest, quin eadem concipiatur particula translata ab A in B. Eademq. ratione intelligi nequit reactio secundæ cerebri particulæ in primam, quin intelligatur translata a B in A) Jam vero quum nos nati simus ad contemplandum summum universi Artificem, et totum simul universum, tantus est in singulis hominibus, ac Philosophis potissimum, idearum numerus, ut pene sit infinitus. Nam quot sunt in mundo diversa, et distincta corpora, ut substantias materiales corpore haudquaquam donatas, quot sunt eorumdem corporum diversæ magnitudines, figuræ, vires, attributa diversa atq. diversæ proprietates, tot necessario existunt singulorum hominum de objectorum similitudines, seu ideæ; adeo ut ferme infinitus sit, aut saltem esse possit in singulis hominibus idearum numerus, quemadmodum infinita fere actu existunt, aut existere possunt objecta nostrarum perceptionum. Juxta ergo, uti superius demonstravimus, tantus admittendus sit in cerebro motionum diversarum, distinctarumq. numerus, quantus est numerus diversarum idearum, quas cerebri motiones repræsentant: hujusmodi autem motiones, uti pariter probatum est, in indivisibili materiæ parte concipi non possunt; jam tot erunt excitandæ in cerebro nostro divisæ particulæ, quæ singulis totius universi partibus correspondeant, aut saltem correspondere possint; propterea Cerebrum asserendum erit divisibile in partes numero quasi infinitas, quæ quidem non mathematice tantum, sed actu, et physice sint inter se divisæ, sicuti actu sunt inter se divisæ, ~~[illegible]~~ rerum universarum ideæ: Quæ quantum a recta ratione distent, nemo est, qui non videat.

Non possunt itaq. admitti ideæ Hobbesianæ, quin adeo exiguæ fingantur motæ cerebri partes tot ideas exhibentes, ut realiter non sint divisibiles [illegible] motiones, et ideæ Hobbesianæ. Hinc apposite ad rem nostram Phricus Morus de immortalitate animæ Lib 2 Cap 1. Hæc parvitudo, quæ tam exigua est, ut partes integrales realiter distinguendas proprie non habeat, quin potius est subjectum receptivum adspectus, puta dimidiati horizontis simul? Quæ certo afficitur reali, distinctorum motu a realibus, distinctisq. partibus objecti visi procedente .... Præterea si hæc tam minuta parvitas distincte cujusvis potest objecta varigata, puta omnia sunt, ... aeris, et atmosphæræ particulas, luminis globulos, et subtilissimam quamq. texturam partium corporum opacorum recipere possit.

Quod si rerum simplices perceptiones corporei motus esse non possunt, neq. judicia, ratiocinationes, aut conscientia idearum, judiciorum, ratiocinationum, motiones cerebri esse poterunt; imo multo minus erunt actionis, et reactionis cerebri conflictus, quam simplices objectorum perceptiones, de quibus hactenus disputavimus. Judicium n. est plurium idearum, earumq. relationum perceptio Ratiocinatio est perceptio, et collatio plurium judiciorum Conscientia idearum, judiciorum, ratiocinationum est perceptio idearum, judiciorum, ratiocinationum, adeoq. tot sunt inter se diversæ, atq. distinctæ perceptiones, quot sunt diversa, atq. distincta judicia, ratiocinationes, et conscientiæ perceptionum, judiciorum, ratiocinationum. Quomodo ergo concipi poterunt veluti distinctæ cerebri motiones, si simplices perceptiones nequeunt concipi tanquam distincti cerebri motus? Quomodo tantus excitari poterit in Cerebro partium numerus, qui correspondeat numero tot judiciorum, ratiocinationum, conscientiarum; si tot fere non possumus in distinctis cerebri particulis motiones, quæ repræsentant series idearum? Verum quid plura? Adeo certum est vim cogitandi non esse propriam materiæ vim, neq. cum corporeis motibus esse confundendam, ut interdum Hobbesius sui immemor systematis id fassus sit verbis apertissimis; ait n. in Leviathane [illegible] sibi persuadeat, motione externorum objectorum, non tantum motum, sed et perceptiones produci. Joannes etiam Lockius, qui saltem materiam cogitare posse dubitavit, et Lib 4. de intellectu humano plura ad hanc statuendam hypothesim argumenta collegit; aliis in locis secus opinatus est, imo validissimis rationibus demonstravit convenire non posse corpori cogitationem. Nam primo Lib 4. de intellectu humano cap 10 statuit duo esse genera Entium, cogitantium nempe, et non cogitantium: 2do Ens cogitatione destitutum non posse Ens cogitans producere, aut se ipsum movere. 3tio omnes materiæ particulas cogitatione carere: Quæ certe omnia satis, superq. ostendunt, opinionem illam de materia cogitante confictam duntaxat esse hypothesim. Nam hoc dictant veritas, conficteq. hypotheses ut illi tunc solum veri apparent, quum earum amore incaluit animus, Veritas autem semper eadem stabilis est veritas solis lumini, similes sunt confictæ hypotheses lumini, quod somniamus.

Opponunt 1. Potest cogitatio esse attributum aliquod materiae, quin sit materiae motus. Ergo proposita superius momenta nihil evincunt. Pro: ant: Ignoramus, utrum omnes corporis actiones dicendae sint motiones, vel aliae existant re ipsa in corpore actiones, quae motiones non sunt. Hoc posito, potest cogitatio esse. Ergo etc. Pro. min. Ignota nobis est intima corporis essentia. Ergo etc. Ant. certum est secundum Newtonianae potissimum Physicae principia. Consequentia patet. Nam, si ignoramus corporis essentiam, non inde recte possumus concludere, nullas esse in corpore alias actiones, quam quae motiones appellantur.

R. neg. ant. ad prob. neg. min. ad prob. conc. ant. neg. consequentiam. Quia Philosophi omnes, imo cuncti homines persuasi sunt, actiones quascumque corporis esse motiones, mutationes nempe loci, situs, figuraeque; recte idcirco ratiocinati sumus, quum demonstravimus, vel cogitationem non esse attributum aliquod, aut proprietatem corporis, vel nihil aliud esse quam motiones corporis. Nam, ut statuit Antonius Genuensis Parte 2da Elementorum Metaphysicae Postulato 1., et multo ante Genuensem Cl. Stillingfleetus in Disputatione cum Lockio, quum omnis nostrae cognitionis ambitus nostrarum idearum contineatur, ex ideis, quas habent homines, philosophari debemus; nisi summorum quorumdam ingeniorum sequi velimus indignam tum scribendi cum disputandi rationem, qui ut sapientiores existimentur, ea in medium quandoque proferunt, quae ne ipsi quidem intellexerunt, aut intelligere unquam potuere. Nobis persuadeamus oportet, habere mentes humanas terminos suos; neque posse nos, in iis potissimum, quae ad nostram cognitionem pertinent, systemata a ceterorum hominum ideis aliena excogitare, quin res effingamus omnino ignotas, atque ineptas, quas nisi Joviales, aut Saturnales homines ~~[illegible]~~ percipiant, Telluris profecto incolae percipient nunquam. Ex sapientibus se se ridiculos faciunt, qui novis semper abstractis ideis studentes, Pythagorae numeros, formas substantiales Aristotelis, intellectum universalem Arabum, Animam mundanam, rerumque omnium sensum, ac perceptionem Campanellae, cognitionem omnium in Deo Malebranchii, harmoniam praestabilitam, et Monades Leibnitii, atque alia consimilia vel excitasse, vel invenisse gloriantur, quae nusquam fuerunt, aut futura sunt; adeo ut in philosophando ea ~~[illegible]~~ ~~proponere~~ non liceat, quae omnem nostrarum idearum ambitum, omnemque perspicientiam fugiunt. Porro in hoc aspectabili universo nihil esse praeter materiam, et motum, communis est universorum hominum opinio; ita ut contrarium asserere nullo modo possit Philosophus, quin adversus ideas, quae in omnibus existunt, ratiocinetur. Mediante motu, inquit Joannes Keilius cum omnibus melioribus Philosophis Introductione ad veram Physicam Lectione 6, se prodit natura ea rerum varietate agendi, quae videri non sine stupore debet; eo sublato, omnis periret Mundi ornatus, et spectabilis pulchritudo; atque horrendae tenebrae, et infinitus torpor res omnes occuparent. Ab hoc pendent dierum, et noctium vicissitudines, frigoris, et caloris, nivis, pluviae, et serenitatis sese mutuo excipientium tanta varietas, atque anni tempestates omnes. Per motum crescunt Plantae, nutriuntur arbores, vivunt animalia, quorum ipsa vita nihil in motu, hoc est sanguinis circulatione consistat. Sed quid singulis enumerandis morer, quum res omnes ex motu nascantur? Quare, si secundum hominum ideas nihil est in natura praeter motum atque actiones quorumcumque corporum motiones sunt; merito cum superius laudato Henrico Moro asseruimus, cogitationem esse materiae aliquem motum, si nihil est in universo praeter materiam, et si principium cogitationis non est aliquid a materia diversum.

Neque est, cur sibi Materialistae persuadeant, perceptionem esse fortasse posse materiae attributum a motu materiae diversum, quum nos ignoremus omnia materiae attributa, ignorata intima illius essentia. Cum Lockio, Musschenbroekio, atque universis Newtonianae Philosophiae amatoribus, fatemur ingenue, latere nos corporis naturam, illud nempe, quo posito, corpus ponitur, quo sublato, corpus tollitur; quum, licet octo superius enumerata corporis attributa intelligamus, nondum tamen demonstrare possimus, omnia nobis, quae in corporibus sunt, innotuisse. Verum non ignoramus, imo certo scimus, quaecumque innotescerent excogitanda fortasse corporis attributa non esse repugnantia cum attributis, quae hactenus novimus; ideoque sumus ea quoque vel ab excitato, vel a suffocato corporis motu profectura, quemadmodum illa, de quibus inter se Philosophi conveniunt. Etenim, ut recte argumentantur P. D. Hyacinthus Sigismundus Gerdil in sua Demonstratione immaterialitatis animae adversus Lockium Parte 3, Sect. 3 n° 40, et Genuensis Parte 2da Elementorum Metaphysicae, Cap. 1; si vis cogitandi corporea vis est, a vi motrice distincta, atque diversa; vel hujusmodi cogitandi vis exerit in corpore actiones suas motionibus quibusdam corporeis, vel quibusdam motionibus alterius omnino generis. Si primum: perceptiones itaque corporeae, cerebri scilicet motiones sunt, atque vis ipsa cogitandi corporea vis motrix est. Si 2dum: quum motus, et cogitatio generis sint diversorum a se mutuo haudquaquam pendentium, imo totis essentiis differentium; vis quoque cogitandi, atque vis motrix totis essentiis a se invicem distabunt, ita ut altera alteram destruat, neque ex viribus illis diversarum essentiarum una, eademque corporea substantia possit constare. Quapropter, vel perceptiones nostrae, si sunt affectiones substantiae corporeae, corporis, adeoque cerebri motiones sunt, vel, si motiones non sunt, actiones erunt substantiae a corporea substantia omnino diversae.

Opponunt 2do. Quamvis vis cogitandi a vi corporis motrice diversa sit, ea tamen convenire potest substantiae corporeae. Ergo etc. Pro ant. Quamvis aliae sint vires a vi corporis motrice omnino diversae, eae tamen secundum summorum Philosophorum systemata, conveniunt corporibus. Ergo etc. Ant. prob: Praeter motricem vim, secundum meliores Philosophos, sunt in omnibus corporibus vires quaedam activae, quae habendae sunt incorporeae. Ergo etc. Ant. certum est. Nam Leibnitius in Actis Eruditorum Lipsiae: Hartsoekerus in Cursu Physico, Cap. 1. et Genuensis Elementorum Metaphysicae Parte 1 Propositionibus 94, 95, et 96, clarius loqui non poterant. Accedit, quod vis Electrica, vis, qua corpora gravitant, et vis, qua omnes materiae particulae ad se mutuo accedunt, seu universalis vis attrahens Newtonianorum nihil aliud sint, quam vires incorporeae substantiae corporeae, adeoque omnino diversae a viribus, quas in corporibus vulgo agnoscimus. Cur ergo substantiae corporeę adscribi n̄ poterit vis cogitandi incorporea?

R. ne: ant. ad prob. ne. ant. ad prob: dist. ant. Præter motricem vim etiam sunt in corporibus vires quędam activę, quę habendę sunt incorporeę, hoc ē, quę habendę n̄ sunt veluti corpora conc. sunt vires quędam activę, quę omnino habendę sunt incorporeę, et a vi corporum motrice essentialiter diversę ne. ant. et consequens. Laudati Philosophi, qui in omnibus corporibus vim quandam essentialem agnoscunt, qua sibi mutuo resistant, seu vim quandam motricem primitivam, duo in corporibus semper agnt, non idcirco eam incorpoream nuncupant, quod putent eē essentialiter diversam a viribus V.G. aut centripetis, aut centrifugis corporum; sed ut indicarent duntaxat hujusmodi activam vim n̄ eē mãam, aut corpus, verum corporis solummodo affectionem, seu modum. Arabum, et Scholasticorum Peripateticorum Philosophia substantiarum modos totveluti substantias fecerat: Quia massam V.G. mãæ terream contemplabantur, quin ejus vel pyramidalem, vel conicam figuram eodem tempore excogitarent, sibi effinxêre hujusmodi figuras veluti res quasdam propria existentia donatas, quę tñ per se n̄ subsisterent, sed alteri rei, substantię scilicet inhęrerent. Quoniam itaq. contra mãalem raonem laudati Philosophi modos, seu accidentia corporum cum ipsismet corporibus pperam confundebant, asserentes motum, figuram, soliditatem, aliaq. id genus corporea attributa totidem eē corporeas entitates; n̄ immerito Leibnitius, Hartsoekerus, cęteriq. recentiores Physici, mãæ affectiones dixerunt incorporeas, ne scilicet cum Scholasticis Peripateticis modos, et affectiones corporum veluti mãales entitates, ac quędam quasi corpora facerent. Hoc annuloquutos fuisse laudatos Philosophos, certo certius ē. Nam iidem ipsi, qui vim electricam, qui vim gravitatis, qui universalem vim attrahentem incorporeas vires nuncuparunt, fassi sunt eas eē vires ita corporibus peculiares, ut convenire spiritibus nullo modo possent; adeo ut per eas, tanquam p corporea attributa, et corporeas proprietates essentialiter distinguantur a spiritibus corpora. Sunt ergo, secundum recentiores Philosophos, aliquę in corporibus incorporeę vires, eo modo quo, secundum mathematicos, puncta, lineę, et superficies in corporibus existunt; sicuti tñ puncta, lineę, et superficies incorporeę sunt, quatenus non sunt ipsa mãa; ita incorporeę sunt corporum vires, propterea quod ipsamet corpora n̄ sunt. Verum, quemadmodum lineę, et superficies, tametsi mãa haudquaquam sint, in mãa tñ existunt, tanquam illius modi, atque termini mãales; ita, licet corporum vires incorporeę sint, corporibus tñ conveniunt veluti corporeę eorum affectiones. Paucis. Incorporeum ~~vel in sensu lato, et impropprio dici potē, vel in sensu rigido, et proprio~~. Primo mãe, quod non præsefert raonem corporis, quod nimirum neq. solidum ē, neq figuratum, neq. mobile est, in corpore tñ recipi potē veluti attributum, ac proprietas corporea. 2dum ē, quod totā essentia differt a corpore, nec corpori propterea potē convenire. Primę incorporeę vires recte admittuntur in corporibus; incorporea autem cogitandi vis, quę, uti superius demonstravimus, a vi corporis motrice omnino diversa ē, atq. essentialiter differt a cęteris corporis viribus, quę incorporeę dicuntur in sensu lato a quibusdam Philosophis, n̄ potē excogitari veluti corporeum quoddam attributum.

Instabunt. Quanquam vis cogitandi non ē attributum ejusdem nãę cum cęteris corporeis attributis, potē tñ corpus cogitare. Ergo etc. Pro. ant: n̄ repugnat, fuisse a Deo creatam fluidam quandam substantiam nãę diversę ab iis corporibus, quę cognoscimus, ejq. substantię p totum corpus organicum diffusę eam vim, qua cogitamus, fuisse tributam. Ergo etc.

R. ne. ant: ad prob. transm. ant: ne: conseqm. Tametsi ad fluidam quandam substantiam p totum corpus diffusam confugiant Materialistę, nunquam probaturi sunt cogitaonem eē posse corporum affectionem, nisi velint cogitandi vim a vi corporum motrice haudquaquam distingui. Enimvero, vel fluida ista substantia donata ē eadem nãa, iisdemq. attributis, et viribus, quibus cętera donantur corpora; vel n̄? Si neq. eadem donatur nãa, neq. iisdem viribus, fluida ergo ista substantia jam n̄ erit corporea, proindeq. neq. cogitandi vis corporea quędam affectio, ut contendunt Mãalistę. Si prędita ē eadem nãa, iisdemq. viribus cum cęteris quibuscunque corporibus; quum in quolibet corpore n̄nisi motrices vires reperiantur, quemadmodum superius demonstravimus; jam cogitaõ n̄nisi p illius fluidi motionem pficietur; quod tñ intelligi, et multo explicari ~~haud~~ potē propter infinitam ferme seriem idearum, judiciorum, raociaonum, quemadmodum ~~[illegible]~~ in illo, de quo agitur, satis fuse probavimus. Transmisimus autem 2dum antecedens, quia repugnat, re attente spectata, Deum condidisse fluidam aliquam corpoream substantiam nãę diversę a cęteris corporibus, eidemq. vim cogitandi concessisse; uti inferius demonstraturi sumus.

Opponunt 3tio cum Lockio L.6.4. de Intellectu humano, Cap. 3. n.° 5 inquiente. In novis ideas ens quadrati, Circuli, et ęqualitatis; Circulum tñ, quem quadrato ęqualem eē certo sciremus, nunquam fortasse inveniemus. Ideas efficiens mãę, et cogitaonis, at fortasse haud manifesto comperiemus unquam, utrum aliqd pure mãale cogitet, nec ne. Nobis n̄ impossibile ē nostras tantum ideas intuentes, sine revelaonis adminiculo, dispicere, an Deus omnipotens quibusdam mãę portionibus, ita uti ipsi ad hoc propositum visum ē, dispositis, percipiendi, et cogitandi facultatem tribuerit, aut mãę ita dispositę cogitantem substantiam immãalem adjunxerit.

R. sine revelaonis adminiculo, nostrasq. duntaxat ideas intuentes, optime nos intelligere omnipotentem Deum cogitandi facultatem quibusdam mãę portionibus n̄ concessisse. Nam, ut animadvertit P. Gerdil laudata superius Demonstraone, Parte 5, sect. 2, imo ipsomet docente Lockio L.6.4. Cap. 10, n̄ alia de causa mãa nequit excogitari veluti primum ens cogitans, quam quia talis ē nãa mãæ solida extensione donatę, ut nequeat, si quiescens supponatur, sese determinare ad motum, ideoq. partes semel in motu positæ, possunt duntaxat in se invicem impingi, et in alias partes secari. Jam impossibile ẽ mãam [ait Lockius] unacum motu producere ex se cogitaõnem, quam impossibile sit nihil producere posse mãam; ut n. mãa produceret cogitaõnem, necesse esset, dispoõnem partium solidarum mãæ evadere cogitaõnem ipsam; quo nihil ~~fatente Lockio~~, absurdius. Jam vero si ꝑ solam nostrarum contemplaõnem idearum ita raciocinamur secundum Lockiana principia; satis evidenter constat, absq. revelaõne posse nos certo statuere, omnipotentem Deum mãæ particulis n̄ attribuisse cogitandi facultatem. Docente itaq. ipsomet Lockio, in simplici, et pura mãa cogitaõ contineri n̄ potẽ; adeoq. Deus aliquid tribuere debuisset mãæ, qđ ipsius naturam excederet, simul ac mãam condere voluisset cogitantem: unde evidenter consequitur simplicem, puramq. mãam n̄ posse cogitare. Qđ ait Vir Cl., posse suspicari nos, utrum Deus adjunxerit mãæ substantiam immaterialem cogitantem; n̄ inficiamur. Verum, si Deus immaterialem hanc adjunxit substantiam; jam n̄ mãa, sed immaterialis substantia principium erit cogitaõnis, contra systema materialistarum.

Sed ut Lockium cum ipsomet Lockio ulterius conferamus, notandum ẽ 2do cum Card. Gerdil ꝑ nostrarum intuitum idearum cognoscere nos, ens aliqđ preditum propria realitate, et existentia distincta ab existentia, et realitate alterius entis, ẽẽ substantiam quandam, quæ ad aliud ens, tanquam illius affectio, seu modus, ptinere n̄ potẽ. Cubus e. g. ligneus alicui plano superpositus substantia quædam ẽ a plano distincta, adeout nemo absurde opinaretur, cubum ẽẽ facultatem, seu proprietatem plani, aut planum ẽẽ facultatem, et affectionem cubi. Hic nos discimus, docente Lockio, ex sinu mãæ educi n̄ potẽ cogitandi facultas, aut a dispoõne materialium particularum produci; n̄ possumus nostras contemplantes ideas adjungere illam mãæ, quin concipiamus eam ex nihilo creatam a Deo, sicuti ac initio mundi creata fuit ex nihilo ipsa mãa. Quia autem existere effectus ẽ creaõnis, et ens qđcumq. creatum a Deo separatim ab alio ente donatur propria existentia distincta ab existentia alterius entis, cogitandi facultas, producta, uti supponimus, a Deo in mãa ꝑ creaõnem quandam distinctam a creaõne mãæ, propria gaudebit existentia distincta ab existentia mãæ; adeoq. excogitanda erit veluti substantia quædam distincta omnino a mãa. Facultas ergo cogitandi statui n̄ potẽ tanquam attributum, aut proprietas mãæ.

3tio, vel existimat Lockius, alicujus subjecti attributa n̄ aliud ẽẽ, quam ejusdem subjecti modificaõnes, quæ n̄ gaudent realitate aliqua distincta a realitate subjecti, quemadmodum fere omnes recentes Philosophi opinantur; vel putat subjecti attributa ẽẽ entia quædam ab ipso subjecto realiter distincta: si postremum asserit Vir Cl.: quis n̄ videt accidentia et formas substantiales Scholasticorum rursus excitari, quas idem ipse Lockius suis in libris rejicit, et veluti ridiculas atq. chymaricas contemnit? Intellectus ergo, et voluntas, contra ipsius Lockii definitionem, duo erunt entia realiter ab anima distincta: Poterit ergo Deus duas hasce facultates a singulis abstrahere mentibus: Facultas ergo, seu ens intellectus meæ uniri poterit vestri, et meis adjungi attributum voluntatis vestri; Quæ quidem, ipso fatente Lockio, indigna ꝑinde ac ridicula sunt. Qđ si attributa subjecti ẽẽ velit modificaõnem duntaxat subjecti haudquaquam distinctam a realitate subjecti; jam fatendum illi erit, cogitandi facultatem concipi n̄ posse veluti facultatem, seu attributum mãæ. Nam si secundum Lockiana principia primariæ qualitates, seu attributa mãæ sunt soliditas, figura, motus, et partium solidarum textura; atq. ab hujusmodi mãæ attributis omnes proficiscuntur ejusdem mãæ qualitates seu facultates: si, docente Lockio, a recensitis mãæ primariis qualitatibus non dependet facultas cogitandi; nostras consulentes ideas suspicari nullatenus possumus, utrum facultas cogitandi evadere possit facultas, aut attributum mãæ; qđ erat ex ipso Lockio demonstrandum.

Instabit Lockius, n̄ posse nos fortasse merito suspicari, utrum Deus facultatem cogitandi adjunxerit mãæ, posse tñ suspicari, utrum quibusdam mãæ particulis ita dispositis rursus tribuerit vim cogitandi.

Verum hujusmodi Lockianum effugium nihil omnino evincere, ex iis, quæ hactenus cum ipso Lockio diximus, satis constat. Si n. textura, seu dispoõ partium mãæ nullo modo producere potẽ cogitaõnem: si vis cogitandi oriri n̄ potẽ in mãa, quin concipiamus fuisse illam creatam a Deo seorsim a mãa; quæcumq. profecto mãæ massa incapax erit cogitaõnis, neq. particularum determinata quædam textura sufficiet, ut merito adscribere possimus mãæ cogitandi facultatem.

Opponunt 4to. cum eodem Lockio. Si repugnat corpora ẽẽ vi cogitandi donata, inquiunt, quia intelligere ꝑ n̄ possumus, quomodo corpora possint cogitare; sed n̄ propterea repugnat corpora ẽẽ reipsa donata vi cogitandi Ergo etc. Pro mi: quamvis n̄ intelligamus, quomodo corpora attrahant a corporibus; n̄ repugnat tñ mutua corporum attractio, imo reipsa existit in rerum natura. Ergo etc.

R. ne: mi. Repugnat n. corpora ẽẽ predita vi cogitandi, n̄ quia intelligere n̄ possumus modum quo corpora cogitant, sed quia satis clare intelligimus corpora nullatenus posse cogitare. Nos per contemplaõnem nostrarum idearum cognoscere evidenter, n̄ posse convenire corporibus cogitaõnem, superius cum eodem Lockio demonstravimus. Alio modo modo monstrandum ẽ, quam absurda sit hujusmodi Lockiana hypothesis. Doctor Stillingfleetus, qui, ut tradit Costa fidus Lockii interpres, celebrem de hac Theoria cum eodem Lockio habuit disputaõnem, [illegible] plura in hanc rem suppeditat nobis argumenta. Ac primo quidem, cum omnis nostra cognitio contineatur ambitu nostrarum idearum, idea autem, quam habemus de mãa, sive de corpore sit idea substantiæ extensæ, solidæ, figuratæ; asserere mãam posse cogitare, idem ẽ, ac ideas mãæ, et spiritus simul confundere. Qđ si asserat Lockius n̄ confundi propterea ideam mãæ cum idea spiritus, quemadmodum n̄ confunditur idea mãæ generatim spectatæ cum idea equi, quem dicimus mãam generice sumptam ẽẽ substantiam solidam, et extensam, equum vero ẽẽ animal, seu substantiam solidam, extensam sensu, et spontaneo motu preditam, si hæc, inquam, asserat, vim Stillingfletiani argumenti haudquaquam declinat. Nam, ut mirabile P. Gerdil Par. 6. Sect. 1: Cum alicujus subjecti, sive substantiæ facultates nihil aliud sint, quam modi qui inest substantiæ, modus autem non sit nisi ipsa substantia, quatenus hunc vel illum existit in modum, tribuere corporeæ substantiæ facultates illas, quæ propriæ sunt substantiarum spiritualium, idem est ac tribuere substantiis corporeis modos spirituum proprios, idem propterea ac confundere ideam corporis cum idea spiritus. Exemplum ab Equo petitum nullius roboris est. Etenim, vel Lockius in Equo materiam duntaxat, et mechanismum agnoscit; vel admittit in Equo substantiam aliquam a materia distinctam, quæ habenda sit veluti principium sensationis, et spontaneæ motionis, quas in Equo supponit. Si primum; in Equo igitur sensatio, et spontanea motio ne recitandæ quidem sunt, quum per generales motus leges haberi non possint: si secundum: utitur ergo Lockius exemplo ad rem nostram haudquaquam faciente; uti quisque videt.

Sed instat Lockius. Materiæ generatim sumptæ idea est idea substantiæ extensæ, et solidæ, sed nihil prohibet quominus materiæ quandam alias qualitates addiderit Deus. Sicuti enim non destruit Deus essentiam materiæ, quum substantiæ extensæ, et solidæ motum addit, vegetationem, attractionem, ita poterit Deus tribuere materiæ vim cogitatricem, quin destruatur essentia materiæ.

Verum, quum ita argumentatur Lockius nimis perturbat, atque confundit attributa corporum cum attributis substantiarum spiritualium. Quum idea materiæ sit idea rei extensæ, et solidæ, nequit addi materiæ attractio, motus, vegetatio, quin destruatur idea, et essentia materiæ; propterea quod attractio atque motus sunt primariæ qualitates, seu attributa substantiarum quarumcumque materialium, vegetatio autem est proprietas, seu secundaria earumdem qualitas. Quare, sicuti non destruit Deus essentiam materiæ, quum illi soliditatem, et extensionem adjungit, quæ essentiales sunt materiæ qualitates; ita neque illius destruit essentiam, quum addit motum, attractionem, vegetationem, quæ non secus ac soliditas atque extensio, proficiscuntur ab essentia materiæ. Sed; quibus unquam argumentis demonstravit Vir Cl. vim cogitatricem esse vel primariam, vel secundariam materiæ qualitatem? Sed hanc supponit duntaxat contra universalem materiæ notionem, imo contra definitionem, quam ipsemet alibi statuit. Non posset itaque Deus superaddere materiæ vim cogitatricem, servata illius essentia, quum vis hæc non solum non pertineat ad essentiam materiæ, immo eidem prorsus repugnet. Neque fingere potest Lockius, posse Deum massæ alicui materiæ tribuere alias eam qualitates, quæ in illius idea, atque essentia non continentur; quin sibimet manifeste contradicat. Docet enim L. 2. Cap. 8 in materia duo esse admittenda qualitatum genera, qualitates nempe primarias, cujusmodi sunt soliditas extensio, certa quædam figura, et mobilitas, ac qualitates quasdam secundarias, quæ a primariis omnino dependeant. Jam vero, vel qualitates, quas fingit Lockius posse Deum tribuere materiæ, ad primarias aut secundarias pertinent illius qualitates, vel non? Si primum, qualitates itaque illæ continentur in essentia materiæ, contra illius hypothesim. Si secundum, admittit ergo Lockius accidentia Peripateticorum, quæ tanquam chymerica docet esse rejicienda. Quum qualitates illæ non contentæ in essentia materiæ nihil aliud essent, quam entia propria realitate donata et a materia prorsus distincta.

Si instet Lockius; Jam in substantiis materialibus, quam spiritualibus plura esse, quæ nos haudquaquam cognoscimus, atque inde concludat, posse fortasse corporibus convenire vim cogitandi, atque sentiendi; nimis infirmo utitur argumento. Libenter concedimus ignorare nos quæcumque sive ad spiritus, sive ad corpora pertinent. Sed quis propterea asserat nosse et spiritus, et corpora omnibus donari facultatibus, atque attributis? Quis propterea sibi persuadeat, in duas hasce diversis substantiis eas contineri qualitates, quæ earum naturæ repugnant? Aliud ergo est, non omnia a nobis cognosci, quæ alicui substantiæ conveniunt; aliud est, nihil prorsus in aliqua substantia cognosci. Non intelligimus equidem quidquid aut spiritus, aut corporis proprium est, satemur tamen evidenter, convenire corpori soliditatem et repugnare spiritui, convenire spiritui vim cogitandi, et repugnare corpori.

Opponunt 5. Si Deus non posset adscribere, atque unire materiæ facultatem cogitandi, nimis imperfectus esset Deus, sed concipi Deum imperfectum, repugnat. Ergo etc. Pro. maj. Si Deus non posset etc., divina potentia aliquibus esset contenta finibus; sed si divina potentia etc. nimis imperfectus esset Deus. Ergo etc. Pro. min. Si Deus non posset etc. Deus non posset omnia; sed si non posset omnia, divina illius potentia aliquibus esset contenta finibus. Ergo etc.

R. neg. maj. ad prob. neg. maj. ad prob. dist. maj.: Si Deus non posset tribuere materiæ facultatem cogitandi, Deus non posset omnia, non posset nimirum ea efficere, quæ manifestam contradictionem involvunt conc.: non posset omnia, quæ nullam contradictionem involvunt neg. maj. dist. pariter min. Sed si non posset omnia, quæ nullam contradictionem involvunt, divina illius potentia etc. conc. Sed si non posset ea, quæ contradictionem involvunt, divina illius potentia etc. neg. min. et conseq. Qui sibi persuasi sunt, omnipotentem Deum non posse creare massam aliquam materiæ præditam vi cogitandi, nec posse quibusdam materiæ particulis quomodocumque dispositis elargiri facultatem cogitatricem; divinæ potentiæ limites haudquaquam statuunt. Immerito nos redarguit Lockius, quod negantes esse possibilem materiam aliquam cogitatione donatam, asseramus divinam virtutem iisdem esse contentam finibus, quibus infirmus humanus intellectus continetur. Non dicimus, repugnare materiam cogitantem, quod ignoremus modos illos, quibus posset Deus tribuere materiæ vim cogitatricem; sed non posse Deum hujusmodi materiam condere pro certo habemus; propterea quod materia cogitans manifestam præsefert contradictionem. Potest ergo Deus res numero infinitas creare, quæ nostri intellectus vim superant, non potest tamen illa efficere, quæ præseferunt manifestam contradictionem, quia evidenter concipimus, contradictoria fieri non posse a Deo, quin Deus ea simul efficeret, et destrueret, quin propterea contradictoria existerent eodem tempore, et non existerent. Quare divinæ potentiæ nullos statuimus limites, quum dicimus non posse Deum tribuere mãe cogitandi facultatem. Multa non potest Deus, ait D. Augustinus in Libro de Symbolo, et omnipotens est: et ideo omnipotens, quia ista non potest. Et Hugo Victorinus Lib. 1. de Sacramento fidei: Summe potens est, qui potest omne, quod possibile est. Nec ideo minus potest, quod impossibilia non potest; quia impossibilia posse non esset posse, sed non posse.

Instabunt. Summe potens Deus mutare potest corpus aliquod in substantiam spiritualem: ergo potest eam attribuere mãe vim cogitandi. Hunc certe ipso latente Stillingfleeto, qui acriter impugnavit systema materialistarum, consequentia pariter certa videtur. Nam, ut argumentatur Lockius, si Deus potest efficere, ut corpus evadat spiritus, cur non potest ab aliqua substantia auferre soliditatem, qua prius erat donata, et quam constituebat substantiam materialem, eidemque tribuere facultatem cogitandi, qua prius erat destituta, et quam evadat substantia spiritualis, eadem semper manens substantia?

R. neg. ant. et conseq. Quamquam Doctor Stillingfleetus materialistarum pestes acerrimus, ne divinae omnipotentiae limites poneret, concesserit Lockio, posse Deum mutare corpus in spiritum, sub tradit Acolla; contendendum est tamen mutationem hanc, de qua agitur, includere contradictionem, et proinde a Deo non posse. Nam vocabulum hoc mutationis vel proprie sumi potest, vel in sensu lato, et improprio. Improprie rem aliquam mutari dicimus in aliam, cum significare volumus, loco alicujus rei positam fuisse aliam rem, quin tamen prima conversa fuerit in 2dam. Sic mutari vestem in domum, domum frequenter dicere solemus, non quod prior domus, aut vestis conversa sit in posteriorem, sed quia loco primae vestis, vel domus, alia fuit substituta vestis, aliusque cibus, alia domus. 2do proprie, et in sensu rigido asserimus rem aliquam mutari in aliam, cum intelligimus rem aliquam ita mutari, ut post mutationem eadem maneat, quae prius fuerat, ea tamen evadat, quae prius non erat: sic aqua mutatur in glaciem, lignum mutatur in ignem, quoniam, mutatione facta, eadem remanet sive aquae, sive ligni materia, quae prius fuerat, licet tam lignum, quam aqua desinant esse, quod ante mutationem erant. Porro, si in sensu duntaxat lato, et improprio loquantur materialistae, concedimus, posse Deum mutare corpus aliquod in spiritum, cum possit aliquod corpus in nihilum redigere, eoque in nihilum redacto, creare spiritum, et loco destructi corporis substituere. Verum, si mutari posse Deum in sensu proprio mutare corpus in spiritum, negamus hujusmodi mutationem, quae absque contradictione fieri non potest, esse Deo possibilem. Et sane, quum corporis cujuscumque substantia sit essentialiter substantia materialis, extensa nempe, solida et ex partibus composita, supponere non possumus, corpoream aliquam substantiam mutari in substantiam immaterialem, eandemque substantiam manere post mutationem substantiam materialem, quin supponamus unam, eandemque rem esse simul extensam, et non extensam, solidam, et non solidam, corpus proptereа et non corpus, quae, ut quisque videt, manifestam involvunt contradictionem. Contra vero absque ulla repugnantia mutari vere et proprie aliquod corpus in aliud corpus, eadem manente post mutationem substantia, quae prius fuerat, quia cum corpora omnia solida sint, extensa, et ex partibus composita, atque differant solummodo ab invicem extrinseca structura, textura partium minutissimarum materiae, potest absque ulla contradictione, prior mutari textura earumdem particularum, quin mutetur propterea substantia rei, quae tam in ligno, quam in igne, tam in aqua, quam in glacie semper est extensa, semper solida, semper ex partibus composita. Sed qui dicit, aliquam posse corpoream aliquam substantiam evadere substantiam immaterialem, et post mutationem tamen eandem manere substantiam, non poterit hanc statuere hypothesim, nisi sibi persuadere velit, aut corpora realiter esse distincta a propria substantia, ita ut, destructo corpore, corporea substantia non sit destructa, aut corpora non esse essentialiter substantiam materialem, aut substantiam demum materialem evadere posse immaterialem, et simul manere substantiam materialem: quae quantum a recta ratione aliena sint, nemo est sanae mentis, qui non videat. Falsum ergo est, quod veluti certissimum ponunt Stillingfleeto Lockius, posito nempe summe potentem Deum mutare corpus in spiritum, jam recte ergo inferre poterat, posse Deum ab aliqua substantia auferre soliditatem, qua prius erat donata, et per quam constituebatur substantia materialis, eidemque tribuere facultatem cogitandi, qua prius erat destituta, et per quam evadat substantia spiritualis, eadem semper manens substantia.

Prop. 2da. Facultas cogitandi convenire non potest, nisi substantiae spirituali et incorporeae, adeoque quum sit in nobis cogitatio, est in nobis spiritualis cogitationis principium, seu spiritualis anima.

Pro 1ma quoad primam partem. Facultas cogitandi, quemadmodum in superiori propositione diximus, et nunc et jam demonstratum sumus, est non potest corporeum aliquod essentiale attributum, imo cum essentialibus corporum attributis pugnat omnino. Est ergo cogitandi facultas attributum alicujus substantiae a corpore omnino diversae, substantiae proinde spiritualis, et incorporeae. Quod cogitandi vis essentialiter diversa sit a variis, seu attributis corporum, imo repugnet cum facultatibus corporum, patet jam, si aliqua corporum attributa expendamus, et cum vi cogitandi comparemus. Id, ut pauca reperimus, animadvertimus cum omnibus recentioris nostri Philosophis, ut essentialia corporea attributa mobilitatem cum divisibilitate conjunctam soliditatis, partium. Atque alia omnia convenientia corporum cum facultate cogitandi consistere nullatenus possunt. Nam primo soliditas ea est cujuscumque corporis affectio, qua fit, ut una ejusdem corporis pars resistat alteri, ne eundem occupet locum. Porro, cum hoc corporeo attributo pugnare facultatem cogitandi, seu ratiocinandi, perspicuum est. Ut ita argumentatur Cl. Genuensis Elementorum Metaphysicae parte 2da, cap. 1 propositione 1; Cogitatio, atque ratiocinatio potissimum est actio quaedam, per quam plures ideae simul uniuntur, et comparantur. Fingamus modo singulas ideas nihil aliud esse, quam motiones corporis, quemadmodum revera motiones sunt, si a corporis actionibus non differunt. Facta hac hypothesi, ratiocinatio, actio nimirum, qua plures ideae comparantur, vocetur A. Ideae quae in actionem A simul conferuntur, nuncupentur B, C, D, E, et, ponamus singulas ideas supponunt aliquas corporis distinctae motiones, ut ponamus singulas velut motiones solidi. Jam porro, quum ut habeat ratiocinatio, tum debet comparatio ideae, singulae ideae B, C, D, E confluere debebunt, et se mutuo representare in A, ut habeatur ratiocinatio, et actio A, uti manifestum est. Jam vero, vel singulae ideae simul uniantur in A, quod totidem distinctae particulae solidi, quae sunt totidem subjecta idearum, seu motionum B, C, D, E, simul existant, et compenetrentur in unum, vel quia actiones tantum B, C, D, E nec sint subjecta confluant in unum; sed actiones

B, C, D, E, conferre in unum sine suis subiectis, ne dicere quidem possumus, quum modificationes existere nequeant sine suis subiectis, quemadmodum in superiori lectione adnotavimus: singulae vero particulae soliditatis, quae sint tota sua subiecta motionum, seu idearum B, C, D, E, non possunt concentrari in unum, quin penitus evertatur soliditas. Certum itaque est cogitationem, et ratiocinationem omnino pugnare cum soliditate. 2do quodcumque corpus quod sit extensione praeditum, adeoque resultans ex partibus, dividi potest, atque secari in partes, (corporeae) neque cum attributo divisibilitatis consistere posse facultatem cogitandi, facile potest demonstrari. Supponamus enim subiectum cogitans G dividi in partes B, C, D, E. Cogitatio A vel ad singulas illas extenditur partes, vel non; Ad singulas illas non extendi partes concipere non possumus, quia a cogitatione defluerent ideae B, C, D, E, quin praeterea everteretur cogitatio A; Cogitatio itaque A extenditur ad omnes partes B, C, D, E, in quas divisum supponitur sui esse cogitans G. Quod si extenditur ad omnes illas partes, vel cogitatio A dividitur pariter in partes, vel erit indivisibilis in omnibus partibus B, C, D, E in tota scilicet illarum extensione; si erit indivisibilis, intelligi profecto non poterit, quomodo subiectum cogitans G divisum sit in partes B, C, D, E, aut quomodo iisdem partibus coextendatur cogitatio A, seu continere possit diversas ideas B, C, D, E. Si vero cogitatio A dividitur pariter in partes, in partes P, Q, R, S, vel quaelibet illius pars v. c. P complectetur integram comparationem idearum B, C, D, E, vel singulae illius partes continerent duntaxat singulas ideas, adeoque P complectetur B, Q C, R D, S E. Neutrum autem dici potest. Non primum, quia cogitatio A, prout extenditur ad omnes partes, seu ideas B, C, D, E, non esset divisa in partes P, Q, R, S, quemadmodum supponitur: non 2dum, quia tota everteretur natura cogitationis A, quae est una actio plures comparans ideas B, C, D, E, non congeries plurium distinctarum actionum P, Q, R, S. Cogitatio ergo, et ratiocinatio, quum sint comprehensiones plurium idearum in unum indivisibile, pugnant cum divisibilitate.

Sed, et cum corporeo attributo inertiae pugnare vim cogitandi, manifestum est. Inertia enim, ut tradit Isaacus Newtonus in Mathematicis principiis, est vis insita materiae, qua corpus unumquodque, quantum in se est, perseverat in statu suo quiescendi, vel movendi; ut per eam fiat, quod omne corpus de statu suo vel quiescendi, vel movendi difficulter deturbetur. Facultas autem cogitandi a corporea predicta vi toto differt caelo. Etenim singulis nobis inest libertas, facultas nempe agendi; et ab actione cessandi, satis compertum est apud celebriores Philosophos; et nos eam inferius demonstraturi sumus; libertatem autem a ratione pendere, et cum ratione coniunctam esse verti in dubium nequit. Sed ratio a cogitandi vi haudquaquam distinguitur. Quum ergo libertas evertat inertiam, liquido constat, vim quoque cogitandi cum inertia pugnare.

Praeterea, quoniam corporibus omnibus convenit vis inertiae, ubicumque sit axioma illud, quod statuit Newtonus Principiorum Mathematicorum Lemmate 2do; Mutationem, nempe, motus proportionalem esse vi motrici impressae, et fieri secundum lineam rectam, qua vis illa imprimitur. Sed cogitatione, et ratiocinatione totum hoc evertit. Axioma, quum de infinitis rebus cogitemus, quin aliter actione aliqua externa, et libertas sit in nobis unius demonstrationis seriem interrumpere, alteramque omnino diversam incipere, quod vel sentit, ut lubet, possumus repetere, vel intermittere. Rursus; maiorem, vel minorem attentionem possumus adhibere. Minorem eam attentionem vel possumus intendere, vel remittere. Ab imaginatione quoties lubeat transimus ad intellectionem, ab intellectione ad imaginationem. Quae omnia cum corporea vi inertiae, et cum iis, quae ex illa sequuntur, prorsus repugnant. Demonstratum itaque est facultatem cogitandi haberi nullatenus posse veluti corporeum attributum, quum consistere non possit cum divisibilitate, soliditate, inertia quae corporum quorumcumque attributa sunt, adeoque concludendum erit, hanc praecipuam esse facultatem cuiusdam substantiae omnino spiritualis, et incorporeae.

Probatur Propositio quoad 2dam partem. Quia cogitationes, quas in nobis animadvertimus, actiones quaedam sunt a vi receptrice proficiscentes; vires autem, quaecumque sint tam corporeae, quam incorporeae, non habent veluti entitates propria realitate, et existentia donatas; sed necessario inhaerere debent alicui subiecto, sive substantiae, cuius modi, seu facultates dicuntur; necesse est, ut aliquid existat subiectum, cui cogitandi facultas inhaereat, quodve principium sit in nobis omnium nostrarum cogitationum. Sed huiusmodi subiectum non potest esse corpus, praeterea quod perceptio, volitio ratiocinatio, et conscientia nostrarum perceptionum, iudiciorum, ratiocinationum non aliter fieri possent in corpore, quam motione partium corporearum, ut in superiori lectione diximus; quod tamen modo fieri repugnat. Cogitationes itaque sunt modi, seu attributa alicuius subiecti incorporei. Sed huiusmodi incorporeum subiectum seu incorporeum cogitationis principium nuncupatur mens, sive anima humana. Ergo existit in nobis incorporea, seu spiritualis anima.

Confirmatur. Si mens humana non est incorporea, vel erit temperatio partium corporis, quam videamus, et sentiamus, ut placuit Dicearcho Aristotelis discipulo, vel erit attributum aliquod corpori essentiale. Primum dici nequit, quia in ea hypothesi nihil aliud essent operationes mentis, quam motiones partium corporis, quod evidenter repugnat. Secundum neque potest; quia, quum facultates, et operationes mentis pugnent cum praecipuis corporis essentialibus attributis, eadem substantia materialis praedita facultate cogitandi constaret ex iis, quae se mutuo destruunt, quod pariter evidenter repugnat: Principium itaque cogitationis, sive mens, sive anima spiritualis omnino est, et incorporea, quod erat demonstrandum.

Opponunt 1 Anima humana in corpore recipitur organico, atque in eo se habet, prout est forma in subiecto. Concipi autem non potest quomodo spirituale, inextensum, indivisibile recipiatur in corpore, quod extensione praeditum est, et recta in plures potest secari partes. Neque enim in corpore aliquid esse potest quod sit appendendas incorporeum; neque in re incorporea, quod corpus visibilis contineat. Si ergo incorporea mens recipitur in corpore, veluti forma in subiecto, non spiritualis, sed visibilis est natura cum subiecto.

R. animam humanam recipi in corpore organico modo spirituali proprio; nec tamen posse corpori inhaerere, quemadmodum forma corporum ipsimet inhaeret corporibus, tanquam subiecto materiali; quippe anima non ita nostrum afficit corpus, ut in ito corpore more depereat, atq. ab eo pendeat extrinsecus, sed unitæ corpori, quatenus corpori unitum, ut inquit D. Augustinus Libro de quantitate animæ, Cap 33 præsentia sua vivificat, colligit in unum, atq in uno tenet, diffluere, atq contabescere n. sinit: alimenta p membra, æqualiter suis cuiq reddita, distribui facit congruentiam, eiu q modum conservat n. tantum in pulchritudine, sed etiam in crescendo, atq gignendo. Mens igitur ē in corpore, ita ut eidem præsit, et in ipsum, veluti domina, suum exerceat imperium. Quamdiu in eodem, inquit D. Aug., sunt anima et corpus, hoc quidem servire, atq subesse natura jubet; hanc vero regere, atq dominari. Quamquam tametsi concipi n. posset, quomodo spiritualis anima corpori uniri queat, et unum cum ito compositum constituere; n. tamen idcirco negan-da esset spiritualis natura. Enimvero, numquid ideo negandum ē, ait D. Augustinus, quod apertum ē, quia comprehendi n. potest, quod occultum ē? Numquid propterea dicturi sumus, quod ita ē [illegible], n. ita ē; quoniam, cur ita sit, n. possumus invenire? Cæterum; unio spiritualis animæ cum corpore concipi facile potest, quotiescumq divina agendi vis in prima mundi constitutione spectetur. Nam qui omnia condidit ex nihilo, efficere profecto potuit, ut spiritualis anima inclinationem haberet ad corpus, atq ita se haberet in corpore, ut tanquam pars essentialis, et operationum principium, totum una cum corpore constitueret hominem.

Instabunt. Inter corpus, et spiritum nulla ē proportio ergo, si mens humana substantia esset spiritualis, corpori n. posset uniri.

R. dist. ant. Inter corpus, et spiritum nulla ē proportio naturæ conc. nulla ē proportio effectivi ad effectibile ne. ant: et conseq. Inter corpus, et spiritum n. datur proportionem; quam inter se habent duæ ejusdem propriæ generis, et ordinis substantiæ, certum ē omnino quia ē inter se differunt corpus ut extensum, et spiritus cogitans. Verum illud quam certum ē; intercedere nimirum inter corpus, et spiritum proportionem illam, quæ requiritur ut corpus perficiatur a spiritu, et unum intrinsecum compositum ex unione corporis, et spiritus constituatur; quæ, quominus habeantur, diversa, atq præstantior spiritus natura haudquaquam obstat.

Opponunt 2do. Anima hominis easdem mutationes patitur, quibus obnoxium ē corpus humanum. Experimur n. in parvulis crescere una cum corpore animam, vigere in juvenibus, debilitari in senibus, fatigari in laborantibus, deficere in deliquio turbari in ebrietate, errare in phreneticis, et amentibus, et fere extinctam videri in corpore profunde dormientium. Cum ergo mutari videamus animam, n. secus ac corpora; eadem erit natura animæ, quæ corporum.

R. vere cum corpore n. crescere, neq deficere animam licet in juvenibus sensim adolescere debilitari in senibus, torpere in dormientibus, atq in morbo aliquo affectis videatur languescere; Hæc quippe n. animæ, sed corporis vitia sunt. Crescere autem, vigere, debilitari, et torpere videtur anima; quia, cum a corpore in suis dependeat operationibus, perfectius operatur, adeoq crescere videtur, dum sensim perficitur corpus, imperfectius vero, & inde ac si tamen debilior fieret, dum corpus vel somno corripitur, vel morbo affligitur. Hinc D. Augustinus, cum in Libro de quantitate animæ Cap 22 Epicureorum commentis satisfecisset, concludit inquiens. Nullum igitur crescentis animæ argumentum ē, vires in majori ætate majores. Quæcumq itaq apparet hominis mutatio, cum adolescit, viget, senescit, n. in ipsa revera anima contingit, sed in sensoriis corporis organis, qui bene, maleve si afficiantur, n. ipsa aliquid patitur, sed illius duntaxat functiones aut vigent, aut languescunt. Nam ea lege, et conditione unita ē corpori organico anima, ut p vibratorios, et oscillatorios motus nervis, nerveisq partibus impressos, variæ perceptiones, et differentes sensationum species, gratæ nimirum, vel ingratæ excitentur. Rursus; talis ancilla fuit lex inter animam, et corpus, ut quo major vibrantium, et nervearum membranarum tensio esset, earumq ab externo objecto vehementior agitatio, eo acutior, ac sensibilior esset animæ perceptio; et, quo magis nerveæ membranæ remissæ forent, atq humoris obsessæ, eo magis minueretur sensatio, proindeq mentis perceptio. Ex his patet, cur in adolescentibus adolescere animam, in senibus vero senescere videatur. Juvenes n. teneras, tensasq fibras obtinent fluido quodam tenuissimo repletas, adeoq vividiores in ipsis sensationes, atq ex sensationibus vividiores perceptiones nascuntur; senes vero, cum rigidiores nerveas membranas habeant, et superfluis iam humoribus plenas, in suis sensationibus, et perceptionibus languescere videntur

Mirandum n. ē, si in deliquio mentem deficere, in ebrietate turbari, in phrenesi, et amentia videatur aberrare. Debilitato siquidem, nec amplius vigente sensorio organo, infirmus duntaxat in modum potest mens suas exercere functiones. Et confusis ob immoderatum vini usum factis in cerebro impressionibus, confuse etiam, et inordinate percipere mens cogitur, quæ tamen nihil revera in se patitur. In phrenesi demum, et amentia, corpus, n. anima vehementer jactatur, atq distrahitur. Compertum n. ē omnibus, quod si medici interdum pharmaco, et elleboro hujusmodi morbos curare nituntur, et nunquam sanant, tota curatio, et optima restituta valetudo ad corpus, n. ad incorpoream refertur animam. Atq obstat, quod mens, perinde ac corpus, dicatur medicina sanari, nam id in familiari quidem sermone usu venit, revera tamen n. consistit. Quare, quemadmodum si quis ob inæqualem calceorum altitudinem claudicat, tametsi claudicatio homini illa dicatur tota tamen claudicationis causa ad solos calceos ē referenda, soliq calcei reducendi ad æqualitatem, ut ille nihil in se passus recte incedat, ita si homines morbis contabescere, insanire, curari dicuntur, tota insania, atq curatio spectat ad corpus, hoc ē ad cerebrum, et sensorios, quibus indiget, corporis organos, quos tantum purgari, restituique oportet, ut mens, quæ potuerat nollet functiones suas rite obire:

Opponunt 3tio: animam et spiritualem simul dici posse, et corpoream. Nam, sicuti, inquiunt, diversa ē idea musici ab idea medici, diversæ sunt proprietates unius a proprietatibus alterius, potest tamen idem numero homo et musicus ē, et medicus, ita licet diversa sit idea substantiæ cogitantis ab idea substantiæ extensæ; n. obstat tamen, quin anima sit spiritualis simul, et corporea.

R. latissimum ē discrimen inter animæ, ac corporis, et hominis musici simul, et medici tum ideas, tum actiones, tum proprietates. Nam idea medici negative tantum excludit ideam musici, idem eam præcise n. includit, quum possit aliquis spectari ut medicus, tametsi n. spectetur ut musicus; n. autem excludit ideam positive. Idea quippe musici semper supponit mentem, cui inest musica, sicut idea medici supponit mentem, in qua ars continetur medica, adeo proinde, ut tam

Medici, quam Musici ideae in eo conveniant, ut sint modi mentis, seu ipsa mens certo modo affecta, nec una proinde complete, ac positive excludat alteram, sed negative tantum, et incomplete. Aliter autem omnino se res habet inter ideam substantiae cogitantis, et ideam substantiae extensae, seu inter ideam mentis, et ideam corporis. Nam idea rei extensae positive, et complete, idest, secundum se, totam removet a se ideam rei cogitantis, et vicissim, propterea cogitatio, et extensio in uno, eodemque subiecto non possunt consistere. Rursus; idem numerice homo potest esse et Musicus, et Medicus, quia actiones, et proprietates tam Medici, quam Musici differunt duntaxat inter se, non opponuntur, neque se se invicem excludunt; verum quum actiones, et proprietates, quae a mente humana proficiscuntur, non solum sint diversae ab iis, quae corporeae substantiae conveniunt, verum etiam sint oppositae, et se positive excludentes, ut diximus in probatione; aliter omnino de spirituali anima sentiendum est, ac de homine musico simul, et Medico.

Instabunt 1. mentem humanam corpoream esse naturam, propterea quod in suis motionibus, et volitionibus dependet a corpore. Nos enim intelligimus corpus aliquod movere posse aliud corpus, non autem percipimus, qui fieri possit, ut corpus moveat spiritum. Itaque si, ut cogitet anima, moveri debet a corpore, dicendum erit moveri adinstar corporum, esse proinde corpoream.

R. animam humanam corpori unitam dependere in suis exercendis operationibus a sensoriis corporis organis; nec tamen moveri adinstar corporum aut esse corpoream. Quum enim in producendis rerum sensibilium ideis, non dependeat a corpore mens, nisi quatenus determinatur a phantasmate, veluti ab obiecto, ad unius potius, quam alterius rei sensibilis ideam producendam, et phantasma sit imago rei sensibilis facta in cerebro ex organorum sensoriorum immutatione; in hoc tantum sensu dependet, seu movetur mens a corpore, quod corporis ministerio occurrant menti rerum illae imagines, quarum ideas ipsa producit. Quare dependentia ista mentis non obstat, quominus spiritualis asseratur natura, nisi velimus asserere nullam finitam substantiam cogitatione donatam esse spiritualem. Quod, si intelligere non possumus, quomodo corpus, seu phantasmata moveant animam ad producendas ideas, seu quomodo dependere possit a corpore spiritus; non propterea inferendum erit, reipsa non dependere a corpore animam; quum non desint miranda sane phenomena, quorum conditionem ignoremus. Sed ut de volitionibus potissimum animae seu motionibus aliqua dicamus, eas ingenti natura incorporeas esse, ex eo patet, quod quidquid vult, et appetit anima, illud semper appetat ob aliquem finem sibi libere propositum. Multoties enim, ut cuique experientia compertum est, rem pulcherrimam, jucundissimamque odio habemus, quia scimus eam nobis esse noxiam, et pleraque in se asperam, rudemque amore prosequimur, quia aliunde novimus utilem nobis futuram. Hinc fidem, atque benevolentiam in amico, virtutem in probis viris summopere diligimus. Quid in sanctis, praeclare Augustinus Tractatu 3. in Ioannem, quid in Martyribus amamus? Membra laniata a feris? Quid foedius, si oculos carnis, quid pulchrius, si oculos mentis interroges? Quia tibi videtur adolescens pulcherrimus? Fur quomodo horrent oculi tui? Quum audis, quia fur est, fugis hominem animo. Vides ex alia parte senem curvum, baculo innitentem, vix se moventem, rugis undequaque exaratum. Quid vides, quod oculos delectet? Audis, quia justus est, amas, complecteris. Quare, si, experientia teste, ita in nobis volitiones, nolitionesque fluunt, ut in diversos libere nobis constitutos fines feramur, diversisque modis afficiamur objectis extra sidem sensuum contentis; nemini dubium esse potest, quin aliquid sit in nobis natura praestantius, voluntas nimirum, quae, non secus ac caeterae facultates animae, non sit vis quaedam corporis donata.

Instabunt 2do, mentem humanam cognoscentem res corporeas dici debere corpoream, quum certum sit apud omnes, cognitionem fieri per quandam similitudinem inter cognitum objectum, et facultatem cognoscentem.

Verum respondendum est, quandam utique requiri in omni cognitione similitudinem rei cognitae cum re cognoscente, quae tamen in repraesentatione consistat, non autem se teneat parte naturae. Hinc mens humana, ut corporea cognoscat objecta, debet producere ideas, quae objecta repraesentent, non debet tamen naturam cognitis corporis similem includere. Consequens enim aliquin foret, vel Deum ignorare res corporeas, vel ipsum quoque esse corporeum, nec posse mentem humanam, cum sit corporeae expers naturae, monstrum altissimum percipere, quum similem non habeat huic menti altitudinem.

Opponunt 3tio aliqua scripturarum divinarum testimonia, ex quibus inferendum esse putant, animam esse corpoream. Sapientiae enim Cap. 2. vers. 2 haec habentur: Ex nihilo nati sumus, et post hoc erimus, tanquam non fuerimus; Quoniam fumus flatus est in naribus nostris: et sermo scintilla ad commovendum cor nostrum: Qua extincta cinis erit corpus nostrum, et spiritus diffundetur tanquam mollis aer. Geneseos Cap 37 v. 22. Ruben Jacobi Filius Fratres suos, ne Josephum occiderent, his deprecatus verbis: non interficiatis animam ejus. Anima autem, quam sacrae scripturae adinstar mollis aeris diffundi, et posse interfici indicant, non potest esse incorporea. Tandem, Levitici Cap 17 ter vicibus dicitur animam omnis carnis in sanguine consistere. Celebriores etiam Ecclesiae Patres corporeae naturae docuerunt esse animam. D. enim Hilarius, Cap 5 in Matthaeum haec habet. Animarum species sive obtinentium corpora, sive corporibus exulantium, corpoream tamen naturae suae substantiam sortiuntur, quia omne, quod creatum est, in aliquo sit, necesse est. D. Augustinus Lib. 7 de Genesi ad literam Cap. 67, et sequentibus docet creatam forte fuisse spiritualem quandam materiam, ex qua facta anima fuerit, ut creata terra, ex qua factum corpus. In ea denique sententia fuerunt Origenes, Irenaeus, Arnobius, Tatianus, Cassianus, atque alii tam Graeci, quam Latini Patres.

R. et primo ad textum desumptum ex Cap 2 Sapientiae. Quum ait Sapiens Ex nihilo nati sumus etc. haudquaquam loquitur quasi divini oraculi testimonium referens, sed quae ab impiis excogitata, et prolata fuerunt verba exprimit; ut evidenter demonstrant, quae initio ejusdem Capitis leguntur. Dixerunt enim apud se non recte. Nihil ergo contra nos evincit laudatus textus. Sed neque quidquam probat deprecatio ista Ruben ad Fratres suos. Mos siquidem est scripturarum, ut docet S. Joannes Chrysostomus Hom. 66 in Caput 43 Geneseos, aliquando pro anima totum hominem sumere. Sic Geneseos Cap. 14, quum Rex Sodomorum diviturus esset praedam cum Abrahamo revertente a caede Chodorlahomor, dixit eidem Abrahamo: Da mihi animas, caetera tolle tibi. idest, da mihi hostes captivos, tu autem retine eorum spolia. Sic Geneseos pariter Cap. 46 v. 26 dicitur Cunctae animae, quae ingressae sunt cum Jacob in Egyptum, et egressae sunt de more illius, absque uxoribus Filiorum ejus, sexaginta sex: nimirum cuncti homines, qui e generatione descenderunt a Jacob et cum eo ingressi sunt in Aegyptum, fuerunt, exceptis Filiorum uxoribus, sexaginta sex. Absurde propterea non est, si etiam a Ruben laudato loco animi dicamus animam pro toto homine, qui vere interficitur, quum, vulnere inflicto, et sanguine effuso, mens a corpore separatur. Quum autem Leviticus Cap. 17 dicit animam omnis carnis esse in sanguine, sensus minime est, animam a sanguine non distingui, sed a sanguine potissimum unitam corpori animam dependere, ut mox edicunt omnes rationes. Sic dictum est, inquit D. Augustinus, anima omnis carnis est sanguis, quomodo dictum est: Petra erat Christus, scilicet, non quia hoc erat, sed quia hoc significabat. Non autem frustra lex animam voluit significare per sanguinem, rem scilicet invisibilem per rem visibilem; quia sanguis per venas manans ab ipso corde diffusus in nostro corpore plus ceteris humoribus principatur, ita ut ubicumque fuerit vulnus inflictum, non humor alius, sed iste procedat. Ita quoque anima, qua omnibus, quibus constamus, invisibiliter praevalet, isto melius significatur, quod omnibus, quibus constamus, visibiliter praevalet. Hactenus Augustinus.

Quo sensu loquuti sint Sancti Ecclesiae Patres, quum animas quandoque nuncupaverunt corporeas, diximus superius Lib. 2do, Cap. 1. in resp. ad objectionem 4tam. Ac certe in eo tantum sensu locutum fuisse D. Hilarium, liquido constat ex iis, quae scribit in Psalmum 129. Inquit n. num. 6. Ergo ad imaginem Dei homo interior effectus est, rationabilis, mobilis, movens, incorporeus, subtilis, aeternus .... Sed anima humana in hac sensus sui mobilitate ad imaginem opificis sui facta est, qua naturam Dei mobilitas animae perennis imitatur. Nihil in se habet corporale, nihil grave, nihil caducum. Quae fuerit in hac re D. Augustini opinio, non aliunde melius constare potest, quam ex ipsius Epistola 28. de natura, et origine animarum ad Hieronymum. Ea, si clarius loqui poterat. Incorpoream, inquit, esse animam, etsi difficile tardioribus persuaderi potest, mihi tamen fateor esse persuasum. Sed, ne verbi controversiam vel superfluo faciam, vel merito patiar; quoniam, quum de re constat, non est opus certare de nomine, si corpus est omnis substantia, vel essentia, vel si quid aptius nuncupatur, id, quod aliquo modo est in se ipso, corpus est anima. Item, si eam solam incorpoream placet appellare naturam, quae summe incommutabilis est, et ubique tota est, corpus est anima; quoniam tale aliquid ipsa non est. Porro, si corpus non est, nisi quod per loci spatium aliqua longitudine latitudine, altitudine ita sistitur, vel movetur, ut majore sui parte majorem locum occupet, breviore breviorem, minusque sit in parte, quam in toto, non est corpus anima. Per totum quippe corpus, quod animat, non locali diffusione, sed quadam vitali intentione porrigitur. Itaque neque Sacrae Scripturae, neque Sancti Ecclesiae Patres negarunt unquam spiritualem et incorpoream esse humanam animam.

Caput 2dum

De immortalitate Animae humanae.

Quamvis ad humanae animae immortalitatem suadendam, inter alia efficacissima rationum momenta, cuilibet satis esse deberet communis ille naturae instinctus quo omnes naturaliter ad immortalitatem tendimus et de futuris post nostrum discessum ex hac vita multoties cogitamus. Nam et propagatio sobolis, et adoptiones Filiorum et dicatio nominis, et Testamentorum diligentia, et ipsa sepulchrorum monumenta, atque elogia satis demonstrant, non mediocrem inesse nobis de nostra immortalitate naturalem sollicitudinem, adeout maximum hoc sit argumentum, ut animadvertit Tullius, naturam scilicet ipsam de immortalitate animorum tacitam judicare; non defuere tamen Philosophi qui contra communem sensum, interire una cum corpore animam existimarent. Sunt, inquit Tullius Lib. 1. Tusc. Quaest., qui nullum censeant fieri discessum, sed una animum, et corpus occidere, animumque cum corpore extingui. Qui discedere animum censent, alii statim dissipari, alii diu permanere, alii semper. Qui animum mortalem tenuerunt fuere inprimis Leucippus, Democritus, et Epicurus. Hic n., ut refert in ejus vita Laertius, dicere solebat, nihil ad nos pertinere, quod acerbissimum malorum sit, et horrendum maxime mori, quoniam, inquiebat, quum nos sumus, mors non adest quum vero mors adest, nos jam non sumus. Non secus quoque de animi duratione senserunt Stoici, hoc tamen discrimine, ut putarent, indoctorum animas, soluto corpore, paulatim concidere, animas vero eorum, qui sapientia, virtuteque claruerunt, ad totius usque mundi conflagrationem esse duraturas. Quae fuerit in hac re Aristotelis opinio, non ita certe statui potest. Animas fuisse mortales, tradunt S. Justinus Martyr, uterque Gregorius Nyssenus, et Nazianzenus. Alexander Aphrodisaeus Aristotelis interpres, aliique non pauci. Fecisse immortales, e contra nobis Theophrastus ejus Auditorem Ammonius, Philoponus, Simplicius, Albertus Magnus, et S. Thomas. Qui denique opinati sunt mentem humanam esse corpoream (quoniam fieri nequit, ut una cum corpore non intereat, quod eadem cum illo ostendunt natura) docuerunt non esse immortalem. Verum, quemadmodum inter antiquos Ethnicos Philosophos inire quamplures, qui animam incorpoream dixerunt naturam: ita fuere quamplures, qui animum sempiternum, et in aeternum victurum affirmarent. Ac primo omnium, si Tullio fidem habemus, id docuit Pherecydes Syrus, si vero Choerilo Poetae apud Laertium credimus, Thales Milesius. Pherecydes sepultus est illius aliquando Auditor Pythagoras Samius, quamvis in eo erraverit, quod animum, quum moritur homo, ex uno in aliud corpus transire, fuerit opinatus. Humanas quoque animas immortales fassi sunt Trismegistus, Zoroastres, Anaxagoras, Archytas aliique quamplures, inter quos praecipuum sibi locum vindicant Socrates, Plato, et summus simul Philosophus, atque Orator M. Tullius. Hae praecipue fuerunt, ut viri eruditi animadvertunt, de separata a corpore anima, inter antiqua Philosophia opiniones.

Philosophi Christiani exceptis nonnullis Heterodoxorum, seu potius Atheorum, esse immortalem humanam animam, simul ac Spiritualem, unanimi ferme consensione semper docuerunt. Id definitum in pluribus Conciliis, secundum omnium fere authoritatem SS. Patrum, imo secundum doctrinam ipsius Xti Domini in Evangelio inquientis Nolite timere eos, qui occidunt corpus, animam autem non possunt occidere. Et Qui odit animam suam in hoc mundo, in vitam aeternam custodit eam. Verum, tametsi permanere post mortem corporis animam, persuasi omnes sint, non eodem tamen modo demonstrare in hac re solent. Nonnulli n. etiam Catholici, in ea sunt opinione, ut immortalitas animorum sola fide certa sit, et nulla demonstratione firmetur, Alii vero contendunt aeternam eorum durationem firmis, et inconcussis rationibus posse persuaderi. Nos postremam hanc amplectimur sententiam. Sed antequam ad ejus probationem veniamus, praemittendum est, quo sensu mortalitas, et immortalitas animae sumi possit. Duplici modo potest vocari aliquid mortale spectari, nimirum vel per dissolutionem partium, ita tamen, ut partes ab invicem separatae conservent, Atque haec improprie tantum mors nuncupatur, vel per interitum, seu, ut Scholae loquuntur, per annihilationem, qua fit, ut substantia, quae prius vivebat vivere, et existere omnino desinat, Atq. hec proprie mors appellatur. Immortalitas pariter duobus modis accipi potest, intrinsece scilicet, et extrinsece. Est intrinsece immortale, quod natura sua perpetuo postulat conservari, nec potest, illius spectata natura, in nihilum redigi. Est extrinsece immortale, quod a nullo prorsus extrinseco agente potest vita privari. Immortalitas intrinseca simul, et extrinseca soli Deo convenit, quum solus Deus ita vivat, ut a nullo extrinseco agente possit illius vita extingui. Immortalitas intrinseca tantum convenit Angelis, et menti humanae, quum naturae viribus eo pervenire nequeant, ut nullas possint amplius vitae functiones exercere, possint tamen, quemadmodum ex nihilo habuerunt originem, ita Deo volente, ad pristinum nihilum reverti. His positis, ut praetermittamus disputationes de anima intrinsece, seu natura sua immortali, seu potius incorruptibili, sit Propositio unica. Animam humanam non esse cum corpore interituram, non solum fide credere debemus, sed evidentissimis rationibus possumus demonstrare.

Pro. 1a. Propositio argumentis ex moralibus principiis derivatis. [illegible] hec autem argumenta [illegible] ex omnium fere gentium, et nationum consensu deducitur. Cum de animarum aeternitate disserimus, inquit Seneca Epist. 118, non leve momentum apud nos habet consensus hominum aut timentium inferos, aut colentium. Omni in re, docente Tullio, consensio omnium gentium lex naturae putanda est. Porro, communem semper fuisse omnium gentium opinionem, animarum vitam esse sempiternam, in dubium revocari non potest. Nam et Indos id pro certo habuisse, tradunt Strabo, et Caelius Rhodiginus, Ac Chaldaeos, Indorumque Magos animae humanae immortalitatem primos omnium docuisse, fatetur Pausanias. Eandem fuisse Aegyptiorum, et Thracum sententiam ex Herodoto, et Mela habemus. Priscos vero illos, quos Latinos, omnium scilicet antiquissimos vocabat apud Tullium Ennius, teste eodem Tullio Lib. 1. Tusc. Quaest., certissime existimavisse esse in morte sensum, neque excessu vitae sic deleri hominem, ut funditus interiret. Idque, inquit deinde Tullius, cum multis aliis rebus, tum e Pontificio iure, et caeremoniis sepulchrorum intelligi licet, quas maximis ingeniis praediti nec tanta cura coluissent, nec violatas tam inexpiabili religione sanxissent, nisi haesisset in eorum mentibus, mortem non interitum esse omnia tollentem, atque delentem, sed quandam quasi migrationem, commutationemque vitae, quae in claris viris et feminis dux in caelum soleret esse, in ceteris humi retineretur, et permaneret tamen. Quod de Gallis accepimus. Horum Druidae, ut refert Julius Caesar Lib. 6 de Bello Gallico, animorum immortalitatem, veluti praecipuum dogma suadere nitebantur, ea potissimum de causa quod hoc maxime ad virtutem excitari putarent, metu mortis neglecto. Tandem ut alias nunc faciam nationes, eam quum in Canarias, Americam, et alia longinqua loca primum ventum est, ait Hugo Grotius, reperta ibi quoque eadem de animis sententia. Concludendum itaque cum Tullio Lib. 1 Tusc. Quaest. Si omnium consensus naturae vox est, omnesque qui ubique sunt, consentiunt esse aliquid, quod ad eos pertineat, qui e vita cesserunt, nobis quoque idem existimandum est.

Alio etiam morali argumento ex summa Dei providentia desumpto probari potest animae immortalitas. Certum enim est huic universo, tanquam verae constitutae Reipublicae, summum praeesse Moderatorem, et Principem, qui et virtutis remuneratorem, et scelerum vindicem. Neque enim casu, et fortuito creati sumus, neque Deus dici potest iniustus. Quis autem non videt [illegible] una cum corpore interiret anima, et male consultum esse [illegible], et sua fraudarentur mercede virtus, et probi, illique [illegible] qui se vitiis, et sceleribus contaminaverunt? Sublata profecto de animorum immortalitate opinione, et summa neganda erit Dei providentia et nullum erit turpitudinis genus, cui se homines scelesti ac perditi [illegible] metu liberati ultro, libenterque non dedant.

Quod autem magis evincit animae nostrae immortalitatem innatus est appetitus ille, quo in ipsam aeternitatem, summumque bonum vehementissime ferimur. Siquidem, ut ait S. Augustinus Lib. de moribus Ecclesiae Cap. 3 Beati omnes vivere volumus, nec quisquam est in hominum genere, qui non huic sententiae, antequam plane sit emissa, consentiat. Porro tantum quod ne omnes innatum aeternae felicitatis desiderium, vel inutile, ac vanum est vel, corporeis vinculis soluto animo, eo, quo tendit, pervenire potest? Si vanum, et inutile est, Accusandus profecto Deus, quod inutilem nobis inseruerit appetitum, accusanda natura, quae ad optandam beatitudinem instinctu vehementissimo nos impellens, efficiensque, ut immortalem vitam speremus, fallat nos semper, turpiterque decipiat. Si vero hujusmodi desiderium neque vanum, neque inutile est, certum itaque est mentem nostram non dissipari in morte, sed a corpore duntaxat disjungi, eique superesse, ac vivere.

Pro 2do Propositio demonstratione Metaphysica ex natura ipsius mentis humanae desumpta. Nam, si nullum deficit corpus, licet in sui divisione minuatur, et varias induat formas, multo minus interire animum putandum est, in quo, ut optime Tullius, nihil sit admixtum, nihil concretum, nihil copulatum, nihil duplex, quod propterea aut secerni, aut dividi, aut discerpi, aut distrahi possit. Mors non attingit animam, ait S. Gregorius Nyssenus, Quomodo enim dissolvi potest, quod non est compositum?

Dices 1. contra primum morale argumentum, non omnes Gentes unanimi consensione animae immortalitatem admittere certum enim est, detectas fuisse in America, Asia, et Africa integras nationes adeo ferarum similes, ut illas nulla immortalitatis opinio moverit. Nam et aliquos populos Novae Franciae, novae Angliae, atque Virginiae in Septentrionali America, et quasdam gentes Paraguariae, et Brasiliae in America meridionali, et Siamenses, Sinenses [redacted] in Asia, et in australi Africae Regionibus Hottentotos, alteram ignorare vitam, tradunt recentiores Historici. Sed, quorsum remotissimarum nationum mores, atque opiniones consulimus? Annon priscis temporibus negata fuit animarum immortalitas ab Epicureis, ceterisque magni nominis Philosophis? Annon hac etiam nostra aetate summi in Boreali potissimum Europa, existunt viri, qui omnia interire putant post corporis dissolutionem? Animas non interire animas, primorum fortasse Legislatorum fuisse commentum, ut metu, et spe futurorum, in suis officiis continerent genus humanum.

R. Omnes omnino Gentes, quas hactenus novimus, persuasas esse de immortalitate animarum, et post hanc vitam aliquid expectandum esse judicium, ne aut iniquis impunitas sine poena, aut magna virtus sine solatio, [illegible] maneat, quemadmodum Hugo Grotius in Lib. 1o de veritate Religionis Christianae, et P. Pomaglia in Dissertatione contra Fatalistas, Sermone Preliminari, aliique viri eruditi demonstrant. Hinc Indi ipsi, quos Brachmanes vocant, praeclaris fuisse refert Strabo hanc vitam habendam esse [illegible] recens concepti fetus statum, mortem vero nativitatem esse ad eam, quae vere vita est, planeque beatam, ut [illegible], qui [illegible] fuerint. Quae vero de nonnullis Americanis, Asiaticis et Africanis populis narrantur, a veritate aliena sunt, si fidem habemus recentioribus, et accuratioribus historicis qui in iis regionibus fuerunt, et earum gentium mores curiosius, attentiusq. examinarunt. Sed, antequam eorum testimonia proferamus; notandum est, quosdam minus diligentes scriptores descripsisse aliquas nationes sine ulla opinione immortalis vitæ, quod, prætermisso accurato examine, sibi in animum inducerent, integras illas nationes sine ulla Religione, et absq. ulla opinione divinitatis, vivere; quod tamen falsum esse, demonstrari facile potest. Nam primo inter septentrionales Americanos nullam esse sine aliquo Deo nationem, plures referunt maximæ fidei scriptores, quos in suo Libro de sacris originibus recenset Cl. Stillingfleetus. Refert n. Dominus Champlain, se a Canadense, seu Novæ Franciæ Rustico homine petiisse, cur apud suas gentes nulla essent sacrificia, nullæq supplicationes, nullus divinitatis cultus; responsum autem accepisse, Canadenses gentes persuasas esse de existentia alicujus colendæ divinitatis, sed extrinsecum cultum, ceremonias, sacrificia, preces in libertate, atq arbitrio suo sic positas gentis suæ. Tatente Purchasio, Novæ Angliæ silvestris incola testatus est interroganti Vitlovio existere secundum patriæ Religionis principia totius orbis authorem Deum, et Kistitan appellari. In itinerariis itineribus Domini le Grand legimus, confirmante P. Sagard, admitti apud Huronos summum Creatorem Deum, Atao üacan nuncupatum; quod et Souriquesii Populi, eodem teste Sagardo, ominant: Habitatores vero Virginiæ unum colere verum omnium conditorem, quem Okäe nominant, recentiores ~~[illegible]~~ ^terræ^ navigationum descriptiones satis manifestant. Ut a septentrionalibus ad Meridionales Americanos veniamus, narrat Nicolaus del Techo in Paraquaria, et Brasilia Diagritos, et Calchaquinos Solem veluti Deum habere, Guacuros Lunam, Guaranos Divinitate quandam proprio apud eos nomine carentem adorare: ~~[illegible]~~ Chilensis Regionis incolas, antequam subderentur Regi Hispaniarum, habuisse Deum quemdam Creatorem, quem Pillan dicebant, idem Nicolaus del Techo consignavit monumentis literarum, confirmantibus Maregravio, aliisq. recentiorum historicis. Non secus sentiendum est de barbaris, atq. incultis Africæ nationibus, quas aliqui docuere esse destitutas omni cognitione divinitatis. Galanos n. Abissiniæ populis finitimos, Cælum veluti Deum colere, scribit in historia Æthiopiæ Ludolfus; Gentes, quæ Insulam Madagascar incolunt adorare supremum Conditorem, narrant Bellonius, et Educhius. Eandemq. esse opinionem, tametsi aliquantum confusam, apud Cafros, testatur Joannes de Santos. P. Tachardus, et Dominus de la Louvere tradunt Populos Promontorii bonæ spei habere aliquam notitiam, et cultum Dei: ~~At~~ novissime Andreas Kolbius, qui jussu Regis Borussiæ, decem annorum spatio, in australi parte illa Africæ moratus est, et summa diligentia earum gentium mores notavit, linguam didicit, ~~atq~~ ^pluribus^ muneribus earum sibi familiaritatem conciliavit; in descriptione Promontorii bonæ spei satis evidenter demonstrat, quantum a veritate aberraverint, qui existimarunt Hottentottos nulla esse imbutos opinione divinitatis, nullos habere sacros ritus, nullum extrinsecum cultum ^divinum^. Quid de Siamensibus, Sinensibus, ~~[illegible]~~, cæterisq. Asiaticis dicendum? ~~Caribeos vocatos Antillarum Insularum populos admittere supremum numen, quod neminem nocere, atq infinite bonum [illegible] ^putant^, memoriæ prodiderunt D.s de Rochefort in sua historia, et D.s du Tertre in historia Antillarum; imo barbaros illos suos quoq. habere sacerdotes, et sacra; [illegible] Regis Borussiæ Bibliothecarius in Lib. 6. historiæ Christianitatis Indiarum~~. Regna ~~[illegible]~~ Siami, Tonkini, Cocincinæ; Imperia Sinense, et Japonicum; omnes denique majus remotiusq Provincias plenas esse Idolis, falsisq. divinitatibus adeo certum est, ut vocari in solidam disputationem non possit ab iis, qui illarum Gentium historias vel leviter attigerint. His positis, hoc contra recentiores Epicureos conficiendum est argumentum. Qui opinati sunt esse nationes sine opinione immortalis vitæ, id opinati sunt, quod illas nationes nullam habere putarent opinionem divinitatis; sed nullæ hactenus inventæ sunt nationes, quæ imbutæ non essent aliqua opinione divinitatis; nullæ sunt ergo nationes, quæ non habeant opinionem vitæ immortalis. Cæterum, prædictos populos de immortalitate animarum esse persuasos, illi ipsi scriptores perhibent, qui illos esse ab Atheismo alienos demonstrant. Siamenses n., atq. Sinenses non interituras una cum corpore animas, sed in aliud ~~[illegible]~~ ^corpus^ migraturas pro certo habent, nisi velimus fidem detrahere omnibus ferme historicis, et catholicis in iis Regionibus Fidei Prædicatoribus. Caribei, fatentibus Viris cl. De-Rochefort, et du-Tertre, putant collocatam in corde animam non deficere cum corpore, sed ^post mortem hanc vitam^ in Cælum ascendere. Hottentotti, tradente Kolbio, ita victuras solutas a corpore animas putant; ut pro iis supplices preces adhibeant; ac summonere Plimentant, ne vita functi redeuntes ad loca, quæ solebant incolere quum ~~[illegible]~~ ^terrenam^ hanc vitam vivebant, parituri sint illis aliquod damnum, aut malum. Americanæ autem Gentes ^plerisque^ sic immortales habebant animas, ut illis vel transmontana, vel transmarina loca assignarent, in quibus commorarentur post earum a corporibus emigrationem, quemadmodum accuratissimi scriptores unanimi ferme consensione testantur. Quod si Adversarii ad sinum Soldaniæ confugerent, asserentes illas saltem Gentes, secundum testimonia Recentiorum, fuisse inventas sine opinione divinitatis, et immortalitatis animarum, respondendum est, id quoq falsitatis esse redarguendum. Recentissimus n. scriptor Riccardus Cumberlandus in Tractatu philosophico legum naturalium, nisi temere a Lockio, Acosta, et aliis id fuisse traditum demonstrat rationibus evidentissimis. ~~Ab~~ eiusdem est opinionis Barbeyracius, sedulus Cumberlandi interpres, qui cum Hugone Grotio et Samuele Pufendorfio contendit, universum genus humanum ~~[illegible]~~ divinitatis existentiam, et immortalem proinde vitam aliquam admittere.

> ^ Et Caribeos Populos Insularum septentrionalibus ~~[illegible]~~ ^[illegible]^ nalibus ^[illegible]^ Americæ oris adjacentium admittere supremum numen, quod nemini nocere, et infinite bonum putant memoriæ prodiderunt D.s de-Rochefort in sua historia, et D.s du-Tertre in historia Antillarum; imo Barbaros illos suos quoq. habere sacerdotes, et sacra, scribit D.s de la Croze Regis Borussiæ Bibliothecarius in L. 6. 7. Historiæ Christianitatis ~~[illegible]~~ Indiarum. ^ ~~[illegible]~~ Chilensis regionis incolas &c.

Si priscis, et nostris quoq temporibus aliqui fuerunt, aut sunt, Philosophi, qui interire cum corpore animam putant, nihil inferri potest contra universalem hominum consensum. Nam, ut ait præclare Du Hamelius; nihil mirum esse debet, si Philosophi, qui se corporibus totos dederunt, non viderint plus aliquid mente, quam corpore. Quod si aliquis forte uno oculo aut pede mulctatus nascitur, non ideo negabimus, duos oculos, aut duos pedes ad naturam hominis pertinere. Neq. adeo, si minutiores quidam Philosophi animos velut capite damnarunt, idcirco nobis, naturam intra de immortalitate animorum tacitam judicare negandum est. Quanquam, si res accurate perpendatur, nulli fuerunt Philosophi, qui sibi persuaserint, post corporis mortem nihil esse nobis sperandum, aut metuendum. Asseruere quidem scelerati homines omnia cum corpore dissolvi, atq. interire, ut rem novis studerent, ut haberentur sapientiores, ut se se omnibus sceleribus impure dederent; verum illos ipsos de morte animæ non fuisse revera persuasos, tum continuæ eorum dubitationes, tum perpetuo eorum animis insidens metus, tum ea, quæ ultimis vitæ momentis aut dixere, aut operati sunt, satis evidenter ostendunt. Plura ad hanc rem afferre possemus exempla; sed aliqua tantum celebriora dabimus.

bimus. Bio Boristhenites Theodori Cyrenaei Auditor, qui nullos esse Deos docuerat, et nihil ab iis timendum, praeterea ut expectandum post corporis mortem, ut tradit Laertius Lib. 4, quum in longum morbum incidisset, ac mori plane timeret; qui Deos non esse dixerat, qui fanum non viderat, mortalibus qui illuserat, dum Dis immolarent ···· non solum, peccavi, dixit, delictis parcite; sed et anui collum facile porrexit excantandum. Thomas Hobbesius, qui suis in Libris demonstrare conatus fuerat nihil esse in universo praeter materiam, nullos idcirco existere spiritus, qui possint sine corporibus; testante Baelio, ita spectra, atque phantasmata sive Daemonum, sive vita functorum metuebat, ut solitudinem quammaxime fugeret. ~~[illegible]~~ ~~[illegible]~~ Idem Baelius miserandum, eque ac ridiculum suppeditat nobis exemplum viri cujusdam nobilis ex urbe Sainthibal, qui nullum esse Deum, nullas aeternum victuras animas dictitans, suorum in impio systemate sociorum inconstantiam lamentabatur in hunc modum. Dolendum maxime est, inquiebat, nullum ex nostris intrepidis sanisque Philosophis in susceptis dogmatibus perseverare, eandemque praeseferre semper constantiam, fortitudinemque. Heu! quum morti proximi sunt, summo cum dedecore, futura pertimescunt, suas opiniones retractant, et caeterorum more hominum, sua peccata confitentur dolentes, et reliqua sacramenta suscipere non erubescunt. Hec insanus ille; ex quibus inferre possumus, ita docente natura persuasum esse genus humanum de immortalitate animarum, ut neque scelerati, et impii homines contrarium revera quandoque senserint.

Neque merito asserere quis potest immortalitatem nostram [illegible] fuisse Legislatorum commentum, ut [illegible] servare leges humanum genus. [illegible] vel primos Legislatores intelligunt primos generis humani parentes, vel primos diversarum Civitatum Conditores diversarumque Nationum Reges. Si primum [illegible] volunt Patres Filiis suis carissimis tot insignes facultates, velut haereditariam relinquere, [illegible] habentes in Filios absolutum dominium, commentis minime indiguerint, ut eorum sibi obedientiam conciliarent. Incredibile est Filios tantae rei falsitatem aut non agnovisse, aut saltem suspicatos non fuisse: Incredibile est primorum hominum simplicitatem tam callidis adeo dolis consuevisse potuisse: Incredibile denique est audaces, indocilesque Filios commentitiis inventis potuisse contineri. Si autem per primos Legislatores intelligunt Adversarii diversos diversarum Nationum Principes, qui [illegible] potest aut tot in eadem [illegible] fabula convenisse tot diversos Regesque Legislatores, aut tot diversos [illegible] populos, [illegible] more fabulosis dogmatis universalem promptissimamque fidem [illegible]. Plura alia argumenta sunt quae evidenter demonstrant, hoc nempe esse [illegible] [illegible] proponit P. Thomas Mongilia in Dissertatione contra Fatalistas, Serm. [illegible], sec. 18. et sequentibus, quae nos ommittere debemus, ne longiores, quam par est, simus.

Dices 2do contra aliud morale argumentum. Brutis neque premia, neque supplicia aeterna rependuntur; [illegible] supremi numinis munificentia, et vindicta locum non habent, et tamen justus, et munificentissimus est Deus, ac plura sunt in Brutis sive bona, sive mala. Ergo summa semper servatur Dei providentia, atque justitia, etiamsi nihil mali pertimescendum sit hominibus a Deo, nihil boni expectandum, praesertim quum sit ipsa virtus sibimet pulcherrima merces, vitium sibimet supplicium, quo nullum horribilius.

Verum, praeterquamquod Decreto Dei nati homines sunt, et soli recognoscant, agnoscant, suspiciant, venerentur, laudent, et ament Omnicon[ditorem] suum, [illegible] vero caetera sensibus duntaxat, et rebus sensibilibus nascuntur; Alia non deerunt maximum [illegible] inter homines, et Bruta discrimen. Etenim ut [illegible] nec Fidei, nec Religioni, ita neque virtutis, aut meriti compotes sunt, libero non utuntur arbitrio, ac multo minus rationis dictamine: Justitiae leges et divina praecepta non [illegible]. Hinc non est, cur aut Brutis Bruta noceri debeat, [illegible] ac homo homini; aut curea [illegible] vel efferre Bruta debeant quae nos aut sumere debemus aut vitare. Deinde, [illegible] immortalitatis expetitio [illegible] vitae statum, in quo feliciter vivat, eum avversat, in quo infeliciter, quum tamen Bruta nihil simile excogitent, expetant, avversent. Tantum quum intercedat discrimen inter homines, et Bruta; mirum non est, si post mortem corporis, aut praemia, aut poenae homines manere debent, caetera vero animalia pro ratione patratorum generum, neque supplicio, neque premio sint afficienda.

Magnifice autem dicunt Adversarii, [illegible] virtutem sufficere, et vitium coniunctum esse sceleratis hominibus [illegible]. [illegible] virtus est [illegible] met pulcherrima merces; Cur ergo Antiqui honores optimo sibi iure vindicant ob recte administratam Rempublicam? cur milites, ob ea, quae gesserant [illegible], superiores gradus exigunt? Cur denique [illegible] consentanea [illegible] mercede denique censent? Quamquam, nullus virtuti locus relinquitur, si anima extinguatur. Nec virtus ut [illegible] Lactantius Lib. 7. Institutionum, erit [illegible] quum praesenti vitae noceat: Nam prohibet ut bonis homines, quae naturaliter appetunt, et ad sustinenda mala compellit, quae naturaliter fugiunt. Ergo maximum est virtus, et summa [illegible], stultumque judicare necesse est, qui eam sequuntur, quoniam se ipsum laedit et [illegible] bona praesentia, et appetendo mala nec ipse fructus amplioris. Si autem virtus maximum non est, [illegible] contemnere, [illegible] voluptates vitiosas, [illegible] contemnit, et fortis qui nec dolorem, nec mortem timet, ut officium servet, Ergo majus aliquod bonum [illegible] necesse est, quam ista, quae [illegible]. At vero, morte [illegible], quod majus bonum parari potest, nisi aeternitas?

Vitium non esse sibimet sufficiens supplicium, ex eo patet, quod homines scelesti prae [illegible] conscientia, quae [illegible], metuant etiam infamiam, diuturnos Carceres, Tormenta, Cruces. Deinde, plerique vitam interdum conscientiae stimulis affligunt, [illegible] qui animum una cum corpore perire [illegible] sunt. At, demum conscientiae stimulis cruciari [illegible] homine. Hoc quidem evidenter demonstrat esse aliquod in nobis omnino [illegible], quod in caeteris animalibus non reperitur. Nulla [illegible] nullius ex male acta vita tangit eas conscientiae stimulus. [illegible] homines [illegible] cantu, [illegible] opera, praesertim imminente morte, tamquam sensu [illegible]; [illegible] eorum conscientia animaeque immortalitas ostendit.

Igitur, opus non est statu illo, in quo sempiterna [illegible] homine quae extremum diem [illegible] dant, sempiterna vero bona maneant. [illegible] quae ab hominibus aeternitati [illegible], quantumcumque sint bona, et quantavis commendatione digna, [illegible] sunt, ut [illegible] sempiternum praemium. Et quantumcumque videantur mala, aeterno non sunt plectenda supplicio, quum [illegible] nascitur, atque caduca.

Sed contra, [illegible] bonae honestaeque actiones hominum [illegible] aeterne aliquid sint moralem [illegible] secundum [illegible] adeo excellunt, ut [illegible] deleant, [illegible], et quantum fieri potest divinum animumque [illegible], tale praemium [illegible], atque amitti non possit. Jam vero, quum humanae actiones non [illegible], sed morales spectari debeant, tamen primo [illegible] capta nāales, et caduca sint, adeo tñ modo turpia tanti faciendę sunt, ut, quemadmodum, si diutius, ac ppetuo viverent in terris probi hoīes, diutius quoq. preclare agerent, et ppetuo sancte vivere exoptarent; ita quod eorum talis conditio sit, ut aliquando presentē hanc vitā debeant amittere, sempiterna in alia vita sit ipsorum honestis affectionibus, preclarisq. gestis merces attribuenda. Eadem cum pportione dicenda sunt de malis, turpibusq. actionibus. Nam sicuti quę justitię legibus sunt consentaneę, premium exigunt ęternum, ita quę iisdem adversantur, vere pęnis sunt digna nullo unquā tempore defecturis; presertim quum ita affecti sint improbi, sceleratiq. hoīes, ut, si possent, ęternum ppetuo vivere, iisdem semper coinquinati vitiis, vellent.

Dices 3tio contra 3tium morale argumentum. Plura in nobis excitantur desideria, quę vana omnino, et inutilia sunt. Nam, et juvenilis ętatis nunquam decedentis, et omnium fortunę bonorum copiam exoptamus. Ergo vana etiam, et inutilis ē communis illa ęternę vitę appetitio.

R. Quia nostri animi limitatam, atq. imperfectam nāam, decipi quandoq. possumus in nostris volitionibus, ea appetendo, quę nāę consentanea n̄ sunt; decipi autem semp, ita ut omnes vanā et inutilia exoptemus, nemo asseret, nisi Deum atq. nāam ppetuo accusandam putet. Quare omnium fortunę bonorum immoderata cupiditas, desiderium nullo tempore defecturę juventutis vanę, atq. inutiles affectiones sunt, n̄ ē autem inutilis appetitio ęternę vitę, presertim quum communis ea sit, et universarum gentium animos obtinuerit, unde ęternis inutilibus affectionibus dici n̄ potē. Cęterum, ipsa desideria ęternę juventutis, et exoptata copia terrenorum bonorum satis evincunt n̄ eē vanum immortalitatis desiderium. Quomodo-n. a senectute, aut paupertate alienus esset humanus animus, nisi miseriam, atq. infelicitatem aversaretur nāaliter? Quomodo constanter concupisceret juventutem et omnium fortunę bonorum cumulum, nisi suapte nāa beatitudinem amaret? Quomodo juveniles annos nunquam transituros, aut bona nunquam defectura desideraret, nisi in ęternam beatitudinem, adeoq. in immortalem vitam tenderet, ipsa suadente nāa, quę ~~[illegible]~~, docentibus Philosophis, nihil frustra operatur?

Dices 4to, Animam n̄ posse subsistere a corpore separatam, ex eo sejunctam, quia esset in statu violento. Nāaliter n. habet propensionem ad corpus, ad nāaliter informat, quove utitur in suis exercendis primariis, et essentialibus operationibus. Id manifeste indicant tot illę afflictiones, et mortales angustię, quas patiuntur hoīes extremam agentes diem.

R. Quamvis nulla res manere possit in statu violento, nihil tñ prohibet, quominus rationalis Anima sejuncta possit a corpore existere, ac vivere. Nam, quia hujusmodi separatio n̄ efficit ut omni destituta cogitatione subsistat (sejuncta quippe a corpore anima suas exercet primarias et essentiales functiones, quum intelligat, et velit) hinc, tametsi, separatione facta, aliquam servet inclinationem ad corpus, n̄ ē tñ in statu violento constituta. Immo, quia sejuncta a corporis commercio expertę multarum cupiditatum quę ipsi nascuntur a corporeis motibus, nec amplius in diversa trahitur, efficacius sine corpore nāales vires exercet, ac fortasse nāiatam omnem ad illud propensionem deponet experta, separationis statum longe feliciorem eē isto unionis. separatione, spectata duntaxat ratione nāal..

Hactenus dicta intelligunt de anime ~~[illegible]~~ Quare ea attendantur, quę Fides divina proponit. Quoad animas damnatas, certum ē eas horrere potius reditum in corpora, scientes acerbiores inde penas accessuras; Quantum vero ad beatas, licet corporis unionem exoptent, ut majoribus cumulentur ęternę glorię bonis, ex hac tñ propensione, seu appetitione nulla molestia afficiuntur, tum quia interna felicitatę sunt obclara Dei visione qua fruuntur, tum quia habent resurrectionis spem certissimam quę nullam sinit eas angustias pati. Neq. obstant graves illę afflictiones, quas, impendente morte, patiuntur hoīes; hę siquidem ortum ducunt a causis, quę, separatione facta, locum amplius n̄ habent. Ideo n. inimmensas morti potius adeo, ideo morituri tantopere contristantur, quia timent, ne presenti vita, a qua discedere coguntur, infelicior sit vita animę a corpore sejunctę. Tunc etiam maxima fit in corporis machina perturbatio, finem habent sensibiles illę voluptates, quas tanto amore prosequebantur; ac demum credibile ē, Deum ipsum incussisse terrores mortis mentibus hoīum, ne, si mori injucundum n̄ fuisset, passim hoīes appeterent mortem, ut vitę hujus ęrumnis finem imponerent. Mens autem a corpore separata nulla hujusmodi causarum moveri potē, ita ut novam exoptet cum corpore unionem. Cęterum, mortales illę angustię n̄ omnibus communes sunt. Testantur n. omnium gentium historię, et antiquissima monumenta, quanta constantia, fortitudine, animiq. alacritate supremum obierint diem viri preclarissimi vel Philosophię preceptis instituti, vel morum sanctitate insignes, vel militari gloria incensi.

Dices 5 Ecclesiastes Cap 3 ait. Unus interitus ē hoīnis, et jumentorum, et ęqua utriusq. conditio sicut moritur hoō sic et illa moriuntur. Similiter spirant omnia et nihil habet hoō jumento amplius. Et Apostolus testatur solum Deum habere immortalitatem.

R. Sacrarum scripturarum oppositas authoritates nullius eē momenti contra nos, qui solis nāalibus rationibus de immortalitate animę disputamus, quiq. quamplurimis scripturarum conciliorum, et SS Patrum testimoniis uti possemus, nec tñ utimur. Nihilominus, ut ne eas taceamus satis asserimus neq. Ecclesiasten, neq. Apostolum Paulum mortales fuisse nostras animas. Ac primo, laudato loco, Ecclesiastes de hoīne secundum corpus accepto verba facit, atq. ita eum spectatum jumentis comparat, uti liquet ex ipso contextu. Numero quippe 20 inquit: Omnia pergunt ad unum locum. De terra facta sunt, et in terram revertuntur. Intereunt igitur more brutorum quę de terra facta sunt corpora, idcirco n̄ anima quę aliunde, quam a limo terrę suam duxit originem. Hanc interpretationem tradit S. Hieronimus inquiens. Ne putaremus dici de anima. Omnia pergunt ad unum locum. De terra facta sunt et in terram revertuntur. De terra autem, nisi corpus factum ē. Illud etiam similiter spirant omnia, intelligendum ē de respiratione. Omnia n. animalia ęque ac hoō, respiratione attrahunt aerem ut calorem cordis, ac viscerum temperent. Eadem ratione nihil habere hoīnem jumento amplius, verum tñ quoad corpus, n̄ quoad animam. Accedit n̄ deesse SS Patres, qui putant sapientem n̄ ex propria, sed ex impiorum mente loqui, inter quos S. Gregorius Magnus Lib 4. Dialogorum. Subdit n. Salomon Hęc cogitaverunt, et erraverunt. Excęcavit n. illos malitia eorum.

Ad textum illum Apostoli Pauli Solus Deus habet immortalitatem respondendum ē, sermonem ibi institui de intrinseca simul et extrinseca immortalitate, quam soli Deo convenire certum ē. Solus n. Deus ita absolute, et essentialiter immortalis ē, ut, quemadmodum nunquam cepit, causamq. nullam habuit, ita nunquam desinat, causamq. a qua destruatur, habere n̄ possit. Nos autem n̄ extrinsecam, et absolutam sed intrinsecam duntaxat immortalitatem animę rationali tribuimus, ob quam valeat, secundum presentes nāę leges ppetuo existens conservari, tametsi possit absolute Deus eam in nihilum redigere. Preterea, ideo asserit solum Deum habere immortalitatem, quia, ut inquiunt nonnulli Ecclesię Patres, immortalitas id proprie exprimit, quod ęterna incommutabilitas. Sic D. Bernardus serm. 80. in Cant. ca ait solus Deus habet immortalitatem; qd ratum habemus, pro eo dictum qd nimirum solus sit natura incommutabilis Deus quem ita de se ipso loquentem Scriptura facit. Ego Dominus, et non mutor. Vera namque et integra immortalitas, quemadmodum finis, ita et cujuslibet mutationis expers omnino, siquidem omnis mutatio quaedam mortis imago, et imitatio censeatur, ut praeclare ostendit D. Augustinus Lib. 2. de Trinitate, cap. 9 his verbis: Ipsa mutabilitas non inconvenienter mortalis dicitur, secundum quam et anima dicitur mori; non quia in corpus, vel in aliquam alteram substantiam mutatur, et vertitur, sed quia in ipsa sua substantia quidquid alio modo nunc est, ac fuit, secundum id, qd ex titit, esse qd erat, mortale deprehenditur. Alia demum ratione immortalitas soli Deo adscribitur, quia videlicet hic summam accipitur pro summa beatitudine, atque imperturbabili felicitate, quae propria est solius Dei. Creata siquidem mens, etsi naturaliter amittere nequeat qd ipsi convenit, actualem scilicet cogitationem, [illegible] ac [illegible] adeo [illegible] molestiis [illegible] subjectas, quatenus duratio sit sempiterna. [illegible] Lib. [illegible] cap. 6. Humana anima [illegible] immortalitatem [illegible] [illegible] commoda [illegible] nec moriendi sentit.

VIII.

Dices 6. Ea [illegible] humana [illegible] habet initium, nec habet finem. Ergo etc.

R. [illegible] ex absoluta Dei potentia [illegible] commune [illegible] [illegible] ex absoluta Dei [illegible] spectata [illegible] destrui [illegible] Deus, tametsi [illegible] creata omnia destruere, [illegible] sed variis tantum modis rerum formas mutaverit, atque confecerit. Quare [illegible] anima, [illegible] creata, verius est ipsa incorruptibili natura substantia multo [illegible], spectata [illegible] [illegible] dissolutione [illegible] destructionem, [illegible] conversione in nihilum. [illegible] a Deo [illegible] habente. [illegible] caret [illegible] immortalis [illegible] initium, sed quia [illegible] finem. Nec [illegible] initio, quia si Deus [illegible] aliquando desinet [illegible] conservare, [illegible] duplici modo potest quis [illegible] a nihilo extra se [illegible], a quo [illegible] ex hypothesi, qd [illegible] communi [illegible] duratione. [illegible] mens est humana, [illegible] creatione secundum [illegible], tamen Deo absolute operante, posset extingui.

Hunc [illegible] animam humanam [illegible] omnes [illegible]. Solvenda nunc sunt argumenta in contrarium.

Dices [redacted] [illegible] certa [illegible] [illegible] corporis partes, quum a toto secernuntur, [illegible] sunt incapaces, verum etiam vitae omnino expertes. Ergo etiam anima.

R. neg. [illegible]. [illegible] natura anima, [illegible] demonstratum est, ut [illegible] a corpore [illegible] et pugnet cum corpore; quin [illegible] et [illegible] aliqua pars corporis [illegible], aut ita [illegible], quemadmodum aures, oculi, [illegible] in corpore anima [illegible] in cerebro sedem, [illegible] corporis [illegible] corporum proprie. Nam unita corpori anima est sibi in se, et ex se suarum actionum principium; aures vero, oculi, caeteraeque corporis partes non a semetipsis, sed ab anima obtinent videndi, audiendi, atque operandi facultates. Hinc mirum non est, si disjuncta a corpore auris non audiat, disjunctus oculus non videat; secreta autem mens percipiat, judicet, ratiocinetur. Ex supremi quippe Conditoris lege, [illegible] corpori unita [illegible] Anima vero humana, [illegible] in corpore, [illegible] nisi ipso intercedente, [illegible] operationes, [illegible] corporeis non amplius indiget instrumentis, ut operetur.

Nec [illegible] Epicurei [illegible] animam, [illegible] ut [illegible] corpus [illegible] non est amplius idoneum ad suas exercendas functiones, ita exuta corpore anima operari amplius non posset. Nam [illegible] animae unio cum corpore intima sit, non eodem tamen modo ab utraque substantia [illegible] anima [illegible] vitae principium, non corpus principium operationum animae. Id confirmari potest exemplo. Celebrat [illegible] miles gladio [illegible] armis decertans in bello; [illegible] destitutus armis, non poterit amplius [illegible] Quippe manus adhuc [illegible] nostri. [illegible] quod humana anima unita sit membris, organisque corporeis ad suas obeundas functiones [illegible], ut [illegible] omne [illegible] [illegible] sentiendi, nec intelligendi [illegible] quemadmodum [illegible] armis destitutus, licet [illegible] non possit, est tamen idoneus ad alias obeundas actiones [illegible]; ita [illegible] mens, licet [illegible] operari, quae propria [illegible] sunt, [illegible] humana [illegible] tanquam substantia [illegible] a corporis commercio sejuncta.

Instabit Lucretius

Deniq. saepe hominem paulatim cernimus ire, et membratim vitalem deperdere sensum;
In pedibus primum digitos livescere, et ungues,
Inde pedes, et crura mori; post inde per artus

Ire alios tractu aclidi vestigia Lethi.
Scinditur atqui animae quoniam natura; nec uno
Tempore sincera exiit, mortalis habenda est.

Verum hoc Lucretii argumentum falso innititur principio, quum falso supponat animam humanam esse aliquid extensum et corporeum. Extrema equidem corporis membra in homine morti proximo frigescunt, nec alia de causa frigescunt, quam quia in iis vitalis agere desinit anima; sed non propterea spiritualis anima paulatim rescinditur, aut dissipatur. Imo resoluto suo toto, quasi non amplius idoneo corporis hospitio, quodammodo valedicit, salva, et incolumis exit, deserens, non secus ac navim fractam deserit extra fluctus evasus, ruentemque domum incolumis habitator. Ceterum, mirum esse non debet, si in proxime morituris, paulatim, et quasi gradatim extrema corporis membra appareant continuo calore destituta. Anima enim, quae est principium vitae, atque motus in corpore organico, non potest agere in eas corporis partes, quarum destructus est mechanismus. Quare corporis membra destitui videmus consueto motu, atque adeo paulatim singula calore privari, non quod veluti recedat, aut contrahat anima, sed, omnia corruptis paulatim, singulorum membrorum, corporeorum organis, anima quae sedem habet in cerebro, non potest ita agere in nervulos, eorumque fluida, ut impressum iis motum, atque inde profluentem calorem ad eas etiam corporis partes propaget, quarum, corruptis organis, corruptus est ~~mechanismus~~ necessarius ad motus mechanismus.

Opponunt 2do. Si anima secreta a corpore operari aliquid vellet oporteret eandem in tali statu praeditam adhuc esse sensibus, ut posset videre, audire etc. Sed sensibus praedita non est, ergoque non potest operari.

Resp. Animam a corpore secretam praeditam adhuc esse sensibus, si sensuum nomine exprimat vim intelligendi minime vero, si sensus ... accipiant. Nam sensus animae a corpore separatae neque visus est, neque auditus, nec alius corporeus sensus, qui in statu ... per oculos aures, et alia organa sensationes pariunt, sed est vis ipsa intelligendi. Hec autem vis generali quadam ratione sensus animae dicitur tum quia propria ... operatio est intellectio, tum quia quaeque corporis sensus specialis continet anima, quum ... colores cognoscat, quod visus, tum sonos ... quod auditus. Neque id novum alicui videatur; Proprium quippe est facultatum superiorum, ut praeter altiores, nobilioresque functiones, inferiorum etiam facultatum actiones, licet excellentiori modo, efficiant.

Opponunt 3tio cum eodem Lucretio, eos desipere, qui res tam diversas, mortale scilicet corpus, et immortalem animam conjungunt.

Sed, ut cum Jermiano, Socrate, Platone, aliisque magni nominis quamplurimis Philosophis dicam qui intellexere, recta ratione non repugnare, ut res quarum una immortalis est mortalis altera, in uno, eodem composito, uniantur. Quid, quaeso impedit, ne talem dari unionem asseramus? Quum quaedam sint in universo naturae omnino incorporeae et immortales, quaedam vero mortales omnino, et corporeae, nihil magis congruere videtur, ne extrema sint sine medio, quam, ut quaedam mixtae, atque ita compositae sint, ut incorporeae, immortalesque ex una parte, corporeae autem, mortalesque ex altera comperiantur. Neque porro repugnat, quin illa magis arcta, ac facilior sit conjunctio, quum duae res omnino similes sibi se coalescunt. Verum nec demens est, res adeo inter se discrepantes, cujusmodi sunt corpus, et spiritus, mortale dicere et immortale conjungere. Nam quae magis inter se, quam calidum, et frigidum, album, et nigrum differunt? Hec tamen ita conjunguntur, ut alia quaedam natura coaluerit, ex prioribus nempe tepidum, ex posterioribus leucophaeum. Id passim in plurimis aliis cernere videmus; quippe, quanta summa sit inaequalitas inter Dominum, et servum, Regem, et subditos, nihilominus tamen illi in Politica illi in domestica societate, uniuntur; immo Deus ipse ita creaturis omnibus, quae ab ipso infinite distant, intime praesens est, ut nihil possit esse conjunctius. Non itaque, quum animam humanam immortalem dicimus, desipere nos, putandum est. Desipere, inde et insanire censemus Epicureos, qui nos quidem in brutorum conditionem faciunt, qui nihil praeter corpora concipiunt, qui existimant omnino non esse, quod oculis non cernunt. Etenim, ut apposite ad rem nostram Manilius:

Quid juvat in semet sua per convicia ferri,
Et fraudare bonis, quae nec Deus invidet ipse,
Quorque dedit natura oculos deponere mentis?

Caput 3tium.

De essentia mentis humanae.

... Philosophorum ... alios mentem humanam ... utrum actualis cogitatio, vel potentialis tantum mentis humanae essentiam constituat. ... Cartesius, quum donet ... sua se sentire ... posita esse in cogitatione, nulla alia re esse independentem ut cogitet, non corpore, non loco, non motu, non extensione; in actuali cogitatione essentiam mentis humanae collocavit. Cartesium ... Claubergius, Malebranchius, Silvanus Regis, Leibnitius, Wolfius, Genuensis, aliique quamplures ... Cartesius, sed a Platone accepit. In eadem fuerat opinione Tullius, qui Libro ... Divinatione hec habet. Animorum ea est vis, atque natura, ut vigeant vigilantes nullo adventitio pulsu, sed suo motu ... sensibus, et corpore, et sensibus, omnia certiora cernunt, cogitant, sentiunt ... ipsa per se. Itaque in eo et formae verarum, et actiones, et multa audiri, multa dici videntur. Hec scilicet in imbecillo, remissoque animo multa omnibus modis confusa, et variata versantur, maximeque reliquiis earum rerum moventur in animis, et agitantur, de quibus vigilantes aut cogitavimus, aut ... Anima ... motu, hoc est nunquam a cogitatione cessare, fieri non posse videtur, ut nempe semper moveatur, nisi semper cogitet. Contrarium sentiunt Peripatetici omnes, qui essentiam animae in eo positam volunt, ut possit natura sua cogitare semper, non ut semper ...

[illegible] ret, qd proprium esse ajunt [illegible] [illegible] tempore [illegible] primores, [illegible] è Joannes Lockius Cartesianorum hostis acerrimus qui Lib. 2. de Intellectu humano, Cap. 2. demonstrare conatur [illegible] è dogma illud de perenni mentis cogitatione.

Propō Unica. Essentia mentis humanæ in actuali consistit cogitatione.

Pro: Propō. Certum ē eam ēē rei alicujus essentiam, [illegible] a re nulla potē ratione sejungi, quin ejusdem rei nāā destruat [illegible] [illegible], quæ [illegible] hominis essentiam constituunt, separari ab homine n̄ possunt, quin statim homo [illegible] [illegible] cogitatio [illegible] n̄ potē ab anima, quin destruat animam. Ergo [illegible] cogitatio constituit [illegible] [illegible]. Minor demonstratur. [illegible] [illegible] cogitatione animæ, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] n̄ cogitante anima [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cogitare [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] actualem cogitationem, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] aliqua actione [illegible] perennis, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quandam aliqua vitali actione [illegible] [illegible] actione [illegible]) [illegible] [illegible] nulla [illegible] humanæ mentis [illegible], perennis cogitatio [illegible] anima, [illegible] actuali cogitatione [illegible] [illegible] essentia.

Confirmatur. In hypothesi, qd mens n̄ semp cogitet, p intervalla cogitabit, et n̄ cogitabit, cogitabit e.c. tempore A, n̄ cogitabit tempore B; perpetuo idcirco transibit anima a statu cogitationis ad statum incogitantiæ, a statu incogitantiæ ad statum [illegible], et [illegible] [illegible] potē. Nā vel modo [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] propter alteram externam causam. Neutrum dici potē; Deficere itaq. mens a cogitatione n̄ potē. Et primo ex mentis nāā consequi n̄ posse interruptam aliquā cogitationem, demonstratur. Nam sicuti nullum corpus potē sua sponte nāā transire a motu ad quietem, [illegible] [illegible] motum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contrarium, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] destruant, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ad interiva actione, sed tantum passione. Jam ergo, si perenni cogitatione destituitur anima, non potē sua sponte nāā transire p intervalla temporis, ita ut cogitet tempore A, n̄ cogitet tempore B. Qd si res aliquæ externæ in causa sunt, ut n̄ semp [illegible] [illegible] cogitatione, aut [illegible] p corpus, cui [illegible] organum [illegible], aut [illegible] voluntatis [illegible] [illegible]. Nam præterquamqd intelligi n̄ potē [illegible] corporis conatus in mentem; sensoriorum organorum motiones, et inde [illegible] in cerebro phantasmata, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] anima in earum productione [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mens a cogitatione. [illegible] vero [illegible] [illegible] posse, nemo afferet, nisi putet posse Deum efficere, ut anima vivat simul, et n̄ vivat, ut conservet [illegible] simul nāā et destruat, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sunt. Mentis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Elementorum Metaphysicæ Parte 2da, Cap. 1. Propōne 17: Res adeo ē manifesta, ut n̄ intelligam qui hæc [illegible] stare possint, mentem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] et [illegible] destitui vero perenni cogitatione. Sic habet, doctrina [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] habere [illegible] nisi in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Dicis cum Lockio. In dormientibus n̄ cogitat anima. Probo: Pro ant: n̄ recordam eorum, de quibus in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Confirmatur. [illegible] [illegible] recordem [illegible] nos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] vel raro, vel nunquam somniant, qui propterea nunquam se in somno cogitasse recognoscunt. De se ipso fatetur Lockius, se nunquam somniasse ante febrim quandam, qua circa vigesimum quintum ætatis annum laboraverat: Et credo, inquit, p terrarum orbes alios quosq. invenire nāā eadem præditos. Certe uniuscujusq. cum aliis consuetudo satis abunde exemplorum præbere ejusmodi hominum poterit, quibus maxima pars noctium absq. somniis elabitur.

R. ne ant. ad proō dist ant [illegible] recordam eorum, de quibus in [illegible] somno cogitavimus [illegible] ant: [illegible] recordam [illegible]: propter [illegible] [illegible], aut propter confusionem, et obscuritatem idearum, conc. propter defectum cogitationis in anima, ne: ant: et conseqs. Quum Lockius demonstrare contendit, n̄ cogitare in dormientibus animam, qd eorum, de quibus cogitarunt, n̄ recordentur vel nihil probat contra nōs, vel sibimetipsi nimis manifeste contradicit. Ait n. [illegible]: statum cogitationis ēē statum vigiliæ, qd experiam nos dormire n̄ posse, dum perennis quædam cogitatio animum vexat; Asserit præterea hōi [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], [illegible], ut vigilantes [illegible] cogitemus, dormientes vero nunquam. [illegible], nonne vigilantibus quandoq. contingit, ut nullo modo recordemur eorum, de quibus cogitarunt? Id satis experientia compertum ē. Itaq. quum aliquando n̄ recordemur [illegible], quæ vigilantes cogitavimus, inferendum erit, [illegible] Lockianum principium, nos quandoq. in vigiliis n̄ cogitare, adeoq. [illegible] Lockium contradicere, vel inferre n̄ potē Lockius, in profundissimo somno destitutam ēē mentem cogitatione propterea qd n̄ recordantur eorum, de quibus in somno cogitarunt. Quanquam, omnino falsum ē, nos nunquam eorum recordari, de quibus in profundissimo somno cogitavimus [illegible] [illegible] somniorum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], quas paulo [illegible] in somno [illegible], [illegible] majores [illegible] in nostro cerebro [illegible]

Ad confirmationem; libenter concedimus Lockio, ēē quamplures, qui raro somniant, seu potius, qui se somniasse raro admodum recordantur; concedimus etiam, fieri posse, ut aliqui nunquam de habitis somniis recordentur. Verum n̄ recte inde concludi potē, dormientes n̄ cogitare. Ideo n. n̄ reminiscuntur vigilantes cogitationum illarum, quas habuere in somno, qd [illegible] [illegible], aut Malebranchius, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] nulla in cerebro vestigia relinquant. [illegible] corpori anima reminisci n̄ potē cogitationum, quas aliquando produxit, nisi quædam remaneant in cerebro vestigia [illegible] earum motionum, a quibus determinata fuit anima ad eas cogitationes producendas, et nisi converteret [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] relicta vestigia, recordetur se aliquando cogitasse. Sed si hæc doctrina Malebranchii quis [illegible] n̄ [illegible], respondere possumus cum Wolfio, ideo n̄ reminisci vigilantes cogitationum in somno productarum, qd dormientis ideæ confusæ, ut plurimum, et obscuræ sint, n̄ claræ, atq. distinctæ. Nam quum mens a clarioribus semp ideis rapiatur; dum a statu idearum confusarum ad claras transit ideas, nullam præbet attentionem productis antea obscuris, confusisq. ideis, earum propterea n̄ potē reminisci.

[illegible] Lockius, statum cogitationis ēē statum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] perenni cogitatione [illegible] anima adeo [illegible] ē, ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] n̄ [illegible] que cogit, ut dormientes cogitemus, sive somniemus? Nonne p[er]sensum intimum cognoscimus evidenter, longissimas quandoq[ue] dormientes habuisse ratiocinatione? Annon in somno arma [illegible], hostes, [illegible] conflictus qui [illegible] incumbunt [illegible]? Annon [illegible] abstractas [illegible] demonstrationes Mathematicas? Annon [illegible] systemata [illegible]? Sed in re tam certa nimis inutile e immorari nos diutius. Somno itaq[ue] correpti, quando nihil cogitamus [illegible] quam, torpentis quasi cerebri fibris, et [illegible], tardior est in [illegible] motus. Id si cogitationes quandoq[ue] somnum [illegible] non ideo [illegible], qu[ia] nequeat cum somno consistere cogitatio, sed quia cogitationes [illegible] paulo vehementius agitant cerebrum.

Dices 2do. cum eodem Lockio. si mens nostra cogitaret in somno, nec recordaretur tamen, duas referret ita personas, alteram scilicet, quum dormimus, alteram quum vigilamus. Persone n. identitas posita e in identitate conscientie cogitationum. Quoniam autem, nobis vigilantibus, non habet mens nostra conscientiam earum cogitationum, quas habuit nobis dormientibus, sequitur duas itam referre Personas, alteram nobis dormientibus, alteram vigilantibus; quod maximum e absurdum.

R. duas equidem referre mentem Personas, alteram dum dormimus, alteram dum vigilamus si Persone identitas [illegible] e in identitate conscientie cogitationum uti Lockio placet. Referre autem unam tantummodo Personam, si Persone formalis ratio, secundum [illegible] Philosophorum sententiam attendatur. Cum n. Persona nihil aliud sit, quam [illegible] in Ontologia diximus, eadem semper e Persona mens humana sive in somno sive in vigilia, quum nobis et vigilantibus, et dormientibus, [illegible] idem sit [illegible] individuum.

Dices 3tio. si actualis cogitatio constitueret essentiam mentis humane, statim ac creata anima, corporiq[ue] infunditur, deberet cogitare intelligenter. sed quas tandem de rebus [illegible], cogitabit anima puerorum, qui in Matris utero delitescunt? Quomodo in dormientibus perennis [illegible] cogitatione mens, non operantibus, seu nullas ab externis objectis motiones recipientibus corporis sensorius organis?

R: demonstrasse nos, mentem humanam immortalem e [illegible] perenni cogitatione, propterea q[uo]d natura anime postulat necessario, ut semper cogitet, siquidem, quamdiu ea vivere sinit Deus, exigit necessario ut semper predita sit vita, que in perpetua actione seu cogitatione consistit. Quare, si perennis cogitatio mentis ex ipsius natura consequitur, nec [illegible], aut demonstrare [illegible] de [illegible] modes cogitandi; nec recte concluderet aliquis [illegible], nescire nos, utrum semper cogitet anima, [illegible] materiam, et seriem cogitationum ignoremus. Ceterum sublatis etiam innatis ideis, possumus intelligere ex ipsa unione mentis cum corpore, qui fieri possit, ut [illegible] cogitent infantes detenti in utero matris. Nam, ut argumentatur Sylvanus Regis in suo libro, [illegible]. [illegible] Puerorum ideas [illegible] occupari possunt circa calorem, [illegible], nervorum [illegible], dolores [illegible], et [illegible] quas patiuntur, quamvis postea ob cerebri teneritatem quum deciderunt [illegible] non recordentur. Id [illegible] dormientes, [illegible] non desinere cogitationem [illegible], quin [illegible] ad [illegible] motiones. Falsum quippe e, nullas esse in dormientibus sensuum operationes, nullas organorum motiones, seu nullas sensationes. Nam, ut [illegible] Wolfius, [illegible] hoc somnus distinguitur a vigilia, q[uo]d in vigilantibus clare, atq[ue] vividas habeant sensationes, in dormientibus vero obscure plerumq[ue], atq[ue] confuse. Torpentibus itaq[ue] in somno sensorius organis, sed motione, adeoq[ue] quacumq[ue] sensatione minime destitutis, habet causa in dormientibus anima, [illegible] de perenni [illegible] cogitatione.

Instabunt 1. Solius Dei proprium e semper cogitare, seu perennem et actualem operationem soli Deo [illegible] convenire.

R. Quia [illegible] e Deus, soli Deo convenit actualis [illegible] cogitatio, [illegible] omnia simul uno [illegible], [illegible] comprehendat intuitu; quia autem create mentes [illegible] sunt, [illegible], necesse e [illegible], atq[ue] [illegible] cogitare, non repugnat tamen, imo ex earum natura consequitur, semper [illegible] cogitare!

Instabunt 2do cum Clerico Pneumatologie sect. 1 cap. 2 Videri [illegible] mentis sine cogitatione, ut corpus sine motu e posse, q[uo]d e experientie consentaneum. Videmus rapidissimum motum paulatim [illegible] per gradus [illegible], ita ut tandem [illegible], [illegible] in [illegible] quiete remaneat. Sic quoq[ue] mentem sentimus vividissimis ideis [illegible] paulo post minui vividitas [illegible] omnia apparent [illegible] tandem [illegible] quadam [illegible] nihil quidquam animadvertat. Unusquisq[ue] potest in se observare, [illegible] a vigilia in somnum paulatim delabitur, annon simile quidquam in se fiat.

R. corpus generatim sumptum concipi posse actuali motu destitutum, quia actualis motus ad corporis rationem [illegible] non [illegible], [illegible] mentem sine actuali cogitatione, quia actualis cogitatio consequitur naturam mentis. Sed, ut ex corporum motu contra [illegible] argumentum, sic si actualis motus auferri non potest a corpore vivente, quia [illegible] corporis vitam, propterea q[uo]d omne vivens corpus naturalis, et necessario postulat actualem motum, ita actualis cogitatio [illegible] non potest in mente quia vivere, et existere desinat mens, quum in perenni cogitatione ejus vita consistat. Quo[d] [illegible] Joannes Clericus [illegible] comparationem idearum mentis cum motu corporum, confutari facili negotio possunt ex iis, que superius diximus. Nam si a motionibus organorum sensoriorum dependent perceptiones mentis, mirum non e q[uo]d mens vividissime cogitet, ubi clare, atq[ue] vivide habeat in corpore sensationes [illegible] vero, atq[ue] obscure, [illegible] confuse tantum [illegible] mente sensoriorum organorum motiones. Q[uo]d vero paulatim, more corporum, ita torpedine [illegible] anima, ut nihil omnino cogitet; ex eo tantum [illegible] potest Clericus q[uo]d tandem anima non animadvertat se cogitare, seu non recordetur postea se cogitasse. Verum quam infirmum sit hujusmodi momentum, satis demonstratum arbitror in responsione ad objectionem primam.

Caput 4tum.

De Origine Mentis humane.

De origine anime humane acerrime disputatum e ab antiquis Philosophis, et nunc quoq[ue] disputatur summa opinionum discrepantia inter Philosophos recentiores. Sententie omnes ad quinque referri summa capita possunt, uti ex Genuensi, Fortunato, et Autore Artis dirigende mentis colligimus.

Prima sententia eorum e, qui animas hominum dixerunt e particulam ex ipsa Dei substantia avulsam, et corpori humano unitam; in quam opinione fuerunt Pythagoras et Aristoteles priorum primus, [illegible] de natura Deorum, [illegible] Deum e animam [illegible] omnes [illegible] et commeantem ex quo nostri animi carperentur, [illegible] vero non contentus animum [illegible] divinum animum e contendere, hominis mentem [illegible] Deum nulla [illegible] ratione diversam, [illegible] Judeus [illegible] Manichei, [illegible] Hieronimo, et Augustino, q[uo]d et Stoici opinati olim sunt et Saducæi apud Hebræos, insinuante Philone et Iosepho Lib. 13 de bello Iudaico, cap. 7, et apud Hispanos Hæretici Priscillianistæ. Hanc denique sententiam Lamennais, Lib. 15, et Panorenius communem excitavit apud Batavos Benedictus Spinoza inquiens mentem humanam partem esse infiniti intellectus Dei, et, quod dicimus mentem hoc vel illud percipere, nihil aliud dicere, quam quod Deus non quatenus infinitus est, sed quatenus humanæ mentis essentiam constituit, hanc vel illam habet ideam.

2da sententia est Platonis, qui in Timæo docet rationales animas esse particulas quasdam non quidem substantiæ Dei, sed animæ universi; adeo ut quemadmodum corpus humanum pars est corporis universi, ita anima humana sit veluti portio quædam illius animæ, quæ regit universum. Hinc Macrobius secundum Platonis doctrinam mundi animam appellat animarum omnium fontem. Existimabat autem Plato singulas animas statim ac conditæ a Deo fuerant, in tot astra distributas, et inde locatas, tum humanas consultas esse corporibus ex quibus, cum exeunt, iterum ad astra redire, atque ex his iterum descendere alias, et pro diversorum meritorum conditione, diversis corporibus copulari. Sunt qui cum Stoico putant Platonem ita explicasse animarum originem ab Orpheo. D. Hieronimus eandem sive tradit opinionem Origenis, ... humanarum. Verum, testante D. Augustino in eo discrepabat a Platone Origenes, quod putaret animas ob id in corpora, velut in carcerem fuisse detrusas, quod antequam ... ... cohærerent mundum, lapsæ fuissent in errorem, ... peccassent.

3tio opinati fuerunt animam ex parentibus in filios per traducem propagari, nec esse aliud animam esse ... ... communicari, et ... ... Ita senserunt olim Tertullianus, Apollinaristæ, teste Hieronimo, maxima pars occidentalium; in hanc sententiam proclivior videtur Augustinus; eamque sæculo 10 excitavit Campanatius.

4to loco venit ... ... quæ ... est celeberrimi Philosophi Christiani Wolfii. Docet autem animas humanas a solo Deo creari, nec haberi per traducem; fuisse tamen omnes initio simul conditas a Deo, easque singulas suis inclusas corpusculis, quæ in Eva ovario eodem tempore formaverat.

Quinta demum sententia illorum est, qui censent rationales animas fieri a Deo per creationem, ita tamen nec antiquiores esse corporibus, nec initio temporis omnes simul fuisse conditas, et suis organicis corporibus ... ... , sed quotidie produci a Deo ex nihilo, atque infundi, quam corpuscula in materno utero ad illum statum pervenere, qui necessarius est ad obeundas vitæ functiones.

Propositio 1. Mens humana non est particula divinæ substantiæ unita corpori organico.

Pro 1 Probatur. Si mens humana esset particula divinæ substantiæ, sempiterna esset, et necessariam haberet existentiam. Sed neque sempiterna est anima, neque existentiam habet necessariam, quum aliunde ... ... aliquibus ... ... mutationibus; quæ res sempiternæ et necessariæ prorsus repugnant. Ergo particula quædam divinæ substantiæ censeri non potest humana anima.

Pro: 2. Concipere non possumus mentem humanam veluti particulam esse divina substantia decerptam, quin Deum ... ... in partes ... divisibilem, sed Deum ... ... dividi posse in partes, ne fingere quidem possumus. Ergo neque mentem humanam aliquam esse divinam particulam.

Pro 3tio. Mentes humanæ, si particulæ essent substantiæ divinæ, divinitatem ... ... , ... Deus ... , et tamen mutationibus obnoxiæ sunt, et peccare possunt Animæ. Sed Deum mutari, aut posse peccare, intolerabile est absurdum. Ergo et mentes humanas aliquas facere Dei partes, maximum est absurdum. Hinc ... ... nostras ... ... 2do adversus gentes. Procul nec ... sceleratæ opinionis immanitas, ut Deus credatur omnipotens, ... et invisibilium rerum sator, conditor, procreator, tam ... ... animas fecisse, gravitatis ac ponderis, constantiæ nullius, in vitia labiles, in peccatorum genera universa declives ... ... hujusmodi fierent, in corpora ... ... , quorum ... ... tempestatibus, et modo ... ... modo ... ... incendiorum conflagrationes, ut ... ... mortalitas ... ... maledicerent ... ... mordacitate lacerarent. Haitenus Arnobius.

Dices 1. Sacræ ... ... testantur mentem humanam esse particulam divinæ substantiæ. Nam Genesios cap. 2do, v. 7 ita describitur origo animæ. Formavit igitur Deus hominem de limo terræ, et inspiravit in faciem ejus spiraculum vitæ, et factus est homo in animam viventem. Quid autem aliud est factam esse animam ex spiritu Dei, nisi fuisse desumptam, atque decerptam ex substantia Dei?

R. secundum ... ... Scripturæ diversimode omnino esse ... a Moyse ... ... quando ... Deum inspirasse in faciem hominis spiraculum vitæ. Nam primo, ... spiraculum vitæ ... ... , quam Deus contulit homini cum ceteris animalibus communem. In textu quippe hebraico ... inspiravit in nares ejus spiraculum vitæ; adeoque per illud spiraculum in nares inspiratum intelligenda est tantum respiratio, qua animalia per nares aerem admittunt, atque emittunt. 2do quidam ex Patribus, ait ... ... Commentario in Genesis Caput 2dum, pro hoc vitæ spiraculo spiritum sanctum et sanctificantem, quem Adæ inspiravit Deus intelligere, per quem vitam animæ ... , justitiam, innocentiam, et gratiam. 3tio ... ... vitæ spiraculum ... spiritualis anima, consequitur duntaxat inspiratam, seu creatam fuisse animam a spiritu, seu a spiritu Dei, non fuisse sumptam, et quodammodo decerptam ex spiritu, seu substantia Dei.

Dices 2do. Mens humana ē participatio aliqua Dei. Ergo ē pars aliqua Dei. Pro conseqª. Participare aliquid a Deo idem ē, ac accipere aliquid a Deo. Ergo etc.

R. dist. ant: Mens humana ē aliqua participatio Dei, quatenus exprimit [inde] Dei aliqua attributa, quæ in ipso relucent conc. quatenus aliqua ex divina substantia transeat in animam, neg. ant. et conseqm. Anima humana participatio dicitur divinæ naturæ eodem modo, quo creatæ omnes naturæ, et perfectiones dicuntur participationes divinæ naturæ, et divinarum perfectionum, quatenus scilicet Deus communicavit animæ intellectum, et voluntatem, quæ sunt tenui, atque eminentiori modo in ipso Deo continentur, et signavit super illam divini vultus lumen, quo bonum a malo discernere possimus. Hinc rationalis anima in Scripturis dicitur ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei, non ex substantia ipsa Dei.

Dices 3tio. Non repugnat Deum esse re ipsa divisibilem in partes. Ergo non repugnat, mentes humanas esse particulas divinæ substantiæ. Pro ant. non repugnat Deum esse corporeum. Ergo etc. Confirmatur. Nam interæ nationes summopere excultæ, cujusmodi sunt Siamenses, Sinenses, et Japonenses, censent animas esse tenue quoddam, eandemque et Deum.

R. neg. ant. ad prob: neg. ant. et conseqm. Deum concipi non posse veluti corporeum, et in partes divisibilem, suadet evidentissime idea illa, quam omnes habent de Deo tanquam de ente summe perfecto, adeoque de ente summe simplici. In quolibet genere, inquit S. Thomas Lib. 1 contra Gentiles, Cap 18, tanto aliquid ē nobilius, quanto simplicius, sicut in genere calidi ignis, qui non habet aliquam permixtionem frigidi. Quod igitur ē in fine nobilitatis omnium entium, oportet esse in fine simplicitatis. Hoc autem, quod dicimus in fine nobilitatis omnium entium, dicimus Deum. Nulla igitur compositio ei accidere potest. Et sane, nemo inficiabitur, omne ens compositum corruptioni esse obnoxium. Compositio quippe, inquit S. Gregorius Nazianzenus Oratione 34, pugnæ initium ē, pugna autem divisio, dissidium solutionis. Evidens ē autem Deum non posse corrumpi, quum fieri non possit ut esse desinat, quod nullam habet dependentiam. Neque, ait Origenes Lib. 1 de Principiis, Cap. 1, aut corpus aliquid, aut in corpore esse putandus ē Deus, sed intellectualis natura simplex, nihil omnino in se adjunctionis admittens, uti ne majus aliquid, et inferius esse credatur, sed ut sit ex omni parte monas, et, ut ita dicam, totus mens, ac fons. Sed de simplicitate Dei satis superque dictum ē Pneumatologiæ Lib. 1. Cap. 5.

Ad confirmationem; quod aliquæ Asiaticæ Gentes, quod Spinoza, quod Tolandus, atque Poiretus sibi suadere studeant Deum esse corpus, corpoream esse animam, immo Deum simul esse corpus, et animam; nihil evincit contra ceterarum nationum, et contra universalem in hac re aliorum Philosophorum opinionem. Ac Deus quidem dici non potest hominis animam ex ea parte, quod anima multa ignoret, propter erret, plura confuse, et inadequate sciat; quæ in Deo perfectissimo locum habere non possunt. Præterea, si mens humana ē Deus ipse, si minus late patentia, [illegible] mens divina; et, sicuti Deus adæquata habet ideam sui, rerumque omnium, quæ ex ipsius essentia necessario sequuntur, ita humana mens adæquatam habebit ipsius cognitionem, corporis cui unita ē organici, rerum quarumcumque externarum. Entis absolute infiniti, substantiæ nimirum constantis infinitis attributis, adeoque talem habebit cognitionem, ut labi atque errare nunquam possit. Hæc quum animæ humanæ, intima suadente experientia, nequaquam conveniant, concludendum ē, animam hominum non esse tenuem spiritum, seu non esse divinam aliquam materiam, ut Asiaticæ illæ nationes putant, aut partem infiniti materialis divini intellectus, quemadmodum pridem docuit Spinoza.

Propositio 2da. Mentes humanæ non [sunt] particulæ decerptæ ex Magna Universi Anima, et præexistentes in aliis orbis, antequam descenderent in corpora, uti opinatus ē Plato. Neque detrusæ fuerunt in corpora, velut in carcerem, ut scelerum ante patratorum pœnas luerent, quemadmodum existimavit Origenes.

Pro 1 Propositio quoad primam partem. Magna Universi Anima Platonicorum vel spiritualis censenda ē natura, vel materialis omnino, et corporea. Sed ex spirituali anima mundi sumi, atque elici non potuerunt mentes humanæ, quum spiritualis mundi anima dividi non potuerit in partes. Ex corporea Universi anima erui non potuerunt ipsius partes, quum repugnet demonstratis superius incorporeæ earum naturæ, ut ex corporea Anima, tanquam partes ex toto, fuerint avulsæ. Mentes itaque hominum fingi non possunt veluti quædam particulæ ex Anima Universi decerptæ.

Pro 2do prima Propositionis pars. Decerptæ ex Anima mundi humanæ mentes, et præexistentes ante corpora aliis in orbis omnino ~~[illegible]~~ [destruunt historiam] originis animarum, quam in Libro Geneseos describit Moyses. Quum non omnium animarum eadem proportio sit ratio, atque origo; quis non videt, primi Parentis animam fuisse ejus corpore antiquiorem, si mentes humanæ præexistentes aliis in orbibus essent corporibus antiquiores? Animam tamen Adæ respicuam ante ejus corpus extitisse certum, atque evidens ē. Formavit Deus Hominem, inquit Moyses Cap 2. Geneseos vº 7. (scilicet Adæ corpus) de limo terræ, et inspiravit in faciem ejus (nempe formati corporis) spiraculum vitæ. (hoc ē animam rationalem) et factus ē homo in animam viventem. Creata itaque non fuit Adæ anima, nisi formato prius ejus corpore; aut saltem creata fuit, quum condidit Adæ corpus summus Artifex Deus. Quare si nostri Parentis anima antiquior non fuit ejus corpore, cur censendum erit ceterarum creationem animarum corporum præcessisse productionem?

Confirmatur argumento, quod nobis suppeditat D. Hieronymus Epistª 61. Si fuit anima, ait S. Doctor antequam Adam in Paradiso formaretur ... necesse ē, ut aliqua causa præcesserit, cur quæ prius sine corpore fuit, postea circumdata sit corpore. Et si animæ ē naturale esse sine corpore, ergo contra naturam ē esse in corpore. Si contra naturam ē esse in corpore, ergo resurrectio corporis contra naturam erit. Sed non fiet resurrectio contra naturam. Ergo, juxta sententiam nostram, corpus, quod contra naturam ē redditum, animam non habebit.

Pro. 2, oo quoad 2dam partem. Ex hactenus demonstratis, mentes humanæ non fuerunt corporibus antiquiores. Sed, si non fuerunt antiquiores, nullum fuit patratum ab eis scelus, propter quod carceri traderentur corporeo. Mentes ergo humanæ detrusæ non fuerunt in corpora, veluti in carcerem, ut scelerum pœnas luerent. Confirmatur. Si ante corpus existens anima peccavit, [illegible] argumentatur Cyrillus Alexandrinus Lib. 1 in Joannem, Cap 9) et idcirco innexa ē carni, nonne aequalius gravioru quidem peccata morte plecti, innocentes vero vivere [illegible] Præstaret quippe plectere, turpissimorum criminum reos diu in corporibus herere, ut hoc pacto gravius punirentur, innocentes vero corporibus exsolvi, [illegible] loco, inclusæ sunt in corporibus animæ. sed contra, morte quidem punitur homicida, vita autem corpore nihil pœnitur non est igitur, supplicii loco, inclusa corpori anima.

Dices 1. Quanquam, secundum Mosaicam historiam, Adam primus extiterit generis humani Parens, fuerunt tamen homines Adamo antiquiores. Ergo, licet, secundum scripturarum divinarum authoritatem, Anima Adami non fuerit illius corpore antiquior, potuere tamen ceteræ animæ esse corporibus antiquiores. Antecedens certum videtur. Nam Isaac de Peirera in suo nupero Præadamitarum Libro, quem edidit apud Batavos anno 1652, ex ipsis sacris scripturis conatur ostendere, ante Adamum homines extitisse. Legimus in Libro quodam conscripto a Rege Cozar, apud Indos vixisse temporibus Adami Janbuzar, Zagrit et Roanne, eumque Janbuzar fuisse Adami Præceptorem. Rabbinus Abrar tradit, Seatar, qui Syriacum Iman erat, vere obitum anno circiter 770, fuisse Præadamitam. Et nostris quoque temporibus non desunt, qui putant ceteros Planetas suos quoque habere incolas qui ab Adamo profecti non sunt, et nostræ fortasse Telluris incolis multo sunt antiquiores. Cur itaque ante creatam Adami animam existere non potuerunt in aliis orbibus ceteræ humanæ animæ, quæ postea demissæ in corpora, Adami Nepotes, Telluris semper habitatores constituerent?

R. hic est. Nulos revera fuisse Præadamitas, seu homines Adamo antiquiores, ex sacris scripturis adeo manifeste colligitur, ut dubitari non possit, sicut Isaaco Peirerio philosophandum est ex authoritate divinarum scripturarum. Nam, uti animadvertit P. Natalis Alexander in Historia Ecclesiastica Veteris Testamenti, Dissertatione 3. Articulo 1., Moyses mundi initia, primamque rerum omnium productionem describens, non solum Præadamitas nullos commemorat, sed referens creationem primi hominis, cui dominium in universa animantia regens creata collatum a Deo fuit, hæc habet. Et creavit Deus hominem ad imaginem suam, ad imaginem Dei creavit illum, masculum, et feminam creavit. Benedixitque illis Deus, et ait. Crescite, et multiplicamini, et replete terram, et subjicite eam, et dominamini piscibus maris, et volatilibus Cœli, et universis animantibus, quæ moventur super terram. Hunc autem primum hominem fuisse Adamum constat ex Capitibus 2do, 3tio, et sequentibus, præsertim vero ex capite 5, ubi repetens Moyses primi capitis verba, significat intelligenda illa esse de Adamo, inquiens. Hic est Liber generationis Adam. In die, qua creavit Deus hominem, ad similitudinem Dei fecit illum. Masculum, et feminam creavit eos, et benedixit illis et vocavit nomen eorum Adam in die, quo creati sunt.

Quod si reponat Peirerius, Cap. 1 Geneseos Gentilium creationem enarrari, Cap. vero 2do formationem Adami primi Judæorum non omnium hominum Parentis, respondendum erit cum eodem P. Alexandro, alterius hominis creationem primo, et 2do Capite Geneseos a Moyse non describi sed versum 7 2di Capitis meram anacephalæosim continere, qua id, quod primo Capite de creatione Adami pressius dixerat, et quasi proposuerat, prolixius explicat, et accuratius. Nam imprimis versiculo 4. Capitis 2di creationem Cœli, terræ, plantarumque commemorat, sicut versu 7 creationem hominis describit. Sicut ergo non alii cœli, alia terra aliæ stirpes, et plantæ versu 4to Capitis 2di memorantur, quam illæ, quarum creatio Cap. 1 descripta est, ita nec alterius creationem hominis meminit Moyses versu 7 Capitis 2di, sed narrationem Cap. 1. propositam resumens, eam accuratius describit. 2do systematis Præadamitarum falsitatem demonstrant verba illa Cap. 2. v. 5: Et homo non erat, qui operaretur terram. Quomodo enim non erant homines, si existebant Præadamitæ, quorum creatio, docente Peirerio, Cap. 1. narratur? 3tio, sex dierum operibus absolutis, ac recensitis Cap. 1., Deus a creatione cessasse dicitur, imo sabbatum propterea constituisse. Post septimam itaque diem Adamum non creavit. Deinde, quod attinet ad dominicum illud sabbatum a Judæis imitatione exprimi, et celebrari, si Adamus Judæorum Pater ante illud sabbatum creatus non sit. Quarto Gentium Regna, et Principes, Geneseos Cap. 10. ortum duxisse narrantur a Sem, Cham, et Japhet Filiis Noe, qui ad Adamum originem suam referebant. Omnes igitur homines ab Adamo progeniti sunt, Propterea Apostolus, ut legitur Actorum Cap. 17 v. 26 in Areopago sermonem habens, de Deo ait: Fecitque ex uno omne genus hominum inhabitare super universam faciem Terræ. Alia argumenta et efficacissima equidem sunt, quæ liquido ostendunt, desipere eos, qui Præadamitarum existentiam ex sacris potissimum scripturis demonstrare conantur; sed illa, quæ ex intima Theologia petita sunt, Theologis relinquimus. Ea consulere poterit quis apud laudatum Natalem Alexandrum, et apud Calmetum commentario in Caput 2dum Geneseos. Ceterum, admissa etiam Præadamitarum hypothesi, non erit demonstratum, animas humanas fuisse initio simul avulsas ex universi anima, in aliis orbibus fuisse collocatas, ob scelera patrata fuisse successive in corpora detrusas. Nam præterea, quæ in probatione diximus; secundum systema Peirerianum, Animæ sive Adami, sive Præadamitarum non extiterunt ante creationem corporum, sed fuere a Deo creatæ vel una cum corpore, vel post corporis productionem. Quæ ex Libro Cozar, aut ex Rabbino Abrar allata sunt, quum prorsus sint commentitia, atque ridicula, id nobis postulant, ut tantum commemorentur. Hypothesis denique illorum, qui putant Jovem, Martem, aliosque Planetas suos habere incolas, eam si non revereri nullum tamen habet robur adversus Probationem nostram. Quærimus enim, utrum animæ hominum in aliis cælestibus corporibus quandoque fuerint, atque inde ex illis Regionibus in terram descenderint, nostris constructis corporibus. Quare, tametsi et Joviales, et Martiales e. g. forent homines, non sequeretur tamen fuisse quandoque martiales, aut Joviales animas, quæ unitæ nunc sunt corporibus Terricolarum.

Dices 2do. In Psalmo 118 dicitur Priusquam humiliarer ego deliqui, hoc est, priusquam humiliaretur anima mea per corporis alligationem, in quo, velut in carcere, detinetur, peccavi Deus meus. Hinc studet Regius Psaltes: Educ de carcere animam meam.

R. nimis perturbari ab Origenistis sacros textus, quos eos secundum pravam adeo opinionem interpretantur, et inepte contorquent. Quum postulat David educi de custodia, seu carcere corporis animam, non indicat animam in pœnam peccati fuisse in corpus, tanquam in carcerem, detrusam; sed corpus nuncupat carcerem animæ, propterea quod unita corpori non potest Deum cognoscere et contemplari, quemadmodum separata a corporeis commercio contemplabitur. Ut itaque liberius cognoscere, et consequi Deum possit, exclamat Propheta Regius: Educ de corpore animam meam.

Propositio 3tia. Animæ humanæ per traducem non propagantur ex Parentibus in Filios.

Probatio demonstratur. Animæ humanæ ex Parentibus in Filios per traducem propagari non possunt, quia corporeæ dicantur. Nam, ut apposite P. Fortunatus, quum propagatio per traducem in eo consistat, ut una portio alicuius substantiæ, quæ ex uno in aliud hoc modo diffunditur, decedat ex generante, et genitum subeat, non quod per traducem dicitur propagari nequit anima, quae in patre existit, propagari in filium, nisi plures particulas ipsa contineat, quarum una seu ipsa a suo toto separari possit, et seminis vehiculo in illud transfundi corpusculum, cui pater ipse, quum filium generat, initium et motum, et vitam, ac proinde nisi sit corporea. Sed humana Anima, ex superius demonstratis, non est corporea. Ergo animae humanae ex parentibus in filios per traducem propagari non possunt. Confirmatur. Nam si spiritualis anima haberi posset ex traduce; vel totus spiritus Patris transiret in Filium, vel pars: si primum; Remaneret itaque sine Anima Pater: si 2dum; spiritus ergo, seu anima Patris foret divisibilis, et materialis. Fieri itaque non potest, ut corporum more per traducem habeat Anima.

Dices 1. Docentibus Scripturis, animae humanae habentur per generationem ex eo ex. Probatur: Genesios Cap. 46 v. 26 dicitur: Cunctae animae, quae ingressae sunt cum Jacob in Aegyptum, et egressi sunt de femore illius, absque uxoribus filiorum ejus, sexaginta sex. Ergo etc.

R. negando ad probationem conc. ant. ne. conseq.um quum ait scriptura animas egressas esse de femoribus Jacob, per animam totum exprimit hominem, non incorpoream duntaxat substantiam illam, a qua humani corporis vita dependet, ita ut sensus sit: Cuncti homines, qui egressi sunt de femore Jacob, fuerunt sexaginta sex. Nam, ut pluribus exemplis demonstrari posset, mos est Scripturarum, nomine animae, totum designare hominem; quod et nos tam in loquendo, quam in scribendo plerumque facere solemus, quum fortes homines fortes animas dicimus, vel et aut, animas vel nuncupamus. Quod si quis premat improprium esse dicere hujusmodi loquutionem; propterea quod, et totus homo non habetur ex generatione, neque totus homo egressus dici potest ex femore Patris: respondendum esset, sacras scripturas non fuisse semper loquutas, more Philosophorum, in sensu proprio, et rigido, sed hominum vulgari consuetudini se se saepe accommodasse. Quamobrem, ut totus Filius descendisse dicatur a femore Patris, sufficit ut corpus duntaxat Filii ex generatione descendat a Patre; quia licet corpus non sit hominis pars principalis, ea tamen est, quae in homine nobis immediate occurrit, quaeque sola, quum hominem intuemur, a nobis conspicitur.

Dices 2do. Si animae humanae non propagantur ex traduce ex Patribus in Filios, intelligi non potest propagatio originalis peccati. Nam quomodo in posteros transire, nobisque communicari potuit primi Parentis labes, si animae nostrae ex infecta Adae anima profectae non sunt? Si anima ex traduce non est, argumentabatur quondam D. Augustinus Pelagius, sed sola caro tantum habet traducem peccati: sola ergo poenam meretur. Injustum est enim, ut hodie nata anima non ex massa Adae, tam antiquum peccatum portet alienum; quia nulla ratione conceditur, ut Deus, qui propria peccata dimittit, una imputet alienum.

R. universum humanum genus infectum nasci originalis peccati labe; nec tamen propagari per traducem humanas animas a Parentibus in Filios. Nam si communicatur nobis primi Parentis peccatum, quod animae nostrae sint veluti partes quaedam avulsae ex Adae anima: si Adae primum crimen propagatur in posteros per generationem et per traducem animarum; cur quaeso, non conspicitur quotidie, ut animae Filiorum, quae secundum Adversarios partes sunt decerptae ex animabus Parentum, iisdem pollerent instructae virtutibus, quibus animae Parentum? Cur ex probis, doctisque viris, probi non exoriuntur, doctique Filii? Cur ex improbis atque insanis non proficiscuntur insani semper, et improbi liberi? Nascuntur itaque Filii originali labe infecti, non quod eorum animae ex infectis animabus Parentum per generationem deciderint, sed quia corruptae carni, quae ex Parentibus habetur, conjunctae fuerunt Filiorum animae. Certum tenemus, inquit Auctor Libri de Spiritu, et anima, Cap. 41 quia caro contracta de carne per legem concupiscentiae, quam cito vivificatur, originalis culpae vinculo premitur, ejusque affectionibus anima, quae carnem vivificat, aggravatur. Sub hoc peccati vinculo detinentur parvuli, qui sine remedio Baptismi moriuntur. Habent enim originale peccatum, non per animam sed per carnem utique contractum, animaeque refusum. Carni namque ita unitur anima, ut cum carne sit una persona. Fit enim auctore Deo, anima, et caro unum individuum, unus homo; unde, salva natura utriusque proprietate, adiicitur carni, quod animae est, et animae, quod carnis est, pro unitate personae, non pro diversitate naturae. Quod igitur ibidem singulis est proprium, commune fit amborum; proprium pro natura, commune pro persona. Inde fit anima originali culpae obnoxia, quam caro contrahit, et animae refundit, cum qua unita est in persona, licet divisa in natura. Hactenus Auctor ille. D. vero Augustinus, licet de origine animae fuerit incertus; posito tamen, quod non provenit per traducem, apte docuit, contrahi ab anima originale peccatum quod infectae carni, ineffabili unione, copuletur. Inquit enim Lib. 5. contra Julianum: Profecto aut utrumque (anima scilicet, et corpus) vitiatum ex homine trahitur; aut alterum in altero, (nempe anima in corpore) tanquam in vitiato vase corrumpitur, ubi occulta justitia divinae legis includitur. Quod itaque in universum humanum genus propagetur primi Parentis peccatum, non probat humanas animas, non secus ac caro, propagari per traducem.

Dices 3tio. Homini, non secus ac Plantis, dixit Deus: Crescite et multiplicamini. Sed Plantae multiplicantur per generationem. Ergo etc.

R. ~~distinguo ma.~~ Homini quoad corpus spectato non secus ac Plantis, dixit Deus Crescite, et multiplicamini conc.: Homini spectato secundum animam etc. ne. Min. conc. ma. et sub adata dist.e ne. conseq.um ex iis, quae diximus superius in resp.e ad ob.m primam patet hujus argumenti solutio.

Propositio 4ta. Animae humanae non fuerunt omnes simul initio temporis a Deo creatae, et ut inclusae organicis corpusculis, quae eodem tempore formata a Deo in Evae ovario, et propagata per generationem, in ovis femineis delitescunt.

Ut Propositio haec clarius, quo fieri potest demonstretur, aliqua animadvertere debemus cum tradidis recentioribus Philosophis spectantia ad generationem animalium. Harveus, Steno, Bartholinus, Graafius, Malpighius, Vallisnerius, aliique Empedoclem sequuti existimant animalia omnia oriri ex ovis in prima femina a Deo creatis, propagatisque per generationem in alias feminas (Nam illud intercedit discrimen inter animalia ovipara atque vivipara, ut illa sorte, haec vero intus propria ova foveant. In illis fetus ovo inclusus ex substantia in ovo latente nutriatur, et crescat, in his fetus in ovo latens, et materno existens in utero alimentum recipiat a Matre) Verum ita animalia fiducumque ex ovis oriri, secundum hujusmodi Philosophorum systema, ut non oriantur, nisi facta fecundatione ovi feminei ope seminis masculini. Quare hominis conceptio, seu generatio ex eo fit, quod subtilior, atque vividior virilis seminis portio ingressa femineum ovulum humani corporis machinulae in ovo delitescenti motum communicet, illiusque partes evolvat, efficiatque ut antiquis redditqe reddant ad eos parendos motus in quibus vita consistit. Hodie pro certo atque explorato habet, inquit Wolfius Psychol. Rat. sect. 4. Cap. 2., fetum in utero materno non generari ex massa seminis rudi, atque indigesta sed ex corpusculo organico preexistente, sive organicum istud corpusculum sit animalculum spermaticum, sive quodcumque aliud rudimentum fetus. Hec posita.

Pro: 1 Probo. Corpusculum illud organicum, quod in ovo latet femineo, antequam fecundetur masculini seminis aura, vel vitę motibus predituм est, vel instar mortui corporis, omni destitutum est motu. Si humana illa machinula motu caret, nullumque in ea habetur vitę signum, predita itaque non est rationali anima. Nam sicuti lex naturę postulat, ut anima humana corpus relinquat, quum amplius non est idoneum ad obeunda vitę munera; ita postulare videtur ut in corpusculo organico non collocet a Deo mens, nisi illud sit idoneum, ut statim ac illi juncta est anima, vitę functiones exerceat. Si vero humana illa machinula spiritu humano animata et movet, et vivit. Sed homo ergo concipiendum, necessum minime est, ut femineum ovum fecundetur a semine maris, sed femina concipiet, quin viro nubat; quod quum maximum sit absurdum, concludendum est, organicum corpusculum in ovulo delitescens femineo destitui rationali anima, antequam fecundum fiat ope aure seminalis.

Pro: 2do Probo. Si feminę preditę sunt animatis ovulis, suaderi istis virginitas nisi generatim posset. Quum enim non constet, quę nam ex illis donatę sint humanis machinulis, quęnam iis destituantur; illę perpetuo virginitatis voto obstringere non possent, quin essent in causa, ut tot perirent animę, quot animata ovula complectuntur. Et recte ergo Christus Dominus tantopere comendavit virginitatem; erravit Apostolus exortans, ut omnes, nullo sexuum discrimine posito, ad sui imitationem perpetuo custodirent celibatum. Preterea, admissa Leibnitiana hypothesi, femine omnes, ne aliqua interiret anima, summo studio niti deberent, ut plures, quo fieri potest, partus emitterent: ubivertum proinde genus humanum polygamiam inducere deberet contra leges majori hominum parti communes, imo contra preceptum Christi pluralitatem uxorum in Evangelio prohibentis: Quę quantum indigna sint, nemo est, qui non videat.

Opponunt 1. Fatentibus divinis Scripturis, Deus initio mundi omnia simul condidit nec deinceps aliquid unquam creavit. Legimus enim Geneseos Cap 2 v. 2: Complevitque Deus die septimo opus suum, quod fecerat. et requievit die septimo ab universo opere, quod patrarat. Ergo simul etiam fuerunt conditę omnes humanę mentes, atque in primę Matris ovario collocatę.

R. Deum septimo die requievisse a condendis novis creaturarum speciebus, non autem ab iis etiam creandis substantiis, quę necessarię sunt, ut alicujus intra septem dies conditę speciei propagatio habeatur. Porro, quum Deus rationales quotidie creat animas, non novas aliquas creaturarum species, quas antea non fecerat, producit, sed efficit duntaxat, ut ea, quam ad sui imaginem initio condiderat, species prorsus non extinguatur, et pereat, sed propagatione servetur. Hinc autor Libri de Spiritu, et anima Cap. 41: Quales, inquit, in exordio die sexto masculo et feminę dedit animas, tales quotidie inspirat singulis, nova de nihilo creatione, non nova institutione. Pater, inquit, meus usque modo operatur, et ego operor. Operatur usque modo Pater, et Filius operatione quidem nova, sed institutione non nova, pro illa agens, cum ista quiescens. Res vero corporeę post primam sui creationem novę nullę creantur, sed simul in exordio conditę, temporali formatione propagantur. Animę autem non simul essentialiter factę sunt, sed pro ratione continuli, qua ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei sunt, et simul factę reputantur, et non simul editę judicantur. Non simul editę pro essentia, sed simul factę pro compari forma ad imaginem, et similitudinem Dei prerogata.

Instabit Wolfius fortasse, autorem Libri de Spiritu, et anima, quicumque ille fuerit, hominem quidem esse varię, multęque lectionis, ut judicabit Erasmus, non tantę tamen autoritatis, ut ejus dicta digna sint, quę in honore habeantur, secus ac summorum Patrum, aut Philosophorum sententię.

R. non solum authorem Libri de Spiritu, et anima, hominem ceteroquin maximę authoritatis, in ea fuisse opinione, sed idem sensisse D. quoque Augustinum, imo totam hanc doctrinam fuisse ex D. Augustino desumptam. Nam Lib. 4. sup. Genesis ad literam Cap. 12. expressis verbis fatetur, locum illum Geneseos de divina quiete a rebus creandis ita posse intelligi, ut sensus sit, Deum requievisse a condendis generibus creaturę, quia ultra jam non condidit aliqua genera nova. Quod docuit optime Epist. 166. scribens ad Hieronimum. Quum enim postulasset S. Hieronimus, ut sibi palam fieret, quomodo adversus Pelagianos defendi posset, singulas animas singulis nascentibus hominibus tamquam a Deo creari, quod ipse Hieronimus in Epistola ad Marcellinum, et Anapsychiam insinuaverat, ostendit Augustinus, ex illo Evangelii loco: Pater meus usque modo operatur, satis non evinci, quotidie a Deo creari animas, et in corpora mitti; sed neque ex eo, quod Deus die septimo quievisse dicatur, id esse falsum satis evidenter posse demonstrari. Ceterum; etiamsi Deus omnes simul initio Mundi condidisset mentes humanas; non recte tamen concluderent Leibnitiani, fuisse illas in Evę ovario inclusas, et per propagationem ovulorum in posteriores feminas propagatas; ut patet ex iis quę in probatione diximus. Hinc oppositi argumenti transmittendum ant: et neganda conseq.

Opponunt 2do cum Wolfio Psych. Rat: sect. 4. Cap 2. Qui sibi metuunt, ne periculosi quid subsit dogmati de preexistentia animarum, propterea quod ab antiquis Ecclesię Doctoribus impugnata fuerit... hominum credulitati obnoxias habent fidem. Non video, quid inde sequatur, quod vel rationali, vel revelatę religioni, vel virtuti sit adversum, si in prima statim rerum creatione animas a Deo ex nihilo productas asseras una cum stamine fetus.

R. antiquos Ecclesię Doctores validissimis rationibus contutasse preexistentiam mentium humanarum tam secundum sententiam Platonicorum, quam secundum sententiam Origenistarum, uti in 2da Propositione vidimus; merito propterea metuere Philosophos, ne periculosi quid subsit dogmati de preexistentia animarum. Atque ea quidem preexistentiam secundum hypothesim Leibnitianorum a Christiano Philosopho admitti non posse ex dictis in superiore probatione adeo perspicuum est, ut non intelligam, quomodo asserere queat Wolfius, nihil ex ea hypothesi fieri consectarium, quod vel rationali, vel revelatę religioni, vel virtuti repugnet. Nam, ut confirmittam sublatam inde virginitatem, et statutam necessario polygamiam, quam pessime sentire cogeremur de ineffabili mysterio incarnationis? Nam Christi quoque anima initio temporis una cum ceteris dicenda est in Evę ovario creata, si pro certo habendum est cum Wolfio, ita Deum quievisse di septimo, ut nihil postea creaverit, aut creaturus sit ad finem usq. mundi? Animam tn̄ Christi tunc solum a Deo fuisse creatam, quum divini verbi facta fuit incarnatio: Incarnationis autem mysterium fuisse duntaxat adimpletum, quum Angelo nuntianti respondit Virgo. Ecce ancilla Domini, fiat mihi secundum verbum tuum; communis ē sententia SS. Patrum. N̄ itaq. initio temporis creata fuit in suo ovario Christi anima; ac propterea hypothesis Leibnitiana, ex qua tam indignum consequitur absurdum, revelatæ religioni omnino adversatur.

Qd si urgeat Wolfius, incarnationem Verbi divini eē miraculum, n̄ propterea nostri argumenti vim infringit. Fatemur equidem eē illam maximum miraculum; sed neq. p miraculum creare aliquid debuit Deus, si ut putat Wolfius, a rerum condendarum die septimo penitus quievit: Quieti siquidem n̄ minus ea actio opponitur, quæ supra leges naturæ, quam ea, quæ naturæ legibus stare respondet.

Opponunt 3tio cum eodem Wolfio loco superius laudato. Deus die septimo a creando cessasse legitur, unde Theologi recte colligunt, qd hodie nihil amplius creet, seu ex nihilo producat. Scripturæ igitur convenit creatio animarum in prima statim creatione a Deo facta.

R. deceptum fuisse virum cl. quum opinatus ē sententiam de præexistentia animarum consentaneam eē opinioni Theologorum. Falsum ē ex textu illo Geneseos colligere Theologos, rationales animas quotidie a Deo n̄ creari, nisi forte de iis Theologis loquatur Wolfius, qui contra communem sententiam tuentur cum Leibnitio præexistentiam animarum in ovis femineis, vel de antiquioribus illis, qui aut animas præexistere corporibus opinati sunt cum Platone et Origene, vel eas ex Parentibus in filios p traducem propagari existimarunt; quorum tn̄ authoritates Theologorum n̄ tanti faciendam esse putamus. Sed quoniam ad Theologos confert se se Wolfius, audiamus Patres universos Concilii Lateranensis Quinti sub Leone 10. celebrati. Sessione 8. expresse habetur, animas rationales pro corporum, quibus infundit, multitudine singulariter eē multiplicabiles, multiplicatas, et multiplicandas. Porro, si pro corporum multitudine rationalis anima multiplicanda ē, animæ omnium hominum, qui ad finem usq. mundi nascituri sunt, n̄ fuerunt initio temporis a Deo creatæ. Quippe, si simul fuerunt creatæ, multiplicatæ quidem sunt pro futurorum hominum numero, sed n̄ multiplicandæ. Sed et multo ante Lateranense Concilium Oecumenica V synodus id satis evidenter definierat his verbis: Si quis fabulosam animarum præexistentiam, et, quæ ex illa consequitur, monstruosam restitutionem asseverit, anathema sit; Quæ quidem definitio, licet Origenianam duntaxat opinionem proscribat, nec systema Leibnitianum directe reiciat, probat tn̄ quantum a veritate aberraverit Wolfius, quum dixit ex textu illo Geneseos colligere Theologos, Deum post diem septimum nihil amplius aut creasse, aut creare.

Ceterum; n̄ possunt contendere Leibnitiani humanas animas præexistere in suis corpusculis organicis, quin philosophent contra principium rationis sufficientis, qd tanti ipsi faciunt et tam magnifice proponunt. Hujusce n. præexistentiæ animarum nulla occurrit sufficiens ratio, sive divina spectes authoritatem, sive natura ipsa consulatur. Nulla ē ratio sufficiens desumpta ex authoritate divina. Nam ut superius demonstravimus, nihil sequitur contra nos, qd Deus die septimo ab omni opere quievisse legatur: nec alius adduci potest scripturarum locus, quo ostendat Wolfius nihil deinceps p creationem a Deo factum fuisse, aut eē faciendum. Nulla ē ratio sufficiens, si naturam ipsam consulamus. Etenim vero, si aliqua ex hoc capite desumi posset sufficiens ratio, ea profecto esset, quam ipsemet Wolfius se putat ostendere in Theologia naturali, Deum hodie nihil amplius creare, nec creaturum quicquam, quamdiu hic mundus adspectabilis existet. Hæc autem ratio, etiamsi sufficiens esset ratio, non evinceret, nullam spiritualem substantiam ēnunc a Deo creari, sed tantum nihil sensibile de novo confere in Mundo, qd p veram creationem habeatur. Itaq. ne contra principium rationis sufficientis argumententur Leibnitiani, desinant sibi fingere, animas rationales fuisse initio Mundi simul conditas, atq. omnes inclusas organicis corpusculis, quæ Deus in suo ovario collocaverat.

Ppõo 3. Humanæ animæ tunc solum a solo Deo creantur et creantur, et infunduntur, quum ea habetur in corpusculis humanis organizatio, quæ sufficit ad obeunda vitæ munera.

Pro: 1. Ppõnis part, qd nimirum a solo Deo creentur animæ. Ex iis, quæ in superioribus Ppõnibus demonstravimus, patet hujusmodi eē mentes humanas, ut neq. p traducem propagari possint ex Patre in filium, neq. eē possint particulam divinæ substantiæ, neq. ex mundi anima decerpi. Creatæ itaq. fuerunt animæ, seu a Deo ex nihilo productæ. Et sane, quum substantia, quæ intrinsece ingenerabiles solent nuncupari, talis sit, ut n̄ nisi p creationem possit haberi, ut constat in Angelis, qui quum intrinsece sint ingenerabiles, alium habent naturam, quæ tantum p creationem potest oriri. Rationales animæ quum n̄ secus ac Angelicæ mentes simplices substantiæ sint, adeoq. intrinsece ingenerabiles, nonnisi p creationem a Deo habere possunt originem. Neq. n. fas ē, ait D. Augustinus Lib. 12 de Civitate Dei, Cap. 24. ullius naturæ, quamlibet minimæ mortalisq. creatorem, nisi Deum credere, ac dicere. Et Lib. 1. de anima, et ejus origine, Cap. 15. Unum ē, inquit, e duobus. Si ex traduce n̄ ē, ex nihilo ē, ne illa sit a Deo, ut naturæ sit Dei, qd omnino sacrilegum ē credere. Qd autem a solo Deo creari possit anima ex eo constare potest, qd, quum incorpoream substantiam naturam, et partibus carere necesse sit, nihil habere potest in rerum natura, ex quo præexistente intrinsecus componatur, adeo ut produci tantum possit ex nihilo sui et p creationem, quæ soli Deo adscribenda ē, ut cum D. Augustino adnotavimus. Deo itaq. duntaxat creandi virtus competit, propterea a solo Deo creari potuit anima. Quis negat, ait laudatus S. Doctor, Epist. 190, n̄ animus tantum, sed omnium animarum creatorem Deum, atq. factorem, nisi qui ejus eloquiis apertissime refragatur? Sine ulla quippe ambiguitate p Prophetam dicit. Omnem flatum ego feci. animas videlicet intelligi volens, qd verba consequentia manifestant. N̄ itaq. unum, quem facto ex terra homini primo inspiravit, sed omnem flatum ipse fecit, et ipse adhuc facit. Hujusmodi animarum creationem, quam cum D. Augustino docuerunt SS. Ecclesiæ Patres innixi testimoniis Scripturarum, ethnici etiam philosophi opinati sunt sola ducti ratione naturali. Inter ceteros hæc habet Tullius Lib. 1. Tusc. Quæst. Animorum nulla in terris origo inveniri potest. Nihil n. ē in animis mixtum, atq. concretum, aut qd ex terra natum, atq. fictum eē videatur. Nihil ne aut humidum quidem, aut flabile, aut igneum. His n. in naturis nihil inest, qd vim memoriæ, mentis, cogitationis habeat, qd et præterita teneat, et futura prævideat, et complecti possit præsentia, quæ sola divina sunt. Nec invenietur unquam, unde ad hominem venire possint, nisi a Deo.

Pro. 2da Ppõnis part, animas scilicet humanas tunc solum a Deo creari, et corpori infundi, quum ea in corpore habet organizationem, vel ea in præexistente corpusculo facta est partium evolutio, quæ requiritur, ut composita [illegible] sultans vitæ functiones possit exercere. Nam, præter verba illa Geneseos, quæ in prolatione 2dæ Probationis adduximus, quæ Ecclesiæ Patres adversus Origenistas, et Priscillianistas afferre solent, si pro certo habendum est, [illegible] corpore recipere humanam animam, quum corpus prius ad vitales motus gerendos idoneum amplius non est, censendum eodem modo erit, tunc solum animam a Deo creari, et corpori infundi, quum corpus [illegible] proxime aptatum est ad vitæ exercendas functiones. Confirmatur. In concilio Viennensi sub Clemente V, et in Lateranensi sub Leone X definitum est substantiam animæ rationalis, et intellectivæ esse vere, et per se hominis formam. Porro si forma ea dicitur, quæ, tanquam pars essentialis, et operationum principium, totum aliquid constituit, et, si secundum D. Augustini doctrinam, anima est substantia quædam rationis particeps regendo corpori accommodata, tunc solummodo debet corpori infundi, quum corporis partes ita sunt organizatæ, ut ille sit homo per animam, tanquam per formam, primam suam elicere operationem. Certum itaque est, animam humanam tunc a Deo creari et corpori infundi, quum ea habet organizationem, quæ sufficit ad obeunda vitæ munera.

Opponunt 1. Ratione consonum non est ad explicandam animæ originem confugere ad causam, quæ supernaturalis est; quum anima sit res naturalis, et ad rerum naturalium seriem ordinata, neque physicum dogma sit, quidquam ex nihilo produci.

R. Merito nos redarguere non possunt Adversarii, si, quando animæ nostræ originem investigamus, solum Deum esse illius auctorem dicimus. Nam, quum vel ipsi gentiles Philosophi, immaterialis, et simplex sit anima; quæ propterea ex nihilo tantum produci, nec ab alia causa, quam a Deo, potest provenire, id asserimus, quod ratione nihil omnino consonum est. Quum autem affirmamus, animam ex nihilo quotidie a Deo creari, non tales causas facimus, quæ naturæ ordinem superent. Siquidem, quum ipse rerum ordinem, quem in natura Deus instituit, ac sua divina providentia tuetur, [illegible] unde sit, quo hominum propagatio, et cujusque hominis ex corpore, et rationali anima constitutionem decrevit, necesse est, ut eodem ordine productionem animæ ex nihilo statuerit, quam productionem, quæ aliunde esse non potest, sibi metipsi reservavit. Deus autem totius naturæ rerum, sicuti conservans, prout cujusque rei conditio, et institutus ordo exigit, nihil extraordinarium facit, quum, [illegible]. [illegible] rationalem de nihilo creat animam, eamque in [illegible] corpus infundit. Quare, quum neque animæ [illegible] productio sit præter ordinem a Deo in natura statutum, sed anima, quam illius productio dicenda est naturalis. Quod autem ajunt, physicum dogma non esse, ex nihilo aliquid creari, falsum omnino est. Ita sentiant oportet, qui, quum singulares naturæ res intuentur, earumque nullam aliquid ex nihilo facere, sed omnia ex materia moliri vident, [illegible] judicio statuunt nihil ex præexistente materia, vel fieri non posse. At secus argumentantur, qui rerum auctorem, quod existere physicum dogma est, finitis non includunt limitibus. Tantum ergo abest, ut dogma sit a physica abhorrens, esse in Mundi auctore vim, quæ omnes naturæ vires superet, qua possit facere quidquam ex nihilo novum, ut id ex ipsa physica necessario consequatur.

Opponunt 2do, contrarium fuisse sententiæ nostræ D. Augustinum, atque eam potius propugnasse, quæ docet, animas ex Parentibus in Filios propagari per traducem. Epist. 190, n° 2 scribens ad Optatum qui eum interrogaverat, utrum animæ, sicuti corpora, propagatione nascerentur, hæc habet: De qua re, antequam admoneam sinceritatem tuam, scito, in tam multis opusculis meis nunquam me fuisse ausum de hac quæstione definitam proferre sententiam, et [illegible] referre in literas ad alios informando, quod prius mihi non fuerit explicatum. Cautela autem Augustini verba id satis probant, si animæ origo per traducem non probatur, incertum scilicet esse, quomodo oriatur anima. Nam et Prudentius Episcopus Tricassinus, qui floruit nono Ecclesiæ sæculo, id fatetur, dum ait: Natum de carne caro, sed utrum anima similiter de anima nascatur, magna quæstio est, et a Patribus diu, multumque discussa, sed absque certa definitione relicta. Incertum itaque est, utrum anima producatur a Deo ex nihilo...

R. Licent nos citere D. Augustinum non ita nostram de anima sententiam admittere, ut eam palam et aperte tueatur, neque tamen animas ex Patribus in Filios per traducem propagari, certum tamen est, a nostra opinione Doctorem nullatenus abhorruisse. In primis in eadem Epist. 190 n° 13 Optatum monet, ut defendat, quantum potest, assertionem animarum ejusmodi esse novitatem, ut nulla propagatione ducantur. Et scribens ad Renatum monachum contra duos libros, quos de animæ origine Vincentius quidam Victor conscripserat, ita in hac re suam proponit sententiam. Animarum novarum sine propagine insufflationem defendi nullatenus prohibemus, sed [illegible] aliquid invenire vel in Canonicis Libris, quod non [illegible] ambiguum dissolvendæ huic obscurissimæ quæstioni, vel in ratiocinationibus suis, quod non sit contrarium catholicæ veritati, non a [illegible], qualis iste apparuit, qui non inveniendo quid diceret, et deliberationem suam nolendo suspendere, ne se nihil omnino [illegible] non metiens, ne taceret, ausus est dicere. Inquinari animam meruisse per carnem, et esse peccatricem animam peccatricem, cujus nullum meritum, seu bonum seu malum ante carnem potuit invenire. Et parvulis sine baptismo de corpore exeuntibus solvi posse originale peccatum, et offerendum pro eis sacrificium corporis Christi, qui non sunt incorporati per ejus sacramenta in ejus Ecclesia: eosque sine lavacro regenerationis de hac vita emigrantes, non ad requiem tantum ire, sed ad regnum Cælorum posse etiam pervenire. Et alia multa absurda, quæ omnia colligere, atque in isto libro disserere longum visum est. Porro, ut animarum propago, si falsa est, a nobis refutetur, et animarum novarum insufflatio, si vera est, a talibus defendatur. Hactenus D. Augustinus; ex quibus, et ex aliis quæ consequuntur, patet, non alia de causa anxium mansisse S. Doctorem in determinanda novarum in dies productione animarum, nisi quia viros inde occasionem sumebant nonnulla asserendi, quæ catholicis dogmatibus manifeste adversabantur. Ait enim, quod, si ex hac sententia quatuor ista consequi volunt. Primo scilicet a Deo fieri animas peccatrices per alienum originale peccatum. 2do, parvulos, qui sine baptismo decesserint, venire posse ad vitam æternam, regnumque cælorum, originali peccato [illegible] 3tio, animas peccasse alicubi ante carnem, et hoc merito in carnem peccatricem fuisse detrusas. 4to, peccata quæ in eis inventa non sunt, quia præscita sunt, merito fuisse punita, quum ad eam vitam [illegible] non convenit venire. Hæc inquam, quatuor, quoniam [illegible] aliquatenus impium est ex nostra sententia [illegible] D. Augustinus, se non solum non vetare, verum etiam favente, et gratias agente, velle defendi. Accedit, D. Augustini ætate, ac tempore etiam Prudentii Tricassini Episcopi nullam extitisse latam ab Ecclesia de origine animæ definitionem; unde inferendum non est, quod si D. Augustinus hac ætate viveret, nostræ sententiæ subscriberet.

Opponunt 3tio. Creatur, atque infunditur a Deo anima in principio generationis, priusquam corpusculi humani organa sint conformata. Ergo etc. Probant. Nam, antequam perfecte organizatum sit corpusculum, vel ipso in tempore conceptionis, vel brevi post vivere illud, atque sentire certum est.

R. In principio generationis, statim nimirum ac a seminali maris aura feminæ fecundatum est ovulum, creari, infundique a Deo rationalem animam, nec infundi tamen, priusquam conformata sint humanæ machinæ organa. [illegible] celebrioribus recentioribus Philosophis, præextitit in ovulo ante ullius fecundationem erectus, atque organizatus corpusculum, ita ut prædominantes aurarum ullius [illegible] partes excuterent, et leni, blandoque impetu ad motum quo prius erant destitutæ determinarent. In principio itaque generationis infundi potest anima, imo, secundum recentissimorum systema Philosophorum, infundi debet, nec tamen infunditur, antequam organizatum sit corpus.

Caput 5

De mutuo inter mentem humanam, et corpus commercio.

Commercium mentis humanæ cum corpore dicitur mirabilis ille consensus, quem habent certæ operationes mentis cum certis quibusdam motibus corporis; et vicissim, certi motus corporis cum certis affectionibus mentis, cujus consensus ratione, modo mens corporis, modo corpus mentis veluti interpres existit. Ipsa animæ sequuntur corpora, inquit Aristoteles, et ipsæ secundum se ipsas non sunt impassibiles a motibus corporis, id manifestum fit valde in ebrietatibus et ægritudinibus. Multum namque animæ mutatæ videntur a passionibus corporis. Sed e contrario, quod corpus compatitur passionibus animæ, manifestum est circa amores, et timores, et dolores, et voluptates. Amplius autem et in iis, quæ non fiunt, magis utique aliquis conspiciet, quod corpus et anima ita se habent connaturalia, ut fiant causæ plurimarum passionum ad invicem.

Statuendum autem imprimis est, eam inter mentem, et corpus intercedere harmoniam, legem, atque consensum, ut, positis certis quibusdam motibus in corpore, certæ rerum notiones in anima habeantur. Si enim res extra nos positæ eas corporis nostri partes, quas sensuum organa dicimus, ita afficiant, ut certa in illis motio fiat, eaque ad cerebrum usque propagetur, earundem rerum statim in anima notio excitatur. Constat quippe neque a calore tactum affici, neque visum nostrum a luce, coloreque immutari, quin mens calorem, colorem, atque lucem percipiat, seu quin ea in animo excitetur affectio, quam lucis, caloris, colorisque vel sensationem, vel notionem, vel ideam nuncupamus. Sensibilium autem rerum notiones, quæ, positis quibusdam motibus in corpore, excitantur in anima, ita alligatæ sunt iis motibus, qui ab ipsis sensibilibus rebus fiunt in corpore, ut eodem temporis momento, quo in corpore motus illi patiuntur, notiones illæ in mente excitentur. Impedire enim haudquaquam possumus, ne, quum res extra nos posita corporis organum sufficienter immutaverit, sensatio ipsius rei in mente, nisi aliò tunc vehementer distracta sit, recipiatur.

Ea insuper lege, rerum sensibilium notiones, quæ excitantur in mente, iis motibus respondent, qui a rebus ipsis fiunt in corpore, ut clariores, atque obscuriores illæ sint, prout magis, vel minus efficaces sunt ipsi motus. Nam experientia certum est, clariorem hominis notionem fieri in mente, quo homo ipse coram nobis existens validiori lumine perfunditur, atque adeo, quo fortius visionis organum movet; eandem vero notionem in nobis fieri obscuriorem, quo lumen debilius est, leviusque proinde reticularis oculi membrana ab eo impellitur.

Eodem vero ordine, quo vestigia rerum sensibilium ex immutatione organorum sensoriorum in cerebro primum facta, tum in illo relicta iterum in ipso excitantur, earundem quoque rerum sensibilium ideæ iterum producuntur in mente. Sic quia in stultorum, delirantium, et ebriorum cerebro motus a rebus sensibilibus in organis sensoriis facti, cum tumultu, et sine ordine rursus excitantur, perturbatæ eam, et tumultuariæ iterum excitantur in eorum mente ipsarum rerum notiones; et quia in cerebro eorum, qui compotes rationis sunt, motus illi cum lege, atque ordine iterum efficiuntur, ideæ pariter recto ordine, constantique lege iterum in mente excitantur.

Statuendum est secundo, quod, quemadmodum, positis quibusdam motibus in corpore, certæ excitantur affectiones in mente, ita vicissim, datis certis affectionibus in anima, determinati quidam motus in corpore consequuntur. Mens enim nostra ita in corpus suum exercet dominium, ut corporis partes moveantur ad illius nutum, tamdiu perseverent in motu, quamdiu ipsa velit, atque a motu cessent, quamprimum eidem placet. Nemo est, qui, quandocumque voluerit, hoc animæ dominium in semetipso non experiatur. Manus, et pedes, inquit S. Augustinus Lib. 14 de Civitate Dei, Cap. 23, movemus, quum volumus, ad ea, quæ his membris agenda sunt, sine ullo renisu, tanta facilitate, quanta et in nobis, et in aliis videmus. Neque ea sola membra movemus ad nutum, quæ compactis articulata sunt ossibus, sicut pedes, et manus, et digitos, verum etiam illa, quæ mollibus remissa sunt nervis, quum volumus, movemus agitando, et porrigendo producimus, et torquendo flectimus, et constringendo duramus, sicut ea sunt, quæ in ore, ac facie, quantum potest voluntas movet. Et Lib. 11 de Trinitate, n. 7 hæc habet: Tantum habet virium anima in corpus suum, et tantum valet ad indumenti qualitatem vertendam, atque mutandam, quomodo homo afficitur indutus, qui cohæret indumento suo. Corporis enim partes moventur ad nutum animæ, et, si nihil vetet, adsit in corpore, tanta celeritate moventur, tamque etiam cito, quum anima imperat, quiescunt, ut inter volitionem motus, et motum ipsum, inter volitionem quietis, et ipsam quietem ne minimum quidem temporis momentum discernere possimus.

Quamvis autem certum sit, animam determinare corpus ad motum, modus tamen, quo imperatos ab anima motus corpus exequitur, omnino nos latet, quum ignoramus movendi sint nervi, atque musculi, et qua potissimum lege, ut et ipsos et lingua moveat, et pedes agant, in idem inter se conveniant celebriores alii Philosophi. Verum pro certo habemus, animam, atque corpus, vi tam stabilis unionis, qua inter se copulata sunt, se habere perinde prorsus, ac si corpus revera ageret in mentem, et mens in corpus; propterea, non secus ac si mens a corpore, et corpus a mente in operando revera dependeret. Nam et corpus rerum sensibilium notiones producere videtur in mente, et mentem vicissim eos in corpore motus immediate efficere, qui ad illius nutum ab ipso corpore patiuntur.

Hisce prænotatis, inquirendum est, cur ex mutationibus, quæ fiunt in corpore a rebus sensibilibus, rerum earundem notiones excitentur in anima, perinde ac si corpus vi sua eas in anima produceret; et cur, ad nutum animæ, fiant voluntarii motus in corpore, non secus ac si motus ipsi efficerentur ab anima immediate. Quum enim in hac tam mirabili connexione idearum cum mutationibus, quæ fiunt in sensuum organis, et spontaneorum motuum cum eorundem volitione totum commercium positum sit, assignanda est ratio hujusce connexionis, ut mutuum animæ, et corporis commercium recte explicetur. Atque ut celebriores duntaxat in hac re spectemus sententias Philosophorum.

Primo loco veniunt Occasionalistæ, qui cum Cartesio, Malebranchio, et Silvano Regis negant mentem a corpore, et corpus a mente revera dependere, contendentes id tantum nobis videri propter certas, stabiles; et fixas operationum concomitantias. Inficiunt enim neque corpus physice influere in mentem, quum ex mutationibus factis in organis sensoriis a rebus sensibilibus, res ipsas sensibiles solet mens percipere; neque mentem in corpus, quum ad illius nutum movetur; sed Deum esse, qui, occasione mutationis factæ in sensorio a re sensibili, illius ideam producit in mente, et occasione volitionis motus, quam habet mens, motum ipsum efficit in corpore. Jam autem, inquit P. Malebranchius Parte 2da de inquisitione veritatis L. 6. Cap. 3, constare mihi videtur, voluntatem spirituum vel minimum corpus movere non posse nam nullam esse connexionem necessariam inter voluntatem nostram e. g. movendi brachium, et motum brachii, evidens est. Movetur equidem, quando volumus illud moveri; ac proinde sumus causa naturalis motus brachii nostri. Sed causæ naturales non sunt veræ causæ. Nihil sunt, quam causæ occasionales, quæ non agunt, nisi vi, et efficacia voluntatis divinæ. Igitur, concludendum est, homines quidem velle movere brachium, sed Deum solum posse, et nosse illud movere. Hæc Malebranchius, ex quibus patet, secundum ejus sententiam, solum Deum esse efficientem causam tum idearum, quæ excitantur in anima, tum motuum, qui a corpore fiunt, adeoque a divina solummodo voluntate repetendam esse causam mutui commercii inter animam, et corpus, ac solum Deum, qui modificat corpus in gratiam animæ, et animam in gratiam corporis, efficere, ut rerum ideæ mutationibus corporis, et motus corporis volitionibus mentis harmonice respondeant.

2do loco ponenda est hypothesis harmoniæ præstabilitæ, quam [illegible] excogitavit Gotofredus Guilelmus Leibnitius, et secuti sunt Wolfius, atque Bilfingerus. Systema autem harmoniæ præstabilitæ, ut explicat in Psych. Rat. Wolfius, illud est, quo commercium animæ, et corporis explicatur per series perceptionum atque appetitionum in anima, et seriem motuum in corpore, quæ per naturam animæ, et corporis harmonicè [illegible] [illegible]. Verum ut hoc systema probe attingatur, tria potissimum inquirenda sunt. Primo, quomodo habeatur series perceptionum, et appetitionum in anima. 2do, quomodo constat series motuum in corpore. 3tio, qua ratione fiat, ut series perceptionum, et appetitionum, quæ est in mente, seriei motuum respondeat, qui simul in corpore fiunt.

Quod attinet ad primum, humana mens per harmonistas talis est naturæ, ut naturali sua vi, independenter a quocumque externo principio, producat in se omnes perceptiones, et appetitiones, quas revera in se producit, adeo ut perceptiones, et appetitiones in anima eodem, quo nunc, modo consequerentur, etiamsi corpus non existeret. Hinc Leibnitius humanam mentem dicit esse substantiam, cujus perceptiones, et volitiones numero innumeræ, serie non interrupta, et interrumpi impossibili, altera alteram sequuntur, cumque hæc non interrupta perceptionum, et volitionum series constat in anima independenter ab omni externo dirigente principio, idcirco mentem ipsam spirituale automaton vocavit, quandam nempe veluti machinam, quæ vi sua, omni excluso extrinseco movente principio, suos facit motus.

Non secus de corporis motibus sentit Leibnitius. Corpus nostrum organicum menti unitum talis est machina, ut independenter ab anima eos omnes faciat motus, quos in ipso fieri deprehendimus. In systemate harmoniæ præstabilitæ, inquit Wolfius Psyc. Rat. Sect. 3. cap. 4. nº 6. 2., vi mechanismi corporis, [illegible] ex ideis materialibus [illegible] (nempe ex motibus qui ex sensibilium rerum appulsu fiunt in cerebro) nascuntur motus volitionibus, et nolitionibus animæ respondentes, citra ullam determinationem extrinsecam immediatam ab anima pendentem. Hinc, sicuti perceptiones, et appetitiones eodem, quo nunc modo in anima consequerentur, etiamsi corpus non existeret; ita, quoniam motus volitionibus animæ respondentes vi mechanismi corporis ex motibus ab impressionibus in organa sensoria factis, citra ullam determinationem extrinsecam ab anima nascuntur, consequuntur, eodem, quo nunc, modo consequerentur, etiamsi anima non existeret. Hæc Wolfius contendens, quod quemadmodum machinæ construi ab hominibus possunt, quæ vi solius mechanismi, plures hominum actiones æmulentur, ita fieri a Deo potuisse machinam, quæ solius partium mechanismi vi motus omnes perciperet, qui totius vitæ cursu fiunt ab homine. In hoc itaque systemate, sicuti mens spectatur veluti automaton spirituale, ita humanum corpus se habet tanquam automaton materiale.

Hoc autem modo mutuum inter animam, et corpus commercium, seu harmoniam explicant. Volunt hæc duo tam dissimilia automata ita a summo rerum omnium Artifice fuisse conita, ut singuli motus, qui vi mechanismi fiunt in corpore, consentiant singulis perceptionibus, appetitionibus, et aversationibus animæ, eodem prorsus ordine sese invicem consequentes, quo animæ modificationes se se invicem excipiunt. Concipe, inquit Gravesandeus Introductio ad Philosoph. Parte 1. Lib. 1. Cap. 17 mentem et corpus, quæ conveniant inter se, ita ut hujus motus cum perceptionibus, et determinationibus illius respondeant, et habebis integrum unionis mentis cum corpore arcanum. Convenientiam hanc vocant harmoniam præstabilitam.

Propositio 1. Mutuum commercium, quod inter mentem, atque corpus est, per occasionalium causarum systema non explicatur.

Pro 1. Probatio. P. Malebranchius De inquirenda veritate Parte 2 Lib 6 Cap 2, Aristotelem reprehendit, quod omnia proponat, et solvat ope, ut terminus generis, speciei, actus, potentiæ, naturæ, formæ, facultatum, qualitatum, causæ per se, causæ per accidens. [illegible] sectatores, inquit idem, vix possunt credere, illis terminis nihil significari, nec quempiam doctiorem fieri, ubi eos audierit dicentes, ignem dissolvere metalla, quia habet facultatem dissolvendi, et homines non concoquere cibum, quia habet stomachum debilem, vel quia facultas concoctrix non bene suas obit functiones. Ignis calefacit, lucet, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] facultate [illegible], atque [illegible] nutrit facultate nutritiva, istæ propositiones extra errorem periculum sunt positæ ... Ejusmodi loquendi formulæ equidem non sunt falsæ, sed revera nihil significant. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] errorem non enunciant, sed veritatem [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Hæc Malebranchius, quæ certe in [illegible] merito contra ipsum possumus obvertere. Omnia enim, quæ in mundo fiunt, Dei voluntate fieri, novum dogma non est a Cartesianis inventum. Cum igitur ad examinandum mutuum animæ, et corporis commercium, docet, non alia de causa ex mutationibus, quæ fiunt in corpore a rebus sensibilibus rerum earundem notiones in anima excitari, nisi quia Deus ex occasione mutationis factæ in sensorio a re sensibili, illius ideam producit in mente; et quum ait, propterea ad nutum animæ, motus in corpore fieri, quia Deus motum corpori communicat, ex occasione volitionis motus, quæ viget in mente. Hæc, inquam, quum asserit ea [illegible] asserit, quæ [illegible] certa [illegible] [illegible] sunt; sed nemo hujusmodi explicatione doctior evasit. Quemadmodum [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] trahat ferrum, responderet aliquis Philosophus idcirco contingere, quod Deus, ad præsentiam magnetis motum in ferro producat, nequaquam de explicatione illa [illegible] doctior fieret; ita nemo fit doctior, quum [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] harmoniæ causa, hæc una datur responsio; quia eas Deus inter mentem, et corpus leges constituit, ut modificationes utriusque substantiæ sibi mutuo responderent.

Pro: 2do Probatio. Systema causarum occasionalium adversatur intimo sensui, et humanam omnino evertit libertatem, tale proinde est, ut mutuum illud commercium explicare non possit. Adversatur intimo sensui, quum hoc sensu intimus non minus conscii sumus, cogitare nos, et existere, quam, quum judicamus, ratiocinamur, aut aliquid volumus, activam mentis nostræ esse vim, qua se ipsam excitat et ad judicandum, ratiocinandum, volendum se se determinat. Evertit liberum nostrum arbitrium [illegible]

n. secundum hypothesim Occasionalistarum, omni destituta ē mens agendi virtute, si veluti iners substantia se habet [illegible] [illegible] erit inter mentem, et corpora, in quibus ne vestigium quidem ē libertatis, virtutē. Hinc quemadmodum corporum inertia facit, ut quum ab externa impellantur causa, n̄ libere, sed necessario moveantur, ita [illegible] mentis inertia efficeret, ne libere operaretur; Quæ quum Catholico dogmati repugnent, rejiciendum ē systema causarum occasionalium, ubi mutuum mentis, atq. corporis commercium ē explicandum.

Opponunt [illegible] occasionalium causarum systema commercium mentis cum corpore nequit explicari, propterea quia in hoc systemate mens nihil potē agere; sed tantum pati; sed p hoc systema n̄ omnis activa vis auferth menti. ergo etc. Pro. MR ex quo certa [illegible] n̄ insit virtus, male infert, illud omni penitus agendi facultate destitui. Ergo, ex quo mens p hoc systema rerum [illegible] in se [illegible] nequeat, n̄ [illegible], eam [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tantum pati.

R. conc: MM. ne: MM. ad prob: dist: ant: ex quo uni, qd propria causa sit, certa n̄ insit virtus, male infert, illud omni penitus agendi facultate destitui conc. Ex quo uni, qd n̄ sit vera causa, certa n̄ insit virtus, male infert [illegible]: ant: et sub allata dist. [illegible] quum ē Malebranchium causis naturales, [illegible] [illegible], n̄ sint veræ, et propriæ causæ, sed occasionales tantum, recte a nobis [illegible] hujusmodi naē ēē mentem, in systemate Occasionalistarum, ut nihil proprius agere possit. Nam occasionalis causa ea dicitur, quæ innata sua vi nihil potē immediate producere; adeout sit concedendum sit, mentem humanam n̄ ēē occasionalem tantum causam, vel eam, secundum occasionalis causæ leges, pati tantummodo, atq. omni activa virtute carere. [illegible] n. mentem ē causam occasionalem, [illegible] simul activa aliqua virtute ē [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] simul et agere simul, et n̄ agere. Deinde [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] humanæ menti, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], vel aliud [illegible] [illegible] modificare, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] relinquitur cur [illegible] quoq. ideas producere n̄ possit, ideæ quippe nihil aliud sunt, quam mentis modificationes.

Atq. ut magis pateat, [illegible] solummodo mentem secundum hypothesim Occasionalistarum, [illegible] [illegible] sunt cum [illegible] Malebranchio. Docet primum Vir cl: n̄ posse mentem humanam rerum in se cudere ideas, quia licet ideæ sint modificationes mentis, [illegible] [illegible] productio esset vera creatio [illegible] [illegible] mentis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] cum corporis impotentia. [illegible] vero posita [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] potē [illegible] producere, [illegible] [illegible] n̄ potē producere: et [illegible] productio idearum ē creatio, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a mente, quia [illegible] absurdum [illegible] consequitur, humanam [illegible] mente præditam ē creandi facultate. [illegible], [illegible] Malebranchio, tanta ē corporum impotentia, ut ne vestigium quidem activæ virtutis in illis habeat. In quit. n. laudato Lib.o Cap. 3. Vis movens corporum n̄ ē in corporibus, quæ moventur; quum vis illa movens nihil aliud sit, quam Dei voluntas. Itaq. corpora [illegible] omni actione destituta sunt et [illegible] globus motus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] alteri nihil communicat, quod habeat in se: Ipse n. habet impressionem, quam communicat... omnes nāe vires nihil aliud sunt, quam Dei voluntas. Ex his autem Malebranchii verbis ita argumentandum ē. Secundum Malebranchium, mentes humanæ in eadem cum corporibus impotentia versantur. Sed talis p Malebranchium ē impotentia corporum, ut nulla agendi virtute prædita sint. Ergo talis quoq. ē impotentia mentis, ut omni activa virtute destituta sit.

Opponunt 2do systema causarum occasionalium humanæ libertati n̄ evertere. Inquiunt n. homines [illegible] [illegible] a Deo versus bonum in genere; ad homines tn̄ voluntatem spectare hujusce impulsionis determinationes, nempe ut unum potius, quam aliud particulare bonum amore prosequatur.

R. [illegible] ē [illegible] hæc Cartesianorum momenta ad [illegible] in eorum systemate hominis libertatem, quum hominis voluntas nequeat se ad particulare bonum determinare, quin particulare illud bonum velit, et voluntatis determinatio ad unum sit ipsa volitio. Porro, docente Malebranchio, sicuti rerum ideæ, occasione motuum, qui in organis sensoriis fiunt, menti a solo Deo [illegible]; ita volitiones, et [illegible] a solo Deo menti communicantur, occasione [illegible] [illegible] quæ eidem impressæ a Deo sunt, vel quorundam motuum, qui [illegible] in corpore [illegible]. Quamobrem, si volitiones mentis n̄ ab ipsa mente, sed a solo Deo habentur, a solo quoq. Deo erit determinatio voluntatis ad unum potius, quam aliud particulare bonum; [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] volitionibus destituitur arbitrio. Deinde, vel determinatio voluntatis ad particulare bonum active ab ipsa voluntate producitur, vel n̄: si active; Quælibet ergo rei notio poterit a mente active produci, quum tal rei perceptio, quam [illegible] volitio, n̄ sit nisi pura mentis modificatio. Si n̄, ergo, in particulare bonum [illegible], n̄ agit, sed patitur anima. Tandem, Autore Malebranchio, mentes in eadem versantur impotentia in [illegible] corpora sunt. Sed tanta ē inertia corporum, ut neq. se movere, neq. acceptam ad motum impulsionem possint determinare. Ergo neq. mens determinare poterit impulsionem, quam versus bonum in genere a Deo recipit.

Alia opponi solent a Malebranchianis, ut libertatem hominum cum systemate causarum occasionalium consistere posse suadeant; Asserunt enim, decipi fortasse nos, quum p sensum intimum judicamus, mentem in suis ideis, atq. appetitionibus n̄ pati, sed agere. Verum illa satis confutata sunt Lib. I. Logicæ, Cap. 2. Propositione I. Huic propositioni finem imponimus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] argumenta, quæ [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Cap. 2. Propositione 28. Nam primo si neq. corpus ē causa suorum motuum, neq. anima ē vera causa suarum affectionum, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], nemini [illegible] peccato. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Dei lege actiones. Non [illegible] scelera, quæ [illegible] corpus, [illegible] [illegible] menti, quum ea sit tantum causa moralis, ut [illegible] [illegible], non causa physica [illegible] solus Deus, actiones autem n̄ moribus [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. [illegible] [illegible] mentis [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] quam producant [illegible] necessario ex occasione motuum corporearum quæ si vera sunt, Deus, qui tollit peccata mundi. 2do inutiles sunt leges morales in hypothesi Malebranchiana. Quæ n. utilitas illius præcepti. N̄ occides: si, ut occidamus, corpus moveri debet a solo Deo, nec quidquam potē animus, nisi imperare necessario ex occasione motionum corporis. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], et voluntatis [illegible], quum mens [illegible] [illegible] cogitat, et cogitans [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mentis occasionalitatem [illegible] inanes sunt leges, exhortationes, consilia. [illegible], [illegible] [illegible] Naturæ [illegible], doctrina nec [illegible] originalis in hoc systemate nulla ē, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] mentis cum corpore vera commercio, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] originalis [illegible] [illegible] p systema causarum occasionalium explicari n̄ posse mutuum, quod re ipsa intercedit, inter animam, atq. corpus commercium.

Propositio 2da. Nulla evidenti ratione ostendi potē aut mentem humanam in suis producendis ideis ē veluti spirituale quodam automaton aut corpus humanum ē tali machinam, quæ vi solius mechanismi omnes suos motus producat.

Pro [illegible] [illegible] partem. [illegible], ut [illegible] [illegible], mentem humanam in producendis [illegible] se habere veluti spirituale quoddam machinam, ut contrarium [illegible] [illegible]. Nam evidenti ratione constat [illegible]

Certe Apud Clericum testatur Pfaffius Professor Academiae Tubingensis, praestabilitam harmoniam per jocum fuisse a Leibnitio confictam in Theodicea sua; addit quod sibi rem hanc confirmatam esse per litteras ab ipso Leibnitio. Verba Epistolae Leibnitianae anno 1716 die 11. Maj. ad Pfaffium datae, sequentia sunt. Ita prorsus est, Vir summe Reverende, uti scribis de Theodicea mea. Rem acu tetigisti, et miror neminem hactenus fuisse, qui lusum hunc meum senserit. Neque n. Philosophorum est, rem serio semper agere, qui in fingendis hypothesibus, uti bene mones, ingenii sui vires experiuntur, Tu, qui Theologus es, in refutandis erroribus, Theologum agis.

sensibilis idea in anima excitari nisi certa motio in organo sensorio ab [illegible] imprimatur, et cerebro communicetur tantum, [illegible] connexionem idearum quae existunt in anima, cum determinatis quibusdam motibus organorum sensoriorum corporis, ut, si mens in rerum ideis producendis physice ab illis motibus, adeoque a corpore dependeret, major esse non posset. Hinc Wolfius ipse, qui ait in systemate harmoniae praestabilitae perceptiones, et appetitus omnes provenire ab anima in propria vi dependentes ab omni externo principio, fatetur Psych. Rat. sect. [illegible] Cap. [illegible] animam non repraesentare hoc universum [illegible] pro situ corporis organici in universo, convenienter mutationibus, quae in organis sensoriis contingunt, [illegible] hinc animam habere vim sibi repraesentandi hoc universum, [illegible] mundi scilicet res sensibiles, limitatam materialiter pro situ corporis organici in universo, formaliter constitutione organorum, nempe dependenter a mutationibus, quae fiunt in corpore ex sensionibus rerum ut [illegible] externis [illegible]: Audiat eam, se tunc [illegible] demonstrare, quomodo [illegible] producendi perceptiones a corpore pendeat [illegible] omnia evincunt, neque [illegible] quidem Wolfium pro certo habuisse, mentem humanam se habere veluti quoddam automaton spirituale.

Pro[illegible] quoad 2dam partem. Corpus humanum tale [illegible] machinam, quae independenter ab anima moveat, neque a priori [illegible] nec a posteriori demonstrari potest. [illegible] a priori, quum internam humani corporis [illegible] nemo adhuc [illegible], nec [illegible] a posteriori quum si spectetur modus, quo corpus humanum [illegible] motus fac[illegible] [illegible], contrarium [illegible] apparet. [illegible] quippe corpus [illegible] [illegible] motibus anima [illegible], tanquam a determinante principio, realiter dependere.

Pro 2do utraque [illegible] pars. Verum si experientiam consulamus, tantam inter perceptiones mentis, et motiones corporis connexionem deprehendimus, et vicissim tantam inter quosdam motus corporis, et volitiones mentis unionem cernimus, quanta non apparet inter efficientem realem causam et suum effectum. [illegible] causa efficiente causa reali, [illegible] effectus [illegible] certa mutatione [illegible] organis sensoriis corporis ex [illegible] excitatur, statim in anima eadem rerum perceptio, et ea quidem constanti lege, ut quemadmodum [illegible] effectus respondet virtuti suae causae eamque adaequat, ita [illegible] ratione [illegible] impressioni factae in organo sensorio, adeo [illegible], ut clarior, vel obscurior ea sit, prout magis, vel minus valida fuerit impressio. Et vicissim, [illegible] in anima volitione motus, statim motus ille in corpore consequitur, tamdiu durans [illegible] animae [illegible] placet, cessat vero, quam [illegible] ne minimum [illegible] vestigium, quamprimum [illegible], ut nota [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] tanta ergo connexio [illegible] ratio [illegible] ut [illegible] corpore, et corpus a mente in suis exercendis functionibus realiter pendere dicatur, neque connexio [illegible] quae per experientiam inter realem causam, et suum effectum [illegible] sufficiens ab [illegible] erit ratio, ut denominationem causae, et effectus illis merito tribuamus. Confirmatur. Wolfius, qui praestabilitam harmoniam tam acriter defendit, eam tamen non habet, nisi loco hypothesis. [illegible] [illegible] suam de harmonia praestabilita dissertationem vocat hypotheticam commentationem, et [illegible] [illegible] consilium [illegible] Lectorem in [illegible] adoptum Optio [illegible] est, utram harum vel conditionem, accipe: [illegible] de Leibnitio, quem quum [illegible] [illegible], ignorare [illegible] potuit, quinam sint characteres certitudinis. Quare, si harmonia praestabilita Autoribus suis mera est hypothesis [illegible] demonstratum Theorema; certum est, nulla evidenti ratione posse suaderi, aut mentem humanam in suarum productione idearum esse spiritualem machinam, aut moveri corpus humanum ope solius mechanismi.

Opponunt 1. Quanquam videtur, in suis perceptionibus animam dependere a corpore, et corpus vicissim in suis motionibus ab anima [illegible] recte tamen inferri potest, revera dependere a corpore animam aut ab anima corpus. Nam, ut rei alicui denominationem causae merito tribuamus, necessarium est, ut [illegible] actionem cognoscamus. Sed actionem [illegible] corporis in animam, [illegible] animae in corpus non cognoscimus. Ergo asserere non possumus duas illas substantias esse mutuo dependentes.

R. [illegible] principio, nullum dari posse alicujus naturalis effectus causam, quum nulla [illegible] sit, cujus nobis actio [illegible] sit. [illegible] magnes nullo modo censenda erit causa motus, quiad [illegible] in ferro contingit, quum nemo sit, qui magnetis in ferrum actionem clare, distincteque cognoscat. Sed magnetem esse causam motus in ferro, nemo dubitat, licet illam clare, distincteque non capiat. Ergo mentem a corpore, et vicissim a mente corpus dependere pro certo habendum est, licet actio mentis in corpus, et corporis in mentem a nobis [illegible] obscure dignoscatur. [illegible] harmonistae, ex connexione, quae [illegible] res apparet, non posse recte inferri unam esse alterius causam, [illegible] unde constet, [illegible] [illegible], quae [illegible] ut una dicatur merito causa alterius, ac propterea mentem [illegible] non posse veluti causam motionum corporis, quum ab eos producendos sit improportionata; respondendum est, [illegible], quum non [illegible] habeamus [illegible] mentis nostrae, ut certo nobis constet quid possit, quidve non possit, ignoramus an ipsa vis cogitandi [illegible] expectata [illegible], tali quoque [illegible] ut in corpus influere, ipsumque ad motum possit determinare. Et licet lateat nos modus, quo hujusmodi vim exercet anima, contemptis [illegible] [illegible] volitiones, et quosdam corporis motus negare non possumus, [illegible], hanc quoque vim humanae menti esse adscribendam.

Opponunt 2do Animam, et corpus esse duo automata, licet in suis perceptionibus mentis a corpore, et in suis motibus corpus a mente dependeat. Series n. perceptionum definita est a Deo in quacunque anima dependens ab iis mutationibus quae [illegible] organis sensoriis corporis cui illam unire decrevit, praevidet Deus ipse certo futuras; et vicissim series motuum definita est a Deo in quocunque corpore dependenter ab iis volitionibus, quas in anima, cui ipsum unire decrevit praevidit Deus certo futuras. Ergo neque mens dependet ab existente corpore, neque corpus ab existente anima, sed a praevisa tantum mente corpus, et a praeviso [illegible] a Deo corpore anima. Sunt itaque duo automata.

R. nullum esse hujusmodi effugium, si res attente spectetur, et cum Wolfii potissimum doctrina comparetur. Nam [illegible] tam [illegible] esse hypothesim nullo evidenti argumento suffultam, desumptam [illegible] seriem motuum in corpore dependentem a [illegible] animae volitionibus, et vicissim; Consectarium exinde fieret, systema harmonistarum non differre a systemate causarum occasionalium quum, [illegible] ac Occasionarii, doceat Wolfius, modificari a Deo animam in gratiam corporis, si series idearum determinatur a Deo in anima ex praevisione mutationum, quae in corpore futurae sunt. 2do series idearum nequit a Deo in anima determinari, nisi ipsa capax sit anima cujuslibet [illegible], ut [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] suas essentias determinata. Animam autem per suam essentiam esse determinatam ad certam producendam idearum seriem docet Wolfius Psych. Rat. sec. 1 Cap. 1 n. [illegible] [illegible]: Vis repraesentativa universi est natura animae, quatenus repraesentationes illas actuat [illegible] vero quatenus ad tales potius quam alias, tali potius quam alio ordine actuandas restringitur. Ergo, si mens habet a Deo, ut hanc potius quam aliam idearum seriem producat, [illegible] contradicit [illegible]. quum ait [illegible] Psych. Rat. sect. 3 cap. [illegible] [illegible] animam dirigere vim repraesentativam universi, ita ut [illegible] potius perceptiones, quas habet causa [illegible]. Quippe, si a Deo determinatur mens, ut hanc potius, quam aliam idearum seriem producat, [illegible] ipsa anima, quae vim illam dirigat.

Quarto asserere n̄ potē Wolfius seriē idearū determinatā eē a Deo in anima ex previsione mutaonū, quę futurę sunt in corpore, cui, uncta ē nisi corpus, in quo una potius, quam alia futura sit mutaonū series, pro-paf possibile. Anima autē, si Wolfio havemus fidē, talē habens seriē perceptionū possibilis esse in eatenus nudū possibile supponat corpus, in quo series motuū harmonicorū detr. R. ergo Wolfius sibi constans n̄ ē aut dicat oportet, seriē idearū ex previsione mutaonū in corpore, cui jungenda erat, n̄ fuisse in anima a Deo determinatā. Sandē, si mens cujuslibet hoīs indifferens ē p suā essentiā ad quamlibet idearū seriē producen-dā, ejusmodi ipsa ē, ut cuilibet corpori ex quo copulari a Deo potuerit. Contrarium autē ob stilline tradit vir il. Nec n̄ habet in systemate harmonię prestabilitę anima hec n̄ potius uniri, qm̃ huic corpori 6. salvā utrius-q. substantię essentiā, atq. naām animę. In systemate influxus physici, et causarū occasionaliū indifferens ē ad unionē cū quolibet corpore, sed ut clarius cuiq fiat, hec modis singulare hoc ē in systemate harmonię pre-stabilitę, qd unaqueq. anima ad unionē cū suo corpore p essentiā, atq. naām suā destinet, ita ut tot concipiantur animę possibiles, quot corpora humana ipsis harmonice modificabilia in hac serie rerū existere possunt, et singulis suū sensu propriissimo conveniat corpus; quin nullo modo, salva hac rerū serie, alterius ani-mę corpus fieri possit: Hactenus Wolfius. Nisi ergo sibimetipsi apte adversari velit, asserere requit, huma-nā mentē dependere a mutaonibus organorū sensoriorū corporis in rerū ideis producendis, quatenus ex pre-visione futurarū ipsarū mutaonū fuerit ipsa mens ad unā potius, quam ad aliā producendā idearū se-riē, a Deo determinata.

Opponunt 3tio in hoc systemate humanā facilius servari libertatē, quū vis cogitativa mentis a voluntate deter-minetur ad unā potius, quam ad aliā rei notionē, atq notionū seriē producendā.

R. tantū abeē, ut p systema harmonię prestabilitę humana libertas explicet, ut ea potius in hoc systemate des-truat. Quū n. p Harmonistas humana mens in producendis rerū notionib. a [illegible] corpore, cui unita ē haudquaquam dependeat, nullo ē prestabilitę harmonię systema, qm̃ mens ipsa ita neario rerū notiones producat, ut impediri, et ad alias producendas n̄ possit determinari. Si n. p suā essentiā determinata n̄ ē ad unā potius, quā ad aliā notio-nē, et notionū seriē producendā, ab alio extra ipsā posito debet determinari, proindeq. ab alio pendere, quemadmodū quia corpus p naām suā ad unā potius, quā ad aliā spatii partē percurrendā n̄ ē determina-tū, extrinseco indiget principio, a quo sua vis motiva determinetur. Ita ergo neario eas omnes rerū notiones in se ipsa producit mens, quas modo producit, si ad eas producendas p suā essentiā determinata dicatur, ut nullo modo possit impediri.

Neq humanā solummodo pene libertatē ex hoc systemate infert, verū eā illud sequit, qd repugnat mani-feste, et Scripturis, et Patrib. Sequit n. neq. commendaone dignos eē, qui honestas ideas excitare nituntur, neq dignos eē reprehensione, qui turpes fovere, atq. inhonestas in mentē revocare delectantur. Nā si neq. illi hone-stis, neq. turpib isti carere cogitaonib libere possunt; cur quęso aut laudandi, aut reprehendendi sunt. Ista quā falsa sunt, ignorat nemo. Scriptura quippe, et Patres edocent, impedire posse nos, ne rerū externarū notiones acquirat mens, easq deinde appetat, hoc pro duntaxat, qd a nobis prohibeantur, ne incisoria corporis or-gana a reb. suis immutentur. Pepigi, inquit Job, fedus cū oculis meis, ut ne cogitarem quidē de Virgine, quę ver-ba exponens S. Gregorius Magnus Lib. 21 Moraliū Cap 2 hęc habet. Quum sit invisibilis animā, neqaquam corporearū rerū delectaone tangitur, nisi qd inhęrent corpori, quasi quędā egrediendi foramina, ejusdem corporis sensus habet. Visus quippe, auditus, gustus, odoratus, et tactus quasi quędā vię mentis sunt, qui-bus foras veniat, et ea, quę extra ejus substantiā sunt, concupiscat. Et paulo post ut cogitaones cordis caste servare potuisset, fedus cū oculis pepigit, ne prius incaute aspiceret, qd postmodū invitus amaret.. Ne ergo lubrica in cogitaone versemur, providendū nobis ē, quia intueri n̄ decet, qd n̄ licet concupiscere ut n. munda mens in cogitaone servetur, a lascivia voluptatis suę deprimendi sunt oculi, quasi quidā rap-tores ad culpā. Hinc Scriptura jubet avertendā eē faciē a muliere compta, et n̄ eē circumspiciendam speciē alienā. Qui viderit mulierē, inquit Xtus Dominus, Mathei Cap 5 ad concupiscendū eā, jā mecha-tus ē eā in corde suo; quia nimirū ex visione comptę mulieris consequuntur in anima, n̄ secus ac effectus suas causas, inhonestę cogitaones, et turpia inde desideria excitantur. Jā vero, si secundū Harmonistas, or-ganorū sensoriorū mutaones nihil conferunt ad bonas vel pravas affectiones in anima producendas, ita ut eodē modo producerentur illę in anima, si corpori n̄ esset unita, quo in ea excitantur corpori copulata, inmerito suaderent nobis Scripturę externos cohibendos eē sensus; impedire haudquaquā possemus sensoriorū im-mutaones, neario omnino foverent sive honestę, sive turpes appetitiones; nullū propterea mereret nos premium, nullū post mortē supplicium; contra doctrinā Xti Domini, universorumq. Patrū, contra universalem gene-ris humani consensū.

Ppōo 3tia. Corpus humanū determinatur ab anima raāli ad motus voluntarios pagendos, et humana mens a corpore determinari indiget, ut unius potius, quam alterius rei ideā producat.

Pro Ppōo quoad primā partē. Quum motus voluntarius, ut inquit Tullius L. 1 de fato, eā naām in se conti-neat, ut sit in nostra potestate, nobisq. pareat, corpus humanū ad nullū pagendū voluntariū motum p suā structurā dici potē determinatū, quia omnis tollatur voluntarius motus. Nequeunt n. motus omnes cor-poris humani vi solius structurę, seu mechanismi fieri, nisi ita sint determinati, ut, salva structura, neq mo-tus oppositi possibiles sint, nec fieri possit, ut qui determinati sunt, n̄ p̄ficiantur. Sic, experientia teste, fieri n̄ potē, ut, salva automatici horologii structura, illius index contrariū ac solet motū, aut illas n̄ designet horas, ad quas indicandas vi interioris structurę determinatur. Omnes igitur humani corporis motus intrinsece neārii sunt, si omnes vi solius structurę determinantur et p̄ficiuntur; nulla propterea erit nobis in motus cor-poris nostri libertas. Etenim, si, docente D. Augustino, n̄ ē nobis liberū, qd in potestate n̄ habemus, ea au-tē in potestate n̄ habemus, ad quę p naām sumus determinati; nulla profecto inē nobis libertas in motus corporis, qui vi solius structuræ, adeoq. ꝑ nāā determinant, et efficiunt. Sicuti n, ait laudatus autor, non voluntate senescimus, sed necessitate, neq. voluntate morim̄, sed necessitate, propterea, quū ad senescendū, et moriendū determinati simus ꝑ nāā, neutrū in nostra relinquit potestate, ita ñ voluntate, sed necessitate omnes corporis humani motus fieri oportet, si ꝑ nāā, seu ꝑ structurā determinati a nostra potestate ñ dependent. Sed motus, qui volitionib animæ respondent, ñ nāru, sed contingentes sunt. Nullus ergo voluntarius corporis motus ꝑ structurā, seu mechanismū corporis ē determinatū.

Hinc aliqd admittendū ē intrinsecū hoīs principiū, qd corpus organicū ad voluntarios motus faciendos physice determinet; nulla quippe substantia extra nos posita ita subiici potē imperio mentis, ut quamprimū imperat mens, moveatr, et vires suas, prout menti placet, in corpus exerceat. Admittenda ē i ꝗ rāālis anima, veluti intrinsecū hujusmodi principiū, quū nullū aliud extra animā positū ita corpus nostrū determinare possit ad motus, ut motus ipsi imperio animæ acceptus sit referendus.

Pro. 2 ᵈᵒ quoad 2dā partē. Mens humana nulla positiva rāne ostendi potē ad rerū omniū ideas in se producendas ꝑ suā essentiā determinata, sed extrinseco indiget principio, ut unius potius, quā alterius rei ideā producat. Quū n. experientia constet sit, animā ñ se habere tanquā quoddā spirituale automaton, & videas quippe ē nullius prorsus sensibilis rei ideā in ipsa excitare, nisi certā motio in organo sensorio ab ipsa re primo fiat, et cerebro communicetr; manifestū ē, humanā mentē, quamdiu corpori ē unita, eodē corpore indigere, ut unā potius, quā alterā ideā in se cudat. In sensibiliū itaq. rerū notionib producendis dependet a corpore mens quatenus corporis ministerio determinatr a phantasmate, veluti ab obº, ad unius potius, quā alterius rei sensibilis ideā producendā.

Opponunt i. Harmonistæ, motus corporis, qui volitionib animæ respondent, ē quidē nāarios, quū ꝑ ipsius corporis structurā sint determinati, at simul censendos ēē liberos, quū determinati ñ sint a Deo in corpore ꝑ ejus structurā, nisi quatenus, vi præscientiæ suæ, certissime cognovit, mentē illi uniendā eos, et ñ alios ē libere volituram.

R. motus corporis, qui volitionib animæ respondent, liberos censeri ñ posse, cūm motus, ad quos ꝑ suā structurā determinatū ē Petri v. c. corpus, ii prorsus sint, quos præscivit Deus Petri animā ē libere volituram, ac licet eos propterea motus, et ñ alios Petri mens in præsentiarū velit. Rāo autē ē, quia tametsi eos velit Petrus, in ejus tn̄ potestate ñ ē ut, si modo eos nollet, ñ essent illi sequuturi, quū fieri ñ possit, ut ii omnes motus a Petri corpore ñ fiant, ad quos faciendos jā ꝑ structurā suā ē determinatū, neq. illius anima aut mechanismū possit mutare, aut illi ita resistere, ut aliquē ex iis motib, qui vi illius mechanismi fiunt, possit impedire. Libertas igitr arbitrii ñ inē Petro in motus sui corporis, si nullus eorū in Petri potestate modo habeatr. Ergo, licet corpus determinatū physice ñ sit, nisi ad eos motus, quos illi unita mens ē modo volitura; id tn̄ neququā impedit, quominus nulla sit Petrus in motus sui corporis libertate donatus. Enimvero ipsa existens hōo, prout semper aliquid ē ex anima, et corpore constitutū, vel ad oppositos motus indifferens ē, et ad eos omnes intrinsece aptus, vel ñ. Si intrinsece ñ ē aptus, et divinæ præscientiæ causa ñ ē aptus, Divina ergo præscientia ita hoīs in motus sui corporis libertatē lædit, ut eam prorsus evertat: si vero ad motus omnes adhuc intrinsece indifferens ē; corpus igitr humanū rāne sui mechanismi, sive structuræ ad certā faciendā motuū seriē ñ ē determinatū.

